Wreck injures 3

Moran woman's van drives left of center, collides with 2 vehicles; fourth person unhurt

BY DANE HICKS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

COLONY — Three people were hospitalized and a fourth escaped injury Sunday night in a three-vehicle accident near 300 Road and U.S. Highway 169 in Anderson County.

A Kansas Highway Patrol report said 30 year-old Mandy Gardner of Moran was southbound about 6:30 p.m. Sunday when her van crossed the center line and struck a northbound pickup driven by 18 year-old Shane Moore, also of Moran. Gardner's vehicle then struck another northbound passenger car driven by Adam Barber, 22 of Park City.

Barber and an occupant in his car, 55 year-old Charles Barr of Frisco, Texas, suffered injuries and were transported to Anderson County Hospital and life-flight to KU Med Center, respectively. Moore was uninjured in the incident. Gardner, the only person involved not wearing a seat belt, was ejected from her vehicle and was life-flighted to Overland Park Regional Medical Center for treatment.

Gardner was listed in critical condition Monday morning at Overland Park Regional Medical Center. The other hospitals could not find reports on Barber and Barr.

Election 2012

Federal Races

Your election guide:

Several offices at the local, state and federal level will be up for grabs in the general election Nov. 6. This week, the focus is on state races. See previous editions for local races (Oct. 16) and state races (Oct. 23).

The U.S. presidential race between Barack Obama and Mitt Romney is expected to drive voters to the polls. Although the focus is on the two candidates, there are others on the ballot for president. They include: Reform Party candidate Chuck Baldwin of Kila, Mont., with running mate Joseph Martin; and Libertarian candidate Gary Johnson of El Prado, N.M., and running mate James P. Gray.

Information for these profiles was taken from candidate websites.

U.S. President

Barack Obama, D

President Obama was born in Hawaii on August 4th, 1961, to a father from Kenya and a mother from Kansas. Growing up, he was also raised by his grandfather, who served in Patton's army, and his grandmother, who worked her way up from the secretarial pool to become middle management at a local bank.

After working his way through college with the help of scholarships and student loans, President Obama moved to Chicago, where

Sunday liquor sales expanded

County approves sales in unincorporated areas for rural station

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - A convenience store that sits just outside the city limits of Garnett soon will be able to compete with other towns in the county for Sunday liquor sales.

Anderson County Commissioners voted Oct. 22 to allow Sunday liquor sales in unincorporated areas of the county. Kansas prohibited Sunday liquor sales until 2005, when the law was changed to allow cities and counties to make their own rules on the issue. Greeley and Princeton in Franklin County have allowed liquor sales on Sundays for several years. In August, voters approved Sunday liquor sales in Garnett.

But the new law in Garnett doesn't apply to Sandra's Quick Stop at 24963 NE Hwy 169. The convenience store and fueling station sits just outside the city limits. Owner Sandra Zook said she asked county commissioners for the change to allow her business to compete with other convenience stores less than a mile or two away.

"I figured if everyone else is selling on Sundays, I should GARNETT - It's a sign of the times.

A difficult economic climate means governments often must prioritize spending. For the City of Garnett, that includes prioritizing thousands of dollars for signs.

City employees to get free use of rec center

City follows hospital, county's lead to add membership benefit

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Garnett city employees will get an extra perk starting this week - free membership at the city's recreation center.

Garnett city commissioners followed in the footsteps of Anderson County Hospital and the Anderson County Commission last week in voting for the added employee benefit. The hospital and county commission both decided earlier this year to give employees free memberships to the rec center as a way to improve employee health. Anderson County Hospital has launched a campaign to make Anderson County "the healthiest county

Anderson County Board of Commissioners October 15

Chairman Dudley R. Feuerborn called the meeting of the Anderson County Board of Commissioners to order at 9:00 a.m. on October 15 at the County Commission Room. Attendance: Dudley R. Feuerborn, Present: Eugene Highberger, Present: James K. Johnson, Present. The pledge of allegiance was recited. Minutes of the previous meeting were read. Correction made that there has been no property taxes used to make the bond payments on the jail. Minutes approved as corrected.

Road and Bridge

Lester Welsh, Road Supervisor, met with the commission. He has checked on prices for purchasing a new riding mower for the shop. The present Snapper has been out there for at least 20 years and he would like to replace it. He does not want a zero turn mower due to the ditches. He has found one for $2,200 from Greeley Implement. He would also like to purchase a new tractor mower. They have been using the landfill tractor for the past several years. If the tractor goes back to the landfill they could mow their own property instead of the road department taking the time to mow it.

Family Medical Leave

Discussion was held on working part time while on family medical leave. It was questioned by the clerk's office whether those employees were eligible to earn sick and vacation time if they work any time while on family medical leave. Commissioner Johnson moved to not issue sick and vacation time to employees on family medical leave unless said employees return to full time work. Motion died for lack of a second. Decision tabled for one week.

GAPP

Discussion was held on a project promoted by the Christian Church to bring kids into the community next summer to assist handicap and low income residents to work on their homes. Commissioner Johnson moved to donate $2,500 to GAPP out of the General Fund. Commissioner Highberger seconded. Approved 3-0.

Department Head Meeting

Marvin Grimes, Emergency Management Director, reported on the gas detectors they are purchasing and how they will be used. The recent rains have cut down on fires. Sheriff Hupp reported he is at 75% of his budget and the jail will be over on their budget due to the female prisoner. He feels there are two vehicles that need to be replaced due to mileage and will be looking at his budget to see whether it can be done now or wait until the 2013 budget, however, he would like to get them purchased before the end of the year. Jay Velvick, Deputy Appraiser and Zoning Director, reported zoning has slowed down which is giving him more time with the appraiser's office. Fred Campbell, County Attorney, reported the system they share with the district court and it is running extremely slow. Phyllis Gettler, County Clerk, reported inventories are still needed. They are in the process of setting mill levies and advance voting begins on Wednesday. James Campbell, County Counselor, reported he has received the list of properties for the tax sale and is preparing to send out the notices. Jim Johnson reported we did budget $5,000 for memberships to the rec center for employees who wish to use it. He is looking at allowing paying for three visits per week and if the use shows consistent they possibly paying for yearly memberships in the future. They are also looking into health screenings for the employees.

Sheriff Candidate

Vern Valentine requested the commission uphold county policy regarding county employees campaigning during working hours.

County Thefts

Gene Young informed the commission his property has been robbed and advised them to keep as much property as possible locked up.

Meeting adjourned at 12:00 p.m.

in Kansas."

The hospital offers its employees the chance to visit the rec center three times a week. The rec center keeps track of visits, and bills the hospital at the end of the month. Visits by hospital employees are billed at the regular daily rate of $2. In September, the hospital was charged $202; in August, the hospital was charged $98.

Anderson County Commissioners allocated $5,000 next year for rec center memberships, but did not lay out a plan for how employees could use the center. The county may follow the hospital's model.

By offering free memberships to employees, the City of Garnett technically won't have to pay itself anything because it also owns the rec center. However, it's important to keep the rec center self-sufficient with membership fees, city manager Joyce Martin told city commissioners. She plans to shift money from the city's salary fund to the rec center to cover the cost of memberships.

About 10 city employees currently have memberships at the rec center, and the city may lose that money. About half of the city's employees said they would take advantage of free memberships, Martin said.

Mayor Greg Gwin was concerned the city might face significant lost revenue, especially since commissioners didn't plan for the benefit in the 2013 budget.

"It's about the cheapest benefit we can offer," commissioner Preston Peine said. "It may have two-fold benefits: increase loyalty among employees and improve the health of employees. We have very little risk as a city."

After some discussion about how the city would manage the program, commissioners voted to follow the hospital's model starting Nov. 1. After about three months, they will take another look at the program and see if adjustments should be made.

too," Zook said.

Most of the business at Sandra's Quick Stop comes from out-of-town traffic because the station sits at the junction of U.S. 59 and U.S. 169 south of Garnett. Zook said she didn't expect the change to result in significantly more sales.

"It's more of a convenience for people and for us, instead of turning them away and having them go down the road," Zook said.

The law will go into effect in late December unless someone files a petition protesting the change. If such a petition is filed, county commissioners must bring the question to a public vote. That's what happened when Garnett city commissioners voted to allow Sunday sales, but voters upheld their decision by a vote of 287-265.

The change will allow Sunday liquor sales only in unincorporated areas of Anderson County. Incorporated city jurisdictions - such as Colony, Westphalia and Kincaid - still retain the power to decide whether or not to allow Sunday liquor sales.

Sandra's Quick Stop is the only business presently that will be affected by the change, according to county clerk Phyllis Gettler.

A resolution detailing the change is published on Page 7A.

find their way around the city and to attractions in the area and to offer up an attractive, marketable "look" to the city's presentation of itself. Garnett City Manager Joyce Martin has been providing regular updates to commissioners, but when branding committee member Scott Rogers appeared at the meeting to ask for money to buy the new "welcome" signs, he faced an onslaught of questions from commissioners.

Why install new "welcome" signs when the city has other signage needs? What's the schedule to install other signs? How much will it cost? When will they need the money? Is anyone else going to help pay?

"My concern is that these same groups are going to come up to us several times and ask for money and I don't see a game plan," commissioner Preston Peine said.

The city's branding committee, along with tourism and economic development groups, are looking at four different types of signs:

- Welcome signs: The city has two welcome signs on U.S. 59. One is at the north end near the new Garnett Elementary School. The other is near Crystal Lake, also known as the South Lake. Updating those signs with the city's new logo will cost $7,000. Rogers estimated the welcome signs will be the least expensive part of the project because the framework for the signs already exists.

- U.S. 169 corridor: Signs would be placed at streets that lead from U.S. 169 to the city, or one each at Park Road, Fourth Avenue and Sixth Avenue. The signs would include attractions that could be found in that area, and each sign would be about 9 feet tall. Such signs are important because U.S. 169 does not pass through the city, so people may not realize what is there, Rogers said.

- Way-finding signs: Inside the city limits, signs would point to various attractions, including lakes, trails and essential places like the hospital. Grants likely are available for these signs because they help people find healthful attractions like walking trails.

- Street signs: Federal mandates eventually will require the city to install new street signs. City commissioners appeared most concerned with this type of sign because it will be required, although Martin said it is not clear when the Fire damages rural home

GRELEY - A propane leak is to blame for a late night fire at the rural Greeley home of Dennis and Joyce Hastert Sunday, Oct. 21.

No one was seriously injured although Joyce Hastert was treated for smoke inhalation and released.

The fire was reported at about 11:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 21. Most of the damage was contained to the back of the house on the north side, according to Anderson County Emergency Management Director Marvin Grimes. The house is on NE Scott Road.

Grimes said he was not sure if insurance adjusters would deem the house as destroyed or if it could be salvaged. The fire was believed to be caused by a propane leak. A family member said the couple was assisted by the local Red Cross and had been temporarily relocated to another local residence pending a determination on salvaging or rebuilding at the site.

A PROPOSITION to amend section 1 of article 11 of the constitution of the state of Kansas, relating to classification and taxation of watercraft, to be submitted to the electors of the state at the general election to be held on November 6, 2012.

House Concurrent Resolution No. 5017

§ 1. System of taxation; classification; exemption. (a) The provisions of this subsection shall govern the assessment and taxation of property on and after January 1, 2013, and each year thereafter. Except as otherwise hereinafter specifically provided, the legislature shall provide for a uniform and equal basis of valuation and rate of taxation of all property subject to taxation. The legislature may provide for the classification and the taxation uniformly as to class of recreational vehicles and watercraft, as defined by the legislature, or may exempt such class from property taxation and impose taxes upon another basis in lieu thereof. The provisions of this subsection shall not be applicable to the taxation of motor vehicles, except as otherwise hereinafter specifically provided, mineral products, money, mortgages, notes and other evidence of debt and grain. Property shall be classified into the following classes for the purpose of assessment and assessed at the percentage of value prescribed therefor:

Class 1 shall consist of real property. Real property shall be further classified into seven subclasses. Such property shall be defined by law for the purpose of subclassification and assessed uniformly as to subclass at the following percentages of value:

- (1) Real property used for residential purposes including multifamily residential real property and real property necessary to accommodate a residential community of mobile or manufactured homes including the real property upon which such homes are located.....11 1/2%
- (2) Land devoted to agricultural use which shall be valued upon the basis of its agricultural income or agricultural productivity pursuant to section 12 of article 11 of the constitution.....30%
- (3) Vacant lots.....12%
- (4) Real property which is owned and operated by a not-for-profit organization not subject to federal income taxation pursuant to section 501 of the federal internal revenue code, and which is included in this subclass by law.....12%
- (5) Public utility real property, except railroad real property which shall be assessed at the average rate that all other commercial and industrial property is assessed.....33%
- (6) Real property used for commercial and industrial purposes and buildings and other improvements located upon land devoted to agricultural use.....25%
- (7) All other urban and rural real property not otherwise specifically subclassified.....30%

Class 2 shall consist of tangible personal property. Such tangible personal property shall be further classified into six subclasses, shall be defined by law for the purpose of subclassification and assessed uniformly as to subclass at the following percentages of value:

- (1) Mobile homes used for residential purposes.....11 1/2%
- (2) Mineral leasehold interests except oil leasehold interests the average daily production from which is five barrels or less, and natural gas leasehold interests the average daily production from which is 100 mcf or less, which shall be assessed at 25%30%
- (3) Public utility tangible personal property including inventories thereof, except railroad personal property including inventories thereof, which shall be assessed at the average rate all other commercial and industrial property is assessed.....33%
- (4) All categories of motor vehicles not defined and specifically valued and taxed pursuant to law enacted prior to January 1, 198530%
- (5) Commercial and industrial machinery and equipment which, if its economic life is seven years or more, shall be valued at its retail cost when new less seven-year straight-line depreciation, or which, if its economic life is less than seven years, shall be valued at its retail cost when new less straight-line depreciation over its economic life, except that, the value so obtained for such property, notwithstanding its economic life and as long as such property is being used, shall not be less than 20% of the retail cost when new of such property.....25%
- (6) All other tangible personal property not otherwise specifically classified.....30%

(b) All property used exclusively for state, county, municipal, literary, educational, scientific, religious, benevolent and charitable purposes, farm machinery and equipment, merchants' and manufacturers' inventories, other than public utility inventories included in subclass (3) of class 2, livestock, and all household goods and personal effects not used for the production of income, shall be exempted from property taxation.

Explanatory statement. This amendment would allow the legislature to classify and tax watercraft upon a basis different from other property. A vote for this proposition would permit the legislature to provide for separate classification and taxation of watercraft or to exempt such property from property taxation and impose taxes in lieu thereof. A vote against this proposition would continue the taxation of watercraft in the same manner as all other property.

What the bosses say

Company chiefs paint reality backdrop to presidential election

If this election year is about the economy, and if the economy is about jobs, and if jobs are about the people who do the hiring, then the two presidential candidates and especially those running for U.S. Senate and Congress should pay heed to what the nation's top hirers are saying.

EDITORIAL

And what the head honchos of more than 80 major U.S. companies are saying is that they're afraid to hire anybody until U.S. leadership reduces the federal deficit.

by Dane Hicks, PUBLISHER

It's not a new message, but it's one that may have been obscured in this ridiculous campaign season filled with too much crowing about "legitimate" rape and Special Olympics bowling performances and too little about the rocks our national ship is about to hit. The celebrated "fiscal cliff" of forced austerity measures is just the beginning, and the nation's major employers are trying to get the point across that they're not hiring anybody until they're convinced the nation's management is worth investing in.

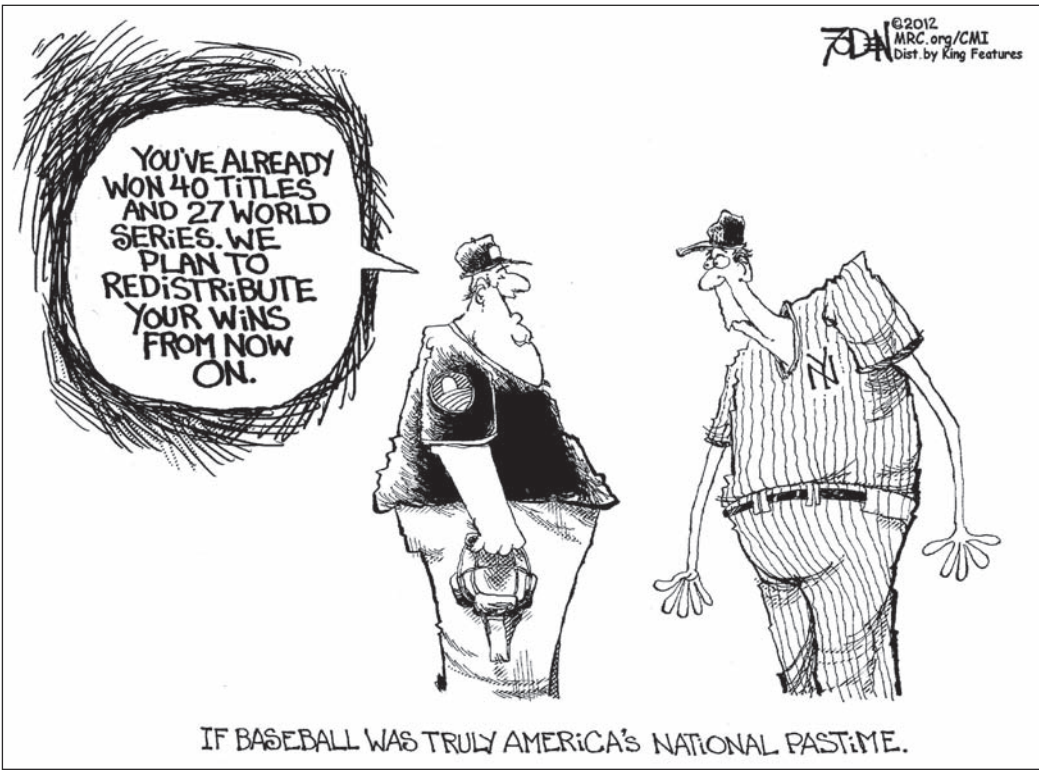

"What it really comes down to is if we still have the political will to be a great country," said Dave Cote, the CEO of Honeywell International. What he's talking about is the theme of the 80-plus head cheeses which they outlined in a joint statement last week: That the U.S. is going to have to reduce its deficit through tax increases and spending cuts -- even to sacred cows like Medicare and Medicaid -- if major hirers and investors are going to feel secure enough to invest dollars in more hiring.

Willpower is something we're effusive about during campaign seasons but something that, without fail, neither Democrats nor Republicans in the presidency nor the congress for decades has been willing to put into practice. And the reason for that is simple as well: Political will, in this day of "blame warfare" in American society in which every special interest sustains itself by firing media salvos asserting their own victimhood, is in effect political suicide. No congressman or president will survive more than a term if national leadership, as the heads of these companies have now jointly proclaimed, do what has to be done. The special interest firing squad is simply too effective.

The bosses making the statement are heads of companies you know: Microsoft, JP Morgan Chase, Time Warner Cable, Merck & Co., General Electric, Dow Chemical, Verizon, Bank of America Corp., Aetna, and others.

The statement and the source is important, because "suits" though they may be, they are responsible for delivering value to ownership and stockholders and they can only do that if they can earn profits. If they're convinced there's money to be made, they'll hire the people to do it -- but massive federal debt has shaken our economy to its footings, and people simply won't circulate their money when they're scared.

We can only hope Americans, for their own good, will begin to repeat the theme, and that when the smoke clears next week the winners will listen.

Schools for contraception

BY RICH LOWRY

NATIONAL REVIEW

New York City's public schools do a poor job educating kids. In fairness, though, that's not their expertise. What they excel at is giving out contraceptives.

If there were international comparisons of contraception access at schools, instead of math and reading scores, Singapore would have to look in envy at the achievements of New York City and wonder: What can we do to catch up?

New York's schools are outdoing themselves with their latest pedagogical initiative, the Orwellian-named CATCH program, for Connecting Adolescents to Comprehensive Health. "Comprehensive health," of course, means only one particular kind of health, the equally euphemistic "reproductive health."

Lowry

The schools already provide free condoms. Soon enough, the mere distribution of condoms will seem the hallmark of a bygone, more innocent era, like something from the plot of a "Happy Days" episode.

The program to give out morning-after pills -- and other oral and injected contraceptives -- is now up and running in 13 schools. Parents have to explicitly choose to "opt out" of the program, which, as any behavioral economist will tell you, strongly tips the balance toward its passive acceptance.

The morning-after pill, or Plan B, is a contraceptive, but it is possible -- although disputed -- that it acts like an abortifacient as well. Its distribution is another step down the slippery slope toward the provision of abortion in the schools. If that sounds outlandish, just wait.

There can be no doubt the direction that the Big Apple's latitudinarian educrats want to go. According to Greg Pfundstein of the pro-life Chiaroscuro Foundation, one of the "homework" exercises in a proposed New York City sex-education curriculum that became controversial last year included a visit or a call to a "clinic" to find out its hours, what services it provides and its confidentiality policy.

It can be harder to get an aspirin in some schools around the country than it is now to get Plan B in New York. The schools can give a synthetic female hormone to a girl as young as 14 without so much as a text message to her mom. Such is the perverse value system of New York's nanny state that the program ran with no notice to the public -- ho-hum -- until the New York Post broke the story.

Surely, many parents of the kids in the affected schools aren't involved enough in their children's lives, and the schools can't substitute for the discipline and values that kids aren't getting at home. But that doesn't mean schools should keep from parents that their daughters are having unprotected sex and might be pregnant. They shouldn't be the friend and the enabler of the sexually active teenager, either.

The schools should do everything they can to create an environment of rigor, with an overwhelming emphasis on future-oriented behavior. Instead, the New York City schools operate on the same mores as a Planned Parenthood clinic. Parents are a nuisance. No questions are asked. And teenage sex, which is inherently casual sex, is implicitly encouraged.

But don't worry. It will only get worse.

I know everybody's very excited about the decrease in gas prices recently. Kind of funny that it happened about two weeks from the election. Kind of makes a person go hmmm.

Clean appearance of a store outside and inside and friendly employees makes a big difference whether you want to shop there or not.

Maybe someone at city hall can explain this one to me and I'm sure there are other people around here who want to know as well. We've been doing this so-called branding project, we apparently have a slogan which either no one can remember or they've given up on already because no one seems to remember what it is and now we're going to be putting up signs to direct people to, what? There aren't enough things in Garnett to have to need signs to that you can't find on your own, if you wander around you'll probably bump into the lake or the park before you bump into the sign that tells you how to get there. Meanwhile there are streets and sidewalks in town that you can break a leg on. Priorities, people, priorities.

Hey, how come we don't ever have a haunted house in Garnett? How come we have to travel miles away to go to a haunted house at Halloween?

Surprised after such a hard summer that we're having such a pretty fall. Really enjoying it.

I am calling to ask why it is possible for law enforcement in this town to pull people over for not wearing seatbelts, but yet allow their themselves to not wear seatbelts when on duty or allow their family members to not wear seatbelts and get away with it. Thank you.

150 years ago: Prairie fire kills 4 family members

BY LINDA MCNEIL Special to THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

One hundred and fifty years ago on October 30, 1862, there was a tragic disaster in Anderson County, Kansas, which has left many unanswered questions and mysteries.

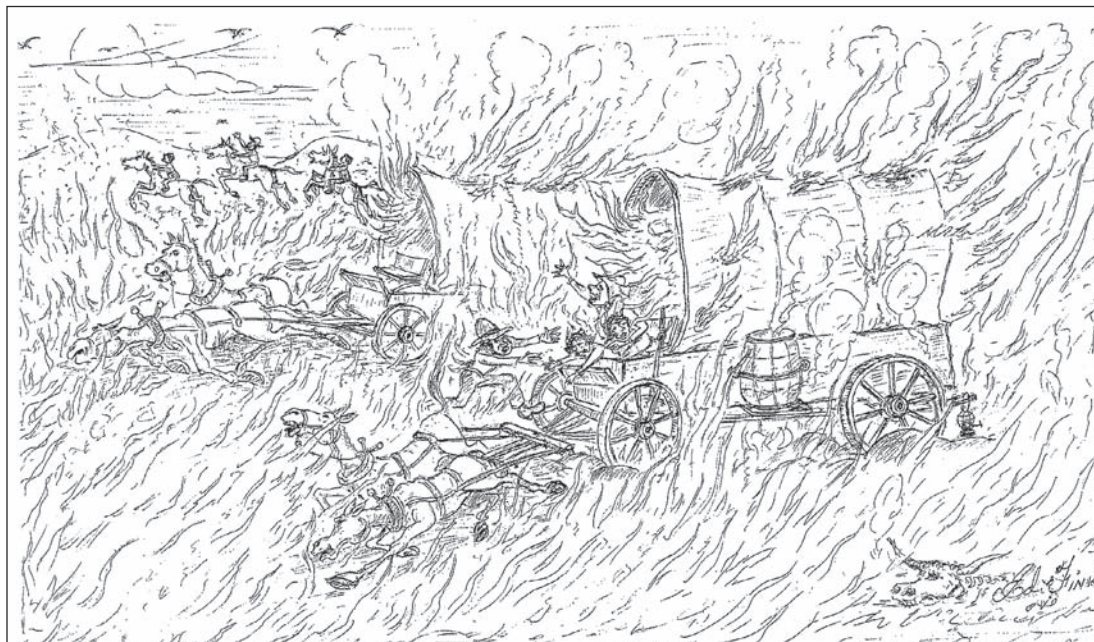

A prairie fire, fed by tenacious winds blowing through the tall grasses, overtook some travelers, on what may have been called "the old Ottawa road". They were in the process of moving from Anderson County, Kansas, to Eudora, Kansas, near Lawrence. Those who lost their lives were Josiah and Mary Ann Kellerman and their two small sons. The three older children in the family Mary Alice, aged 11, John 8, and Daniel 6, were on horseback herding cattle and managed to reach the safety of plowed ground. (Farmers in those days plowed barriers around their homes, barns and haystacks, in efforts to be safe from such fires.) Ed Pay, an historian, was an early resident of northwest Anderson county. In a feature article in a 1918 issue of "The Garnett Review", he stated that, "flames from those fires travelled faster than a horse could run". In another story it was learned that there had been a drought of 18 months during the years 1861 and 1862.

News in those days did make the rounds. The "Wyandotte (Kansas) Commercial Gazette" on 15 November, 1862, page 1, reported an exaggerated version of the story. It stated, "a man and his wife and family consisting of six children, died in Anderson County in a prairie fire". The following week, November 22, 1862, less than a month following the tragedy, James Means was quoted in the "Oskaloosa (Kansas) Independent" on pages 2 & 3. His report was that "on the 30th of October, four persons were burned to death within a mile and half of my residence". That news stated that Means was, "postmaster at Cresco".

This sad news also made its way back to Pennsylvania where Josiah and Mary Ann were born, married, and began to raise their family. The fire was reported in the "Democratic Standard, Hollidaysburg, Pa.", on Wednesday, November 26, 1862, citing an earlier story in the Bedford Inquirer. In this story, Josiah was cited as "Joseph Kellerman". Accounts have not been found in news in Andrew County, Missouri where other relatives resided. Having not found such news does not mean there may not have been such reports. It is likely that all newspapers have not survived, or that researchers just have not located such papers.

Josiah was born about 1826 in Bedford County, PA. His parents were John Kellerman (1782-1844) and Dorothea Kimberling his wife, both of German parentage. Josiah probably married in the year 1848. The 1850 Bedford County census enumeration shows Josiah as age 24, wife Mary Ann, age 21. Josiah was a "teamster and miller" and had real estate valued at $400.00 - a large amount for those times. There were no children listed, but Josiah's widowed mother Dorothea was a resident there as was his younger sister, Susan Mary, aged 13. The household also included Nathan and Elizabeth Meach. Nathan was a laborer and they had married within the years. (Could one of them be related to Mary Ann?) Records in the Wills Creek Lutheran Church, Bedford County, PA, show that Josiah & Mary Ann became parents of a son, Daniel Webster whose birth was registered as February 27, 1856. (Some of the church records are known to have been lost, which may have included marriage records and births of Mary Alice and John.)

A man named F. B. Hill who ran a general store in Bedford County, Pennsylvania, kept a ledger he began using on December 30, 1844. In that book are notes during 1847 and

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 10-30-2012 / Drawing by Ed Fink

An artistic rendering by Ed Fink shows what the scene of the 1862 prairie fire might have looked like.

1848 of transactions between Hill and Josiah Kellerman. On July 20, 1847, there was credited 121/2 cents for bringing a scythe from Bedford; on October 19, 1847, 37 cents were credited for "work at dam;" and two days later, 121/2 cents for "hooping pickle tub" and 50 cents on October 31, for going for "Miller and attending sale". In 1848, Josiah began purchasing food. Researchers assume this is because he had married. July 8, 1848, he purchased 151/2 lb. of Bacon for $1.24; in August charged to his account was 45 cents for 14 lb. of beef; on November 3rd he bought 27 lb. of buckwheat flour for 401/2 cents; and on November 18th he was charged 62 cents for half a barrel of cider.

In 1854 land was made available for homesteading in Kansas. A party of some Kellerman relatives and their neighbors began their journey to Kansas in 1857, traveling in a caravan from Bedford County, Pennsylvania. Josiah and Mary Ann's young son, Eli, was born in Missouri, according to the 1860 Anderson County census. Known kin were residing in Andrew County, Missouri, and researchers speculate that they stopped there awaiting the baby's birth. Sometime after the 1860 census another infant made its arrival, but no record has come to light with a given name. When beginning his journey to Kansas, Josiah was said to have 200 head of cattle and sheep, but after crossing the big Missouri River, at Westport Landing, only 67 head remained. Josiah staked a claim on land described as, SE1/4 Section 35, Township 20, Range 17, at what became known as Cottonwood, north of the Cherry Mound (Kansas) settlement.

Susan Mary Kellerman, Josiah's younger sister (who was residing with them at time of the 1850 census), married John Lantz Hill, also of Bedford County, Pennsylvania. They were also enumerated as residents of Anderson County in the 1860 census. One of their family members wrote years later the following: "Uncle Joe [Josiah] and Aunt Mary Kellerman homesteaded across from Cottonwood school. When Grandpa [John Lantz Hill] and Uncle Irwin came out in the spring of 1859, they stayed there and homesteaded the place - first house north of Cherry Mound. They built the log cabin at the corner. Think they paid 25 cents an acre - 'bot' from an army man. Then Grandpa went back alone to Pennsylvania in the covered wagon. Uncle Irwin stayed at Uncle Joe's. Grandpa and the family, including Grandma Kellerman, [and] Grandma Hill's mother, left in August and arrived at Uncle Joe's in November! Mattie McElroy's father had homesteaded just east of Cottonwood school and Grandpa knew him well. As Grandpa's were coming through Lawrence, Mr. McElroy came running out to talk to him and told Grandpa that he had been run off his homestead. In time he was able to return. It was the struggle between the north and south and at the time there were bands of outlaws that ran many off their places." Research has revealed that prior to their journey, Josiah had purchased land in Eudora, Douglas County, Kansas, earlier deeded to Chief Pascal Fish, an Indian. But why he had planned the move has left much speculation. Rumors seem to have abounded in handed down stories researchers have found. As a sheep farmer it could have been that others objected to his sheep, out on the open range, eating too much prairie grass to suit those who were cattlemen? Some kin were told he was being forced to move. One such story told of neighbors forcing him to leave, with one of them breaking a rifle when striking him over the head. (An item included in the auction of their remaining possessions was a gun stock). Was the forced move related to the Civil War upheaval in Kansas? Or the long drought?

When setting out on their journey, Josiah and Mary Ann traveled north from their home in Cottonwood and turned onto the old "Leroy-Ohio City St. Rd." toward Ottawa. That night was spent at the home of James Means, on Kenoma Creek, near where Harris, is now located. The next morning Means could see the distant smoke, and urged them to wait to see what was happening. No one will ever know why Josiah chose not to delay the journey. Was there a reason for his hurry to leave the area?

As the family traveled northeast past a hill, a side fire roared suddenly down its slopes. Caught first in those flames were Mary Ann, Eli, and the youngest boy (about 2 years), reportedly in a covered wagon. The wagon in which they were traveling became mired in a low muddy spot. Those three perished immediately. Josiah's attempts to reach and save them were futile. Josiah's death came in the night following and reportedly at the home of James Means. One of the bills presented to Josiah's estate was to Dr. George Cooper of Garnett, and dated that October 30th "for attending Josiah".

Researchers are still attempting to determine where the family was buried. Some area kinfolk indicate the burials were at or near the site of the prairie fire. But there is a grave marker in the Goodrich /Patton Cemetery, in Anderson County.

[It was the Tipton family which donated land for that cemetery and at the time it was named the Goodrich Cemetery. Rebecca Tipton, daughter of those early settlers, married Samuel Patton. Samuel built, or had constructed, a large brick house for them next to his home which became a stagecoach stop named Mineral Point. That is apparently why the cemetery's name became known more commonly as the Patton Cemetery.] The current grave marker is not the kind which could have been available in 1862. And from 1958, until perhaps 2007, when restoration was done in that cemetery, the Kellerman grave marker was placed at an angle to all the other graves. This caused researchers to conclude that when placed originally, this was done purposely to indicate either that the remains were not there, or that it was not known for sure if the burials were there.

The brother-in-law of Josiah, John Lantz Hill, was named administrator of the estate. Those who did the appraisal of the land at Cottonwood were John Kennedy, Robert Burk and Nelson Gabrelson.

In the 1960's, students at the University of Kansas, doing research at the Kenneth Spencer Research Library in Lawrence, found the description of Josiah's land in Eudora, Kansas. His purchase of it was recorded in the Douglas County court Deed Book G, page 1, September 13, 1862 - or just a couple of weeks prior to his moving date. It was in Section 11, Township 13, Range 20. Josiah purchased this land from John A. Kennedy and wife Sarah N. Kennedy. Was this John Kennedy the same man who was later the appraiser of Josiah's land in Anderson County? On April 12, 1864 the following men were appointed John B. Campbell, Samuel Steele and Richard Grubb to appraise Josiah's land in Douglas County.

Mary Alice Kellerman, a survivor of the fire, married a Missouri Militia Civil War veteran and moved to Andrew County, Missouri. She later moved to California and then Washington State. Most of her descendants have been traced.

As for one of the mysteries remaining, very little has been learned about the surviving sons. Daniel Webster Kellerman is found in the 1870 U.S. Andrew County, Missouri census, residing with Mary Alice Kellerman and her husband Isaac Goodrich. In Anderson County court records there is a document showing that Daniel Lankard had been named guardian of John Kellerman. Later John Kellerman is found in the 1870 U.S. Anderson County, KS census. His is listed directly after his Aunt Susan and Uncle John Lantz Hill, apparently residing with Margaret Weddle, who was raised by the Hills. With research continuing, said John is believed to be the man of that name found in the 1880 U.S. Arizona census, as a resident of Phoenix. A marriage record shows John F. Kellerman and Della Beechum married May 22, 1881, in Maricopa County, Arizona (Marriages: vol. 1, page 67). One odd document came to light. In Anderson County a court document dated 26 June 1940 states that "...enough time has passed, since the appointment [of Daniel Lankard as guardian] that the guardian should be discharged." Beyond this all research has proven useless. What became of Daniel W. Kellerman remains a huge question. Surely, even though 150 years have passed, there are family members of these two somewhere, to whom word of this calamity has been told, and retold.

A story about this family and the prairie fire was written and published in the 1990 book, "Anderson County Family Stories And History." Linda Fisk McNeil of Portland, OR., was the author. Juanita Kellerman (a long time Kellerman researcher), of Garnett, also contributed information about the prairie fire in this book. Linda is making plans to visit Anderson County to mark the 150th anniversary, to again tour the area of the prairie fire and to visit the marker in the Goodrich/Patton Cemetery. She and Juanita Kellerman, of Garnett, would be happy to be in contact with anyone who might have an interest in this story.

Like any family, the Romneys have faced hardship: Ann was diagnosed with multiple sclerosis in 1998, and more recently fought a battle with breast cancer. She credits her husband's unwavering care and devotion to her for helping her through these ordeals.

Mitt is not a career politician. He has spent most of his life in the private sector, giving him intimate knowledge of how our economy works. But he has also been an outstanding public servant. In one chapter of his distinguished career, he reversed the decline of a state mired in recession. In another chapter, he salvaged the 2002 Winter Olympic Games from certain disaster.

When Mitt was elected Governor of Massachusetts in 2002, the state was in severe disarray, its budget was out of balance, spending was soaring, and taxpayers were being required to pay more and more in taxes for diminishing services. The state economy was in a tailspin, ents. Elected to the U.S. Senate in 2004, he reached across the aisle to pass the farthest-reaching lobbyist reform in a generation, lock up the world's most dangerous weapons, and bring transparency to government by tracking federal spending online.

As President, Barack Obama has dedicated himself to putting Americans back to work and restoring economic security to middle-class families. He's been driven by the basic values that make our country great: America prospers when we're all in it together, when hard work pays off and responsibility is rewarded, and when everyone—from Main Street to Wall Street—does their fair share and plays by the same rules.

with businesses cutting back on investment or even closing, and unemployment ticking up. Mitt made hard decisions that brought state spending under control. He restructured and consolidated government programs, paring back where necessary and finding efficiencies throughout.

Facing a state legislature dominated by Democrats, Mitt cast more than 800 vetoes as he brought conservative principles to state government. He cut red tape for small businesses, signed into law job-creating incentives, and fought hard to bring new businesses to the state. He eliminated a $3 billion deficit without borrowing or raising taxes. By 2007, at the end of Mitt's term, the state had accumulated a $2 billion rainy day fund in its coffers. This stringent fiscal discipline provided an essential backdrop for economic recovery. While Mitt was in office, the state unemployment rate fell from 5.6% to 4.7% and the Massachusetts economy added tens of thousands of new jobs.

America faces exceptional challenges. Mitt Romney is an exceptional man with unique qualifications to lead our country through perilous times, restoring our strength at home and abroad.

the American Dream. I saw its promise realized in the lives of my parents. That isn't just a line; that is my life. While I believe America is the land of opportunity, we must make certain there is opportunity for all, not just for the few.

My first political experiences were stuffing envelopes for 2nd District Congresswoman Martha Keys and Gov. John Carlin. I earned a BA from the University of Kansas (Class of '86). After attending seminary, I returned to Topeka to live and work.

In the last two years, I realized I could no longer stand on the sidelines. When Sam Brownback's administration announced the closing of the Kansas Neurological Institute, I couldn't stay silent. Closing KNI would have thrown into chaos the lives of more than 155 Kansans with severe physical and developmental disabilities. I organized a coalition of community leaders, and helped convince legislators from both sides of the aisle to keep KNI open. This is just one of the initiatives I've helped with recently.

2012 Election: Candidate Comparison

U.S. President

Barack Obama, D

Mitt Romney, R

A brief outline of the candidate's primary plan:

OBAMA: It's time for a new economic patriotism, rooted in the belief that growing our economy begins with a strong, thriving middle class. Over the past 31 months, American businesses have created 5.2 million jobs. Independent economists project that our economy will create an additional 12 million jobs in the next four years. The President believes we must do even more to grow our economy and strengthen the middle class. The goal of his jobs plan is to strengthen middle-class security by making smart investments in education and training, growing small businesses, promoting technology and innovation, and reducing the deficit.

Building An Economy From The Middle Class Out

Reviving American Manufacturing. President Obama's policies have helped manufacturing rebound, creating nearly 500,000 jobs in the last 31 months. The President's plan will build on that success, creating 1 million new manufacturing jobs by 2016.

Energy Made in America. Dependence on foreign oil hurts our economy and imperils national security, which is why President Obama has set a goal of cutting our net oil imports in half by 2020. President Obama's policies have helped to cut net imports by nearly 30% in his first term already, and his plans to expand domestic energy production will support more than 600,000 jobs in the natural gas sector alone.

Growing Small Businesses. Small businesses create two out of every three new jobs in America. President Obama has invested in entrepreneurs and small business owners by cutting taxes, helping them expand into markets overseas and working to ensure they can get the capital they need to invest and grow.

Quality Education. A quality education is not a luxury. It is an economic imperative for good-paying jobs, a strong middle class and a workforce that out-innovates the world. President Obama will strengthen our schools by recruiting 100,000 math and science teachers, training 2 million workers for real jobs at community colleges, and cutting tuition growth in half.

Cutting The Deficit By More Than $4 Trillion. We must return to the principles that made America great, rewarding hard work and responsibility. By eliminating special loopholes and tax breaks that benefit big business and the wealthiest - as part of a balanced deficit reduction plan that also cuts spending we can't afford - we can grow our economy without burdening our children and grandchildren with debt.

Putting YOU in Charge of Your Health Care. Health care costs were skyrocketing and families were denied care. So President Obama passed a landmark law to expand access to affordable insurance, letting young adults stay on their parents' plan until age 26, eliminating lifetime coverage limits, ending denials based on pre-existing conditions, and eliminating cost sharing and other out-of-pocket costs for recommended preventive care.

Protecting Retirement Security. We can choose a future where we cut our deficit without wrecking our middle class. President Obama has put forward a specific, balanced plan of spending cuts and revenue increases providing more than $4 trillion in deficit reduction over the next decade, without ending guaranteed benefits in Medicare or slashing Social Security.

ROMNEY: Mitt Romney's Plan for a Stronger Middle Class is a five-part proposal for turning around the economy and delivering more jobs and more take-home pay for American families. While President Obama continues looking to big government spending programs as the solution to the nation's challenges, Mitt understands that it is hardworking Americans in the private sector who will achieve economic growth and job creation. His plan will end the middle class squeeze of declining incomes and rising prices, bring back prosperity, and create 12 million jobs during his first term.

Part one of Mitt's plan is to achieve energy independence on this continent by 2020. America is blessed with extraordinary natural resources, and developing them will create millions of good jobs - not only in the energy industry, but also in industries like manufacturing that will benefit from more energy at lower prices. America's economy will boom when the billions of dollars we send overseas for our oil are kept here at home instead.

Part two of the plan is trade that works for America. Mitt believes that trade can offer enormous opportunities for American businesses and workers, but only if they are given a level playing field on which they can compete and win. That is why he will work to open new markets for American goods and services, while also confronting nations like China that cheat on trade and steal American jobs.

Part three is to provide Americans with the skills to succeed through better public schools, better access to higher education, and better retraining programs that help to match unemployed workers with real-world job opportunities.

Part four is to cut the deficit, reducing the size of government and getting the national debt under control so that America remains a place where businesses want to open up shop and hire.

Finally, part five of Mitt's plan is to champion small business. Small businesses are the engine of job creation in this country, but they will struggle to succeed if taxes and regulations are too burdensome or if a government in Washington does its best to stifle them. Mitt will pursue comprehensive tax reform that lowers tax rates for all Americans, and he will cut costs on the red tape that drives up costs and discourages hiring.

This election presents a clear choice, and an important one: Will America once again be the best place in the world to start a business, hire a worker, or find a job? Or will it continue down the path that President Obama's borrowing and taxing and spending has led? America is still waiting for its economic recovery and, as president, Mitt Romney will deliver it.

U.S. House of Representatives

District 2*

Tobias Schlingensiepen, D

Lynn Jenkins, R

Fiscal Responsibility

SCHLINGENSIEPEN: I can't balance the federal budget all by myself, but I can promise that I will follow four basic principles as I do everything I can to restore this nation to fiscal health. When considering any bill affecting the budget, I will (1) protect your wallet, (2) seek fair tax policies, (3) protect the elderly and vulnerable, and (4) maintain the functions we rely on. These functions are under attack today, and they include such vital things as education, air traffic control services, disaster response and accurate weather forecasts.

We must take a balanced approach to solving our budget problems. If it were in effect this year, a proposal co-sponsored by Congresswoman Jenkins would have thrown 15 million more people out of work than there are today. (This is the estimate of Macroeconomic Advisers, a firm that advises both Republican and Democratic presidents.) As written, this constitutional amendment, called the balanced budget amendment, would have doubled unemployment, shooting the jobless rate up to 18 percent. I can't support such a badly written proposal.

JENKINS: I ran for Congress because of the reckless fiscal policies coming out of Washington. Kansas common sense tells me you cannot spend more than you take in. My background as a certified public accountant, state legislator, and state treasurer, has given me a unique perspective to take to Washington. Families and small businesses have to balance their books and the government should be no different. I have always said there are two sides to the ledger: the spending side and the revenue side. Kansas are taxed enough already, so the federal government needs to address the spending side.

I am convinced now more than ever that our federal government's greatest problem is its addiction to spending. Too many politicians who have been in Washington for too long have forgotten that taxpayers are what keeps our government going, not the other way around. Instead of being responsible and eliminating waste, fraud, and abuse many politicians think they have been given a blank check to do as they please. I could not disagree more.

That is why I have stayed committed to conservative fiscal policies that put America's security and future generations first and foremost by voting for a balanced budget amendment.

We cannot continue to give hostile foreign nations greater influence over us because we cannot stop borrowing money from them. Nor can we simply pass the burden on to our children and grandchildren because we are unwilling to make responsible decisions about the federal budget. If we want to put our nation back on the path to prosperity, we need people in Washington who believe in and will practice fiscal restraint. I pledge to continue doing just that by opposing wasteful earmarks, eliminating government programs with no constitutional justification and rooting out governmental corruption and waste.

The one budget I have complete control over is my office's budget. Each year I have served the people of Kansas, I have cut my budget by more than 10%. I returned that money to federal coffers and I have continued to operate at a reduced rate than allocated to me.

Jobs

SCHLINGENSIEPEN: Invest in Education. Business leaders tell us that some of the top things they look for when hiring workers is education and the ability to learn in an ever-changing workplace. We must invest in education if we're going to grow our economy and compete in a world marketplace. I will protect education funding and work to make certain the state receives the support it needs. I oppose the No Child Left Behind law and applaud Kansas for seeking a waiver.

Today's graduates of vocational-technical schools, community colleges and universities are the entrepreneurs and leaders who will transform our economy tomorrow.

They are the teachers, the police officers and the doctors caring for families in the small towns of the 2nd District who will literally save lives. But too many of them carry crushing student loan debt. I support giving students the right to repay their loans at a fixed, low percentage of their income for up to 20 years.

In voting for the Ryan Budget, Congresswoman Jenkins voted repeatedly to cut or freeze Pell Grant funding for needy college students. I support Pell Grants. I will fight for families to continue to receive a higher education tax credit, which is set to expire in January.

JENKINS: The first thing I believe about the relationship between government and job creation is: government does not create economic growth; government creates an environment that allows the economy to grow and the private sector creates jobs. According to the Department of Labor, under the current administration 145,000 government jobs have been created. The flip side to this equation is FactCheck.org's report that since President Obama's term we have lost a total of 552,000 jobs overall.

Following the passage of the 2009 stimulus package President Obama proclaimed the legislation would create or save 3.5 million jobs and the unemployment rate would not rise above 8%. He also promised the unemployment rate would fall below 7.25% by the end of 2010. Nearly four years later, our unemployment rate hovers about 8.3% and the millions of jobs promised by the stimulus seem to be more hope, than change.

While the President was handing out stimulus packages and bailouts, I went straight to the job creators and job seekers. Over the past three years I have hosted 3 Job Fairs that provide direct access to those looking to hire people with those looking for jobs. Staying true to the idea that government does not create jobs, government creates an environment that allows businesses to create jobs and hire people.

In addition to my work in the 2nd District, while in Washington I have been a proud supporter of 33 jobs bills that create an environment for job creation instead of handing out money to special interest groups. Instead of providing alternative solutions, Harry Reid and Senate Democratic leadership refused to even vote on nearly every single jobs bill that passed through the House.

Health Care

SCHLINGENSIEPEN: We have a health crisis in this country. Healthcare costs are rising rapidly, and businesses are passing more of the insurance costs to their employees. Workers, in turn, must cut back on essential treatments because they can't afford deductible and co-pays. And all of this happens in the name of protecting record profits for insurance companies. This is unacceptable. We must continue working to improve the healthcare system in this country.

I support eliminating discrimination against people with pre-existing conditions.

I support eliminating lifetime benefit caps.

I support providing affordable health insurance. It is morally wrong to bankrupt Americans with serious medical conditions, to price healthcare out of the reach of working families or to put forth plans that would put our nation's finances at risk or hobble businesses.

I support allowing young people to stay on their parent's health insurance plans until age 26, providing access to preventative care and stopping insurance companies from wasting your premium money on marketing and bloated bureaucracy.

JENKINS: As a member of the House Ways and Means Committee I am working to repeal Obamacare and create real health care reforms. Our plan includes weeding out waste and fraud, giving tax credits to allow people to buy their own insurance, ending denial of care based on pre-existing conditions, tort reform, letting businesses band together to offer affordable insurance and allowing citizens to buy insurance outside of their state of residence.

At the heart of our health care problems is cost. The plan we are developing specifically targets the aspects of the health care system that escalate costs. Unfortunately, the President's health care law ignores solving the problem of cost; rather it cuts $716 billion from Medicare and raises taxes to pay for new bureaucracy insurance mandate.

I believe if you lower the cost of health care, more people will be able to purchase insurance thus addressing both concerns. The President has failed to prove that by mandating the purchase of insurance, costs of health care will fall. In fact, I believe the opposite will happen and millions of Americans will have diminished health care or denied it entirely.

CH volleyball season ends at sub-state

BY SARA BROWN THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

FREDONIA - Central Heights put together one of their best matches of the season topping Jayhawk Linn in the first round. Unfortunately, the next match ended the Vikings season with a semi-final loss to Wellsville.

The Vikings went 25-21, 23-25, 25-23 in the win over Jayhawk Linn. Central Heights Coach Ann Bowen was proud of the way the girls played and thought it was easily the best match they played all year. "We were doing all the things we had worked on all season. I felt like everything had come together," said Bowen.

Emily Miller's jump serve looked great. Alexis Dryden and Kenzie Hayward played well at the net and Whitney Kraus was digging every ball in the back row.

"It was definitely a team effort," declared Bowen. "It was such an exciting match. They deserved the win."

Vs. Jayhawk Linn
 Brianna Erhart: 11 assists, 2 aces, 3 kills
 Sydney Meyer: 2 kills, 2 blocks
 Kenzie Hayward: 10 kills, 6 blocks, 7 digs
 Alexis Dryden: 7 kills, 4 blocks (1 stuff)
 Lexi Griffin: 5 digs

Whitney Kraus: 1 ace, 9 digs
 Emily Miller: 4 digs
 Shannon Goldring: 3 kills, 1 block
 Tami Schaefer: 5 assists

After a lengthy break, the Vikings took the floor against Wellsville. The Vikings did not carry the enthusiasm and energy through from the first round and the semi-final match ended with a 13-25, 18-25 loss. "Wellsville is a good team and we didn't have the intensity to compete," noted Bowen. Though the loss was disappointing, Bowen was pleased with the team's effort.

"We could have gone in feeling like we were seventh and it wasn't worth the fight, but they gave their all and I couldn't ask for more. Wellsville went on to win sub-state earning a trip to state in Salina. Central Heights wrapped up their season with a record of 6-23.

Vs. Wellsville
 Brianna Erhart: 3 assists, 1 kill
 Sydney Meyer: 1 block
 Kenzie Hayward: 3 kills, 1 block, 2 digs
 Alexis Dryden: 2 kills, 1 block

Signs of progress for CH

BY SARA BROWN THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

WELLSVILLE- The Vikings finally got some offense going Tuesday afternoon in Wellsville. Unfortunately, it wasn't enough to topple Wellsville or Iola. Central Heights forced both games to three sets, but came away with two losses. The Vikings fell to Iola 18-25, 25-12, 15-25 and Wellsville 25-22, 12-25, 16-25.

Central Heights Coach Ann Bowen was pleased with the teams performance. "The girls played hard to the last point, especially during the Wellsville match. This is the level of play we need at the mid- end of October," remarked Bowen. "We had smart plays, hustle plays, and gave 100% effort which is something we had been working on in practice."

Vs. Iola
 Brianna Erhart: 6 assists
 Tami Schaefer: 2 assists
 Kenzie Hayward: 4 blocks (2 stuff), 7 kills, 12 digs

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 10-30-2012 / Sara Brown

Abby Brown, 11, makes a jump cut narrowly avoiding a tackle in the Richmond Red Devils win over Appanoose. The Red Devils are one of three 5th & 6th grade teams from Central Heights.

Local youth return to the gridiron

BY SARA BROWN THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

WILLIAMSBURG- The sounds of crowds cheering, whistles blowing, and touchdown calls fill the air of small-town football fields every weekend. However, it isn't the glow of the Friday night lights calling fans to root for their favorite team. This time it is the chill of an October Saturday morning welcoming players, parents, and patrons to watch teams from three local communities take the field.

Appanoose, Williamsburg, and Richmond recreation programs coordinate a youth flag football league for six weeks every Fall. Approximately 150 children participate in the program, representing a total of 21 teams. The league is divided into three brackets by grade level: first and second, third and fourth, and fifth and sixth. Local students and high school football players serve as referees for the 40 minute games, which each community hosts for two weeks per season. Coaches, primarily parents, welcome the assistance of high school athletes who often volunteer to help instruct players.

Appanoose and Williamsburg started the league six years ago, with Richmond joining for the past two. Todd Burroughs, one of the original organizers noted, "It gives kids a chance to have fun playing a fall sport with their friends while building self-esteem." Ryan Sink, another early coordinator, believes one of the most important benefits of the program is that the kids learn teamwork. "The program has received good, positive comments and has gotten more teams every year," reports Sink. "Hopefully it will continue to grow." If flag football sounds less physical than tackle football, don't tell that to the kids (or the parents). They give it their all and make some amazing plays. Contact is a part of football, and it is inevitably a part of flag football, too. The grind for this year is almost through. Next Saturday's games will conclude the 2012 flag football season. Assuredly, when the leaves begin to fall next year, the cheers and whistles and smiles will return.

Vikings fight their way to state playoffs

BY SARA BROWN THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

RICHMOND- The Vikings delivered quite a gift for Senior Parent night at Central Heights. The 38-13 win over district opponent, Osage City, earned the Vikings a trip to the 3A bi-district post-season.

Central Heights collected a total of 403 yards on the ground. Drew Beckwith led the team with running 213 of them and two touchdowns. One of the touchdowns was a 64 yard gallop by the senior RB. Senior Keith Shrimpton got free for two scores of his own. Junior Tristan Davis ran for 6 points and freshman RB Jacob Pryor added a final touchdown in the fourth quarter.

The win improves the Vikings record to 4-5 overall and 2-1 district. They will travel to Humboldt to play the first round bi-district matchup Tuesday night at 7 p.m.

You name it, we print it.

Central Heights Senior Keith Shrimpton gets past the Osage City defenders and takes this one in for a touchdown in the 38-13 victory. The Vikings (4-5) take on St. Mary's-Colgan (6-3) at Humboldt.

Crest tops Tyro enroute to Kiowa bi-district playoffs

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

KIOWA - The Crest Lancers stepped over Tyro Christian in a score-ruled contest Thursday night that set up Crest's appearance tonight against South Barber at Kiowa for the first round of 1A bi-district.

Crest dusted Tyro 52-6. Tyro was a late-season fill-in game after Altoona failed to field a football team after the schedules had been set late last summer.

The Kiowa Chieftains are 7-2, 5-0 in their league and ranked 25th in Kansas. They're coming off a win over Cunningham on Thursday 46-0.

Crest comes into the bi-district game with a record of 6-3 and 3-2 in the Three Rivers League.

Scoring order for Crest's Tyro replacement game included Dylan Sedlak, PAT failed; Kyle Hammond, PAT Hammond; Brock Ellis, PAT pass Hammond to Ellis; Hammond, PAT failed; Sedlak, PAT Hammond, Ellis interception return for TD, Hammond PAT. Game ended with 6:50 remaining in third period.

AC frosh CC get experience at state

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

WAMEGO - A young Bulldog cross country team cut their teeth at the state meet Saturday, and though they finished 12th out of 12 teams the experience is bound to pay off for next year for the freshmen and sophomores that will make up the 2013 team.

Senior Amanda Moody finished 57th out of 97 runners who competed. Moody ran a 16:57.10 in her final cross country performance as an AC Bulldog.

Freshman Isabel Sibley led the remainder of the team of underclassmen with a 72 finish and a time of 17:38.10. Freshman Gwen Sibley was 75th in a time of 17:46.50. Sophomore Bailee

Wilson was 77th in a time of 17:54.60, freshman Paige Scheckel was 78th in 17:56.20, Remington Hedges, also a freshman, was 83rd in 18:06.50 and sophomore Eliza Sibley finished 85th in 18:14.50.

First place individual in the women's division went to junior Katren Reinbolt of Fort Scott with a time of 14:50.20, ahead of second place finisher Paige White, a senior from Baxter Springs, with 15:28.40.

Team standings were Hayden in first place followed by Winfield, Baldwin, Wichita Trinity Academy, Paola, DeSoto, Rose Hill, Wamego, Clay Center, Ulysses, Pratt and Anderson County.

Veterans Day program on Nov. 9

Veterans Day Program will be held on Friday, November 9th in the auditorium of the Anderson County High School; due to the fact that Veterans Day falls on Sunday. The Veteran of Foreign Wars and the American Legion feel that it is important that the program be made available to not only the adults of the area, but to the students as well.

The program will begin at 10:30am with the Veterans Day Ceremony to commence at 11:00am. We have a very interesting guest speaker this year; Mrs. Lucia Roe, the wife of last year's speaker, Col. Thomas Roe. Mrs. Roe is not only married to a career military officer, but is an "Army Brat", the daughter of a career non-commissioned officer.

For those who have a problem with the observance not being on Nov. 11, please take note that the next five years it will fall on Monday-Friday.

The Auxiliary will have a lunch at the post after the program, $5 per person.

Petrie to display art

Norma Petrie, of Garnett, will be displaying her artwork throughout the month of November at the Works of Art Gallery.

The gallery will be hosting a Meet the Artist reception for Norma from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 3. Norma may demonstrate during this time.

The Works of Art is located on the east side of the square at 103 S. 9th in Humboldt. Hours are Sunday and Monday-closed, Tuesday - Thursday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., Friday and Saturday from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Fall suppers at Richmond

With the calendar turning to November, it's time for two fall suppers at Richmond.

The United Methodist Church will have its traditional beef/noodle supper Saturday, November 3, serving 5 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

The menu features locally grown beef, with noodles and all the side dishes for adults $7 and children under three, $3.

Included in the evening are a bake sale and drawing for prizes which include one of Mary Hall's paintings, cash gifts, a K-State basket and other items.

Two weeks later, on November 17, will be the Richmond Community Museum chili and soup supper, serving from 5-7 p.m. at the Community Building. Chili or soup with relishes and dessert will be served for a donation.

There will also be drawing for prizes. The Museum will be open after 3 p.m. with no admission charge.

Home heating has changed

From the crude open fireplaces of log cabin days to the automatic gas and oil furnaces of today, home heating has undergone a great change.

The large wood burning fireplace, located in the principal room of the cabin or in the kitchen if there was one, served to provide heat for warmth and cooking, plus light for interior illumination and reading. With its long crane, its pots and kettles, its oven built into the back wall, and its trivets, bellows, and other equipment, the fireplace was a vital part of the early day home. Prominent in the list of other equipment were the trammels or pot hooks, also known as hakes, clams, claws, clips, brakes, hangars and crooks. These hung first from a log-pole, and then from a long crane. In front of the hearth a sheltered bench, known as a warming bench, where the family enjoyed the warmth of the fireside on cold evenings.

As fires grew in size, smaller fireplaces were added to warm bedrooms and living rooms, the fuel being wood or, in some places, coal.

by Henry Roeckers
Contact (785) 448-6244
for local archeology information.

Eventually the big kitchen range made of iron with its ovens, its lids and lid lifters, and stovepipe replaced the open fireplace for cooking. Heating then was accomplished with the aid of small stoves, including Franklin stoves and pot-bellied stoves which made more efficient use of the fuel when placed in or in front of fireplaces.

Since it was not customary in those frugal days to heat rooms when they were not in use, bedrooms got mighty cold in winter time and, when it came time to retire, long-handled warming pans were placed between the sheets to warm the beds before the occupants arrived.

Bedrooms were equally cold on frosty winter mornings and, after reluctantly leaving a warm bed, everyone rushed to the kitchen fireplace or stove in the hope that there would be enough smoldering coals from the night before to start up a blaze when kindling was added.

As houses grew larger, a need for central heating arose, and it first was provided by means of a coal-burning fireplace in the basement which sent heat up through an opening a register centrally located in the first floor. Later, hot air was piped to each room through registers in the floor or wall, as is the case today with gas and oil furnaces.

Use of a coal furnace meant there had to be a coal bin in the basement near the furnace, and there had to be coal shovels, ash cans, pokers, and other accessories.

The furnace had to be stoked and banked at night, grates had to be shaken, clinkers had to be broken up, and ashes had to be removed from the furnace and carried outside in ash cans. In those days, there was a lot more to keeping a home warm than just moving the indicator on a thermostat.

1992: Perot carries county in election

Oct. 29, 2002
Anderson County voters go to the polls next week to make a decision on a $5.2 million new jail construction proposal, cast a vote of confidence in an unopposed county commissioner and make their choice in a number of statewide races. The major local issue in this election revolves around the question to raise an additional one percent county-wide sales tax to fund the construction of a $5.2 million jail facility planned for property in the Golden Prairie Industrial Park in Garnett.

The project to construct a $32 million ethanol production facility in Garnett got a boost from the federal government with the announcement of the award of a $450,000 grant to the project by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Nov. 5, 1992
Though he may not have made much of a dent in what would become Bill Clinton's presidency, Ross Perot carried popular votes in Anderson and two other Kansas counties and tied George Bush for a third in Tuesday's presidential election. Popular vote counts in Kansas showed Perot in second place in Kansas with 387,488 votes. Bush had 445,790 and Clinton 309,523. Nationally, Perot pulled about 18 percent of the popular vote and no electoral votes. Perot support was high in Anderson County before the election, mainly from former Republican supporters who had grown disillusioned with George Bush and the Republican administration.

What was thought to be a national wave of anti-incumbency going into Tuesday's election fell flat by the time voters got to the polls on election day. In major Kansas race and regional races of which Anderson County was a part, incumbents won sound victories over challengers.

by Vickie Moss
Staff Writer

Anti-incumbency fever may not have had the impact it was expected to have nationwide, but in Anderson County races each incumbent in a contested race was booted from office in one of the largest voter turnouts in recent memory. Voter turnout in the county was over 80 percent. In the race for Anderson County Clerk, first-time politician Phyllis Nolan ousted two-term incumbent Arlene Patton. Democrat Franz Aubry thumped Republican incumbent Fred Litsch for sheriff.

Nov. 1, 1982
A tool that uses sound waves to detect disorders of the internal organs in the body has been acquired recently by the Anderson County Hospital. The device, a sonogram, has been used to detect abnormalities in babies before they are born without the use of x-rays. But there are other uses, including detecting aneurysms or the ballooning of arteries, tumors in internal organs, gall stones and kidney disorders. The first experimental uses of the device began in the late 1940s. However, sonograms have not been widely used until the last few years in smaller hospitals.

Oct. 30, 1912
We take pleasure today in presenting our readers with a cut of the new Methodist Episcopal Church, which is now nearing completion and which will be dedicated Sunday, Nov. 10. The church is 97 feet north and south on Oak Streets, by 75 feet east and west on Second Avenue, with a basement. The basement has ample fuel and furnace room, a well-appointed kitchen, two fine rooms for young people's meetings and a large and convenient room for social occasions and two well-appointed toilets and lavatories. The main floor is divided into 15 rooms. The building was erected by J.Q. McAfee and it will stand here many years as a monument to his ability as a builder.

Keep kids safe when trick-or-treating

TOPEKA - Kansas Attorney General Derek Schmidt today reminded parents to keep kids safe when trick-or-treating by taking time to plan before their Halloween outings.

"Halloween can be a fun night for kids and adults, but it can also be a night when those who wish to harm children take advantage of the relaxed atmosphere," Schmidt said. "It's important that parents take time to plan and make good decisions so the kids can enjoy a night of fun."

Schmidt offered the following tips for parents to keep their kids safe:

- Plan your trick-or-treating route only in neighborhoods you know well and visit only houses that are well-lit.
- Always have a parent or other responsible adult accompanying young children.
- Check the Kansas offender registry at www.kbi.ks.gov/registeredoffender when planning your child's trick-or-treat route. You can view maps showing registered sex, drug and violent offenders along your planned route.

- Always carry a flashlight with fresh batteries.
 - Choose costumes that are brightly colored or reflective so they are visible in the dark. Make sure they fit properly to avoid trips and falls. Avoid masks that restrict eyesight.
 - Check all treats before allowing children to eat them. Make sure candy is still in its original packaging and has not been tampered with.
- For more information on keeping kids safe, visit the Attorney General's website at www.ag.ks.gov.

Hill 90th birthday

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 10-30-2012 / Photo Submitted

The Hill girls, Louann, Roberta and Shirley, invite you to celebrate their mother, Allene's, 90th birthday Saturday, November 3, 2012.

Open house begins at 2 p.m. at the Community Building, North Lake, Garnett. Please bring stories to share.

Safe Halloween moved to shelter house

The Iota Iota Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi will be hosting their Safe Halloween on Wednesday, Oct. 31, from 5 p.m.-7 p.m. The event has been moved to the Heritage Park Shelter House. The group will be serving hot dogs, chili, nachos and drinks, in addition to other Halloween treats. Everyone welcome.

Happy Birthday wishes to Bob Orth, who celebrated his special day this past week.

Happy Birthday Pam Clinton and Tiffany Marmon on Oct. 19 and Rylie Page on Oct. 20.

Happy Birthday to Jeanie Widner on Oct. 28.

Krista Lloyd was honored at a surprise baby shower and dinner on Wednesday, Oct. 17 at the home of her grandmother, Mildred Burk. Those attending included siblings Marvin Stahl, Tina Sharrow, Tiffany Singer and Kendra Browning, her mother Coleen Stahl and friend Vickie Singer.

The Donaldson/Brownback families hosted a chili supper and hay rack ride on Saturday evening (Oct. 20) and the home of Justin and Kelsi Donaldson. There were over 50 friends and family members who enjoyed the beautiful autumn evening event.

What is the nature of your soul?

The Bible makes many references to the soul. If a surgeon were to perform surgery on you he would never find a soul. Webster defines the soul as "The spirit in man that is believed to be separate from the body and is the source of a persons emotional, spiritual and moral nature."

In Psalm 23:3 we read that, "He (God) restores my soul." This gives us a reason to believe that our soul can from time to time need some fine tuning from God. As I said if a surgeon goes looking for a soul he cannot find one. That having been said the soul is very clearly displayed in each of us by our nature.

In Matthew 10:28 we read, "Do not be afraid of those who kill the body but cannot kill the soul. Rather be afraid of the One who can destroy both soul and body in hell." This passage clearly states that our soul lives on after our body is dead. Paul says in 2nd Corinthians 5:8 that if we are "Absent from the body we are present with the Lord." Immediately upon death the spirit of the believer passes into the presence of the Lord.

A persons soul is much like the wind. You can't see the wind you just see the results of

it. You can't see a person's soul but you see the results of it as they live out their life. I don't know where the soul resides. This is one of God's mysteries. I do know that the soul is the place in each of us where the heart and mind of God exists. Our heart is vital to our earthly existence our soul is vital to our heavenly existence. Just as our heart needs regular exercise and a healthy diet our soul needs to be a part of a body of believers and in the word of God to stay healthy.

I believe our soul controls our heart and our mind. Our soul belongs to God. In Ezekiel 18:4 we read, "For every living soul belongs to me (God), the father as well as the son-both alike belong to me." That is why God made the soul such a mystery. The eternal life or death of your soul is left totally to Almighty God. If you accept Jesus Christ as your personal Savior you are sealed till the day of redemption. When your soul becomes absent from the body it will be present with the Lord. If you have not accepted Jesus as your personal Savior God says in Ezekiel 18:4, "The soul who sins is the one who will die."

Jesus issues each of us an invitation in Revelation 3:20, "I stand at the door and knock. If anyone hears my voice and opens the door, I will come in and eat with him and he with me." Won't you partake of Jesus great banquet.

David Bilderback: A Ministry on the Holiness of God.

Contact Trena Golden at the bank 852-3512 for an entry.

4-H

The Seekers Not Slackers 4-H club met on Oct. 15 at the Lone Elm community building. Roll call was answered by 22 members and two leaders with what they were dressing for Halloween. Karson Hermreck and Jerrick Jones led the club in saying the flag salute and 4-H Pledge. Lanie Walter and Cassie Bowen led the club in singing "Itsy Bitsy Spider". Community leader CJ Lacey reported the 4-H Achievement banquet would be held Nov.11 at 12:30 p.m. at the Anderson County Jr-Sr High School. All families are to bring two covered dishes, a main and a side dish. Officer training will be held immediately following the banquet and awards program. Enrollment forms are due next month. The next council meeting will be held Nov. 5. Community project leader Kathy LaCross reported she would hold a project meeting in November on preparing goats for kidding.

A Halloween party was held. Members split into four teams and decorated pumpkins while blindfolded. They also bobbed for apples and had a costume contest. Karson Hermreck won most original, Lanie Walter most cute, Jerrick Jones most funny and Hailey Gillespie most scary. The Vermillion and Nicki Sprague families provided refreshments. Announcements: next meeting Nov. 19 at 7 p.m. at the Lone Elm community building. Roll call-your favorite Thanksgiving food. Program led by Hailey Gillespie, Austin Louk and Cassie Bowen, refreshments by the Bowen and Louk families. The club sang happy birthday to Tanner LaCross. The meeting was adjourned by saying the 4-H motto. Cassie Bowen, reporter

Library

The library board members held their regular meeting Oct.

16. Notebooks for DVD storage have been ordered. Charlie Ward is building a shelf for the notebooks. LaNell reported on the Westminister Woods Annual Inservice she and Donna Westerman attended. The magazine list from Ebsco was reviewed. Shoptmart will be ordered.

The summer reading workshop will be Feb. 27 in Iola.

Clubs

With the absence of President A. J. Silvey, Vice President Ronald McMullen opened the Oct.17 Lions Club meeting, following a great meal served by the United Methodist Women. There were eight members in attendance. Bill Ulrich, treasurer reported a good crowd showed up, despite the heavy rain, to the Alzheimer's walk and auction held at the Iola square. Prior Lion member Bill Michael had been a special contributor to the cause and fellow Lions wanted to honor his memory by showing their support and attendance.

The Colony Lions are still taking children's book donations at various locations, one being Garnett State Savings Bank of Colony, to be contributed to Kansas Children's Hospital; such a worthwhile cause. The next regular Lions meeting will be held Nov.7 at 7 p.m. in the Methodist church basement. All are welcome to attend. Come be a visitor and enjoy a hearty dinner.

Jolly Dozen Club members met at the city hall community room Oct. 15. Seven members attended. Claudette Anderson took a plant to member Virginia Weatherman. Next year's Colony Day was discussed. Member Delma French's birthday was Oct. 21 and members planned to send a card. Debbie Wools received the hostess gift. Jane Ward will host the November meeting at the community room. Hostess Charlene Tinsley served refreshments in the Halloween theme.

Around Town

Dalton Luedke celebrated his 9th birthday at a pizza party in Garnett. Attending were his grandparents Jerry and Susan Luedke, Colony, Gene and Anita Peine, rural Garnett, aunts, uncles and cousins and his dad and wife Justin and Angie Luedke and Dalton's brother Clay.

Mike Wilmoth, Wellington, son of Don and Kathy Wilmoth, Iola, former residents of Colony hit "big time" briefly. Mike teaches high school history and American government at Wellington and is a referee there also. He was chosen as one of the replacements for the National Football League for a short time. His dad, Don, taught at Colony and coached football and basketball several years. Mike attended school here through the 6th grade when the family then moved to Iola.

The drought has not yet been broken. Oct. 23 (day this went to paper) marked 144th day of drought. Some water is in branches, but subsoil moisture remains low and springs are not running. With the rains received, it is marvelous to see colors appearing this fall! Weather has a significant effect on the vibrancy of fall colors. This we miss, but some color is wonderful.

Sympathy is expressed to Beth Prock and Ruth Caudell at the death of their mother, Thelma Manbeck, 96, on Oct. 17 at Windsor Place, Iola. Funeral services were held Saturday at Waugh-Yokum & Friskel Chapel, Iola; burial followed at LaHarpe Cemetery.

Sympathy is also extended to Les and Rita Dietrich at the death of their grandson, Andy Bennett, 26, Iola. He died at Overland Park Regional Medical Center Oct. 15. Cremation took place. A memorial celebration was held Oct. 20 at the Community Building in Riverside Park, Iola.

STROKE TREATMENT

— Right here in Garnett —

When someone you love is having a stroke, every minute matters. The sooner you get to the hospital, the better the chances for recovery. And when you get to a hospital that's part of Saint Luke's Stroke Network, the odds of reversing the effects of stroke may be even better.

As a member of Saint Luke's Health System, our doctors treat patients who are experiencing strokes using the same care protocols that have earned Saint Luke's Neuroscience Institute in Kansas City an international reputation for reversing the effects of stroke. It's world-class treatment for stroke, right here in Garnett. That's why it's critical to remember when you suspect you're having a stroke, just get here.

To learn the warning signs of stroke, go to saintlukeshalthsystem.org/stroke

Anderson County Hospital is proud to be recognized by the American Stroke Association and the American Heart Association as an "Emergent Stroke Ready Hospital."

Emergency drought assistance, reporting deadlines

Emergency drought assistance is available for livestock producers affected by drought in Anderson County and all neighboring counties.

Producers may request assistance in the Anderson County office by filing an application for cost-share assistance under the Emergency Conservation Program (ECP) from October 15 through November 15, 2012 at their local Farm Service Agency (FSA). ECP is being implemented to assist in providing access to water because of extended period of severe drought. The damage must be of such magnitude that it would be too costly for the producer to rehabilitate without Federal assistance.

Participants can receive cost-share assistance of up to 75 percent of the cost for temporary measures and 50% of the cost for permanent measures for approved emergency conservation practices. Contact your local FSA office for a list of practices approved for cost share.

The application process can be expedited if producers can provide a signed and dated summary that includes the legal description of where the action was taken, mileage from water source, amount of water hauled, weight and number of cattle being watered, evidence and/or receipts of producer's actual cost incurred. A large volume of applications are expected and application requirements vary on the implemented practice. Any action taken by the producer to expedite the process will benefit all parties involved.

DEADLINE REMINDER

Reminder that the deadline to report grass acreage and intended use is November 15th and the deadline to report fall seeded crops is December 15th. The adjusted grass reporting deadline has been established by the National office to coincide with crop insurance reporting deadlines.

Contact the Anderson County FSA office at 1-785-448-3128 or inquire in person at 111 N. Maple, Garnett, KS 66032.

Aging agency to help with Medicare Part D enrollment

The East Central Kansas Area Agency on Aging will be hosting several outreach events to assist Medicare beneficiaries with their Medicare Part D Enrollment for 2013. Those wanting assistance will have opportunities to receive help at events in Garnett during the month of November at the Anderson County Hospital and thru extended business hours at the agency in Ottawa. A schedule is below.

Open Enrollment takes place from October 15 to December 7, 2012. All plans will then become effective January 1, 2013. Everyone should have a plan comparison done as there are plans that were bought out for 2013 by different companies, several which have changed their plan name, several that are no longer in business and several that are new. Kansas has 31 plans for 2013. The highest premium is $116.40 and the lowest premium is $15.00. If a plan has a deductible it will range between $325 and $60.

Ottawa

- Oct. 30: ECKAAA, 5 p.m.-9 p.m. (Tuesday)
- Nov. 7: ECKAAA, open until 6 p.m. (Wednesday)

Garnett

- Nov. 10: ECKAAA, 8:30-12:30pm (Saturday)
- Nov. 14: ECKAAA, open until 6 p.m. (Wednesday)
- Nov. 21: ECKAAA, open until 6 p.m. (Wednesday)
- Nov. 28: ECKAAA, open until 6 p.m. (Wednesday)
- Dec. 1: ECKAAA, 8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. (Saturday)
- Dec. 5: ECKAAA, open until 6 p.m. (Wednesday)

We are asking that beneficiaries complete a Medicare D Worksheet and return it to the office at 117 S Main, Ottawa. A comparison of the top three plans will be done and brought to the outreach event you will be attending. Call Leslea Rockers at the ECKAAA office to get a worksheet and schedule your visit at one of the outreach events at 242-7200 or 1-800-633-5621.

On August 8, 2012 the Board of Directors of Anderson County RWD #5 passed a resolution putting the District in a Water Warning due to worsening drought conditions. All nonessential water use is to be ELIMINATED including all water used for outdoor watering; either public or private, for gardens, lawns, trees, shrubs, plants, parks, golf courses, playing fields, swimming pools, or other recreational areas; or the washing of motor vehicles, boats, trailers, or the exterior of any building or structure.

Due to reservoir conditions and low stream flow the Water Warning is still in effect.

Please implement some practical conservation measures in your household if you have not already done so. Some examples would be:

- Turn off the faucet while shaving or brushing your teeth
- Only run the dishwasher or washing machine with full loads
- Fix all dripping faucets and running toilets
- Don't let water run while hand washing dishes
- Shorten the length of your showers
- Use small amounts of water in the tub for baths
- Keep a pitcher of drinking water in the refrigerator instead of letting the faucet run until water is cool
