Child rapist headed to prison for 13 years

Prosecutor talks about plea as Spellmeier sent to prison for 13 years

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - To prevent an 11-year-old girl from having to testify in public against the 47-year-old man who raped her, 4th Judicial District Court Judge Eric Godderz agreed to a plea deal that will send the man to prison for about half the time typically ordered in such cases. Anderson County Attorney Brandon Jones said that while some people in the community may feel the sentence was too lenient, it was the best outcome because it protects the girl and holds the rapist accountable.

Spellmeier

"In a perfect world, we would put child molesters away as long as possible. But there are a multitude of factors involved and it's not always that easy," Jones said. Michael J. Spellmeier of Garnett was sentenced Monday, Nov. 23, to serve 155 months — a little less than 13 years — in prison for the rape of a then-10-year-old girl between Oct. 1, 2014, and April 24, 2015. Because the case fell under "Jessica's Law" sentencing guidelines, a minimum sentence of 25 years to life in prison typically is handed down for anyone 18 or older who has sex with someone younger than 14.

Jones said the girl no longer lives in the state and the family does not want to return to Kansas nor have the girl testify. He said he had spoken to the girl's mother and grandmother and they agreed with the plea agreement. The family agreed

Man rescued from grain bin

New equipment helped free Westphalia business owner trapped in seeds

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

WESTPHALIA - It took only seconds for soybean seeds to surround Grant Corley, 72, last week during a routine chore at Corley Seed Farm. He was vacuuming seeds to transfer into a delivery truck Tuesday, Nov. 17, less than 10 seconds later, he was buried up to his chest.

But thanks to recent training and new grain rescue equipment obtained just months ago by the Westphalia Fire Department, it took only minutes to free Corley from the dangerous situation.

Corley, who bought his first farm when he was 16, was removing grain from storage bins for about 50 years and said he has never had an experience like that.

"I can't believe how fast it happened," he said. "No question about it. I was pretty well scared."

Grain engulfment accidents are extremely dangerous. A study from Purdue University reported more than 900 cases of grain engulfment occurred during the past 50 years with a 62 percent fatality rate.

Because of the danger and the high number of farmers in Anderson County, local fire departments have placed more emphasis on training for such events, and obtaining appropriate equipment to help with such rescues. Westphalia Fire Chief Kenton Ludolph obtained a grant for grain rescue equipment from Nationwide Insurance in 2014. Other equipment was donated by the family of Butch Ludolph. East Kanass Agri-Energy and Beachner Grain also contributed money to help purchase such equipment.

Corley said he was standing on top of the grain using a hose to vacuum soybeans and transfer them to a delivery truck parked outside the bin, like a giant "shop vac." It's a procedure he's used often, he said. Somehow, the tube became submerged in the grain. A safety measure that's supposed to prevent suction when the tube is submerged apparently didn't work properly, Corley said. As the lower layers of beans were sucked through the tube, it created a situation somewhat like quicksand, pulling Corley into

Man killed hauling ag equipment

Emergency response crews work the scene of a one-vehicle wreck that killed Chad Collins, 39, of Waverly, Thursday afternoon, Nov. 19. Collins was driving a semi hauling a grain grinder, which overturned on 1600 Road west of Garnett.

One dead after 2 wrecks last week

GARNETT - One person was killed last week in one of two unrelated wrecks over about a 24-hour period.

Chad R. Collins, 39, of Waverly, was killed while hauling a large piece of farm equipment on 1600 Road about five miles west of Garnett at about 4:15 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 19. Collins died at the scene.

According to a highway patrol report, Collins was driving a 2001 Peterbilt semi-tractor carrying a grain grinder.

The vehicle apparently drove into the north ditch and came back onto the road, when it overturned and came to rest in the south ditch.

Totem pole on Park Road draws attention

Totem pole began as redwood tree in Washington but later moved to Garnett

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

A large totem pole at the Sharon and George Flinn residence on Park Road has attracted a lot of attention over the past few months.

Betty Penn, a longtime Garnett resident, was one of those people. She was drawn to the totem pole because, when she was born, she was delivered by a woman from the Cayuga Indian Tribe. Sharon Flinn said believes Penn's connection to the totem runs even deeper. She said Penn exhibits many of the same characteristics as the totem: Wisdom, courage and respect.

The totem's history goes back at least 40 years. That's when a giant redwood log was shipped by railroad from Washington state to Shooty Lumber Yard in Kansas City. It was carved and hand chiseled by Bob Durham, then donated to the YMCA at 79th and Delmar in Kansas City for more than 20 years.

Each part of the totem has specific Native American meanings, with sculptures of an Eagle, Y, turtle and chief head which symbolize

Local agencies take part in traffic enforcement event

Police, deputies will be watching for drunk driving, seatbelt usage

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - When making the trip to Grandma's for turkey dinner later this week, don't forget to buckle up and don't drink and drive.

That's the message local law officers will send as they participate in a special traffic enforcement campaign now until Sunday, Nov. 29, as part of the Thanksgiving holiday week.

The Anderson County Sheriff's Office, Garnett Police Department and Kansas Highway Patrol will take part in the campaign. A grant from the Kansas Department of Transportation will underwrite overtime traffic enforcement that specifically targets impaired drivers and improperly and unrestrained vehicle occupants.

Syrian crisis shows Kobach as visionary

Considering the role the tsunami of Iraqi and Syrian refugees now in Europe probably played in giving cover to at least one of the Paris terrorists in the recent attacks in France, even the most staunch backers of illegal immigrants in this country should be hailing Kansas Secretary of State Kris Kobach as a visionary.

It is Kobach, after all, who has faced the slings and arrows of Kansas' liberal newspaper editors and leftist organizations both in the Sunflower State and nationwide over his push for the proper credentialing of voters in state elections. Also irksome to these backers of immigrant criminals is Kobach's moonlighting as an author of legislation for other states and local governments that seek to increase restrictions against and reduce the financial impact of known illegals.

Kobach and many conservatives agree: Illegal immigrants in numbers as vast as the 11 million estimated to be residing in this country constitute numerous threats to the security of our nation and the rights of our citizens.

Whether your daughter was murdered by an illegal immigrant, or you lost a school board election because of unvetted illegal votes, or your kid's social security number was stolen and sold to an illegal worker - you've nonetheless been a victim of someone who by rights shouldn't even be here.

The present climate of fear surrounding some 10,000 Syrian and other Middle Eastern refugees President Barack Hussein Obama has pledged to accept as they flee their terrorist-plagued homelands is warranted. Many in government, including Congressmen and Senators with access to staffers at the highest levels of government, say there is no way to properly vet refugees at this time because Syria and other countries don't have data collection, police reports and Homeland Security-type information gathering similar to security in the U.S. There simply is no data to check in any timely fashion to ensure someone is who he says he is and to know what his history has been. Though legitimate refugees would likely outnumber terrorist interlopers 1,000-1, the question has been asked: "If you had a bag of peanuts with a chance of one of them being poison, would you still give the bag to your kids?"

We also have to consider what a coup a terrorist strike on American soil would be for ISIS and how much these Medieval butchers would have to gain from it. An American attack, at this point, is no doubt the holy grail of the organization as it attempts to show it is unaffected by massive airstrikes against its strongholds in Iraq.

The security aspects of this refugee situation however don't absolve the U.S. from its moral obligation to assist these unfortunate individuals. It is un-American to turn our backs on them. If they need to be segregated into safe camps in isolated locations until the vetting is completed, what's wrong with that? More so, why is it so hard to decide?

Balancing this dilemma in a prudent, judicious and secure manner is of course the responsibility of leadership - and so far, as usual, President Barack Hussein Obama has failed to provide that leadership beyond a blanket acceptance of someone else's flawed proposal. Most of the rest of the country agrees on the debate - but the ditherer-in-chief will have to be convinced by pressure from both political parties.

But on his own scale and in dealing with a relative issue in Kansas, Kris Kobach has provided astute, defined and unwavering leadership. People who now suddenly understand the dangers of clandestine terrorist infiltration should have a renewed respect for Kobach's efforts. In fact, they should be thanking him.

Three cheers for Governor Brownback's stopping any potential terrorists from being welcomed into Kansas. Thank you.

Why is it that the President of the United States who took an oath to defend the Constitution of the United States and the America people is more interested in protecting ISIS and the Koran than he is the people of the United States? There's something very, very weird about this. Maybe he's commander and chief of the wrong country?

I have read with interest the demands of black protestors on the college campuses at Missouri and KU and elsewhere in recent weeks. Among these demands is to increase the percentage of black teachers and faculty to more closely resemble the racial makeup of the student body. Perhaps, to be fair, should we consider applying these same percentages to scholarship athletes on the football and basketball teams of these schools?

I just picked up my copy of the "Anderson County Portraits of Honor" at Garnett Publishing, and I'm very impressed. It's a wonderful and very interesting book that is a fantastic tribute to Anderson County veterans. There's lots of information and Dane and his staff did a fantastic job doing the layout and making the pictures very nice and as clear as possible. Anderson County veterans and their families did a great job of contributing their pictures and info to make it such a magnificent preservation of our Anderson County veterans history.

Mr. Hicks, sorry about your university and all the racial problems. Too bad you can't recruit some of them for the Missouri football team. It would give them something to keep their mind off all the racism and your Tigers might even win a game.

To the people who were celebrating on Veterans Day, and to all veterans in our country and Garnett, any of whom may cruise around the North Lake. Just bringing attention to the flag at the Veterans Field flying in the wind. Needs some attention. Don't know if city manager is responsible for this flag, city parks and recreation or the veterans themselves. We need to replace the flag and dispose of the other in a respectable manner. Only showing respect to our flag. Thank you.

2015 ECKAN Spirit of Christmas approaches

As you know, the holidays are quickly approaching. ECKAN and the Spirit of Christmas Committee are busy making arrangements for all those in need to be reached this Christmas season. We appreciate all that is being done, but of course, there is always more. We know it is not possible to be all things to all people, but every little bit helps. Your donations of food, toys and money go a long way. Here are a few items that are always in need-canned meat and fruit, breakfast items, adult Depends (sz L and XL) and baby diapers (sz 4, 5 and 6). Thank you so much for considering us this Christmas Season.

After Paris, empty symbolism

The instant online symbol of global support for Paris after last week's attacks was a roughly rendered peace symbol with an Eiffel Tower in the middle of it. The French designer Jean Jullien sketched it as soon as he heard the news of the atrocity. He called it "Peace for Paris," and it immediately became a sensation on social media.

Its success is a sign of the times. We have become experts at treacherous online mourning. We take grotesque atrocities and launder them into trite symbols and slogans that are usually self-congratulatory and, of course, wholly ineffectual. The 19th-century author William Dean Howells once said, "Yes, what the American public wants is a tragedy with a happy ending." On social media, the happy ending is the widely shared and tweeted image or hashtag.

After the slaughter at the offices of the satirical French magazine Charlie Hebdo earlier this year, it was "Je suis Charlie," or "I am Charlie." It was a well-intentioned expression of solidarity, so long as you overlooked the absurd presumption of it.

You are Charlie? Oh, OK. Then draw a sketch of Muhammad and post it online. Better yet, do it over and over again, until you get constant threats and your office is firebombed, just as a warmup. No, you aren't Charlie (for that matter, Charlie isn't even Charlie anymore - it's given up on mocking Islam for understandable safety reasons).

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

RICH LOWRY, King Features Syndicate

The "Peace for Paris" image is simple and emotive, if inapt. Paris doesn't need to give peace a chance. It doesn't need to make love, not war. It doesn't need to be more understanding or more hopeful. It needs to be better protected by all those unsentimental means that have been neglected in recent years, or overwhelmed by the growing threat of ISIS.

Paris - and more broadly France and the West - needs more surveillance of suspected terrorists and police raids; a more restrictive immigration policy that doesn't create large, unassimilated Muslim populations, or welcome terrorists as refugees; and a serious, multilayered campaign to destroy ISIS and deny it the safe havens from which it recruits and trains, and plots against the West.

If someone can come up with a catchy symbol for that, I'll embrace it (although "La Marseillaise" isn't so bad: "To arms citizens/Form your battalions/March, march"). Meanwhile, spare me the #PrayforParis hashtag. Forgive me if I'm unmoved by lighting up world landmarks in red, white and blue, or your putting a tricolor filter on your Facebook profile picture. And please don't tell me, in the words of the designer Jean Jullien, that "in all this horror there's something positive that people are coming together in a sense of unity and peace."

Nothing positive comes from innocents getting shot down in cold blood for the offense of going to a concert on a Friday night. If there aren't going to be more - and worse - attacks in our cities, the path ahead won't be one of unity and peace. It will be the hard, thankless work of protecting civilization from its enemies.

Who's cutting the bird; who's cutting the check?

Nothing quite like getting the turkey ready for Thanksgiving - or maybe for Birkenstock sandal wearers figuring out how to massage kale leaves into something that looks like a bird - and thinking about those campaigns coming up for the Kansas House and Senate.

Yes, while you're checking the cranberries, some of us Statehouse folk are wondering just how much - and whose - money will be spent to elect members of the Kansas House and Kansas Senate next fall.

While filings for the Legislature are trickling in - a lot of legislators wait until the session to file for re-election, when their mileage to Topeka is paid for by the Legislature - we're figuring that someone will run for everything.

And, last year, 248 candidates for the House spent $3.6 million, on their campaigns and the winning 125 spent $2.76 million. That pencils out to $22,080 per head of winner. But, political action committees and out-of-state organizations spent another $1.9 million that didn't show up on the candidates' filings, for a total $5.4 million in campaign spending, not all of which was controlled by the actual candidates.

Senators? They were halfway through their four-year terms, and spent most of that election cycle raising money for their upcoming campaigns next year. While there was a mad scramble for campaign money for folks actually on a ballot in 2014, senators still managed to pry away from House and statewide office races $500,000, which means that they had a total of $1.78 million and an election still two years away.

And, clear back in 2012, the last time senators were elected, it cost an average of about $94,000 to win a Senate campaign, again, just the candidate campaign costs, not those out-of-state and political action committee campaigning expenditures.

STATE COMMENTARY

So, what are we thinking about while wondering whether to go butter-or-margarine in the holiday mashed potatoes? The likely source of the money for those upcoming campaigns.

In 2014, out-of-state organizations spent $1.15 million to elect House members in Kansas where they don't even live. Those political action committees? They spent $1.7 million in the House races. Out-of-state organizations wound up spending 21% of the money in those races; PACs spent 32% of that election cycle spending. The candidates themselves? Five percent. And, individual contributors gave $1.3 million or about 24% of the money spent on those campaigns.

Seems a little strange that the link between the candidates and the organizations which spent more than half the money for their elections is a little, well...let's call it obtuse.

It isn't really "I give to my neighbor" or to that House member I've seen at the fair or walking in the 4th of July parade tossing candy to the kids anymore. Nope, most of the money for the last House election came from political action committees which have specific legislation they are interested in and don't much care whether the candidate is likeable to the folks he/she will theoretically represent. Those out-of-state organizations generally use the same criteria.

Is this a big deal? Well, maybe, maybe not. It will probably make it worthwhile for us Kansans to figure that individual contributors to campaigns either have the right candidate or the wrong one. But that's for Kansans who are writing personal checks.

Those PACs and out-of-state contributors? They generally aren't going to care whether a candidate promises to fight for a new highway turnoff in his/her district or protect Lesser Prairie Chickens.

Might be worthwhile digging into what those PACs and out-of-state organizations want in Kansas.

But it's probably best to get into that after Thanksgiving dinner. That isn't anything you'll want to distract you from pumpkin pie...or its kale alternative.

Let's talk turkey

While no records exist of the exact first Thanksgiving feast, journals of the time note that the colony's governor, William Bradford, sent four men on a "fowling" mission in preparation for the three-day event. Wild—but not domestic—turkey was indeed plentiful in the region and a common food source for both English settlers and Native Americans. But it is just as likely that the fowling party returned with other birds the colonists regularly consumed, such as ducks, geese and swans. Instead of bread-based stuffing, herbs, onions or nuts might have been added to the birds for extra flavor.

Turkey or no turkey, the first Thanksgiving's participants got their fill of meat. Journals share that the Wampanoag Indians arrived with an offering of five deer. Culinary historians speculate that the deer was roasted on a spit over a smoldering fire and that the colonists might have used some of the venison to whip up a hearty stew.

Turkey does not have to be the choice of meat for Thanksgiving, but for many Americans, Thanksgiving meals includes seasonal dishes such as roast turkey with stuffing, cranberry sauce, mashed potatoes and pumpkin pie. If turkey is your choice of meat, and you bought a large frozen turkey, read on I have some advice for you!

The first rule of turkey cooking is to allow 5 - 6 days in a refrigerator to thaw a large turkey weighing 20 to 24 pounds! If your frozen turkey weighs from 16 pounds to 20 pounds, allow 4 to 5 days for thawing. It will take a turkey weighing 12 to 16 pounds from 3 to 4 days of thawing in a refrigerator. A small turkey weighing 4 to 12 pounds will take from 1 to 3 days to thaw. A general rule of thumb is to allow 24 hours of thawing time in a refrigerator for every 4 to 5 pounds of turkey.

Rule number 2 is DO NOT RINSE THE RAW TURKEY! Roughly half of all meat in the U.S. is contaminated with some sort of bacteria. That might sound gross but proper food safety can prevent foodborne illness from sitting at your Thanksgiving table.

So don't listen to your grandmother when she says to rinse! There is science behind this recommendation. Rinsing your poultry - any bird, not just turkey - can actually cause bacteria to aerosolize and spread around your kitchen up to three feet! Within three feet of a kitchen sink can be a spice rack, some cooking utensils, a coffee pot and possibly baby's bottles sitting on a drying rack. What is within three feet of your sink? Rinsing poultry does nothing to get rid of most bacteria - the bacteria that it does eliminate are now splashing around your kitchen. Proper cooking eliminates bacteria. And, from a cook's perspective, a dry skin on poultry makes a nice and crispy skin.

Unstuffed turkey size	Roasting time
4 to 8 pounds (breast)	1½ to 3¼ hours
8 to 12 pounds	2¾ to 3 hours
12 to 14 pounds	3 to 3¾ hours
14 to 18 pounds	3¾ to 4¼ hours
18 to 20 pounds	4¼ to 4½ hours
20 to 24 pounds	4½ to 5 hours

Rule 3 is to set your oven temperature no lower than 325 degrees F. Lower than 325 degrees and you are just growing bacteria! Place the turkey on a rack in a shallow pan, add ½ cup of water to pan and cook. The following chart share roasting times for an unstuffed turkey.

A whole turkey is safe when cooked to a minimum internal temperature of 165 °F as measured with a food thermometer. Check the internal temperature in the innermost part of the thigh and wing and the thickest part of the breast. For reasons of personal preference, consumers may choose to cook turkey to higher temperatures. Turkeys with a "pop-up" temperature indicator still need a food thermometer check to be sure the turkey is properly cooked.

Rule 4 is to handle the leftovers properly. Chatting with family members after Thanksgiving dinner needs to be postponed until the leftovers are in containers covered with lids in the refrigerator.

Perishable food like turkey, mashed potatoes, sweet potatoes, pumpkin pie, gravy, and dressing should not be at room temperature for more than 2 hours. Make sure the thicker foods are not more than two inches in height so they will cool down quickly. A large container of hot mashed potatoes thickly packed will take more than 2 hours to cool down.

The USDA Meat and Poultry Hotline fields 80,000 calls a year from citizens worried about the safety of their meat, poultry and eggs. Not surprisingly, November is the hotline's busiest month. If you have additional questions about cooking a turkey, call the USDA Meat and Poultry Hotline at 1-888-MPHotline (1-888-674-6854 - CALL FREE) or chat live with a food safety specialist at AskKaren.gov available from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Eastern Time, Monday through Friday, English or Spanish.

If you need help on Thanksgiving Day, the USDA Meat and Poultry Hotline will be open from 8:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. Eastern Time. You can also ask questions of "Karen," FSIS' virtual representative, 24/7 at AskKaren.gov.

Mayor asks community to support Spirit of Christmas

GARNETT: Mayor Greg Gwin challenges all citizens of Garnett and Anderson County to proudly participate in the following charitable projects this holiday season:

The Mayor's Caring and Sharing project is a unified effort between ECKAN's Spirit of Christmas, the Ministerial Alliance Food Pantry and the City. Mayor Gwin wants to invite and encourage individuals, businesses or groups to help decorate the Mayor's Christmas Tree. The tree is located at Garnett City Hall. Individuals or organizations are encouraged to participate in the Mayor's Caring and Sharing project by bringing their choice of any monetary donations, food items or toys to city hall. Individuals can then place a provided ornament on the Mayor's Christmas Tree representing their gift. Donations will be accepted at City Hall through December 15th.

Displayed beside the Mayor's tree is an ECKAN Angel Tree. Persons are encouraged to adopt individuals and families this Christmas by taking an angel from the tree and purchasing items to help share the "Spirit of Christmas" to residence of Garnett and Anderson County.

For more information about these projects please contact ECKAN at 785-448-3670 or Garnett City Hall, 785-448-5496.

Christmas Parade grand marshals named

Butch and Sharon Rocker have been selected as grand marshals of the 2015 Garnett Area Chamber of Commerce Christmas Parade, which will take place at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 28, in downtown Garnett.

Both Butch and Sharon were born in Garnett. After a four year stint in the Navy, Earl (Butch) Rocker moved back to Garnett and shortly thereafter married Sharon Thompson on July 1, 1972. They have spent their entire married life in Garnett.

Butch began working for the City of Garnett in December, 1972 after a brief period of time as an equipment operator for a construction company. Sharon worked at the Garnett Public Library from 1968 until about 1978. She worked at both JC Penney and Sears before returning to the library in November, 1990 and is still there.

Sharon and Butch have 2 children and 2 grandchildren, daughter Erin, son-in-law Brian, grandchildren Abby and Eli and son Ian. They say these people are their most valued accomplishments, and nothing is more important.

Through the early years of their marriage both Butch and Sharon volunteered with the American Cancer Society through residential door-to-door drives, daffodil days, educational programs and the memorable Relay for Life events! They were also involved with the summer softball and baseball programs, Butch as a coach and Sharon as scorekeeper. They are proud of the former "Friends of the Arts" group that supported monetarily and "hands on" the many events of the art, music, dance and theatre programs at ACHS. They also feel privileged to work with a great committee that promotes and shares the planning of "The Spirit of Christmas" project with ECKAN.

Sharon is "all things" library. She is especially well known for her delicious food and pretty decor at library events. She doesn't think many people get to work at a job they truly love. Butch spent forty plus years as a City employee, primarily with the Gas and Water Department. He was and is a dedicated and hard worker and an example of what an employer would be proud to have. Through those years he met and learned from a good many people. After retirement, he began serving on the City Housing Board.

Butch and Sharon attend the First Christian Church.

Their family is fortunate to share a love of music. The entire family (minus Sharon) have a wide variety of musical talents that they share with anyone that wants to listen! Along with music, laughter is a key component in all that they do.

Fall Fling continues with discoveries

It is 6:00am Saturday 31 October 2015 and my second day at the 2015 KAA FALL FLING is underway. A very cool/damp 39 degree morning. At 6:30am I enjoyed a steaming hot cup of coffee and breakfast at the motel where I am staying. After breakfast we all drove 7 miles out to the field where muster was held and our work assignments were given out to us. We were divided into three teams consisting of a team leader, metal detector operators, diggers and recorders. I was assigned to team two. Each team was assigned to a 100 meter square, already staked/flagged out by the KAA staff and a few volunteer members the previous day.

DIGGING UP THE PAST

we found anything pertaining to Fort Larned. I can actually only report what my partner Norman and I found.

Artifacts Found: Several varieties of early bullets (fired and drops), Brass cartridge casings (mostly rim fired), Fragments of melted lead, Oval belt buckle, Harness buckles, snaps, rings and rivets, Wagon parts, Oxen shoe, Horse/ Mule/ Oxen shoe nails, Square nails of all sizes and several unknown brass and iron artifacts.

Don't forget we were only two of 36 metal detector operators and diggers in the field.

Back in my motel by 5:30pm. Cleaned up and walked a short distance to Wendy's to eat. Watched a little baseball on TV before going off to dreamland.

I'm sure going to hate it when this project comes to a close tomorrow.

2005: Legislators work on 'Jessica's Law'

November 22, 2005

Two state senators serving Anderson County were instrumental last week in the introduction of a new child sex offender legislation after finding local support for the measure on a recent stop in Garnett. Senate Majority Leader Derek Schmidt, who represents southern Anderson County, led the Senate's top Republican leaders in proposing legislation to keep the worst violent sex offenders in prison for life and to require lifetime supervision of all other violent sex offenders after they have served their prison terms. The Sex Offender Incarceration Act will be a priority of the 2006 legislative session. Locally, lawmakers were met by a group of women holding a banner for "Jessica's Law," a similar law enacted in Florida and named after a 9-year-old girl was raped and murdered by a repeat child sex offender.

The Anderson County Commission appears to be closer to appointing a building commission to study the possibility of building some sort of jail and law enforcement center in Anderson County.

the city would be "interested" in considering a move of the dispatch center into a 911 center that could be located in the basement of a new jail, if and when a jail is built.

A northbound Union Pacific train was forced to make an unexpected stop in Greeley last week when the engineer saw two individuals dressed in dark clothes and ski masks laying on the tracks, and the train's conductor was uncertain if the train had hit them or not. Officers searched the area for nearly two hours but found no evidence of anyone being injured.

Anderson and surrounding counties saw some movement in October in what had been a consistently declining unemployment rate. Anderson

County's unemployment rate increased slightly from 4.3 percent in September to 4.5 percent in October, but down from 7.3 percent a year ago.

November 25, 1985

The Anderson County Commissioners completed a comprehensive five year plan for bridges and signs during their regular meeting Monday. The plan is ready to submit to the Kansas Department of Transportation for review and/or modification and recommendations. The prime project of the plan is to accomplish the placing of signs at designated places throughout Anderson County and the estimated cost of the signs project is about $32,000. The estimated costs for the proposed construction or replacement of six bridges during the next five years is $783,000.

The Kansas Highway Patrol office in Chanute said there were accidents aplenty this morning because of bad roads. Law enforcement officials said if weather conditions turn worse this evening, there will be a rash of accidents to work.

The Great White Way. Will we build it? Yes. Why? Because, after a two-week's canvas, in which we have interviewed 150 business men and property owners in the business district of Garnett, we find that 90 percent of them are for it. Why? Because they have indicated it by their contributions (some more liberally than others) Why should we put it in now? First, because it can be done as the paving goes in from $600 it $800 cheaper than afterward. Second, because when it and the paving are in, we will have one of, if not the most, modern city of 3,000 inhabitants in Kansas.

There was a called meeting of the Booster Club Friday night to hear the report of the Jefferson Highway convention at New Orleans last week. It was well attended by the Boosters and delegations were present from Welda and Colony. The meeting proved one of the most interesting the club ever held. Of its own strength and numbers, the Parsons route, including Garnett, was the winner. Kansas had two sets of delegates there, nearly equally divided, those favoring the Garnett route and those favoring the route through the row of counties east of us. After a fight, each faction secured committee representation but the west route delegates had to put up a stiff battle to get their rights.

Historical society learns about Tiera Farrow

The Anderson County Historical Society met at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Borntrager, November 5, 2015 at 6:30 p.m. Jonas welcomed the group to their home and led a prayer of Thanksgiving, followed by a bountiful traditional Amish dinner served to the 44 members and guests.

Following adjournment of the business meeting, Ruth Lee Hastert presented the program, Lawyer in Petticoats, the memoir of Garnett native Tiera Farrow.

Tiera was born in a log cabin near South Bethany, Indiana in 1880, the third of what would become a family of ten children. As a 5 yr old she moved west with her family, settling in Delphos, KS where her father opened a general merchandise store. When the family moved to Garnett in 1894, in search of business opportunities in a larger town, A.C. Farrow opened his general store on the corner of 5th and Main. The family initially lived upstairs in the rooms over the business. By this time, Tiera was 14 years old and began high school that fall term. She was always an ambitious child, first helping her father in the store and later opening her own ice cream parlor.

She was fascinated by newspaper accounts of legal proceedings and trials, often sneaking into the back of the courtroom and observing the events unfolding. She was intrigued by Judge Schoonover, who walked by her home each day on the way to his law office, noticing his dress and posture. She admired Abraham Lincoln, feeling a common bond with him because of his rise from poverty, his work ethic, and his interest in helping the common man.

Upon graduating high school with the class of 1898, Tiera dreamed of enrolling in business school and entering what she referred to as the man's world. After much persuading, her parents agreed to assist her with fees for schooling in Kansas City. This move opened the door to her eventual career in law, her worldwide travels, her studies at Columbia University in New York City, the Sorbonne in Paris, and Oxford in England; and her commitment to serve women and families.

Tiera accomplished many "firsts" in her career. She was the first female lawyer to argue before the Kansas Court of Appeals, the first Municipal Judge in Kansas City, Mo., the first treasurer for Kansas City, KS, the first female lawyer to represent a murder defendant in Kansas. After being refused membership in the Kansas City, MO Bar Association she was instrumental in organizing the Women's Bar Association.

She ended her memoir, written in 1953, with one more unfulfilled dream. That was to retire to a quaint cottage with a rocking chair and a stack of books waiting to be read, all surrounded by a white picket fence. The rest of the story is that she did just that, returning to her roots in Garnett and living out her retirement in a small white cottage in the 100 block of East 5th Ave.

What can we take away from hearing about Tiera's vast experiences and contributions to our society? Perhaps it is to be aware of young students in our midst with dreams and ambitions, and be supportive of their efforts.

This being the final monthly meeting for the year, Kristie announced the commencement of the Guided Autobiography Group meeting on Thursday, Dec. 10th, at 6:30 p.m. at the museum.

ACJH wrestlers finish 2nd at Burlington

Thursday, November 5th the 30 member Anderson County Jr. High Bulldog Wrestling team traveled to Burlington to wrestle in the 12th Annual Bobcat Classic. With 12 teams there the Bulldogs were excited to get on the wrestling mats and to mix it up for the first meet in the season. Wrestling a total of 69 matches at the tournament the Jr. Dogs won 47 of those and 39 of those 47 with the ultimate wrestling win, a fall or pin. Overall the Bulldogs came in a close second as a team, finishing behind Caney Valley by just 18 team points, and ahead of Burlington by 30, with a team score of 194.5 points.

Coach Jason Brown said, "I was so surprised at how tough and dominate we were all day! Many matches we dominated from the first whistle till the end of the match! It was a great day to be a Bulldog!"

Eleven Bulldogs came home with a gold medal around their necks and four Dogs came home with silver medals, one of the best showing at the tournament for the Jr. Dogs. Finishing first in their brackets, many of them wrestling for the first time in their lives, were: Riley Hedges, Brody McClain, Dante Meer, Tanner Spencer, Zach Barnes, Gavin Wolken, Austin Edens, Colton Palmer, Garrett Edens, Dusty Reynolds, and Dallas Higginbotham. Coming in as Runner-ups at the Bobcat were: Chance Cobbs, Austin Cornett, Gage Nelson, and Zach Beckman.

ACJH wrestlers take 3rd at Pioneer League Tournament

The Jr. Dogs next traveled to Santa Fe Trail to wrestle in the Pioneer League Tournament on Saturday, the 7th of November, 21 Dogs came home with medals! As a team the wrestlers finished just 10 points out of first place and 4 from second, behind League Champions Burlington and Santa Fe Trail, but made a huge statement with the way they wrestled and how they wrestled, pinning many opponents once again.

The Dogs who were crowned

Pioneer League Champions were: Kaylee Lamb, Ashton Miller, Brody McClain, Dominic Ireland, Ryland Wright, Lane Freeman, Zach Barns, Dusty Reynolds, Zach Beckman, Landon Lyons, Austin Cornett, and Dallas Higginbotham.

Coming in second on the day as League Runner-ups were: Alex Driever, Chance Cobb, Gavin Wolken, Tyler Denny, and Colton Palmer. And finishing the day in 3rd place were Dante Meer, Beau Beers, and Gabe Brown.

Coach Matt Stevenson stated, "It has been fun to be the team that everyone is gunning for to beat or to see how we do in comparison to ourselves at League, we wanted to be League Champs! Right now we are the measuring stick that everyone is trying to replicate and it is awesome to be in that position!"

The Bulldogs will finish out the short wrestling season this week with a Triangle with Wellsville and Central Heights on Monday at home, the Iola Wrestling Tournament on Tuesday, and then the final meet of the year at Santa Fe Trail again on Thursday with Central Heights. This has been one of the most successful seasons for the Jr. Bulldogs both in the number of wrestlers, 30, and in winning as almost the entire team is in the positive wins column.

Vietnam era veterans, MIA/POWs honored

A program recognizing veterans and MIA/POWs was at Anderson County High School Wednesday, Nov. 11.

Below, a table display in the auditorium foyer honored Vietnam Era Veterans who served their country between the years of 1955 - 1975 and the honoring of local MIA/POW's.

Daughters of the American Revolution in partnership with the VFW and Auxiliary, Post 6397 of Garnett, Kansas, held a moving program at the Anderson County High School Auditorium on Veterans Day, 2015 with over 600 in attendance.

At the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month the recognition of the World War I Veterans took place. There are no longer any living World War I veterans to answer Role Call. The reading of the poem "Flanders Field" was recited.

Followed with the Role Call of: World War II Veterans, Korean Veterans, Cold War Veterans, Vietnam Veterans, Grenada/Panama Veterans, Desert Storm Veterans, Bosnia/Kosovo/Somalia Veterans, Iraq/Afghanistan Veterans

Taps were sounded for the Anderson County Veterans that have passed away since last Veterans Day.

A table display in the auditorium foyer honored Vietnam Era Veterans who served their country between the years of 1955 - 1975 and the honoring of local MIA/POW's. This included special recognition for the Commemoration of the 50 Anniversary of the Vietnam War - a 13 year program to honor and give thanks to a generation of proud Americans who saved our country through one of the most challenging missions we have ever faced. While no words will ever be fully worthy of their service, nor any honor truly befitting their sacrifice, let us remember that it is never too late to pay tribute to the men and women who answered the call to duty with courage and valor. Let us renew our commitment to the fullest possible accounting for those who have not returned.

The DAR then presented fifty-three Vietnam Veterans with a brochure explaining the 50th Commemoration Project to recognize these veterans and thank them for their service to our grateful nation. A Proclamation from President Obama, and a very striking pin with an eagle to represent courage, honor, and dedicated service to our nation. A circle shape and blue color field stand for the blue on the American flag and signifies vigilance, perseverance, and justice. The laurel wreath represents victory, integrity, and strength. The stripes behind the eagle represent the American flag. The six stars stand for the six allies who fought beside us. The message embossed on the back is closest to the veteran's heart and says "A Grateful Nation Thanks and Honors you."

Four Winds Chapter, facilities recognize veteran residents

Four Winds Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, visited veterans at care facilities in Garnett and Richmond, presenting each of them with a thank you card and a double American flag lapel pin. Many widows were also presented the lapel pins in memory of their spouses.

Four Winds members learn about National DAR Museum

The Four Winds Chapter of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution met on Thursday, Nov. 5, in Garnett. Alice Walker served as the hostess. Regent Donna Roberts called the meeting to order and welcomed 13 members. Newly verified member, Virginia Baird was introduced. The opening ritual was led by Regent Roberts and Chaplin Agnes Carr.

The President General's message was read by Linda Coffman. President Lynn Fortney Young paid a visit to Kansas in September. The first day she was here she visited the Madonna of the Trail Monument by Council Grove which was placed in 1928 by KSDAR members. While in Council Grove she visited one of the 97 markers that the KSDAR had restored along the Santa Fe Trail. Upon returning to Topeka and the second of her visit to "The Sunflower State" she had a guided tour of the state capitol. She then spent the rest of her time at the KS state meeting. She was the guest speaker at the banquet and gave an informative power point presentation of the National headquarter and the plan set in place a fund to help preserve this beautiful historic building in Washington, DC. She presented 100% participation certificates to all of the chapters who have supported the President General's Project. Regent Roberts accepted the certificate for Four Winds.

Judy Carr gave the National Defense report on female aviators who have served in the Marine Air Corps. Since 1918, women have answered the call to serve proudly in the United States Marines. In 1918, the Secretary of the Navy allowed women to enroll for duty in the Marine Corps. That year some 300 women took over stateside clerical duties for the Marines who were needed overseas. The Marine Corps Women's Reserve was established in 1943. In 1948, Congress passes the Women's Armed Services Integration Act which made women a permanent part of the Marine Corps. Women proudly served through the Korean War and Vietnam War. In 1976, the Corps approved the assignment of women to all occupational fields except infantry. Now, the women continue to serve and open doors for future Marines to follow.

The members approved a list of pending applicants awaiting their national number. The minutes were read and approved and the treasurer report was given.

"Minute" reports were given by members. Donna Roberts reported that we already have places for Constitution Week 2016 to set up displays. Alice Walker reported that the Bacone Center for American Indians is adding a new degree for American Indian Studies. Alice also reported on the DAR sponsored Chemawa Indian School in Salem, OR which is a boarding school that has 100% student body with Indian blood. The DAR sponsors a Christmas party each year for the students. They love the gift cards given to them from DAR.

Four Winds voted to send three gift cards for the Christmas party this year. Carla Ewert gave the conservation minute and gave tips on water conservation. She said to keep a picture of water in the fridge for drinking during the day. She suggested keeping a pitcher by the sink to catch water in before it hits the drain and reuse that water for something else. Carla also gave the Women's Issues minute on how mental illness or depression in women often cause eating disorders.

The chapter then planned all of their Veteran Day Activities. Volunteers will be visiting and presenting our thanks at care facilities, high schools, and VFW/Auxiliary to honor and thank our area veterans for their service. The nomination committee presented the slate of officers for June 2016. The slate was unanimously approved. The election for delegates and alternates for the Kansas State DAR conference in April and the Continental Congress in June were elected. The recipients of the Community Service award for this year and the spring were decided. All officers and committee chairs are to bring a written report to the meeting in Dec. Members made plans to attend the movie Unsung Female Hero's in Ottawa and the Southeast District decoration workday.

The Christmas meeting will be Dec. 3 at 1:30. All members are to bring snacks to share and Iona Sweers will have the topic on the History of the Christmas Card. Members are to bring any old Christmas cards to share.

The program was given by Judy Carr and Linda Coffman on the DAR Museum in Washington, DC. The museum is located in the National Headquarters and is two blocks from the White House. In 1890, the founders of DAR envisioned "a place for the collection of historical relics...portraits, pictures, etc. in a fireproof building." The DAR Museum supports the NSDAR's goals of historic preservation, education, and patriotism by collecting, preserving, exhibiting, and interpreting the material culture and social history of pre-industrial America. The DAR Museum's collection includes over 30,000 objects. Its strengths are decorative arts, costumes, quilts, needlework, dolls, toys, glass, silver, furniture, and portraits. The exhibit in the Gallery, which is located on the first floor, changes annually. Right now until next year in October, the exhibit is what Americans saved, made, and brought to maintain a connection to the American Revolution. There are 30 period rooms that showcase the story of the American domestic interior. The rooms date from 1690-1935. Reflecting how people furnished their houses, the rooms illustrate a wide range of cultures and regional differences. The museum offers tours, lectures, programs, a traveling trunk, online learning experiences, and workshops for adults, teachers, and students. The museum is a must see when you travel to Washington, DC.

Be there - in high traffic areas

Koch Arena on the campus of Wichita State University may be one of the best-sponsored college athletic venues in the country, even down to the steps in the seating areas. It's an idea small businesses can use in our own localities to help us sell stuff.

Some savvy marketing person at WSU is really working over time. Besides advertisers' banners and logos on the scoreboard and area signage and bathroom stalls and all the standard places you'd expect to see commercial sponsors (who pay to be in those places for a whole year or more in view of the legions of Shockers basketball fans, concert goers etc.), the arena even sold a national beverage company (no, I'm not naming them, because they haven't paid me a nickel!) for the fronts of the steps.

It's extremely noticeable - the bright vinyl logo really shined against the gray front of the concrete steps. With this venue the same as any other indoor or outdoor stadium, the steps to your seat are steep enough you're looking into the steps ahead of you at eye level only a few feet away, so the company could have even placed a message as the steps progressed upward, like those old highway message signs on the TV show Hee Haw.

No doubt the fee was a big one for that national company, but small businesses that are savvy marketers can do the same thing with their local high school or city sports complexes or other high traffic areas after cutting a similar and no-doubt downsized deal with administrators (high school organizations are always looking for fund raisers, after all).

The key is traffic, and in that vein, what about other high traffic stores in your community like grocers or lumberyards or hardware stores? What would it be worth to have your selling message or your logo painted on the asphalt of one or more of the parking stalls, or maybe a sleeve on the handle of the grocery cart? If you agreed to co-promote that business at your own location with similar signage, an in-store display or an email tagline or their logo on your parking lot, everybody could win.

Watch the places where lots of people go, and use your imagination to visualize your company there and getting noticed.

The extended family of Sgt. Jeffrey S. Mersman would like to thank all Veterans and students who were involved with the Veterans Day program at Anderson County High School. The recognition of Veterans in attendance and the changing of the Post flag was a moving experience. A special thank you goes to Mark Wagner for his powerful speech about what it means to be an American. The family also thanks those involved with the luncheon at the VFW Post. The family is very proud that the VFW Post has been renamed in Jeff's honor and the new Post flag is beautiful. The Mersman family also thanks all past, present and future Veterans for their service. God Bless each of you!

Where are you looking for contentment?

Often times I remember things from the past. Many memories from early in my childhood, like making out a Christmas list from the Sears catalog and then being able to open the gifts on Christmas. Playing ball with my uncle or riding up the road on the running board of the gas truck as dad drove home from work. I often times remember relationships I had with people who have passed away. I cherish all these memories as they help me to remember who I am and where I came from. It is all these things that I remember that have helped shape my personality.

As human beings we can never go back and recreate these memories nor can we go past the next breathe we draw. God allows each of us a span of time commonly referred to as three score and ten or seventy years on average. If that holds true for me I will have five years of this life left. In the Book of Ecclesiastes King Solomon wrestles with the question of the meaning of life. Solomon examines human wisdom, pleasures, toil, advancement and riches. He summarizes his finding in chapter 1:2-10 as follows. "Vanity of vanities all is vanity. What does man gain from all his labor at which he toils under the sun? Generations come and generations go, but the earth remains forever. The sun rises and the sun sets, and hurries to where it rises. The wind blows to the south and turns to the north; round and round it goes, ever turning on its course. All streams flow into the sea, yet the sea is never full. To the place the streams

come from, there they return again. All things are wearisome, more than one can say. The eye never has enough of seeing, nor the ear its fill of hearing. What has been will be done again; what has been done will be done again; there is nothing new under the sun."

Solomon advises us that all human achievements are empty and disappointing when pursued as ends in themselves. One after the other Solomon shows how wisdom, pleasure, hard work, popularity, wealth and fame fail to bring lasting satisfaction. As I ponder these memories I have there seems to be one theme that dominates throughout. That is someone taking time to show me despite the harsh realities and uncertainties of this life that they loved and cared for me. Maybe in the end that is what has enabled me in my own frail and weak efforts to pursue this God of the Bible.

Pursuing God has shown me I can find a contentment with him I can find no where else. When we accept Jesus Christ, the Son of God as our Savior, we can live amid the profound frustrations and tension of this evil age knowing our future is secure.

David Bilderback: A Ministry on the Holiness of God.

You name it, we print it.

the deal was fair and would protect the girl, he said.

"This would be very difficult in that respect," Jones said about having the girl testify. "It's extremely important to us not to re-victimize the victim. If we can, we want to avoid having them testify. The only way to do that is with a plea agreement."

Child sex trials are very traumatic for the victim and it can be difficult for a very young victim to testify while facing his or her accuser in a public courtroom, Jones said in an interview after the sentencing. He recalled a case in Osage County, where he also serves as prosecutor. He spent several hours preparing a young victim to testify, but when the time came, she refused to enter the courtroom and was unable to testify.

Often in child molestation cases, there is little physical evidence. Testimony becomes a "he said-she said" battle, and it can be difficult to predict how a jury would decide such a case. In this particular case, Jones said there wasn't conclusive physical evidence, although Spellmeier made "some admissions" when interviewed but stopped short of a full admission of guilt.

Trials also can be very time-consuming and costly, and the outcome can be unpredictable, Jones said. Spellmeier had several health conditions that cost the county thousands of dollars each month while he was in custody, and a trial would have extended the county's responsibility for his care, Jones said. Spellmeier was brought to recent court hearings in a wheelchair.

Even if Spellmeier had been convicted at a trial, he would have been able to appeal his sentence and extended the case for possibly years, perhaps further traumatizing the victim as the case played out over time. A plea agreement takes away his right to appeal.

Spellmeier worked in various capacities of local public protection for more than 20 years. He worked as an Emergency Medical Technician on the county ambulance crew for Anderson County Hospital from 1995 to late 2014, when he left for medical reasons. He also served as a volunteer firefighter for the City of Garnett until the day after his arrest in May, and he was previously a dispatcher for the Anderson County Sheriff's Department.

Spellmeier initially was charged with four counts of rape alleging separate incidents, but three counts were dismissed as part of the plea agreement. After serving his prison sentence, he will face lifetime parole with electronic monitoring and will have to register as a sex offender.

Although the plea agreement allowed the court to depart from the standard "Jessica's Law" guidelines, it reflected the maximum sentence available before Jessica's Law took effect, Jones said.

"Thirteen years in prison is no small thing, especially when you go in as a child molester," he said. "He'll be an old man when he's released, and he'll be on lifetime parole with electronic monitoring."

Jones said he called the victim's family after the sentencing, and they were satisfied with the result.

Spellmeier was given an opportunity to address the court during Monday's sentencing, but chose not to do so.

He currently is at Anderson County Jail and will remain in jail until he can be moved to one of the state's prison facilities. Sheriff Vern Valentine said he expects that to happen sometime this week.

TRAFFIC...

holidays, the Thanksgiving holiday period (typically from Wednesday to Sunday) outranks all but New Year's in average number of crashes in which driver impairment is cited as a factor. Those driving under the influence of alcohol or other drugs endanger not only themselves but also others they share the road with, such as their passengers, other motorists, bicyclists and pedestrians, Anderson County Sheriff Vern Valentine said in a press release.

On average, five people are killed or injured in alcohol- or drug-related crashes each day across Kansas, Valentine said. KDOT tracks crashes in the state and said vehicle occupants in alcohol- and drug-related crashes are more than two and half times more likely to be injured and killed than those involved in crashes where alcohol or drugs were not a factor.

Each week across Kansas, more than 250 drivers are arrested for driving under the influence (DUI). A DUI conviction will result in jail time, suspension or revocation of driver's license, a fine of $500 to $2,500, participation in all alcohol or other drug treatment program and the purchase and installation of an ignition interlock device in the offender's vehicle. It requires the offender to blow into a device that measures blood alcohol concentration prior to starting the car.

Also responsible for needless death and maiming is the failure by many to simply buckle up. Twice as many Kansans who die from a crash are unrestrained. Injuries suffered by those who are unbuckled are likely to be much more severe and disabling than injuries suffered by those who are buckled in. This applies regardless of speed and whether the accident happens on a city street, county road or highway, Valentine said.

Be sure that children are properly restrained as well, Valentine said. One in every five children, ages 5-9, routinely rides in a vehicle without a child safety seat or booster. A collision at almost any speed turns unrestrained occupants into human torpedoes who are a danger to themselves and anyone they impact, Valentine said.

For more information on child safety restraint requirements and opinions, contact the Kansas Traffic Safety Resource Office at (800) 416-2522 or ktrso@dcca.org.

He yelled to his employee and the truck driver, who were nearby. They shut off the hose, and the seeds stopped moving. At that time, Corley was buried in seeds up to the bottom of a pocket on the chest of his shirt. Only a couple feet of beans remained until the bottom, but it would have been enough to bury him. He felt pressure on his chest, but was able to breathe easily.

Rescue crews brought the specialized equipment and got to work. Using several panels that snap together, they created a barrier around Corley. Firefighters positioned themselves on each panel and gently rocked, lowering the tube into the grain around him. Corley said he sank at an angle, so crews stopped as the tube approached the back of one of his legs. Then, they used a small grain vacuum of Corley's to slowly remove the seeds around him until he could be pulled free.

Corley was evaluated by

EMS personnel at the scene and released. He and his crew finished loading the beans for the delivery driver, although Corley didn't go back into the bin. Corley said the beans were premium quality, non-GMO beans and the driver had a deadline to make, exhibiting sort of a "show must go on" attitude. He even vacuumed beans spilled during the rescue effort, and said he'll find a place to ship those as well.

Corley said he appreciated the prompt and professional response from firefighters and other emergency personnel. He also was glad his employee and the truck driver were nearby and able to hear him when the incident began.

Corley said he was very grateful the Westphalia Fire Department had the specialized equipment on hand.

"I'm not real happy I had the distinction of being the first one to use it, but I'm very glad it was there," he said. "I think we're very blessed to live in a county that has one of these things."

Collins leaves a wife and two sons. An obituary is on page 3A. 1600 Road was closed until about 10:15 p.m. Wednesday, and traffic was rerouted during that time.

On Friday evening, Nov. 20, at about 6 p.m. on U.S. 169 just north of Garnett, a two-vehicle wreck sent one person to the hospital with minor injuries.

Barbara Watkins, 59 of Garnett, was traveling northbound in a 2005 Chevrolet pickup when she turned in front of a southbound 2001 Ford pickup driven by Clark Dennison, 45, of Garnett, and the vehicles collided, according to a report from the Anderson County Sheriff's Department.

When the accident occurred, Garnett police and Anderson County Sheriff's deputies were handling a traffic stop on the east side of U.S. 169. Police stopped were investigating the occupants of a vehicle on suspicion of possession of marijuana. Sheriff Vernon Valentine said it is unknown if that traffic stop might have contributed, such as if one of the drivers was distracted by the police activity.
