Father, son attacked at home

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 06-11-2013 / Vickie Moss

Sheriff Vern Valentine, left, and Deputy Chief Max Skelton wait while the Kansas Bureau of Investigation's Crime Scene Unit processes the scene of a home invasion on East Fourth Avenue just outside the Garnett city limits. Valentine said someone apparently broke into the home and attacked two men, leaving one person hospitalized with serious but not life-threatening injuries.

Garnett man remains hospitalized

Attacker apparently knew victim, sheriff says; incident under investigation

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Law enforcement authorities continue to search for a man who broke into a Garnett home and attacked two men last week, leaving one of them hospitalized with serious injuries.

The attack at a home on East Fourth Avenue, just outside the Garnett city limits, was not random, Sheriff Vernon Valentine said. The attacker called one of the victims by name, he said, and it is most likely an isolated incident between two people.

The attack occurred in the early morning hours around 2:50 a.m. Thursday, June 6, when someone broke into Laverne Scheckel's home at 809 E. Fourth Ave. and attacked 54-year-old Roger Scheckel who lives with his father. Eighty four-year-old Laverne Scheckel was injured when he tried to assist his son, Valentine said. The father was not seriously hurt and was able to escape the house. He ran across the street to seek help from a neighbor who works in law enforcement.

The younger man was hospitalized with serious but not life-threatening injuries. The older man was able to drive himself to the hospital, where he was examined and released, Valentine said.

Law enforcement identified the men only as father and son and their ages, but the Review obtained their identities from other sources.

Valentine said nothing was taken from the home and there was no evidence that the crime was drug related.

Despite rumors to the contrary, there were only two men in the house at the time of the attack.

An incident report from the sheriff's department called the crime an aggravated battery with a deadly weapon. Valentine would not reveal what type of weapon was used because, he said, that information is part of the investigative process.

Authorities have not released a description of the attacker.

The Kansas Bureau of Investigation was called to help process the crime scene, and the incident is being investigated by the sheriff's department.

Officers are continuing to interview people in connection to the incident, Valentine said. Anyone with information about the incident is asked to call the Anderson County Sheriff's Department at (785) 448-6823.

ACHS exit plan leads to protests

Neighbors say drive will add to headaches on Cleveland Street

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Vandalism. Disrespectful teenagers. Cigarette butts littering the yard. Bark pulled from trees. Decreased property values.

Those are just a few examples of things Cleveland Street residents say they have put up with for the past 20 years, since the Anderson County Junior/Senior High School was constructed in 1992.

Now, they're afraid a proposed exit driveway from the school to Cleveland Street will create even more headaches.

About six people who live along Cleveland Street shared their concerns with the USD 365 Board of Education at their regular meeting Thursday, June 6. They argued that they've put up with a lot over the past 20 years, and pleaded with the board to find another option.

But board members say they've exhausted all their options, and approval of plans for the road appears certain when the board votes on the matter at their end-of-the-year meeting at 6 p.m. June 28 at the Ray Meyer Gymnasium.

Meals on Wheels seeks a higher power for help

Faced with ongoing financial problems, group seeks churches

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

OTTAWA — Mid America Nutrition Program is going back to its roots to deal with financial problems that have resulted from ongoing state and federal budget cuts.

Program directors are reaching out to churches to help overcome financial struggles that have scaled back the Meals on Wheels program, director Sharon Geiss said.

"Meals on Wheels programs were started by churches. When the federal government got involved, we became dependent on government in many communities," Geiss said. "We are trying to reach out to churches and partner with them to bring Meals on Wheels back to what it is — working with our neighbors on a day-to-day basis."

The first "Meals on Wheels" idea was developed in World War II, when volunteers deliv-

GARNETT — A popular but controversial perk that allowed high-achieving students to skip finals has come to an end, with USD 365 deciding to try a new program to reward good grades and good attendance.

In a rare split vote, school board members approved the change 4-2.

Under the new policy, every student will have to take a final

Heat follows rain; will it hurt crops?

Drought danger eases, but fate of local crops depends on summer

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

TOPEKA — Now that a spring full of rain has eased drought conditions in Anderson County, it's time for Mother Nature to turn on the heat.

For the good of crops in the county, however, that heat better not get too high.

Temperatures are expected to reach the upper 80s and lower 90s this week, without a chance of rain until the weekend. In recent weeks, rain has been a prominent fixture in the forecast.

The rain has helped ease drought conditions that plagued the county for the past two years.

The U.S. Drought Monitor now lists most of Anderson County as "abnormally dry," its lowest level on the drought scale. The western third of the county is listed in moderate drought. Last summer, the county was listed in extreme or exceptional drought — the highest levels on the drought scale.

Through the end of May, the county had received 15.28 inches of precipitation. That's a little higher than average, which is 14.74. In the first 10 days of June, the county has received another 1.50 inches.

More significantly, perhaps, is how often it rained. In May, it rained 15 out of 31 days — basically, half the month was rainy. So far in June, the Garnett Industrial Airport reported precipitation seven out of 10 days, although four days had 0.01 inches or less.

Temperatures this spring also have been on the cool side, with the highest temperature reported at 83 degrees in June.

The increased rain has been mostly good for local crops, K-State Research and Extension Agent Shannon Blocker said.

Too much of anything is never good, however, and that's true for crops as well.

The constant rain made for a thriving environment for disease, and most of the county's wheat crop is showing signs of disease. However, it's likely farmers still will see a pretty decent crop, Blocker said.

"A lot of people are pretty excited about their wheat, but we're definitely seeing more disease," she said.

The wheat harvest likely will be delayed a week or two because of the rain. Wheat harvest typically ramps up in early July, but Blocker said to expect to see the harvest begin a little later that month.

The showers and thunderstorms have delayed the 2013 corn crop by about a month, as farmers were unable to get the crop planted by the general beginning timeline of early April. The verdict on the corn harvest will depend on two fac-

ANDERSON COUNTY BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS MAY 28

Chairman Eugene Highberger called the meeting of the Anderson County Board of Commissioners to order at 9:00 a.m. on May 28 at the County Commission Room. Attendance: Eugene Highberger, Present; James K. Johnson, Present; Jerry Howarter, Present. The pledge of allegiance was recited. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Road and Bridge

Courthouse Trees

Shannon Blocker, Extension Agent, and Ray Peine, Custodian, met with the commission. Several trees have recently been removed from the courthouse yard due to them dying from the drought. Discussion was held on if and where new trees should be planted.

Hospital Bonds

David Arteberry and George K. Baum met with the commission. Discussion was held on the calendar for the issuance of the bonds. The interest payments will be due on the bonds in 2014 and the first actual payment on the principal will be due in August of 2015. The county will borrow the money to make the interest payments and the county will also levy $450,000 in its 2014 budget to make the payments. The options of the ways to put the bonds out for bid were discussed. If the county refinances the bonds for the ambulance facility it would allow for a negotiated sale. The ambulance facility would still be paid off in 14 years but the new interest rate would allow for about a $5,000 savings. The negotiated sale would allow for a better chance of the bonds selling. David also offered that George K. Baum could excuse themselves as the county financial advisors and take over as the underwriter. They would do this at a reduced cost than other underwriters and they are also offering this at a lower rate than they would have charged as the financial advisors. Commissioner Johnson moved to proceed with the notice refinancing the ambulance bond issue in with the hospital bond issue. Commissioner Howarter seconded. Approved 3-0. Commissioner Johnson moved to authorize an inter-local agreement between Anderson County and the Anderson County Hospital Board of Trustees. Commissioner Howarter seconded. Approved 3-0.

Emergency Management

JD Mersman, Emergency Management Director, met with the commission. Discussion was held on concerns by citizens that they had not received any notification from Code Red in the recent storms a week ago. JD explained the reason that some may not get notifications. The commission suggested JD put something in the newspaper that would explain the lack of notifications.

County Counselor

James Campbell, County Counselor, met with the commission. Discussion was held whether to hire George K. Baum as underwriter for the bond issue for and whether or not to hire a new financial advisor. Commissioner Johnson moved to hire George K. Baum as underwriter for the hospital bond issue and not hire a financial advisor. Commissioner Howarter seconded. Approved 3-0.

Meeting adjourned at 12:20 p.m.

Former Garnett resident Glenda Fawkes Challman, 68, died peacefully on May 22, 2013, in Denver, CO.

Glenda was born in Garnett, the daughter of Eldon and Edythe Whitwell Fawkes. She graduated from Garnett High School with the Class of 1962. She attended University of Kansas and graduated from the University of Wyoming.

She taught English at Laramie High School briefly before opening a children's clothing store "Buttons and Bows". After leaving Laramie, she made stops in Texas, Illinois, and Georgia before moving back to Denver to be closer to her family.

She enjoyed reading, cooking and arguing politics with anyone who would listen. Despite struggling with MS for many years, she maintained her spirit, sense of humor, and independence until the very end.

She is survived by her brother Richard Fawkes, of Elizabethtown, IL; her daughter, Kristi Challman, of Denver; and son Eric Challman and his wife Alison, of Phoenix.

The family will be holding a private ceremony to honor Glenda. In lieu of flowers the family requests a donation be made in Glenda's name to the MS Society. Attn: Memorials, 900 S. Broadway, Suite 900, Denver, CO 80209.

James E. "Ed" Roberts, age 75, of Garnett, Kansas, passed away on Thursday, May 23, 2013, at his home.

Roberts

He was born on June 18, 1937, in Englewood, Tennessee, the son of Morris and Myrtle (Moses) Roberts. Ed grew up in Monroe County, Tennessee. He moved to Kansas City in mid-1950's to find work. He met his future wife there and Ed was united in marriage to Mabel Lorie Livengood on March 19, 1959 in Kansas City, Kansas. This union was blessed with three children. Ed worked as a welder on railroad car reconstruction for Darby Corporation of Kansas City, Kansas for 23 years. He then worked for Russell Steel as a welder and painter until his health forced him to retire in 1999. Ed and Lorie moved to rural Garnett, Kansas in 1996. and others likely will be watching the outcome of the corn harvest very carefully. The East Kansas Agri-Ethanol plant was shuttered in October because of low corn supplies, high prices, and economic factors like decreased demand for ethanol. Plant officials have said they intend to reopen this fall, but those plans could hinge on this year's corn harvest both locally and in the region.

exam. Students can be absent the next day in the class, however, if they have an A or B in that class, have missed no more than two days with no tardies, and have completed scheduled service learning hours for the semester or year.

Under the previous policy, students would not have to take a final if they had an A with limited absences and no tardies.

The new policy likely will affect more students because it will apply to those who have a B. School board members decided to include the service learning requirement to make sure students are keeping on target with community service goals.

Outgoing board member Pat Rockers proposed the change last month, saying that he has heard from graduates who said they were ill-prepared for college because they never took a final in high school. Rockers said he hoped the change also would improve ACT scores in the district; USD 365 students typically post ACT scores that

School board members told the residents they looked at various options over the past year and a half, but the planned exit to Cleveland Street is the only financially feasible option. Voters in 2010 approved a $14 million bond issue; about $12 million went to build a new elementary school in Garnett. The rest of the money was earmarked for improvements at each of the other school buildings in the district. At ACJSHS, the bond issue called for money to be set aside to build a second exit.

Early in the process, board members and school officials said they wanted to build an exit south out of the parking lot toward Fourth Avenue, but admitted that plan would hinge on obtaining property from nearby landowners. Without cooperation from the landowners, the school board would have to use eminent domain laws to take the property - a process that would take considerable time, and legal costs could exceed the budget for the project.

Later, after the school board was unsuccessful brokering a deal with landowners, they looked at other options. The proposed route, which uses land already owned by the district, is the only option available before a December deadline, board members said.

Nearby residents recently received a letter about the proposed road and six people attended last week's meeting to discuss the matter. But after it became apparent board members are likely to approve the plans, some neighbors said they wondered why the board even bothered to ask for their input..

"We'd like to be good neighbors and help you here, folks, but this doesn't solve the problem," Glen Duvall, who lives on Cleveland Street, said. "It saves money but it pushes the vandalism from my yard into her yard. If they eliminate the sidewalk that's there now, you're going to have the student body en masse going over Todd Barnes' fence and my fence. Once the first child gets injured in traffic, it will be we've got to have sidewalks. But you don't pay for sidewalks."

Duvall said he had replaced garage doors that were vandalized, and someone had "raked" the fins on his air conditioning unit, most likely caused by teenagers who passed by his property walking to or from the school. He said he had never pursued compensation for the damage, but threatened to do so if the school board continued with their plans for the road.

Other neighbors relayed problems they have had over the past 20 years as students walk to Cleveland Street either to meet a ride or continue walking home. Marjorie Hulett said a fence had been damaged by students walking over it. Doug Mader said he witnessed a teenager give Hulett the middle finger and curse at her as he walked over her fence, and said he caught students smoking in another neighbor's shed. He frequently finds cigarette butts on his property, he said.

Other neighbors complained about not being able to get out of their driveways, or shared concerns that the proposed new road increases the likelihood that a child would be struck by a car because those who walk would have to cross traffic.

Board president Dwight Nelson said the proposed route would take cars off Cleveland

Street, which should improve the flow of traffic. Cars could enter a loop and park along the north side of the new road as they wait to pick up children, similar to the loop at the new Garnett Elementary School. A sidewalk would be moved to the north side, and children would be expected to use the sidewalk to meet their ride.

But Nelson said the neighbors brought up a good point regarding the sidewalk. Students who walk home would need to head south at some point, and under the current plans that means they would need to cross traffic at some point.

He recommended the board wait to vote on the matter until they could consult with engineers and find a better option for students who walk. The board tabled the matter until their end-of-year meeting at 6 p.m. June 28 at the Ray Meyer Gym.

ered canteens to British soldiers, according to the Meals on Wheels Association of America website. The first formal Meals on Wheels program in America began in Philadelphia in 1950s. Locally, Mid America Nutrition Site was incorporated in 1981.

The Mid America Nutrition Program, which serves Anderson and other area counties, has struggled financially the past two years, and cuts forced by the federal government's Sequestration will bring even more challenges. At the same time as the program has faced less support from state and local governments, food costs have risen dramatically. A survey from the Meals on Wheels Association of America found programs across the country have taken drastic action because of financial woes. Among the findings:

- Individual programs have been forced to cut, on average, 364 meals per week;
- Over 70% are establishing or adding to existing waiting lists;
- Individual programs have increased their waiting lists by 58 seniors on average;
- 40% of respondent programs have eliminated staff positions; and

- One in six are closing congregate meal sites or home-delivered meal programs.

"The reality of Sequestration is going to hit home for thousands of seniors in the near future," Geiss said. "Our board is looking outside the box for answers. We know our mission is truly important and more so as our population ages. We also recognize that the government cannot be counted on to provide the funding we need to continue to fulfill our mission."

Geiss said she has advertised the need for more volunteers, but no one responded. After turning to churches in the region, however, she and board members are starting to see results. A church in Louisburg is planning a fundraiser June 22. An Ottawa church pledged to budget $100 each month for Meals on Wheels, but already has collected $300 in one month through donations.

Mid America Nutrition began targeting churches about a year ago, and the program was slow to take off. In recent weeks, however, momentum has been building, Geiss said.

Geiss said she and board members will continue to encourage the religious community to help support the Meals on Wheels program, as well as consider any and all ideas to help the program.

The price of our Quality of Life

K-State report offers hints at what we pay for our local quality of life

Like they say, you get what you pay for.

So when Anderson County residents complain about high taxes, we have to remember what we're paying extra for: All the benefits of living here.

That statement may make you smirk or you may believe it whole heartedly, but a recent fiscal analysis of county spending by researchers at Kansas State University boils the whole idea of our oft-regaled "Quality of Life" down to the numbers.

And in analyzing those numbers the report asks us to dig a little deeper into the reasons we all live in Anderson County, with its particular geographic location and its pluses and its minuses, and our own personal connections to it.

Perhaps you live here because it's where your people are from and its "home;" perhaps it's where your job is; perhaps you chose it by accident and for whatever reason just never left. But the basic common amenities we enjoy are, more or less, quantified by the expenses involved in living here.

What are the advantages of living here? Most of us would say low crime, less traffic, close parking spaces, outdoor opportunities, proximity to urban centers, comparatively cheap land and housing, open spaces and basic services like education and medical care that approach those available in urban areas. We balance those out against the negatives and for whatever value we assign to them – we stay.

But we pay — in more than negatives like limited immediate shopping, higher mileage and fuel costs as we drive to and from jobs and urban amenities and limited social and cultural opportunities. The K-State report illustrated how smaller rural populations end up paying more in taxes to fund common services that make those places livable – like having decent roads, law enforcement, medical care and other government services.

A few highlights of the study period from 2003-2011:

- Population remained stable although incomes increased slightly.
- We saw an increase in assessed value of property, but less of a steep rise and fall as seen in the Kansas average over the time period of the housing bubble. Our property valuation now is back to about what it was in 2003.
- Our highway funds/revenues decreased over the period.
- Anderson County property taxes are higher in a per capita comparison to average tax rates in Kansas.
- Our expenditures have grown a little more than average compared to the average for the other counties in the state.
- Our sales tax has increased at a higher rate than per capita averages in the state's other counties.

While these figures include expenses related to the construction of the Anderson County Law Enforcement Center and the partial sales tax proceeds that fund its bonds, they don't reflect added costs of a new school bond in USD 365 nor the recent addition of costs for a new county hospital.

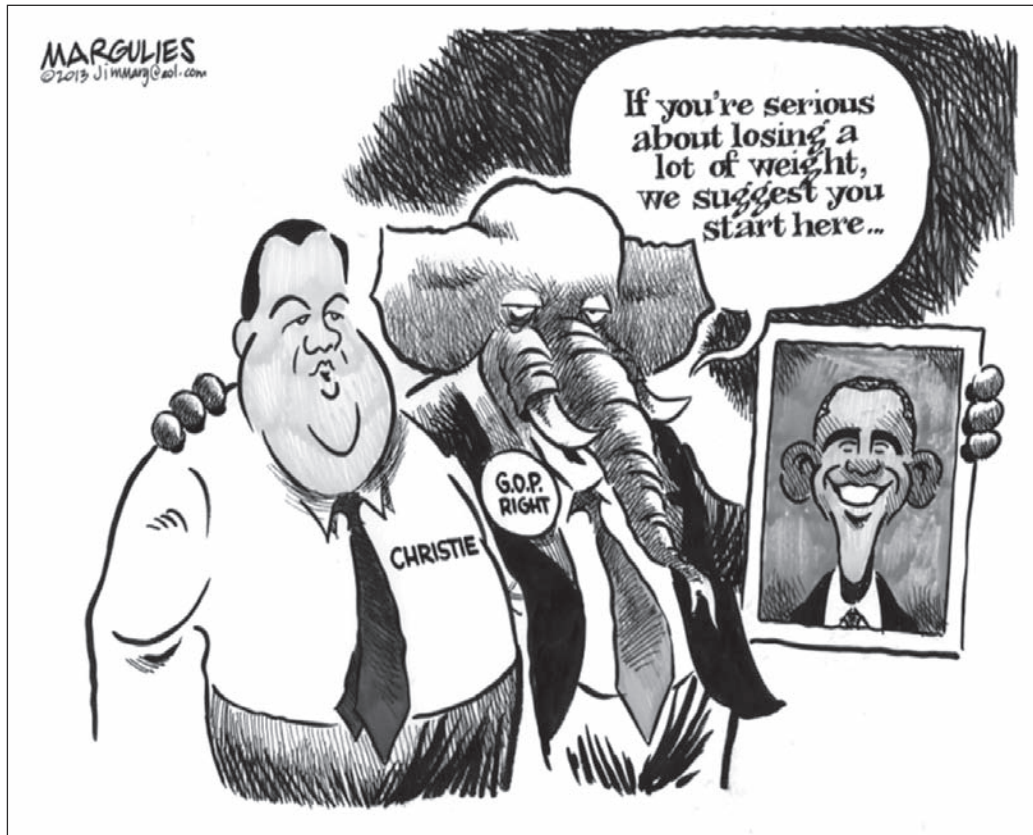

It's an interesting exploration into why people live here. Anderson County's population was 14,000 in 1900, and little by little it fell to around 8,000 and has remained there for the past 30 years or so. People move in, people move out, people die, but our community holds its soule. There's a price to live here in dollars and in lost opportunities, and its fair to assume when it gets too high, folks will leave just like they did earlier in the 20th century.

Living here certainly isn't free, but then again nowhere else is, either.

Perry the Poacher

NATIONAL REVIEW

What you are now hearing across the land is a collective whine. Blue-state Democrats are upset that Texas Gov. Rick Perry dares come and play in their sandboxes, and worse, threatens to "poach" jobs from their states.

The website Politico reports that Perry's attempts to lure jobs to Texas are "infuriating to prominent Democrats around the country." Gov. Jerry Brown of California -- a state that is Perry's foremost target -- has dismissed Perry's handiwork in scatological terms. Democrats from another target, Illinois, huff and puff about the temerity of it all. "He better not take our businesses away," Sen. Dick Durbin warned.

He better not or what, exactly? What recourse does Illinois have, except improving its own business environment? Which would mean Rick Perry is good for Texas ... and for Illinois.

Perry is exploiting the genius of our federalist system for all it's worth. In his business-recruitment trips, accompanied by trash-talking ads and Texas-sized braggadocio, he is subjecting other states to the fire of competition. In an ad in Crain's Chicago Business, Perry offered businesses in the state "an escape route to economic freedom ... a route to Texas."

This is exactly how the Founders imagined the interplay among the states working. The George Mason University scholar Michael Greve refers to the system as "competitive" federalism. "This federalism relies on exit and mobility -- of capital, and of labor -- as a means of disciplining government," he writes. "Competitive federalism is a terrific prescription for a big, diverse country with a highly mobile citizenry and a national government that responds poorly to democratic demands."

Rick Perry may be boastful, but he has a lot to boast about. Texas had a 6.4 percent unemployment rate in April. When President Barack Obama recently made Austin, Texas, his first stop on a trip touting job creation, Perry welcomed him with an ad noting, accurately, "Over the last 10 years, Texas created 33 percent of the net new jobs nationwide."

Perry's opponents assume that there must be something unfair or wrong about this. Texas, they scoff, is benefiting from an energy boom. Well, states like California and New York also have oil and gas resources, but refuse to exploit them fully for political reasons. Regardless, Texas job growth ranges much more widely than the energy sector.

Texas benefits from low tax rates, a low cost of living, light regulation, checks on abusive lawsuits and its status as a right-to-work state. California has none of the above. Although its unemployment rate has been declining, it is still 9 percent, the fourth-highest in the nation.

"Poaching" jobs sounds pejorative, but it amounts to making it easier for people to do business. The waste hauler Waste Connections Inc. moved from Sacramento, Calif., to a location near Houston. Its CEO told the website The Fiscal Times that it took the company 16 months to design and build a new building in Texas, when the permitting alone would have taken three years in California.

If blue-state Democrats want Rick Perry to stop bothering them, they should quit whining and start learning from his example.

Kansas Dems have GOP right where they want

Who would have thought that with just eight senators and 33 House members, Kansas Democrats might actually have the Kansas Republican party just where they want it?

The "where" is very simple: In charge of everything. If one day no Democrats showed up in either chamber, there would still be a quorum and business could continue.

Now, that doesn't sound exactly like a position of power, but it's a start. Yes, really.

It's like being able to truthfully tell your spouse that you didn't eat that last piece of pie by the light of the open refrigerator door last night. Deniability doesn't get any better than that, does it?

Don't like the tax bill? Paring those income tax deductions for home mortgage interest, or for the property taxes you paid? No Democrat voted for that bill.

Don't like the budget which is likely to send college tuition rates higher? No Democratic fingerprints on that bill, either.

Practically, Kansas Democrats can claim that if you don't like something that the Legislature did and the governor signed into law, it was probably the fault of Republicans.

Now, the job of those minority Democrats is to let Republicans know it. And that's not going to be easy, because from the Democratic side of the aisle in both chambers there are Republicans, and then there are the new, meat-eating, hard-core conservative Republicans.

The difference? It's that some moderate Republicans vote with Democrats on some issues, while conservative Republicans don't.

And making the voting public know which are which are which — at Republican primary elections — is a daunting task. Don't figure that the Kansas Democratic Party wants to spend a dime campaigning for Republicans at the primary election.

Typically, Democrats don't wind up with serious, well-financed candidates for races where a moderate Republican is on the general election ballot. They can count that I'm sorry to hear some of the city commissioner's attitudes. Declare Mr. Solander's suggestions dead. If it ain't broke don't fix it. It is broke and needs to be fixed. Without rules the overstuffed furniture trash and garbage cans will rule. Please city commissioners get out and look at your city. I count in the front yards of just four homes 12 garbage cans left out 24/7. With your eyes closed, you might think they're yard art.

In light of the recently proposed ordinance 3950 and the comments that the city attorney and the city manager made about property owners I think it is time that they both retire. This isn't a dictatorship. The city commission should be commended for voting it down. This should not be rewritten or considered again

If the tourists come flocking into Garnett in droves I think they'd probably notice our dilapidated streets and sidewalks long before they noticed that somebody has something sitting on their porch. If the city would take the lead getting these things fixed up maybe the homeowners would follow and keep their yards cleaned up too. Just a thought.

Last night a guy was at the lake with his dog and someone was at the shooting range. Scared the dog and it ran off and two hours later comes running into a campsite and they called the police to come get it. So what does this (expletive) cop do? The dog runs up to him and the cop pulls a gun and he shoots it. Dog runs off and dies. The owner found him in a field covered up with a blanket. (rest of message cut off)

Just a heads up to all women and young ladies out walking or running in Garnett. There is a creeper in our town, basically stalking everyone.. Pay attention and be on the lookout and if possible take a friend. Please warn your friends and daughters. He drives a brown pickup. Stay safe and be alert ladies.

I would like to address the usage of id bracelets at the outpatient clinic at the hospital. What a dumb idea. The ladies say, quote, it's the hospital policy that you put one on and they will get in trouble. Well it's my policy that trumps your policy and I will not put one on. The nurse and doctors never look at it anyway. St Luke's, this is not the big city and your big city ways will not fly down here. You are infringing on my personal freedom. It's like the state telling me that I have to wear seatbelts. I may get a ticket but I will never pay the fine.

Hey I haven't heard anything or seen any story in the paper lately about the illegal post card that got sent out by the opponents of the hospital bond issue back during the election or the anonymous and illegal recorded phone calls that were made attacking the bond issue. Last I heard this was given to the county attorney to investigate. Is this going to be another Garnett style cover up or are we going to find out who broke the law and see that they're punished for it and their names released to the public?

moderate Republican as a sometimes-ally in their legislative plans.

It's still possible for lifelong Democrats to re-register as Republican to vote for moderate Republicans in those GOP primaries, but it's time-consuming, and look for next year's Legislature to make it even more difficult. Understandably, Republicans don't want Democrats messing around with their primaries.

So where does this "we didn't do it to you" strategy play out? That's the big question for Democrats, and a tough one.

Communicating with Republican voters that their general election candidate is too conservative for them, or votes against any of several issues important to those Republican voters, is a tough job for Democrats.

It's almost a brand name deal. Anyone want a "Democrat/moderate Republican" bumper sticker on your car? Put it on a T-shirt, and there's a chance that readers might spend an uncomfortable amount of time looking at some Democrats' chests.

We'll see how this works out...

Many well-prepared U.S. high school grads don't enroll/persist in college

IOWA CITY, IOWA-Nearly one in five 2011 U.S. high school graduates who were prepared to succeed in first-year college coursework either never enrolled in college or didn't return for a second year, according to national and state-specific reports from ACT entitled The Reality of College Readiness 2013.

The data show 19 percent of college-ready, ACT-tested 2011 graduates were not enrolled in a two- or four-year college a little more than a year later, in the fall of 2012, including 10 percent who had never enrolled. Those data are based on graduates who had achieved the ACT College Readiness Benchmark scores on at least three of the four sections (English, math, reading and science) of the ACT® college readiness exam, suggesting they were ready for success in first-year college coursework in core subject areas from an academic standpoint.

"Academic readiness is vital to college success, but other factors such as self-discipline, financial stress and effective educational planning can also have an impact," said Steve Kappler, head of postsecondary strategy for ACT. "It's important for students to find the right college, be aware of financial aid opportunities and ensure their major matches their personal interests, among other things. We need to pay attention to multiple dimensions of readiness in helping students achieve their educational goals."

Up to 43 percent of all ACT-tested 2011 grads, regardless of readiness, were not enrolled or had unknown status by the fall of 2012. This includes as many as a third of college-hopeful students living in states where the test is not required of all students. (Taking the ACT is currently a requirement for all public school students in 12 states.)

"We are losing too many students in the college pipeline, and that comes with significant costs," said Kappler. "There is the human cost when students don't realize their goals and also financial costs-to the students themselves, in terms of loss of investment and income potential, and to the U.S. economy in general. We must find ways to get more students into college and help them stay enrolled."

The ACT reports also suggest an increasing number of students are following nontraditional paths to college success: delaying enrollment, transferring to different schools, enrolling part-time and/or taking courses online.

The reports offer recommendations to policymakers and college officials on how to help improve college retention rates. They also list the highest-rated retention practices for two-year and four-year colleges.

The national and state reports can be accessed on ACT's website at the following URL: <http://www.act.org/readinessreality>.

1998 - The Year in Review - 1998

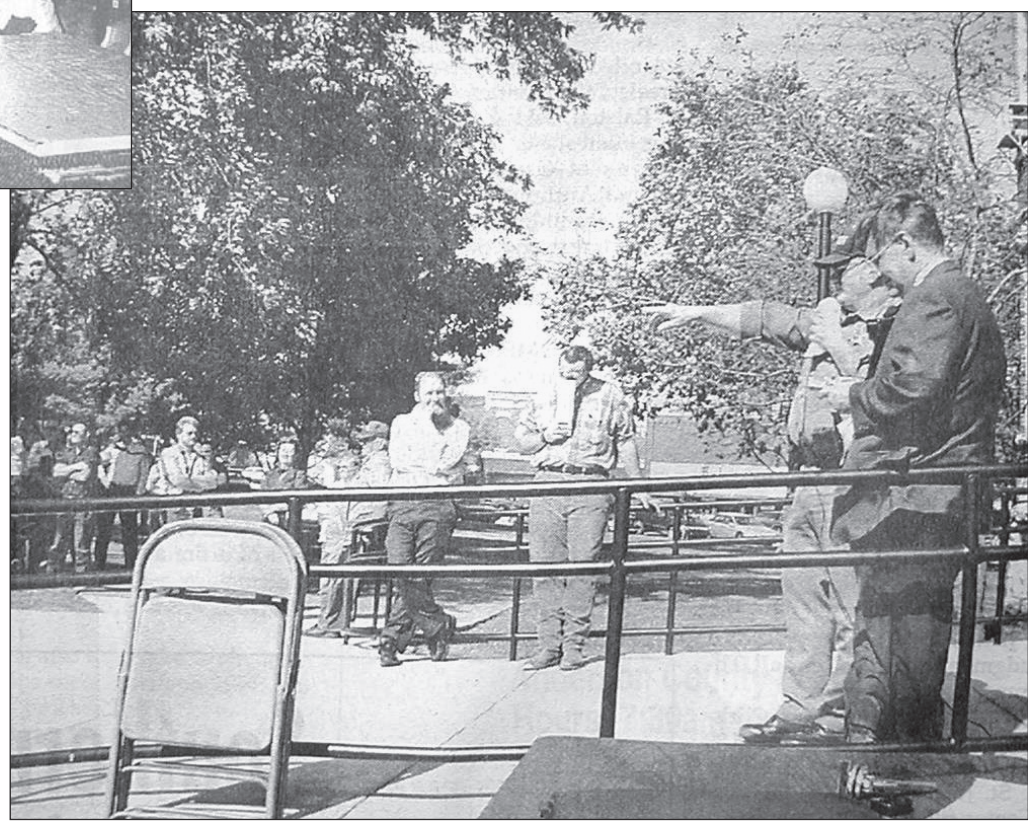

The year 1998 was all about construction and destruction. One of the most destructive events to hit Anderson County in recent memory was vandalism at the Anderson County Historical Society Museum. More than $200,000 in damage was reported, although many historical artifacts could not be replaced. In the photo above, teenagers who were not involved in the incident volunteered to help clean up the damage. From left, they are Chris Gigstad, Aaron Lizer and Jake Ernest. In the photo at right, members of the historical society survey the damage.

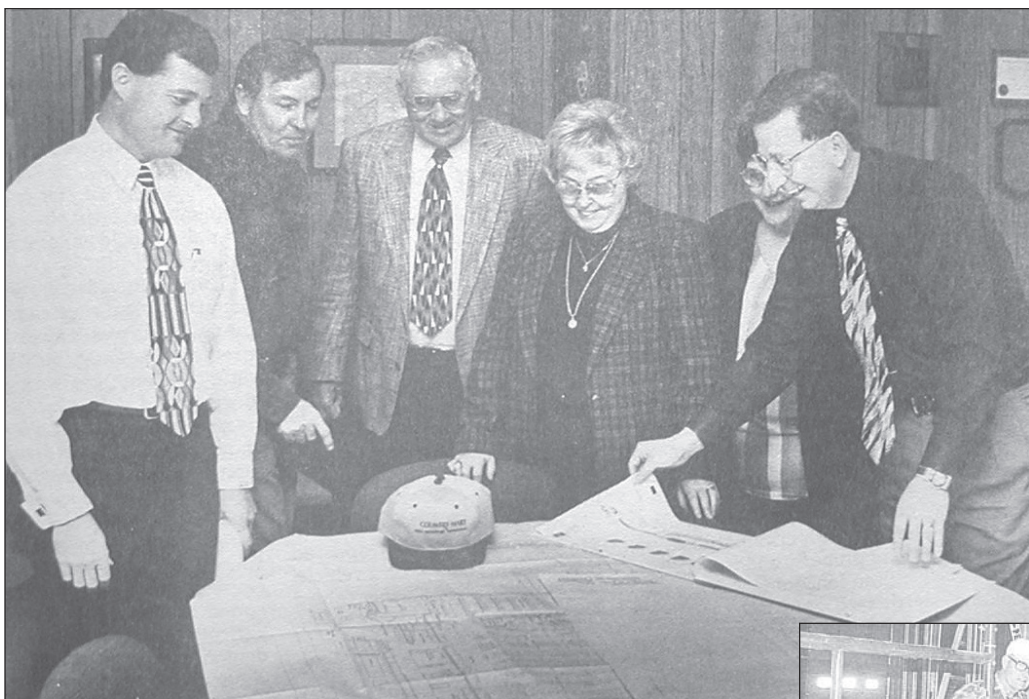

Onlookers gathered to get a peek at the underground hallway on the west side of Garnett's square, which was once an access to the basement businesses on that block. The passage has fueled speculation about the existence of more tunnels under Garnett's streets, a popular legend in local folklore.

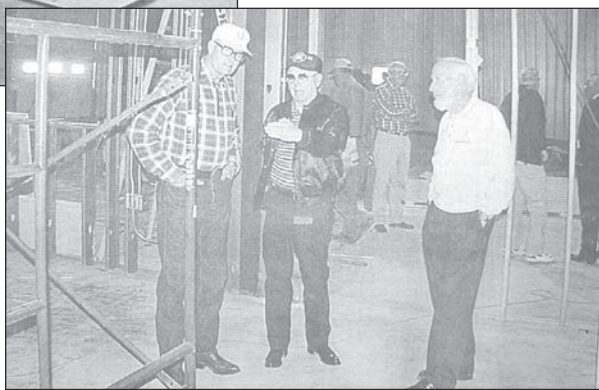

C&C Roller Rink owner P.J. Cox visits with skaters during the rink's last night in operation Oct. 23.

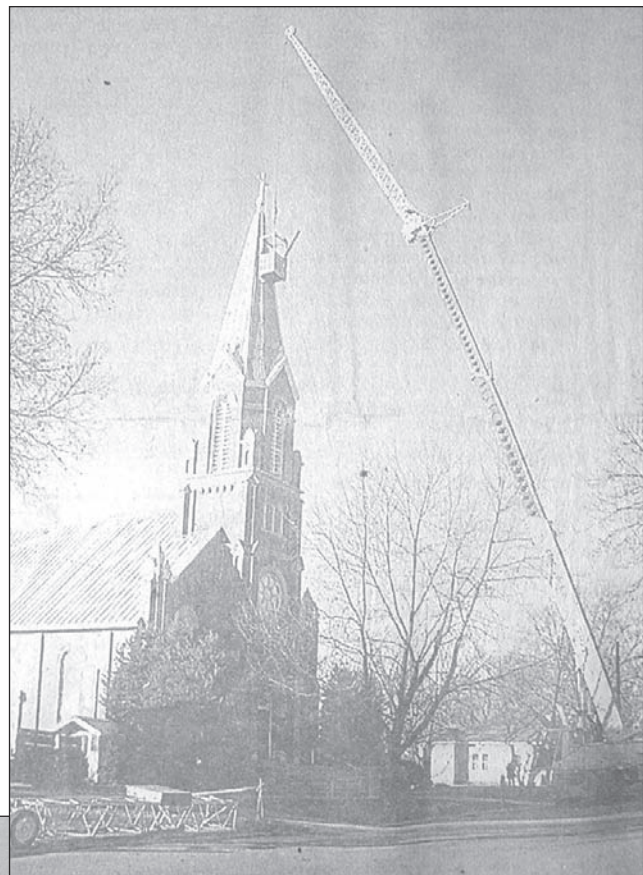

Anderson County Sheriff Dave Vaughan picks bidders out of a crowd of about 80 that gathered for the county's delinquent tax sale, as attending attorney Terry Solander assists. The sale netted $16,525, or about 8 percent of more than $197,000 owed against the properties.

At right, workers from the A-LETT company of Erie finished the replacement of the roof of Holy Angels Catholic Church with the use of a large crane to access the historic 1916-vintage church's steeple.

Swim lessons still available

There's still time to enroll in swim lessons at the Garnett Municipal Swimming Pool. There are spaces available at every level. Cost is $25 per student and people can sign up at the pool.

There will be a session June 24 to July 5 from 11 a.m. to noon. Dates have been set for infant swim lessons. They will be from July 15-19, from 5:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. Cost is $20 per student.

Last day to enroll in CRP is June 14

Local farmers and ranchers were recently reminded that the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) would be conducting a four-week Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) general sign-up beginning May 20 and ending on June 14.

CRP soil rental rates for non-irrigated cropland were updated this year to better reflect location and market conditions. CRP soil rental rates in both Allen and Anderson Counties received a significant increase.

CRP is the largest USDA conservation program and continues to make major contributions to improve water and air quality, prevent soil erosion, and protect sensitive areas including those prone to flash flooding and runoff. At the same time, CRP helps increase and maintain local wildlife populations and is recognized as benefiting several rare species.

The deadline to enroll in CRP is June 14th, and those with an interest should immediately contact their local FSA service center. USDA has seen significant interest in the Conservation Reserve Program and wants to ensure that any and all who have an interest are given the opportunity to participate in the enrollment.

For more information on CRP and other FSA programs producers can visit or contact their local FSA office. Allen County FSA is located at 202 W. Miller Rd, Iola, KS 66749 or call (620) 365-2901. Anderson County FSA is located at 111 N. Maple, Garnett, KS 66032 or call (785) 448-3128.

It's the key to roller skating

I recently dug up an antique that has brought back many childhood and teenage memories to me. How many of you remember or ever used the old clamp on roller skate key. Well, I certainly do, and if I couldn't get the key to tighten my clamps tight enough, I would slip a couple of mother's canning jar rubber rings over the toe of my skates to hold them on tight.

The old roller skates that fit over a shoe had an adjustable foot and an adjustable toe clamp. A leather strap in the back came across the front of the ankle and buckled to the outside of the foot.

The foot length was adjustable by means of two sliding pieces secured by a bolt and nut. To lengthen or shorten the foot, the nut was loosened and tightened with the nut wrench end of the skate key. The other end of the key had a square fitting that fit over the worm gear end of the toe clamps and loosened or tightened the clamps. The entire skate could be taken apart by means of the one skate key.

The first practical roller skate was designed in 1863 by James Plimpton of Medford, Mass., who broke from the inline construction of 1819 and used two parallel pairs of wheels, one set near the heel of the shoe using springy carriages known as trucks. This construction was first known as the "rocking" skate (and is now known as a "quad") because it allowed the skater to easily shift on the skates in order to smoothly navigate turns and perform other maneuvers. Thereafter the first great recreational roller skating craze swept the United States and western Europe, where rinks were built in both small towns and large cities. At the turn of the 20th Century, rinks constructed in the Chicago Coliseum and New York City's Madison Square Garden attracted thousands of customers on their opening nights. The quad style of skate became the most popular skate for the next 80 years.

Plimpton's quad skates were soon followed by other technological improvements. In the 1880s ball bearings were added to the wheel construction, allowing for a smoother ride.

1993: County lanfill faces closure

June 24, 2003

Garnett City Attorney Terry Solander shot back at comments made in a newspaper article earlier this week by Garnett Church Furnishings owner Mike Wedel, which Solander said unjustly made the city out as the "bad guy" in its demand for delinquent rent payments from the manufacturer. Wedel told The Review that he was disappointed in the way the city made its demands on his company, which was delinquent some $33,000 on rent payments it owned to the city and Anderson County for the building the city and county financed under a special lease agreement. He said at no point had he or his company been personally contacted by anyone from the city. Solander took issue with those statements, saying the city took immediate steps after the filing of the first lien against the company to meet with Wedel and his wife to discuss the issues. The Wedels were out of the country at the time, but a closed-door meeting was later held with Mike Wedel, city and county legal counsel, a member of each of the commissions and city officials.

County Sheriff Darin Dalsing floated the question of using the newly constructed Garnett Church Furnishings building in the Golden Prairie Industrial park as the county jail, but didn't get any encouraging words from county commissioners. Dalsing posed the question during the commission meeting, saying parts of the building could be configured to form the adminis-

Anderson County's lanfill will not be accepting any more household wastes as of October 1993, as the Anderson County Commission approved closing down the facility. The commission is following in the footsteps of other area counties in closing the lanfill in the face of new federal lanfill regulations, which would make it too cost prohibitive for the county to continue collecting trash at the lanfill. Commissioners recently signed a letter of participating in the Lakes Region Compact aimed at developing a regional plan for handling solid waste. However, as one of the smallest counties in the compact, Anderson County hasn't received much help from regional personnel.

Even if the application for federal funding to help install the traffic signal at the intersection of K-31 and U.S. 59 is funded, the light probably will not be funded until next spring. The Kansas Department of transportation has submitted an application for a 90-10 cost share program on installation of a traffic signal light at the intersection. The price tag for installation of the traffic signal at the intersection has been placed at about $78,000. If the grant could be acquired, 90 percent of the cost would be covered by the grant. The other 10 percent would have to come from the city and KDOT. KDOT is willing to do the design work on the project once funding is approved, which will help keep the cost down.

A 31-year-old Welda man was injured when a pickup fell on him at a repair shop near Garnett. The man was installing a lift kit on the pickup. He had to jack up the vehicle a considerable height in order to install the lift kit. He then crawled underneath the vehicle to lower the rear end of the pickup when it fell on him. He was pinned underneath for about 49 minutes. A passing truck driver and another man noticed he was pinned under the vehicle, rendered aid and called for an ambulance.

Industries in southeast Kansas, faced with a recession that caused lay-offs of employees and decreased demand for goods, may have better years ahead, according to the vice president of an organization that promotes industrial interest in southeast Kansas. He will be a keynote speaker at a breakfast sponsored by the Garnett Area Chamber of Commerce for Industry Appreciation Week.

State tax receipts total $583.3M in May

TOPEKA - May tax receipts exceeded estimates by $65.9 million, or 12.7 percent, buoyed by one-time revenue attributed to taxpayers who accelerated income in advance of federal tax increases enacted earlier this year. Individual income receipts were $58.9 million, or 23.2 percent, more than anticipated for the month. The increase over the estimate was due in part to larger balance due payments for 2012 income taxes, which were processed in late April and early May following the annual tax filing deadline.

"It is important to be cautious when looking at these numbers because federal tax hikes proposed at the end of last year and passed in January likely influenced taxpayer behavior as people worked to ensure that income would be taxed at 2012 rates," said Revenue Secretary Nick Jordan. "We have reaped the benefit of that at the state level in April and May, and now we expect things to return to more normal levels."

With one month remaining in fiscal year 2013, tax revenues year-to-date are above estimates 1.1 percent.

Why the God man?

Weekly Devotional by David Bilderback

A bit of sage advice that deserves consideration is as follows; "A good memory is fine but the ability to forget is the true test of greatness." We all know individuals who have carried ill feelings and grudges through life even unto death. This is a terrible burden to bear one that God himself does not bear.

In Isaiah 43:25-26 God speaking to the prophet Isaiah says concerning God's mercy and Israel's unfaithfulness, "I even I, am he who blots out your transgressions, for my own sake, and remembers your sins no more." God is a holy God and cannot sin himself. When we sin we defile our creator. At the cross God turned his face away from his beloved Son Jesus and the world was plunged into darkness and my sins and yours were placed upon the true Lamb of God. This is what God meant when he said he blots out transgressions for his own sake.

When Jesus died on the cross God was satisfied that sin, that originated in the Garden of Eden and exists today, was fully atoned for. "The work of Christ reveals both the justice of God and the righteousness of God's way of salvation by faith in Jesus Christ. In dealing with Christ as sin-bearer and the human person as sinner, God does not compromise his own holiness, nor the necessity of sins being atoned for." (Reformation Study Bible)

In describing the righteousness of God through faith the Apostle Paul states. "For there is no distinction: for all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God, and are justified by his grace as a gift, through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus, whom God put forward as an acceptable atonement by his blood to be received by faith."

God is a just God. He did punish sin, mine and yours, in the Person of his own Son Jesus. God offers a way of salvation for you and for me by faith in Jesus. This makes God the "just and the justifier of one who has faith in Jesus."

David Bilderback: A Ministry on the Holiness of God.

Introducing the K-State Agricultural Lender Survey: A new look at agricultural lending conditions

MANHATTAN -- With today's volatile commodity market and questions surrounding the quality of credit for various agricultural sectors, information about the current and future state of agricultural financial conditions is in high demand by those interested in and following agriculture.

cultural credit conditions?" said Allen Featherstone, professor of agricultural economics and program director of the Master in Agribusiness degree at Kansas State University. "We set out to find answers to this and other questions for the agricultural lending industry, by working with our industry partners and other colleagues at K-State to conduct this survey."

ited information is available on expectations or forecasts of the short- and long-term evolution of credit conditions. Ultimately, the survey should help producers, agribusinesses and lenders make more informed and sound financial decisions.

$50 million in agricultural loans, reported the largest gain in farm loan volumes, with the expectation for further increases in the near-term.

However, information about these evolving conditions is somewhat limited, especially on the short- and long-term outlook. To track and forecast these credit condition developments, agricultural economists at Kansas State University have created the K-State Agricultural Lender Survey.

The purpose of the K-State Agricultural Lender Survey is to not only answer questions about the evolution of agricultural credit conditions, but also to provide a broader overview of all agricultural lenders. While information about agricultural financial conditions does exist, most of it is from the commercial bankers' viewpoint and limited

While the March 2013 survey results provide many insights into agricultural credit trends, one really stands out - competition for agricultural loans is rising. One respondent went as far as to say, "Competition is fierce for agricultural loans."

For more information about the outlook for agricultural credit conditions, go to the K-State Agricultural Lender Survey.

This is especially relevant because the survey respondents stated that farm loan volumes rose and are expected to rise in the short-term. In addition, large lending institutions, those with more than

More than 6,000 Kansans to receive $1,480 checks from mortgage settlement

TOPEKA - Kansas borrowers who submitted a valid foreclosure payment claim through the National Mortgage Settlement will receive a check this month for approximately $1,480, Kansas Attorney General Derek Schmidt announced today.

JPMorgan Chase and Wells Fargo.

Nationally, the settlement administrator will mail valid-claim payments to borrowers listed in 962,278 loan records from June 10 through June 17. The payments come from a $1.5 billion pool of funds set aside by the mortgage servicers as part of their legal settlement with the attorneys general and the federal government.

prior to distribution of these checks, the servicers have provided more than $50 billion in direct settlement relief to borrowers nationwide, including $54.4 million to Kansans.

More than $9 million will be distributed to 6,350 Kansans. Eligible borrowers had their mortgage serviced by one of the settlement's five participating mortgage servicers, lost their home to foreclosure between January 1, 2008, and December 31, 2011, and submitted a valid claim form. The participating servicers are Ally (formerly GMAC), Bank of America, Citi,

"These payments are in addition to mortgage assistance that already has been provided to more than 1,500 Kansans under terms of our settlement," said Schmidt, noting that more than $54 million in mortgage relief already has been provided to Kansas homeowners. "Through this additional payment, borrowers will receive compensation for loan servicing abuse that happened in the past."

In February 2012, 49 state attorneys general, including Attorney General Schmidt, and the federal government announced the historic joint state-federal National Mortgage Settlement with the country's five largest mortgage servicers. Preliminary data shows that,

Every borrower who filed a claim will receive a letter regarding their outcome. Borrowers with questions about their payment should call the settlement administrator at (866) 430-8358. Borrowers with general questions about the National Mortgage Settlement may call the Kansas Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division at (800) 432-2310 or visit www.ag.ks.gov.

Project 17 trains first leadership teams, selects executive director

Project 17, a wide-ranging project to strengthen and promote regional cooperation between the seventeen counties in Southeast Kansas to increase economic opportunities, improve public health, and increase civic leadership is pleased to announce that the first teams of civic leaders from the region have completed the first phase of formal leadership training at the Kansas Leadership Center.

Leaders from each of the seventeen counties included in the project: Allen, Anderson, Bourbon, Chautauqua, Cherokee, Coffey, Crawford, Elk, Franklin, Greenwood, Labette, Linn, Miami, Montgomery, Neosho, Wilson and Woodson were provided the opportunity for intense immersion leadership training at no cost through a grant from the Kansas Leadership Center.

This training provided participants the opportunity to discover a framework for exercising civic leadership, to develop a better understanding of the challenges facing the region, and to learn a process for developing and working within highly effective teams. With this learning, participants are now equipped to make progress on challenging health and economic issues facing the region. Selection of another group of civic leaders to complete this training will begin soon. This training process continues to build on the work recently funded by the Rural Jobs and Innovation Accelerator Challenge Grant through the U.S. Economic Development Administration, USDA-Rural Development, and the Kansas Department of Commerce to involve local stakeholders throughout the region in identifying economic development assets and opportunities, then linking those assets and opportunities to businesses and other resources throughout the region.

Additionally, Project 17's committees comprised of committed civic leaders continue to meet and make progress on defining core strategies and goals which will help the region economically prosper. One of the goals which had been defined was to hire an Executive Director for the project. Project 17 is pleased to announce Heather Morgan has been hired in this role. Ms. Morgan brings a variety of experiences related to economic development and public health in addition to serving in leadership roles within local and state governments and the non-profit sector to the position. She will work with the region's communities to promote regional collaboration opportunities, build and strengthen networks, and ensure Project 17 meets its established goals. As she begins in this role, she will also be meeting with and listening to business and other civic leaders throughout the region to identify economic development and public health collaboration opportunities throughout the region. "The opportunity for the seventeen counties to work together to build a stronger region will provide the collective strength to tackle the complex issues of today and be prepared for increased opportunities in the future for positive growth," said Morgan. To become involved, learn more about Project 17, or schedule a visit form Project 17 leadership call 785-323-7001, email hmorgan@twsproject17.org, or visit <http://twsproject17.org>. Through this project and committed civic leaders, together this region will succeed.

Governor highlights 2013 Legislative Session

TOPEKA – Kansas Governor Sam Brownback issued the following statement regarding the completion of the 2013 Legislative Session.

"I began the 2013 Legislative Session reflecting about the long tradition our state has of being bold in doing what was right, even if much of the nation took another way. The work accomplished these last few months affirms our state is leading the way.

"I will sign a pro-growth tax reform bill that continues our efforts to reduce the tax burden on all Kansans. The legislation builds on last year's historic tax cuts and further reduces state income rates and cuts the state's sales tax rate. It includes $110 million in tax relief for our working poor and expands the successful Rural Opportunity Zones from 50 counties to 72 so more counties can attract new residents and grow their populations.

"We continued our efforts to reverse the trend of an expanding government by moving the Kansas Turnpike Authority under the direction of the Secretary of the Kansas Department of Transportation. By bringing these two large organizations together under the direction of the Secretary, we will serve the public better and more efficiently.

"We reformed how judges for the Kansas Court of Appeals are appointed. Known as the federal process, this important step towards reforming our system of judicial selection will restore public confidence in our judiciary and give all Kansans an equal voice, whether directly or indirectly through elected representatives, in choosing our judicial leaders.

"And soon, I will carefully review and consider a two-year budget bill that increases funding for our K-12 schools and tech education, funds core services, keeps state spending within the state's means and leaves a healthy ending balance. A two-year budget will give agencies and schools the ability to plan ahead.

"Under the leadership of House Speaker Ray Merrick and Senate President Susan Wagle, the 2013 Legislature worked hard on behalf of their constituents and accomplished a great deal. This session will forever be remembered as the one that turned the state around the corner on the road to prosperity."

Schmidt: Check out your contractor before making home repairs

Spring time storm damage can require quick clean-up and unscheduled home repairs. In addition, as the weather warms up, summer begs us to get started on home improvement projects that we neglected during the winter months.

Every year at about this time, the Kansas Attorney General's Office Consumer Protection Division experiences an increase in complaints about home-improvement and home-repair scams.

The vast majority of contractors offer legitimate services and quality results. But when the contractor engages in fraudulent or deceptive business practices as part of a scam, our office has the authority to intervene.

A scam we often hear about involves someone claiming to be a contractor approaching a homeowner saying they have "leftover" materials from a neighbor's job. Then, they offer to do your work at a discounted rate if they can get a portion of their money in advance. Many times, these scammers leave the property with your money and never return.

You should always be especially cautious of people offering door-to-door home-repair or storm clean-up services. Often these transient sales people single-out homes where the homeowner is vulnerable to high-pressure sales tactics – an older person who lives alone, for example.

Here are a few simple tips to remember:

- If a deal sounds too good to be true, it probably is.
- You should always get multiple written bids on home improvement projects to ensure quotes are reasonable and competitive.

- When selecting a contractor, it is always wise to ask for local references. Working with a well-known, reputable local contractor is always the best way to go.

- Friends, family and neighbors are the best sources for recommendations.

- You should make sure any contractor you work with is insured and carries all of the required local permits.

- Never give final payment for any work until it has been completed to your satisfaction.

If you believe you are the victim of a scam, our office is here to help. You can file a complaint with our Consumer Protection Division by visiting our website, www.ag.ks.gov, or by calling (800) 432-2310. Even if we find that there has not been a violation of the Kansas Consumer Protection Act, the staff in our office can provide information on options to settle your disputes.
