Drought continues to hurt livestock

Producers can attend meeting on drought issues for help, advice

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - By next summer, there could be fewer cattle, horses and other livestock in Anderson County.

Blame it on the drought, Anderson County Extension Agent Shannon Blocker said. She expects many livestock owners will struggle to feed animals this winter because of extremely dry, hot weather this past summer. That may result in some producers "culling" their herds - either selling or otherwise disposing of animals.

The drought has resulted in low supplies and high costs for feed - especially for forage animals that rely on grass or hay. Those animals need a certain percentage of their diet to contain forage.

"It's definitely a challenge. It's very real," Blocker said. "We hope that it doesn't come to a situation where the animal's needs aren't being met."

A seminar is planned at 6 p.m. Oct. 24 to help people understand the situation, including how to handle water supplies and adequate feeding for animals in current market conditions. Anderson County Extension and the Anderson County Farm Service Agency have teamed up to provide information about drought concerns. The meeting, called "Drought Concerns: Water Issues and Livestock Feeding," will be at the Anderson County Community Building at Lake Garnett Park and includes supper. Pre-registration by noon Oct. 23 is encouraged by calling (785) 448-6826.

A similar meeting was conducted last year, which also had drought conditions and low feed supplies. However, livestock owners were fortunate to have a mild winter and didn't need to provide as much forage as they would have during a typical Kansas winter, Blocker said.

It could be difficult for producers to feed livestock like cows and horses this winter because of short supplies caused by the drought, agriculture experts say.

Soybean harvest shows signs of life

Winter wheat gets planted as farmers begin to harvest beans

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - The beans may be late, but at least they survived.

A handful of Anderson County farmers have started to harvest soybeans, a couple weeks later than in a typical year thanks to a dry, hot summer. But the good news is that there is a soybean crop, unlike corn, which was almost totally decimated by drought, Anderson County Extension Agent Shannon Blocker said. Soybeans are much more resilient under drought conditions than some crops, Blocker said. They tend to "shut down" their growth cycle if they don't get enough water, she said.

"They were hanging on until they got a drink," Blocker said about this year's crop. "That's why they have been relatively successful in this part of the state. Usually, we eventually get water."

Because soybeans waited patiently for rain and storms that began in late September, they are just now readying for

Unemployment drops significantly in region

State, area counties post lowest jobless levels in 45 months

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

TOPEKA - Unemployment throughout the state and local area dropped significantly in September according to a labor report released recently.

Unemployment in Anderson

County dropped more than a percentage point, down to 5.9 percent in September compared to 7.0 the previous month. A year ago, unemployment was 7.6.

Statewide, unemployment dropped to 5.3 percent, down from 6.2 in August and 6.7 in September 2011. The state average is the lowest level Kansas has experienced in 45 months, a

ANDERSON COUNTY BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS OCTOBER 8

Chairman Dudley R. Feuerborn called the meeting of the Anderson County Board of Commissioners to order at 9:00 a.m. on October 8 at the County Commission Room. Attendance: Dudley R. Feuerborn, Present; Eugene Highberger, Present; James K. Johnson, Present. The pledge of allegiance was recited. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Road and Bridge

Lester Welsh, Road Supervisor, met with the commission. Lester reported the mower broke the water line on Park Road again last week. It broke last year when they mowed also. The line runs in the ditch and when the ditch is mowed it moves the rocks covering the line and breaks it.

NCl

Carrie Beckner, NCl, met with the commission. She was checking back in to see if the commission would approve her company looking at our phone bills for savings. Phyllis Gettler, County Clerk requested that no search be done until after the first of the year due to time restraints in the offices.

Executive Session

Steve Markham, Appraisers Office, met with the commission. Commissioner Highberger moved to recess into executive session for 15 minutes to discuss non-elected personnel with Steve Markham and Beth Shaw, Acting Appraiser, and County Clerk Phyllis Gettler in attendance. Open meeting to resume at 10:20. Commissioner Johnson seconded. Approved 3-0. Commissioner Johnson moved to authorize the chairman to visit with the deputy appraiser regarding the operations of the office. Commissioner Highberger seconded. Approved 3-0.

GIS

Beth Shaw, Acting Appraiser, and Steve Markham, Appraisers Office, talked to the commission concerning GIS. They have received bids from $50,000.00 to $150,000.00.

Hospital Board of Trustees

Commissioner Highberger moved to approve the reappointment of Diane Doran and Lonnie Sprague to the Anderson County Hospital Board of Trustees. Commissioner Johnson seconded. Approved 3-0.

Commission Roll Call

Commissioner Johnson left the meeting at 10:45 to attend to personal business.

Insurance

Tom Job, KCAMP, met with the commission along with Marvin Grimes, Emergency Management Director. Discussion has been held with KCAMP regarding liability insurance for first responders. KCAMP can provide additional insurance for those individuals for around $1,300.00 per year with the number of responders we have. The hospital does not want to cover the first responders and Tom agreed with that position. The county needs to write regulations for first responders to follow. Commissioner Feuerborn moved to add the first responders under the county liability with a $2,000,000 umbrella cap. Commissioner Highberger seconded. Approved 2-0.

Burn Ban

Marvin Grimes, Emergency Management Director, talked to the commission about the resolution for the burn ban. He has contacted all the cities to see if they would like to be included in the county policy. All but the City of Garnett would like to be included. Marvin reported they have been able to get a grant for five gas detectors.

Sheriff
Sheriff Hupp reported that one of the jailers and a sheriff deputy will be attending training in Wichita for two nights. The county attorney has agreed to pay for the hotel for the jailer out of the diversion fund. Commissioner Highberger moved to approve the expenditure of hotel fees out of the diversion fund. Commissioner Feuerborn seconded. Approved 2-0.

Jail

Jerry Wohler, PBC Member, met with the commission. He questioned if an audit had ever been completed to show the operation of the jail and to see if it was making money. James Campbell, County Counselor, explained how the sale's tax has been used to make the bond payments and no county tax dollars has been used. The county budgets for the operation of the jail and the money that is received from out of county prisoners is recorded as reimbursed expense. Left over cash at the end of the year is put into a jail reserve fund to fund payments if there comes a time when the sales tax money is ever short.

Transfer Trailer

Jay Sloan, Transfer Station Supervisor, met with the commission. He showed the commission samples of different floors that are available for transfer trailers. The company recommends a smooth floor that keeps the trash from building up. Jay would also like to go with an aluminum trailer. The aluminum one would be $65,813 and they will give us $19,000 for the trade in. Commissioner Highberger moved to approve the purchase of 48 feet aluminum walking floor trailer from Wilkens Trailers. Commissioner Feuerborn seconded. Approved 2-0.

Meeting adjourned at 12:00 p.m.

LAND TRANSFERS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW
Published October 23, 2012

Dwayne Luray Filbrun, son of Alva and Gladys (Gish) Filbrun, was born August 5, 1940, in Garnett, in Anderson County, Kansas.

He spent nearly his entire life in the Westphalia area, farming and raising livestock for many years.

On February 18, 1968, he and Nedra Sue Coning were married in North Manchester, Indiana, and they shared forty-four years together. To this union two sons were born, Chad and Roger.

Dad was baptized into the Old German Baptist Brethren Church on October 16, 1968, to which he remained faithful unto death.

He was diagnosed with Lou Gehrig's disease in the spring of 2011. He was unable to speak the last several months of his life but he continued to communicate through hand motions and on his dry-erase board. His example of courage and acceptance of the Lord's will was an inspiration. He peacefully passed away on Sunday afternoon, October 14, 2012, in his home.

Dad will be missed and remembered by his loving help-meet; his mother, of Garnett, KS; sons Chad and his companion, Heidi and Roger and his companion, Molly; nine grandchildren, Garrett, Trevor, Drew, and Reed, and Katelyn, Luke, Dinah, Clem, and Jacob, all of rural Westphalia; a sister, Charlene Davison and husband Lyle of Garnett, KS; a brother, Clayton Filbrun and wife Gloria of Mauston, Wisconsin; a sister-in-law, Charlene Lynch and husband Steve of Pasco, Washington; many other relatives and friends.

Preceding him in death were his father and a brother, Darrell Filbrun.

We trust that our loss is his eternal gain.

Services were Thursday, October 18, 2012, at the Old German Baptist Brethren Church, Westphalia, Kansas. Burial followed in Bethel Cemetery.

Blocker shared a story of one local producer who asked her to check his soybean field in August. He wasn't sure if he should hold on and give the beans a chance to grow, or cut his losses and hay the field. Blocker told the man he had one of the better soybean fields in the county, and he should wait. She learned last week the man's field now was estimated to bring between 20 and 30 bushels per acre.

That's probably not typical for this year's crop, Blocker said. She hasn't heard many reports yet because very few fields are ready for harvest, but she predicts yields will fall somewhere between 10 and 15 bushels. It's likely not as bad as the 2000 harvest, which averaged about 8 bushels an acre.

The late soybean harvest could impact winter wheat, however. Now is the time farmers would be planting winter wheat, and it's common for farmers to plant wheat in the soybean field after harvest. Because beans are late, that limits the available fields for wheat. Farmers are more likely to plant wheat in fields that previously had corn, and there is some concern about herbicide carry-over in those situations, Blocker said.

Farmers likely will plant about the same amount of wheat as last year, Blocker predicts. Last year turned out to be a good year for the crop, which made it the only successful local crop because of the drought. Wheat is not the biggest crop for Anderson County, however. Anderson County averages about 38,000 acres of wheat each year, according to the 2007 Census of Agriculture. The statistics put wheat as Anderson County's No. 3 crop behind soybeans (70,000 acres) and corn (40,000 acres in 2007, although the number has gone up since then).

"If it stays mild like last winter, we'll probably be OK, even though we're probably in worse forage shape this year by quite a bit," Blocker said, estimating supplies were down about a third compared to last year.

A bitterly cold winter could mean livestock owners are forced to get rid of some animals. Blocker expects cattle owners are more likely to cull herds than horse owners, perhaps because people tend to have more sentimental attachment to horses.

"Some people bought horses because they are so cheap right now, and forgot the price of a horse isn't the most expensive part - maintaining it for the rest of its life is," Blocker said.

Livestock like horses, cattle, sheep and goats can survive when forage is reduced, but there is a threshold. Blocker and livestock industry experts will provide guidelines at the seminar to help owners find ways to limit forage feeding and still keep the animals' digestive systems working.

In some cases, it might be more cost effective to increase grain use for feeding. Even high-priced grain might be less expensive than hay, which is running about $20 to $30 per ton higher than previous years. Blocker estimates the highest priced hay is about $300 per ton. She cautions, however, that even though grain may be a less expensive option, animals still need a balanced diet with grass or hay.

"All ruminants - cattle, sheep, goats, horses and anything that can consume some grass or forage material - have to have a minimum amount of forage for their digestive system to do its job. If they don't, they die," Blocker said.

Livestock owners should attend the "Drought Concerns" meeting to learn more about feeding standards, or they can contact Blocker at (785) 448-6826.

The meeting also will cover water issues, offering tips to cope with water restrictions and reduced supplies because of drought. That may be of interest even to people who do not own livestock, although Blocker said the primary focus of the meeting will be on livestock.

"This improvement was caused by approximately 5,000 people moving from unemployed to employed over the month," Tyler Tenbrink, Labor Economist, said. "The seasonally-adjusted job numbers, while down slightly this month, are making slow and gradual improvements overall."

Between August and September, the biggest employment increase came from government jobs, primarily non-salaried educational employees returning to work.

In the past year, the largest job growth came from professional and business services, as well as manufacturing.

In Anderson County, 247 people were unemployed in September out of an available labor pool of 4,183 people.

Unemployment in other area counties also decreased significantly. Here is a look at nearby counties:

- Allen County, 5.9 in September, 6.9 in August, 7.2 in September 2011.
- Coffey County, 5.4 in September, 6.7 in August, 7.4 in September 2011.

- Franklin County, 6.6 in September, 7.7 in August, 7.5 in September 2011.

Debating wind energy credit

Wind energy farce puts it on short list for subsidy cut

Both Obama and Romney barely skimmed their positions on the federal Wind Energy Tax credit in last Wednesday's presidential debate, but the positions of the candidates shows definitively why Romney is the only candidate that's really serious about federal cost cutting.

It's also one reason that Romney may not win Iowa and its six electoral votes. Sticking to your guns to reduce the bloated federal budget even with something as comparatively minor as the wind energy subsidy - will come at a cost.

EDITORIAL

by Dane Hicks, PUBLISHER

The farcical and fading wind energy industry in the U.S. is based on two government-based premises: 1) that state corporation commissions or other regulatory authorities in the individual states mandate their electric power companies purchase or produce a certain amount of wind generated power; and 2) that wind energy generating companies earn a tax credit of 2.2 cents per kilowatt hour of their production. The advantage has been clearly seen by Iowa farmers, and those in other states where wind has developed roots; farmers who didn't get paid this year for drought-blistered crops got paid by wind companies for leases of their ground for wind mills.

But a decline in demand for electricity due to the poor economy and competition for power production from cheap natural gas has hammered the wind industry. Last month Siemens, Kansas' big acquisition and wind employment success story, announced it would lay off 945 workers in Kansas, Iowa and Florida. Other wind-related companies have done the same.

And then there's the subsidy. Romney has said he'll end it if elected, Obama has said he favors it. Amid the torrent of issues that arose at last week's debate, it would seem that the wind debate had gotten more airplay.

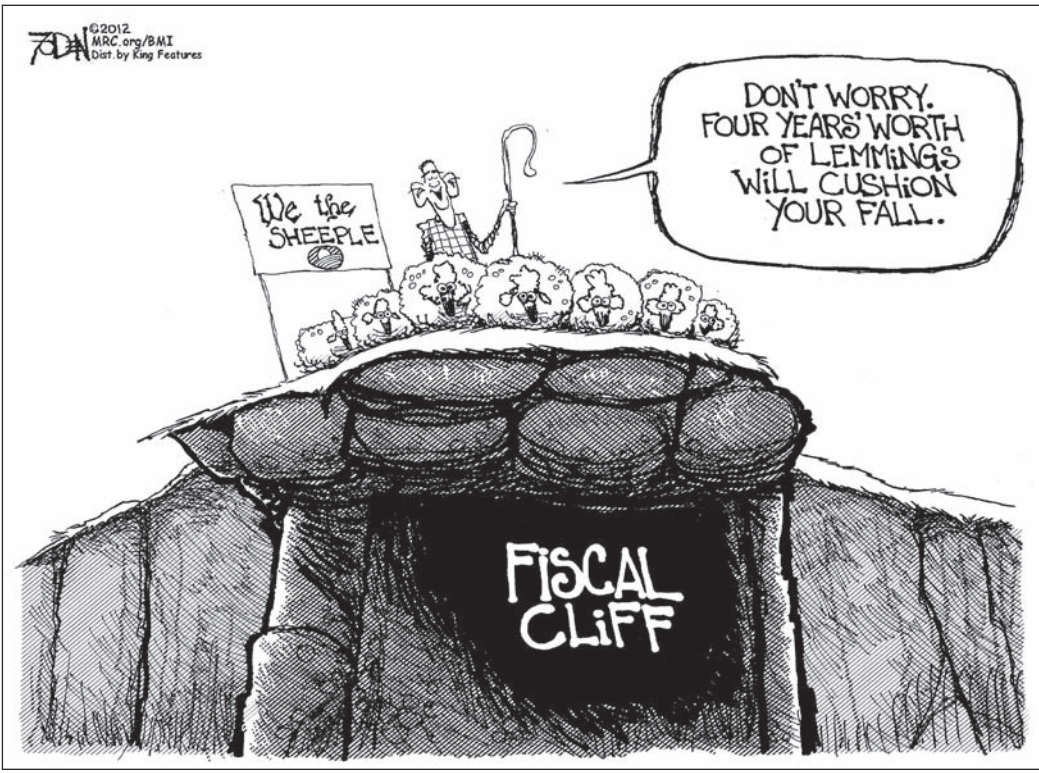

The wind subsidy should end not because it's just like any other federal gimme program aimed at greasing the wheels of an industry; it should end because wind power as it is being pursued is a bad idea that survives on government mandate and not on need.

Think about it - wind mills don't replace any fossil fuel electrical production, because power companies still have to build and operate resources that allow them to service the entire electrical grid regardless of whether the wind is blowing or not. Claims that a windmill can produce enough energy in a year to power an entire city for 3 months are great - as long as the wind is blowing. When it stops, the power company still has to be able to get juice to homes, businesses, hospitals, etc., which are plugged into the grid. The same plants have to be built, coal mined, and facilities maintained, so wind power actually saves no costs in either dollars or environmental value.

That's different with other subsidies like the one for ethanol, which results in an actual product that replaces expands or replaces the amount of fossil fuel consumed. But when the winds of budget cutting eventually blow, ethanol's subsidy probably won't be saved either.

Where wind energy has potential is in private residential uses, where homeowners or businesses could actually generate a portion of their own electricity for their own consumption, and reduce their pull on the commercial grid. But that side of the industry has been largely ignored - because the big money for wind companies has been in government extorting wind power purchases out of the power companies.

In a nutshell, wind power as it's being pursued today is a bad idea and it makes no sense to pursue a bad idea with a federal tax credit.

President Obama's birdbrained attack

BY RICH LOWRY

NATIONAL REVIEW

President Barack Obama can't even get his snark straight.

In an attempt at the cutting cleverness that escaped him during his first debate with Mitt Romney, his campaign aired a TV ad hitting the Republican for his alleged hostility to Big Bird. "Mitt Romney knows it's not Wall Street you have to worry about," the ominous voice-over declares. "It's 'Sesame Street.'"

The problem with the widely panned spot is that it plays less like a spoof of Mitt Romney than a parody of one of the Obama team's own negative ads. It's as dishonest, over the top and -- for lack of a better word -- stupid.

Lowry

The president of the United States himself -- the man who once pledged to elevate our politics and make the oceans recede -- has made Big Bird a recurring feature of his stump speeches. He also cites Elmo and Oscar as other characters who need to "watch out." (The president apparently cares nothing about the fate of Mr. Snuffleupagus, who never rates a mention.)

Obama told an adoring throng at one of his events that Romney "said he'd bring down our deficit by going after what has been the biggest driver of our debt and deficits over the last decade -- public television, PBS." On "Sesame Street," they would tell you Obama's statement is spelled U-N-T-R-U-E.

Stipulating "I love Big Bird," Romney said he would stop the subsidy to PBS, not because it is a big expenditure in the scheme of things, but because he doesn't want to spend on unnecessary items we must "borrow money from China to pay for."

Romney's point is unremarkable. The Corporation for Public Broadcasting gets more than $400 million a year from the federal government. If this is an essential expenditure at a time of $1 trillion deficits and a $16 trillion debt, what is nonessential? Besides, if the line item for the Corporation for Public Broadcasting were zeroed out tomorrow, it wouldn't ruffle a feather on Big Bird. On CNN, Sherrie Westin, executive vice president of the Sesame Workshop, cited all the organization's private funding and declared that, even without government help, "Sesame Street" will be here.

Someone should load that up in the president's teleprompter so he's sure to read it. Then, he might at least hesitate before whipping up a crowd -- like the one in Cleveland recently -- into chants of "Save Big Bird!"

To the extent it isn't purely cynical, the president's "Sesame Street" offensive is an extreme example of the belief that civil society is all but helpless without the guidance and succor of government. As if private actors can't be trusted to keep a popular children's program featuring iconic puppets on the air, or to preserve the "PBS NewsHour," or to find a way to broadcast "Downton Abbey" in the United States.

What really boggles the mind, though, is that the president is touring the country a few weeks before a consequential national election talking about a fictional bird. To paraphrase Joseph Welch at the Army-McCarthy hearings, "Have you no sense of self-respect, sir? At long last, have you left no sense of self-respect?"

Rich Lowry is editor of the National Review.

Social media can sink a campaign

If you've ever said something on a first date that you knew, a fraction of a second after you said it, that there wouldn't be a second date, you have an idea of what candidates for the Kansas House and Senate are worried about now.

It's that comment that gets the front door slammed in the candidate's face or has members of the audience at a public forum whispering to each other "he/she said what?" or starts a Twitter firestorm before the candidate even gets back to the car.

That's why several candidates are skipping public forums and hoping their mailers will win voters' hearts without risking a misstatement or comment that will cause problems in the waning days of the campaign.

It puts a strange cast on campaigns, this fear that one misstatement or ill-thought-out response to a question can virtually shut down a campaign.

But, it's probably true that the instant media that most people carry in their pockets—with social media access to spread text, with little cameras to broadcast out videos/words—have changed campaigning, in fact changed nearly anything that happens on public property and in good light.

Is that a good thing? Hard to tell.

There's this new concept of "transparency" that everyone should be able to know everything that happens in campaigns and in government. Probably not a bad idea, but it turns politics and government into a series of snapshots that rarely provide the background and context that make it possible to fully understand what you're seeing or hearing.

Sorta like those family group photos; you know, the one where everyone looks nice—except for the brother-in-law who is scratching when the shutter clicked. That's the only piece of the picture that anyone remembers. Yes, we all have a photo like that somewhere in a desk drawer.

This all-the-time-on business probably has some candidates scared, or at least a little slow to respond to questions for fear that just one slip will be the one that everyone sees and hears about and reads about and doesn't fully understand because of lack of context.

by Martin Hawver KANSAS STATEHOUSE COLUMNIST

Does this mean that you aren't really going to get to know the candidate who is after your vote? That everything is either scripted or printed out so that you never really get the feeling of what the candidate is all about, or what he/she wants to do? Maybe, for candidates who aren't strong on social skills or who are running to accomplish one thing and don't want to talk about it...and there are candidates like that out there on the ballot.

But that doesn't mean that you can't try to get them to respond to questions, if you're casual and non-confrontational about how you ask them. Or if you take a little time to ask a candidate to elaborate, or say you aren't sure if you are picking up on the specifics of what's being said.

It's actually going to take a little work to figure out some candidates, and that's a change from how campaigns used to be.

Makes it a new ballgame for folks lucky enough to have a minute or two with the candidates to figure them out...

The city manager says the new sidewalks have been approved by inspectors. There's a hole in the one on Walnut Street in front of the old school. How come we can make the homeowners pay for those sidewalks in front of their place, but not the school? If someone falls into that hole, who gets sued, the city or the school district or both?

This county and the city of Garnett is beginning to look like a junkyard. The county and the city commissioners need to get started on cleaning up this mess. We look terrible around here.

I attended the candidate forum the other night in Garnett and I was surprised by the lack of respect given to Mr. (name deleted) by the moderator and the other powers that be in attendance at the forum. Isn't this forum supposed to be about hearing the responses of the candidates to our questions. Mr. (deleted) had questions and whether or not you like him or not or whether or not you agree with him or not he should have as much right as any of the town hot shots to ask his question and get his answer. I was appalled at the behavior of the moderator, the candidates involved and certain members of the crowd. You should all be ashamed of yourselves.

I want to know when the City of Garnett is going to make the 500 block of East Fourth no parking on the north side. Here it is Wednesday night and trash night and I can't hardly get out of my driveway. I'm getting tired of it. They need to do something. They can do sidewalks for everybody else, why can't they make it no parking?

We have got an over abundance of stray cats that nobody wants. If we can get them all spayed and neutered, we could put them in an animal shelter in Anderson County, then maybe we could fix this problem. I've taken six cats up to the animal shelter in the last three weeks at $40 a pop. I can't afford to keep doing this. I just saw four more kittens and their mother that have nowhere to go. We need to face the fact of what to do with these cats and dogs and we need to have an animal shelter in Anderson County.

Vote 'yes' on watercraft amendment

Attention Boat Owners: On the Nov. 6, 2012, ballot is a state constitutional amendment. This amendment "would allow Legislature to classify and tax watercraft upon a basis different from other property."

The whole amendment is a page long - very small print. Read the first three paragraphs.

We need to make this tax fair. A "yes" vote could lower the tax on watercraft.

A lot of boats are registered out of state to keep from paying the higher Kansas tax.

2012 Election: Candidate Comparison

Kansas House of Representatives

District 4

Shirley Palmer, D

Marty Read, R

What do you see as the most important issue facing Kansans and what is your solution?

PALMER: I believe the most important issue facing Kansas is need to create and retain good paying jobs for Kansas workers. As State Representative, I supported targeted tax incentives to attract new businesses to our state and to allow existing businesses to invest and grow. I also support efforts to ensure that businesses who receive state tax incentives or state contracts hire Kansas workers. When our state is in desperate need of jobs it makes no sense for the taxpayer money to go toward creating jobs for people from out of state and we should definitely not be contracting with businesses that ship jobs overseas.

READ: The most pressing issue facing not only Kansas but the nation is jobs. Reducing taxes and burdensome regulations help businesses flourish which aids our schools and Kansas.

What is your opinion of Gov. Brownback's tax reduction budget plan?

PALMER: I am quite concerned with the tax bill. It is projected that the bill will lead to a $2.5 billion hole in the state budget by 2018. This is nearly half of the state's general fund budget. Getting out of a budget hole that deep will lead to deep cuts to our local schools who are already dealing with historic cuts totaling nearly $500 million. We are seeing the impacts of the cuts that have already happened with schools closing, class sizes increasing, teachers being laid off and math and reading test scores declining. Additional deep school cut will have severe consequences for the ability of our children and grandchildren to compete for the jobs of tomorrow. The tax bill also eliminates important tax rebates such as the food sales tax rebate and the mortgage loan rebate along with cutting the state's earned income tax credit and will lead to higher property taxes for all of us in the future.

READ: I believe the new tax reduction plan will give Kansas the advantage for attracting businesses to Kansas. We are in competition with each state surrounding our state. This puts Kansas in a favorable light for new growth and a healthy economy.

Some Republican lawmakers were found to have committed "technical violations" of open meetings law at a governor's dinner earlier this year. Explain your interpretation of how open records and open meetings laws apply to state legislators.

PALMER: I don't know all of the specifics regarding the dinners at the Governor's mansion, but I would say that it is important that we have transparency in government. Legislative committee hearings and floor debates regarding proposed laws are open meetings with advance public notice for a reason. Every citizen should have the right should they choose to observe and participate as legislators make public policy decisions that will impact them. In that regard I believe it is improper for a majority of the members of a committee to meet behind closed doors to hold substantive discussions regarding issues before that committee. Whether intentional or not, we should seek to avoid the appearance that issues are being decided in secret without public input.

READ: When I served 8 years on the board of Linn County Commissioners, I was very aware of the open meetings law and I will abide by the law.

District 5

Bill Feuerborn, D

Kevin Jones, R

What do you see as the most important issue facing Kansans and what is your solution?

FEUERBORN: Quality Jobs, Tax Fairness, and Quality Schools. Job creation is my top priority. Good jobs require a well-educated and trained workforce. In 2010, I voted for the transportation program which will provide over 175,000 jobs in the next 10 years. I believe property taxes are already too high in Kansas and I will continue to resist efforts to shift state responsibilities down to the local property taxpayers. I believe quality education creates sound building blocks for future generations and Kansas needs to properly fund a quality education. In 2011, I voted against the largest cut to public education in our state's history.

JONES: Our most pressing issue is cashflow. Under the Sebelius/Parkinson administration the size of government and spending has exponentially increased to the point Kansans are living beyond our means as a State. Then, the economy goes down and the State can't sustain itself with its current income. That's when we are left with a choice: we either trust the government to fix the situation by raising taxes in a recessed economic time to make up for the difference, or we decide to leave the money in the hands of our great people to build our economy back. I believe we have the greatest people in the nation right here and that we are up to the task of building our Kansas economy back.

What is your opinion of Gov. Brownback's tax reduction budget plan?

FEUERBORN: I voted against this reckless tax policy and do not support it. The Governor's tax policy is an unfair tax break for the wealthy and corporations creating a $2.5 billion dollar shortfall over the next six years. This budget shortfall will force our local communities to raise property taxes to maintain our schools. I owned and operated a convenience store/ truck stop outside of Garnett. Under the Governor's plan, as the owner, I would not pay business income taxes but all my employees would pay personal income tax. Common sense tells us that this is not responsible tax policy.

I believe we can do better and cut taxes that use common sense with a fair and balanced approach. In 2012 I supported a measure to provide $90 million in property tax relief to Kansas over the next two years without putting our budget or schools at risk.

JONES: I support Governor Brownback's tax plan... because it can work. I would support it if Sebelius came up with it. The name on the plan does not really matter. Raising the taxes on us - the taxpayers - doesn't work if you want a limited government (a smarter & more efficient). The pivotal issue in this equation is our Kansas economy. Our elected officials in positions of authority have failed to do something that is second nature for any properly trained buck-sergeant in the United States Army: dissemination of information. The vision of our leadership in Topeka has not been disseminated into the hearts of the people. Without vision, we will fight each other and perish. I see a Kansas with a thriving economy, with thankful business owners that are able to hire extra employees, with young and new companies excited for the future, and a reputation that Kansas truly is the best state in our nation. Our kids want to go to the best... We want that for them. Now is the time to start a small business, or for that matter, a big business. Now is the time to encourage and empower our kids by showing the pride and belief we have in our State. This is how you make an economy grow.

Some Republican lawmakers were found to have committed "technical violations" of open meetings law at a governor's dinner earlier this year. Explain your interpretation of how open records and open meetings laws apply to state legislators.

FEUERBORN: As a legislator, I believe a representative government is dependent upon an informed electorate and we need to be transparent in our actions. I support the Kansas Open Meetings Act (KOMA) and the Kansas Open Records Act (KORA) that allow citizens the right to have access to public records and observe meetings where decisions are made that affect our state.

JONES: We need true accountability. When a group of people in positions of authority get together to discuss issues and make decisions, it should be announced and open to those that it could effect. Records should also be available to those that request them.

CASSELLS... PALMER... FEUERBORN...

Kansas Senate - 12th District

Denise Cassells, D

Caryn Tyson, R

What do you see as the most important issue facing Kansans and what is your solution?

CASSELLS: The most important issue facing our state is creating jobs. With the tenth highest property taxes in this country, we must lower this cost by reinstating the local ad valorem tax relief fund, which worked well in Kansas from 1938 through the early 2000s. In the last 13 years our property taxes have doubled - this hurts businesses, families and prevents new job opportunities in local communities. Basing refunds on county population, each year, local officials would be required to apply 80 percent of the tax refund toward reducing property tax costs.

TYSON: An important issue facing Kansans is job creation and improving our local economy. The solution is making sure the recent tax cuts are effective in achieving these ends.

What is your opinion of Gov. Brownback's tax reduction budget plan?

CASSELLS: Gov. Brownback and my opponent's tax bill is very unfavorable to anyone earning under $250,000 per year. By eliminating 40 percent of our state revenue, this bill will ensure that our property taxes will continue to skyrocket. Local communities will be forced to raise more revenue by increasing the amount local residents must shell out to fund public services. Unfortunately, people often do not understand the value of these services until they are no longer available. These are the very services that add value to being an American. The tax bill passed is not a tax cut, rather, it is a tax shift to local communities.

TYSON: The tax plan originated in the Senate and then passed the House. It was not what Governor Brownback expected. The State needed to cut taxes so the Governor signed it into law. The State needed to attract businesses and at the same time balance the budget. That was not going to happen with our high taxes and over spending.

Instead of being one of the highest tax states in the Midwest, we are now one of the lowest. The law cut taxes for over 190,000 small businesses and all individual taxpayers. This will help our State economy, allowing small businesses to create jobs and bringing new businesses to Kansas. Our seniors and other taxpayers will be able to keep more of their money. The tax plan is needed and I will do my best to make it work. I support it.

Some Republican lawmakers were found to have committed "technical violations" of open meetings law at a governor's dinner earlier this year. Explain your interpretation of how open records and open meetings laws apply to state legislators.

CASSELLS: Any governmental body that sets policy or tax issues representing the people is subject to the Kansas Open Meeting Act requirements. Three conditions that must be met qualify as a "meeting" for the disclosure of public information. - Any accommodating communications through any means, any get-together of a majority of a governing body, and any discussion of business or matters pertaining to that body. As a journalist who covered school board, city council, and commissioner meetings, I know this information is readily made available without request to reporters and elected officials. An instant red flag should have prompted officials to withdraw their presence from meetings at the Governor's mansion when "public policy" was being discussed in a private meeting. KOMA is designed to inform the public through transparency of what our elected officials are deciding, and how those decisions will impact our daily life.

TYSON: I am not an expert on "technical violations" but I take every precaution possible to make sure that I am within the law at all times as I represent my constituents.

so with you. Instead, whoever wants to become great among you must be your servant, and whoever wants to be first must be your slave - just as the Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve, and to give his life as a ransom for many."

It would be my pleasure to serve the people of our great state in this capacity.

Secondly, I care deeply about my home State and about its future. I see the day that Kansans take heartfelt pride in the place we call home and don't back down from those that say otherwise. I see the day when not only do other States flock to find out what we are doing right, but also people come to visit just because of our reputation and because it is the "place to be."

Having served in the military, I have lived in many different places and traveled all over. I have never met better people than those in Kansas. Kansas has the greatest people in our nation, and our State should be a reflection of that, not taking advantage of that. I look forward to helping others see and share the greatness in Kansas.

Moody, AC girls head to State cross country

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Senior Amanda Moody hustled up a 4th place finish last week when Anderson County High School hosted the 4A Regional Cross Country Meet, ensuring herself a berth at the 4A State Meet this weekend and leading her team to a squad appearance at the state meet as well.

State regionals qualify the top 10 individual finishers and the top three team scores. AC's girls came out in 3rd place behind Paola and Baldwin.

Moody finished the course in 16:43.75. Garnett's next finisher was Isabel Sibley in 19th at 17:20.18; Gwendolyn Sibley in 25th at 17:40.37, Paige Scheckel in 26th at 17:41.78; Bailee Wilson 42nd 18:25.28; Eliza Sibley 49th 18:41.87 and Remington Hedges 50th 18:41.31.

Katren Reinbolt of Fort Scott won the individual race with a time of 15:32.43. Moody and her team now head to Wamego next Saturday, Oct. 27, for the 4A state competition.

Sophomore Vincent Trujillo topped the AC runners in the boys competition with 42nd place in 20:11.28. He was followed by Tyler Jument 49th 20:22.78; Nathan Patterson 56th 20:36.52; Star Carter 74th 21:07.5 and Blaine Katzer 88th 22:45.65.

Baldwin's Ethan Hartzell was 1st in the boys run with a time of 17:12.16. Team qualifiers in the boys competition included Baldwin, Ottawa and Iola, finishing the regional in that order.

Bulldogs fall in L'burg sub-state

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

LOUISBURG - The AC Bulldogs ended their season short of a trip to the Kansas 4A Volleyball tournament when they fell in successive matches at the Louisburg Sub-state on Saturday. Louisburg eventually dumped Osawatomie and now advances to the state tournament.

Garnett did however manage to revenge an earlier season loss to Baldwin in the opening round when the 'Dawgs picked up a 27-25, 23-25, 25-20 win, with the help of powerhouse serving from Alex Garbarino in the last set. But it was poor serving overall that hampered the Bulldogs in the second round against Osawatomie, and AC ended up dropping the match 25-15, 25-15 to fall in single elimination.

"We didn't serve well," said head coach Glenn Suderman.

"We also did not take advantage of Taylor Soucie when she was on the back row."

The loss meant the end of the season for ACHS and a season record of 25-12. Suderman said he had been impressed this season by his exiting seniors.

"The senior girls really improved each of their high school seasons. It will be very difficult to replace them. I'll miss them and wish them the best of luck."

AC girls play well but fall short at state

The beautiful Hesston Golf Course was the site for the 4A girls state golf tournament on Monday, Oct. 15. ACHS senior, Carolyn Hermreck and junior, Bailey Rockers prepared for their return trip to the state competition.

The 4A region in Kansas has some extremely talented golfers and they were competing well against each other in Hesston. Buhler H.S. hosted the tournament. Girard's Timbrelee McNair won first place with a 72 in a playoff with Anna Pool from Coffeyville who took second.

For the A.C. Bulldogs, Carolyn Hermreck played consistently throughout the day and finished with a score of 111, placing 62nd overall. Bailey Rockers also played well overall, but fell short of her personal goal of medaling in the top 20. She finished with a final score of 100 and placed 37th out of 89 participants. Twenty medals were awarded for scores ranging from 72 to 91- a testament to the level of golf in the region.

It was the final high school golf competition for Hermreck who was excited to go to state one last time. Rockers will return to the team for her senior year at ACHS with the goal of bringing home a state medal.

Bulldogs 3rd in home tourney

BY DAN MORGAN THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - With good setting and hitting the Anderson County varsity volleyball team placed 3rd at their home tournament on October 13. Wellsville captured 1st.

In pool play, Anderson County defeated Fort Scott 23-25, 25-12, 25-12. In match 2, the Bulldogs beat Prairie View 25-18, 25-16. In match 3, Labette County took advantage of the Bulldogs missed serves and beat AC 25-21, 20-25, 25-17.

In the semifinals, Wellsville, the #2 Class 3A team in Kansas, survived the Bulldogs in a close match 25-14, 21-25 and 25-21. The consolation match for 3rd place once again pitted Labette County against AC. In this match the Dawgs served well and hit even better. AC got a payback win of 25-18, 25-17 capturing 3rd place.

Jaime Mersman

was selected to the All Tournament team. Some notable Bulldog performances by individuals in the tournament:

Best Server: Ashlyn Martin with 9 aces.

Best Hitters: Jaime Mersman with 58 kills and Britton Brownrigg with 48 kills.

Top Blocker: Jaime Mersman with 10.

Top Setter: Annsley Graham 98% and 138 assists.

Meeting to address drought concerns

Are you looking at your hay reserves and wondering what it will cost to feed your animals if we have a harsh winter? Do you have household and livestock water use concerns due to drought and water restrictions? If so, plan to attend a Drought Concerns: Water Issues and Livestock Feeding meeting being held on Wednesday, October 24, 2012, starting at 6:00 P.M. in the Anderson County Community Building at North Lake Park, Garnett. Anderson County Extension and the Anderson County Farm Service Agency are teaming up to host this event.

Topics that will be covered include livestock water quality and quantity considerations, Emergency Conservation Program (ECP) cost-share availability and application questions, water restrictions, livestock winter feeding (cattle, horse, and goat) with consideration for high hay prices, limit-feeding forages and economic considerations. Presenters will include Jaymelynn Farney, brand new K-State Southeast Area Extension Beef Systems Specialist; Herschel George, K-State Marais de Cygnes Watershed Specialist; Doug Peine, Anderson County FSA Director; and Shannon Blocker, Anderson County Agriculture Extension Agent.

Please pre-register by noon, Tuesday, March 23, 2012, by calling Anderson County Extension at (785) 448-6826. You can also e-mail sblocker@ksu.edu. Supper will be provided by local sponsors including: Brummel Farm Service and Valley R Agriculture (others likely but still being confirmed).

K-State Research & Extension is committed to making its services, activities and programs accessible to all participants. If you have special requirements due to a physical, vision or hearing disability, please contact Shannon Blocker, Anderson County Agriculture Extension Agent at (785) 448-6826.

Santa Fe Depot to transform into Haunted Library

GARNETT - The Friends of the Prairie Spirit Trail are celebrating the 17th year of hosting the annual children's haunted house at the Santa Fe Depot.

Hundreds of children have been entertained on Halloween at this favorite trick-or-treat spot along the trail. The historic Santa Fe Depot is located on the Prairie Spirit at 7th and Main in Garnett. KLA young stockmen's academy learns more about beef, dairy industries

TOPEKA - Members of the 2012 Kansas Livestock Association (KLA) Young Stockmen's Academy (YSA) met in western Kansas October 2-4 for the class's third seminar of the year. The group, consisting of 20 KLA members from across the state, spent three days touring beef and dairy operations representing various segments of each industry. Vista from Merck Animal Health is the exclusive sponsor of this program.

Stops were made at Larson Angus Ranch near Sharon Springs and Ferguson Brothers of Kensington. Members of the Larson family explained how they use selective breeding to develop a cowherd that produces premium bulls for their seed-stock customers. In addition to his commercial cow-calf operation, Jon Ferguson purchases stocker cattle to background. He explained to the class his management practices and how he meets the nutritional requirements for these cattle through a silage-based feed ration and rotational grazing.

YSA class members saw how ultrasound is used to group cattle based upon the estimated days to finish at Decatur County Feedyard near Oberlin. A stop at Circle Bar Heifer Ranch near Satanta gave the group insight into how dairy heifers are managed and developed. During a tour of Dairy Ventures at Tribune, the class was able to tour the milking parlor, maternity barn and commodity barn to learn how everything works together to provide a safe milk product to consumers.

A tour of the Tyson beef processing plant in Holcomb gave the group a firsthand look at how beef is processed and readied for delivery to the world's consumers. The class also visited the KLA West office in Scott City, where they heard about the various functions of KLA Environmental Services.

The 2012 class includes Shea Baird, Levant; Beau Beyer, Le Roy; Tyler Breeden, Quinter; Brett Brownback, Centerville; Brandi Buzzard, Manhattan; Lance Cline, Onaga; Bo Downing, Longton; Calder Keller, Oakley; Tyler Leonhard, Beatrice, NE; Leanne Litton, Beloit; Drew Obermeyer, Marysville; Kyra O' Brien, Hepler; Alycia Penewit, Satanta; Wyatt Rundel, Wichita; Garrett Schultz, Manhattan; Nathan Simmons, Hesston; Sam States, Logan; Kiley Stinson, Allen; Andrea Stroberg, Manhattan; and Chelsea Townsend, Larned.

The fourth YSA session will be held during the KLA Convention, November 28 through November 30. YSA members will have the opportunity to attend educational sessions and help form policy during council and committee meetings that will guide the association in 2013.

Trick, treat or prank?

Halloween is rapidly approaching and how about all those "trick or treaters" and "pranksters".

Until well after the turn of this century, many acts by youngsters that today are branded as vandalism and juvenile delinquency were regarded as mere mischief, childish pranks, or good wholesome fun, and many of the deeds that were viewed with tolerance if not amusement in those days would today lead the perpetrators to juvenile court, boy's training school, or at least probation.

Halloween was the time when these pranks were most likely to be performed. It was taken for granted then that front gates would be removed and perhaps hung on the church steeple, privies would be overturned, and weak fences would be pulled over.

Fun-loving boys would tie a string to two cans and place one on each side of the sidewalk so that pedestrians would trip in the dark and drag them along with their feet, and buckets of water would be suspended above doorways to spill when the doors opened.

Boys would place pins in doorbells so they would ring continuously, or ring a doorbell and then run before the owner could open the door and catch them. They would throw corn against windowpanes to frighten the occupants of a house and write on the windows with soap. Sometimes the corn throwing was done on a special night, known as corn night, one or two days ahead of Halloween as sort of warm-up. The same was true of Tick-tack night when spoons with notches in the ends would be placed in a pencil or small stitch and revolved against first-floor windows with the aid of a string wound around them.

People hardly paid any attention at all to shooting at weather vanes and sign boards and sawing light poles halfway through so they would tumble in a strong wind.

In addition to the usual special attentions at Halloween, any citizen who incurred the ill will of a group of youngsters by spoiling their fun or being too cranky could expect such retribution as having their front door painted with syrup to attract bugs and flies, having stray cats put inside their back door, or being pelted with snowballs.

Other "pranks" which have been pretty well stamped out include tying a tin can to a dog's tail to frighten him when he ran; painting the rear end of a dog or cat with turpentine, causing them to rush around in a frenzy; dipping a girl's long tresses into an inkwell on the school desk back of her, and putting tacks on the chair seat of a teacher or a schoolmate.

Milder pranks consisted of harassing sister and her boyfriend by scaring them with pumpkin faces, firecrackers, animal noises and the like. Even grandpa and grandma weren't immune from a little scaring when fireworks were around.

In larger communities, at least, it no longer is the practice to kidnap a bride after the wedding, so as to worry the bridegroom, and we no longer hear much about the shivaree. Known also as charivan or callithump, the shivaree was a prolonged serenade of loud noises and cat calls beneath the bedroom windows of a newly married couple. Horns, drums, kettles, whistles and other noise makers were employed to keep the young couples awake and force them to appear at the window and perhaps admit the crowd for refreshments. This "prank" was great fun for all but the bride and groom.

1912: Woman fights for voting right

The Kansas Highway Patrol supervisor of the belated investigation into the traffic accident that killed two Central Heights High School students near Scipio last May says there may be very little evidence with which to conduct an accident reconstruction to assist a criminal prosecution in the case. The request for the reconstruction came some two months after the incident. Most such investigations are conducted within a few hours of the incident when evidence is still fresh.

Anderson County Sheriff Darin Dalsing told a small group of local residents an expanded Anderson County Jail could gross as much as $800,000 to $1 million revenues in 2005, providing $650,000 to $850,000 in net revenues to help pay off sales tax bonds if voters approve the jail issue on Nov. 5.

Laura Gregg Cannon, of Garnett, is having some experiences on her suffrage speaking tour that sound more like fiction than fact. They show, however, just how determined the women of Kansas are to have the amendment passed. Last week's Woman's Journal tells of an unusual happening in Wilcox, Ariz., where Mrs. Cannon was to make an address. A heavy storm delayed the train for 24 hours, but rather than miss the appointment, Mrs. Cannon, assisted by men and women, bridged the river with planks and hung signal lights announcing that the meeting would not be postponed. The result was that a most enthusiastic league was organized.

A new water tower, new water lines and a community water building are part of a $1.2 million project underway in Colony. Colony's water system will eventually be hooked up to a water treatment plant eight miles south of Colony. The project was necessitated by a combination of failing water lines and an inadequate supply of water from Deer Creek, which dries up every three years. The new systems will draw water from the Neosho River once the new treatment plant is completed.

Foreign persons must report U.S. agricultural land holdings

Anderson County USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA) Executive Director Doug Peine, reminds foreign persons with an interest in agricultural lands in the United States that they are required to report their holdings and any transactions to the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture.

"Any foreign person who acquires, transfers or holds any interest, other than a security interest, in agricultural land in the United States is required by law to report the transaction no later than 90 days after the date of the transaction," said Peine.

Foreign investors must file Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act (AFIDA) reports with the FSA county office that maintains reports for the county where the land is located.

"Failure to file a report, filing a late report or filing an inaccurate report can result in a penalty with fines up to 25 percent of the fair market value of the agricultural land," said

Peine.

For AFIDA purposes, agricultural land is defined as any land used for farming, ranching or timber production, if the tracts total 10 acres or more.

Disclosure reports are also required when there are changes in land use. For example, reports are required when land use changes from nonagricultural to agricultural or from agricultural to nonagricultural. Foreign investors must also file a report when there is a change in the status of ownership such as owner changes from foreign to non-foreign, from non-foreign to foreign or from foreign to foreign.

Data gained from these disclosures is used to prepare an annual report to the President and Congress concerning the effect of such holdings upon family farms and rural communities in the United States.

For more information regarding AFIDA and FSA programs, contact the Anderson County FSA office at 1-620-365-2901 or visit the USDA Web site at <http://www.usda.gov>.

A PROPOSITION to amend section 1 of article 11 of the constitution of the state of Kansas, relating to classification and taxation of watercraft, to be submitted to the electors of the state at the general election to be held on November 6, 2012.

House Concurrent Resolution No. 5017

§ 1. System of taxation; classification; exemption. (a) The provisions of this subsection shall govern the assessment and taxation of property on and after January 1, 2013, and each year thereafter. Except as otherwise hereinafter specifically provided, the legislature shall provide for a uniform and equal basis of valuation and rate of taxation of all property subject to taxation. The legislature may provide for the classification and the taxation uniformly as to class of recreational vehicles and watercraft, as defined by the legislature, or may exempt such class from property taxation and impose taxes upon another basis in lieu thereof. The provisions of this subsection shall not be applicable to the taxation of motor vehicles, except as otherwise hereinafter specifically provided, mineral products, money, mortgages, notes and other evidence of debt and grain. Property shall be classified into the following classes for the purpose of assessment and assessed at the percentage of value prescribed therefor:

Class 1 shall consist of real property. Real property shall be further classified into seven subclasses. Such property shall be defined by law for the purpose of subclassification and assessed uniformly as to subclass at the following percentages of value:

- (1) Real property used for residential purposes including multifamily residential real property and real property necessary to accommodate a residential community of mobile or manufactured homes including the real property upon which such homes are located....1 1/2%
- (2) Land devoted to agricultural use which shall be valued upon the basis of its agricultural income or agricultural productivity pursuant to section 12 of article 11 of the constitution....30%
- (3) Vacant lots....12%
- (4) Real property which is owned and operated by a not-for-profit organization not subject to federal income taxation pursuant to section 501 of the federal internal revenue code, and which is included in this subclass by law....12%
- (5) Public utility real property, except railroad real property which shall be assessed at the average rate that all other commercial and industrial property is assessed....33%
- (6) Real property used for commercial and industrial purposes and buildings and other improvements located upon land devoted to agricultural use....25%
- (7) All other urban and rural real property not otherwise specifically subclassified....30%

Class 2 shall consist of tangible personal property. Such tangible personal property shall be further classified into six subclasses, shall be defined by law for the purpose of subclassification and assessed uniformly as to subclass at the following percentages of value:

- (1) Mobile homes used for residential purposes....11 1/2%
- (2) Mineral leasehold interests except oil leasehold interests the average daily production from which is five barrels or less, and natural gas leasehold interests the average daily production from which is 100 mcf or less, which shall be assessed at 25%30%
- (3) Public utility tangible personal property including inventories thereof, except railroad personal property including inventories thereof, which shall be assessed at the average rate all other commercial and industrial property is assessed....33%
- (4) All categories of motor vehicles not defined and specifically valued and taxed pursuant to law enacted prior to January 1, 198530%
- (5) Commercial and industrial machinery and equipment which, if its economic life is seven years or more, shall be valued at its retail cost when new less seven-year straight-line depreciation, or which, if its economic life is less than seven years, shall be valued at its retail cost when new less straight-line depreciation over its economic life, except that, the value so obtained for such property, notwithstanding its economic life and as long as such property is being used, shall not be less than 20% of the retail cost when new of such property....25%
- (6) All other tangible personal property not otherwise specifically classified....30%

(b) All property used exclusively for state, county, municipal, literary, educational, scientific, religious, benevolent and charitable purposes, farm machinery and equipment, merchants' and manufacturers' inventories, other than public utility inventories included in subclass (3) of class 2, livestock, and all household goods and personal effects not used for the production of income, shall be exempt from property taxation.

Explanatory statement. This amendment would allow the legislature to classify and tax watercraft upon a basis different from other property. A vote for this proposition would permit the legislature to provide for separate classification and taxation of watercraft or to exempt such property from property taxation and impose taxes in lieu thereof. A vote against this proposition would continue the taxation of watercraft in the same manner as all other property.

Harvest for Him: The children's church group at the Christian Church is sponsoring a "Harvest for Him" carnival, fun music for the kids, trunk or treat and a soup supper 5-7 p.m. on Oct. 28. This will be held from the Christian Church on Maple Street south to Broad Street. One ticket per booth; free tickets are given if you bring canned goods, labels from Best Choice products, box top for education points or a used printer cartridge. A soup supper will be served for a donation. Costumes are not required, but if you prefer to wear a costume, please keep it friendly. The community is invited to participate.

Donations/proceeds will go to the mission's work that the children's church has been supporting. This is not a church fundraiser. It is a children's fundraiser exclusively for mission's work. In the event of inclement weather, the event will be held in the city hall community room. A great time for all and community is invited to be involved!

BOE

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education of Crest Unified School District #479 was held Oct. 8. Purchasing of a van for special education use was a business item; approval of an additional $500 engineering fee for the driveway project and personnel was discussed in an executive session.

Richard Burkdoll, elementary principal reported the annual Title I parent meeting will be held Oct. 23 and Halloween parade is Oct. 31 at 2 p.m. Superintendent Jerry Turner reported bus driver appreciation day is Oct. 17, technology committee met and updates to the district technology plan will be made, lunchroom will be able to accommodate disabled students, and teacher evaluations are being reviewed to be in compliant with the regulations of KSDE.

Fire Dept.: Firemen held their Oct. 3 meeting with eleven members present. They trained with rescue equipment, such as Jaws of Life from the Garnett Fire Dept. and cars donated from Ray's Metal Depot. A new member joined them, Shane Jones. Five Prevention Week was Oct. 7-13; on the 11th firemen Luke Decker, Paul Stephens, Thomas Dietrich, KeWade Seabolt, Eric Seabolt, Scott Hendrix, Randy Runnels and Ron Johnson visited Crest preschool through 5th grades demonstrating full bunker gear with air mask and how a firefighter sounds with mask on. Then the kids got to see the fire trucks.

Oct. 13 the EMT class from Garnett was at the Colony station to learn extrication. Colony firemen assisting with the training were Michael Steedley, Paul Stephens, Luke Decker, KeWade Seabolt, Randy Runnels and Sarah McDaniel.

Firemen advise a safe home plan of fire escape practice twice yearly. Make arrangements for anyone who has a disability, allow children to master fire escape planning and practice before holding a fire drill at night when they are sleeping - practice, don't frighten. Families should practice getting low and going under the smoke to the exit. Close doors on the way to slow spread of fire, giving more time to safely escape. Smoke or fire may prevent exiting a home, so prepare for an emergency - practice sealing yourself in safely. As you close doors between you and the fire, use duct tape or towels to seal the door cracks, cover air vents to keep smoke from entering and open windows at top and/or bottom for fresh air. Call fire department and report your exact location. Wave a flashlight or light-colored cloth for firemen to determine your location.

Around Town: Be sure to vote on Nov. 6, as it is very important for our country. Our nation is facing a financial crisis. The future is in the hands of the American voter. We must show our commitment to our community by casting a strong vote for our future.

for Noon on Nov. 14 is "Gifts from the Kitchen-Lots of fun ideas for gift giving. This will be held at the Anderson County Annex, west side of the courthouse square at 12:10 and ends around 12:50 p.m. RSVP by phoning the K-State Research and Extension office at 785-448-6826.

November celebrations are: Anniversaries-24-GregandTerri Jackman; 25, Ralph and Evelyn Bunnel; Birthdays-2, Richard Buckle, Myrtle Francis; 7, Peyton Schmidt, Garret Strickler; 9, Bonnie Rook, Leonard Wools; 10, Dorothy Fillmore; 13, Glenda Comstock; 14, Twila Luedke; 17, Jeff Strickler; 20-Tiffany Jackman; 22, Dennis Allen, Terri Jackman; 23, Nancy Ellington, Greg Jackman.

Congratulations to Kyle Hammond and Brytton Strickler, Crest homecoming King and Queen. Kyle is the son of Chad and Brenna Hammond and Brytton, daughter of Todd and Sammye Strickler, all of Colony.

Ed and Nancy Ellington have purchased a portion of the late Bill Michael property in west Colony. This portion squares up their property line.

Mark Luedke took his parents, Morris and Allene, to North Kansas City Oct. 14 where they met with friends at their annual get-together. They also visited another friend and his wife who is recovering from major heart surgery.

Myrtle Francis displayed 56 full-sized quilts and four babies quilts Oct. 13 at the Iola Nursing Home. Around 45 people viewed the quilts. Following the display she gave her daughters Kloma Buckle and Janila Preston and her three grandchildren Melissa Hobbs, Tom Buckle and Teresa Hall and her great-grandsons, Sage and Brock Hall, Nate and Gabe Berry, Brody Hobbs, Levi, Blake and Noah Ashmore each their choice of quilts. Dorothy McGhee won the raffle. $362 was raised for the activity fund at the home. Her family appreciates those who attended.

Sympathy is expressed to John Reiter, other family members and friends at the death of John's daughter Pat Bain, 63, who died at the her home Oct. 11. Graveside services were held Oct. 15 at Colony Cemetery.

Why we can't always do what we should

The Apostle Paul in Romans says, "The good that I would, I do not, that which I would not, that I do." (Romans 7:19) I believe Paul is saying even though I know what I should do and what I want to do I don't always do it. Sometimes I (Paul) do exactly what I don't want to do.

The Christian lives with in a battlefield of conflicting desires. Not much has changed since Paul's time for me. I have the same struggle. The only comfort I can find is I live in a world full of people who are prone to the same struggle.

Man has always been able to sin and we will continue that way until we reach our glorified state. At that point we will be unable to sin. The issue is we have some period of time called the rest of our life to live before we reach this state. Before the fall man was able to refrain from sinning. This ability, the ability to not sin, was lost in the fall.

There is only one way to overcome this and that is by spiritual rebirth. Jesus clearly illustrates this in his conversation with Nicodemus in John 3. Jesus told Nicodemus, "I tell you the truth, no one can see the kingdom of God unless he is born again." (John 3:3) That is born from above. This means putting off the old nature and putting on a new nature. A nature that results in a changed heart.

Weekly Devotional by David Bilderback

This change of heart puts us in a state where even though we still are able to sin we now are able not to sin. This puts us back in the same state we were before the Fall in the Garden.

Nicodemus was confused by what Jesus told him because he was looking at it from a human point of view. He would come to understand as I have that being born again leads to Christian growth, which leads to a strengthening of desires to please Christ accompanied by a weakening of desire to sin. The person who is reborn can still sin. The ability to sin is not removed until we are glorified in heaven. We have the ability to sin but we are no longer under the bondage of sin. We have been set free.
