Sheriff: Letter wasn't 'bomb threat'

Man upset with people in Colony sent faxes about possible action

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

COLONY - A letter that warned about bombs or other violent acts that could happen to the Colony school community wasn't a direct threat, Sheriff Vernon Valentine said.

A man who was upset with various people in Colony reportedly faxed five letters to various locations in the area Friday, April 19, complaining of his treatment and cautioning those who wronged him to treat people better. In the letter, he reportedly discussed ways someone could get even with the city, such as bombing the school or the city's newly constructed fire department. Letters were sent to the Anderson County Courthouse, Colony city hall, Crest school, and newspapers in Iola and Garnett.

The letter was sent by Michael Walter McGregor of Fort Scott, who said he had health conditions including cancer. He took his wife, her family and various people in the community to task for what he believed to be poor treatment of him. He called out some people by name whom he claimed violated his right to privacy regarding his health, and claimed some city officials inflated his water bill and other city fees, and that law enforcement ignored his reports of criminal activities. He said he forgave them, but warned that someone else in the same situation may not be as forgiving.

"And I offer this friendly advice. Which by no means do you have to take," the letter read. "The next time you treat a man this way he could get pretty mad. And bomb Crest school during class and then three minutes later as the volunteers are arriving at the pretty new fire house set off another bomb and then he might bomb the city council meeting or Colony Days. Most certainly he or she I guess would want to inflict the

Prom lasts beyond that special night

Decorations recycled after event for uses throughout community

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Anderson County High School's Prom creates memories that will last a lifetime. And at an annual tab of $3,500-$4,500, the event provides décor that can be used by other community groups for years to come.

It's an aspect of the local prom and after prom that a lot of people aren't aware of.

The decorations and other items that make prom special will find uses way beyond the one-night dance, said Marty Alley, junior class sponsor at Anderson County High School. In the next month, for example, decorations will be used to help Stuco put on a senior citizens prom; the music department will utilize decorations in their next concert; and the school's eighth grade promotion also will incorporate some of the decorations and props.

ACH officials work out details for new hospital

Construction expected to begin later this summer, official says

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Now that voters have approved a 30-year, $25 million bond issue to build a new hospital building, it's time for officials to work out all the little details required to get the project underway.

Construction on the building isn't expected to begin until late summer, with a possible groundbreaking in mid-August. Anderson County Hospital CEO Denny Hachenberg said. It likely will take between a year and a year and a half to complete the building, barring any setbacks because of weather or unforeseen circumstances.

Before that can happen, however, hospital officials must work with architects and engineers to complete a final design process. That means they will determine specific details needed to build the facility - everything from figuring out where

Rain eases drought, but April ranks among coldest

April ranks as second coldest on record; drought eases in area

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - When it rains, it pours.

That's been the story for April, with rain falling on nine out of 23 days so far this month for a total of 2.44 inches. Although that seems like a lot of rain, however, it's still a little shy of average. April typically is a wet month for the region, bringing in 3.98 inches of rain on average for Anderson County.

But what makes this April unique is the cold temperatures that have coincided with the rain. Weather data from state climatologist Mary Knapp shows this year is the second coldest April on record, with an average temperature of 49.8 degrees. The coldest April in

New business breaks ground in Garnett

Hurricane Services provides oil, gas well trucks, equipment

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - A business that services local and regional oil and gas well production expects to invest $10 million when it expands to Garnett, and will bring about 40 jobs by 2016.

Hurricane Services Inc., broke ground Friday on a 16,000 square foot facility its officers plan to build in the Prairie Plaza Park, southeast of the Garnett Inn and Suites. The building will provide room for the business to house trucks and equipment that can be used for oil wells across southeastern Kansas, and will expand services from a facility at Madison.

Company officials hope to hire about 20 people this year, with plans to bring about 40 jobs by 2016.

Garnett was chosen for the new facility because of its central location in the eastern part of the state, and the Prairie Plaza site's proximity to U.S. 169.

The Garnett plant will offer an expansion of services beyond what is available at the Madison facility, company president Mark Burris said. The Garnett plant's equipment will be particularly useful for fracking, a process for extracting natural gas from shale rock layers deep within the earth. The term comes from "hydraulic fracturing," because it uses an injection of pressurized fluid to fracture rocks and create new channels for gas deep within the shale rock. Fracking allows companies to extract natural gas at greater rates, but it is controversial because of concerns the chemicals used in the process could contaminate groundwater.

Southeast Kansas is known for pockets of oil and natural gas that make it a good place for companies that specialize in drilling. Burris said he believes there is a good market for customers in the area, and the company's success in Garnett will depend on oil and gas prices.

The company also worked with city officials on an agreement to tap into the city's Crystal Lake (commonly known as the "South Lake") in order to access a water supply. Having a good water source is essential Joanne Casida Johnson Payne, age 81, of Overland Park, died Sunday, April 14, 2013, at Lakeview Village in Lenexa.

She was born on November 3, 1931, in Garnett, to Walter and Florence (Russell) Casida.

She joined the U.S. Navy Nurse Corps in August of 1957.

She married Captain Burt C. Johnson in 1964. They later divorced.

She was preceded in death by her parents and a brother, Carl Frederick Casida.

Survivors include her son, Chris Johnson; sister, Rebecca Keller; brother Michael Casida; 4 grandsons; nieces and nephews.

money through food sales in September, but fundraising isn't restricted to the local community. About $1,000 is collected annually for prom from outside Anderson County, Alley said.

This year's junior class was one of the highest achieving classes in raising money for prom and for prom participation, Alley said. About 88 percent of the class participated in fundraising, putting the class' financial contribution toward the high end of the $3,500-$4,500 range. Juniors who participate in fundraising do not have to purchase a ticket to prom. Typically, between 70 to 80 percent of the junior class participates in fundraising.

The high involvement and fundraising spills over to after-prom activities. Although after prom typically is organized by junior parents, an active junior class also translated to an active after prom committee. Ivone Myers, who was part of the committee, said parents collected some amazing prizes and at least half of the juniors and seniors were expected to receive a major prize from after prom. Prizes included NASCAR tickets, a cash booth, and tickets for a 15-minute airplane ride over Garnett and among other prizes.

About 180 people attended Anderson County's prom Saturday, and nearly the same number of tickets were sold for the after prom, Alley said.

After that, decorations could appear anywhere in the community. Having a 50th birthday and need some black decorations, or want to use a set of pillars for an anniversary celebration? The school may have them, and they are willing to loan them out, Alley said. The school's drama department or the local community theater also could use the decorations.

"The community supports us, and we want to support the community as well," Alley said.

Being able to reuse and recycle prom decorations helps the junior class leave even more of a legacy to the community, although it's not something that most people know about. Alley said within the school district, officials at all buildings work together to find the right props. This year's prom, for example, borrowed a long sheet of gossamer cloth from an elementary school. The other school had it, and it was the right color, so it made more sense to borrow than to buy a new piece. Eventually, the other school may need to borrow something that was used in this year's prom, like an Eiffel Tower cut-out.

"We make a pretty concerted effort to salvage everything we can," Alley said.

Each year, the junior class spends between $3,500 to $4,500 on prom, Alley said. They raise McGregor said in a phone interview Monday that he did not intend to cause harm to anyone, and was not physically or financially capable of setting off a bomb. He said he was visited by seven police officers and two FBI agents, and explained his position to them.

The incident is under investigation, but Valentine said it does not appear that there is any kind of imminent threat. Valentine said he reported the incident to the FBI, as required in such incidents. He said he does not know what, if any, charges may apply in the case. No one has been arrested in the case.

McGregor said he does not regret writing the letter because it gave him closure.

"I haven't thought about it again. I've been at peace. I've been at ease," he said.

At least one Colony parent, however, has not been at ease since the incident. Sandy Hardwick, who has a 10 year old son who attends school at Crest, said she was very angry that the school district did not notify parents about the potential threat.

Crest superintendent Jerry Turner was not in the office Friday and was in meetings all day Monday, staff said. He did not return phone calls for comment before The Review's press time.

visitors and staff will park to determining where electrical outlets will be located.

"Right now we're really putting the meat on the bone for this deal," Hachenberg said. "All department heads and staff are engaged in that process and the purpose of that is to get as clear of a picture as possible so there aren't changes that need to be made midstream."

When voters approved the new hospital, schematic drawings gave a general idea of what the building would look like. While it helped voters better visualize the new facility, it also created some confusion, Hachenberg said. Some people believed the building would be two or three stories, based on architectural renderings, but it is a one-story building with high ceilings at some points. The next drawings will be much more detailed, he said. Hospital officials decided to wait for the detailed plans until after the election in order to make sure they didn't get ahead of themselves until the bond issue passed, Hachenberg said.

At least one family who lives near the project has expressed concern that construction will cut off access to part of their property. Jeff and Trish Wittman brought their concerns to the Anderson County Commission, who advised them to talk to the hospital's board of trustees. Hachenberg said hospital officials have met with property owners and they'll do their best to be "good neighbors"; however, the new building will bring adjustments to neighbors who lived next to an open field for decades.

The election brought out vocal opposition to the project, although voters approved the measure 1,081 to 951 against. The opposition also was marked by possible illegal campaign efforts, including anonymously mailed post cards and anonymous "robocalls," or automated recordings. Those items are under investigation by the county attorney's office.

Hospital officials will continue to use the website, www.newandersoncountyhospital.com, to keep people informed with the latest happenings on the project, Hachenberg said. The site will include photos when construction begins.

Anderson County was in 1983, when the average temperature was 49.0 degrees. Across the state, temperatures have been running about 3 to 5 degrees below normal.

It isn't unusual for April nights to dip below freezing, though. Knapp said the latest date for freeze in Garnett was May 11, 1981, when temperatures dropped to 31 degrees. There is a 6 percent chance for freeze in May.

"We truly appreciate how helpful and supportive everybody in Garnett has been for us," Burris said. Everyone really bent over backward to help us on this and we really appreciate it."

So much, so fast

Week in news gave us so much to analyze, reminders to remain vigilant

After a week of Bedlam in Boston that started with a senseless attack against innocent people and ended with the bloody arrest of the sole surviving suspect, some observations of the week are hard to skip over. Like...

Cameras are good - The widespread use of security and surveillance cameras which is often criticized as the eye of Big Brother on an innocent populace proved its worth at the Boston Marathon Bombing. Those cameras, running day in and day out and so far "under the radar" that we never notice and employed everywhere from bank ATMs to convenience stores to department stores, were without doubt the pivotal investigatory tools in the Boston bombings. Without them, leads on the suspects would most likely have never developed or developed so slowly as to nearly guarantee the brothers Tsarnaev's escape.

Cops are good - A dozen years fully engaged in the War on Terror has been hugely educational for the U.S. military and also for domestic police forces and investigative units. Methods of investigating and the use of new technology against terrorists who primarily employ their attacks in urban centers, along with the ability to employ large numbers of better trained personnel on a problem in quick order, has transformed federal, state and local cops into a far more viable component force than they were pre-9/11.

They were amateurs - Whatever will eventually be known about the brothers Tsarnaev and whatever the degree of bedlam they inflicted on that city in five days' time one thing appears initially certain - they were not very good terrorists. Despite the pain of the families affected by the attack the killing of only three individuals is considered bush league by modern terrorist standards. They stayed in the locality of their attack (strike one), they remained together and were photographed together after the attack (strike two) and they apparently picked a fight with an MIT campus police officer for the opportunity to kill him, and in so doing began the events that would lead to their demise. No foreign terrorist organization has yet claimed an affiliation with them, a good indicator that no self-respecting terrorist group wants to be associated with them. Indeed, at this point, all indicators point to the two being nothing more than inept home-grown sociopaths.

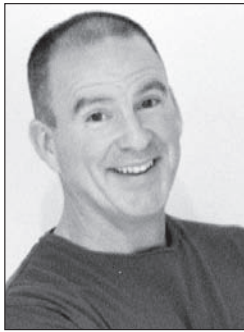

Behold the media circus - It was not a good week for CNN, as the cable TV news network sprinted to be first with any news available and made one reporting blunder after the other with false "confirmed" and "exclusive" reports of arrests and other rushed miscues. At the same time that we witnessed the power of traditional media in disbursing the initial photos of the suspects and in determining their identities, we also saw how the competition of the 24 hour news cycle leads to errors misinformation in the same fashion that Facebook, Twitter and other new media are rightfully criticized. No one really expects Facebook posts to be error free - that's part of the broad leeway in accuracy we give the Internet and new media - but traditional news sources are still expected to be accurate.

Texas forgotten - Along the topic of media, we also witnessed the East Coast Myopia prevalent among the national television channels that still determine the days news. Taken on their basic merits, the fertilizer plant explosion in West, Tx., killed far more people and did far more horrendous damage - already pegged the worst industrial accident in the U.S. in years. Had it occurred in Washington, D.C., New York or Boston or elsewhere on the East Coast, in what national media consider the epicenter of Western Civilization, the story no doubt would have had far better "legs." Had that blast been determined to have had more dubious origins, it would have been interesting to see if it would have been mentioned more often during the Bedlam in Boston.

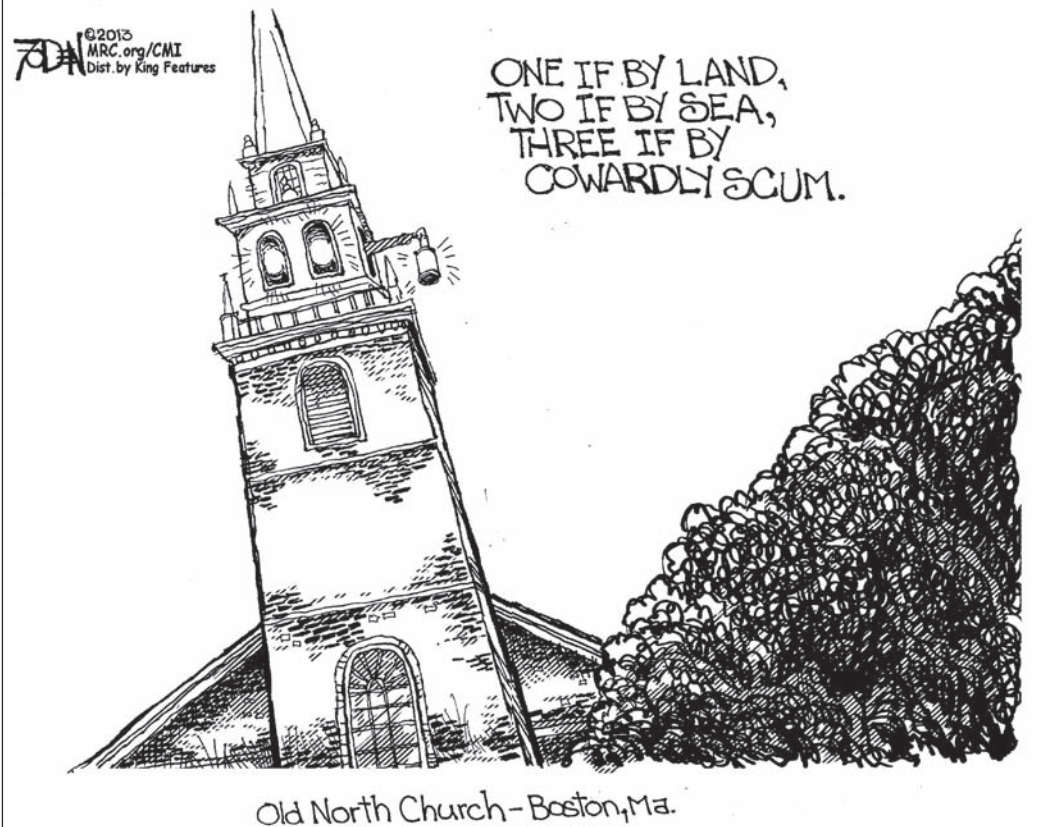

Eyes wide - Again we are pressed with the lesson to be watchful when we circulate in public. Everyone can be a soldier for the safety of the public just by remaining sharp and aware. Does something not look right, smell right, seem right? Force a detailed memory in your mind; write down a license number or memorize clothing; note a vehicle or street location and then call the cops. Go with your gut. It may be nothing. It may be everything.

A week to remember, no doubt, for so many reasons.

Jackie Robinson's achievement

BY RICH LOWRY

NATIONAL REVIEW

Before he triumphed over prejudice, Jackie Robinson triumphed over himself.

The signal achievements of the pioneering baseball star, whose story is recounted in the top-grossing biopic "42," were perseverance and self-control. In the face of hatred from fans and opposing players, he showed no anger. In response to isolation from his teammates, he betrayed no self-pity. He went out every day and swung the bat and ran the bases and fielded his position, and displayed the character that his detractors lacked.

Lowry

"42" is a paean to discipline and to an ethic that has eroded badly in American sporting life, and in our national life in general: "Please, don't express yourself or feel sorry for yourself, don't make excuses, don't worry about what someone else is doing or saying, just go out and do your job."

The first meeting between Robinson and Branch Rickey, when the team honcho broached making him a Brooklyn Dodger, with all the pressure and abuse that would entail, is one of the most mythogenic episodes in baseball history. Rickey shouted insults at Robinson and demanded to know how he would respond to such provocation. Robinson asked if Rickey wanted a player who lacked the guts to fight back. Rickey responded, "I want a ballplayer with guts enough not to fight back."

As a young man stationed at Camp Hood in Texas during World War II, he got court-martialed. One day, Lt. Robinson refused to move to the back of the bus when the driver told him to, and exploded in rage when the driver called him "n-----." He was arrested, but eventually cleared of all charges.

Rickey hadn't sought out a shrinking violet. "He wanted someone big enough and strong enough to intimidate, and someone intelligent enough to understand the historic nature of his role," Jonathan Eig writes in his book "Opening Day: The Story of Jackie Robinson's First Season." We never would have heard of Robinson, of course, if he hadn't been a supremely gifted athlete (Rickey wanted to win the pennant, as well as do right). But baseball history is full of those; it is Robinson's dignity when confronted with so many indignities that sets him apart.

Baseball then had a distinctively Southern flavor that could make even players who were white ethnics feel uncomfortable. A contingent of Robinson's own teammates wanted to boycott him, and so did rival players. He couldn't stay in some of the team's hotels. He got death threats. During all of this, he slumped and thought about quitting, but kept on going, and eventually his talent spoke louder than words. A legendary image -- memorialized in a bronze statue outside the ballpark of the minor-league Brooklyn Cyclones -- is of Kentucky-born Dodgers shortstop Pee Wee Reese draping his arm around Robinson on the field, in a gesture of support and in a rebuke to hostile fans. It may or may not have happened that way. But it's hard to make a statue to the essence of Robinson's accomplishment, to the lonely resolve one at-bat and one inning at a time.

Community Bankers Week

Community banks are financial first responders for local small businesses

TOPEKA - As the Community Bankers Association of Kansas (CBA) recognize April 22 - 27 as Community Bank Week, they are reminding everyone about the critical role community banks serve in supporting local small businesses. Community banks are able to serve as financial first responders to small businesses because they operate locally, which puts local deposits back to work in the community through loans to local residents and small businesses. "Small business lending has always been the bread and butter of community banking, and because community banks are small businesses themselves that operate in the same community as their small business customers, they understand the needs of small businesses and the challenges they face better than anyone else in the marketplace," said Brad Yaeger, CBA chairman and executive vice president of Legacy Bank of Wichita, Kan. "Plus, community banks are able to take on an even bigger role as local job creators by fueling so many of the small businesses within their community—driving economic growth and prosperity on Main Street." Yaeger went on to say that because many community banks have been around for more than a hundred years, they have played a pivotal role in helping to establish and grow their local economies. For their size, community banks are prolific small business lenders—providing a substantial number of small business loans across the country, including Small Business Administration (SBA) loans. By driving local economies and creating local jobs, community banks are an integral part of our nation's financial system. "We encourage local small businesses to go local with a community bank if they haven't already," said Shawn Mitchell, CBA President/CEO. "I have no doubt that they'll be satisfied with the superior customer service, market knowledge and common-sense products that come with banking locally at a community bank."

Jordan Smith started on the mound and pitched 4 innings, giving up 2 runs and 4 hits while walking 1 and striking

"He did a nice job of keeping them off balance by mixing up his pitches a lot," head coach Jason Brown said. "He could have went the whole game, but we pulled him to save some pitches and get Tristan Davis some work."

Davis went an inning and gave up 2 runs and struck out

Trever Burkdoll was 2-2, 2 runs, 2 RBI, 3 BB, 2 SB; Drew Beckwith 2-4, 2 runs, 1 RBI, 1 BB, 1 SB; Jordan Smith 1-5, 1 run, 1 RBI
Tristan Davis 1-4, 1 run, 1 RBI, 1 SB; Jordan Horstick 2-3, 2 runs, 3 RBI, 1 BB, 2 SB; Adam Pryor 1-4, 1 run, 2 RBI, 1 SB; Coby Robertson 1-2, 1 run, 2 RBI, Coby Robertson opened game two to go 4 2/3 innings. He gave up 1 unearned run, 3 hits, and had 2 strikeouts.

"He came in once again and did a good job of getting ahead in the count and making them earn their way on," Brown said. "He fought and ended up getting the win for his team."

Jordan Horstick threw 1 1/3 innings giving up 0 runs and had 2 strikeouts. Trae Clayton threw 1 inning and had 2 strikeouts.

"Our pitchers are what is giving us a chance every time out right now," Brown said.

Around Town

Storms can appear anytime during the year, as we know from history sketches recently reported. Latest storms-May 8, 2003 a "high F-2" twister tore up a 15-mile area southeast of Colony to south of Lone Elm to northwest of Kincaid. Twenty-one homes, along with property, were either destroyed or heavily damaged. No lives were lost, were a few injuries. Feb. 28, 2007 a strong EF-1 tornado plowed through the Colony and Lone Elm area in the early hours that caused damage.

Each household should plan an escape route, all Colony churches have basements and the fire station has a storm shelter. Sign up with Code Red weather warnings. Community residents may go online at www.andersoncountys.org, click public safety/emergency management/Code Red, or pick up registration forms at the Colony City Hall. You must be registered to receive the warnings for your landline and/or cell phone. Radio, scanner and television warnings may, for example, state "southeast Anderson County" warnings. Code Red defines the location. If a storm is headed for Colony, Colony will be warned, but not Lone Elm or Kincaid area unless it happens to be headed their way also.

A birthday cookout was held May 14 for Susan Luedke at her home. In attendance were her husband, Jerry, and their children and grandchildren, Jared and Heather Luedke, Emilee and Grant, Iola and Justin and Angie Luedke, Dalton, Clayton and Trenton, rural Welda.

Sympathy is expressed to the families and friends of Rollin Strickler, 89, who died April 13 at the Allen County Hospital. Funeral services were held April 13 at Waugh Yokum & Friskel Chapel, Iola, burial followed at Colony Cemetery.

Back in the field for artifacts

Good golly! Would you believe I finally got out to my latest archaeology site again. It only lacked a few days from being a month since I had been out. Oh my, the fresh smell of the outdoors, cedar trees, green grass and new turned soil was wonderful. Up close I could hear all the different song birds, the rat-a-tap-tap of more than one woodpecker in the old dead trees nearby, and in the distance the wild turkeys gobbling.

There's nothing more wonderful than enjoying our Lord's creation.

After arriving at my site, I sat on the tailgate of my pickup and spent a few minutes sharpening my hand trowel and small shovel. (This is the most important trick of the trade.) Then I walked a short distance to my work site and strung out my boundary line before starting my actual excavation.

by Henry Roeckers
Contact (785) 448-6244 for local archeology information.

It wasn't one of my better days at finding a large amount of artifacts but I never come home empty handed.

What did I find for all my effort?

A very small antique pipe or monkey wrench; large flat iron washer; small pail or pot bail holder; eight more antique bottle tops (mostly medicine bottles) of all sizes and colors; a very nice slate pencil with sharpened point still intact; 4-hole iron button; a very nice brass button (a total of 192 buttons have now been found at this site); a coal oil lamp globe glass rim with rippled edges; two sections of a large comb and three pieces of brass coal oil lamp wick holders. Now don't forget there's always those square nails, broken glass, dishware and pottery.

This being a day later, I have cleaned, identified and placed in plastic bags the main artifacts. All I have to do now is to the deliver them to the landowner on my way out to the site next time. With all this rain that just may be a day or two once again.

(This took place on the 9th of April and all artifacts have been delivered to the landowner.)

1993: Asbestos adds to demo cost

April 29, 2003

Garnett city and Anderson County officials are continuing to monitor the financial condition of Garnett Church Furnishings, after the company came under an Internal Revenue Service tax lien in March and at one time was some four months behind on rent payments for its new facility. The company had partially caught up on its rent payments in recent months and was expected to be up to date as of May 1. The past due rent was only part of the company's troubles, however, after the IRS filed a $97,000 tax lien against the company in March for nonpayment of unemployment taxes.

Negotiations between the teacher and the USD 365 school board negotiating teams ended Friday night with some items being agreed to, but some discussion necessary on other items, including wording of an article concerning the board's rights and powers. Items such as the duty-free lunch for most elementary school teachers, personnel leave, posting of vacancies, and reduction in teacher staff were basically in agreement with the board. However, the teachers proposed that there be some clarification and changes in the wording of an article dealing with additions, deletions and amendments to the negotiated agreement.

Sheriff Decker of Anderson had a warrant for Lochner on the Anderson County charge, and sought to take possession of Lochner here. The Colorado sheriff refused to turn Lochner over to the Kansas officer, saying he got ahold of him first. He went on the train to Colorado with his prisoner.

Understanding the relationship of the Old, New Testament

When we open the Bible and begin to read in the Old Testament concerning the Hebrew people it is difficult to understand how some of the information is relative to our lives today. It is important to understand what God is doing in and through the Hebrew people.

God called Abram out of Ur of the Chaldeans. Gods instructions to Abram were, "Leave your country, your people, and your father's household and go to the land I will show you." Through Abram God made the nation of Israel. God said of this people, "I will take you as my own people, and I will be your God." (Exodus 6:7)

In a pagan world with many gods, the Hebrews worshiped one supreme, holy God who demanded righteousness in his people. From these Hebrew people came Jesus Christ our Great High Priest, who gave his life to set us free from the curse of sin.

The Bible is literally filled with instances of the Hebrews rising to a high level of morality only to fall back into pagan or idol worship. Time after time they failed to recognize the Holiness of God compared to their sinfulness. God gave the Hebrews commandments to govern how they should live their lives. He designed an elaborate means of worship and a system of sacrificial offerings which pointed forward to the ultimate substitute Jesus Christ.

In Numbers 6:24-26, the LORD issues the following blessing to the people, "May the LORD bless you and keep you. May the LORD make his face to shine upon you and be gracious unto you. May the LORD lift up the light of his countenance upon you and give you peace."

Weekly Devotional by David Bilderback

Moody said of this blessing. "It is the speech of God: every letter may conclude with it, every day may begin with it; every night may be sanctified by it. Here is blessing- keeping- shining- the uplifting upon our poor life of all heaven's glad morning."

Every Hebrew understood the significance of this blessing and longed for the peace it could provide.

Time after time though the people would fall into sin and God would turn his face from them. God did not do this because he did not love the people but because God cannot look upon sin. When God turned his head the blessing- keeping- and shining were taken from the Hebrews and was replaced by pain and suffering.

The entire Old Testament points forward to the coming of Jesus Christ. The death of Christ is spoken of as a ransom or means of redemption. By virtue of this a person can be "born again" and receive the spirit of adoption, that is he or she is placed in God's family. Jesus issues us a promise in Hebrews 13:5, "Never will I leave you; never will I forsake you." God intends for his face to shine upon us. May we always return God's love and understand the consequences of sin to a Holy God.

David Bilderback: A Ministry on the Holiness of God.

Cole hosts April meeting of Chapter Y PEO club

LaVerne Cole hosted the April 15 meeting of Chapter Y PEO at the home of Co Hostess Barbara Neal. The meeting was opened in due form by Presidents Lucille Holderman and Donna Benjamin. The chaplain's devotions were taken from Psalm 37:3-7. The secretary's minutes were given and 21 responded to roll call.

Correspondence included a note from the Friends of the Library thanking Chapter Y for their corporate level membership. Light weight tables for use in the Archer Room are being purchased with these funds.

Much discussion was held on the Daddy Daughter Prom held at the Community Building Saturday, April 6. Pictures were shared and comments and suggestions were made for Chapter Y hosting another prom next year.

People can purchase a $5.00 love light in honor or in memory of a loved one. Their names will be included in the luminary display around the track.

The May 6 meeting will be held at the home of Ruth Lee Hastert. Betts Abraham will serve as co hostess. Reva Sparks will share her passion for making pillowcase dresses for little girls.

Holly and Bill Reeder shared samples and information about their wine making endeavors, growing their own grapes. Wine charms were available for purchase with the monies going to Chapter Y.

Any girl who's ever worn heels knows there's a fine art to finding the right shoes, and then actually making it through the night while wearing them. This series of photos shows how some Anderson County High School girls tackled the challenge: Left, senior Alyssa Mikesell changes out of flats when she arrives at the school. Center, Annsley Graham gets some help with her creative shoe choice, thanks to her mom, Tonya Graham, and Steve Dial. Right, Kinlee Jones gets help from Katelyn Alley.
