Hospital project seeks local contractors, vendors

Series of meetings begin this week as project ramps up

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Local contractors and businesses hoping to get a piece of the $25 million Anderson County Hospital building project will have a chance to learn more about their opportunities this Thursday, June 6.

After that, people in the community who want to express concerns about the project will have a chance at a public hearing with county commissioners June 24.

Turner Construction Company, the general contractor overseeing the project, and the Anderson County Hospital Board of Trustees will have an information meeting for sub-contractors from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Thursday at the Knights of Columbus Hall, Garnett. At the meeting, businesses and contractors who are interested in the construction project can obtain information.

Construction is expected to begin in August and could take between one year to 18 months to complete.

"The new Anderson County Hospital will be here to serve the community for many years and we want to ensure that it is built with strong local involvement and community participation," said Turner Construction's Calvin Hobbs, project manager for the new facility.

The informational meeting is open to local firms, vendors and suppliers. During the meeting, attendees will receive a project overview and master schedule as well as learn about construction bidding opportunities, the prequalification process, bid packages and notifications. Anyone who planned to attend the meeting was expected to contact Hobbs at (816) 283-0555 or bhobbs@tcco.com before Monday, June 3.

Later this month, county commissioners will conduct a public hearing on the project at 10 a.m. June 24. Such hearings are required before the county can issue the bonds. Typically such hearings are a matter of routine housekeeping that

Report looks at county spending

Anderson County drops in population between 2003 and 2011

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

MANHATTAN — Compared to other Kansas counties, Anderson County is not growing as rapidly, according to a recent report by K-State Research and Extension's Office of Local Government. Fiscally, however, Anderson County government collects a greater percent of revenue compared to other counties and spends less.

The report tracked per capita revenue and expenses between 2003 and 2011, with adjustments for inflation, as part of the "Kansas County Fiscal Conditions and Trends" report. The report is given to county commissioners statewide, and will help them as they prepare for next year's budget, according to a press release from K-State.

The report says that county fiscal trends often closely relate to population and income trends. In general, as popula-

City fathers say no to proposed junk law

Stiff penalties, broad interpretation dooms yard clean-up effort

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - "If it ain't broke, don't fix it."

That was the advice Garnett resident Larry Peine gave city commissioners over a proposed law that would prohibit people from having some types of furniture outside.

In the end, commissioners agreed with Peine that the law was not necessary, and rejected it at their regular meeting Tuesday, May 28.

Recycling bins could get test run

Recycling requests lead city to consider adding bin downtown

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - A recycling bin could be offered to Garnett residents as a test run.

Requests for a recycling bin within the city limits are frequent, City Manager Joyce Martin told commissioners. While the county rotates a recycling bin between some of its cities, demand for the bin is high. Because Garnett residents live closer to the county landfill, the county gives priority to the other cities.

A request from Rosanna Bauman, who regularly sells items at the Farmers Market, could change things for city residents. Bauman suggested placing a bin near Main Street and the Prairie Spirit Trail, where the Farmers Market is located.

A recycling bin offers containers for different types of recyclable material. The county

City mulls speed zone change on 7th Ave.

City leaders agree that change to 30mph is too abrupt at curve

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Motorists who enter the City of Garnett from Seventh Avenue will have a better chance to prepare for a change to the 30 mph speed limit, under plans considered by city commissioners.

At the request of David Lybarger, a Garnett business owner who lives just outside the city limits, city commissioners agreed to change the way the city handles its speed zone at the Seventh Avenue entrance.

Exactly how they will change the zone has not yet been approved, but commissioners appeared to favor a plan that would implement a 40 mph zone just inside the city limits, at a curve near the Dunkard Brethren Church. The speed zone would decrease again at the next curve, near

Road and Bridge

Lester Welsh, Road Supervisor, met with the commission. Dr. Leitch was present. Lester reported Dr. Leitch had called him last week with concerns since Lester had removed the pump out of the South Lake. Lester reported it was actually Emergency Management's pump and he had just installed it. He had called Paul Stephens last week and the water restriction should be removed with the next bill. Dr. Leitch reported he had bought some water from the city, however, the city pump did not work properly and he only received about a 40% return on his money. Lester reported he would reinstall the pump if the water restriction is not removed. Vance Brothers will be coming this week to start making patch. The company that we bought the lay down machine from will be coming to do training on how to work the lay down machine. Forrest Cass is retiring Friday. Lester would like to look at hiring a part time person to run the mower, however, he would like to keep it open that he could make it a full time position if needed. Commission approved. He met with the state last week on the bridge on 1000 Road by Welda Lake. If the state does not approve the contingency plan the cost to the county will be $7,800. If one of the three plans are approved there could be additional cost to the county. Highway permit 13,0520:1 for CenturyLink was presented and approved.

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW
Published June 4, 2013

Mary Elizabeth Schwab Anderson passed away in her daughter's home, on May 29, 2013 in St. Joseph, MO.

Anderson

Mary Elizabeth was born on April 1, 1920 in Cherokee, KS to Ethel Turkington and Lewis Samuel Schwab. She spent her childhood in Cherokee, KS attending the public schools and the First Presbyterian Church. Mary received a B.S. in Home Economics Education from Pittsburg State Teachers College, Pittsburg, KS. She began her Vocational Home Economics teaching career in Anderson County.

While in Garnett she became reacquainted with fellow Pittsburg State Teachers College student, Technical Sergeant James J. Anderson. They became engaged while he was serving in the US Army Air Force in England. They were married on May 20, 1945 in the First Presbyterian Church, Cherokee, KS. Their early-married life was spent in Nevada and Arizona where Jim was stationed. When Jim was stationed in Las Vegas, Mary worked at the USO. While working at the USO Mary learned of the end of World War II and Jim later joined the celebration.

After the war Jim completed his degree in Pittsburg, while Mary taught Home Economics in McCune, KS. Jim returned to Garnett to assist in the family business at Anderson Motor Company, while Mary was a full time homemaker. Born to the union was Betty Jane, April 4, 1949 and Margaret Ellen (Peggy) February 14, 1952. Mary was active in the First United Methodist Church and community activities including the Tuesday Study Club, Psychology Club, Eastern Star, DAR, and several bridge clubs. She was invited to join Chapter Y PEO in 1953 and enjoyed the fellowship and activities of the organization for sixty years.

In 1959 Mary resumed her teaching career at Welda High School. Next, she taught at Greeley High School and finished her teaching career at Garnett High School. Her students affectionately called her Mom.

Mary had a deep love for family, friends, and students. Mary enjoyed making her home a gathering place for family and friends. She ministered to others by organizing and preparing church dinners, making homemade candy for neighbors, and taking communion to the homebound. Her acts of kindness will be remembered by many.

One of Mary's joys was traveling. She was fortunate to travel to all fifty states and many foreign countries. Her last major trip was a Caribbean cruise, which she shared with her daughters and grandsons, Dr. Scott Forbes and James Peregrine.

In her later years Mary lived with her daughter, Peggy, and grandson, James in St. Joseph. She continues to be an inspiration to many for her devotion to God and love for family and friends.

She was preceded in death by her husband James John in 1988; siblings: Virginia Olive Schwab, Dr. John Lewis Schwab, and Katherine Schwab Cansdelle. Nieces and nephews: Jeannie Taylor, Rick Anderson, Wesley Freeman, Michael Heusted, Elizabeth Schwab Carpenter, and Susan Cansdelle Larkin.

She is survived by: daughters Betty Jane Forbes of Morgantown, WV and Peggy Peregrine of St. Joseph, MO; grandsons Dr. Scott Forbes of Philadelphia, PA and James Peregrine of St. Joseph, MO. Nieces and nephews: Gail King, William Schwab and wife Karen, and children Amy Holtman (children Jessica Watts Trumbo and Mitchell Watts) and Brian Schwab. David Carpenter and children Jonathan Carpenter and wife Carla, Sarah Carpenter, Rachael Crawford and husband Rob Crawford (daughter, Elizabeth) Lisa Knapp and husband Dave Knapp (children Maxwell Lisska, Hayden Knapp, and Keegan Knapp). Claude C Anderson III (Sonny), Robert Anderson, wife Carolyn, children: Warren (wife Lori, daughter Loren) and Rebecca Meier (husband Eric, and children Jett and Ellie); Lauree Wright (children Brandon Heusted, Amanda and husband Mark Foltz, (children Kirsten Freeman, Lane Freeman, Evie Foltz, Bella Foltz, and Jack Foltz). Joshua, wife Sara and (children Chastin, Alexander, Kiera and Sophia). Jennifer Anderson and children Kayla and Marshall. Kristen Anderson and children Alyssa and Abygaill.

Mary and Jim desired to provide higher educational opportunities for area students. A scholarship fund is being established at Pittsburg State University in their memory. They can also be honored through donations to Chapter Y PEO scholarship fund or the First United Methodist Church Garnett, KS. Feuerborn Family Funeral Service, P.O. Box 408 Garnett, KS 66032, is accepting memorial contributions to the scholarship funds, or any charity of your choice.

City fathers right to scrub "Out of my yard" law

Commissioners take stand against "government creep" with vote against yard rules

This week we offer an "atta boy" to Garnett City Commissioners for listening to city residents and to their own muses in shutting down a proposed city ordinance that would have allowed city government to police the types of items residents could display in and on their own properties. Effectively, commissioners told city staff that what residents do in their own yards, at least up to the point of a demonstrated threat of public safety, is their own business.

EDITORIAL

by Dane Hicks, PUBLISHER

We agree. A certain dynamic is typically in play when city and county government suddenly lurch forward with restrictive new legislation, and it is usually that members of that government want to direct power against a specific or a handful of specific offenders. That's expedient in solving the problem, for instance, of the city resident who has an old refrigerator sitting in his yard in the midst of neighborhood kids who may be at risk of climbing in it and suffocating. But the problem with such "lateral" legislation is that it typically leaves too wide an option for enforcement on untargeted others after the primary problem has been dealt with.

More and more these days, as we watch government increasingly creep into more and more facets of our lives, that is the type of government that should be monitored.

Garnett property owners typically do a pretty good job of policing their own properties. There will always be bad apples, but by and large private properties in town are well kept and attractive. We don't know what the initial impetus was for the legislation - safety issues must surely be covered by other ordinances, and if the genesis of the issue has to do with aesthetics, well, that's a pretty open ended arena.

It's clear that people should want to clean up after themselves and maintain their properties in a high and tight fashion. If property owners have signed into some sort of neighborhood agreement with specific dictates, then those restrictions have proven to stand up in court in the past.

Most of Garnett, however, has not entered into such contingent agreements. Those property owners have the right to keep the city - or anyone else - out of their yard if they so choose. City commissioners should be applauded for recognizing that.

Being Eric Holder

BY RICH LOWRY

NATIONAL REVIEW

President Barack Obama has been mocked for learning about untoward conduct in his administration from the press. But he's on the ball compared with his attorney general, who wouldn't know about his own poor judgment without reading about it in the papers. Let's hope he has a Google alert set for "Eric Holder."

The website The Daily Beast interviewed the attorney general and Justice Department officials for a piece about how the AG is holding up in the firestorm over two controversial Justice Department leak investigations, one into The Associated Press, the other into Fox News reporter James Rosen.

The Daily Beast piece pinpoints when Eric Holder had a crisis of conscience leading him to question his leak-investigating ways. The Washington Post had made inquiries at the Justice Department about the investigation into Rosen stemming from a 2009 leak, and the department's press office had begun to ready itself for the storm. For Eric Holder, though, "the gravity of the situation didn't fully sink in until Monday morning when he read the Post's front-page story, sitting at his kitchen table." Then, the awful realization hit him that maybe it wasn't such a great idea for him to sign off on an affidavit portraying a member of the press - particularly one from a news organization scorned and attacked by the White House - as practically an agent of a foreign power. Perhaps it wasn't so wise, after all, to identify Rosen as a "co-conspirator" in a crime. Come to think of it, it might have been ill-advised to track his movements in and out of the State Department building that he covered and to read his emails.

Yes, Eric Holder was beginning to wonder whether Eric Holder had made the right call. It may get worse if Eric Holder gets around to reading in the papers that Congress is investigating whether Eric Holder lied to it under oath. It turns out that Eric Holder did indeed make a false representation about Eric Holder.

Congressman Hank Johnson, D-Ga., pointed out to the attorney general that reporters could potentially be prosecuted under the Espionage Act of 1917, and closed his interrogation with the clear trap: "I'll yield the balance of my time to you." Unable to find any way to wiggle free from this killer line of questioning, Eric Holder said, "With regard to potential prosecution of the press for the disclosure of material, that is not something I've ever been involved in, heard of, or would think would be wise policy." Eric Holder had plumb forgot that Eric Holder might have signed off on such a thing. Timing is everything: If only The Washington Post had published earlier!

What Eric Holder has done is so troubling to everyone, including Eric Holder, that President Obama has ordered a review of Justice Department policy -- to be undertaken by the single most appropriate man for such a task: Eric Holder. An unidentified friend told The Daily Beast, "Look, Eric sees himself fundamentally as a progressive, not some Torquemada out to silence the press."

And why would he want to silence the press? It's how he keeps up with Eric Holder.

When are our city officials going to regain common sense? I'm listening to our police officers irritate motorist after motorist inside the city by stopping them for minor violations. How many of the people traveling through Garnett are going to have a favorable opinion of the town after being ticketed and paying one of our ridiculously high fines? We are really helping our image, aren't we? Now we are going to implement the patio police to make sure they are using "approved" patio furniture and keeping their decks clean. Might ask, what the (deleted) are you people smoking? I agree with a previous comment that this is a small country town, not Mission Hills. Leave us alone! You've already irritated motorists who could have had a good image of Garnett. Now you are angering taxpayers who live here. Congratulations. Good job.

I wanted to say I really like the colored planters along the highway at Richmond which are made out of the old tractor tires and decorated up and planted with flowers. What a neat idea. Whoever's idea that was, good job.

Excuse me. All this money we spent on branding with the silly cigar band logo and on tourism and so on. If you really want people to come to Garnett, try mowing the reservoir on the biggest camping weekend of the year. You expect people to pay to camp there but you won't mow?

Hi. A glow in the dark cross was placed on my father's grave at Scipio. Was it expensive? No. Was the sentiment heartfelt? Yes. When my mother, married to this wonderful man for 58 years, called to tell me it was missing, did it break our hearts? Yes. I hope your kicks were worth it when you have no idea how much this hurt. He was the most wonderful husband, father and grandfather. You broke a lot of hearts with your prank. Did we have cameras? No. Do you know who you are? Yes. My family hopes it was worth it as the memory of my dad will live on forever in our hearts. You may have stolen his cross but not the sacrifice he made for his family as the cross meant. You should have known him, he could have taught you right from wrong. Wish he could have lived long enough to have taught you the difference.

The flags at the cemetery are beautiful. Thank you to all who helped put them up and take them down.

Runner completes 3 half marathons

Charlotte Lutz, of Garnett, recently participated in The Heartland 39.3 Series, which requires running 3 half marathons in 5 weeks. The first race, was the Rock the Parkway, where Charlotte completed her first half marathon with a finish time of 2:09, on the day after her 40th birthday! What an accomplishment. The second race was the Kansas Half Marathon, where she finished with an improved time of 2:05. The final half was the Running With The Cows, where she improved her time again for a new personal record of 1:59!

Charlotte started running with the G Town Running club one year ago and has already reached an amazing milestone.

tion increases, county revenues and expenses also rise.

In Anderson County, however, population levels have dropped by about 2 percent since 2003, with a total of about 8,058 people living in the county. In 2003, the population was 8,208.

At the same time, per capita income has increased 13 percent. Statewide, the average Kansas county's population increased by 6 percent, while per capita income increased by 23 percent.

When it comes to government spending, the county's total expenditures increased 26 percent when adjusted for inflation. That's less than the average Kansas county, which increased 32 percent.

Where the money goes
Broken down by the top three government functions, the county spent 17 percent more on general expenses, 13 percent more on roads and bridges, and 45 percent more on law enforcement between 2003 and 2011. That translates to about $385 per person spent on roads and bridges, and $83 per person on law enforcement.

Public safety expenditures grew considerably in most Kansas counties, possibly reflecting both growing public concern about crime and safety, as well as new state and federal mandates, according to the report. Health expenses also showed strong growth. County solid waste expenses increased because of federal mandates.

"Other" expenditure categories have grown from 43 percent of the county's total budget to 47 percent, indicating that the county is doing more - things tainers would be taken to the county's transfer station at the landfill.

Martin said she has been like economic development, employee benefits and technology improvements - than it was in 2003, the report said. Federal mandates likely contributed to that increase, according to the report.

Where the money comes from
At the same time, the county's revenues increased about 30 percent when adjusted for inflation. That's more than the state average of 26 percent. County revenues typically come from three sources: property taxes, sales taxes and special highway funds.

Property tax revenues increased 24 percent, while retail sales tax revenues increased 90 percent. Special highway funds declined 16 percent.

The economic recession from late 2007 to 2009 saw dramatic increases in property taxes across the state, especially as the state reduced its aid to local government. As the state reduced its aid, governments turned to property taxes to make up the difference.

The report notes that some counties have increased user fees and charges in an attempt to offset increased property tax. Most counties, however, especially rural counties, have few alternative sources of revenue other than property tax, the report said.

About the report

The report's main purpose is to be useful to county elected officials as they prepare the budget for the next year, but it can benefit all Kansas citizens, said economist John Leatherman, director of the Office of Local Government, a K-State Research and Extension outreach program.

"It all starts with having access to basic data," Leatherman explained. "We're simply trying to give county commissioners tools that can help them monitor their financial situation.

"At the same time, though, the report can provide average citizens with unbiased, independent information about local government finance. So, it can serve as a starting point for dialogue between elected officials and their constituents."

Even so, Kansans must take care when attempting to draw their own conclusions from the data, warned Rebecca Bishop, lead author of the report and the Office of Local Government's public finance program director.

"You need to look beyond the numbers to understand the local situation. You also need to consider any part of the broader context that may be affecting local finances, such as the current economic environment or trends in state aid programs," Bishop said.

This augmented approach is particularly important when counties are examining major capital expenditures, she said. For example, infrequent but often costly investments might include a new jail, major road project or courthouse renovation.

Free access to the Anderson County Fiscal Conditions & Trends report is available online at the Office of Local Government's website: <http://www.ksu-olg.info>. More information about the Office of Local Government is also available online or by calling 785-532-2643.

discussing the matter with the Lake Region Solid Waste Authority. A recycling bin could cost up to $10,000, but the city's refuse department has enough money in its reserve fund to purchase a bin.

Martin asked commissioners if they wanted her to continue to pursue the matter. Commissioners were in favor, and suggested she also look at ways other entities like the high school could get involved.

JUNK...

Peine asked commissioners and city staff what they hoped to accomplish with the new law, and if they really needed a new law to accomplish those goals.

A proposal written by City Attorney Terry Solander would have allowed city staff to make it a crime to keep some types of furniture outdoors, unless the furniture was designed for outdoor use. The problem stems from people who store things like refrigerators and ratty sofas on their front porch, and gives the city a shabby image, City Manager Joyce Martin explained. It can be difficult to force people to keep properties neat and tidy, and staff wanted a law with "some teeth" to allow financial penalties or even jail time for those who refuse to comply.

Commissioners said they understood the desire to beautify the city, but were concerned that Solander's ordinance was too broad and went too far. Solander revised his original ordinance, first presented to commissioners May 14. But even his revisions, which allowed for exceptions for items like air conditioning units and satellite television receivers as long as they were in use, wasn't enough to convince them the law was necessary.

HOSPITAL...

draw few people. However, controversial topics like the hospital project have been known to bring a large crowd of people who continue to have questions and concerns, as it likely will be the public's last chance to air those concerns before construction begins in August.

Anderson County voters approved bonds to build a new,

The ordinance would have prohibited any furniture, except patio furniture that was constructed and intended for outside use. It also would have prohibited any appliances, any air conditioning units, and any plumbing fixtures like toilet bowls and sinks. It would have applied to items inside an open garage or shed.

Commissioner Gordon Blackie said he agreed with Larry Peine that the way to fix the problem wasn't to implement a new law. He said he preferred some type of incentive program to reward people when they fix up property.

"Out tax laws are written in such a way that if a person fixes up their property, we penalize them," Blackie said. "Can't we find a way to turn this around and reward people?"

Martin said the city offers a free clean-up program twice a year. City crews will haul away excess trash, furniture, brush and other items at no additional charge. Blackie countered that it can be difficult to meet that two-week window when you have an appliance or large furniture item that breaks down. Martin said staff often work with people who have extenuating circumstances, and urged people to contact City Hall to make arrangements if something needed to be hauled away outside of the city clean-up weeks.

Blackie said he felt that change alone would help resolve much of the problem without adding a new law to the books.

Commissioner Preston Peine said he understood city staff wanted to address problems with people who store junk like broken appliances and furniture in view of neighbors and passers-by, but he wondered if current nuisance ordinances could be revised to address that problem. Solander said the primary difference between the two is the financial penalty; under his proposed new ordinance, someone could be fined every day the offense occurred, rather than one time.

Peine objected, "When I look at this and I see $200 to $300 a day, I don't know very many people who could survive a week."

"That's Draconian," Blackie said of the $200 to $300 per day possible penalty.

"I think we get into problems when we start dictating what people can put in their backyards. I think it's way too broad," Peine said.

Mayor Greg Gwin asked for a motion to approve the law. None followed, and the matter essentially was rejected. Gwin suggested perhaps city staff could revisit the issue at some point, and find a better solution.

Auctioneer Darwin Kurtz volunteered his time and expertise to conduct the end of year class auction. Each student has a class checking account with the Wolverine State Bank -- Mrs. Ball as president. Students earn money all year to deposit in their account from good test scores, class jobs, great behavior, etc. Monthly bills -- desk rent and checking fee -- must be paid and any time a student breaks a rule, they must write a check. Income tax forms had to be completed and taxes paid in April. Finally students spend their hard-earned money at the class auction. Area businesses contributed auction items.

Library to discuss book

The Garnett Public Library will hold a book discussion on Wednesday, June 26th at 7 p.m. "Look Again" by Lisa Scottoline will be discussed. The discussion will be led by Paulabeth Henderson.

When Ellen Gleeson gets a "Have You Seen This Child?" flyer in the mail, her heart stops--the child in the photo is identical to her adopted son, Will. Her every instinct tells her to deny the similarity between the boys, because she knows her adoption was lawful. But she's a journalist and won't be able to stop thinking about the photo until she figures out the truth. She can't shake the question: if Will rightfully belongs to someone else, should she keep him or give him up? She investigates, and when she digs too deep, she risks losing her own life--and that of the son she loves.

In this emotionally charged, heart-pounding thriller, Lisa Scottoline has broken new ground. Look Again questions the very essence of parenthood and raises a moral quandary that will haunt readers long after they've finished the last page, leaving them with the ultimate question: What would I do?

The books are available for checkout at the library. The discussions are held the fourth Wednesday of each month at 7 p.m. in the Archer Room at the library. Notification is posted in case of cancellation.

Teams finish Governor's Challenge

GARNETT, Kan. (May 30, 2013) — Governor Sam Brownback issued a state wide wellness challenge earlier this year which began on January 15 and ended May 15, encouraging Kansans to lose weight in a healthy manner. The Go Anderson County Wellness Initiative supported the Governor's weight loss challenge on a local level by providing participants with a bi-weekly weigh in site, as well as prizes for each weigh in period, in addition to the prizes which were available to state employed teams.

According to Karen Wood, Wellness Coordinator for Go Anderson County, "We had 47 teams consisting of five individuals per team that signed up for the local challenge. The bi-weekly weigh-ins were held at the Anderson County Hospital. The Garnett Area Chamber of Commerce provided the random prize drawings and distribution. The 8-week challenge provided a great opportunity for our county to come together and lose weight with team and county wide support." The overall winning team from Anderson County was the "Leading Losers". Members of this team included: Garnett City Mayor Greg Gwin, Stacy Gwin, City Commissioner Preston Peine, Erika Peine and Karlyn Hulett. The Leading Losers lost 11.71% of their total body weight as a team. The Leading Losers also ranked 12th on the Governor's online leader board of highest personal percentage lost. The Governor's team finished at 184th out of 1,026 teams.

Local top individual percentage of weight loss winners participating in the Governor's Challenge were; Linda Bledsoe, Stacy Gwin and Joe Blake.

Governor Sam Brownback announced last week that more than 5,000 Kansans represented by 1,026 teams participated in the Governor's Weight Loss Challenge, losing a total of 44,409 pounds (more than 22 tons). The Governor made the following statement: "Congratulations to everyone from across the state who accepted this challenge to begin eating healthier and exercising regularly. It's important to your well-being that you maintain a lifestyle that keeps the weight off, so don't stop today. I am extremely impressed by the success of individuals and teams during the past four months."

Watch out for copperheads

Another creature I'm not particularly fond of while digging or any time, any place is the copperhead snake. Believe you me, they are already out and crawling about this spring. Did you know there are 38 species of snakes that reside in the State of Kansas? Only five species are venomous. All snakes of Kansas live in our state the year around.

Copperhead snakes are pit vipers, poisonous snakes that are named for the two heat-sensing pits used to locate prey that are positioned between the eyes and the nostrils.

Their venom is hemolytic; it destroys the red corpuscles of the blood and releases the hemoglobin into the surrounding fluid. The resultant hemorrhaging destroys the snake's normal prey, mostly small mammals.

Within its range, it occupies a variety of different habitats. In most of its range, it favors deciduous forests and mixed woodlands. They are often associated with rock outcroppings and ledges, but are also found in low-lying swampy regions.

It prefers to live in wooded areas, among rocks, or near streams or ponds because prey is more plentiful in such locations. Favorite hiding places include stone walls, saw dust, in wood piles, under abandoned building debris, and under large flat stones. This snake will be seen basking during the day when weather is cool but not cold. During the heat of summer, it will stay hidden during the day and become active at night.

In October, the copperhead retreats to its underground den to hibernate until late February or early March. Dens are most often in rocky hillsides with southern or eastern exposure to the sun. These "snake dens" may be returned to year after year and may contain a large number of snakes. In late summer through mid-October, between 1 and 14 young are born alive rather than hatched from eggs.

This common snake accounts for the largest number of snake bites in the U.S. every year, thousands of documented cases of people injured every year, and many more pets that are bitten often many of these going unreported.

Small copperhead snakes are notorious for getting "everywhere" in the garden, in flower beds, in cars, coming up around porches and decks, many being so small they are an invitation to small children and pets to investigate. Even the smaller baby copperhead is capable of inflicting a painful and dangerous bite.

The copperhead comes in several color variations, depending on the location, from bright copper and light through to very dark brown shades.

Copperheads are usually colorful and strikingly patterned snakes. The background color of the back and sides is tan to pinkish. There are darker, chestnut-colored bands of varying widths. Newborn copperheads are colored and patterned like adults, excepting the last inch or so of the tail which will be a bright, sulphur yellow color.

Virtually all adults still retain the copper-colored head, which gives it its name.

When adult, they are moderately sized snakes, normally reaching 2-4 feet, with thick, heavy bodies. They sometimes produce a cucumber smell when they are touched or disturbed.

About 5,000 to 8,000 snakebites are reported in the U.S. annually out of an estimated 55,000 that occur with a large proportion of these attributed to copperhead snakes. The copperhead bite is not usually fatal in adults, but very painful and often lasting discomfort is the result. Bite symptoms include intense pain, tingling, throbbing, swelling and severe nausea. Damage can occur to muscle and bone tissue, especially when the bite occurs in the outer extremities such as the hands and feet, areas in which there is not a large muscle mass to absorb the venom.

PSU announces scholarships

1983: Wheat harvest delayed

June 10, 2003

Facing federal tax liens and a July deadline to catch up on back rent payments for his company's new production plant, Garnett Church Furnishings owner Mike Wedel said he had negotiated the preliminary details of a sale of the company to a group of three investors.

With six months to go until its ability to sell owner units in its proposed ethanol plant project expires, East Kansas Agri Energy announced last week it has raised $7 million from investors - about halfway to the goal it needs to push ahead with the facility.

June 10, 1993

The City of Garnett approved a six-month plan of utility concessions that would reduce the cost of maintaining the building that once housed Garnett Foods Inc, by $800 to $1,000 per month. Electric, gas, sewer, water and trash service combined to equal an average of between $20,000 to $30,000 per month. Those bills will obviously decrease because of reduced consumption due to the plant's closing two weeks ago, but additional concessions on base service charges should result in an additional savings for the company over the six month period. The company was the city's best utility customer while in production, city clerk Joyce Martin said. The building will remain "in mothballs" until it is either reopened or sold to another industrial interest.

of the Jehovah's Witness Kingdom Hall about three or four blocks north.

The trouble comes with the south curve, commissioners said. People who enter the city from the west see a "Reduced Speed Limit Ahead" sign just before the curve, but have no way of knowing how much they need to reduce their speed until they are at least halfway around the curve. At that point, it can be difficult for motorists to quickly reduce speed from 55 mph to 30.

"There's no chance to decelerate," Commissioner Gordon Blackie said.

At one time, city staff received many complaints from people

A case of grain theft and another involving criminal trespass and criminal damage to property are currently being investigated by the Anderson County Sheriff's Department. Someone was able to load out an unknown quantity of corn from a bin site area northeast of Westphalia. Someone removed the cover of a breaker box at the storage site and started a grain auger to remove corn from a bin at the site. The owner found the auger still running and corn on the ground.

June 6, 1983

A delay in the wheat harvest will be about 10 days to two weeks. The wheat has started to pollinate, but few farmers report "berries" to the head yet. The delay has been caused by wet, cold weather, he said. The annual wheat harvest date is the last part of June and the first of July, and the harvest will probably be delayed, unless the area receives some warm, windy days. While some area of the county have reported a leaf spot disease and powdery mildew in other areas.

who were ticketed for speeding at the area, City Manager Joyce Martin said. At one time, the speed limit changed gradually from 40 to 30. The area was never intended to be a speed trap, Martin said.

Commissioners considered other alternatives, such as working with county commissioners to create a deceleration zone outside the city limits or posting more warning signs about the approaching 30 mph speed. All three commissioners seemed to prefer the change to 40 and then 30. The issue likely will be discussed again at their next meeting, at 6 p.m. Tuesday, June 11, at City Hall.

Nothing less than prayer will work!

It seems that God has been placed on the reservation. And this is not without cost. If you go into most schools, court houses, state and federal buildings you are very likely to see an armed guard or guards. Regrettably still many places do not have this kind of protection due to an inability to pay the cost. Even more regretful is that this is necessary.

Weekly Devotional by David Bilderback

be blessed. If you turn away the blessing will become a curse. The same applies to us.

What we have failed to understand is what changes the world is not laws enforced by arms but moral renewal in the lives of the citizenry by God alone. God works in the lives of his people so that they are changed which in turn changes the moral climate of the country. How does this happen. It happens by prayer and prayer alone. During the 9-11 time frame who did we call out to? People were scared and they called on God.

I said it costs to keep God on the reservation and out of the public light. God is not going to bless individuals, families, corporations, governments or churches that fail to recognize him with prayer. Do you have the courage to pray to seek the face of the Holy God. In every congregation someone has to be the first one to go to the alter and pray. Maybe no one else will come but that is no excuse if the Holy Spirit is calling you to pray. Nothing less will work.

Hyatt Social Club meets

Twelve members of the Hyatt Social Club gathered at the North Lake enclosed shelter for a brown bag lunch exchange on May 22. The May meeting was hosted by Sherry Benjamin and Janis Hightower. While members all enjoyed a mystery lunch, President Dorothy Miller read a card from the Healing for Health committee thanking the "Hyatt Hens" for participating in this year's walk. New T-shirts have been purchased and are available for any member of the group for $9.75. Janis Hightower gave the Treasurer's Report indicating the balance after the T-shirt purchase and flowers for members that had a lost a loved one.

made her a new stocking cap, much to Ellen's delight. Dorothy asked if members would volunteer to make potato salad and desserts for the luncheon on June 15 at the Senior Center following Patty, Janis and Terry's mother's funeral service. Several members agreed to help with that task. Diane Hastert volunteered to get things set up at the Senior Center.

The mystery gift of paper clips was guessed by Patty Mosher. The hostess gift of a personal blender was won by Betty Penn. Sherry Benjamin made dianthus starters for everyone to take home. June's meeting will be hosted by Diane Hastert, Becky King and Betty Penn. Diane tells us it will be a "Mystery Trip" and the date has not been determined yet. Sounds very interesting!

The matter of the 402 Oak property and the city's health officer's inspection pursuant to Ordinance No. 398 was held. Eddie Radford and Tina Radford were in attendance. City Attorney, Jesse T. Randall, asked the Radford's if they had any objection to the report findings. Both responded they had no objections, but their presence was only to request an extension of time to comply with the city ordinance. Whereupon the council found Mr. and Mrs. Radford were in violation of ordinance and the property would need to be in compliance. If not, the city would clean said property and cost of cleaning would be forwarded to the county clerk for an assessment on the property. Thereupon, the council extended the cleaning of property to May 29, 2013.

An appointed nominating committee of former state officers and agricultural education instructors interviews the candidates. The committee submitted its nomination of 10 candidates to the state convention delegates, two members from each of the 162 chapters in the state, on Friday May 31. After hearing the candidates present a final prepared speech, the delegates elected the six members who will serve as the 2013-2014 state officer team. The new team was announced and installed at the final session of the convention Friday afternoon.

The committee evaluates the candidates on their applications, a written test, writing exercises and five rounds of interviews. The interview rounds include one-on-one interviews, delivering a speech, facilitating a workshop, round-robin interviews and a personal interview round. Once elected, the officers will travel across the state informing people about agricultural science education and FFA.

A four-year FFA member, Pracht has served as East Central District Treasurer and Chapter Vice President. His Supervised Agricultural Experience Program (SAE) includes owning a small cattle herd of six cows and working on his family's farm. Pracht plans to obtain a career in seed production, sales or research. Pracht will attend Kansas State University in the fall.

Pracht is the son of William Roger and Ruth Ann Pracht. His advisor is Jeff Gillespie.
