City: Watch water use

Swimming pools, lawns, gardens
among voluntary restrictions
during drought emergency

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — If you try to keep cool in your pool at home or want to keep that last tomato plant alive, you might want to stop and think about the water it takes to do so.

Garnett city officials are asking people to take a few water conservation steps in the face of the ongoing drought. The city hasn't yet issued mandatory conservation requirements or rationing; rather, officials say they're just being careful and are hopeful people will cut back on usage before water supplies get to a critical point. People also should watch electricity usage; one of KCP&L's transfer stations at Centerville caught on fire recently, resulting in power outages Sunday, July 22, and electricity for the local area had to be rerouted from Ottawa.

Some of the conservation efforts can include:

- Not filling swimming pools.
- Not watering lawns and gardens, or at least waiting until evening hours to do so.

ACH still wants voters to decide facilities question

ACH official: County needs to find best financing option

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Anderson County Hospital officials and other supporters want voters to decide whether to build a new facility that could top $26 million. Exactly how that facility will be paid for, however, remains unknown.

ACH officials last week asked county commissioners to place a question on the November ballot for a bond issue to build a new hospital. Their plan would raze the 1949-era hospital and build a new hospital and long term care unit on the site at a cost of about $26.5 million.

However, the county's bond counsel, Dottie Riley, later told commissioners that rules regarding debt limits mean counties cannot encumber themselves more than 3 percent of their assessed property values in general obligation bonds, which are bonds repaid by property taxes. Anderson County's assessed valuation this year

Vet: Profiling dogs keeps public safe

Pit bulls, rottweilers not the only aggressive breeds, Gardner says

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Veterinarian Fred Gardner believes in profiling dog breeds. If it were up to him, pit bull type breeds and rottweilers wouldn't be the only ones targeted in a city ordinance that restricts ownership. He'd also add wolf hybrids and akitas to the list.

"Those four breeds alone account for 90 percent of maimings and deaths," he said, citing a 1998 Centers for Disease Control study that examined fatal dog attacks over 20 years.

Gardner spoke to city commissioners Tuesday, July 24, about ongoing efforts to revamp the city's aggressive dog ordinance. Currently, the city allows people to own dogs classified as "pit bulls" and rottweilers providing several measures are taken, such as maintaining insurance that covers animal attacks, having a five-sided dog pen, and keeping the animal on a leash outside the home. Animal advocates recently approached the city, asking to remove the breed-specific to determine which breeds are more likely to bite or kill," the CDC website said.

Gardner pointed out that some owners keep dogs simply for ego or intimidation purposes, and those owners are more likely to seek a pit bull-type breed or some other type of animal that is known to be aggressive.

"I'm not sure that any ordinance can eliminate people who keep dogs for intimidation purposes, but we need to have ordinances in place that limit the amount of vicious dogs," Gardner said. "Public safety is very important."

An animal's level of aggression and its ability to do harm also are good reasons to profile breeds, he said. He gave an analogy of being stuck in a room with the world's most aggressive chihuahua.

"I guarantee I can get out of here alive. Put a rottweiler or pit bull or akita with the same level of aggression, and I'm not going to get out of here without serious harm," he said.

Gardner said he wasn't speaking for or against any particular legislation, but said if the city removes breed-specific restrictions, he hopes they come up with a good policy to identify aggressive dogs.

City attorney Terry Solander was not present at Tuesday's meeting. He is drafting a new ordinance and said he has been researching how other cities define aggression, and what penalties can be implemented for having an aggressive dog.

language. They argued targeting specific breeds is outdated because research has shown it is difficult to identify a breed short of a DNA profile. Several types of dogs have specific characteristics that are lumped into "pit bull" breeds, such as the American Staffordshire Terrier and American Pit Bull Terrier.

But pit bull-type dogs account for more than 31 percent of serious or fatal dog attacks, according to the CDC study and cited by Gardner. Rottweilers account for the second highest number of serious or fatal attacks, followed by wolf hybrids and akitas. German shepherds also have a high number of attacks, similar to akitas, but a higher population of German shepherds means that number is spread out among a larger pool of animals so the percentage of animals that are likely to attack are less than akitas, Gardner said.

However, the CDC's website says the study cited by Gardner shouldn't be used for policy making decisions because it accounts for a very small number of incidents (16 fatalities over 20 years and about 0.0002 percent of the total number of people bitten). The study was taken from media reports, and breed identification was made only if it was reported in the story.

"There is currently no accurate way to identify the number of dogs of a particular breed, and consequently no measure

Separate charges involved child endangerment regarding Brock Moody's son, Brock (B.J.) Moody Jr., who at the time was under age 18. As part of his conditions of being released on bond, Brock Moody is prohibited from having any contact with his son, who is now 21, because B.J. Moody is a victim in the case.

Both Brock and Phil Moody were released from jail Tuesday, July 24. Phil Moody was released on $75,000 bond; Brock Moody sought a reduction in his bond and was released on $25,000 cash assurety.

The arrests and subsequent charges culminates more than a decade of public suspicion and rumor about the goings on at the Jujitsu school and the activities of its owner. Brock Moody was a former deputy for the Allen County Sheriff's Department until his law enforcement certification was revoked for falsifying his resume. A family dispute late last year ended in the estrangement of the brothers, and allegations by Brock Moody, and allegations by Brock Moody to his brother's employer, USD 479, regarding school computer equipment and inappropriate personal information on school-owned computer drives. Phil Moody then left his job as a math teacher in USD 479 in February of this year.

Attorneys for both men asked for more time to review the case before determining if it should proceed to a preliminary hearing. The next court hearing will be Aug. 28, with Phil Moody appearing at 9 a.m. and Brock Moody at 1 p.m.

Weather statistics:
It's hot and dry

GARNETT - Hot temperatures and little rain seems to be the norm this summer.

Less than half an inch of rain has fallen on the local area in July, keeping the area more than 6 inches of rain below normal for this time of year.

Since the beginning of the year, only 17.44 inches of rain has been recorded at Garnett Municipal Airport. In a typical year, 23.54 inches would have fallen by the end of July. Anderson County regularly gets an average of around 40 inches of precipitation a year, with June typically the wettest month and September the driest.

Prospects for a normal summer seemed better in the spring, when March brought in nearly 6 inches. April and May each brought in a respectable amount of rainfall, 3.95 and 3.14 inches respectively.

Things changed in June, however. That month, only 1.60 inches of rain fell, compared to a month that typically brings in 5.38 inches of rain. July was even drier, with just 0.36 inches of rain in a month that typically brings 3.97 inches.

Hot temperatures also added to the drought, with 12 days in July bringing temperatures over 100 degrees. The hottest day of the year so far was this past Sunday, July 29, at 106.

Rain and temperature amounts were recorded at the Garnett Airport. Manager Gary Ecclefield said temperatures at the airport may be lower than temperatures recorded in other parts of the city, but that is the city's official recording site.

WATER...

• Waiting until evening hours to use large appliances like clothes dryers.

The drought has left Garnett and Anderson County more than 6 inches of rain below normal. Crops are essentially a lost cause, local agriculture experts have said. Most lawns and larger gardens are dried to a crisp.

City water supplies have continued to provide as much water as needed, city manager Joyce Martin said. Water plant workers keep both of the city's water towers full in case of a fire or other emergency situation that would require a large supply of water. The water plant is treating near the maximum amount of 600,000 to 800,000 gallons of water per day, and Cedar Valley Reservoir, at 360 acres, is holding up to the drought, although it's about 3 feet lower than average. City crews about a week ago released water from the reservoir to keep a good supply of water flowing down Cedar Creek, where the city taps into the gravity-fed stream. It's not unusual for crews to have to do that, Martin said.

But even though the drought's impact on city water supplies isn't critical yet, it's still taking a toll. The city has been providing water for cattle ranchers; officials say they may have to stop doing that. Officials already have asked USD 365 to watch the amount of water it's using on the football field and at the new Garnett Elementary School; an irrigation system has been using a lot of water to establish sod at the new school.

The East Kansas Agri-Energy ethanol plant uses the most water of any city customer, and Martin said she may have to talk to plant officials about water conservation. Last month, the plant used 3.9 million gallons of potable water. However, the plant also uses other water sources like 2.3 million gallons from Lake Garnett last month and 5.7 million gallons of water returned to the city's treatment plant. The city primarily is concerned with usage of the potable water.

City staff keep a close eye on water usage and contact residents if usage is higher than normal. Sometimes the culprit will be a hose accidentally left on overnight, Martin said. For the most part, however, residential users seem to be using about the same amount of water they did at this time last year, she said.

was $71 million. According to the rules, the county couldn't approve a project more than $2 million. The hospital's proposal would be about 36 percent of the assessed valuation, well over the 3 percent rule.

ACH Director Denny Hachenberg said the hospital stands by its request, and it's now up to county commissioners to determine the best way to fund the project.

"That's up to the county commission on how they want to go about financing a new hospital," Hachenberg said. "We're just asking them to put it on the ballot to let the people vote on a new hospital."

There are several ways the county could finance the project. For example, the county could ask voters to approve a sales tax to pay for the project. It could ask the project to be paid for by revenue bonds, in which hospital revenue would pay for the project. The Public Building Commission, which brought construction of the Anderson County Jail, could force the county to pay for the project with general obligation bonds because PBCs are legally exempt from the 3 percent restriction.

"We're very optimistic," Hachenberg said. "There are different financing mechanisms. They have to choose what they think is best."

County commissioners were scheduled to meet Aug. 13 with the company that handles its bonds, and could learn more about its financing options at that time. The financing method would need to be determined before a question about building a new hospital could be placed on the ballot, and the deadline to place a question on the ballot is mid-September.

Hachenberg said project leaders are working to determine more specific cost estimates. The $26.5 million estimate was conservative, based on an inflated 5.5 bond interest rates - which is higher than current market rates on those bonds.

The hospital is owned by the county but is leased and managed by St. Luke's Health System. If a new facility was built, St. Luke's would increase its annual lease payments from $440,000 to $1.024 million. St. Luke's also would provide annual maintenance and capital improvements up to $500,000, depending on the budget year and with the stipulation that the county also provide $500,000.

Hospital officials say the new facility is needed because of serious aging infrastructure problems and limited space, according to a report presented to the hospital's Board of Trustees earlier this month. According to the report, the plumbing, electrical, heating and air conditioning systems do not meet code, and there is potential for multiple system failures. A major infrastructure problem could close the hospital for weeks or months; the cost to fix or replace those issues is estimated at $15 million over 10 years, and some upgrades or repairs may not be possible because of code requirements. Hospital officials say the impact on taxpayers to maintain the facility over that 10-year period is more than the cost of replacing it when measured over the same term.

The new facility would fix those core problems and add considerable space.

It would increase ACH's surgical capacity to two suites and expand the specialty clinics to 12 exam rooms. It would construct patient rooms to do away with existing privacy problems, develop a 10-bed inpatient unit with possible expansion to 25 beds based on increased skilled care admissions, among other improvements.

ACH project needs thought

Aggressive move for $20+ million new hospital should get objective analysis

Sticker shock from a recent proposal by Anderson County Hospital officials to build a new $26 million hospital and long term care facility is cavitating through the county with the expected polarization that only a tax-funded project in Anderson County can have.

But the issue of constructing a new hospital in Anderson County labors far beyond the initial vibrations pro or con at the outset of the discussion and deep into the fabric of our community, its employment and economy, its provision of critical services and the undeniable fact that our population is getting older and will consume more health care in future decades.

Some people in Anderson County will never support Anderson County Hospital or patronize doctors who practice there -- that is until their child or other loved one is pulled injured from a traffic or farm accident or they're stricken by a critical heart attack or stroke. When moments count toward saving the life of your child or mother or father or sibling, Anderson County Hospital is a good investment.

The rest of the time and to the extent that we must from time to time put some dollar value on what we want local health care to be, well, the subject's up for debate.

Can ACH continue to function in some kind of emergency role without an investment of $26 million? Most assuredly. Will Anderson County have adequately staked its claim for the future of health care in our communities with what amounts to a Mobile Army Surgical Hospital (MASH) unit instead of a more full-service facility? Not likely.

The invisible but ever-present fact is this: Anderson County's population, like the rest of the nation, is getting older by the minute. Baby boomers, the largest bubble of births in the nation's history between 1945-1964, are growing into old age and into the life phase when they will need the most health care. Anderson County's average age has been higher than the national average for years anyway, so the slide will happen faster here. To be a strong community, we have to be able to offer core services, and few services will be more core in the coming decades than local health care.

There are many unknowns. Can the price of the project be pared down and still be effective? What are Anderson County's debt service options? Can hospital revenues play a role in debt service? What can ACH do to maximize its market share of local health care customers to keep them from going to other providers? If the community doesn't support a new facility, will St. Luke's Health System continue to lease and operate the facility, and can hospital management continue operation of ACH in St. Luke's absence? These and more questions have to be posed and contemplated fully as the discussion about a new hospital develops.

The proposal highlights what has been the economic bane of Anderson County ever since it fell behind neighboring counties in retention and development of industry beginning in the 1950s. Without substantial industrial and commercial infrastructure like the manufacturing plants that still remain in Ottawa, Iola or the nuclear plant at New Strawn, the county's property valuation has fallen behind in constant dollars to the point that subsistence public funding is nearly all that's available without blood letting among the remaining home and property owners. We've been losing the ability to fund the replacement of ACH about ever since the present facility was built.

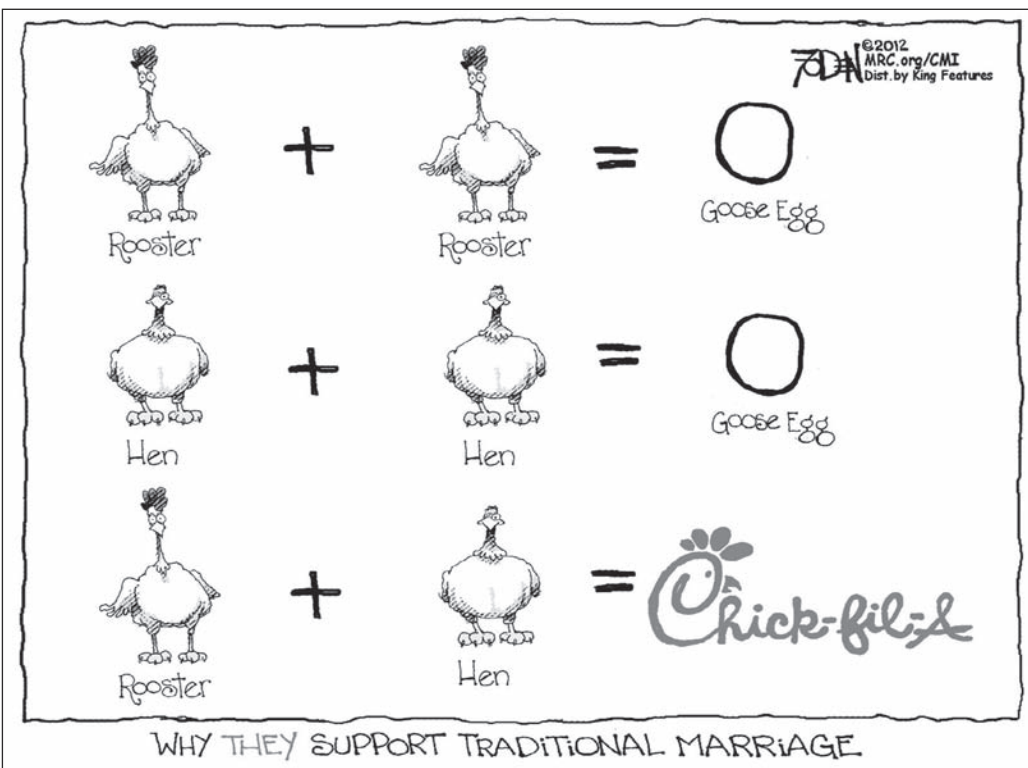

Three economic facts are certain: 1) ACH presently has employment of 203 and a payroll of $6.8 million payroll, making it the county's largest employers and active economic participant. 2) St. Luke's, as has been reported recently, is searching for ways to cut $100 million in costs from its system-wide operations due to uncertainty about new federal health care legislation; and 3) Anderson County has a state-imposed debt limit of 3 percent of its $71 million assessed property valuation.

Everything else is up for debate.

Christie: Drop drug war

BY RICH LOWRY

NATIONAL REVIEW

Chris Christie is not a wimp, a hippie or a countercultural icon. He's not known for taking time out from budget negotiations to smoke dope, or for his sympathy for drug dealers.

Yet he is a soft-liner on the war on drugs. That the combative New Jersey governor and Republican rock star -- just tapped to keynote the GOP convention in Tampa, Fla. -- vocally dissents from drug-war orthodoxy is another sign that the tectonic plates of the drug debate are shifting. Perhaps our appetite for spending billions and incarcerating millions, in the service of pieties immune to rational analysis, is not limitless after all.

In a speech at the Brookings Institution, Christie called the war on drugs "well intentioned," but "a failure." He just signed a law to mandate treatment rather than jail time for nonviolent drug offenders. The Democratic rising star in New Jersey, Newark Mayor Cory Booker, recently condemned the drug war in strikingly similar terms as "big overgrown government at its worst." In Jersey, the drug war is getting it from both barrels and both parties.

Exhaustion is finally setting in with the enormous human and fiscal costs of attempting to eradicate the ineradicable. People have always used intoxicants, and always will, in ways ancient and new. The Good Book tells that no sooner had Noah planted a vineyard than "he drank of the wine, and was drunken." After all the countless resources expended trying to keep illegal drugs from entering the United States, The New York Times recently reported, abuse of indigenous prescription drugs is the nation's biggest drug problem. In 2008, it accounted for the lion's share of overdose deaths.

The war on drugs overseas, a U.S. foreign-policy priority for decades, has only shifted around trafficking routes. Mark Schneider of the International Crisis Group notes how -- in the "mercury effect" -- pressure against the cartels in Colombia squeezed the action into Mexico, where it is now being displaced again, to Central America and the Caribbean. No wonder that at the Summit of the Americas in April, Latin American leaders expressed disenchantment with the entire enterprise.

No one crafting American laws from scratch purely on a basis of public health would make marijuana illegal while alcohol -- much more damaging to society -- is legal. Slowly, the prohibition on marijuana is giving way. Medical marijuana is legal in 17 states and the District of Columbia. Colorado, Oregon and Washington state will consider ballot measures to legalize the drug in November. The current regime makes criminals of millions of casual users, but legalization -- even in one state, according to experts Beau Kilmer and Jonathan Caulkins -- could collapse the price nationally and lead to more widespread use.

Every alternative has its pitfalls. But we are exiting the era when a focus on the harmful effects of illegal drugs excludes all consideration of the harmful effects of their hard-fisted prohibition. The debate is becoming less susceptible to cheap rhetorical bullying. If Chris Christie, arguably the toughest Republican in the country, is open to new approaches, there's hope for everyone else.

I just wanted to comment on the Anderson County Fair. I know it's hard to get a carnival in here, but there are towns smaller than Garnett that have a way bigger fair with rides and fun things that go on during their fair. It's pretty embarrassing for Anderson County to have no rides or nothing for their fair. Just animals and a tent? Come on. Is that really fun for kids to do? Show some more support and backbone to get a carnival here. That's why you don't have a crowd down there. It's an embarrassment to this town.

I'd like to comment on the sidewalk issue. I notice some of the wheelchair people that we're spending all this money building sidewalks for. They built them all with wheelchair accessibility downtown and I still see the one or two wheelchair people I see downtown they're still driving down the street even though they've got sidewalks for them.

It was a pleasure to do business with our local auto dealership. Always wonderful service. Just a pleasure. Shop locally. Thank you.

Are we fast approaching the limit to what the property owners of Garnett and Anderson County can bear? Property taxes are already exceedingly high. The community has built several new structures in the past few years. The elementary school is the newest, and that's fine because it was approved by a democratic public voting process. Let's go back to the county jail which was approved by the commissioners despite the 'no' vote from the public. The school board built the new track and field complex regardless of the 'no' vote from taxpayers. And now comes the new hospital discussions. Do we really need a new hospital, or would it just be nice to have a new hospital? Does a new hospital building always equate to an improvement in service to its patients? I read about new hospital comparisons to hospitals in Ottawa, Iola and Burlington, but let's realize we don't have the same economy or tax base they have. I also read of the austerity program that the patent St. Luke's Hospital system is discussing, which includes elimination of job and budget reductions, but then our local St. Luke's affiliate is talking expansion. We should request an explanation of those differences. The effects of the new federal health care bill on hospital operations is yet to be determined. We should not let the county commission approve the construction of a new hospital without it coming before a vote of the public. Let's not repeat the county jail scenario. We cannot let property taxes get so high that people cannot afford to live here or move here.

I just want to say how sad it is to drive out by the fair grounds and see nothing there. I think we ought to be honest with ourselves and quit calling it a fair, just call it a farmers meeting, because all it is, is farmers and their animals. And I just don't understand how the Kincaid Fair, a town that's not even close to our population can have twice the fair. If it's the dates or something why don't they change it. Kincaid doesn't have any problem doing it in October. I just feel sorry for the kids around here. Thank you.

Dear Kansas Ethics Commission: Is a sitting sheriff supposed to campaign for re-election in a county fair parade while in uniform and driving the county's patrol vehicle? I wonder.

Why I'm Running

In the year 2000 I was elected to the Anderson County Commission District 1. During that four year period, 2000-2003, I served on the Southeast KS Regional Planning Commission, and the Kansas Work Force Investment Board. I traveled extensively in eastern Kansas giving Anderson County a voice they had never had previously. In the four years I served on the commission I saw the many problems not only of the Anderson County area, but also other counties across the state of Kansas.

Therefore my four-year experience as an Anderson County Commissioner from 2000-2003 gives me an excellent background from which to approach present day situations. I am a moderate Republican regarding social problems but a fiscal conservative on money matters and I will govern accordingly.

Budget Priority

Restricting the growth of spending to make it more closely compare to revenue.

Important Issue

We need to continue to improve our tax base both residential and commercial which will bring along a corresponding increase in population and work opportunities.

Meetings Attended

Moved to Garnett in June, 2008 to help take care of mother who was battling breast cancer. After settling in the area I opened KDS Auto Detailing with my son Shawn and youngest daughter, Danielle in October, 2010. I have been active in the American Legion post 48 and currently serve as Vice Commander. I am a member of the American Legion Riders as well as the Patriot Guard. I am the chairman of Creative Business Partnerships, an advisory committee to the city of Garnett. I was selected to serve on the veterans memorial advisory board. This will be my first run at an elected position at any level of government.

Why I'm Running

I decided to run upon hearing that Commissioner Feuerborn was not seeking re-election. I spent fifteen years travelling the world and living in various parts of the country. I have seen some great ideas unfold as well as some not so great ideas. I would like the opportunity to serve the people of Anderson County and hopefully bring new ideas for economic development to the forefront. I am rural by choice and believe that the quality of life we enjoy as rural Kansans is unique and should be preserved. However, with that being said the reality is that we do not have many businesses within our county that pay competitive wages. Our infrastructure is ideal for bring-school I worked then attended Washburn University in Topeka where I graduated with a degree in History and studied political science. I returned home in 2002 after the death of my parents as I missed rural life and the benefits of living in a small community.

Currently, I am the Innkeeper at The Kirk House where I meet many interesting people and get different perspectives on what we have to offer in our area. I also help locals with yard work, painting, and other heavy chores besides working part time at Golden Heights and Patriots Bank. I enjoy variety in work and especially being out in the community.

I was proud to be involved with the FACE committee and the unprecedented success and community engagement it fostered. Other organizations I have been active in are Lions, Rotary, the Chamber Players, Anderson County Historical Society, ACH Foundation, and WINGS. Currently, I chair the Tourism Advisory Committee that promotes county wide events and tourism.

I have two sons, Chandler(13) and Michael(8), who live in Topeka. My favorite past times are taking walks, visiting with friends along the way, and embracing life in our community!

Why I'm Running

The torch being passed offers opportunities for fresh perspectives on the future of Anderson County. All are invested in this future as we have chosen to live here and embrace what rural

When the new congressional #4 district was formed, I was approached by a number of value-minded families within our community who believed my background as a small business owner would bring the values we need to our government to Topeka. It is with a great deal of reflection and a sense of duty to a greater good that I enter the race to serve as your representative in Topeka.

I believe in small government and the creation of a tax and regulatory system that encourages new business growth. Protecting and promoting small businesses in Kansas is critical to the foundation of our local economy. I firmly believe our public sector and schools ben-ing a couple of businesses to the area without changing the rural aspect of our communities.

Budget priority

The county budget will obviously be a concern of mine as well as the other candidates. I can't pick one item as my first order of business at this time. I would say that I would look at several areas within the budget, specifically areas where expenditures have risen dramatically over the last ten years. We all know the current economy means we have less revenue to spend but it also means that we should be capitalizing on the competitiveness of the free market. I would like to look for any means to spend less without sacrificing quality.

Most Important Issue

As I indicated earlier I think that the economic development of Anderson County is a high priority for me. I feel that with our counties infrastructure we are ideally located for any number of manufacturing or distribution opportunities. I would like to draw a few small (20-30 employee) manufacturers or distributors to Anderson County. We have lost several manufacturers in recent years with not much moving in to replace them. I would like to look at the feasibility of making the Anderson County Economic Development a full time position where Anderson County becomes a priority. I believe that with a full time administrator the county commission can move to replace businesses that have moved from the area as well as work to bring new industry to Anderson County

Why I'm running

There are two schools of a "Los Vegas Economics" - we are betting on the outcome. You and I did not receive a tax break - the tax breaks went to corporations and our wealthiest Kansas citizens. Economists project in 2018 our state will be $2.7 billion underwater with our current formula. If companies flock to Kansas we will prosper. But in order to make up the tax cuts given we would have to create 550,000 new jobs that average $50,000.00 annual salary. That is growth 5 times greater than Texas has experienced, a state with entirely different economic engines than we have here in Kansas. If we do not revisit this fiscal policy, we have gambled our children's education dollars, our transportation dollars to support our roads and our support system for our children in need of care, the elderly and infirmed. It is a bet I am not willing to make. We must take a more responsible approach.

I will be a supporter of funding our schools - we must provide for our children and grandchildren. We need to ensure we have quality educators. Our children are our state's most valuable resource. We only have "one bite at the apple" on educating the children in the school system currently - we cannot afford to fail. In addition to this, our schools are "economic engines" embedded in each of our local communities. It has been proven that dollars spent on education have a multiplying effect of 4 in all our rural communities.

thought, mine and my opponents. I support the new tax cuts that will create jobs and grow business, while my opponent is on record wanting to raise your taxes by repealing these tax cuts.

When the Governor and I came into office, Kansas had the highest taxes as any state around us. With the new tax cuts we are the lowest income tax state in the area, we have a balanced budget with a 7.5% ending balance (something that hasn't happened in years), and increased K-12 funding by $40 million.

The tax law cut taxes for over 190,000 small businesses and all individual taxpayers. This will not only create jobs with our existing small businesses but it will draw new businesses to Kansas. This will help our state economy and state revenues. Our seniors and other taxpayers will be able to keep more of their money, knowing how to spend more efficiently than government.

I am endorsed by the Kansas Chamber of Commerce, NRA, KFL, Linn County Farm Bureau, and others for protecting jobs, 2nd Amendment Rights, and cutting taxes.

You have a clear choice this election. I ask for your vote on August 7th.

for 10-plus years, then my dad became a guard at the federal prison there. University Education at Kansas, went to Kansas University Medical School and graduated in 1963, did one year internship at Kansas City General Hospital then volunteered to the public health service where I was sent to the indian health service in Browning, Montana, taking care of 6,000 Indians 1964-1966. I became board certified in family practice.

I came to Garnett in July, 1966, went into private practice with Dr. Dougherty, and have lived in Anderson County happily for 46 years. I retired from medicine in 2003 after 40 years.

I have served long and hard in the Anderson County Republican Party, was vice chairman under June Cooper for 10-plus years, hosted fund raisers for Gov. Hayden, Gov. Graves, AG Bob Stephan, aided in congressional campaign efforts of Sen. Stinson and Bob Whittaker.

I have been active in local and state organizations including Jaycees, Garnett Racing Association, USD #365, RWD #6, was on both Anderson County Hospital and the St. Luke's of Garnett hospital boards, am on the Welda United Methodist Church board, was on the Kansas Medical Society Board and the Kansas Academy Of Family Practice Board. I was asked to speak before the U.S. Congress on behalf of 33,000 members of the American Academy Of Family Practice in 1995.

I have helped raise two families including two high school valedictorians, six college graduates (three with highest distinction), three lawyers and one masters in counseling psychology. I am extremely happy with the effort, performance, and success of these children.

Why I'm Running

I am running for the third district county commissioner seat. I visited with Gene Highberger (I consider Gene my friend) last fall and he told me "I am a 27 model and I think I am too old to serve more". I talked to him again at the 60th anniversary of the Anderson County Hospital late this winter and he told me the same story. I then filed and have attended 90 percent of the county commission meetings since. I have considerable experience with boards and board politics.

Top budget priority

I hope to cause a close scrutiny of the budget and hope to significantly cut out the fat and lower the county mill levy where possible. To this end I was in consultation with commissioner Feuerborn multiple times regarding the ambulance budget having gone up almost 600 percent in the last 10 years. Having been in a supervising position of the ambulance service while I was on the medical staff and on the hospital board I couldn't believe it should have gone up from about $110,000 in 2001 to an asked for budget of about $635,000 for the year 2011. Through the efforts of Commissioner Feuerborn and the reevaluation of the cost accounting at the hospital the budget for next year has been accepted at the last meeting for $480,000, or a savings of about $150,000! This is a significant savings for the voters of the third commissioner district. This is what I am talking about and is probably possible elsewhere.

On the issue of a new hospital I am not now, nor have I ever been, in favor of this project since I learned its secret planning while visiting Harris in April. In my opinion there has been no justification of need given by the local Board of Trustees and it is only St. Lukes in its previously secret memo, apparently paraphrased in this week's Review, that is trying to convince the voters on this matter. Further, I will help organize a petition resistance and carry petitions to stop any attempt to do a jailhouse end-run around a bond election to avoid the voters getting to have the final say on this unnecessary new hospital in these drought dominated economically depressed times.

Most important issue

I hope to drag the county into the 21st century with e-mail. At the present time the voters of the county are not notified of the issues which are going to be before the commissioner so they can't inform their commissioner what to do. I propose, at no additional cost to the county, to have the agenda for the monday meeting closed at noon on the Friday before. The agenda can then be posted on the web site the county already has andersoncountys. org allowing about two days for you voters to examine the issues and decide if you want to attend and have some input in the decisions, or you can e-mail your elected representative and inform him/her about your thoughts and wishes. These two days also allows the commissioners time to see what the other side or sides of the issue might be and be better able to make the right decision.

We need to understand we are dealing with a $7 million spending spree every year and the commissioners need all the help they can get. In addition to the above issues you need to understand that the federal and state governments have decreased to a big measure their funding of local social services and social welfare agencies and those people are appearing before the commission, averaging about one per week through the meetings I have been to since March, asking for the county to raise their dollar amount which is raising your taxes if someone doesn't say no. I know how to say no! I have missed two meetings since I filed the middle of March and have watched this develop, and this could get worse depending upon the results of the November election.

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 07-31-2012 / Pat Vining

Old tractors that match the old-timer famers who owned them are arranged by their owner, Marvin Gretencord of Olathe, formerly of Richmond.

Former Richmond man matches old tractors

BY PAT VINING Special to THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

For Marvin Gretencord of Olathe, it is enjoyable but also a fitting tribute to match some of his collection of older toy tractors with those old-time farmers who used them some years ago.

When he started to assemble a display for "Open Doors" at the Richmond United Methodist Church this fair-time, he realized he had about 30 toy tractors that he could easily match with someone who owned that model.

"I hope people who see these tractors will remember the past generation and think about what good people they were. These men were hard workers and good neighbors who would do anything for each other," Gretencord said.

Some of his first "matches" were of Frank Cox, Kenneth Cunningham, Preston Stockard, Leonard and Allen DeGarmo and Sandy Sims. and their tractors. He mentioned these six first because he worked for all of them at one time or another, and, of course, drove their tractors.

He thought of his father, Antone 'Lank' Gretencord and his 1949 John Deere A and his father-in-law, Lee Martin and his Case, a not-so-common tractor.

Looking through his large collection, he realized he had model tractors like the ones once owned by Herb Kepple, Charley Masheter, Lon Mishler, El Bennett, Earl Wall, Jim Kueser, Lee Hermreck, Dan and Robert Lickteig, Henry and Nora Mersman, and others.

Gretencord included a few horses in his tractor display, which were a team with a John Deere plow honoring his grandfather, Pete Hastert, and a team with wagon honoring Harry Cram, which was ordered from an Amish toy catalog he obtained from Miller Bros. of Garnett.

Two of the tractors were embellished a bit -- a small Santa Claus figure set next to Gun Benus who played that part for many years, and miniature ears of corn were near Cecil Vining who was a champion corn shucker before World War II ended the contests.

Although Gretencord has been collecting toy tractors since the 1960s, it was only recently that he began to think about how many of his models reminded him of men he knew and respected when he was a kid and young man.

After being a John Deere parts man for 30 years, there isn't a lot about these tractors Gretencord doesn't know, and he knows for sure there's an almost human bond between most men and their tractors.

"Open Doors" is an activity of the Richmond United Methodist Church that invites anyone to display his or her collection just for fun during the Richmond Free Fair.

This was the ninth year for "Open Doors" and there were 28 different displays, ranging from quilts, books, paintings, to some more unusual ones. Some folks are already planning what they might bring next year, said Mary Hall who organizes the event each year.

Who knows? Maybe Gretencord will have some more matches of old-time tractors with old-time farmers and fair-goers can look for someone they know in his collection.

But before that, it is planned that his tractors with farmer labels will be at the Richmond Community Museum next year, from Memorial Day through Labor Day. So, if you missed it at the fair this year, mark your calendar to visit the Richmond Museum next summer.

Ronnie Callahan of Kingston, Okla. My daughter, Corissa Callahan, passed away in 1995.

I farmed and hauled hay and grain until 1976 when I moved to Kansas City and worked construction until 1981, when I moved back to Anderson County and bought a dump truck and hauled rock and buildex all over the Midwest.

I started dispatching for Bones Transportation in 1986 for six years, then moved to Little Rock, Ark., and worked for Oakley Transportation. In 1996 I moved to Severy and dispatched for Frank Bills Trucking. I moved back to Anderson County and bought 80 acres southwest of Garnett. I run a small farming operation with 90 head of cows. I have a small trucking company and a brokerage company.

If elected I would work with the other commissioners to save money in the road department by improving the ditch processing and get more gravel on the roads.

I have attended all the meetings since I filed.

Library to discuss 'Brooklyn'

The Garnett Public Library will hold a book discussion on Wednesday, August 22, 2012 at 7 p.m. "Brooklyn" by Colm Toibin was the title chosen. The discussion will be led by Jane Feuerborn.

Colm Toibin is the author of five novels, including The Master and The Blackwater Lightship, both shortlisted for the Booker Prize. Brooklyn, his sixth novel is set in Brooklyn and Ireland in the early 1950's, when one young woman crosses the ocean to make a new life for herself. Eilis Lacey has come of age in small-town Ireland in the years following World War II. Though skilled at bookkeeping, she cannot find a job in the miserable Irish economy. When an Irish priest from Brooklyn offers to sponsor Eilis in America - to live and work in a Brooklyn neighborhood "just like Ireland" - she decides she must go, leaving her fragile mother and her charismatic sister behind.

Books are available for checkout at the library. The discussions are typically held the fourth Wednesday of each month at 7 p.m. in the Archer Room at the library. Notification is posted in case of cancellation

Who's 'watching submarine races' now?

Now, before I get started, take notice that the subject matter may not be understood by some of you readers of my column. Oh? Did I forget to mention the subject? Well, the subject is an old-timer term, namely, "Parking." Are you aghast at the mere thought of such goings-on, most baby boomers today would scarcely admit to their children or grandchildren that THEY ever went "parking." In a more innocent time, "parking" was something almost every young couple did, whether they'll admit it or not!

I've been trying to remember some of the words used in my days - the 50s - to describe this - what should I say? - ritual. I do know the word "spooning" was used by my parents and grandparents, but I don't remember too many in the 50s that used "spooning."

"Watching submarine races" was a phrase some played with but it was something that never appealed to me. The first time I ever heard it called that, it was such a mystery: "How could anyone get a submarine into the Garnett north and south lakes?" I was maybe 12 years old and had so very much to learn!

There were a few kids who called it "making out," but there were also many kids who thought that sounded too much like something that was cheap and dirty (I sure hope all this is OK for our local newspaper). I rather prefer the "parking" term. Kinda generic, you know? One could add the word "sparkin" - parkin and sparkin!

Starting in the early days for the 20th Century, and with the advent of the automobile, it didn't take long, I'm sure, for boys and girls to find themselves driving to a secluded place, gazing at the summer moon and stars, thinking romantic thoughts. It is quite strange how the fresh night air and the twinkling of a thousand points of light, along with the reflection of the sun shining brightly back off the moon would be conducive to thoughts like that. Yeah, strange, huh?

In and around Garnett, there were favorite places to go to find the necessary privacy just like in all small towns around.

There were always the two Garnett lakes and plenty of lonely dirt country roads.

Of course, I never knew about any of this myself. I do, however, have it on good authority that the preceding was true!

Maybe I had better close and go "parkin." It's never too late, is it?

Mason Skiles pictured here (back row, second from the right) with his 2012 Wellsville Dawgs baseball team, took 3rd in the Little League World Series held July 18 through July 21, in Lenexa, Kansas. The Dawgs went 6 and 1 for the series losing to a team from Plains, Illinois, that went on to take first place in the tournament. Mason is a freshman at Anderson County High School and is the son of Mike and Carla Skiles of Greeley.

KU announces spring 2012 honor roll

LAWRENCE - More than 4,200 undergraduate students at the University of Kansas earned honor roll distinction for the spring 2012 semester. The students, from KU's Lawrence campus and the schools of allied health and nursing in Kansas City, Kan., represent 92 of 105 Kansas counties, 42 other states and the District of Columbia, and 31 other countries.

The honor roll comprises undergraduates who meet requirements in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and in the schools of allied health; architecture, design and planning; business; education; engineering; journalism; music; nursing; pharmacy; and social welfare.

Area honorees are as follows:

- Cynthia Brown, of Garnett. Brown is a graduate of Anderson County High School and is a senior in pre-medicine and psychology. She was named to the College of Liberal Arts & Sciences 2012 Spring Honor Roll.
- Kirstin Brown, of Garnett. Brown is a graduate of Honor roll criteria vary among the university's academic units. Some schools honor the top 10 percent of students enrolled, some establish a minimum grade-point average, and others raise the minimum GPA for each year students are in school. Students must complete a minimum number of credit hours to be considered for the honor roll.

1912: Garnett Chautauqua wraps up

Aug. 6, 2002
USD 365 voted last week to reduce its tax rate for capital outlay projects and move that mill levy - translating to nearly $200,000 - into another fund to help pay for teacher salaries. It was a trade off wrought by what officials in public education have lamented since the beginning of the last legislative session as a continuing squeeze on education funding and an aversion to higher local property taxes.

by Vickie Moss
Staff Writer

Aug. 6, 1992
An estimated general budget of some $274,054 will be raised by 32 mills in taxes due to the adoption of the USD 479 budget. The district expects to spend $2,410,767 for the 1992-93 school year. Of that, $308,310 will come from district tax money. The rest will be covered by state aid and $206,000 the district has left over from the 1991-92 school year. The money is some $366,000 more than the exceptionally bad shape.

July 31, 1912
The Royal Italian Guards Band closes the Chautauqua program this evening. The lecture by Belle Kearney, a Mississippi lady, who does not remember the war but remembers about everything that has happened since in the South, had a great lecture. She gave a graphic picture of Southern life before and after the war, and she has the typical Southern point of view. She sees the good of the old system better than the new, but she sees the bad too. In discussing the race problem, she said it could not be settled by deportation, for the Negro has a right here, under the law. It won't settle itself, for the 4 million colored people at the close of the war has now increased to 8 million and is growing faster than any other race on earth. And it can't be settled amalgamation, for that would be race suicide to the whites.

Thanks to a large cash carry-over in the bond and interest fund, Garnett residents will see a drop of 12.5 mills in their city tax rates. Estimated tax of the 1983 budget is $276,348, down from last year's $365,438. Assessed valuation for the city for 1983 is $7,274,168, up slightly from the previous year's $7,234,625. The commissioners plan to use money in the sidewalk fund to assist residents in town with replacing sidewalks in

'If thou can?' Everything is possible

In chapter 9 of the gospel of Luke we read of the healing of a boy with an evil spirit. Jesus has just come down from the Mount of Transfiguration with Peter, James and John. When they came to the other disciples they were engaged in an argument with the teachers of the law.

A man steps out of the crowd and tells Jesus he has brought his son who is possessed by a spirit to be healed. The other disciples had not been able to heal the boy.

Jesus engages the man concerning the boy and the father tells Jesus the boy has been this way since childhood throwing him into convulsions. While this conversation is taking place the boy falls to the ground and begins to foam at the mouth. The man asks Jesus. "But if thou can do anything, take pity on us and help us."

"If you can?" said Jesus. "Everything is possible for him who believes." The boy's father answered, "I do believe help me overcome my unbelief!" Now the man evidently believed Jesus was a healer. He would not have brought his son to Jesus if he had not felt it would be possible for Jesus to heal the boy. Jesus virtually replies, "If thou can lies not with me, but with thee." The boy was incapable of believing at this moment so the burden of belief passed to his father. Charles Spurgeon, often called the Prince of Preachers, explained the passage this way. "Let it be understood as the teaching of this text that the difficulties in the way of souls that would be saved do not lie with Jesus Christ but with themselves."

The problem for most people

is that this seems insufficient. They believe they need to provide assistance. Nothing could be farther from the truth. Jesus clearly shows the father he must believe before he (Jesus) can help.

No where is this better illustrated than in Luke 8 when the woman who had been subject to bleeding for twelve years, from which no one could heal her, approaches Jesus from behind in a crowd and touches the edge of his cloak and is healed. Jesus did not see the woman but says, "Who touched me?" Now Jesus was in a crowd of people and the text says they almost crushed him they were pressed in so close. Why was the touch of this woman even important. Jesus says, "I know power has gone out of me." The woman had drawn power from Jesus because she believed that she could be healed if she just touched the edge of his cloak. Spurgeon summarized the text this way. "To believe Christ is able to save thee is an essential, but to put yourself into his hands that he may save thee is the saving act."

discussed by Shelly Stephens, Crest counselor previously was adopted.

In other business the board meetings were set 2nd Monday monthly at 7 p.m. in the board office. Members appointed Leanne Trabuc, clerk and Beverly Wittmer, treasurer. Bank depositories are with Citizens Bank, Kincaid and Garnett State Savings Bank, Colony and Iola Register as official publication for the district. Superintendent Jerry Turner was designated as the district representative for school lunch and all federal programs. Adoption of Resolution #2012-2013-2011 waiving the GAAP-Fixed Asset Accounting requirements was made. An activity fund for K-12 was established and the Home Rule by Board of Education Resolution and the Workers Compensation were adopted. Richard Burkdoll, principal was designated as the district's homeless coordinator. Tadd Goodell was appointed as representative to the ANW Special Education Coop Board.

BOE: Tadd Goodell was re-elected as board president and Jeff Strickler as board vice-president at the regular meeting of the Crest Board of Education on July 16. Brenna Hammond was hired as the middle school girl's basketball coach, Cheri Michael and Ron Walters as bus drivers and Keith Babcock hired for snow removal for the 2012-13 school term at the rate of $75 per hour per machine with a minimum charge of $150. A quote from Advantage Computers to update the computer wiring system was accepted and the option 2 valedictorian and salutatorian policy

The minutes of the June 13 ANW Special Education meeting were reviewed. Superintendent Turner updated the report on the building improvements in process this summer and reported the Colony Fire Department would donate an automatic external defibrillator to the school. Principal Burkdoll discussed updates to the student handbook.

Fire Dept.: Colony's old fire truck is not repairable and no longer in service. A new 5-ton truck was given to them through the Forestry Service for as long as they need it. Currently they are working on lights and other minor things, although it was in use for the house fire at Kincaid recently. Four new members have joined the fire department. Ron Johnson, Richard Weber, KeWade Seabolt, fire fighters and Sarah McDaniel, EMT. Volunteer firemen and firewomen meet the first Wednesday monthly at the fire station. The Colony Library board will make a contribution for 2012 and will reevaluate for 2013. Participation in Colony Day was discussed.

Members are to bring ideas at the August meeting.

Story Hour: Six children and one older child helper were in attendance at the July 17 story hour. Charlotte Wallace was in charge. Camping and the outdoors was the topic.

The children decorated butterflies. Charlotte had made an edible campfire; also mini pigs in a blanket, animal crackers and a drink were served. July 24 is Pajama Day. Children can wear pajamas and bring a stuffed animal. Children drew to win a stuffed animal. Every child won an animal. The animals stayed for their own party after the children left, but will be ready to go home with them the following week.

Lions Club: Twelve members and one guest were in attendance at the July 18 meeting. The United Methodist Women fixed the meal for the group. A. J. Silvey, newly elected president, opened the meeting with the flag salute and the "Lord's Prayer". It was reported the July firework picnic and display held at the ballpark went well. Colony Day participation was discussed. Rosie Thomas, New York, daughter of members Ron and DeDe McMullen was the guest. Butch Lytle reported the benches in the business district should be redone. A director's meeting was scheduled July 30 at 6 p.m. at the United Methodist Church. The next regular meeting is August 2 in the basement of the church.

Around Town: In the Tball report two boys were unintentionally omitted, Owen Bahnsen and Dreden Ellis. They played three games, not two, which was misreported.

Evelyn Wedeman and Donna Powell celebrated their birthdays when Donna's son, Evelyn's grandson, Mick Powell of Halstead came to visit and took them to Iola to dine.
