GHS Reflections

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 06-29-2010 / Vickie Moss

Orville and Laverne Cole look around the classroom where Laverne taught business and typing in the 1950s. The couple met because Laverne was a teacher at Garnett High School, where Orville's brother, Claron Cole, was principal. They were among dozens of people who visited the old school Saturday, June 9. The school is scheduled to be torn down this summer.

Public says farewell to old school

Former students share stories of school's past glory

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – The empty classrooms were filled with memories.

On Saturday, former students Garnett Elementary Center and Garnett High School walked the old building's halls for the last time. They came to pay their respects to the old school before it is laid to rest later this summer, victim of nearly 100 years' time and the construction of a new elementary school on US 59 in Garnett this summer.

Only a few cabinets and pieces of equipment remained in the classrooms, remnants of 91 years of service in the education of Garnett's youth. Good-natured graffiti marked the walls, farewell wishes and signatures from the school's final students written in marker on walls that soon will be torn down.

The building served as a high school through much of its existence – from 1921 to 1992. Its last 20 years were spent as an elementary school for grades 2-6. The building is scheduled to be demolished this summer, and students shipped to the new Garnett

Redistricting: County loses legislators

New map puts 3 of 4 local legislators in other districts

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

OPEKA – Anderson County was caught square in the middle of a political storm Friday morning.

And the fallout sent people with political interests scrambling Monday to determine who would run for state office in the wake of new, federal court-drawn district maps that could bring numerous changes to the state legislature.

The new boundary lines mean three of the four legislators who previously represented Anderson County will be moved to other districts.

"I think they went about drawing the districts really based upon the mathematics of what worked. I don't think they took into consideration where incumbents lived," Pat Apple, R-Louisburg, said about the new map, which was drawn by three federal judges. The new boundaries put Apple, a Louisburg

Farmers pleased with wheat harvest

Soybeans, corn crops may struggle as rain remains scarce

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – Ideal planting conditions last fall translated to an increased winter wheat crop that left local farmers pretty satisfied with this year's wheat harvest.

But wheat isn't the county's big crop. The good news regarding the wheat harvest may be short-lived if the county doesn't get more rain soon, Shannon Blocker, K-State Research and Extension Agent, said.

"Hopefully we won't have to rely on wheat as our decent crop this year," Blocker said.

Area farmers planted more wheat this year primarily because conditions were ideal for fall planting. Weather conditions throughout the winter and spring also helped favor the wheat's growth. A disease, barley yellow dwarf virus, attacked

Blome: Stable enrollment key to USD 365 funding

Increase in base aid for student funding helps; not enough

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – An increase in the base student funding formula is a good thing for local school districts, USD 365 Superintendent Don Blome told school board members at their regular meeting Thursday, June 7. What's even better is stable enrollment, he said.

That's likely to be a struggle for USD 365, however. Blome said declining enrollment in the district, combined with a decrease in state funding for at-risk students, will translate to a loss in state funding even as the base student aid increases.

Retirements, resignations mark end of school year

Several teachers, staff retire while others move on to new jobs

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – Three longtime high school teachers USD 365 including a primary school teacher and two district staff members retired at the end of the 2012 school year. They join a number of other district teachers and staff members who have resigned from the district in recent months. At the most recent school board meeting Thursday, June 7, the board accepted the resignations of 10 teachers and staff members, and approved hiring five others.

The changes include:
Retirements

- Lois Henry, longtime art teacher at Anderson County Junior/Senior High School, has retired.
- Alvin Peters, longtime social studies teacher at ACJSHS, has retired from the school district but will continue to work outside USD 365.
- Glen Suderman, a longtime physical education teacher at ACJSHS, retired.

- Cathy Spangler, a longtime teacher at Irving Primary Center, retired.
- Carolyn Smith, a Title I teacher for the district, retired.
- Joanne May, Westphalia custodian and food service employee, retired.

Correction

An article in last week's Review misstated that contenders for Anderson County Commissioner Gene Highberger's seat were vying in District I, when Highberger's seat is actually District III. It also said candidate Jerry Howarter in District 2 would be campaigning in the same district his father, former commissioner Wayne Howarter, served in for decades. Wayne Howarter's seat actually was District 1. Our apologies for these errors.

ANDERSON COUNTY BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS MAY 29

Chairman Dudley R. Feuerborn called the meeting of the Anderson County Board of Commissioners to order at 9:00 a.m. on May 29 at the County Commission Room. Attendance: Dudley R. Feuerborn, Present: Eugene Highberger, Present: James K. Johnson, Present. All present. The pledge of allegiance was recited. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Road and Bridge

Lester Welsh, Road Supervisor, met with the commission. He reported they are done with the Conklin at the Quonset hut. The bridge east of town is now open and they will be taking down the road closed signs. He would like to look for a small dozer and get rid of the big dozer.

much of the wheat and likely reduced yields. The virus kept this year's crop from turning into a banner year, Blocker said. Still, yields were above average.

"I've heard yields in the 60s, which is good but not jump up and down good," Blocker said.

Typically, wheat yields in Anderson County are between 50-55 bushels per acre. This year, Valley R Agri-Service reported seeing about 60-65 bushels per acre, manager Jim Mechnig said. The quality has been good, with most of the wheat weighing 61-62 pounds. Prices are around $6.

"Compared to what we've had the last two or three years, this is great," Mechnig said. "I think (the farmers) are all pretty satisfied."

Anderson County averages about 38,000 acres of wheat each year, according to the 2007 Census of Agriculture. That's the most recent year the publication was available, although a new census is due out soon. The statistics put wheat as Anderson County's No. 3 crop

WEIDE

August 28, 1936-June 4, 2012

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW
Published June 12, 2012

Funeral services for Kenneth Lee Weide, age 75, of Garnett, Kansas, were held at 2:00 p.m. on Saturday, June 9, 2012, at the Feuerborn Family Funeral Service Chapel in Garnett, Kansas, with Chaplain Rebecca Schubert officiating. Military interment by Fort Riley Funeral Honors was held in the Garnett Cemetery in Garnett, Kansas. Ken passed away on Monday, June 4, 2012 at Bickford Assisted Living in Overland Park, Kansas.

Weide

He was born on August 28, 1936, in Yates Center, Kansas, the son of Nelson Henry and Anna Louise (Neufeld) Weide. Ken grew up in Osawatimie, Kansas, and graduated from Osawatimie High School in 1954. Following school Ken worked for the Missouri Pacific Railroad for a few years before joining the military with his twin brother, Keith. Ken served in the US Army from 1959 to 1963 and in the Army Reserves until 1965. While serving in the military, he was a part of the 3rd Infantry Presidential Honor Guard, also known as the Old Guard, with duties that included marching in President Kennedy's Inaugural Parade and with the company color guard, as well as guarding the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. Following his time in the service he attended Fort Scott Community College and Pittsburg State University, where he earned his Bachelor of Science degree in 1966.

Ken was united in marriage to Joyce Helen Byerley on October 13, 1963. They moved to Garnett in 1971 and they were parents to Nathan and Nicole. Joyce preceded him in death on June 28, 1989. Ken married Erma Eileen "Casey" Eilts on February 9, 1992. They were married for 10 years; she also preceded him in death.

Ken worked for Garnett State Savings Bank from 1971 until retiring in 1998. He was very active in the Boy Scouts of America, serving as the Troop 126 Scoutmaster, and in 1982 earned the Silver Beaver Award, the highest award by the Heart of America Council. He was a member of the First United Methodist Church and participated in many board meetings, ice cream socials, and pancake breakfasts. Ken was also an active member in many civic organizations, some of those included: Garnett City Planning Commission, Garnett Rotary Club, Prairie Spirit Rail Trail, East Central Kansas Model T Club, and the Anderson County Flying Club. Ken enjoyed playing, coaching, and umpiring fast-pitch softball. In his spare time and later in life he was a master of piddlin', demonstrating the art of apple cider making, and touring with his antique cars. Ken will be remembered as a kind, loving, generous, and dependable man who was always willing to lend a helping hand.

Ken is survived by his son, Nathan Weide and wife Brandy of Garnett, Kansas; daughter, Nicole Weide and Patty Kobe of Overland Park, Kansas; two grandchildren, Bailey and Braxton Weide of Garnett; three brothers, Eugene Weide and wife Sarah of Glenwood, Iowa; twin brother Keith Weide and wife Rosemary of Omaha, Nebraska; Jack Weide and wife Maralin of Council Bluffs, Iowa; several nieces and nephews, and many other family members.

Musical selections were "How Great Thou Art", "Amazing Grace", and "Take Me Out To The Ballgame".

Casketbearers were Ron Andereg, Roger Byerley, Delton Hodgson, Ted Jones, Tim Young, and Mike Wawrzewski.

Honorary Casketbearers were Bill Craig, Earl Lizer, Don Miller, Loren Sayers, Jim Sobba, and Loren Wilson.

Memorial contributions may be made to Boy Scouts of America Troop 126 or the First United Methodist Church.

Feuerborn Family Funeral Service, Garnett, Kansas was in charge of the arrangements.

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW
Published June 12, 2012

Helen Gadelman, age 93, of Katy, Texas, died June 1, 2012 at Memorial Herman Katy Nursing Facility in Katy, Texas.

She was born on February 10, 1919, in Garnett, Kansas, the daughter of William and Celesta (Jones) Gadelman.

Helen enjoyed photography, traveling and playing the piano.

She was preceded in death by her parents; three sisters, Doris Norton, Mary Ellsworth and Jean Phillips; and two brothers, Milo Gadelman and William Gadelman.

Helen is survived by nieces and nephews.

Graveside services were Tuesday, June 5, 2012, at the Garnett Cemetery.

"When we get right down to it, the total is a loss of about $117,000 to $120,000 because of declining enrollment," he said.

Next year, the school district will be able to offset that loss because of adjustments in benefits the district will receive for building a new elementary school. But those adjustments will last just one or two years, depending on action by the Kansas Legislature.

"The key for us is stabilizing enrollments. Thirty kids either way makes a big difference," Blome said.

The state has allocated $3,838 in base aid for the next school year. School funding has been a political hot potato in recent years, after a lawsuit resulted in a court decision demanding the state improve its funding for schools. Testimony began June 4 on a second lawsuit over school funding. A Kansas Legislative Post Audit study says the base aid should be $6,142 and the state's education department said it should be $5,723.

resident who's served Anderson County and others in the 12th Senate District since 2005 in a new district, and he will no longer represent Anderson County.

The judges set new boundary lines for legislative districts after state legislators failed to draw their own during the most recent session. The Republican-dominated legislature was plagued by infighting, as some legislators attempted to redraw boundaries that would favor more conservative Republicans rather than moderate Republicans or Democrats. Kansas was the only state that failed to redraw boundaries, which is required every 10 years after the U.S. Census to account for population shifts.

The court released the new maps late Thursday night. The report was more than 200 pages and included new maps for congressional, state House, state Senate and state Board of Education districts.

The maps will bring several changes to Anderson County. Of the four legislators who previously represented at least part of the county, only one - Rep. Bill Feuerborn, D-Garnett - remains in his current district. Rep. Bill Otto, R-LeRoy, previously represented the southwest part of the county in District 9. The new maps, however, move Otto to District 76. Feuerborn's 5th District was expanded to include all of Anderson County except Lone Elm and Kincaid in the southeast.

Feuerborn said he's happy his district was changed to include more of Anderson County. He's long wanted to represent the entire county, he said, and the new District 5 is at least closer to that. He's also glad to represent Richmond and Princeton again; at one point his district included those communities but he lost them in the last redistricting 10 years ago.

The county's senate district changes even more dramatically. Most of the county previously was in Dist. 12, except for the southwest part that was in Dist. 15. Now, all of Anderson County will be in Dist. 12. With Apple moved into the 37th District to the north, the 12th is without an incumbent. House District 4, which now includes Lone Elm and Kincaid, is also without a sitting incumbent.

In other cases, the new districts now include two or more legislators. Otto finds himself in the most unusual position in the state - his new district, Dist. 76, includes three sitting legislators.

Otto said he was not very happy with the new map, but he was at least glad his competition would be two members of what he called "Team O'Neal" for Kansas House Speaker Mike O'Neal, who was a key figure in the redistricting drama. The other representatives now in Dist. 76 - William Prescott and Peggy Mast - often side with O'Neal, Otto said.

Otto had predicted the judges would take this opportunity to "make an example."

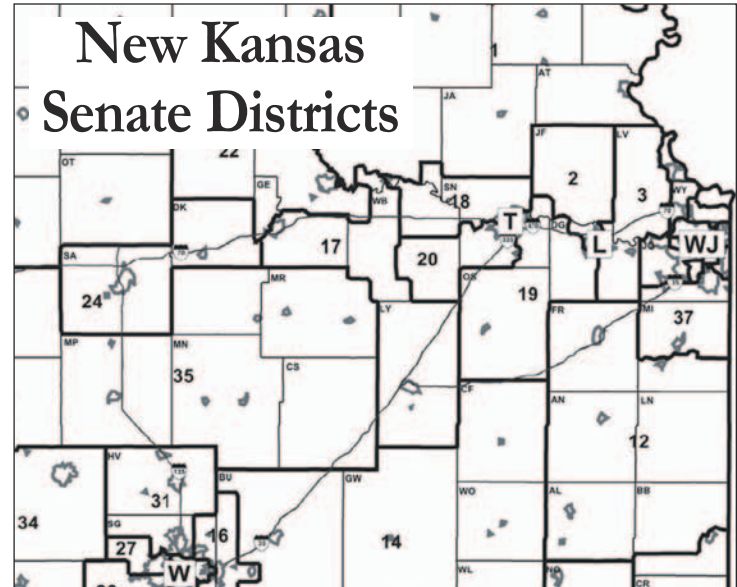

"I think after this, no legislature in the nation will not submit some sort of map," Otto said. "The court sent a clear message: 'Don't ever, ever do this again.'"

It's not yet known what impact the new boundary lines will have on elections or on the make-up of the Legislature. Apple predicts the Senate will shift even more to the political right. He's disappointed mostly because the elections likely will bring much turnover to both the House and Senate.

"You need to have the right amount of turnover - some turnover is good, but not too much or not too little," Apple said. "You end up losing folks who are doing a really good job but they are out of their district. Fortunately, our system is not reliant on one person."

For districts with more than one legislator, those people must decide if they will slug it out in the election, run for something else or skip this year's election.

They had until noon Monday to decide. Exactly who filed and what position they filed for wasn't completely clear by The Review's press deadline. Here's a rough breakdown by district of who has filed, how that will change, and who is expected to file.

- House Dist. 5 - Includes all of Anderson County except Lone Elm and Kincaid. Also includes the southern and eastern part of Franklin County and part of western Miami County. Cities: Colony, Garnett, Greeley, Harris, Lane, Osawatimie, Parker, Princeton, Rantoul, Richmond, Welda, Wellsville, Westphalia.

Feuerborn had filed for reelection and said he plans to continue the race.

Initially, Feuerborn was challenged by an Ottawa Democrat, Stan Wiles. However, the new boundaries put Wiles in a different district.

The new map put two legislators in Dist. 5 - Feuerborn and Rep. Caryn Tyson, who previously represented Dist. 4. Tyson, however, plans to file for the Dist. 12 Senate seat rather than contest Feuerborn for House Dist. 5.

- House Dist. 4 - Includes the southeast part of Anderson County, Linn County, Bourbon County and part of Miami County. Cities: Blue Mound, Fort Scott, Fulton, Kincaid, LaCygne, Linn Valley, Lone Elm, Mapleton, Mound City, Pleasanton, Prescott and Redfield.

This formerly was Rep. Caryn Tyson's district, but the new map puts no incumbent in this district. Arlyn Briggs of Kincaid had filed for election in his previous district, Dist. 9, but the new map puts him in Dist. 4 instead, where he is likely to continue running for the office. Also running in the new Dist. 4 are Shirley J. Palmer, D-Fort Scott, and Lynne D. Oharah, R-Uniointown.

- Senate Dist. 12 - Includes all of Anderson County, all of Franklin County and the southern half of Miami County.

The new map leaves Dist. 12 without an incumbent. Some Republicans, including Apple who previously represented the district, expect to see several people file for the seat.

"It will be a nice district for someone to represent," Apple said. "There's a lot of good folks in those counties."

Caryn Tyson, R-Parker, previously represented House Dist. 4 but was moved to Dist. 5. Instead of running for the House seat, she has filed to run for the 12th District Senate seat.

She will be challenged by John Coen, R-Wellsville, a farmer and banker who filed for the office Monday.

Apple was moved to Dist. 37, which includes northern Miami County and southern Johnson County. He plans to run for reelection in his new district.

- House Dist. 76 and Dist. 9 - Do not include Anderson County.

Rep. Bill Otto, R-LeRoy, was moved from Dist. 9 to Dist. 76. While his previous district included part of Anderson County, his new district does not. His previous district was changed and no longer includes any part of Anderson County.

Two peas in a pod

Redistricting debacle shows how much Kansas Legislature, Lindsay Lohan have in common Talent. Lack of discipline. Dysfunction. Inebriation. Arguing. Sobriety. Profession of atonement. Backslide to dysfunction. Finally, the court steps in. Yes, Friday's falling of the axe by federal judges on the Kansas Legislature's Spring Brain Freeze in redrawing new political districts reminded the state just how much the state's Republican leadership has been channeling Lindsay Lohan.

And like Lohan's incessant forgetfulness of the legal process, Republicans who should have had the world by the tail in the Kansas Legislature this past session just didn't seem to believe the judges would be serious.

The GOP-led legislature had the entire legislative session to redraw Kansas senate, representative, state school board and congressional districts — plus lots of lead time in advance of the session that the decision would be coming. Every junior high school social studies graduate knows it's done every 10 years based on the last census in order to equalize population and representation among the districts, and every legislature in the United States — except Kansas — seemed to be able to accomplish the chore.

What was the rub? It all goes back to the Grande Divide in the Republican Party — or what has been apparent for years as “The Two Republican Parties” of Kansas. It lines up basically as “anti-abortion, anti-gay rights, anti-public education funding” on one side, and “pro-education funding” and “who knows what else” on the other. Conservative Republicans in the Kansas Legislature have sworn their own Jihad for their own causes, fostering so much bitterness that they'd rather cut off their own fingers than compromise with their ideological enemies.

Why yes, it is reminiscent of the U.S. Congress. No one lost more in the decision of the federal judges which re-drew those maps than Republicans. They held easy majorities in both houses, so every re-composed district that orphaned some legislators and faced-off others against one another had a chance of damaging key Republican premises that should be shared by the entire party, like pro-business initiatives, spending control and property tax management. No doubt more conservative causes will have been impacted as well.

But years of warnings to the state GOP that this type of self-destruction was coming went unheeded. Like telling Lindsay she's got to lay off the booze and pills before she really hurts herself, words of caution just didn't seem to do any good.

This mess has limited Kansas Republicans to one single road of redemption. If the Brownback austerity budget doesn't yield real economic benefits for the state's economy and worse yet if it produces the deficit critics say it will, Republicans will have nothing left to cling to.

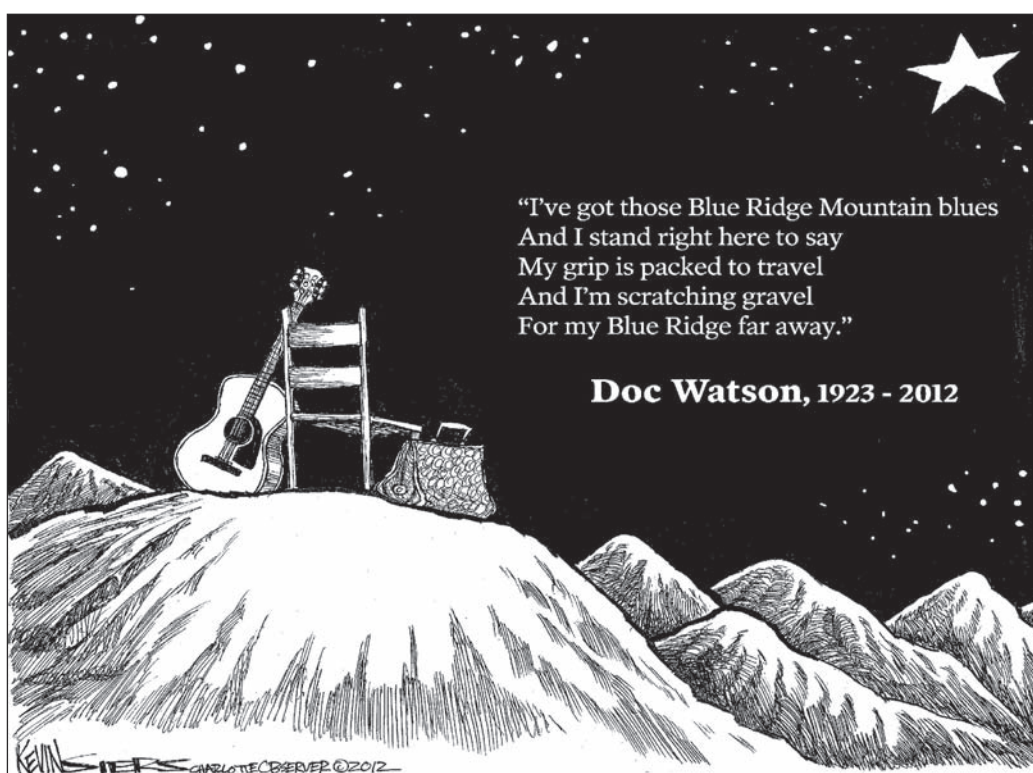

The solution lies in the activation of sleeping voters who claim to be Republicans but haven't really defined themselves as conservatives or moderates. They're going to have to pick a side, vote in the next round of elections and even run for office themselves if need be to force out the systemic dysfunction in their party. You can be conservative or you can be moderate, but you have to have enough vision to compromise. And don't forget, Democrats will be taking full advantage in the meantime.

Until then, the Kansas GOP gets to sleep in the bed it made.

Obama assassinations vindicate Bush war effort

BY RICH LOWRY

NATIONAL REVIEW

Killing has never been so discriminating, so urbane, so cool.

The New York Times and Newsweek both ran long, largely admiring articles on how President Barack Obama selects individual terrorists to terminate with extreme prejudice. The administration's "smart power" isn't working out so well, but smart killing is a smash success.

Obama's national-security team — as well as his top political adviser, David Axelrod — gather on "Terror Tuesdays" to go over an expanding "kill list" that the president examines with the aid of capsule biographies of the terrorists, or "baseball cards." Then the president decides who lives and who — if we get him in our sights — dies.

Needless to say, had Dick Cheney consulted "baseball cards" to decide in weekly meetings attended by Karl Rove who deserved to have close encounters with drone-fired missiles, Nancy Pelosi would have drafted the articles of impeachment herself.

The Obama killings vindicate the core premises of the Bush war on terror: This is a war, and the protections of our criminal-justice system don't apply to the enemy. In light of the kill list, it's a wonder anyone ever objected to Bush-era detentions or interrogations. If we can pick someone off a roster of names and sentence him to death without due process, surely we can capture and hold that same person.

The Times notes that "Mr. Obama's record has not drawn anything like the sweeping criticism from allies that his predecessor faced." True enough. It hasn't been subjected to a highly politicized assault at home and abroad by people desperate to put it in the worst possible light and even make it a war crime.

For most of the left, the highest principle of just war theory is licet si Obama id faciat (it's OK if Obama does it). This is how Gitmo, formerly a standing repudiation of all that we hold dear as a nation, becomes an afterthought when it is owned and operated by one Barack H. Obama. As it happens, the president holds exactly the same Obama-centric view. So long as the kill list is overseen by him as judge and executioner, it's beyond reproach.

"For most of the left, the highest principle of just war theory is licet si Obama id faciat (it's OK if Obama does it). ... So long as the kill list is overseen by him as judge and executioner, it's beyond reproach."

The press tends to agree. The Newsweek article reports, "The choices he faces are brutally difficult, and he has struggled with them — sometimes turning them over in his mind again and again." Really? He thinks about who he is deciding to kill? The Times maintains that the president parses the kill list as "a student of writings on war by Augustine and Thomas Aquinas." If no anecdotes have yet emerged about President Obama justifying a particular kill with reference to the Summa Theologica, it's probably only a matter of time.

In authorizing the strikes, the president is to be commended for his coldbloodedness, although no tactic is perfect or without costs. The war in Yemen is sliding the wrong way, and relations with target-rich Pakistan are at a low ebb. But there should be no doubt now that the commander in chief possesses fearsome powers in the war on terror. All it took for Democrats to accept that was for President Obama to begin exercising them.

Supreme Court OKs police tasing pregnant women

BY JOHN WHITEHEAD

RUTHERFORD INSTITUTE

Once again, the United States Supreme Court has proven Clarence Darrow, a civil liberties attorney and long-time advocate for the Constitution, correct in his assertion that "there is no such thing as justice—in or out of court." In meeting out this particular miscarriage of justice, the Supreme Court recently refused to hear the case of a pregnant woman who was repeatedly tasered by Seattle police during a routine traffic stop simply because she refused to sign a speeding ticket.

Malaika Brooks, 33 years old and seven months pregnant, was driving her 11-year-old son to school on a November morning in 2004, when she was pulled over for driving 32 mph in a 20 mph school zone. Instructing her son to walk the rest of the way to school, Malaika handed over her driver's license to Officer Juan Ornelas for processing. However, when instructed to sign the speeding ticket—which the state inexplicably requires, Malaika declared that she wished to contest the charge, insisting that she had not done anything wrong and fearing that signing the ticket would signify an admission of guilt.

What happened next is a cautionary tale for anyone who still thinks that they can defy a police officer, even if it's simply to disagree about a speeding ticket. Rather than issuing a verbal warning to the clearly pregnant (and understandably emotional) woman, Officer Ornelas called for backup. Officer Donald Jones subsequently arrived and told Brooks to sign the ticket. Again she refused. The conversation became heated. The cops called in more backup. The next to arrive was Sergeant Steven Daman, who directed Brooks to sign the ticket, pointing out that if she failed to do so, she would be arrested and taken to jail. Again, Malaika refused.

On orders from Sgt. Daman, Ornelas ordered a distraught Brooks to get out of the car, telling her she was "going to jail." Malaika refused, and the second cop, Jones, responded by pulling out his taser electro-shock weapon, asking her if she knew what it was and warning her it would be used on her if she continued to resist. Brooks told him "No," and then said, "I have to go to the bathroom, I am pregnant, I'm less than 60 days from having my baby."

Jones and Ornelas then proceeded to discuss how best to taser the pregnant woman and forcibly remove her from the car. One officer said, "Well, don't do it in her stomach; do it in her thigh." Opening the car door, Ornelas twisted Malaika's arm behind her back. Desperate, Brooks held on tightly to the steering wheel, while Jones cycled the taser as a demonstration of its capacity to cause pain.

With the taser in a "drive-stun" mode, Officer Jones then pressed the taser against Brooks' thigh while Ornelas held her hand behind her back. Brooks, in obvious pain, began to cry and honk her car horn—hoping someone would help. Thirty-six seconds later, Ornelas pressed it into her left arm. Six seconds later, he again stunned her, this time on the neck. After being tasered numerous times, Brooks' pregnant body eventually gave way. As Malaika fell over and out of the car, the officers dragged her onto the street, placing the pregnant woman face down on the pavement, handcuffing her and transporting her to jail.

While Malaika Brooks' ordeal with the police did not seem to negatively impact her unborn child—she gave birth to a healthy baby girl two months after the altercation—Malaika bears permanent burn scars on her body where she was tasered by police. Thus, looking to the courts to hopefully right the wrong against her, Malaika sued the arresting officers, charging them with use of excessive force and violating her constitutional rights.

Unfortunately, this is where what happened to Malaika Brooks at the hands of the police—behavior that should be roundly condemned and prohibited—becomes yet another example of the cowardice of our justice system and the corrupt nature of life in a police state. Even though the Ninth Circuit of the United States Court of Appeals recognized that Malaika posed no threat to anyone, nor did she pose a physical threat to the officers, that none of her offenses were seri-

Thank you to KDOT for finishing up the 4th Street Rainbow Bridge project. Much appreciation there.

So you're saying that the book of Leviticus pertained only to a certain group of Israelites. So the rest of us need not obey what's written in this book? Question: Look at chapter 6 versus 12-20 in the book of Corinthians. Are you then saying that this only pertains to Corinthians? I too believe in the saving grace of Jesus Christ. God flooded the world once for the people's wickedness. He only said that he would not destroy the world again by water. And I am not a gay hater, as a matter of fact I pray for them every day. Thank you.

Read the book of Romans Chapter 1, verses 18-32. Thank you.

Is Anderson County or the City of Garnett going to do anything about the shooting gallery that's going on on Catalpa Street, or are they going to wait until somebody gets shot?

I like going to church but I don't like going when the wives of the ministers or youth pastors constantly criticize their husbands in front of people. I just don't think that's proper. Ladies, you need to stop.

I was thinking that it was just extremely sad that we felt like we needed to destroy some of the architecture that is still in Garnett—the old high school. We toured it a couple of times, did some research, definitely came up with a system that would pay off in 10 years or less. It would be an asset and a positive to the tax rolls in Anderson County. And we certainly need that. I would have proceeded with this but decided I didn't want to go in debt to that extent at this point. I definitely believe the school board has opportunities there besides destroying it if they would just look at it and it could even be an asset to the school system. Thank you.

What a great weekend in Garnett. A great car show, water skiing event, touring the old high school. A great way for our town to put its best face forward. Thanks to everyone who worked hard to offer these events for the rest of us to enjoy.

Yeah, I think it's kind of funny that out here this weekend at the North Lake doing their little ski event that I notice they had a lot of people in the boats pulling people don't even have life jackets on. Really teaching these kids a lesson, aren't they?

ous, and that officers clearly used "excessive force" against her, the justices granted qualified immunity to the officers—a ruling that the U.S. Supreme Court ostensibly upheld when it refused to hear the case. In doing so, the courts have essentially given police carte blanche authority when it comes to using tasers against American citizens.

Indeed, this case highlights a growing trend in which police officers use tasers to force individuals into compliance in relatively non-threatening situations. Originally designed to restrain violent criminals, tasers are now used with impunity against individuals who pose no bodily harm to the police. Rowdy schoolchildren, the elderly, and mentally ill individuals are increasingly finding themselves on the receiving end of these sometimes lethal electroshock devices. Cops who have been shocked in the course of their training have described being tased as "the most profound pain," and "like getting punched 100 times in a row."

Police looking for absolute deference to their authority are quick to utilize tasers. For example, there have been a number of incidents where suspects of minor crimes and even completely innocent people were electroshocked into compliance by cops. In Florida, a 15-year-old girl was tased and pepper sprayed after being taken off of a bus following a disturbance. In Arizona, a run-away 9-year-old girl was tased as she sat in the back seat of a police car with her hands cuffed behind her back. In Oregon, police tased a blind and partially deaf 71-year-old multiple times in her own front yard. In another instance, a Florida woman, 12-weeks pregnant, was tased after refusing to submit to a strip search at a jail. She spontaneously miscarried seven days later. In Texas, a 72-year-old great-grandmother was tased after refusing to sign a speeding ticket.

While law enforcement advocates may suggest otherwise, these incongruous and excessive uses of force by the police are quickly becoming the rule, not the exception. A 2011 New York Civil Liberties Union report showed that of the eight police departments surveyed across the state, over 85 percent of taser uses occurred in Elementary School in the northernmost part of the city. Saturday's event, organized by the Garnett Area Chamber of Commerce, was meant to give the public one last chance to say goodbye to the school.

Mostly, former high school students came to roam the halls and reminisce. Each one had a story.

In the principal's office, Barbara Macklin Krystzof, of Baldwin City, recognized her former business and accounting teacher, Miss Klingenberg. Krystzof graduated in 1956, a year after her husband, Stanley.

"Remember how we used to type to music? We stomped our feet and the classes below us got mad," the former Miss Klingenberg shared with Krystzof. "We caused a ruckus but we always had so much fun."

Miss Klingenberg, who taught from 1952 to 1956, later became Mrs. Orville Cole. Now, as Laverne Cole, she led her husband to the second floor classroom where she once taught.

"I'm going to go up and look at my room and cry," she said along the way. The classroom had changed considerably, she said. One wall had been moved to make new classrooms more comparable in size. Back in the 1950s, the typing room was small and the accounting room next door stretched nearly the entire length of that section of the building.

Laverne Klingenberg taught when Claron Cole was principal of the school. He was Orville Cole's brother, and he introduced the couple. Orville Cole said when he returned from the U.S. Army and started a law practice, his brother told him, "You need to get married."

"You got anybody at that school I might be interested in?" Orville asked.

"I got one," Claron told him. That one turned out to be "the one." Orville and Laverne were married, and Laverne later became a substitute teacher for the district.

The legacy of Claron Cole could be felt throughout the day Saturday. He was frequently mentioned by former students and teachers. Cole, an educator in Anderson County for 42 years, died Feb. 10, 2012.

Cheri Peine, Class of 1971 and later a teacher and school librarian, said she remembered how Mr. Cole gave the same speech about rules at the beginning of each school year.

But for some students, their memories of Principal Cole revolved around spending a little too much time in his office.

Homer Adams, Class of 1971, remembered sitting across from him after an escapade his senior year.

"Cole said, 'Homer, you get good grades but you're so ornery,'" Adams recalled. "The office seems so small now. I remember it being a lot bigger."

Steve Graue, Class of 1968, called himself "one of those recalcitrant students" who also met with Principal Cole on a regular basis. He remembered a time Cole read him the riot act, then got up to retrieve Graue's records. The records were kept in a small room protected by a vaulted fire-safe door. Graue mentally toyed with the idea of closing that heavy safe door behind Cole, locking him in with the records.

"I didn't do it but I still think about what would have happened if I did," he joked.

The school was the place for adventures - and misadventures. Cindy Wells, Class of 1984, looked onto what used to be the back parking lot behind the school and remembered the only time she ever got in trouble at school - for smoking a cigarette as she drove into the parking lot.

Cheryl Stewart Smith, Class of 1973, walked out of the first-floor girls bathroom Saturday afternoon shaking her head in disbelief.

"I got my ears pierced in that bathroom," she said. "My mother called it barbaric."

But not everyone who visited the school Saturday shared those memories. Not everyone was a former student, but they still had some tie to the building.

Donna Powell, who lives in Vermont, never attended school in Garnett. Her husband, Jack, however, did go to high school there. He died April 16, 2010, at the age of 75. By coincidence, his family gathered in Garnett last weekend to bury his ashes. They heard about the event at the high school and decided to visit the place where Jack Powell spent his youth. They found pictures of him in an old high school yearbook.

"We didn't even know this was going on," Donna Powell said. "It's really neat for the kids to get to see pictures of their dad when he was younger."

Review, Medicine Shoppe swap wins in 14U opener

GARNETT - Medicine Shoppe edged the Anderson County Review in the first round of Girls 14 & Under softball play by a score of 11-10, but the Review came back with a vengeance in Game 2 and smashed MS 15-6.

Both teams led off with four straight runs. Callie McGhee, Kacey Coffelt, Abby Barnes and Alexey Lickteig scored back-to-back for the Review, with Alli Jackson, Jasmine White, Jamie Sutton and Katie Lybarger scoring in their first at-bat for Medicine Shoppe. Remi Burns picked up a run before the inning was out, and the Review held the lead until Alli Jackson tied it up on a walk to start off the second inning.

McGhee and Coffelt scored on walks for the Review, Lickteig singled for a run and Joanna Read was hit by a pitch to score. Miranda Akes also picked up a run after being hit by a pitch. Amber Owens walked for a run for Medicine Shoppe, while Echo Cecil and Kaylee Simmons both doubled for a run apiece at the end of the second to trail the Review by two at the end of the inning.

But the Review froze in the third, held scoreless by Medicine Shoppe's stout infield play and stranding Alley and Akes both on base. Shelby Weaver, Sydney Holloran and Lilly Lacy all walked in runs for Medicine Shoppe to take the win.

But the nightcap was a different story, with Callie McGee and Miranda Akes waiting until the final inning to post their first home runs of the season.

McGhee and Coffelt burned two outs early in the order on an infield out and a pop fly, but Barnes singled to light up a five-run melee when Lickteig walked, Read was hit, and Burns and Samantha Nickell both walked. The Review defense held Medicine Shoppe scoreless in the second, while Coffelt singled, Barnes, Lickteig and Read all walked in runs along with Alley and Akes for five more runs in the inning. Medicine Shoppe again froze up in the third inning, and the Review scored Callie McGee on a home run, then Nickell, Alley and Kaley Nilges scored on walks in time to watch Akes smash her homer late in the inning.

The game made Garnett's two 14&Under teams 1-1 on the season.

Community health needs discussed at Town Hall meeting

Anderson County residents viewed the preliminary findings of a recent Community Health Needs Assessment survey at a Town Hall meeting on May 17th at ACJSHS. The findings were presented by Vince Vandehaar, of VVV Consulting and Marketing, Inc. of Olathe.

Approximately 120 County residents were invited to the Town Hall meeting, and 31 were present to hear the preliminary findings and discuss what needs they felt were most important.

As part of the meeting, residents heard about current County Health status and statistics on County demographics, economic and business trends, educational trends, maternal and infant trends, hospitalization and provider profiles, behavioral health profiles, risk indicators and factors, the uninsured, mortality, and preventive quality measures.

Preliminary results showed that the majority of residents rate the overall quality of healthcare in their community as good or very good, that the County has a higher rate of children in poverty than the overall Kansas rate, unemployment is higher than the Kansas rate, student to teacher ratio is lower than the Kansas average, but the number of patients seen per primary care physician in Anderson County is more than double the Kansas average.

Various health services in the County were rated by survey takers, and Pharmacy and the Ambulance Service were rated as good or very good by 89.7% and 88% respectively. Other services rated as good or very good by at least 80% of survey takers were Nursing Home, Primary Care and Outpatient Services. Mental Health Services received the lowest satisfaction score with 45.7% of survey takers rating services as either good or very good.

Anderson County Hospital and Southeast Kansas Multi County Health Department have partnered to conduct the survey, and along with other providers of health care services and interested individuals, will further prioritize the findings and create action plans to address the needs identified in the survey and Town Hall meeting.

The final report and action plans will be posted on the websites of Anderson County Hospital and Southeast Kansas Multi County Health Department by the end of 2012.

TASER...

cases where suspects were not armed. Incredibly, 40 percent of taser uses were aimed at the elderly, children, the mentally ill, or the severely intoxicated. And despite claims that tasers de-escalate tense situations, a Michigan State University study shows that suspects are more likely to be injured in incidences where police use stun guns (41% of the time), rather than when no stun gun is used (29% of the time).

Moreover, although tasers are touted as being non-lethal, there is a growing body of evidence that suggests otherwise. A study recently published by the American Heart Association has determined that taser shocks applied to the chest can lead to cardiac arrest. According to cardiologist Byron Lee, "This is no longer arguable. This is a scientific fact."

Since 2001, over 500 people have died after being stunned with tasers. In a 2008 report, Amnesty International reviewed hundreds of deaths following taser use and found that 90 percent of those who died after being struck with a taser were unarmed. In late 2007, the United Nations Committee Against Torture declared that the use of tasers constituted a form of torture. Yet despite all of the evidence that tasers are dangerous, taser technology continues to rapidly advance. One of the most recent advances in taser technology is the X12 Taser shotgun, which fires taser rounds at a distance of up to 100 feet, adding nearly 80 feet in range compared to a regular handheld taser. It would not be a stretch to envision police using the X12 against protesters simply exercising their right to free speech and assembly under the First Amendment.

Anderson County FFA member elected as Kansas FFA Officer

MANHATTAN - Denver Johnston from the Anderson County FFA Chapter was elected to serve as the 2012-2013 State FFA Sentinel at the 84th Kansas FFA Convention May 30-June 1 on the Kansas State University campus. Johnston was among 10 candidates running for a state officer position to represent more than 8,000 Kansas FFA members.

As State FFA Sentinel, Johnston will travel across the state sharing his passion for leadership, service and agriculture. He is one of a team of six officers and, together, they will present workshops and conferences across the state and challenge FFA members to serve their community and the agriculture industry.

The 2012-2013 State FFA Officer team includes: President Emily Beneda, Wilson FFA; Vice President Glendolyn Neely, Humboldt FFA; Secretary Chelsey Smith, Hays FFA; Treasurer Kayla Clapp, Caney FFA; Reporter Justin Haun, Fredonia FFA; and Sentinel Denver Johnston, Anderson County.

A four-year FFA member, Johnston has served as Chapter President, as well as District Treasurer. His Supervised Agricultural Experience Program (SAE) is Landscape Management - Placement. He maintains six residential yards and recreational farm ground. His career plans include working for a large company in the milling industry. Johnston will be attending Kansas State University in the fall.

Johnston is the son of Paul and Kandie Johnston. His advisor is Jeff Gillespie.

Local FFA members receive State FFA Degree

MANHATTAN - A total of 56 students from the East Central District FFA were awarded with the State FFA Degree on June 1 at the 84th Kansas FFA State Convention.

The State Degree is the highest honor the Kansas FFA Association can bestow upon its members. In order to achieve this award members must meet the following requirements: have received their Chapter FFA Degree, been an FFA member and agricultural education student for at least two years, earned at least $2,000 or worked 600 hours in their Supervised Agricultural Experience program, given a six minute speech about agriculture or FFA, participated in eight different leadership activities and received a "C" average or better in high school and shown a record of outstanding leadership and community involvement.

BUSINESS BEAT

Garnett Publishing sells longhorn mount

The "no bull" jokes were flying around Garnett Publishing last week as the customers got a glimpse of an unusual eBay sell - a longhorn cow shoulder mount.

The cow was owned by the 3-Bar C Ranch, near Bush City, which is owned by Eyman and Dale Cobbs. Phyllis Cobbs said the cow was nearly 20 years old and had her last calf about two years ago. The Cobbses realized she was barren and her health would decline, so they decided to make a shoulder mount with her body while she was still in good condition. The animal has a 58-inch horn spread.

"We knew she would make a beautiful mount and someone would want to take care of her in her afterlife. She was a nice old cow," Cobbs said.

The cow was mounted about a year ago by a Pittsburg taxidermist. It has never been hung, and sat on the Cobbs' game table in the basement until it was sold on eBay for $1,000. Phyllis Cobbs said the taxidermist fee cost more than that, but she was glad it was going to a good home. An internet search of similar mounted longhorns show most are offered for between $1,500 and $2,500. The cow was purchased by someone from Missouri, who agreed to pick it up at the Garnett Publishing office.

In addition to publishing newspapers and selling office supplies, the company also sells eBay items for customers.

ACHS FFA member recognized as State Star Farmer finalist

MANHATTAN - Anderson County FFA Chapter Amanda Nelson competed against five other district finalists for the state's top honor of State Star Farmer May 30-June 1 at the 84th Kansas FFA Convention on the Kansas State University campus.

Each year, the Kansas FFA Association recognizes three FFA members who have the top Supervised Agricultural Experience (SAE) programs with the Star Farmer, Star in Agribusiness and Star in Ag Placement awards. The Star Farmer award is sponsored by United Bank and Trust.

Nelson's SAE is in Goat Production. Her project encompasses a herd of 50 registered La Mancha dairy goats. She began her project at age 7 with the help of her parents. She sells her product in milk, cheese and calf markets. Additionally, she sells registered bucklings and show does. Nelson says that she began breeding for high-quality show genetics early in her career and now breeds for milk production as well. She has competed with her goats on the national level and in several shows throughout the year.

Nelson says she enjoys educating the public and promoting dairy products through her community outreach efforts. She is proud of developing a successful milking operation on four acres and doubling her herd and profits in the last few years.

Nelson is the daughter of Dwight Nelson and Dr. Sandi Otipoby. Her advisor is Jeff Gillespie.

It's time to meet for a family reunion

School's out. It's almost summertime and time for all those good ole family reunions.

Tradition finds one of its most heartwarming festive occasions to be the family reunion held annually over the years. We older members like to remember attending those reunions at our Grandpa and Grandma's house. This was a really big occasion, because it was the one time of the year the entire family and often many friends would get together for a day filled with excitement such as church service, food, visiting, singing and games.

Preparation for the get together began days before at Grandpa and Grandma's place and in many family homes where all kinds of foods were prepared. Benches and tables were often set up outdoors, along with several containers of drinking water, tea and sometimes lemonade. How were these cooled? By block ice from the town ice plant. Sometimes after enough young men had arrived, the family piano or bellows-type organ was moved out onto the porch or into the yard.

At 12 o'clock (noon) straight up, either Grandpa or an invited minister would deliver a prayer for the food and then dinner was served.

For us country folks, Grandpa and Grandma's house was located in a unique country setting. Let me describe a typical early farm home. They were built of rough boards and battens, and had a stone chimney located at each end. There were usually three or four large bedrooms, a dining room and kitchen, all separated by six-foot wide halls. The central hall led out to the well with a windlass with a long rope and bucket attached or a "modern" iron hand pump. This was also the exit to the "little shack out back," "two or three holer," "privy," or for you young people, a toilet.

The dining room was equipped with a large table, wide sitting bench, chairs and food safe. In the kitchen many pots and pans decorated the wall behind the large wood stove. The cool table, with meal and flour barrels, and a small safe (containing buttermilk and lard) were also in the kitchen. Strange as it may seem, with no refrigeration there was very little food wasted.

The smokehouse, wash-house and the cave were usually all located a short distance from the house. Washing clothes in those days was accomplished with a large iron kettle or pot in which to boil the clothes. As they were taken out, they were put on the battling block and beaten with a battling stick. Rinsing followed a vigorous beating the clothes were hung out to dry.

Then there was the big barn made of sawn slabs of local trees. The barn was normally divided: perhaps a shop where plows were sharpened and set, and other farm equipment was repaired, a parking place for buggies, wagons and farm machinery. Grain bins and a hay loft. The barn also provided a safe haven for all those cats, dogs and other farm animals at night or during a storm.

Shmidl 50th anniversary

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 06-12-2012 / Photo Submitted

Lou Ann and Jim Shmidl were married on Sunday, June 17, 1962 at the First Baptist Church in Westville, Oklahoma. They will be celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary with family.

They have a son, Tim; daughter-in-law, Theresa; and twin granddaughters, Madison and Morgan Shmidl of Lenexa. They have a daughter, Christi; son-in-law, Joe Gottschalk; and grandchildren, Colby, Cannon and Claire of Olathe.

Jim and Lou Ann graduated from Oklahoma State University. They have been residents of Garnett since 1997 after Jim retired from Bayer Animal Health Products Company and Lou Ann from teaching in the Shawnee Mission School District.

2002: Kincaid meeting full of mayhem

June 18, 2002

A Kincaid city council member resigned Monday night during a meeting one witness described as "nothing short of mayhem." It was the second council resignation in as many months in the small southeastern Anderson County community. At issue was discussion about the building of a private pond, but the city clerk and a witness said that issue was just one of several bandied about by an angry mob. About 50-75 people attended Monday night's meeting at the Kincaid Community Building. The facility seats 50 people, but even more people were standing in the building and overflowing outside.

Board members for the Garnett branch of Southeast Kansas Mental Health System have made initial inquiries into relocating near Anderson County Hospital, after learning that the landlord of their present office has put the building up for sale. The facility offers about 1,500 square feet of office space and is located in a residential area on East Sixth Street.

local Union Pacific Railroad lines, one in Selma and one in Mont Ida, will be outfitted with crossing guards and lights as part of a continuing safety plan. The county's obligation to the project is to install and maintain the warning signs leading to the crossing. The county will also have to paint the pavement with the designated emblems at the Selma crossing to meet regulations.

Four new teachers were hired and decisions concerning the school nurse, and food service staff were made during the regular monthly meeting of the Central Heights school board.

June 17, 1982

This week Humco, Inc., has been moving some very large, very heavy metal boxes from its factory on Highway 59 south to the railroad yards south of the square. The boxes are Waste Heat Recovery Units, which are destined for Prudhoe Bay, Alaska. The units will use waste heat to force oil from the ground. The units are so large, the biggest weighing 185,000 pounds and the smaller ones weighing from 85,000 to 88,000 pounds each, that special railroad cars had to be arranged to haul them. To move the heavier units required the use of two cranes lifting together.

June 17, 1912

The most destructive wind storm that ever visited this section passed over a portion of Anderson County Saturday evening, starting at the Tilton farm about three and a half miles east of Mont Ida. It was a regular cyclone and it made a path between 20 and 40 feet wide. Barns, houses, sheds, school houses, orchards, etc. were either swept away or badly wrecked.

The public utilities commission denied permission to an organization of farmers in the neighborhood of Westphalia to establish a new telephone exchange at Westphalia. However, the commission gave the present company just 30 days in which to improve its plant and bring it up to standard. It is also said there is some deal on whereby the farmers may purchase the present telephone system and conduct it.

Colony Community Church has Vacation Bible School this week

Christian Church: Scripture at June 3 service was Hebrews 9:1-10:18. Pastor Mark McCoy's sermon—"Clean Conscience."

UMC: Scriptures at the United Methodist Church service June 3 were II Corinthians 9:6-15, Psalms 29 and John 3:1-17. Lay leader Leonard Wools presented the sermon.

VBS: Vacation Bible School themed "Adventures on Promised Island" will be held June 11-15 from 8:30 until 11:30 a.m. Opening exercises begin at 8:30 a.m. at the Community Church. Classes will be held in all three churches and will be led by helpers to their appointed rooms.

Alert: The Anderson County Health Department sent out an alert there were three cases of whooping cough in Anderson County. They offered vaccines for children 19 years and above on June 5 at the community building in Garnett's north lake for $15 each. If you were unable to meet that date, you are advised to see your doctor concerning this vaccine.

Story Hour: The Summer Story Hour theme is "Dream Big: Read"-children ages 3 thru 13 are welcome. This will be held each Tuesday, June 19 and 26 and each Tuesday the month of July at the City Hall community room. It will be held at the City Hall community room 10-11 a.m. June 19 and 26. More details for July later.

Citywide sales: The annual sales are scheduled to be held June 23 with Debbie Oswald, Cathy Stephens and Melissa

by Mrs. Morris Luedke
Contact (620) 852-3379 or colonynews@ckt.net with Colony news.

Hobbs as organizers. If you wish to participate you should notify Cathy at 852-3227, Debbie, 852-3034 or Melissa, 852-3086. Give them your address and list a few items you have for sale. Maps will be made with addressees, which will be handed out prior to the June 23 date. She will see that your address is placed on the map, which will be handed out to garage sale participants at the Country Diner and/or the GSSB bank drive-thru on the sale date.

Colony Day: The annual event this year is Sept. 1 and is themed "Big Dreams in a Small Town". Charlene Tinsley was selected as Grand Marshal this year.

Attending the May 21 committee meeting were Mary Scovill, Debbie Oswald, Denise King, Melissa Hobbs, Caitlin, Miranda and Trena Golden.

Event Coordinators are: Fun Run/Walk: Steve and Susie Bubna; Breakfast: Colony Lions Club; Auto Show: Dotti Hartman; Vendors: Dottie Hartman; Smoke-off: Chase and Lysa Preston and Angie Black; Registration tent:

Angie Luedke; Kid's Tractor Pull: Rick Feuerborn; Kid's Games/Races: Crest FCCLA; Homemade Pie Contest: Kathy Holloway; Parade and Parade Lineup: Kloma Buckle and Melissa Hobbs; Coed Volleyball Tournament: Jeff McAdam; Pie Eating Contest: Chase and Lysa Preston; Pony Pull: Terry Ellis; Cake Walk: Bob and Mary Scovill; Ice Cream Social: Colony Christian Church Working Wonders; Mayor's Cookie Jar Contest: Denise King; Basket Auction: Cathy Allen; Variety Show: Brenda Dowling; Colony Day PeeWee Rodeo: Jessica Stalford; Raffle: Colony Day Committee

The committee is attempting to put together information booklets on each event that will be available in each business in town as well as a schedule of the day's events. All are encouraged to attend the upcoming meetings, offer ideas and let us know if they would be available to help with a particular event or a new event you think is interesting.

The next meeting is Wednesday June 13 at the City Hall community room. This is a different day and time than the usual meeting, so please make note and be sure to attend. They need you!

Post Office: Colony post office will continue their current retail postal service of eight hours. It is due to change in around two years. During that time frame small towns will all keep their post offices but retail hours will begin to shorten by half in most cases. Access to post office boxes will remain unchanged.

Council: The sewer-cleaning project report from the street and alley committee at the May 30 meeting is currently in operation throughout the town. Ace Pipe Cleaning was hired and they are opening manholes to help facilitate the work. This is done as per the CDBG grant. They have been working Monday through Friday 7 a.m.-6 p.m. A high-pressure low-flow jetting device does this. Televising of the lines follows to observe any blockage of the lines, such as tree roots. Please be careful as some manholes are buried rather deep in the road. The work will be finished by the first part of June.

Guest Dennis Edwards, CPA and auditor for the city presented the 2011 audit for the city, which was approved. A building permit was approved for an addition for Ron McMullen. The new water increase ordinance #420 was approved. Council approved to the Colony Day Celebration being held Sept. 1, and the city will again donate the portable bathrooms. One member was absent at the meeting. Next meeting is June 27.

Food Preservation Workshop: If unable to attend the June 9 program at the Kincaid High School Community Center, plan to attend the workshop on June 30 from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Anderson County Annex in Garnett. This will be a hands on experience. Cost for workshop is $5 for supplies. Register at the Anderson County Extension Office or phone 785-448-6826.

Around town: Delma French has moved to Fountain Villa, 2620 N Kentucky St., Iola, 66749, Room 108. She had been residing at Burlington. Friends are welcome to visit her there.

Congratulations to Crest graduates Arlyna Hendrix and Shayla Stephens, valedictorians and Katrina Strickler, salutatorian. Arlyna, daughter of Scott and Michelle Hendrix plans to attend Baker University, play music and major in Business. Shayla Stephens, daughter of Alan and Brenda Stephens, plans to attend Allen Community then transfer to Emporia State. Katrina, daughter of Jeff and Missy Strickler, plans a dual major in Apparel, Textiles and Fashion Design with a minor in Business.

Sixty descendants of the late Claude and Carl McGhee met at Northcott Church for a reunion Memorial Day. Those coming the farthest were Cheryl Ashe from Boulder City, NV and AD and Thelma Haley from Yuba City, CA. Terri Louk played her guitar and sang several songs for the program.

Summer reading begins in Parker God is our creator, sustainer

Summer Reading Programs begin this month at the Library! "Reading Dips" is opened to everyone (Kindergarten-adults) and offers a "cool and refreshing" incentive to encourage reading; additionally, the library will begin their traditional reading program on June 14 for grades K-3 and 4-8. The pre-school group will also have opportunities to enjoy crafts, stories, refreshments and other activities each Tuesday morning from 10:30-11:20am. For complete details, contact Ms. Marti at (913) 898-4650.

by Judy Kinder
Contact (913) 898-6465 or True.blue.ku@gmail.com with Parker news.

Happy Birthday wishes to Brad Kerr on June 4 and Jody Bloodgood on June 11. Carrie and Luke Page celebrated their seventh wedding anniversary on June 3. Rita and Al Kerr attended a barbecue on Friday evening. The event was hosted by and for KCP&L retirees.

Steve and Judy Kinder were in Olathe on Friday and stopped for a short visit with family, Rob and Robyn Duke.

Just a reminder; with the early on-set of yet another summer scorcher, be sure to check on your neighbors and loved ones to insure their well-being. Church News

Parker United Methodist Church: The congregation celebrated Holy Communion and Trinity Sunday as Juanita Fann gave the Call to Worship. Pastor Marti McDougal gave the Opening Prayer and led the congregation in the Unison Prayer of Confession. Pastor McDougal then conducted the their birthday celebration this week.

Happy Anniversary wishes to Bob and Johanna Culver, who celebrated their special day on June 3.

Joe and Tara Summers will be celebrating their special day this coming Saturday (June 9).

Maxine Frear returned home on May 26 after spending three days as a patient at St. Luke's Hospital.

Be sure to visit the new Farmer's Market along Main Street every Saturday morning this summer. The weekly event will be held from 8am-Noon. Contact Donna at (913) 757-4475 for more information.

Exercise Mondays are held each week in the Fellowship Hall at the Centerville Community Church, beginning at 9am.

Centerville Community Church: The congregation joined together to sing He's Got the Whole World in His Hands. For the special service and as part of the "Memories from Rocky Point Lighthouse" Vacation Bible School three-day event held over this weekend, the congregation welcomed the F.O.C.U.S. Puppet Ministries of the Faith Baptist Church of Osawatomie.

Board members will meet for their monthly business meeting following the worship service on June 10.

A special Father's Day Breakfast will be held on June 17 at 8:30am.

In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth. (Genesis 1:1) There was no pre-existing material God created out of nothing. This is what makes God such a mystery to us. He is self-existent, he is infinite, lacking limits, and he is not bound by space or time. We are created, finite, having definable limits and we are limited by space and time. In Acts 17:25,28 Paul tells the Athenians, "He (God) gives to all mankind life and breath and everything else. For in him we live and move and have our being."

When we give to God the gratitude and loyalty which he requires and deserves we create what we call a vertical relationship between God and us. We look up to God for our strength and direction.

If we exclude God from our lives and exercise the gift of free will which God has allowed us we live on a horizontal plane where we seek strength and direction from others and we measure our success and failure against others as well. With God out of the picture this places us in charge of our own moral accountability. If we remove our accountability to God we can soon become someone who loves self more than God. Our decision process becomes self-centered rather than God centered.

As the world order is not self-created so also it is not self-sustaining as God is. One thing every living thing has in common is we are constantly changing. I am not the same person I was 10 years ago or 5 years ago or last month or even yesterday. My body is constantly changing. By virtue of the fact we are in constant change proves we are not self-sustaining.

Knowing that God created us and the world around us is basic to understanding true religion. Since God is self-existent he has life in himself and needs nothing. It is very easy for us to suppose that God is limited and small yet nothing could be further from the truth. At the very word of God this universe was created. We need to understand that creation is not part of God's being but is utterly dependant on God for its existence. I can not exist apart from God. As Paul told the Athenians, "He (God) gives mankind life and breath and everything else."

Perhaps the one thing most people desire is security. We want the security of a home, a good job, health for our loved ones and yet there is no way to guarantee that security. At best we can feel somewhat relieved we have done a good job of trying to create that security. Yet God offers a security that cannot be measured by material goods and we ignore the offer.

Yes the concept of a creator is difficult to understand. Even though we are told in Genesis we were created in God's image we prefer to exclude or limit God's involvement in our lives. When we feel the urging of the Holy Spirit and fail to respond our heart can become hard and at some point we will no longer feel that urging. God is holy we are sinners. Each of us needs to understand that. Only when we realize who God is will we begin to understand who we are.

David Bilderback: A Ministry on the Holiness of God.

Card of Thanks

We would like to thank the community for the many expressions of love we received over the weeks Rocky was hospitalized and in the time of our loss. The support shown to us by the USD 365 BOE, district and school staffs allowed us to spend all of our time with Rocky; we are so grateful. We want to thank Mike and Eileen Burns and the AuBum Pharmacy Team for going above and beyond for us several times throughout Rocky's hospitalization. A special thank you to very special friends who took care of our cat, home and yard, without question, for those many weeks. We will never be able to repay you! To Reuben and the Feuerborn Family Funeral Staff, thank you for handling Rocky's funeral with dignity and honor. You made an unbearable time, more bearable.

Thank you doesn't seem like enough, but it is what we have to give. Thank you for your prayers for Rocky and your continued prayers for all of us.

God Bless Each of You.

Let's go to the Car Show!

Lake Garnett Cruisers host annual car, motorcycle show June 9.

Brian Shaffer, Ottawa, and his father, Gary Shaffer of Pomona Lake, take a look at a 1934 Chevy four-door.

Several Harley Davidson motorcycles from various years and other motorcycles were displayed at the car show.

This 1972 Ford Maverick included the original bill of sale - for $3,552.53.

Leisa Price, Garnett, and Misty Price, hidden, look at a vehicle with Leisa Price's father, Dave Vestal, Ottawa.

Above: Larry and Wynnie Young, Osawatomie, relax under the shade on the courthouse lawn during the car show.
