Heat wave devastates corn crop

Weekend rain may help soybeans, but likely too late for corn

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Last year was a bad year for corn. This year may be worse.

Scattered showers Saturday evening brought some relief to scorching hot temperatures and continued drought conditions. However, most of the county's corn may be too far gone to find much benefit from the rain, Shannon Blocker, K-State Research & Extension agent for Anderson County, said.

Most of the county's corn was devastated by the combination of hot temperatures and lack of rain. Blocker estimates

90 to 95 percent of the county's corn crop will be completely lost or cut for silage. Of the 5 to 10 percent that will be harvested, farmers will find good prices. But exactly which farmers will benefit from a decent crop likely depends on when the crop was planted and if the area was one of a lucky few to get occasional spotty showers. If farmers planted early-maturing varieties of corn early in the season, it's possible that corn might be worth harvesting, she said.

"It's going to be a rough year," Blocker said.

The rain more likely benefited soybeans, she said. Although soybeans also have suffered from heat and drought, it's early enough in the season that rain could help considerably.

This year's winter wheat crop may turn out to be the best crop of the year, Blocker said. Unfortunately, wheat ranks as the county's third crop behind corn and soybeans. A decent wheat crop is better than nothing, Blocker said, but still disappointing to farmers who were counting on corn and soybeans.

Growing conditions were more promising early this spring. A good combination of warm temperatures and rain at the right time helped get crops off to a good start. But temperatures kept climbing to the upper 90s and 100s throughout much of June, with little measurable rain.

Rex Lizer of Lizer Crop Insurance was more optimistic

Three arrested in drug raid

One suspect's 2001 case led to significant changes in drug laws

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Three Garnett residents are facing criminal drug charges after a drug bust last week, including a man whose 2001 drug bust led to significant changes in Kansas' criminal laws.

Garnett Police and the Anderson County Sheriff's Department arrested three people while conducting a search warrant at 201 E. First Ave. Thursday, July 5. During the search, methamphetamine and drug paraphernalia consistent with distribution were found at the residence, police said in a report.

Those arrested included Linda Scheckel, 44; Branden Dulin, 30; and Brian McAdam, 51. Each was arrested on suspicion of aggravated endangerment of a child because chil-

GEC demo starts this week

Last-minute plan to save building appears to be dead

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Demolition of Garnett Elementary Center, formerly the Garnett High School, was expected to begin this week.

School board members approved spending about $1 million in costs to demolish the old school, except for the Ray Meyer Gymnasium and three attached classrooms. That part would be renovated, which accounts for most of the expenses.

A last-ditch effort to save the school was proposed by a Garnett couple and Kansas City developer, but no one discussed the proposal at Thursday's school board meeting. Instead, school board members voted to proceed with demolition starting Monday.

Crews likely will spend the first part of this week preparing the site for demolition. City utility crews removed power poles and wires Friday.

The total "hard costs" of the project were approved at $843,460. That includes demolition of the main campus and a newer addition on the northwest. Demolition costs will be about $108,070.

The remaining $735,390 is the cost of renovating the Ray Meyer Gym and three classrooms just north of the gym. Those classrooms last year were the library, Mrs. Brownrigg's classroom and Mrs. Graham's classroom. When the main campus is demolished, it will leave the area with those classrooms exposed. Contractors will have to build a wall to enclose that area.

Power crews keep up with demand

City asked to generate electricity during hot weather last week

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — It may take a couple of billing cycles before city residents start seeing the impact of heavy electricity use during the recent heat wave.

Electricity use increased the past two weeks as people relied on air conditioners and other cooling systems. Temperatures the last two weeks stayed in the 90s or low 100s until brief rain showers Saturday night brought some relief to the area. Temperatures were expected to be in the upper 80s or low 90s this week.

It's too early to know just how much electricity use increased, City Manager Joyce Martin said Friday. She won't know that until reports are generated at the end of this month. However, staff keep a close eye on customer usage and have seen increased usage compared to this time last year, Martin said.

Because of hot temperatures throughout the Midwest, electricity supplier KCP&L wasn't able to generate enough electricity to serve all its customers. That means cities like Garnett may be asked to generate power at its utility station. Garnett was asked to generate electricity two days last week, run-

Bailey gave birth to her son April 2, 2011, in her car between Iola and LeRoy. She left the baby unattended in her car for several hours until he died. Later, she agreed to turn the baby's body over to his paternal grandfather, who told her he would bury the body. Instead, the grandfather, Jack Geisler of Iola, turned the baby's body over to the Colony city marshal after meeting Bailey on a rural road near Colony.

Geisler said previously he was satisfied with the plea deal and sentence. Bailey initially was charged with first degree murder. Geisler said Bailey apparently was afraid to reveal her pregnancy to her parents dren under 18 were living at the residence; distributing drugs within 1000 feet of a school; and use or possession of drug paraphernalia with intent to cultivate a controlled substance.

McAdam's arrest on drug-related charges comes more than 11 years after another drug-related case that led to changes in Kansas laws. McAdam appealed a 2001 conviction, and the Kansas Supreme Court eventually lowered his sentence. His appeal has been cited in 429 appeal cases, Anderson County Attorney Fred Campbell said.

In that earlier case, McAdam and two other people were arrested after a sheriff's deputy interrupted them trying to steal anhydrous ammonia from the Kincaid Coop in April 2000. McAdam was charged with 10 drug-related crimes, and convicted by a jury in August 2001 of four of those 10 charges. He was sentenced to 173 months in prison for conspiracy to manufacture methamphetamine. Sentences for the other crimes were much shorter and were ordered to run at the same time, for a total of 173 months.

McAdam appealed the convictions and the sentence partly on the theory that two of the laws in effect at the time - manufacture of methamphetamine and compounding a stimulant - imposed different penalties for the same act. Campbell argued the case before the Kansas Court of Appeals and the Kansas Supreme Court. The Court of Appeals found one of the laws was more specific and upheld the sentence, but the Supreme Court later reversed the decision and reduced McAdam's sentence from 173 months to 30 months in prison. His sentence expired June 12, 2007.

Since then, McAdam's case has been used in other criminal appeal cases and led to changes in the state's drug laws. McAdam returned to prison last September on a conviction of making a threat against a law enforcement officer, and was paroled Feb. 10, 2012.

As for the most recent case, all three suspects had a first court appearance in Anderson County District Court Friday. Bond is set at $50,000 each. Scheckel requested a transfer to Osawatomie State Hospital, but no action was taken on her request.

about the recent rain's impact. It could help some corn, and it would certainly help soybeans, he said. He's seen many customers who expect to lose their corn crop, but said most farmers have enough insurance to cover the expense of putting corn in the ground. Many farmers expected it to be another dry year, so they obtained enough insurance to cover this kind of situation, Lizer said.

Most corn likely will be cut for silage or grazed, Blocker said. Farmers who plan to graze the fields should have the soil tested for nitrates, she said.

This year is the second year the county's corn crop was devastated by heat and drought. That's not unusual, Blocker said.

"It kind of goes in cycles," she said. "You have to take the good with the bad. If you're a farmer, you know that in a 10 year span you may have three good years, two average, two below average and so on. It all kind of works out in the end."

Lizer said the main difference between last year and this year is that everything happened earlier this year. Farmers planted crops earlier this year. Hot temperatures came on earlier this year, which damaged crops earlier as well. At this point last year, it still appeared the county would have a decent crop. That's not the case now, he said.

ning eight hours on two engines and generating 4,600 kilowatts. Typically, larger communities like Gardner, Baldwin City and Ottawa generate enough power so that Garnett's engines are not needed.

City officials reported there have not been any major problems with electrical or water service because of heat. There has been only one power outage, which was caused by a bad transformer and was not directly caused by heat, Martin said.

It's been hot before

County's history shows fickle weather patterns long before "climate change"

By today, if the weatherman is remotely correct, Anderson County and the surrounding region should have seen a little relief from the baking temperatures of the last week or so that has widened the cracks in our lawns and pastures and started to make mud holes out of our ponds.

And every time it gets hot or cold or it rains too little or too much, the 24/7 news cycle with a million competing television channels start churning out the "experts" rending their garments with the latest wailing over global warming or climate change or whatever the term-du-jour happens to be for blaming we petroleum burners for the coming global annihilation.

EDITORIAL

by Dane Hicks, PUBLISHER

But it's been hot and dry before. The History of Anderson County recounts some of the weather faced by the early settlers in Anderson County. In fact the weather was such an issue early on that an entire section of the 1875 volume recounts a synopsis of every season since the county was first settled in 1854:

(ital each year- also, quotation marks open each year's description but don't close- that's how they do it when continued quotes are used from the same text....)

1854: "Was the most extreme drouth (sic) not equaled in '60. Thee settlers say that it scarcely rained for (ital) eleven months. (end ital)

1855: "Was as a most luxuriant crop of everything in the line of vegetables that was planted in the ground, and a covered wagon could scarcely be seen above the waving grass. Grasshoppers in the fall.

1856: "It was dry, and a poor crop year.

1857: "It was a little better.

1858: "The winter extremely warm and wet.

1859: "An extreme good crop year.

1860: "Extremely dry throughout the winter, spring and summer, and was called the great famine year. Wheat, oats, corn, potatoes, and all vegetables failed; the grass was so short that scarcely any hay was saved. Vast quantities of provisions were sent into Anderson and other counties.

(Other accounts say not a drop of rain fell anywhere in Eastern Kansas from the 15th of May until the following January. The drought of 1860 was the one that actually resulted in some people pulling up stakes from Kansas and heading on west, or back home to the east.)

1861: "Good corn, wheat and oats crop. Everything did well.

1862: "Great cinch bug year- very drouthy, scarcely any hay grown but the following winter was extremely mild.

1863: "Wet enough and good crops, but there was a frost on the 27th of August that did considerable (crop) damage in the bottoms.

1864: "Dry season. Corn sold to government at $1.40 per bushel.

1865: "Good season.

1866: "Too wet to work corn in the summer, sickly season. Grasshoppers destroyed all the early sown fall wheat. Crops good.

1867: "Grasshoppers hatched but the big rains destroyed them, so no damage was done. Good crops.

1868: "Extreme drouth, chich bugs; little corn raised.

1869: "Wet, waters high, good season and crop year.

1870: "Dry, poor crops, Hessian fly eat the wheat in the fall.

1871: "Good crop year.

1872: "Big floods, good crop year, hard winter followed.

1873: "Bottoms good, uplands poor.

1874: "Famine year; drouth, chinch bugs and grasshoppers came August 23.

1875: "The whole of the bottom and part of the uplands were eaten up by the young grasshoppers. Wheat, oats, clover, timothy, corn and garden shrubbery were all eaten up till the middle of June. By the 20th they were gone. Good season and good corn; the following season found our farmers with over two-thirds of their provender on hand.

Hot, dry, cold, warm, wet, dry; bugs; then good crops. The roller coaster of Anderson County weather season to season became expected as a standard. A little hot weather, in these modern times, doesn't seem so threatening looking back.

ObamaCare: It's not over

BY RICH LOWRY

NATIONAL REVIEW

Plans haven't yet begun for the monument to John Roberts on the National Mall. These things take time. Until the groundbreaking, liberals must content themselves with bestowing national sainthood on Roberts and with declaring the health-care debate definitively over. It's time for everyone to accept a new $1 trillion entitlement profoundly affecting the direction of American health care and focus on issues of concern to every civic-minded American, such as: Did Mitt Romney outsource a call center as Massachusetts governor?

Lowry

ObamaCare has been declared over repeatedly and consistently. During the debate over its passage, it was always one more Obama speech from being settled once and for all. Afterward, Democrats predicted there was no way to repeal it, and its popularity was just around the corner. The court challenge was pooh-poohed as another instance of futile resistance. Now that the law has barely hung on thanks to the Roberts triple lutz, the state of the debate is said to be -- as ever -- over.

If so, supporters have lost it in the arena of public opinion. Upon its passage, the New York Times/CBS poll found that it had 32 percent support. Before the Supreme Court decision, the New York Times/CBS poll found its support essentially unchanged at 34 percent. A different poll -- from Reuters/Ipsos -- found a majority, 52 percent, still disapproved of it in the immediate wake of headlines about the Supreme Court's blessing.

The law has lacked popular legitimacy from the beginning, and is still struggling for it. Its major features are yet to be implemented. Republicans remain unified in their opposition and commitment to repeal. The cry that the debate is over is an attempt to short-circuit that very debate in a self-fulfilling prophecy.

The law is hardly the picture of stability. States have been slow to set up the complex insurance exchanges as stipulated by the law. If they don't, the federal government will be hard-pressed to set up the exchanges on its own. As amended by John Roberts, the law is more unstable. He gives states the option to refuse the law's Medicaid expansion. He weakens the individual mandate. Both of the Roberts changes mean the law may ultimately cover fewer people.

How about all the wonders of the law? Doesn't it reduce the deficit? Only under optimistic Congressional Budget Office projections. Doesn't it keep young adults up to the age of 26 on their parents' insurance plans? Most insurance companies will probably do this anyway. Its two central selling points, insuring millions more people and keeping people with pre-existing conditions from getting locked out of insurance, can be addressed with policies that are cheaper and less disruptive (a tax credit for purchase of insurance and high-risk pools, respectively).

When they set out to pass health-care reform, Democrats could have built public support for a sweeping law, or scaled back their ambitions. They did neither. Their insistence that the debate is over is a function of their continued failure to win genuine acceptance of the law. It's still up in the air, even after the great John Roberts has spoken.

Republicans-Only Club will make the big primary decisions

If you've been in Kansas long enough to have finished breakfast, you understand that the primary election is Aug. 7, and its results will to a large degree determine what the Kansas Legislature will be up to for the next two sessions.

And it is also the election where there is a probability of a fair amount of--how do we say this politely--political decision-making and cross-dressing.

That's where a registered voter who hasn't declared a party affiliation can just wander into the voting place, sign a little piece of paper, and declare him/herself a registered Democrat, and get a Democratic primary election ballot. Even a registered Republican can make the switch on Election Day and get a Democratic ballot. It's all done.

But if that unaffiliated voter on primary Election Day decides he/she would like to pare the crop of Republican candidates... it's too late.

If you're not registered as a Republican on July 17, when the election roll for the primary election closes, you're not getting a Republican primary election ballot. Or, you might get one, but an elections canvass board sometime toward the end of the week of Aug. 7 will likely toss out your ballot.

That July 17 date--well, it makes some sense if you are a Republican and don't want a bunch of Democrats changing their voter registration at the last minute to vote for the most moderate candidate to carry the other party's banner in the general election.

That Democrat-to-Republican cross-dressing tends to occur when Democrats decide to choose the most moderate Republican--a so-called Republican In Name Only (RINO)--for the general election ballot in districts where Republican registration is so heavy that it would take a restraining order to defeat the GOP candidate at the general election.

Why is the potential party switch by Democrats a big deal this election cycle? It's

by Martin Hawver KANSAS STATEHOUSE COLUMNIST

because in the Kansas House, this year's elections are over in 18 districts at the primary election. There are 17 GOP-primary only races and one Democrat-primary only race. The winner is your new House member. In the Kansas Senate, there are eight Republican primary-only races, where the winner of the primary comes to Topeka. (Sure, there could be minor party candidates, but chance of any of them winning the general election is tiny.)

The majority of those races are conservative Republicans vs. moderate Republicans, where the outcome--especially in the Senate--determines just how much of what Gov. Sam Brownback wants gets approved by the Legislature next year.

Does that make clear why Democrats might consider registering as a Republican before July 17? And does that make it clear why Republicans who back Brownback are a little fussy about who is meddling in their primary elections?

We thought so.

We won't know about that party-switching for a couple weeks, but it might be interesting to see how long those Democrat-turned-Republicans can hold their breath in the pool of the Grand Old Party...

Finding out just recently that the new school is only going to have one principal bothers me. There is going to be a lot of children out there at that school, the little ones up to the bigger ones, and there should be a vice principal out there. I don't think that the principal will be there all the time due to other duties and meetings and such, but there needs to be a principal in that building at all times, or a vice principal in that building at all times, otherwise all the responsibility will go to other people there that I don't believe are qualified. I have seen some people, some special ed teachers, that have tried to take over when I have been there before that are not very nice. There were some teachers there that are so rude that they should not be in charge of these discipline problems. If they do not have a vice principal at that school I don't think my grandchildren will be attending there this year.

Yeah, I wanna say something about this so called cable company which is nothing but BS. Come to my house today, worked on the cable line, TV is twice as bad, can't watch the channels, now I don't have internet, and they're like, well we'll come back next week. This is the most (deleted) cable company in the world and I can't believe this city lets them do business here. This is how they treat people, now I have no TV, no internet, all weekend. I don't see how these guys stay in business. This is just frustrating, it upsets me, and I recommend people to go to (deleted). Don't mess with this cable company. Even the sales persons are rude and liars, they give me a phone number to call that was to somebody elses business, they claim it was the Ottawa office, and when I called they said they can't give me that number.

Since when does a baseball game take precedence over a structure fire within the Garnett fire department. It took the fire department too long to respond to the 13th St. fire with only three firemen on the truck. There were three firemen who chose to play out an entire ballgame, then two hours later rushed red lights and sirens to the fire department to respond to the 13th St. structure fire. To top it off they left 75 foot ladder truck at the station, and a Greeley ladder truck was used instead. Two of those firemen are lieutenants without the required qualifications and experience. Our new fire chief and assistant chief have very little fire experience too. This is a result of the over management of the city with negative results. If the trucks were ADA accessible one firemen waiting at the station would have been able to take that truck. I pray that I don't need the fire department, especially during a baseball game. I encourage our city fathers to fix this problem.

Hey guys I've been following the notes in phone forum about the madam. Listen I've been there and not just once. I lost a lot and it wasn't worth it. She ain't worth it. It knows how to lie and manipulate men. As I have heard it has really manipulated Mr. Colony. Has he lost his wife and family yet?

At the June 12 City commission meeting it was brought up that the crossing on 59 highway should be closer to Park Road and the city manager's reply was that the state department of transportation has regulations that a sidewalk is only limited so close to Park Road. So I took it on myself to call KDOT and Topeka and found out they never did tell the city manager because the only criteria for a crosswalk is that there be a sidewalk and a curb cut on one side of the street where the crosswalk should be and go to a sidewalk and curb cut on the other side of the street. They also agree there should be a light at Redbud. Agree also that the safest place a crosswalk should be at Park Road where the traffic light is. When I asked about how long it took KDOT to get back to the city on this because for 2 1/2 years we've been reading the holdup is KDOT that also is not true. KDOT has approved three crossings on 59 highway at the city's request. There's something not right here on what we've been told over the years.

I just want to say the fireworks at the lake last night was really good, probably the best they ever had. I really really enjoyed it. But I want to know why there is no cop directing traffic afterward. I spent more time in line than I did watching fireworks.

MCCORMICK...

sisters of 13 year-old Mary Jane Robertson, who was killed in May 2010 when Connie McCormick crashed the car she was driving under the influence in southern Anderson County, say she's used her alleged health problems in the past as a ploy to escape penalties and jail sentencing for other crimes. One of those instances they said involved a boyfriend who died when she crashed a vehicle in 1999, also, her nieces said, when she was under the influence of drugs and alcohol.

McCormick's lawyer Forrest Lowry said in motions filed last month that her medical bills so far had cost Anderson County $7,000 and were likely to cost many times that amount by the time she serves the remainder of the one year sentence she started last March. Lowry's motions stated McCormick had been diagnosed with liver cancer, that her own insurance would pay for her treatments if she was out of jail, and that it would be in the best interests of the inmate and of Anderson County if her sentence was remanded to house arrest with electronic monitoring and she be released to seek her own treatment. She was to undergo more tests at the University of Kansas Medical Center July 2. County attorney Fred Campbell, also in motions filed previous to McCormick's July 18 hearing, requested the defense provide signed medical releases as to McCormick's claim of health issues, with signatures by the doctors or medical service providers who conducted the tests or exams, in order that the state can evaluate the strength and credibility of her claims.

Campbell's motion said that records released so far included duplicates which made it appear her condition had been treated and evaluated more often than it actually had. He also said the existing records were incomplete and in places contained only references to treatments, providers and evaluations she claimed had been conducted without actual signed letters by the doctors attesting to the results of those evaluations and treatments.

Anderson County officials have been working behind the scenes to get McCormick released due to the costs of her treatments, an effort Robertson's sisters have said negates justice in favor of the county's budget.

Anderson County District Court Judge Eric Godderz, who revised Campbell's original charges against McCormick upon which she was later sentenced, said at the previous hearing it was "unfortunate" that while McCormick deserved to serve out her sentence, that "sometimes there's a cost/benefit analysis to things."

The July 18 hearing begins at 9 a.m. in district court.

SCHOOL...

It's not yet known what use the district will have for those classrooms. Some ideas have included using the rooms for the district's alternative school or moving district offices to the facility, Superintendent Don Blome said.

In addition to the actual costs of demolishing the building and renovating the gym and classrooms, the district also will have to pay for "soft costs" like architectural fees and surveys, as well as establishing a contingency fund. Although those fees may vary, it is estimated they will add another $135,000 or so to the cost of the project. There also could be more expenses as contractors get into the project. For example, the district would like to reuse existing heating systems for the remaining three classrooms. But those units are about 20 years old - at the end of their lifespan - and contractors may discover problems with the units when they are moved to accommodate the demolition and renovation. If so, it will cost another $29,000 for new rooftop units for those classrooms.

The maximum cost of the project including those possible expenses is about $1,011,160, or just over $1 million.

Nabholz Construction, which built the new Garnett Elementary Center to replace GEC and Irving Primary Center, also will serve as contractor for the project.

A last-minute plan to save GEC was proposed by Mike and Monica Hill, who have purchased older buildings in downtown Garnett. The Hills contacted Kansas City developer Steve Foutch, who bought the old Ottawa High School and Middle School and turned it into apartments for low-income senior citizens. Foutch sent Hill an email with a proposal to buy both GEC and IPC for $1, and he would take responsibility for renovating the buildings or would sell or demolish them if he could not find a good use for them. However, the plan was not officially presented to the board, and the board never considered it. School board members who were aware of Foutch's offer said they believed it was unlikely it would be approved. Hill attended Thursday's school board meeting but did not discuss the issue with board members. She said Monday it appeared board members had made up their minds to demolish the school, and the quest to save GEC seemed to be over.

IPC remains for sale at an asking price of $40,000.

Richmond Free Fair

July 12-14

'Open Doors' is popular event at Richmond Fair

BY PAT VINING Special to THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

This rural Richmond man wears many different hats - that of retired Co-op truck driver and electrician, and now of gardener, woodshop craftsman, cook, baker, quilter..... yes, QUILTER!

Arlen Hall has completed his third queen-size quilt and will take it to "Open Doors" at the United Methodist Church from 4-8 p.m. during the Richmond Free Fair, July 12, 13 and 14.

This is the ninth year for "Open Doors," a fun time for anyone to display his or her hobby or collection, whatever it may be. Dolls, souvenirs, antiques, aprons, farm toys and many other kinds of memorabilia have been displayed over the years, and this year's event will feature some just as interesting, said Mary Hall who organizes the project.

The Richmond church likes to open its doors to fair-goers, giving them a place to rest, get a cool drink, and visit with friends while enjoying the 25 or so different non-competitive displays.

Among these will be Arlen's latest quilt which features 42 bird houses and 47 hand-gathered yo-yos, made into a pattern he designed, all in complimentary and attractive colors.

It's only logical that Arlen designed a Bird House quilt since he's made at least 100 bird houses of various shapes, sizes and designs, many personalized to fit a person's line of work or personality.

Many men do wood crafts, and are cooks and bakers with the same skills Arlen has, but not many have their own sewing machine and make a quilt each winter as a way to keep busy. One might ask how he developed such talents and became interested in quilting.

Arlen quickly credits his mother with instilling these qualities in him and his wife for encouraging him. Widowed when Arlen was six years old, his mother spent much time with her children, especially Arlen and a younger sister, and taught them the basics of housekeeping, sewing and cooking. How proud she would be today to see his cartons of frozen corn, apple pies, grilled salmon and beautiful quilts!

A few years ago, Arlen began to talk about making a quilt, which was an ambitious first-year project for anyone. Mary encouraged his goal and made sure he received his own sewing machine (a Brother brand) for Christmas. A talented artist, Mary sews but doesn't quilt, so the two of them learned together and figured out a lot of things that one simply has to do to learn. Arlen said all the cutting is the most difficult part, but he really enjoys the sewing part.

The first year he chose a Shoo-Fly pattern from a book, selected earth-tone colors and details himself, and did all the piecing and sewing. He has the tops quilted by Brenda Weien in Ottawa.

The next year he made the more difficult Bethlehem Star pattern and pieced it in yellow and shades of blue. The project was interrupted by major heart surgery and rehabilitation, but he returned to quilting when he was able and finished in time for "Open Doors."

With the third quilt now completed, there is one for each of their daughters -- Carla Springer, Sheila Kratzberg and Martha Hall -- and it's a matter of who will eventually receive which quilt.

Look for Arlen's quilts at "Open Doors," but there will also be lots of other displays, including a necktie collection, farm toys, electric trains, model airplanes, several 'village sets' put together to form a town and farm, Yellowstone National Park photos, porcelain birds, pictures by Ottawa Art Guild members, "What in Your Attic?" trunk by the Richmond Community Museum, and about that many more.

Anyone who would like to display his or her hobby or collection should call Mary Hall at (785) 835-6379 for information. There's always room for more displays, said Mary, who originated "Open Doors" nine years ago after lay leader Dennis Peters encouraged more use of the church building in a sermon he gave.

The cool and comfortable Fellowship Hall (with no steps) has become a favorite of Richmond fair-goers from 4-8 each evening of the fair. So, add "Open Doors" at the United Methodist Church to your Richmond Free Fair schedule. A celebration in October will mark the 50th year of this building, though the Methodist Church has been in the community since the 1870s.

As for Arlen, he's thinking about patterns for those four grandchildren and five great-grandchildren, and planning to make quilted throws or similar for them. Can't wait to see what he brings to "Open Doors" next year!

Arlen Hall displays his three quilts.

Good Luck to all fair participants!

Historical society collects GEC items for museum

The Anderson County Historical Society met at the Willow Branch School on June 7, 2012, hosted by Rick and Diane Doran and Doug and Sue Archer with 36 members and guests present. Shirley Roeckers, Vice President, welcomed Cody Gettler as one of our younger guests and she welcomed Vivian Fink who has moved back to Garnett.

Dorothy Lickteig, President, called the meeting to order. Kristie Kinney, Secretary, read the minutes from the meeting held May 3, 2012 at the museum. The minutes were approved as read. Terry Solander, Treasurer, provided the Treasurer's report and said the budget will be presented to the County Commissioners on Monday, June 11, 2012 at 10:00 a.m. Dorothy Lickteig provided the Presidents report.

The new full length metal roof, with an overhang, on the museum has been completed. Bids are being accepted through June 30, 2012, for 38 sheets of white tin, 16-18-foot long, from the roof. Paul Phares was thanked for all his work on the walls and clean up of the construction material.

The American Legion requested the names of all the soldiers that have ever served from Anderson County for the memorial on the courthouse lawn. Anyone with names should contact Ken Miller at KDS Auto Detailing.

Dorothy Lickteig, Paul Phares, Ivan Mader, Rick Doran, Shirley Roeckers, Glen Hastert and Ruth Lee Hastert removed several items from the old high school building to the museum. Items removed include: three (3) doors, consisting of the old gym door, principal's office door, and superintendent's office door; a section of five (5) old wooden auditorium seats from the balcony; five (5) trophy cases; veterans plaques from the flag pole bases, which were given to the American Legion for the downtown memorial; 1963 plaque for the new wing, FFA trophies from the 1970's and 1980's; an old metal frame locking door bars; and two (2) red lockers. An old picture of the school, before Oak Street was paved, was requested and it is unknown whether the museum will obtain that picture at this time. Glen and Ruth Lee Hastert also relocated yellow lilies from the school to the Harris House.

Ruth Lee Hastert reported that Preston Peine will be recording oral histories at the high school open house on June 9, 2012, as people are touring the school. Mr. Peine wants to record oral histories of Anderson County events and families to create a library where people could access the recordings. Robert Matthews has volunteered to do the recordings and Mr. Peine will do the interviewing. Mr. Peine plans to have this project up and running by the end of the summer.

The Advancers club toured the museum and will tour the Harris House at a later date. The 50-year class reunion members toured the museum with Shirley Roeckers and the Harris House with Ruth Lee Hastert and Zella Teter. The Greeley Elementary School toured the Gerth Cabin. Dorothy Lickteig has completed the Colony Volume 1 through 1907 and the cost to purchase will be $69.00. Paul Phares found a case of new notebooks at the Thrift Store for the museum. Gary Cline donated a display case for the Henderson war memorabilia. George Helms donated ice tongs from Page's Garnett Ice Storage; a Kellogg oil can from the Kellogg Cereal Company; and a box that says Varoom for a bicycle from the 1950's that is similar to one he had when he was a kid. The Shell Station donated another "open" flag which will be used at the Harris House.

Wilma Powls reported that she has completed her book titled "That's the Way It Was, By Golly", on the recordings of Everett "Ed" Fink. She thanked Kristie Kinney for the picture of Ed for the cover of the book which was taken when he was about 20-years old. There is a CD that accompanies the book. She reported that her husband, Bill Powls, recorded some of Ed's stories. Ed started telling his story, using no notes, from the Louisiana Purchase and went to the present day at the time of the recording. The book is a transcription of Ed's words in those recordings. The CD is extra material on things that Ed knew about Pretty Boy Floyd and how he became involved in crime in the late 1929's and 1930's.

Henry Roeckers reported on his archeology dig at Henry and Mary Morgan's farm at Greeley, which was the homestead of Samuel and Mary Mack in 1857-1858. They had one child, Fannie Mack that was the first white child born in that township. Samuel Mack had belonged to the John Brown, Jr. Pottawatomie rifle guard, and he was one of the first seven listed in the Anderson County History book. Several artifacts were found at this site, including several Civil War artifacts. In addition, there was a rock-lined well which was 36-inches across from outside rock on each side, so the inside was approximately 30-inches diameter. About 30-yards from the first well, he found another rock-lined well that was 28-inches across. He thinks the house was used as a trading post, because Valley City was close to this cabin site, and he found at least 30 pieces of bowls and stemware from pipes that were not alike. He also found three or four 5-gallon buckets of crockery in various sizes and shapes. This was a possible stop during the Civil War, because those artifacts were found in a direct path from the creek to the south to the well, and then in an angle toward the cabin. Dorothy Lickteig reported that the Pottawattamie guards practiced in a field to the east and James Townley's cabin was in that area. He found very few square nails, so it was probably a log structure pegged together. There was some very thick window pane glass. He also found some burnt wood and some logs still intact, so he felt this cabin had burnt down. It brings to question whether the cabin burnt down by accident or by Quantrill when they came back from Lawrence and they sacked several farm homes on their way back. The earliest artifact found was dated 1850, which was a large cent. The latest artifact found was about 1867 or 1868. Samuel Mack took sick in 1858 and he moved back east somewhere and he died shortly after he returned. Coins found were from 1863 through 1868. Many of the artifacts were damaged from the fire. Some of the pieces have been reassembled. He speculated that some of the broken dishware was broken from heat or something similar, since pieces were all found in one place.

Henry Roeckers also reported that he spent two days at Idylewild and found a gold ladies hat pin with a knob on the top full of garnets. Under the tower, he only found three pennies dated 1910, 1920 and 1930.

The next meeting will be at the Colony Diner. The date will be posted later in the newspaper.

First Baptist Church plans summer kids' event July 15-19

A summer kids' event called Sky will be hosted at Garnett First Baptist Church in the evenings from Sunday, July 15 to Thursday, July 19.

At Sky, faith and imagination soar as kids discover that everything is possible with God. Kids participate in memorable Bible-learning activities, sing catchy songs, play teamwork-building games, make and dig into yummy treats, experience electrifying Bible adventures, collect Bible Memory Buddies to remind them to trust God, and test out Sciency-Fun Gizmos they'll take home and play with all summer long. Plus, kids will learn to look for evidence of God all around them through something called God Sightings. All children are invited and encouraged to join in daily for this special time.

Kids at Sky will join an international mission, Operation Christmas Child, sending shoeboxes packed with toys, clothing, personal hygiene items to children in underprivileged areas all over the world. The shoeboxes will be packed and covered with Christmas wrapping ready to be shipped.

Sky is for kids from age 3 through having completed the 6th grade and will run from 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. each day. For more information, call the church 785-448-5749.

Have you ever shot an anvil?

If you've never heard of the sport called anvil shooting, don't feel bad. To tell you the truth, until a short time ago, I had no idea anvil shoots even existed. To me the thought of lighting as much as two pounds of gunpowder under a 100 pound anvil screams of safety hazard, especially when onlookers watched from a distance, trying to catch a glimpse of something different and new to them. In actuality, anvil shooting may be as ancient as the cannon.

Shooting anvils is a practice that can be traced back in this country to Colonial times. Generally, it was done on occasions of celebration though there are cases where it was used as a signal. The custom pretty much died out by the 1920s, but is undergoing somewhat of a renaissance. Some people say that anvil shooting originated during the time of American settlers. Apparently the settlers who lived up in the mountains away from any sign of civilization would hear rumors of an oncoming Indian attack. The settlers would light some gunpowder under an anvil and try to scare the Indians away by making them think that the loud bang from the anvil was a warning from the gods.

Others say of anvil shooting that it originated during the Civil War, when the North would invade small Southern towns. They would destroy everything within the town that was of some use to the villagers and since blacksmiths were very vital to the towns, the Union Soldiers would take the blacksmiths' anvils. They would then saw off the horns of the anvils, rendering them useless.

After awhile the Union soldiers got tired of putting forth so much effort into the sawing off of the horns so they decided to blow up the anvils. This proved to be unsuccessful. Instead of the anvils breaking in half, they shot straight up into the air with minimal damage. Maybe a scratch or two.

Some have said this is reviving an old tradition from back in the gold rush days. Miners would test their powder by shooting anvils. It evolved into something of a competition. Maybe that was true or perhaps the miners just needed to burn off some excess testosterone.

"The fuse is lit. Fire in the hole!"

I'll bet watching an anvil casually spinning end over end above a big cloud of white smoke is sure something. Another thing would be the thrill of the tremendous "blast."

Anyone who catches the flying anvil can keep it. Do we have any takers?

ECKAN takes school supply applications

The Anderson County ECKAN Community Center began accepting applications for its annual program that provides school supplies to children in need on July 2.

The agency provides school supplies to Anderson County public school children whose household incomes fall at or below 185 percent of federal poverty guidelines. A family of two earning $27,990.50 would qualify, as would a family of three earning $35,316.50 and a family of four earning $42,642.50.

Applications will be accepted through July 27 at the ECKAN center's office, 132 East 5th, Garnett.

The program is also accepting donations of school supplies or money to allow the organization to purchase items as needed. Financial contributions can be mailed to ECKAN of Anderson County, 132 East 5th, Garnett, KS 66032, and should clearly be marked for the school supplies program.

1982: Wet weather hurts wheat

July 16, 2002

A Kansas City engineering firm has agreed to examine a leak discovered last week at the Lake Garnett dam. City Manager Rick Doran discovered what he suspected to be a leak in the dam while walking along the Prairie Spirit Trail last week. Doran heard rushing water coming from the north side of the dam under a road and the nearby trail.

Anderson County Attorney Fred Campbell was asked for an accident reconstruction from the Kansas Highway Patrol as part of an investigation into a May 19 traffic accident which killed two Central Heights High School teenagers. Campbell told county commissioners the reconstruction had been requested in order to determine if evidence existed which could elevate the incident from the realm of a civil law matter to that of a criminal matter. Campbell has been criticized in recent week for failing to prosecute the alleged offenses, but Campbell told commissioners the real determination came down to where there was evidence to support the charges.

Charges in connection with break-ins at businesses in Colony and Greeley are pending against two suspects now in custody of the Anderson County Sheriff's Department. The suspects may also be linked to the burglary of the Handlebar Restaurant and Bar in Garnett on Sunday night. hours Wednesday. The K-9 dog tracking unit was called in and search began. A local citizen spotted two individuals walking near the railroad tracks in Greeley and alerted authorities. The suspects were apprehended a short time later.

Unsure of the city's financial strength for the coming year because of dropping interest income on its invested cash, city officials said a proposed repaving project which would resurface the road around Lake Garnett would most likely have to wait until years to come.

July 8, 1982

Now that the wet weather of the past few weeks has finally given way to a summer of high humidity and high temperatures, area farmers have been able to start their wheat harvest. But that wet weather that has held them out of the fields for so long has given them a number of headaches. Continuous rain has kept the farmers from planting as well as harvesting. The rain also drowned the wheat crop. The rains also hurt the corn crop as well. This also translates into bad news for the farmers.

July 18, 1912

The electric light committee of the city council held a meeting last night. The matter was discussed informally, and much information about electric light business secured. The committee decided to request a schedule of what property the McAfee Manufacturing company, owners of the electric light plant, consider belonging to the electric light plant and to name a price at which Mr. McAfee would be willing to sell it to the city.

How shall we ignore so great a salvation?

The book of Revelation was written by the Apostle John while he was exiled on the isle of Patmos for his religious beliefs. We read what John was witness to in Rev. 21:1-4. I (John) saw a new heaven and a new earth for the first heaven and the first earth had passed away and there was no longer any sea. I saw the Holy City, the new Jerusalem coming down out of heaven from God, prepared as a bride beautifully dressed for her husband. And I heard a loud voice from the throne saying, "Now the dwelling of God is with men, and he will live with them and be their God. He will wipe every tear from their eyes. There will be no more death or mourning or crying or pain, for the old order of things has passed away."

Isn't it interesting that the first heaven and first earth shall pass away. In the third chapter of Genesis we read of the fall of man into sin in the Garden of Eden. At that time God cursed the earth and its inhabitants. Up to the time of the fall there was no death but when man sinned the result was just as God had warned, death. The LORD God commanded the man, "You are free to eat from any tree in the garden; but you must not eat from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, for when you eat of it you will surely die." (Genesis 2:16-17)

In Revelation 21:5 God says, "I am making everything new." Some have thought that the new universe will be an entirely new world but more likely is the transfiguration of the old world, thereby destroying the adversity and disgrace brought on by sin.

Our new bodies will be transfigured from the old as well. A body that will never suffer pain or sickness or death. The result of this transfiguration or change is redemption which follows the pattern of God through the Bible and not just destruction of the old.

In Revelation 22:3 we read, "No longer will there be any curse." In order to lift this curse God must make every thing new. We read of a river of the water of life that flows from the throne of God and of the Lamb down the center of the great street of the city for the healing of the nations.

In Rev. 22:17 Jesus issues an invitation, "Whoever is thirsty let him come; and whoever wishes, let him take the free gift of the water of life." How can anyone deny this invitation knowing full well some day they will die and see God face to face.
