Moving Day

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 01-29-2013 / Vickie Moss

This house, owned by the First Christian Church of Garnett, was moved early Friday morning from its original location on West Third Avenue to a new site about three miles northeast of Garnett on U.S. 169. The slow-moving process required the house to move through downtown Garnett, bringing quite a few onlookers for the event.

Fire marshal investigates suspicious grass fires

Several fires burned through Anderson, other counties in past few months, officials say

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

TOPEKA — State fire investigators are looking into an unusual series of grass fires in the area over the past few months.

It's too early in the investigation to say what may be happening, Rose Rozmiarek, Chief of Investigations for the Kansas State Fire Marshal, said. Her office was contacted late last week by Anderson County officials, who asked for the state's help in the case.

Over the past few months, firefighters in Anderson and other area counties have been called to several grass fires. Something about their origins seemed suspicious.

Firefighters revamp department

Smokeoff competition, upgrades to equipment are some ways firefighters address needs

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Where there's smoke, there are firefighters. At least, that's how Garnett firefighters hope the saying goes as they prepare to host a statewide barbecue competition for fire departments later this spring.

The Garnett Fire Department is expected to play host to a barbecue competition in downtown Garnett April 5 and 6. Firefighter Josh DeHoux is taking the lead on organizing the contest, and said a barbecue "smokeoff" is the perfect contest for firefighters. The contest is open to fire departments across the state and will be judged by local law enforcement officers. Because it is not a sanctioned state barbecue contest, the public will be able to attend and sample food products from the competitors. Proceeds

Spring election brings few contested races

Westphalia, Kincaid have contested city races, USD 479 to have battle

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

Voters in most parts of Anderson County will have simple decisions to make this spring, as there are very few contested political races up for election April 2.

Unless someone launches a write-in campaign, it's likely most people running for city and school board seats will win them. There are a few exceptions, though. In USD 479, two men are running for one seat. In Kincaid, seven people are vying for five city council seats. And in Westphalia, two men will face off for the position of mayor, and six people will contest each other over five city council seats.

Contested Races

Of the contested races, USD 479 incumbent Frank Stewart is being challenged by Travis Church for Position 4 on the Crest School Board. Two incumbents, Jeff Strickler and Bryan Miller, are running unopposed to keep their seats. A vacant at-large position likely will be filled by Steve Prasko, who is the only person to file for that seat.

In Kincaid, seven people are vying for five positions on the city council. The top 5 people receiving votes will win the seats. The contestants include: Carolyn Whitcomb, Marjorie Stephens, Judith Lenon, Brandon Gates, Darlene Stewart, William Starr Sr. and Tammie Neudeck. Voters also will select a mayor; Leonard Leadstrom is the only person seeking that post.

Westphalia's city council also brought a lot of interest this year. Two people, Merlin Carpenter and Samuel VanPatton, are running for mayor. The city council's five seats will be sought by six people: Dorothy Cameron, James Nolan, Robert

Chamber Players member defends requests for guest tax money

Debate over transient guest tax increase continues at meeting

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Rethink the problem, and find a new solution.

That's the advice tourism committee member and Chamber Players theater enthusiast Tom Emerson, Jr. had for city commissioners in the ongoing debate over a tax paid by people who use Garnett hotels, motels and bed-and-breakfast facilities, which is then spent on tourism marketing.

At last week's city commission meeting, Emerson continued the debate over transient guest taxes. At a Jan. 8 meeting, commissioners decided to raise the transient guest tax to 4 percent amid a lengthy debate over the tax and over issues with the tourism committee that oversees money collected by the tax. Proceeds from the transient guest tax are used to help organizations advertise special events like Cornstock and Chamber Players presentations. But at the Jan. 8 meeting, Mayor Greg Gwin asked to table a $2,269 request from the Chamber Players until questions surrounding the transient guest tax were resolved.

At the earlier meeting, Gwin said he had a problem with organizations asking for more money every year, and he objected to increasing the tax to keep up with requests. He said the transient guest tax (commonly referred to as TGT) money was never intended to be "life support" for the organizations, a statement that upset Emerson, a member of the Chamber Players board.

"My organization supported itself for 25 years before we knew about TGT," Emerson said. "It's not life support for any of these organizations. The doors are open without TGT. The purpose of TGT is to tell people the doors are open."

Gwin responded that requests for the money keep increasing, and at some point commissioners would have to set new regulations to make sure they could afford to support the groups without raising taxes.

Emerson, who also is a mem-

RICHARDS

January 18, 1923-January 22, 2013

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW
Published January 29, 2013

Dean Dudley "Tutt" Richards, Jr., 90, of Baldwin City, KS died peacefully on Jan. 22, 2013 at the Baldwin Healthcare and Rehabilitation Center in the arms of family.

Richards

Dean was born at Paola, KS on Jan. 18, 1923, to Dean Dudley Richards, Sr. and Verda Jane (Polkinghorn) Richards. When Dean was nine months old, he and his older brother, Frank Dudley "Dud" Richards, moved with their parents to Garnett.

While recuperating from rheumatic fever when he was in elementary school, Dean focused on the interest he had developed in printing, publishing first a little neighborhood paper and in junior high, a ditto-graph weekly. He became a committed journalist at Garnett High School, where he was editor of the semi-weekly student newspaper, secretary of the Kansas Inter-Scholastic Press Association and, in his senior year, one of only ten recipients of the annual National Quill & Scroll Journalism Award. Dean also worked throughout high school at The Garnett Review, where he was trained in reporting, photography, advertising and printing.

After graduation, Dean attended Baker University briefly before being inducted into the Enlisted Reserve Corps (ERC), United States Army. During his service, Dean qualified for the Army Specialized Training Program (ASTP), which enabled him to take courses in mathematics at the University of Alabama when he was stationed at Fort McClellan, and electrical engineering at Manhattan College, New York City. Complications from rheumatic fever led to his being honorably discharged as a disabled veteran in 1943.

Dean returned to Baker University, where he was photographer and editor of The Baker Orange and a member of the Gamma Theta Chapter of Delta Tau Delta. In 1945, he transferred to the University of Missouri - Columbia to study advertising and public relations in the School of Journalism. At MU, he also helped build the Gamma Kappa Chapter of Delta Tau Delta. Dean ultimately graduated from Baker with a B.S. in sociology and from MU with a B.S. in journalism.

A professional journalist for almost 45 years, Dean worked first at The Kansas City Star as a linotype operator and machinist. From 1950 to 1956, he was Printing Production Manager for Corn Belt Publications, first in Kansas City, MO and then Omaha.

Dean married Catherine Jane Scott on March 25, 1950 at the United Methodist Church in Garnett. They lived with their growing family in Baldwin City, in Kansas City, MO, Prairie Village, KS and Omaha before returning to Baldwin in 1956 to co-own and operate The Baldwin Ledger and The Wellsville Globe, with Dean serving as publisher and general manager of both newspapers and Jane, managing editor of The Ledger. In 1966 Dean and Jane founded The Eudora Enterprise. Dean also ran a commercial printing business in Baldwin.

As members of the Baldwin community, Dean and Jane helped to establish and promote The Maple Leaf Festival, a new public library, the town swimming pool and Baker's Rice Auditorium, among other projects. For many years, they also helped deliver Christmas presents to children in Douglas County who otherwise would have had no gifts.

After selling the trio of newspapers and printing shop in 1973, Dean was hired as Regional Public Affairs Officer for Region VII (Kansas, Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska) of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). His numerous responsibilities included media coverage, speech writing and Congressional contacts, as well as disaster assistance through HUD's Disaster Housing Office.

Dean received a number of commendations during his years at HUD, including recognition for assisting "persons displaced during the Great New England Blizzard of 1978." At the time of his retirement from HUD in 1993, Dean was his Department's Senior Public Affairs Officer in the Field.

Dean was a member of Alpha Delta Sigma, Baker's senior scholastic honorary; Delta Tau Delta; the Lloyd Beaton Post No. 228 of the American Legion, and the Baldwin City Rotary Club, among others. Dean's civic recognitions include being named a "Distinguished Jayhawker" for his contributions "to the progress of the State of Kansas." He was also the proud father of four and the grandfather of two Eagle Scouts.

Dean enjoyed fishing and boating, photography, reading, electronics, ragtime, Dixieland and Big Band music, puns, crossword puzzles, chocolate-covered cherries, playing pool, staying informed and caring for the many dogs and cats that he and his wife welcomed into their home. He was also the biggest fan of his wife's career as a journalist, appreciating her creativity and entering her work in many publication contests. Despite a well-deserved reputation as a strict disciplinarian, no father was prouder of his children or more concerned for the safety and success of his "brood" than Dean was.

Dean is survived by his and Jane's six children and their spouses, Dr. Dean Dudley Richards III and Nancy, Leawood, KS; Nancy Jane Richards, Oakham, MA; Susan Linn Richards Johnson and Karl Johnson, Kansas City, MO; Scott Dudley Richards and Terrie, Lakewood, CO; John Dudley Richards and Nancy, Baldwin City; and Kip Dudley Richards and Denise, Overland Park, KS; a nephew, Stephen Dudley Richards, Garnett, KS; twelve grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren, and a nephew, Stephen Dudley Richards. He was preceded in death by his wife, Jane, parents, brother "Dud" and infant brother Robert.

The funeral service was at the First United Methodist Church in Baldwin City on Friday, Jan. 25. Burial was at the Garnett Cemetery.

Dean's family extends its profound appreciation to the staff of the Baldwin Healthcare and Rehabilitation Center for their loving and seemingly tireless care of our father during his stay there, and to the Good Shepherd Hospice for the comprehensive and sensitive care they extended to our father and his family during his final days.

A memorial gift in honor of Dean Richards can be made to the Jane and Dean Richards Endowed Journalism Scholarship Fund, Baker University. Checks can be made out to Baker, with a notation either on the check or in a separate note indicating that the donation is a memorial gift in honor of Dean (or Tutt). Contributions may be sent to Baker University, Office of Advancement, P.O. Box 65, Baldwin City, KS 66006.

More than torture

'Zero Dark Thirty' relays the immensity of the effort, grit needed to find bin Laden

EDITORIAL

by Dane Hicks, PUBLISHER

Critics obsessed with the debate over interrogation and torture in the context of the new film Zero Dark Thirty are missing the films poignant illustration of the enormity of history's biggest manhunt and the vast importance of the promise made by the United States to bring the architects of 9/11 to justice.

It is that immensity - the billions of dollars; the thousands of intelligence agents and staff; the unimaginable number of man hours and the frustration of pursuing leads for months and even years only to discover the dead end to which they led - which is brought home to the movie goer with the painstaking and deciphering conviction of an archeological dig.

It is something most of us never comprehended as it was underway. In those post-9/11 years as we busied ourselves with colored terror threat warnings and anthrax scares and shoe bombers and Abu Graib and Gitmo and protests over the invasion of Iraq, thousands of nameless, faceless operatives from the Central Intelligence Agency and National Security Agency and government organizations with names and acronyms we've never heard of continued the methodical hour-to-hour combing of the sands in some of the most foreboding civilizations on earth to find Osama bin Laden and other drivers of the international terrorist threat. The movie notes dates as the agents keep up their plodding struggle and begs the viewer to remember: As most of us returned to near normalcy these silent soldiers were on the job, looking for the tiniest shred of information from wherever it might appear, seeking ways to independently confirm support for any would-be fact, nurturing and following it sometimes through the perils of foreign lands and even threats by American bureaucracy and politics.

It is Zero Dark Thirty, afterall, which became a 2012 election pawn by conservatives who said the film about bin Laden's killing was designed with an October 2012 release date in order to pump up President Barack Obama's re-election chances. Instead, the movie serves more to vindicate the intelligence gathering efforts undertaken during the George W. Bush administration - including torture and "enhanced interrogation methods" as well as the billions spent in the search - as tantamount to eventually finding bin Laden. The shred the analysts followed, tellingly, came through methods of water boarding of one detainee in 2004, corroborated by other detainee interrogations, as the belief in a message courier trusted by bin Laden was bolstered into a plausible theory.

As to the torture debate it is clear this piece of information came about as a result of water boarding and other rough treatment of a terrorist supporter with ties to 9/11. What is not clear, and what opponents continue to contend, is that torture also provided bad leads and misinformation. Perhaps that's true, but so did many other non-interrogation methods. The fact that torture in this case yielded the key information may not vindicate the practice entirely but it does guarantee a vibrant future for the argument.

Zero Dark Thirty's importance is as viable to our enemies as it is to our fellow Americans in that it reiterates the story of our heavy promise after 9/11 - that when America swore to do whatever it took to find vengeance against the mastermind and others who plotted the murder of 3,000 Americans in the twin towers, it was no idle threat.

President Obama's re-founding

BY RICH LOWRY

NATIONAL REVIEW

For the left, this is what winning looks like. President Barack Obama gave a second inaugural address that just as easily could have been delivered by progressive darling Elizabeth Warren.

If the president didn't repeat the phrase that Republicans threw back at him so often during the 2012 campaign -- "you didn't build that" -- the speech was a meditation on the same theme of the limits of individual action. The address was a paean to collectivism, swaddled in the rhetoric of individual liberty and of fidelity to the founding.

Lowry

He began and ended with the Founding Fathers and threaded the Declaration of Independence throughout. This gave the speech a conservative sheen. He used the words "timeless," "ancient," "lasting" and "enduring." He sounded like Republican Sen. Marco Rubio in invoking "what makes us exceptional," namely "our allegiance to an idea, articulated in a declaration made more than two centuries ago."

But this framing of the speech only served to amplify the ambition of President Obama's larger political project. He hopes to reorient the American mainstream and locate conservatives outside it. He wants to take the founders from the right and baptize the unreconstructed entitlement state and the progressive agenda in the American creed.

In Obama's telling, the high points of our national life are found in collective action, in the growth of government, in teachers trained and roads built. "Now, more than ever," he declared, "we must do these things together, as one nation and one people."

He presented his agenda as the logical consequence of the Declaration of Independence's enunciation of the equality of all men and our right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. For Obama, that means equal-pay legislation, gay marriage and amnesty for illegal immigrants. He included a long passage on the necessity of fighting climate change with transformative energy policies. "That's what will lend meaning," he said, "to the creed our fathers once declared." (One wonders what Thomas Jefferson would have made of the argument that his handiwork is meaningless absent federal subsidies for the likes of Solyndra.)

According to President Obama, entitlements like Medicare and Social Security don't merely represent a necessary safety net for the vulnerable. "They free us to take the risks that make this country great," he maintained, in a highly imaginative interpretation of these programs. All of his bows to modesty were formalistic. He mentioned "outworn programs," without even promising to eliminate any. He said we have always had a suspicion of central authority, but of course he didn't endorse it. He said we don't have to settle the debate over the size of government once and for all, while insisting that we keep expanding it on his own terms.

All in all, it was a brazen performance, as audacious in intent as it was banal in its expression. He used the founders' authority to advance an expansive conception of American government that would have been unrecognizable to them. Amid the pomp and the circumstances, Republicans should have heard a direct challenge. The president did them, and everyone else, the favor of enunciating the battle lines and the stakes of the fights to come.

Rich Lowry is editor of the National Review.

Whoever you are that called the Phone Forum about the dance team showing skin, you don't get it. Here's how it is see: the dance team wears costumes that are against the school dress code, and the school gives them time and has them come out and dance in front of the pep assembly and the ball games and basically says it's okay for them to break the rules and sets them up to do just that. It's against the rules for the rest of us but it's okay since it's the dance team. How's that for crazy? Thank you.

I'm going to share another one of Garnett's wonderful secrets. If you have watched the moon the last few nights you know how spectacular the moonrise has been as the moon comes up on the horizon. One of the best places in town to watch the moon is from the intersection of Walnut and Fourth Streets. It's good any time but you can really see now that the leaves are off the trees. Just don't get run over by a car.

Is anyone going to have a Valentine's Day dance this year?

Back in the olden days when children couldn't sit still in school or they talked out, teachers were creative. Now all they say is 'your child needs to be put on medicine.' What do they want- the whole school put on medicine? There are so many children already. My son does have ADHD. My son is a B student, but yet they want to put him on medicine. Why can't these teachers just teach these kids? Kids all along have had ADHD and they didn't have medication for them. They just need to teach them.

I just wanted to say to all the Crest students and athletes I think we have a great bunch of kids at our school. We're proud of you all.

Hey y'all what's it they say about only being 7 handshakes away from the Pope? Jim Harbaugh, coach of the 49ers playing in the Superbowl, is married to Sarah Feuerborn Harbaugh, who's the daughter of Merle Feuerborn who was born and raised in Richmond. It was in the Kansas City paper this morning. Cool, huh?

Ezekiel's message of judgment

Ezekiel was a prophet of God to the captives who dwelt by the River Chebar at Tel Abib. He prophesied for at least twenty years from 593 B.C. until 573 B.C. Ezekiel witnessed much of the decline of the Assyrian Empire and the rise of the Babylonian Empire under King Nebuchadnezzar. Ezekiel proclaimed Gods message for his Covenant people as well as the nations surrounding the land of Israel. The message was one of judgment on Israel because of its idolatry.

In chapter 3 Ezekiel describes a vision he received from God. "The Spirit lifted me up and took me away, and I went in bitterness in the heart of my spirit, the hand of the LORD being strong upon me. And I came to the exiles at Tel Abib, who were dwelling by the Chebar canal and I sat where they were dwelling. And I sat there overwhelmed for seven days." At the end of these seven days God appointed Ezekiel as the watchman for the house of Israel. The watchman in biblical times was stationed on the wall of the city and was responsible for the people inside the city warning them of any impending danger. Failure to issue the warning would make him accountable for any misfortune that resulted.

Weekly Devotional by David Bilderback

Ezekiel is given a stern warning by God to deliver a message of judgment on the nation of Judah. Ezekiel was then told. "Thus says the LORD GOD. And whether they hear or refuse to hear (for they are a rebellious house) they will know a prophet has been among them.

The parallel God draws here is the people would not ignore the cry of the ordinary watchman yet they would not heed Ezekiel's warning. This had to be a difficult message for Ezekiel to deliver knowing that the message would be ignored. As is always the case when God's people disobeyed there were consequences. Nebuchadnezzar destroyed Gods beloved Jerusalem in 587-586 B.C. and took most of the remaining inhabitants into exile.

God is holy. Sin is contrary to his holiness and must be judged. Israel was a rebellious nation and the Exile was designed to produce a nation ready to live in obedience before God.

AC fresh pull 50-32 win

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - The AC freshman game against Wellsville Friday was a game in two halves that eventually yielded a 50-32 win for AC and a season record for the freshman of 6-1.

The first quarter saw the Bulldogs run out to a 9 to 2 lead, but the wheels came off and Wellsville scored 16 unanswered points in the second period. At the half, the boys were down 27 to 11 and it looked as if the dogs were well on their way to their second loss.

However in the second half the Bulldogs came out with an attitude and put the hurt on the Eagles. With a stifling defense and a balanced offensive attack, the boys were able to climb back into the game and tie it at 32-32 by the end of the 3rd quarter. From there the bulldogs never looked backed, holding the Eagles scoreless in the 4th quarter and going on to win 50 to 32.

Jake Rundle hit 19 points to lead AC. Chase Ratliff and Mitchell Highberger both had 9, Derrick Nelson 6, Trey Ahring 3 and Mason Skiles and Zeke Hermreck both had 2.

Hoping to continue on their success, the bulldogs will travel to Prairie View on Jan. 29 and to Iola on Feb. 1. The week will be followed up by their first tournament at Central Heights on Saturday, February 2.

Vikes edge West Franklin 40-36

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

POMONA - Central Heights had one primary mission last week in what turned out to be a 40-36 win against West Franklin - put scoring threat Brady Geist in a box and keep him there.

"Brady is one of the better players in our area," said Central Heights head coach Rusty Cannady. "Tristan Davis' name won't show up in the stat sheet very much but defensively he did as good a job on Brady as I have seen in a long time. Tristan held him scoreless in the first half and he finished the night with 7."

The contest was mostly a defensive test with not a lot of offense. The Vikings battled foul trouble and Tyler Hendron and Zach McAfee stepped in to provide the muscle in the minutes the Vikes needed.

"As a team we were alert and more aggressive than in our last few games," Cannady said. "We communicated as a team and looked out for one another."

The Vikes were up by 3 30-17 at the half and only managed a 6 point margin by the end of the third period at 32-26. The Vikes held up the pressure and kept a thin surplus to take the win.

Jordan Horstick had 14 on the night, Trever Burkdoll 7, Hendron 6, Drew Beckwith and McAfee 4 each, Davis 3 and Tanner Erhart 2.

Bulldogs drop Metro Academy 72-43

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Anderson County shellacked Metro Academy last week 72-43 in a game that saw the Bulldog bench get some live game time and boosted Eric Tastove to a new high game score.

AC was only up by 10 points at the half, but blistered Metro with a 23-11 third period which put the game out of reach. AC's defense continued to hold tight and held Metro to the low double-digits scoring in each quarter.

Tastove hammered in 30 points for the night, most coming from a barrage of two-pointers in the second and third periods.

Spencer Walter followed up with 15 points on the night.

Tanner Lickteig had 7, Ian Comfort 6, Zach Hilliard 5, Jack Rickabaugh 4, Tyler Woodard 3 and Steve Dial 2.

Metro's Geriger led his team for the night with 12 points.

Crest drops NE Arma 60-20

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

ARMA - "Tonight would have been a tough night to play us," Crest head coach Travis Hermreck said of his Lancer squad after their 60-20 throttling of NE Arma.

"The Lancers had a little extra about them. I think they wanted to make amends for Saturday."

A chip on their shoulder? Maybe. Crest's third period meltdown in the championship of the Pleasanton Tournament after a first half punching match with Humboldt couldn't have set well with any team.

But Humboldt adjusted and picked the Lancers apart in that second half, and that was that. Turn the page to Tuesday.

"Our defense was as good as it has been this year," Hermreck said. "We need to stay focused and keep it there."

The contest was never close. Crest controlled the game from the start and only gave NE Arma a chance to breath after the fourth period started. Kyle Hammond snapped up 7 3-pointers to notch 29 points on the night. Jordan Morton hit 11, Jesse Boone 8, Hunter Frazell had 6, Brock Ellis 4 and Austin Green had 2.

Viking girls carve win 42-37

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

POMONA - Central Heights girls broke free after a 14-all tie at the half against West Franklin to stretch to a 42-37 win on the night.

The teams were neck-and-neck even to the beginning of the fourth period with a 28-28 tie at the end of the third quarter.

"We played with poise for most of the game and hit a lot of key free throws down the stretch," said head coach Ben Vaughn. "Brianna Erhart continues to improve and shoot the ball well- it was a well-played game by both teams."

Erhart led the Vikes with 19 points. Kenzie Hayward had 10, Sydney Meyer and Regan Markley both had 4, Sam Stegner 3 and Whitney Kraus 2.

Greeley flag

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 01-29-2013 / Photo Submitted

Three members of the VFW, Steve Newland, Clarence Hermann and Tom Emerson, visited Greeley Elementary on January 16th. Their goal was to talk to children about U.S. flag etiquette and tell some history and trivia regarding Old Glory. Above, Steve Newland and Clarence Herman of the VFW help second grade students learn to fold the flag while Tom Emerson reads the meaning of each fold. Speaking to Kindergarten through sixth grade, the VFW members explained how the flag got its stars and stripes, how it should be displayed, saluting the flag, correctly folding the flag and what each fold means, and general respectfulness for the flag of the United States of America. Students and staff listened attentively and enjoyed asking questions afterward.

Library to discuss Plaskin novel

The Garnett Public Library will hold a book discussion on Wednesday, February 27th at 2 p.m. "Katie Up and Down the Hall" by Glenn Plaskin was the title chosen. The discussion will be led by Paulabeth Henderson. Please take note of the time change. For the month of February we will have the discussion in the afternoon.

For families and animal lovers everywhere, Katie Up and Down the Hall is the transcendent tale of how three generations of strangers and an astutely intelligent dog create their own little family in a waterside community along the Hudson river.

It all begins with a random meeting between a younger man and his octogenarian neighbor, Pearl, their attachment cemented by a blond-haired puppy. It isn't long before writer Glenn Plaskin, Pearl, and her husband, Arthur, form a profound bond that blesses all in its sphere. This includes a three-year old boy named Ryan and his single dad, John, who also happen to be living down the same hallway in a downtown Manhattan high-rise, just opposite the World Trade Center.

Books are available for checkout at the library. The discussions are typically held the fourth Wednesday of each month at 7 p.m. in the Archer Room at the library; however, February we are trying the 2 p.m. time change. Notification is posted in case of cancellation.

Cooking was work in the good ol' days

Do any of you remember when your parents or grandparents had many pieces of equipment, furnishings, and decorations that have disappeared with the years? They had, for example, framed mottos hanging on the walls that said, "God Bless Our Home," "In God We Trust," "Peace Be With You," "Home Sweet Home" and "Love One Another." One motto read, "In Prosperity, Friends Will Be Plenty. In Adversity, Not One in Twenty."

The parlor or living room would have a high backed, haircloth sofa, pillows filled with pine needles or goose feathers, some rag carpets, several rocking chairs, a cuspidor, a quilting frame, a prayer stool, a spinning wheel, a large family Bible, several kerosene lamps, some candlesticks, and perhaps a pump organ or harp-sichord.

In the kitchen, in addition to the wooden icebox, the dry sink, the chair table, and the iron range, you usually could find a nutmeg grater, metal canisters holding tea and coffee, a coffee grinder, a teapot with a knitted cozy surrounding it, a cheese press, a dough raising box, a wood box and a coal scuttle. In the real early days, there would be several tankards, made of wood or pewter for drinking beer, ale and other beverages, and sometimes extensively decorated; a rummer for quaffing rum, a pewter charger or platter, a wooden trencher on which to carve and serve the meat, and a wooden breadbox for slicing bread at the dining table. Often food and herbs were hung up to dry on long rails.

The fully equipped kitchen also had a slate with slate pencil and eraser so that menus could be written for the cook on one side and items needed from the store on the other.

Until our modern kitchen conveniences and our great array of canned and frozen foods came along, the home kitchen was a veritable factory - by this I mean, the scene of much cutting, slicing, mixing, blending, kneading, grinding and so on - as the housewife performed many of the functions assumed by the food manufacturer today. And she had a great array of implements with which to carry out her culinary tasks. Getting meals was real work in those days, since every recipe had to be made up from ingredients in their natural state. Does this bring back any memories!

1913: Experience trumps book learning

Feb. 4, 2003

Around the nation, people are mourning the loss of the space shuttle Columbia and the seven astronauts aboard. The mood is perhaps most somber in Texas, where the shuttle was lost, and where former Anderson County residents now living in the area are following the news coverage of the events and remembering their own glimpses of the tragedy. One Anderson County native now living in Plano, Texas, said she heard the boom and it rattled everything.

Officials with East Kansas Agri-Energy began meeting with area banks Monday in order to provide information to lenders who may be receiving inquiries from area residents hoping to borrow money to invest in the planned ethanol plant slated for construction in Garnett.

An order from the Federal Communications Commission

by Vickie Moss
Staff Writer

(FCC) deregulating the provision of new telephones and related equipment is now in effect. United Telephone Company of Kansas officials announce. The order affects new customers, customers who move within an exchange and customers who request a change in service. Existing phone customers will have the opportunity to buy the phones they are now using at a reduced price. Eventually all customers will own their telephone. Customers who buy their own phones will save money because the monthly lease charge will be eliminated. However, customers also will be responsible for maintenance of the telephone.

The City of Garnett continues to pursue options available for removing the Hotel Richart from its site at the northeast corner of Oak and Fourth Avenue by having demolition specifications charted. However, the final plan will have to be approved by the Kansas Historical Society due to the location of the demolition in conjunction with the Anderson County Courthouse.

Anderson County Commissioners met with newly appointed undersheriff Steve Hinkle to discuss departmental matters. Hinkle first updated the commission on the condition of Sheriff Franz Aubry, who is at a Topeka hospital recovering from fungal meningitis. Hinkle said Aubry seemed to be in better spirits and was eager to get back to his job, but it will take some time for the medicine to get rid of the illness.

The old plan of school teachers was to "stick to the book." If the pupil could memorize rules of arithmetic, grammar, etc. and rattle them off at the recitation hour, that was all that was expected of him. If he could keep the rules in his head and repeat them at the end of the term of school, he was "educated." But it's different now. If the pupil understands the rules so as to apply them in a practical way, given though he can't repeat them verbatim, he has an education that will carry him through life pretty comfortably. The present day teacher strives to give his knowledge into practice and takes them to industrial institutions, when possible, so that they may learn the real application of many things they have learned or of gaining knowledge of things not even mentioned in the books.

from the event will help firefighters purchase equipment.

The contest is the latest in a series of ongoing efforts to revamp the Garnett Fire Department, public safety director Pat Tate, who oversees the department, said. He and other fire department leaders met with city commissioners last week to discuss the department and possible funding requests.

The department has 25 firefighters on the roster now, with many of them joining the department in the past six months. In 2012, firefighters responded to 37 calls and attended 22 meetings. That's about the same as in 2011, when there were 37 calls and 25 meetings. In 2010, there were 46 calls and 25 meetings; in 2009, there were 41 calls and 20 meetings. It's important for firefighters to attend meetings to learn about training and procedures, Tate said.

Fire Captain Dave Faries was one of four officers who gave a short presentation to city commissioners, but his presentation also came with one of the biggest price tags. Faries is in charge of equipment, and said he has spent the past year working to upgrade fire protection gear and equipment. Much of the fire department's bunker gear was purchased with a grant 10 years ago, but has now outlived its 10-year lifespan. Replacing 30 sets of gear - just coats and pants - would cost about $57,000. Instead, Faries is working with Tate and city officials to replace five or six sets of gear each year. He's also working to upgrade bottles and air packs that are nearly obsolete. Again, Faries worked with officials to implement a replacement program to purchase five bottles each year for four years for a total of 20 bottles. Upgrading air packs cost about $1,400 per pack, and the fire department needs to spend about $16,800 to upgrade the remaining packs, but the cost will be spread out over the next few years, Faries said.

Fire Captain J.D. Mersman also discussed the big ticket items - trucks and apparatus. Although most of the city's fleet of fire trucks have been purchased since 2006, the trucks are older and some are nearing the end of their lifespan. Mersman said he is working on developing a replacement program, but he feels confident the city's trucks and apparatus are sufficient.

"If we have a fire right now, we have fire protection," Mersman said. "I put my life on the line every time I roll out on these apparatus. I'm comfortable with them. I just think down the line, it's something we need to look at."

Mersman said his biggest concern is updating pagers and radios used to communicate with firefighters. Some of the pagers are too old to function properly, and some firefighters do not receive calls when the pagers fail.

Uncontested races

For most of the races, only one person filed for an open position. That includes a city commission seat in Garnett, where incumbent Mayor Greg Gwin was the only person to file for the seat and will run unopposed. All city commission seats are at-large positions, and Gwin has held the seat since 2007. When another city commission seat was vacated just a couple of months ago, seven people applied for the appointment, but none of those applicants nor anyone else challenged Gwin for the seat.

"It's going to have to be a work in progress," Gwin said.

"You've got an equation that doesn't calculate anymore," Emerson said. "How do you handle that?"

Commissioner Preston Peine asked Emerson if he had any

Emerson suggested taking the opposite approach: "Instead of building a roof, you build a floor. Instead of a cap, you tell them you must spend this much money and you must bring in this many people."

Peine was intrigued by the approach and congratulated Emerson for creative thinking. Although commissioners didn't resolve the bigger issue of how to address rising costs, they decided to approve the Chamber Players request.
