Suicide linked to sex crime probe

Man considered 'person of interest' kills self hours after report

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Law enforcement authorities are investigating last week's suicide of a man considered a "person of interest" in connection with a sex crime.

The series of events that led to discovery of a suicide began June 20. That's when a 16-year-old girl may have been the victim of a criminal sex offense. Police interviewed the girl at 9:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 26, at Crystal Lake in Garnett and turned the investigation over to Anderson County deputies because it was determined the alleged incident happened outside the city limits.

A "person of interest" was determined as John Scot Schuster, 38, Garnett, according to a press release from the Anderson County Sheriff's Department.

Hours later, at 1:45 a.m. Wednesday, June 27, law enforcement officers were summoned to Schuster's home for a possible suicide. Schuster was found dead when officers

'Bully' dog breeds may get a break

Commission waits on vote, but 2 of 3 express support for changing dog rules

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Ken Amaya and his family want to adopt a dog, giving her a new life with a loving family. There's only one problem. She looks like a pit bull. And in Garnett, where Amaya lives, it's illegal to own a pit bull or any dog that even looks like one.

An animal welfare advocate from Topeka, on Amaya's behalf, asked city commissioners at their regular meeting Tuesday, June 26, to remove breed-specific restrictions from the city's aggressive dog ordinance. After lengthy discussion with several people - including two animal welfare representatives, two local veterinarians, dog owners and non-owners alike - the law appeared poised to change as two of three commissioners agreed it was unfair to target specific breeds. Mayor Greg Gwin, who wanted to leave the policy alone, postponed the vote and said he wanted to talk to city staff before making a decision.

The city actually has a pretty good policy compared to other similarly-sized cities, said Katie Barnett, a legislative analyst with Best Friends Animal Society. However, the city prohibits keeping aggressive dogs unless owners make special provisions like having a closed pen, keeping the dogs on a leash anytime they are out of the house or pen and requiring owners to maintain insurance that covers damage or injury caused by the dog, as well as other requirements.

The city defines "aggressive dogs" as pit bull-type dogs and rottweilers, but also includes dogs that have inflicted severe injury without provocation or those that have killed a domestic animal. Currently, the city has registration records for 19 animals that meet those qualifications, city manager Joyce Martin said. In the past five years, the city has issued 10 citations for aggressive dogs and 19 for vicious dogs, but the citations don't show the dogs' breeds.

The city passed its aggressive dog ordinance in 1998 after a wave of dog attacks across the nation and state, most apparently caused by pit bulls. Martin said there were no attacks in Garnett, but commissioners at the time wanted to be proactive.

A Hot Holiday

Dry conditions pose problems for July 4th

Local official urges caution shooting fireworks this year

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Temperatures in the 90s and 100s with little to no rain have devastated local crops, gardens and lawns. To make sure the weather doesn't take its toll on the July 4th holiday, emergency management officials want to remind people to take extra precaution while shooting fireworks.

Dry grass has been a concern for emergency management and firefighters leading up to the July 4th holiday. Marvin Grimes, Anderson County Emergency Management Director, said last week the county had to institute a burn ban on multiple occasions. He was concerned about people shooting off fireworks while conditions were ripe for trouble. With grass so brittle and dry, it doesn't take much of a spark to start a grassfire.

So far, county fire crews have not faced situations caused by errant fireworks. A burn ban remained in place Monday, but it doesn't affect fireworks. Grimes said it's possible fireworks may have sparked small grass fires that were easily extinguished, but none have been reported.

County fire crews, however, have battled other heat-related fires. A couple

Better camping

Local camper lobbies for improvements to city camping facilities

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Campers at Lake Garnett may have noticed a few changes lately, and more could be on the way.

City staff recently posted speed limit signs at the entrance to the lake's most popular camping spot across from the Garnett Country Club. Also, the city implemented new rules on pets at camping facilities, with a goal of keeping animals from bothering other campers.

Soon, campers can reserve sites by calling City Hall. Reservations will be taken throughout the year; currently, the city only reserves sites on holidays and special events. Self-pay kiosks will be added that also will post rules and regulations.

In the proposed 2013 budget, commissioners will consider whether to spend $10,000 for

City keeps garage sale restrictions

Residents plead for more sales, but city says 4 is enough

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Despite pleas from two families to allow them to have more garage sales, city commissioners decided four sales in one year is enough.

Debra and Roger Mace recently asked commissioners to allow them to have more garage sales. They asked staff to allow four garage sales in addition to the spring and fall sale, or to implement a permit system.

They said proceeds from their garage sales support their church mission in Africa, which Debra Mace said helps feed 150

Colors will help kids navigate school

New elementary school will have open house July 23; enroll Aug. 7

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - When elementary students make their way through a new, larger school this fall, they probably won't have much trouble finding their way around. That's because of a simple color-coding system that helps anyone in the building know just where they are - if you are a kindergartener, just find the orange hallway; if you are in sixth grade, you're in the purple section.

School board members toured the new Garnett Elementary School during an end-of-year meeting Friday, June 29. Superintendent Don Blome led the tour, giving board members a chance to see the finished product of a $12 million bond issue. The public will have a chance to see the building at a grand opening and ribbon cutting ceremony at 6:30 p.m. July 23, or at enrollment Aug. 7. More information about the grand opening will be available later.

Board members seemed impressed by many features of the new school, including safety features, a feeling of openness from large hallways and windows, and plenty of storage.

The color-coded system is used for "way finding," Blome said. The coloring is used throughout the school. Administrative and public areas are red, kindergarten is orange, first and second grades are green, third and fourth grades are blue, and fifth and sixth grades are purple. Walls of the halls and gathering areas are painted the corresponding color and in the classrooms, tack boards also are the corresponding color. Even the floor features flecks of the corresponding color.

A large circle on the floor of the main hallway is separated into four colors: red, purple, blue and green. It directs students to the section of the school where they will find their classroom. Three "pods" on the north side of the school radiate from that center circle. Each pod features eight classrooms for two grade levels with a central gathering area.

The school also features a stage area between the gym and commons area, with foldaway walls on both sides so presentations or concerts can be offered in either area.

TAYLOR

February 13, 1927-June 23, 2012

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW
Published July 3, 2012

Constance Kent Taylor ("Connie"), Age 85 of Georgetown, Texas, and Olathe, (and many ports in between), passed away on June 23, 2012, at her home in Olathe. She was active until the last days of her life, living -- as she had for 85 years - enjoying her family and friends each and every day.

Taylor

Memorial services were held at St. Aiden's Episcopal Church, 14301 South Black Bob Road, Olathe, KS 66062 on Friday, June 29, 2012 with close family friend Reverend Julie Sifers officiating. A reception followed at the Church.

Connie was born in Denver, Colo., to Glen and Verna Kent on February 13, 1927. After her mother's death, she was adopted by her father's brother, Rex A Kent, and his wife Clara Mae "Plum" Kent. Connie graduated high school at Norton Community High in Norton, and studied nursing at the University of Colorado.

She and Thomas F. Taylor married in 1948. While Tom was in medical school she worked as a surgical, family practice and gynecological nurse. They returned to the Norton/Phillipsburg area and stayed until 1968, when they moved to Salina, KS. In the early '80s, they became Irresponsible Transients and for the next 25 years traveled North America in their motorhome(s), frequently stopping to be with friends or help out a medical community in need.

Connie never met a stranger and enjoyed gardening, entertaining, movies, long conversations over dinner, and many card games - most recently she'd taken up playing poker with her family and friends. She had a wonderful smile that could light up a room and her love of people was undeniable.

Connie is preceded in death by her mothers, Verna and Plum Kent, fathers Glen and Rex Kent, and brother Bob Kent.

Connie is survived by her husband Tom, of Georgetown, TX, and Olathe, her son David Kent Taylor, Topeka, daughter Danielle Halsel of Lenexa, son Tommy Taylor of Valley Falls, and grand-daughter Rhys Taylor Shepard of Lenexa.

Memorial contributions are welcome and may be made to St. Aidan's Episcopal Church at 14301 Black Bob Road, Olathe, KS, 66062. Condolences may be left in Connie's online guestbook at www.kccremation.com.

Wrong answer, wrong question

Supreme Court decision doesn't address Obamacare as national financial suicide

In view of the U.S. Supreme Court decision Friday upholding the individual mandate premise of Obamacare, we would modestly request that the U.S. Congress also legislate another nationwide mandate:

That every American household purchase a newspaper subscription, have one supplied by government funds if they meet certain low-income guidelines, and ultimately be fined/taxed/penalized if they refuse to purchase one. We would of course acquiesce to allow young people to read their parents subscription until they turn 26.

Of course, neither Obamacare nor Reviewcare is a plausible option since the United States can't actually afford either one.

The country borrows money every single day just to meet its obligations to defense, social programs and social security and Medicare and then pays interest on that debt as well. When the U.S. economy was bustling five years ago we still weren't fiscally sound enough to execute a federal spending plan the size of Obamacare, much less today. It is the fiscal impact of Obamacare and its long-term effect on the U.S. economy which should be its biggest worry – not whether certain provisions are a tax or not, or whether its individual mandate is or is not constitutional.

The fiscal shadow of Obamacare is this: Through all its social aggrandizing in professing to provide health insurance to all Americans (even those who don't want it) it does nothing to attack the root of the health care problem in this country: cost. The problem isn't that health care isn't generally available in nearly every geographic region; it isn't a heartlessness among service providers; it isn't that there's a disconnect between doctors and science and medical services and clinics and emergency rooms and urgent care departments and their availability, usually within minutes, to the majority of the population.

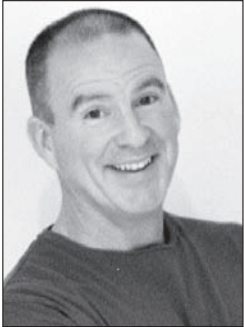

The problem is exemplified by baby aspirin that cost $18 when billed by a hospital's accounting department, life-saving operations that cost hundreds of thousands of dollars, and over-priced tests proscribed by a doctor just to cover his or her own posterior if there's a lawsuit. The myriad of issues that lead to the "cost" conclusion is the crux of the American healthcare issue.

If Obamacare succeeds in establishing itself as the standard of the American medical landscape and succeeds in magically lowering health care costs, it will be the first time in the history of free markets that flooding a market with money succeeded in bringing prices down. We should have learned that lesson from the nation's home mortgage debacle.

The other certainty in Friday's Supreme Court ruling is that Republicans, Libertarians and conservative Democrats now have a rallying cry that usurps their previously divisive views on abortion, gay rights and sex education. As one political pundit in Northeast Kansas put it over the weekend, the GOP and its recruits will be "breathing fire" to sway the electorate in the 2012 Presidential and congressional elections.

Whether new blood in Washington can fix the problem is another matter, but a wrong answer is not necessarily better than no answer at all.

Political gamesmanship hurts people who need health care

BY PAT LOWRY

HAYS DAILY NEWS

Most polls suggest the majority of Americans are against "Obamacare." Most polls also suggest the majority of Americans favor the changes brought about by President Barack Obama's health care overhaul.

The law, which was passed in 2010, allows young Americans to stay on their parents' insurance policies until they're 26. The law gives discounts to Medicare recipients for high prescription drug costs. The law prevents insurance companies from canceling customers because they're sick, denying coverage because of pre-existing conditions, or charging higher premiums because they actually use the insurance. The law also will add 32 million uninsured Americans to coverage, which greatly will reduce the number of people using emergency rooms for their primary care.

All of these provisions are long overdue, and will help jump-start the process of reducing overall soaring health care costs.

Still, most people say they don't like Obamacare. We would suggest this is semantical, propagated by the Republican Party which has been against the reform since the beginning. Now that the U.S. Supreme Court has upheld the constitutionality of the Affordable Care Act, it is time to reconcile the disconnect.

Kansas Gov. Sam Brownback isn't ready to throw in the towel. The state's chief executive said Thursday he is willing to wait until the November elections to see if Republican Mitt Romney is elected president and the GOP can gain veto-proof majorities in both houses of Congress. If that happens, the governor believes Obamacare will be repealed.

One of the funny things about Obamacare is it was modeled after the successful Romneycare implemented in Massachusetts while the presumptive GOP nominee was governor. Today, Romney says he will fight to undo the national Affordable Care Act. He says it is a bad law.

To that we say: Too bad. It is the law. As mere candidate, Romney has the privilege of not wanting to support it. As governor of the state of Kansas, we don't believe Brownback has that luxury.

Kansas has about 350,000 residents who don't have health insurance coverage, or 12.7 percent of the state's population, according to U.S. Census Bureau figures. About 53,000 are children. These people cannot be ignored any longer, particularly since it is the law of the land. How can Brownback look these people in the eye and tell them their quality of life pales in comparison to his political gamesmanship?

The Affordable Care Act mandates states to have insurance exchanges in place by Jan. 1, 2014, in order for lower-income and middle-class families to obtain subsidies to help pay premiums for their newfound insurance coverage. Plans for that exchange must be submitted to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services by Nov. 16. States that do not comply with the law will have their exchanges run by the federal government, with no input from the state.

Kansas Insurance Commissioner Sandy Praeger understands this reality. She believes the state has an obligation to fulfill its mandate under the law. Even though the governor returned $31.5 million to the federal government to help establish Kansas' exchange, the Republican insurance commissioner believes Topeka should be in charge of running a program for Kansans.

Apparently, Gov. Brownback does not share the sentiment.

"I want to see what happens in the fall," Brownback said Thursday.

The governor has to realize as he plays politics, he concurrently is playing with people's lives. Brownback's indifference for struggling Kansans is unacceptable.

I think it's BS that the City of Garnett can charge you $50 for a reconnection fee when the utilities wasn't even shut off.

Now let me see if I read your article right. There's a billing error and the City of Garnett gets charged too much for electricity. So it turns around and charges the people of Garnett too much on their bill. Okay, honest mistake. Now they find the error but the city keeps the money for itself. I think next week you should have another story in your paper about them renaming the City of Garnett: Obamaland.

How come some people can continue to go to work when there's whooping cough in their home? And they work in food service?

Are they canceling the Garnett fireworks this year or what? Someone told me they're going to have it but it seems like it's another best kept secret of Garnett. Thank you.

Hey did anyone see the column written by Garnett commissioner Dan Morgan in the city newsletter? Go dig it out of the trash and look at it. If I didn't know better, I'd think this is one commissioner column where the commission actually wrote the column himself instead of having somebody write it for him. Remarkable job, Mr. Morgan. Really enjoyed it.

Here's goes the city manager taking something that's not hers. The citizens of Garnett were overcharged for the electricity, so they should receive the money back. She is stealing it. It's not hers to decide where it goes.

Who's celebrating Fiscal Year 2013?

Somewhere, we presume, there was a New Year's Eve party last weekend, when the state said goodbye to old man Fiscal Year 2012 and welcomed in baby Fiscal Year 2013.

Well, if you missed the party, or maybe partied so hard that you aren't clear on the details of just what you did and just hope nobody was taking pictures with a cell phone, the change was for most Kansans pretty low-key.

Biggest change we saw was what happened last year for the most important piece of state government—its bank account, which people who don't get out enough refer to as the State General Fund.

That's where your tax dollars go. Just a day before the Saturday night party was getting wild, it was learned that the state took in $6.008 billion of your tax dollars. That made it a year worth celebrating. The previous year the state took in just $5.543 billion in taxes, so revenues grew by $465 million or 8.4 percent in only one year.

Oh, and at last year's party, when we said goodbye to Fiscal Year 2011, and believed that the snacks were better, the state celebrated receipt of that $5.543 billion which topped the previous year's $4.858 billion. That was the real growth year, and someone probably marked the doorframe to show the growth of the State General Fund by an amazing $685 million or 14.1 percent.

OK, OK, there was no party either year...at least that most of us heard about.

But we did learn at the end of June

by Martin Hawver
KANSAS STATEHOUSE COLUMNIST

what's happening to the economy of the state. Last year, for example, Kansans paid $2.9 billion in individual income taxes, which was $198 million more than the previous year. That means Kansans apparently had better paychecks than the year before.

Or, more Kansans had paychecks, as we are coming out of the recession, or maybe those with paychecks just got bigger paychecks, and those people without paychecks still didn't have paychecks. It's all pretty complicated at that level of economic analysis.

But, no matter who got it, it meant that there was more money circulating in Kansas, and that can't be bad.

Kansans spent that extra money they earned last year on things that they paid sales tax on. That's a pretty good ruler to use on measuring how Kansans are getting along.

In good old Fiscal Year 2012, which ended at midnight Saturday, Kansans paid a total of $2.136 billion in sales taxes. That's $171 million more than the year before, for an 8.7 percent increase.

"Last year, for example, Kansans paid $2.9 billion in individual income taxes, which was $198 million more than the previous year. That means Kansans apparently had better paychecks than the year before. Or, more Kansans had paychecks..."

That's important because of what is subject to sales taxes. It is actual stuff you buy and carry out of the stores or drive off the car lots. It's not payments on mortgages or credit cards, or buying stocks or bonds or houses; it is actual goods being bought.

That means Kansans had more money to spend. That isn't a bad thing for the state, or the people who make a living selling that stuff that you paid sales taxes on, or even the folks who bought stuff...as long as it worked.

Happy Fiscal 2013, everyone!

DOGS...

City attorney Terry Solander, who drafted the ordinance, said he personally doesn't believe in targeting specific breeds and the ordinance was intended to be a control measure more than an outright ban.

Midge Grinstead, state director of the Humane Society, said there were a series of crippling dog attacks in Lawrence between 1996 and 1998 by a variety of breeds, none pit bulls. That's when advocates began to work hard at changing breed specific legislation. Instead of banning breeds like pit bulls, they ask cities instead to restrict dogs that have shown aggressive behavior. After Lawrence changed its dog laws, the number of dog bites in that city decreased by 40 percent the first year and 52 percent the next year. By the third year, cat bites outnumbered dog bites, she said.

Dr. Brad Spain and Dr. Amanda Allison, both veterinarians at Countryside Veterinary Clinic in Garnett, spoke in favor of amending the ordinance by removing restrictions on specific breeds.

Spain said he is bitten almost daily by small dogs. A very small percentage of incidents involve large breed dogs, he said.

"Ninety percent of the time it's owner based or it's a fear response," he said.

Spain also said labeling a dog by breed is difficult, especially when it comes to defining aggression. For example, he said, some people may consider a Doberman to be aggressive, but does that hold true for a miniature Doberman?

"The city wants us to write the breed on a rabies certificate. Which one of you would be able to look at a dog and tell me what breed it is?" he asked commissioners.

"The research I did says even you would have a difficult time determining that," commissioner Preston Peine said.

"Exactly," Spain responded, adding that DNA tests show many dogs are misidentified by breed. He asked commissioners, Martin and Solander how they would prove the dog's breed if it were challenged in court.

"Who determines responsibility for saying, 'This is a pit bull?'" Spain asked.

"My staff bases it on the breed the rabies tag says," Martin said.

"That's still my call," Spain said.

Allison initially appeared reluctant to speak publicly, but Commissioner Dan Morgan asked her viewpoint, saying "Your opinion carries a lot of weight for me."

Allison said she agreed it's unfair to target large breed dogs. Smaller breeds bite more frequently, but large breed dog bites get more attention because those dogs tend to do more damage.

"I don't believe all large dogs are vicious but I do believe not all owners are responsible. You can't fix that as much. You can just write the best laws possible," she said.

Peine said he felt the ordinance should be revised and restrictions targeting specific breeds should be removed. Morgan said he was inclined to agree. Gwin, however, said he felt the intent of the ordinance was to be proactive, and he was concerned that in order for a dog to be determined "aggressive," it must bite someone or kill a domestic animal.

"You'll need a test subject to get on that list," he said.

Amaya pointed out that the city's proactive approach only covers two breeds. All other dogs would require "test subjects" before they were labeled aggressive.

CAMPING...

bathroom facilities at sites in Lake Garnett Park and near Crystal Lake, commonly known as the South Lake. The $10,000 cost would cover two bathrooms, one at each campground.

Part of the impetus for change came from requests by Geno Thacker, Garnett, who frequently camps at the lake. He has attended recent city commission meetings with a variety of requests: to control dust on the gravel roads leading to the site, for regular trash pickup, for animal control and for implementing a reservation system. Since then, city staff lowered the speed limit to 10 mph and sprayed the roads with water, but said more dust control measures were too expensive. Rules on pets were amended, requiring animals to be kept on a leash or inside camping facilities after 11 p.m. Sites would have "quiet time" after 11 p.m.

At the regular meeting Tuesday, June 26, Thacker asked about implementing a reservation system. For people who travel from out of town to camp at Lake Garnett, it can be frustrating to arrive and find all sites taken. A reservation system would allow someone to call ahead and save a spot before they load up the supplies and travel to Garnett. City Manager Joyce Martin said city staff take reservations only on holidays or for special events when camping spots are likely to fill up. She said staff could take reservations at any time during the season; police typically keep track of people who arrive at an open spot and use the self-pay station. Commissioners asked her to implement a reservation system.

Martin said she will propose adding bathrooms as part of improvements in 2013. Commissioners will discuss funding that request when they consider the 2013 budget later this summer. Several people have asked for bathroom and shower facilities at all of the city's lake and camping sites. However, it would be very difficult and expensive to add bathrooms because sewer facilities do not extend to the Cedar Valley Reservoir or into Lake Garnett; Crystal Lake could tap into sewer lines for the VFW nearby. Bathrooms would require holding tanks; showers would require staff to empty those tanks often, which would add considerable staff time. Instead, Lake Garnett campers could be encouraged to use shower facilities at the Garnett Recreation Center for a $2 admission fee.

City crews are building self-pay kiosks for camping sites. Those kiosks also will post rules and regulations, and information about shower facilities at the rec center could be added, Martin said.

Camping at city lakes has increased significantly in the past couple of years, Martin said. The city added more sites at Lake Garnett this year in response, and camping continues to increase.

of grass fires were started by sparks from mowers, and a hay bale machine caught on fire last week. Another grassfire was reported along a roadway, but it is not known what caused it.

Grimes said he urges people to use caution, especially with fireworks.

"It's extremely dry out there and it's going to get drier and drier until we get some rain," he said.

The National Weather Service in Topeka predicts temperatures will remain in the 90s and above the rest of the week. Heat index readings on Wednesday, July 4, are expected to top 104. There is no chance of rain in the immediate future, according to the forecast.

Emergency management officials won't set up an emergency shelter for heat relief unless the area loses power, Grimes said. He encourages people who do not have air conditioning to seek relief at any number of places, such as a library or any place that is open during regular business hours.

Barnabas, Paul and Mark: Followers of Jesus Christ

In his Second Epistle to Timothy, Paul is near the end of his life and is imprisoned in Rome in a dungeon. Paul writes to young Timothy requesting that he come quickly because Demas had deserted him and Titus had gone to Dalmatia. Paul writes, "Only Luke is with me. Get Mark and bring him with you, because he is helpful to me in my ministry."

It is interesting that Paul would request to see Mark. In Acts 13:13 we read, "From Paphos Paul and his companions sailed to Perga in Pamphylia where John Mark deserted them to return to Jerusalem."

In order to fully understand the significance of Paul's request to see Mark we need to review some of the history that surrounded Paul, Barnabas and Mark. After his conversion when Paul came to Jerusalem he tried to join the disciples, but they were all afraid of him. Barnabas spoke up for Paul and convinced the disciples that that the Lord had truly spoken to Paul. Barnabas formed a relationship with Paul and they set off on their first missionary journey. It was during this journey that John Mark lost heart and left them. His leaving would cause a dispute between Barnabas and Paul that would lead to them splitting up.

In Acts 15 we read how Paul had spoken to Barnabas requesting that they go on another missionary journey to visit the brothers in all the towns where they preached the word of the Lord. Barnabas wanted to take Mark with them but Paul did not because he had left them on their first journey. They had such a sharp disagreement that they parted company. Barnabas took Mark and sailed to Cyprus, but Paul chose Silas and left going through Syria and Cilicia strengthening the churches.

Barnabas is a man we don't read much about but he is an important New Testament figure. Had he not spoken up for Paul in front of the disciples Paul may never have had the influence he had on the New Testament. If Barnabas had not supported Mark we might not have the gospel of Mark.

I would like to draw two important traits from the lives of Barnabas and Paul. Barnabas was able to see the value to God of both Paul and Mark and even when he had to choose between the two he chose the right one who needed his help the most. We could call Barnabas an encourager. That is a great gift to have because even though Paul and Mark are the ones we read of in the New Testament Barnabas enabled both men to succeed. If you have that ability stay at it.

What we see from Paul's life is he was not afraid to admit he made a mistake when he judged Mark based on that first missionary journey. At some point Paul had reconciled with Mark because he mentions Mark in Colossians 4:10 and Philemon 24. Paul instructs Timothy to "bring Mark because he is helpful to me in my ministry." This is the highest compliment Paul could give Mark.

In the end I believe these three men were reconciled by one common bond. They all had a heart for Jesus Christ and understood the calling they had and the greater kingdom that awaited them. When we understand that we too can be an asset to God.

The third Kids in the Kitchen cooking class included, from left: Lily Feuerborn, Sophia Cole, Beau Dykes, Dylan Cole, Holli Miller, Ryan Fultz, Ashton Miller, Cameron Betts, Jayden Jarett, and Spencer Hermann. Class members made puddingwiche from frozen chocolate pudding and peanut butter. Flour and corn tortillas were two of the food items made by ten local youth who completed the second of three Kids in the Kitchen summer cooking camp sponsored by K-State Research & Extension Anderson County. Youth prepared two different types of baked macaroni and cheese, carrot apple salad, cucumber salad, zucchini refrigerator pickles, frozen puddingwiche, cherry coconut coffee cake, pasta salad, tuna waldorf salad, pumpkin leather, peach crisp, Farmer's Market Salsa, and fajita marinade for beef. Samantha Fletcher and Samantha Nickells were the teen leaders helping with the third cooking camp.

Library to have book discussion

The Garnett Public Library will hold a book discussion on Wednesday, July 25, 2012 at 7 p.m. "A Cup of Friendship" by Deborah Rodriguez was the title chosen. The discussion will be led by Jane Feuerborn.

From the author of the memoir Kabul Beauty School comes a fiction debut as compelling as real life: the story of a remarkable coffee shop in the heart of Afghanistan, and the men and women who meet there - thrown together by circumstance, bonded by secrets, and united in an extraordinary friendship.

Brimming with Deborah Rodriguez's remarkable gift for depicting the nuances of life in Kabul, and filled with vibrant characters that readers will truly care about, "A Cup of Friendship" is the best kind of fiction - full of heart yet smart and thought-provoking.

Books are available for checkout at the library. The discussions are typically held the fourth Wednesday of each month at 7 p.m. in the Archer Room at the library.

Notification is posted in case of cancellation.

'Open Doors' returns to Richmond Free Fair; displays welcome

The Richmond Free Fair will have its annual "Open Doors" exhibit at the United Methodist Church July 12, 13 and 14.

"Open Doors" is in its ninth year and allows anyone to display his or her hobby or collection, whatever it may be. Dolls, souvenirs, antiques, aprons, farm toys and many other kinds of memorabilia have been displayed over the years, and this year's event will feature some just as interesting, said Mary Hall who organizes the project.

The Richmond church likes to open its doors to fair-goers, giving them a place to rest, get a cool drink, and visit with friends while enjoying the 25 or so different non-competitive displays.

Expect to see Arlen Hall's quilts, a necktie collection, farm toys, electric trains, model airplanes, several "village sets" put together to form a town and farm, Yellowstone National Park photos, porcelain birds, pictures by Ottawa Art Guild members, "What's in Your Attic?" trunk by the Richmond Community Museum, and about that many more.

Anyone who would like to display his or her hobby or collection should call Mary Hall at (785) 835-6379 for information. There's always room for more displays, said Mary, who originated "Open Doors" nine years ago after lay leader Dennis Peters encouraged more use of the church building.

Some ol' time humor from Garnett

Even us older "diggin fellas" enjoy a little humor now and then.

I've been told that way back yonder in time a grocer from Garnett had a friend in Colony who was fond of dogs. The grocer, who also loved dogs, decided to give his friend a puppy for Christmas. This grocer told his hired helper to take the puppy to his friend. Well, the hired helper put the puppy in an old potato sack in the back of his pickup truck and started off for Colony.

It was a cold wintry day and when he got to Welda he decided to stop for a nip at the local tavern to ward off the cold.

Some boys saw the shivering pup in the sack and, they being in a devilish mood, exchanged the pup for a baby pig.

After the hired help had a drink or two, he got back in his truck to deliver the puppy.

When he got to the place in Colony where he was to go, he looked in the sack and saw the pig. He was puzzled, but knew he wasn't supposed to deliver a pig! So he turned around to go back to Garnett.

for local archeology information.

It was still very cold, so again he stopped at the tavern in Welda for a little nip.

The boys were still nearby, so they went to his truck and switched the pup back into the sack.

He finally got back to the grocery store. When he picked up the sack, he heard the puppy yelp. He looked in the sack and saw the little pup. He said, "Dag gone it! In Garnett you are a puppy and in Colony you are a pig. Just what the heck are you anyway?"

I'm also told that another man from Garnett who liked the bottle bummed a ride to Mont Ida on a wagon of hay. He was sitting on the load of hay with his bottle when they rode over a rail crossing. The wagon bumped hard on the tracks and a large portion of the hay slid off on the side of the road with the man still on top. He sat there for an hour or so waving at passersby and taking a drink from his bottle every so often.

A passing traveler called to him and asked him if he wanted a ride. He called back, "No thanks, I'm riding with this fellow."

Then there were the two fellers who had never seen a train before, so they went into Garnett to see one. When they got to the track, they saw there was nothing to see but the two long, shiny rails. So they laid down to wait. Pretty soon they heard an awful noise and they saw coming a big black smoke-belching thing. It was a fearful sight so they started running down the track. One of the fellows jumped off the track and started running into the woods. The fellow running along the track called out to his buddy, "Joe, if I can't outrun this thing on this pretty road, you ain't never gonna outrun it in them woods!"

Nuff said, about old times around Garnett!

FSA offers help for managing haying, grazing of CRP acres

Anderson County has not been approved for emergency haying or grazing of Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) acreage; however similar provisions allow CRP participants to request this through the managed haying and grazing option.

CRP participants must contact the local Farm Service Agency (FSA) county office to request managed haying or grazing on an individual contract basis prior to haying or grazing. Participants will work with FSA to determine if the CRP practice is eligible for managed haying or grazing. If determined eligible by FSA, participants will work with the Natural Resources Conservation Service to develop a forage management plan. If the CRP cover is destroyed, the practice must be re-established at their own expense to remain in compliance with the CRP contract.

Participants must also accept a 25 percent reduction in the annual rental payment for the acres actually hayed or grazed.

Managed grazing cannot start until July 16th and the authorized period ends September 30, 2012. Participants shall leave at least 25 percent of each field or contiguous CRP fields ungrazed for wildlife, or graze not more than 75 percent of the normal stocking rate. All livestock must be removed by the end of this grazing period.

Managed haying cannot start until July 16th and the authorized period ends August 15, 2012. Participants must leave at least 50 percent of each field or contiguous fields unhayed for wildlife. Hay must be removed from the field within 30 days from end of the haying period.

Managed haying and grazing is not allowed on the same acreage. Please contact the Anderson County FSA Office at 111 N. Maple, Garnett, KS or call 785-448-3128 for additional information concerning managed haying or grazing of CRP. All requests MUST be on file AND approved BEFORE the land is hayed or grazed.

1982: State strengthens DUI laws

July 9, 2002

The attorney General's office agreed with Anderson County Attorney Fred Campbell that no charges are warranted in the April 30 shooting death by a local reserve deputy.

The average Garnett city utility customer will see about $5 in savings from the recent decrease in gas rates. The city approved a $1.70 decrease in gas rates at the last city commission meeting. That means the price is now $6 per mcf, and will be reflected in customers' July 1 billing. The city "locks in" their gas purchases each November and April. Rates for gas used between April and October - when consumption is at a low - tend to be lower than rates for gas used for winter heating between November and April. The average residential customer will use about 2-3 mcf per month during the summer months.

Bloodhounds from Anderson County and their handlers were instrumental in the rescue of four Nevada, Mo., youth last week after the children went for a walk and became lost in the woods near their home. Bloodhound owners Bill Goodell, Welda, David Vaughan, Garnett, and Jim Vaughan, Kincaid, were notified early Thursday morning and traveled to Nevada. The children had been missing for about 21 hours and went through a rainstorm while out in the forest during the night. The dogs and the handlers spent about seven hours on the trail before finding the youths 10 miles from their home.

wide program to help educate children on the dangers and prevention of drug abuse, when the Garnett Police Department begins a local DARE program.

July 1, 1982

The County Commission voted to place a one percent countywide retail sales tax on the August 3 primary election ballot. The commissioners are faced with falling tax revenues because of the state of the economy and because of action taken by the legislature. The legislature voted to exempt farm machinery, approximately 10 percent of the tax valuations in Anderson County, from the tax rolls next year. The valuations received from railroad property has also dropped 60 percent.

New laws go into effect July 1, the most sweeping change with the statute which deals with the state's drunken driving law. Kansas, like many other states, has strengthened its drunken driving laws. Where plea bargaining was common and jail terms extremely uncommon, the law now provides for no plea bargaining and mandatory jail terms. Once the charge is filed, lawyers cannot negotiate it to a lesser charge such as reckless driving. A person convicted for the first time of drunken driving has a choice of two days in jail or up to 100 hours of community service work. In addition, the offender faces a fine of from $200 to $500.

The city council met in special session last evening to consider the electric light business and to appoint a police judge to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Judge T.M. Hamilton. The Garnett Electric Light Company is doing business under a 20-year franchise.

Yesterday was the 50th anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Conway Marshall. Being a bashful sort of man, Conway was opposed to a big "do" with a lot of folks bringing gifts, etc., so they would not celebrate, he said. But some of the neighbors thought differently, and a few designing women plotted with the daughters and planned a surprise for the evening. Women have been accused of not being able to keep a secret, but this time it was a man. J.H. Ford was so nearly tickled to death over the prospect of the evening's fun that he deliberately, and with intention aforethought, disclosed the plan to Conway early in the evening. There is a strong talk of ducking Ford in the frog pond, and it may yet be done. However, Conway helped out splendidly by appearing to be awfully surprised.
