Police bust crime ring

Groups of kids would damage property at night, police say

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — A teenager carrying a golf club while walking on city streets in the middle of the night sparked the suspicion of a Garnett police officer, and likely ended a rampage of criminal damage over the past several weeks.

One adult and eight juveniles are suspected of walking around the streets of Garnett and damaging property over the course of several weeks, Garnett Police Chief Kevin Pekarek said. The after-hours destruction included damage to vehicle windows, auto parts, yard lights, windows and satellite dishes. The damage was not isolated to any particular area of the city, Pekarek said, and is expected to total thousands of dollars in loss.

Sgt. Garret Honn of the police department saw a juvenile walking down a city street at about 1:15 a.m. about three weeks ago, Pekarek said. That sparked an investigation by Honn and

School districts expect to raise taxes slightly

USDs 365, 479 both warn of increases in light of state cuts

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Taxpayers in USD 365 in Garnett and Crest USD 479 should expect to see their property taxes increase slightly next year thanks to decreases in state funding and increased expenses for things like health care and special education.

USD 365 board members

last week approved a slight tax increase, and Crest USD 479's board met Monday night to discuss the budget for the 2013-14 school year. Crest superintendent Jerry Turner said Monday morning he couldn't predict what might happen until after the board meeting, but said he expects the district will need a slight tax increase.

Superintendents for both districts, however, said they are in a better position than a lot of other districts across the

Commissioner wants to review city's IT security

Peine says he wants to make sure city info is protected

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — After more than a year in office, Garnett City Commissioner Preston Peine said he could no longer bite his tongue when it came to Internet and systems security within the city's operations. There have been no issues or breaches of the city's computer systems, but Peine said he been waiting patiently since he took office for the right time to broach the subject. During the city's regular commission meeting Tuesday, July 9, Peine asked to meet with City Clerk Kristie Kinney to review the city's IT systems.

Bridging the GAPP

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 07-16-2013 / Vickie Moss

Garnett Area Paint Project participants celebrate during an introductory worship service at Anderson County High School Sunday evening, July 14. They are among about 350 teenagers and a few dozen adult volunteers who will help with home improvement projects throughout Anderson County this week as part of Work Camp, a youth mission organization based in Colorado.

Teens come from across U.S. for mission trip

County will see about 355 youth working on homes

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Hadlea Bothe, 16, of Houston, Texas, remembers telling her mom she wanted to do mission work, maybe somewhere in Africa.

"She told me, 'Let's start a little smaller,'" Bothe recalled.

Now, a couple of years later, she is on a home repair mission trip in Garnett, along with about 355 teenagers from across the country. They'll spend this week working to paint houses, repair porches and build wheelchair ramps throughout Anderson County.

It's not Africa. It's not even a place that typically comes to mind when you think about mission work. Even so, it's still mission work. For Bothe, that means a chance to help others and reconnect with God.

"It doesn't feel like working," she said. "It's serving

Bothe

God in a fun way."

Bothe and her peers are part of Group Workcamps, a home repair mission trip organization based in Colorado. The program brings teenagers from across the country to perform service work in communities. The Garnett Ministerial Alliance has been working with the organization for most of the past year to bring the project to Garnett, where it has been named the Garnett Area Paint Project, or GAPP.

The youth volunteers descended on Anderson County High School Sunday afternoon. They'll call the school home for the rest of this week, with sleeping bags spread out on the gym floor or in classrooms. They'll meet every morning at 8 a.m. to organize into groups for the day. At 9 a.m., each group will head to an assigned location somewhere in Garnett. While there, they will paint the house or do other basic home improvements like repairing decks or building wheelchair ramps. They'll work until about 3 p.m., when they return to the high school for free time and worship.

This is Bothe's second experience with Group Workcamps. Last summer,

City takes another look at grant program

After recent denials, commissioner asks to look at grant rules

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Some groups and organizations that apply to the City of Garnett's tourism fund for grants to help advertise their events are finding out that they need to meet new rules or risk being denied the money.

At least two groups have been turned down for grants in the past two months because they did not file applications to request the grant money before their events. Commissioner Gordon Blackie said he didn't think it was fair to ask volunteer organizations to meet stringent deadlines, and asked his fellow commissioners to consider how they could encourage groups to take advantage of the program.

But Mayor Greg Gwin and Commissioner Preston Peine disagreed with Blackie, saying it's important for the groups to follow the rules. They said the groups had been notified of recent changes in the application process for transient guest tax grants, and it is poor management to allow groups to request money after the event already has taken place.

At issue were two requests, one from the Garnett Business and Professional Women and the other from the Garnett Farmers Market. Both requests were denied because the application was filed after the event began. Garnett's tourism promotion funds come from a transient guest tax that is charged to local hotel customers.

The city, under guidance from its tourism committee, offers grants to help groups pay for advertising to publicize events. The applicants must meet various criteria, and commissioners recently revised some of the criteria, such as the request must come before the event, no group can receive a grant more than one time per year, and organizers must file appropriate paperwork within 60 days in order to be reimbursed for expenses. The changes were made around the time Blackie was appointed to the commission, and he said he did not remember much of the discussion. He said he felt the requirements might be unfair, especially considering the applicants tend to be volunteers who are working to improve the community.

"This is the second time we had to turn somebody down on a technicality, both times from groups that contribute visibly to our city," he said. "I think we should be looking to find ways to grant their requests."

IN MEMORY OF LARRY WILLIAMS

*You've been gone a year,
We've all shed many tears.
We all wonder why,
And wished we got to say our last goodbyes.
You're now in heaven riding your
Harley down the golden streets.
While there are tear stains on all of our sheets,
We all keep your memory alive within our hearts.
Telling stories that sometimes make us fall apart,
We all talk about your jokes, your smiles, your laugh, and
How you'd sing Elvis while in the bath.
We all miss you and your redneck ways.
Working on cars with you, man those were the days!
We all are so proud of you, for the man you were and all you overcame.
We all want someone to blame, but now you are free.
We will never forget you and we all love you.

He entered the United States Marines in 1942 and served through 1945. During World War II, he saw battle on Iwo Jima, Bougainville, and Guadalcanal. Peine said the changes were made to ensure the applications were received and reviewed in a timely manner, and most grant applications require that the request is made before an event takes place. Gwin warned that allowing groups to request money after the event would establish a dangerous precedent, both for the city and for the groups. state because they have not yet reached the maximum amount they can collect in local taxes. In USD 365, for example, the district can collect taxes up to 30 mills. This year, the district's total tax obligation - which includes general expenses as well as capital outlay, bonds and interest - will be about 29 mills.

USD 365 Superintendent Don Blome told board members at their regular meeting Thursday, July 11, that the district's Local Option Budget would need to increase from 20.576 mills last year to 23.467 mills for the coming school year. Most of that increase comes because of a decrease in state funding, and the district would need to increase the tax rate by 2.2 mills just to equal last year's budget. He's requesting another $60,000 more than last year to meet increased expenses.

The district is facing increased expenses on several fronts, but most noticeably from increases in special education and insurance, both health insurance and property insurance. The district benefited, however, from a new elementary school building. The state will provide additional funding through the next school year because the district build the new school. However, Blome said that money will go into the district's reserve fund, rather than for general operating expenses.

The district saved about $100,000 by taking over its transportation services, but saw most of that savings eaten up by an almost equal increase in its health insurance expenses. The district also saved a little from staff reductions by teachers and staff who retired or resigned for other reasons.

At Crest, Turner said health insurance costs had risen in his district as well. The higher cost of food led to an increase in the amount of money the district needs to contribute to its cooperative, among other expenses.

USD 365 will have a public budget hearing at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 1. It was not immediately known when Crest would have a budget hearing.

Before that first mission trip, Bothe said she struggled with her relationship with God, and sometimes questioned if He truly was present in her life. But as she and others helped the Alabama woman, she grew to realize that God gives and takes, but you can still be appreciative, she said.

"It showed me that this lady didn't have much, but she was still happy with what she had," Bothe said. "I learned not to take for granted what I have, not just things but my health and my family."

The experience had such an impact on her, Bothe returned to the program this year. She hopes it will give her an opportunity to reconnect with God.

More pain in the wind

Westar could reduce rate hikes if saved from wind power blunder

The gnashing of teeth has begun across Kansas as public meetings from Hutchinson to Topeka to Lawrence host residents and homeowners angry that Westar wants to raise their electric rates. One man was even quoted in The Topeka Capital Journal saying "...part of government is making sure the weakest and poorest people are protected..."

EDITORIAL

Okay, so let Westar and the rest of the power companies in the country out from under the ridiculous burden of government mandates that force them to buy wind-mill generated power. You'll have the same amount of electricity, they'll spend less so they'll charge you less, and you won't hurt the environment one iota.

In truth, power companies whose rates are regulated by state governments should bring little models of windmills with them to the rate hearings in order to illustrate to angry customers why their rates are going up. Environmental lobbies have influenced federal and state regulators to write laws that force power companies to buy a percentage of their capacity from windmills. It satisfies the "greenies" and provides a financial floor that without which the entire wind power industry would collapse. That's because other than having a windmill outside your house to generate your own power, the producer-side windmill industry simply doesn't work.

Think about it—wind mills don't replace any fossil fuel electrical production, because power companies still have to build and operate resources that allow them to service the entire electrical grid regardless of whether the wind is blowing or not. Claims that a windmill can produce enough energy in a year to power an entire city for 3 months are great — as long as the wind is blowing. When it stops, the power company still has to be able to get juice to homes, businesses, hospitals, etc., which are demanding power from the electrical grid. The same plants have to be built, the same coal mined, and the same facilities maintained — only now, because of the mandates, power companies like Westar have to spend even more money to buy extra wind power that serves absolutely no purpose.

Then your rates go up. Then you get mad.

But get mad at Kansas legislators who have allowed this expensive wasteful farce of wind power to choke off efficiency in the state's power companies and, in the end, cost you more money.

An Obamacare surrender

BY RICH LOWRY

NATIONAL REVIEW

Washington is riven by conflict and deep-seated division. It is rare indeed when both sides can agree on anything consequential. Therefore it is incredibly heartening that there is now bipartisan agreement that the implementation of Obamacare is a mess.

Republicans have long maintained this, but now the Obama administration has lent its implicit assent with its astonishing decision to delay by a year the law's employer mandate. This is what the administration calls, via a blog post by the Treasury Department's assistant secretary for tax policy announcing the decision, "Continuing to Implement the ACA in a Careful, Thoughtful Manner."

It can call it whatever it wants, but there is no hiding the embarrassment of a climb-down on a high-profile feature of President Barack Obama's signature initiative.

The purported reason for the delay is incompetence. The administration's story is that it simply couldn't find a way to implement the insurance reporting requirements on employers in the time frame set out in the law. Merely as a side-effect, it had to put off the mandate and the $2,000-per-employee fine on employers with more than 50 employees who don't offer health coverage.

This just happens to be the mandate that is causing howls of pain from businesses and creating perverse incentives for them to limit their hiring or to hire part-time rather than full-time employees. And it just happens that 2015 -- the new target for implementation -- is after a mid-term election year rather than during.

Explaining the decision, Obama apparatchik

Lowry

Valerie Jarrett issued a stalwart communique from Central Command that should take an honored place in the annals of blatant, unembarrassed hackery.

Her message was: All is well. Nothing to see here. Yes, maybe we've delayed implementation of the (hilariously euphemistic) "employer responsibility payments," aka fines, but don't worry, it's "full steam ahead" with the health-care exchanges this October.

"As we implement this law," Jarrett explained, "we have and will continue to make changes as needed." But the law is supposed to be the law, not optional suggestions from Congress. In Jarrett's view, Obamacare is little more than a warrant for the Obama administration to decide how it wants to run the American health-care system, one executive decision at a time.

Obamacare was sold on the twin, flagrantly false promises that you could keep the insurance you have and the prices for insurance would drop. But there will be significant dumping of employees onto the exchanges, and the latest indication of the law's price shock came via The Wall Street Journal, which reported that "healthy consumers could see insurance rates double or even triple when they look for individual coverage."

The delay of the employer mandate may create political pressure to delay the more important individual mandate as well, on grounds that ordinary people shouldn't face the fines for not buying government-mandated coverage that businesses have been spared. Certainly, the maneuver on the employer mandate is a painful concession and a signal of weakness. Now everyone can agree: Implementation of the president's proudest achievement is troubled, at best.

Kincaid, county fairs shouldn't mix

Following are some of the reasons why The Kincaid Fair and The Anderson County Fair cannot be joined so the Anderson County Fair can have a carnival:

1) The Kincaid Fair has been held in Kincaid for over 110 years and we want it to stay there. The Kincaid Fair has more to offer than Toby's Carnival. I invite you to come down to our fair. This year's dates are Sept. 12-14. A sample of the things that the Kincaid Fair has to offer is bingo, Lions Club hamburgers, a fantastic parade, free Saturday night entertainment, plus lots of other activities. This year the free entertainment is magician T.A. Hamilton.

2) The reason Kincaid has a carnival is that over 50 years ago Toby's Carnival and Kincaid Farm made an agreement that Kincaid would have our fair on the dates Toby is available, which is usually September or October. This is too late for the Anderson County Fair to be held.

3) The Anderson County Fair must be held prior to the Kansas State Fair which is held in September. 4-H members exhibits must be judged so if they qualify they have the opportunity to exhibit at the Kansas State Fair.

4) Both fairs are put on by volunteers. My suggestion to anyone not happy with what happens at either fair is to become a fair volunteer. You could volunteer to be the person to correct what you are unhappy with... if it is that Anderson County does not have a carnival, you could be the person responsible to locate a carnival that would come to Garnett on the dates of the fair and to do the fund raising projects needed to pay the carnival the amount of money they would need to come to Garnett.

I invite everyone to come to both fairs. You might surprise yourselves and have some fun.

Kincaid Fair Association

Don't expect solution on school funding

Already, months before the October hearing before the Kansas Supreme Court on whether the state needs to pony up more than $440 million in additional money for K-12 schools, the governor has been put on notice that state statutes require him to seek $672 million more in school aid next year.

The court case: School districts have already been awarded—and put on hold until the Supremes think it through—that $440 million by a three-judge panel at the district court level. The Supreme Court case essentially will be to apply the official stamp of approval for that expenditure.

The State Board of Education action: Not very difficult. State law says school districts should get $672 million more next year. It's not a political statement, not a relatively little-known elected body straining at the leash. It's the law, enacted by the State Legislature that hasn't funded the law properly, and hasn't even changed the law so that its reduced spending level at least matches the statutes.

Don't look for Gov. Sam Brownback to provide the $672 million for schools at the state's first "governor's budget amendment" procedure next year, when he won't propose a new budget, just touch-ups to the two-year budget that lawmakers passed in the just-concluded session.

State Board of Education members, the three who voted against fully financing state law and

by Martin Hawver

the seven who voted for funding the law, all understand what is happening. The seven can point at the law, and say they just did the obvious. The three can say that their $672 million "just ain't gonna happen" and why look politically naïve?

Does all of this look a little raggedy?

The answer, of course, is yes. Not quite what you'd expect from a state government that manages to keep most of the roads open and enforce speed limit laws.

Is there a solution to this? Probably. But it might be a little embarrassing for legislators and the governor who don't have any intention next session—in an election year—to increase substantially the state aid to K-12 schools.

Hi I wanted to call the Phone Forum and make a comment on the story you had in the paper about dividing the 4A schools into two different divisions. I played sports in USD 365 many years ago, and this could have even been done then. I think it's long overdue. We have seen how much more evenly matched our Pioneer League is with its schools that are the members of the league than in the old Frontier League. I just think it's a good idea and I think contrary to what other people have thought that this will make better athletes and better competitors all over 4A. Thank you.

I don't believe it. A delinquent tax sale in Anderson County. How long have we been waiting on this? Twenty years? Why don't they make this a part of the county's every day work load and do a few properties all though the year instead of waiting 'til they all build up? Seems like it would make more sense. Thank you.

Well, I think there are some people around here that need to get over themselves. You think the cops only want to stop the young cute girls? Have you looked around here lately to see how many cute young things there actually are in Garnett? Pretty much slim pickens unless you like tweaker chicks with two teeth smoking generic cigarettes. I'd say it's more like some gal gets stopped because she's texting or yaking on her cell phone and not paying attention and runs a stop sign or violates the speed limit or something, most of them can't drive anyway, and she gets stopped. Of course the cute chickies are never wrong, so hey, the cop must have stopped her because he wants to get her in the hen house. If you really want to trap a cop ladies get a car cam and when you get stopped switch it on and start recording. Get some proof otherwise just get over yourself. Bye.

If the "I like beer" statement was abusing the Forum's privilege, the Forum would not have printed it. Get a life, wine lover.

We older women feel the Garnett police department is discriminating against us. We are not being stopped, and we aren't doing anything either.

LIEAP helps Kansans stay cool with supplemental benefit

TOPEKA -Kansans with low income will have a little extra help paying their utility bills this summer, thanks to the Low Income Energy Assistance Program (LIEAP).

"The summer heat can take a dangerous toll on our most vulnerable populations," said DCF Secretary Phyllis Gilmore said. "This extra assistance will help keep Kansans safe from extreme heat."

LIEAP provides an annual benefit to help qualifying households pay winter heating bills. Persons with disabilities, older adults and families with children are the primary groups assisted. In the winter of 2013, nearly 48,000 households received an average benefit of $386.

This year, funding is available to provide an additional benefit to those households for energy costs. This is not a new application period. Households that applied and received a benefit during the regular application period will automatically be issued a supplemental benefit of approximately $103, bringing the average benefit for the year to almost $490. The supplemental funds are in the process of being dispersed.

Funding for the Low Income Energy Assistance Program is provided by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Office of Community Service through the Federal Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program.

K-State donors set new record with $152 million in total gift activity

MANHATTAN -- Alumni, friends, parents, faculty, students and corporate partners of Kansas State University made philanthropic gifts, pledges and future commitments totaling $152 million in the fiscal year that ended June 30, 2013. This figure sets a new record in total gift activity in the 69-year history of the Kansas State University Foundation, surpassing the previous record of $111 million in fiscal year 2012.

Anderson County had 66 donors who contributed $12,670.

Total gift activity includes outright gifts of cash or securities, pledges that will come to the university within a five-year-period, and deferred gift commitments that will be realized by the university at some point in the future.

"The generosity of K-State's alumni and friends is deeply appreciated," said Curt Frasier, Beloit, chairman of the KSU Foundation board of directors. "This achievement is a testament to the 57,300 individuals who contributed this year, which is up from 51,400 individuals last year."

"This new record is a demonstration of commitment to the university's leadership and strategic vision," said Fred Cholick, president and CEO of the KSU Foundation. "As the university moves toward the ambitious goal of becoming a Top 50 public research university by 2025, philanthropic support will be crucial to propel that vision forward."

Of the $152 million total, $86 million was received in outright gifts, $33 million was pledged and $33 million was committed through deferred gifts, which will come to the university at a later date.

There were 22 gifts or commitments of $1 million or more, totaling $82.6 million. Another highlight was $1.7 million in gifts made through Telefund in its first year of expansion to a year-round basis.

Additionally during the 2013 fiscal year, the student-led K-State Proud campaign concluded its seventh year with a grand total of $650,000 for Student Opportunity Awards, and the All-University Campaign for faculty and staff achieved a 42 percent participation rate.

"It is an honor to thank the alumni, friends, corporate partners, faculty, staff and students who expressed their support of K-State so generously," said Kirk Schulz, president of Kansas State University.

"Less than one-quarter of the university's operating budget now comes from the state," Schulz said. "The remainder of the budget comes from three sources: tuition, grants and contracts, and private philanthropic support given through the KSU Foundation. Charitable gifts have a great impact on students, faculty and facilities at K-State, both immediately and in the future. There is no question that this level of support by the K-State family will assist the university in our quest to be recognized among the Top 50 public research universities."

Philanthropic contributions to Kansas State University are coordinated by the KSU Foundation. The foundation staff works with university partners to build lifelong relationships with alumni, friends, faculty, staff and students through involvement and investment in the university.

Historical Society meets at Kincaid

Anderson County Historical Society members were guests of the Kincaid community for a monthly meeting last Thursday, July 11. Gary and Irene Louk hosted the group at the Kincaid High School Community Center. Irene led a tour of the facility prior to the monthly carry-in dinner and business meeting.

The KHSCC is housed in the former Kincaid Rural High School, which was built with WPA bonds in 1936, according to the Kincaid Dispatch. The first graduating class was in 1937, and the last high school seniors graduated from KRHS in 1967. The Crest Unified School District then used the property as a middle school until 2005.

For the next five years the building's future was uncertain, until a small group of alumni and community volunteers discussed the possibility of saving the building. The non-profit organization, Kincaid High School Community Center, Inc. was formed in 2010. The high school alumni were able to rally $20,000 in donations to qualify for a matching grant from the USDA of $60,000. Stipulations of the grant were that all equipment purchased with those funds must be made in the United States.

After many hours invested by a very dedicated and loyal group of individuals, who volunteered love and labor, the Kincaid High School Community Center now stands at Commercial and 5th Street. KHSCC offers the community a multi-purpose facility that surpasses amenities found in communities of similar size. KHSCC features a full kitchen and hospitality room, gymnasium, stage, weight and exercise area, a community and school museum, 3 meeting rooms, 2 large bathrooms, and a community tornado safe room. The building is handicap accessible with a ramp to the gym and a wheelchair lift to the second floor. It has been carefully renovated, primed, and painted as a symbol of pride in the Kincaid community. The KHSCC is also home to the Kincaid City Hall Offices and the Kincaid Library.

The meeting at the KHSCC was adjourned, and the group moved to the Kincaid-Selma United Methodist Church for the program. The United Methodist congregations of the Selma and Kincaid communities joined together to construct the new church that opened in 2002. Marjorie Stephens hosted a tour of the facility and highlighted information about how each of the former churches is represented in the new building and congregation. Stained glass windows from each church beautify the sanctuary. Curved pews from the Kincaid church, and straight pews from the Selma church blend for sanctuary seating. The pulpit from Selma shares the altar area with other items from Kincaid. The new church building, without steps, facilitates current needs of many in the congregation. Fellowship Hall and a large kitchen accommodate both congregational and community needs. Several groups use the room each week. Summer afternoon movies and civic group meetings, as well as church events are accommodated. Memory books record a pictorial history of the sharing, blending, and building process. The traditions, history, and culture of the previous churches are evident in the new facility. ACHS appreciates the gracious welcome from the Kincaid community, and the opportunity to hear so much historical background about the community, school, and church.

The next Oral Histories Project event will be about the history of railroads in the county. We ask that anyone having knowledge of, or information about, rail service in Anderson County contact ACHS President Kristie Kinney. Future access to these recordings will be available to the public through the museum.

Announcements of the August monthly meeting and program will be made through the local newspapers.

U.S.169 road work to resume in late July

Concrete patching operations have been completed on the Kansas Department of Transportation (KDOT) patching and surface grinding project on U.S. 169 in Allen County. The project is currently inactive and open to two-lane traffic. Activity is expected to resume around July 29 when the contractor returns to finish sealing the cracks and grinding the pavement.

The project area starts 12 mile south of the U.S.54/U.S.169 junction and continues south for 12 miles to the Allen-Neosho county line. When work resumes on the project, a pilot car operation will guide one-lane traffic through the work zone with traveler delays of 15 minutes or less expected during daylight hours. According to Jerod Kelley, construction engineer with the KDOT Iola office, the entire project should be finished before Labor Day.

KDOT awarded the construction contract of $2,044,385 to B & B Bridge Company, LLC, of St. Paul, Kan. Kelley said the work is being done to fix deteriorated concrete panels on the roadway and give the traveling public a smoother drive. He reminds motorists to obey the signs and flaggers, slow down and "Give 'Em a Brake!" at the work zones.

In July 1983, Harold Miller of Lane said he could take no credit for the construction of a cannon built from scrap iron, miscellaneous parts and wheels from an old-time fire extinguisher. The cannon was a familiar sight at military funerals, memorial services and parades in the Greeley area. It was constructed 15 years earlier. Miller kept the cannon beneath a flagpole near his home.

1913: Welda church burns

July 22, 2003

The mystery investors who apparently hope to purchase the financially beleaguered Garnett Church Furnishings company will meet with Garnett city officials and commissioners tonight for their first face-to-face meeting since the prospective deal became a topic several weeks ago.

The Garnett Public Library will continue to offer public Internet service without filters to trap out sexually explicit or pornographic material, at least until federal and state authorities are more clear about what's at stake for not doing so, or until the issue becomes a serious problem locally.

The Anderson County Commission is taking a hard look at a proposal for renovation of the Anderson County Jail to see if benefits from having the facility open once again will outweigh the expense of bringing the facility up to code. If renovated, the facility would be able to house 14 full-time prisoners in the upstairs holding facility and two prisoners in the downstairs holding area. The downstairs holding area would be used for those held overnight or awaiting a court appearance. The estimated cost given to the committee for the renovation work was placed in the neighborhood of $50,000. The jail has not been used to house prisoners except in an emergency situation for about three years.

Three search warrants were simultaneously executed in Garnett and Moran in conjunction with a food scam apparently propagated against a Kansas City food wholesaler, when food not authorized for sale turned up missing and was found in stores owned by a local company. Investigators are looking into the matter, which apparently revolves around the absence of records for some $35,000-$40,000 in canned foods which should have been reported as sold.

Tom Hermreck, 30, was nominated for appointment as Anderson County Sheriff by the Anderson County Democratic Central Committee. His nomination will be sent to the governor's office and Gov. John Carlin will make the appointment. Hermreck replaces Anderson County Sheriff Don Hermreck, who died June 6. Hermreck said he did not plan to make any changes in personnel at the sheriff's office. He planned to keep Jack Eden as undersheriff.

An optimistic outlook by home buyers has created an upswing in the local housing market for residential housing, but local realtors and real estate broker stress the need for steady interest rates to increase real estate sales. Interest rates for VA and FHA loans are at 12.5 percent, up one percent from two weeks ago and rates for homes from local financial institutions are at 13.5 percent.

July 26, 1913

Word reached this office last evening, after we had gone to press, that the United Presbyterian Church of Welda was struck by lightning and the building burned to the ground. Fortunately, there was $800 insurance on the building, and the congregation will be able to build a new church. The electric storm was terrific, and there was a heavy rain, the precipitation being about 2 and a half inches. A hard wind blew. It was a straight wind and did very little damage. Considerable hail fell, but the stones were small and hurt nothing.

Cool temps, interesting speakers highlight trip

My Hays trip continues. Wednesday June 5, 2013, 8:15 a.m. in the field. Everyone has some type of jacket on again this morning. Our project for the morning was recovering the targets found yesterday. Some of the artifacts found included: mule shoes, wagon tool, military buttons, section of chain, scissors blade, pocket knife blade, nails of all kinds and sizes, etc., etc. Lunch break, 12-1 p.m. After lunch we metal detected a small area on the other side of the small stream until break time at 3 p.m. Then we began recovering once again, until a lightning storm halted everything at 4 p.m. Would you believe most of us wore jackets/wind-breakers all day? It didn't get above 70 degrees all day and the north wind was very chilly. Supper 6:20 pm. At McDonalds and then at 7 p.m. I attended the Local Collector's Night at the Hays National Guard Armory.

There were about a dozen tables of everything imaginable - historic, pre-historic, Civil War, Buffalo Hunters, Native American, mammoth, bison, shark, etc., etc. Bedtime 9:45 p.m. It's a cool 60 degrees.

Thursday, June 6, 2013: Up at 6:10 a.m. Very cool 47 degrees. Dew very heavy. Almost looked like frost on the car/truck's hoods and windshields. After breakfast and cleanup, I was on my way at 7:30 a.m. to the field for the day. I saw some beautiful horses and five deer along a wheat field. 8:00 a.m. field brief, we spent the morning conducting detector surveys and after lunch recovery of targets. Many more artifacts recovered. We worked in the field until 5:00 p.m. today. 76 beautiful degrees. On the way back to the campus I saw a herd of longhorns and two beautiful pheasants. Showered and then ate supper at the famous McDonalds. Tonight at 7:30 a group of us toured the Ellis County Historical Museum. It was a wonderful tour. At 8:45 p.m. I called home and talked to Kay. 9:45 bedtime cool 59 degrees.

Friday, June 7, 2013: Up at 6:00 a.m. Clean-up, breakfast and on my way to the field. Partly cloudy and a cool 55 degrees. I saw seven jackrabbits on my trip out. Once again after our field brief we spent the morning conducting metal detector surveys. During our 10:00 a.m. break a young deer ran through our site. The afternoon was recovery time. Once again numerous artifacts were uncovered.

This evening after supper at McDonalds, I gassed up my truck. Gas was $3.52 per gallon (regular unleaded). At 7:30 p.m. I attended a talk entitled, "Billy Dixon Collection at the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum of Canyon, Texas." A very educational presentation. The way the sky looks, it just may rain by morning. 9:55 p.m. and I'm calling it a day.

Saturday, June 8, 2013: 6:00 a.m. Wake up to thunder and it's showering. It had also rained during the night. Clean up and breakfast over and headed to the site. The doves must know that wheat harvest will be soon. The telephone lines are just full of them.

Acknowledge, serve and worship God

Why is it we should acknowledge God, serve God, and worship God? In the book of Job Satan tells God that the only reason Job serves God is because God has built a hedge around him. In other words as long as Job does what pleases God he will prosper. Job. Satan tells God that if he would take the hedge down and remove his blessing from Job that Job will not serve God. God allows Satan to test Job and the drama of Job's troubles are well chronicled in the book of Job. However God does not abandon Job nor does Job abandon God. Today we stand in the pulpit and preach concerning this same God. A higher power more powerful and dynamic than ourselves. We must serve this God. We must give of our time and our resources, literally of ourselves. And we must worship this God being thankful for his blessings.

So how powerful is this God? In the book of Daniel we read how king Belshazzar the grandson of Nebuchadnezzar took the scared goblets that his grandfather had taken from the temple in Jerusalem and drank wine from them. Belshazzar refused to humble himself before God and God through the prophet Daniel pronounces judgment on him. "But you did not honor the God who holds in his hand your life and all your ways." Daniel 5:23 That very night Belshazzar king of the Babylonians was slain and the kingdom turned over to the Medes.

The bible clearly states we are to serve God. In Mark 16:15-16, after his resurrection Jesus addresses the eleven and issues this command. "Go into the world and preach the good news to all creation. Whoever believes and is baptized will be saved but whoever does not believe will be condemned." We are also to worship God. The single greatest commandment is, "Love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your mind."

Job understood the difficulty in communicating with God. In Job 9:32 he states, "For he is not a man, as I am, that we should come to trial together." Here Job touches on a profound truth that sinful man needs a mediator who can reach both God and man. In 1 Timothy 2:5 the Apostle Paul reconciles Job's dilemma. "For there is one God and one mediator between God and man, the man Jesus Christ."

Quilt guild members present 'Show and Tell'

Minutes of the June 27, 2013 Meeting of the Pieces and Patches Quilt Guild. Pieces and Patches Quilt Guild was called to order by President, Judy Stuke, in the meeting room of the K-State Extension Office. Roll call was answered by nineteen members. One guest, Shirley Roeckers, representing the Anderson County Historical Society showed a quilt dated 1845 which contained names of Anderson County Residents. Shirley encourages the guild to visit the museum to see this quilt again, as well as all of the other quilts in their collection.

Judy Stuke brought pattern books donated by her cousin and asked members to take them home.

The minutes of the May 23, 2013 omitted one very important name, Henry Roeckers, who should have been on the list of those who assisted in putting up quilt frames. Henry has assisted and supported the guild for many years.

The Treasurer's report was given by Lynda Feuerborn.

Committee Reports

- Scholarship - Ruth Theis, chairman, read a thank you note from our scholarship recipient, Darissa Maley. She also read a thank you from the Anderson County Junior Senior High School for sponsoring the scholarship.

- Charity Quilts - Sharon Bowman donated a lap quilt for Assisted Living. Joen Truhe donated two baby quilts made from fabric donated by Gene Young on behalf of his wife, Betty.

- Opportunity Quilt 2014 - Carolyn Crupper reported that the committee will meet July 11 at Phyllis Gordon's house. The main blocks are finished and the borders have been started. Following today's meeting the committee will be picking the backing fabric.

- 2013 Anderson County Fair - Joen Truhe asked members for gifts for the drawing at the County Fair. She passed around a sign-up sheet for work times at the fair. She has 6 quilt racks to display quilts on. A discussion followed about the use of racks. She also requested more plastic to cover the quilts.

- Challenge - There were no UFOs presented.

- Block of the Month - Phyllis Gordon showed her completed BOM quilt top which is now ready to go to the quilters.

- Program Chairman - Charlotte reminded us that the July meeting is early, July 18, and in a different location, the meeting room at the Library.

President - Charlotte Lutz, Vice President - Bonnie Deiter, Secretary - Terrie Gifford, Treasurer - Lynda Feuerborn, Newsletter - Carolyn Crupper, and Historian - Joen Truhe. Voting will be conducted at the July meeting. New Officers will be installed at the August Luncheon.

Old Business

New Business

- The Patricia Knoechel, Quilt in a Day show, will be in September. Members asked about the date of the show. Planning for the show will begin in July.

- Terrie Gifford received a packet of information from the Heartland Quilt Network which included a membership application form. Our membership had lapsed. Phyllis Gordon moved to renew our membership and Lou Ann Shmidl seconded. Motion passed.

Secret Sister Gifts:

Vegetable plants not producing? May be time to break out paint brush

MANHATTAN - You've set the stage - planted healthy vegetable plants, then watered, weeded and waited. And now your vegetables are blooming, but not producing fruit.

Situations where vegetable plants are flowering, but not setting fruit may indicate a problem with flower pollination, according to Kansas State University horticulturist Ward Upham.

"There may be several reasons for pollination problems, which usually vary by species," Upham said. "One condition that can affect several species at the same time is over fertilization. Too much nitrogen causes the plant to emphasize vegetative growth, often to the detriment of fruit production."

Over fertilization can lead to a delay in flower production and a decrease in fruit set among the flowers produced, Upham said.

Squash, cucumbers, watermelon, and muskmelon can have a couple of other problems, he added. The early flowers on these plants are usually all male. The production of both male and female flowers becomes more balanced as time passes.

You can easily tell the difference between the two because only the female flower has a tiny fruit behind the blossom, he said. If you have both, have not over-fertilized, and still have a problem, make sure you have pollinators. Look for the presence of bees visiting the plants. If you don't see any, try hand-pollinating several flowers by using a painter's brush to transfer pollen from the anther of the male flower to the stigma of the female flower.

"If you get fruit on only those flowers you pollinated, you need more pollinators. Make sure you aren't killing them with overuse or misuse of insecticides," Upham said.

Tomatoes are wind pollinated and therefore not dependent on pollinators. But they have another possible problem, which is temperature. Tomatoes normally won't set if the night temperature is below 50 degrees Fahrenheit due to sparse pollen production. They also won't set when nighttime temperatures are above 75 degrees F and daytime temperatures are above 95 degrees F with dry, hot winds.

Expert says food safety mistakes - and illness - can be avoided

MANHATTAN – Most consumers are aware of food recalls involving meat and poultry, as well as alerts in recent years concerning spinach – and cantaloupe.

Meat and poultry juices make them attractive as hosts for foodborne pathogens, said Angela Fraser, a food safety specialist and researcher from Clemson University, Clemson, S.C.

Spinach, cantaloupe, other melons and garden crops can be vulnerable because they either grow on the ground – or close to it, and are often harvested by hand, said Fraser, who traveled to Manhattan, Kan., earlier this year to update K-State Research and Extension agents about preventing food borne illness.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention estimates that one in six Americans (about 48 million people) will experience foodborne illness each year. About 3,000 will die from it, she said.

“Fifty-eight percent of foodborne illnesses have been attributed to Noroviruses,” said Fraser, who added that this form of foodborne illness has been traced to eating contaminated food. It also can be spread by contact with someone who is sick or not properly cleaning up vomit and feces.

Symptoms typically include vomiting and diarrhea, and Fraser recommended seeking medical treatment if they persist for more than one to two days, or more quickly, if symptoms are severe.

“Dehydration is a concern,” said Fraser, who noted that children under the age of five can be at greater risk because their immune systems are not fully developed.

Adults ages 65 and older also can be at greater risk because their immune systems can be compromised by the aging process, chronic illness and medical treatment.

Fraser believes that nearly 100 percent of foodborne illness can be prevented, and stumps for “prevention, with a back-to-basics approach that begins with hand hygiene and cleaning and sanitizing surfaces.”

“We’re not washing our hands often enough,” said Fraser, who recommends washing hands with soap in warm water frequently during day.

She provided these tips for keeping foodborne illness at bay:

- Work up a lather and scrub to produce the friction needed to remove bacteria and viruses. Rinse thoroughly and dry completely. Both plain and antibacterial soaps are effective as long as hands are scrubbed well.

- Clean and sanitize counters and work surfaces in the kitchen. A homemade sanitizer can be made by mixing one tablespoon of regular unscented household bleach with one gallon of warm water. Wipe down the surface with a clean paper towel. The surface should be washed before sanitizing or the sanitizer will be not effective.

- Using a clean towel is preferable to a sponge. Sponges, though absorbent, are subject to potential contamination. Most people don’t wash or sanitize sponges, which creates a good environment for microorganisms.

- Read care instructions for counters and other work surfaces, as mild bleach and some cleaning agents may harm surfaces. Reading the labels on commercial cleaning products or cloths also is advisable, as some are not recommended for use in the kitchen.

- Re-usable grocery bags also can harbor potentially harmful bacteria. When shopping, place meats, poultry and fresh produce in individual plastic bags before placing them in a cart (to prevent cross contamination) and at check out, in a grocery bag. Wash re-usable grocery bags after each use, and don’t use them for other purposes, such as hauling the kids’ dirty sneakers home from the ballpark.

- Scrub fruits and vegetables just like you do your hands, but without the soap. Use a clean knife to cut into them to avoid transferring bacteria that could be present on the skin to the edible flesh.

- Improper handling of leftovers can increase food safety risks. A home refrigerator will not have the cooling capacity of a commercial blast chiller. Transfer leftovers to shallow pans to speed cooling.

- Wait to cover leftovers until the food has cooled. Covering cooled foods completely can protect food quality and prevent cross contamination. Leftovers should be used in three to four days, frozen for future meals, or discarded.

- Reheat leftovers to 165 degrees F. If food chilling and storage has not been handled properly, reheating may not kill toxins that could develop, such as Staphylococcus or Clostridium perfringens.

“If unsure of food safety and quality, food should be discarded and not eaten,” said Fraser, who recommended cleaning the refrigerator regularly.

Dining out? Consider Food Safety When Choosing a Restaurant

If choosing a restaurant for a meal, Angela Fraser, food safety specialist and researcher from Clemson University, Clemson, S.C., advises diners to check the cleanliness of a restaurant before sitting down at a table.

Cleanliness, appearance of the wait staff, cleanliness of the table and seats, and way in which beverages are served can reflect what goes on in the kitchen, she said.

Checking a restroom also can offer clues. If the management is not paying attention to public areas of the restaurant, they might not be paying attention to areas a consumer is not able to view.

If a buffet or self-service dining sounds appealing, be aware that such venues can be host to foodborne pathogens as well as bacteria and viruses introduced by other diners. In saying that, Fraser cited the examples of seeing a buffet patron dip his finger in a salad dressing (apparently to see what flavor it was), then lick his finger before picking up two pieces of chicken, which he later returned to a hot plate.

“With a buffet – or a restaurant, for that matter – we can’t know how long food has been on a holding table or how often it is replenished,” Fraser said.

Hot foods should be hot, and cold foods cold. Utensils should be inserted in the containers, and the area clean, she said.

Love a potluck?

School, church or community potlucks can bring out the best from local cooks, but also include food safety risks, said Angela Fraser, food safety specialist and researcher from Clemson University, Clemson, S.C.

Contributions of food should be kept separate, and not be co-mingled, said Fraser, who offered the example of a soup supper when more than one person is asked to bring chili, chicken or vegetable soup.

While some might suggest combining several recipes, doing so increases food safety risks, said Fraser, who advised organizers 1) to keep contributions separate, and 2) to keep track of who brings food items.

In the event of foodborne illness, such information can be helpful in identifying errant foods and limiting the spread of illness.

Tips for Parents: Survey cleanliness, food safety in

childcare center

When considering a childcare facility, anxious parents typically check the location, schedules, educational offerings, etc., said Angela Fraser, food safety specialist and researcher from Clemson University, Clemson, S.C.

Parents may, however, not think to check the kitchen, eating area, bathroom and changing table (when infants and toddlers are present), she said.

“Child care centers can be a breeding ground for bacteria and viruses,” said Fraser, who, while conducting a research project, found that childcare providers sometimes diaper one or more children without washing their hands or sanitizing the changing station between children. That can increase the risk of illness, said Fraser, who advised parents considering a child care provider to ask for references but also ask around, and make one or more site visits.

Richmond Library Activities Continue

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 07-16-2013 / Photo Submitted

The Richmond Library continued its Summer Reading Program activities in recent weeks. On Friday, June 28, the adults came to the library to make "Ink Dot" paintings, this was by far the favorite craft so far. Ink dot paintings were done with the seniors earlier this month and they loved it. It is quick and easy and anyone can do it. On Wednesday, July 3, kids were invited to the library to make Origami Eyes and Dirt Cupcakes. This event fit right in with the Summer Reading Theme of "Dig into Reading" because they dug into their cupcakes.

AN OPEN LETTER TO AREA RESIDENTS AND OTHERS WHO SHARE OUR SUPPORT FOR EAST KANSAS AGRI-ENERGY

Dear East Kansas Agri-Energy Supporters:

For several years after its ceremonial groundbreaking in 2004, East Kansas Agri-Energy stood as a model in the ethanol production industry. East Kansas built a state-of-the-art plant, spurred the local economy and delivered growing shareholder value.

In the past few years, though, East Kansas has nose-dived, shutting down its Garnett plant and blaming challenging climatic and economic conditions. But if conditions were so difficult, why did 85% of the industry's producers successfully navigate through them?

Sadly, East Kansas was among the small minority of failures.

Lack of vision by the Board of Directors and a series of management missteps left East Kansas floundering, resulting in the Garnett plant's shutdown last October. That is a shame, as the employees and members of East Kansas deserve much more.

Concerned Shareholders of East Kansas – many of us local residents – have stepped forward with plans to revive the plant and restore the company's reputation and value. Our plans offer much more than just complaints about the unsound decision making of the past. Instead, the Concerned Shareholders are proposing positive, decisive actions that will get East Kansas back on track.

Normally that would be great news, but existing management resists change and wants more "second chances," hoping members are willing to tolerate more missteps. Management cites "local control" as the reason for supporting the status quo.

Does that justify mismanagement? If your IRA suffered from bad decision making, would you look the other way if a relative or neighbor were handling your funds?

Consider this: Local management decided to invest $4 million in an ill-fated Georgia company that boarded up the windows within a year and sold for just $300,000. Does that sound right to you?

That's just one of the many unsound decisions that East Kansas members and employees have been forced to endure in recent years. And that's why it's time for change.

If 85% of plants managed to endure the "tough times," East Kansas should have been among them. Concerned Shareholders have the vision and strategic plan to make sure it doesn't happen to East Kansas again.

If you're an East Kansas member or if you know East Kansas members, please add support for the initiative being proposed by the Concerned Shareholders of East Kansas at a special meeting in Lawrence on August 7, 2013.

Revival of the Garnett plant, using the Concerned Shareholders plan, will be a win for everyone.

Sincerely,
Scott Brittenham and the Concerned Shareholders of East Kansas

Upside of inflammation: K-State study finds surprising benefits

MANHATTAN—Inflammation. The word typically has a negative connotation. Arthritis ... infection ... numerous maladies come to mind.

But a Kansas State University researcher found that inflammation that occurs naturally in dairy cows the first few days after giving birth may play a surprisingly beneficial role in the complex process of going from late pregnancy to lactation.

"We know that during the first several days after giving birth and going into the lactating phase, dairy cows naturally experience some degree of inflammation," said Barry Bradford, associate professor in K-State's Department of Animal Sciences and Industry. "We also know that many disorders, including metabolic diseases such as ketosis and fatty liver, occur during this time of transition."

He, along with a team of researchers from K-State, Iowa State University and Michigan State University, wondered if inflammation actually causes the metabolic problems.

Thinking that reducing inflammation during this period might be beneficial for the cow's transition from gestation to lactation, plus limit metabolic disease, Bradford and the team conducted a study. The objective was to determine if using an anti-inflammatory drug (sodium salicylate or SS) for the first seven days of lactation would prevent liver fat accumulation, improve the supply of glucose for lactation, and limit metabolic disease in dairy cows entering lactation. SS was delivered to the animals in a controlled way to their drinking water.

The team did not get the result they expected.

"Our findings suggest that mild inflammation may be a necessary part of a cow's adaptation to lactation," Bradford said.

Among the significant findings, the research showed that rather than preventing fatty liver by blocking the inflammation, liver fat content was actually increased in the first week of lactation. Similarly, anti-inflammatory treatment led to a dramatic drop in plasma glucose concentration in mature cows. Both of these responses are often associated with metabolic disease in early lactation cows.

"The study improved our understanding of the re-prioritization process by suggesting that inflammatory pathways promote a temporary state of insulin resistance in dairy cows, resulting in conservation of glucose for use by the mammary gland," Bradford said.

The results of the study, which was funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's National Institute of Food and Agriculture, indicate that inflammation-induced insulin resistance is in some cases an adaptive, rather than pathological, phenomenon. It may help clarify why the links between inflammation and metabolism have survived the evolution process, he said.

And it's not just cattle that experience the shift in demands on the body: "Many species experience these dramatic shifts," Bradford said. "The role of inflammation in this process has not been studied very much. We are missing some information about why our bodies are wired the way they are—even after evolutionary refinement of the immune system, there seems to be a role for inflammation in metabolic function."

The research team's findings have been published by the American Journal of Physiology.

"Our findings suggest that we want some degree of inflammation at this time because it helps the animal shift gears," Bradford said. "Rather than thinking of mild inflammation as a disease-inducing factor, we think there may be times during life where some inflammation is advantageous or necessary."

The research team plans to delve into the topic further and is seeking funding to find evidence of the phenomenon in other species.

I want to thank everyone who came to my 80th birthday party and to all the ones who sent all the beautiful cards. Also my daughters and families for all that they did to make it a special day. A wonderful afternoon to reminisce about old times.

The family of Shelda Cain Sapp would like to thank everyone that helped make her Life Celebration such a wonderful tribute. Special thanks to Reuben, Stacey & the rest of the staff at Feuerborn's Family Funeral for helping us with our plans for the way we wanted to remember our Mom. Thanks to the Garnett Senior Center for allowing the family to gather for an afternoon of sharing with loved ones & friends. The luncheon was a wonderful success because of the salads, desserts and gracious assistance provided by our Hyatt Social Club sisters. We are ever so grateful to Bickford of Overland Park for treating Mom with caring respect and to Alternative Care Hospice for keeping Mom comfortable and supporting our family as well. Thank you also, to all the friends who sent cards, flowers and loving thoughts.
*We love you Mom!

Happiness is... The Richmond Free Fair

A greased pig contest brought squeals of laughter from the audience.

The Central Heights FFA enjoyed a summertime cookout, complete with a fire pit that allowed them to munch on roasted marshmallows along the parade route during the Richmond Free Fair Saturday, July 13.

This boy took the bull by the horns.

It was back to the good ol' days for the Richmond Museum.

Good grief! It's the Children's Parade, Charlie Brown. Grace Tooley won the grand champion prize.

The Richmond Library's take on happiness was watching a movie together.
