Vassar rocks Cornstock 2013

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 10-01-2013 / Vickie Moss

Cornstock's headliner Phil Vassar performed a high-energy concert for a crowd of between 2,500 and 3,000 at the annual "Concert on the Hill" event Saturday, Sept. 28. Although rain throughout the day put a damper on some Cornstock events, the weather cleared up and provided a dry, cool evening for the evening's show.

Central part of 'Obamacare' opens today

Health care exchange expected to open after political wrangling

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Beginning today, area residents without health insurance can check out one of the central components of the Affordable Care Act, also known as Obamacare.

The federal health insurance exchange opens today with an online marketplace designed to help people without insurance find out if they qualify for federal subsidies, and purchase a health insurance plan tailored to their needs and income.

The exchange is the centerpiece of Obamacare, a controversial federal health care program that continues to be debated by the U.S. Congress. As of noon Monday, House Republicans were asking to delay or repeal parts of Obamacare in order to avoid a shutdown of the federal government as a part of budget legislation. Democrats, which control the Senate, have been unwilling to negotiate on Obamacare. Without a compromise, the U.S. government will run out of budget authority to spend money and non-essential

Schools get more kids enrolled than expected

Sept. 20 head count shows slight bump
for area districts

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

TOPEKA — All three local school districts in Anderson and southern Franklin counties posted slight increases in enrollment after the official student count Sept. 20. In each case, school officials had hoped just to hold a steady headcount, so the increases will mean good news from a budget standpoint.

State funding to schools is based on the number of students enrolled and weighted in favor of poverty-level or otherwise challenged kids, and districts must determine how to estimate enrollment when preparing the budget for the coming school year. Districts can submit enrollments based on this year's estimated enrollment, the previous year's enrollment or an average of the past three years. Local district's had feared a series of declining enrollments, and estimates that enrollment would continue to decline, would hurt the budget in light of other cuts to some state and federal programs.

But the surprising increase in enrollment has pleased super-

Sales tax back on upswing

County, Garnett recover from drought-induced decline in sales tax

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

TOPEKA — Sales tax collections in Anderson County are on the upswing in August and September, following a fiscal year that reflected the negative impact of a two-year drought that ended this spring and early summer, according to reports from the Kansas Department of Revenue.

The first half of 2013 saw dropping sales tax collections from local retailers, but that trend so far has reversed itself after the new fiscal year began in July. Sales tax collections since then are up 7.7 percent compared to the previous year in Anderson County, and 12.4 percent in the City of Garnett. That includes collections in July, August and September.

Sales tax is collected on most consumer goods and

Rocker retires after 40 years with city

Longtime career marked with special memories for utilities superintendent

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Only a couple years into his career working for the City of Garnett, Butch Rocker was called to do a job for an address on U.S. 59. He and another city employee drove up and down the highway, unable to locate the customer, who was very clearly identified on the work order as "Davey Queen."

Frustrated, Rocker finally radioed city hall and asked if anyone knew this Davey Queen character.

"When you find him, bring me back an ice cream cone," came the response from the city manager, and Rocker finally realized the customer was really Dairy Queen.

"I felt really stupid," Rocker said. That was back in the early 1970s. Over the next 40 years or so, Rocker still got teased for incidents like that. He's always taken it in stride, but he got a little teary-eyed as he recalled a career spent working for the city utilities department. Rocker, director of the city's utilities department, retired Friday, Sept. 27, after 40 years and 10 months.

"I'm going to miss it a lot," he said. "The city as a whole has been so good to me, and all the people who have worked with me. I've never, ever regretted being here."

It's unusual to spend 40 years for the same employer, and Rocker said he had chances to change jobs and earn more money. But sometimes earning money isn't a good enough reason to leave a job, and Rocker said he's glad he chose to remain in Garnett.

He grew up in the Scipio area and served in the Navy for four years, including a tour of duty in Vietnam. After returning, he worked a short time in construction in Leavenworth, but after being laid off decided maybe construction wasn't the right field.

Thanks to his experience working as an equipment operator, he was able to get a job for the City of Garnett in December 1972. At the time, the city had struggled with turnover, par-government services would shut down today. As of The Review's presstime, the political drama in Washington was continuing.

Assuming the health care mandate was not delayed, the federal exchanges and some state exchanges were to open for the first time today. Kansas is one of 36 states that chose not to set up its own exchange. State residents will need to use the federal exchange, which likely will mean fewer options and perhaps higher premiums, according to some analysts. Kansas legislators, wary of federal promises to fully fund the program in its first year and 90 percent after that, also chose not to expand Medicaid to allow previously non-qualifying low-income individuals to access care through its program. Kansas Insurance Commissioner Sandy Praeger has expressed concerns that the state's decision not to expand Medicaid will still leave "gaps" in who can afford health care coverage. State legislators could revisit the issue next year.

"When the reality of this hits home in some of those districts across the state, I'm hoping people will start hearing from their constituents," Praeger said at a lecture in Wichita in late September.

The health care exchange offers an online marketplace at www.HealthCare.gov for people without health insurance. People who have insurance through their place of employment typically will not qualify for the exchange unless their employer requires them to spend more than 9.5 percent of household income on their personal insurance premium, or if their health insurance does not meet the health care law's minimum standards.

Under the Affordable Care Act, every U.S. citizen will be required to obtain health insurance or pay a penalty in the form of a tax. The penalty will vary depending on income - a minimum of $95 or 1 percent of income, whichever is larger - and that penalty will increase in coming years.

bare steel gas line. Rocker said the city had as much as 40 miles of bare steel gas line to replace; now, they're down to about six miles scattered here and there throughout the city.

Garnett itself saw a construction boom in the early 70s, including the Hayden and Bailey housing additions. He did all the backhoe work for those additions around 1974 and 75.

While the population of Garnett hasn't changed much in the past 40 years, Rocker said he has seen an increase in the variety of services available to city residents. People today have more opportunities and there is a lot going on, he said.

All of those things have made for an interesting career, and have made him a familiar face throughout the city.

"I've probably been in about 85 percent of the houses in this city at one point or another," he said.

Rocker said he didn't have specific plans for retirement, except perhaps being able to spend more time visiting family. He and his wife, Sharon, have two children. Daughter Erin Shelton and her family live in Independence, and son Ian Rocker and his wife live on the West Coast.

People who earn up to 400 percent of the federal poverty level could qualify for federal subsidies to help pay for health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act organizes health care plans into four categories: Bronze, Silver, Gold and Platinum. The lowest level, Bronze, will offer the lowest cost premiums but participants will pay the highest out-of-pocket costs and deductibles. A general guideline is that someone with a bronze plan can expect to pay about 40 percent of health care expenses, while someone with a platinum plan can expect to pay about 10 percent. The federal government sets minimum guidelines on what insurance companies must offer for each level of insurance.

Although the actual exchange isn't expected to open until today, the Kaiser Family Foundation provides a calculator to help people estimate their anticipated subsidy and cost of a Silver plan. The calculator can be found at <http://kff.org/interactive/subsidy-calculator/>. Using the calculator, for example, a 21-year-old who makes $25,000 annual income with no children would qualify for a subsidy of $241. That person could expect to pay about $1,729 per year for health insurance, or 6.92 percent of his or her annual income for a Silver plan.

A 35-year-old with the same income and one child should expect to receive a federal subsidy of $2,529 and would pay $1,129 for insurance premiums for a Silver plan, or 4.51 percent of household income.

Some analysts have said that today's rollout of the health care exchange should be considered a "soft opening" and encouraged people to wait a few weeks to check it out until after the initial rush, and after some of the bugs have been worked out. People who need to purchase health insurance through the exchange will have up to several months. Plans won't begin until Jan. 1, 2014, and there could be exceptions or delays in obtaining coverage, depending on individual circumstances or last-minute changes.

intendents in USD 479 Crest, USD 365 Garnett and USD 288 Central Heights. All three districts saw slight increases.

Crest is up by five students and will have a full-time equivalent enrollment of 207.5. The district also had a slight increase in students last year, but two years ago the district saw a significant decrease. This year's increase will bring enrollment back to the levels of a few years earlier.

A similar situation was reported at Central Heights, which also saw a decrease until 2011. Enrollment has held steady since then, and officials expected to report numbers similar to last year. Instead, the district increased by 11 students for a total enrollment of 587. At least two or three families have relocated to the area, and some students have joined the district after attending school in nearby districts.

USD 365, the largest of the three districts, also saw the largest increase with 27 students more than last year's enrollment. This year's enrollment is 1117 students, compared to 1090 last year. Officials also had hoped to hold steady this year, after reports in recent years had prepared them for decreased enrollment.

The largest increase in students in USD 365 came at Garnett Elementary School. Officials had hoped that the new building, which opened last year, would draw young families to the area and so far that hope seems to be panning out. GES gained 35 students compared to last year. Other schools in the district mostly held steady, although enrollment at Anderson County Jr./Sr. High School dropped from 465 in 2012-13 to 459 this year. Mont Ida dropped by two students, and Greeley by one. The district's preschool program also dropped by one student.

services- everything from groceries to tools to restaurant or fast food dining. Automotive sales typically generate the lion's share of a rural county sales tax because vehicles have the highest sticker price of most taxable goods.

Sales tax collections in Anderson County in September increased 6 percent for collections of $90,282.31. In Garnett, sales tax collections in September increased 2.4 percent or $20,675.81, compared to last year.

July was the best month of the new fiscal year for Anderson County and Garnett, with Anderson County showing an improvement of 17.7 percent compared to the previous year and Garnett with 28.2 percent more in sales tax collections.

State sales tax reports show how much sales tax was collected from local businesses and sent back to the counties and cities to be spent as part of their budgets, particularly on capital outlay projects that are earmarked for sales tax collections like the Anderson County jail or street repairs in Garnett.

Anderson County's sales tax rate is 1.5 percent, which means for every dollar spent in Anderson County, another one-and-a-half cents is collected and returned to the county. The City of Garnett has a half-cent sales tax that is collected in addition to the county sales tax. The State of Kansas also collects sales tax of 6.3 percent.

The reports can be a good indicator of economic activity, because they show if businesses bring in more or fewer retail sales year after year.

Vacation daydreams can start now

The crunchy, dead cicadas are starting to pile up on my driveway and I'm hearing fewer of them at night. Pretty soon we'll need a jacket at those Friday night high school football games. Before long we'll be head long into winter with just a brief little visit with fall. Summer's done. Long live summer.

But plan now to rejuvenate your soul with a little travel time as soon as your time and the weather allows. I got to spend a little time on the road over the summer so I'm offering you these options, points and travel tips from a guy who really doesn't know what he's doing but had a pretty good time last June when our family headed east.

First, go to New York. New York is fun. Maybe only once, but you owe it to yourself to see New York from street level at least once before you die or lose the interest. For starters, if you've ever complained about the price of a meal at a restaurant in our area or even nearby towns like Kansas City or Lawrence, you need to sit down at a restaurant in New York and have a... well... anything. Most likely the food will be awesome no matter what you eat, and on a recent trip there I never had any reason to complain about the service.

But it ain't cheap. Case in point: I took Barb and the girls to The Brazil Grille near West 48th Street and 8th Avenue - one of about a billion little storefront restaurants all over upper and lower Manhattan that will feed you food from any culture you can imagine. I didn't know anything about Brazilian food but figured out salmon, beef, shrimp and beans and onions are pretty universal. Grilled steaks and chops or seafood entrees were $20-$25. My youngest daughter, who was apparently on a pasta-only diet for nearly the whole trip, still set me back $15 for a bowl of buttered noodles. Of course there was a bar, to which my wife and I availed ourselves after a day of sightseeing. Total damage for the night with tip: $159. On the other hand, you can get a bagel, cream cheese and coffee at any of the dozens of street side joints for about $3, and it'll last you 'til lunchtime.

Lunch at an Irish pub the day before-again, noodles for the youngest- $65. And airports... forget any hint of sanity for your wallet if you're eating at an airport restaurant.

Manhattan hotels are cool too and depending on the time of the year and the deals they're running, they're surprisingly affordable. New York hotels are actually fairly competitive so they run lots of specials, and a non-refundable advance pay reservation can get you a $300 a night hotel room for $125-$150- of course that's before the barrage of NYC lodging taxes. We stayed in Midtown at The Belvedere for three nights. We even met people who lived there- can you imagine "living" in a hotel? It kind of irked me to spend a bunch of cash for a hotel when you were spending all your time sight-seeing during the day and were only sleeping there at night, but you have to keep in mind that in the long run nobody visits New York to save money.

We did the cool stuff though. We toured NBC studios and the intern who conducted our tour was from Joplin, Mo., believe it or not, who picked up on my Mizzou t-shirt. We got pictures of the kids coming out of Trump Towers like they'd just been bounced off of Celebrity Apprentice and found a guy on stilts in a Statute of Liberty costume in Times Square and got our pictures taken with him for a $5 tip. Took a boat and toured New York Harbor- outstanding- even with the gang of French tourists who seemed far more excited to see Lady Liberty than the Yankees on the boat. We toured the 9/11 Memorial, Radio City Music Hall, the Ed Sullivan Theater.

And we watched people, and what they were wearing, and what they were doing, and we practiced our accents.

Second: Go to Washington, D.C. You need at least three full days to see everything you want to see in the nation's capital, so if you go plan to stay a while. Hotels here are expensive too and the service

If you can not speak nicely about some, does not give you the right to bad mouth them. Jim Crow it seems to be alive and well in Anderson County. For the editor of the Anderson County Review is another SOB who is a racist and sexist bastard. As for the paper, it never mentions the ugly facts that the Tea Party Republicans is a terrorist organization bent on the destruction of the elderly, the handicapped, the poor, the children, the African American, the Latin American, the Orientals and other minorities by denying the right to vote when many of them have been citizens of this county and country for several generations and are also willing to harm and destroy people by destroying Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid and veterans pensions. If you are not a rich white male SOB you have no right to live, to vote or live in America and no right to run for public office according to Dane Hicks. President Obama is a far better man than you for though he is not perfect, he had shown to be a better Christian than you Mr. Jim Crow Dane Hicks.

My beef I guess would be with the Garnett Housing Authority. I see you have another Villa empty. When are you people going to wise up and realize the high rent is way out of line for a town as small as Garnett. You charge rent the way they do in Kansas City where people have jobs and better pay. These people who live out there are mostly retired and living on a fixed income. $1,450 for one of the villas- that's laughable. And if you are lucky to have a spouse it's $57.50 extra. Do you people know you can rent a two bedroom, two bath duplex in Ottawa for $650 a month? No extra for a spouse. That's $857.50 cheaper. They also have garages, snow removal and grass mowed. They do pay their own utilities but I've never had an $857.50 utility bill. Just give this some thought. If you would charge fair rent you would have all your places full and possibly a waiting list. This town of Garnett is so greedy.

Dear dance team: if you're going to do a dance at the homecoming game to a song that talks about shaking your pom-poms, don't you think you should actually be using pom-poms in the routine? Come on, what's next, the football players do a do a song about shaking their sausages? Yeah. Okay. Thanks.

I see where the city is complaining that they're $18,000 short of coming up with their budget. Well, you know over the past three years they've increased their employees and they still stand around leaning on shovels and stuff and we don't get near as much done. So the simplest way to cure that $18,000 problem is to maybe let a couple of them go. That would sure help get our budget in because we sure don't need anymore tax increases.

I was witness to the first tornado drill of the school year at Westphalia today. I was so impressed with the way everything was handled. The students were quiet, polite, knew where they were going in a hurry. Anyone with a friend, relative, whatever in the Westphalia school should take comfort in knowing all involved will know what to do in case it is needed. Way to go Westphalia students and staff.

I was traveling east on Park Road and just before you get to Oak Street and there was a handicap in a wheelchair getting ready to cross the street so I stopped like I was supposed to because of the crosswalk painted there. But coming from the east was a police car who just drove right on through and never even bothered to stop. As citizens we're supposed to obey these laws like a cross walk but a cop can just ignore them? I notice all over town it's kind of rude people just ignore those crosswalks. One of these days somebody will probably get hurt.

I was reading my new Town Talk today and I was reading the commissioners report and it says in there that the job of your commissioners is to act in the best interest of the citizens. My question is the city here years back made a transition plan for ADA and why aren't they following it? Item number 9 was supposed to be done in 2014, it states to replace sidewalks as needed on 4th, 5th, and 6th street from Oak to Highway 59 and on the south side of 4th street from Main east to Olive. So fair none of this has been done. I've talked to the city twice this year and all I've got is promises. So how can they say they're acting in the best interest of their citizens? Money was budgeted, so what is going on? Thank you.

Someone needs to sit the highway patrol, the sheriff department and the city police down and explain to them that the speed limit is not 40 mph in front of my house. It's several houses past mine. Those are the biggest abusers I've ever seen, just cruising down there like they could care less how fast they're going. Sit them down and educate them a little. Thank you.

They picked the worst time to do a new road out there at the high school. It is the most inconvenient thing. It is causing traffic backups as it is. I don't think it's going to be that much of a help. I think you should have just left it alone. They don't seem to be working on it anyway there's just a bunch of machines sitting out there. They didn't need that road why didn't they just keep that money and spend it on something else.

The impossibility of gun control

The Navy Yard massacre won't revive the gun debate in Congress for a simple reason: There is no gun-control agenda this side of a total ban and confiscation that would have stopped Aaron Alexis.

The Toomey-Manchin bill could have passed Congress unanimously. The assault-weapons ban could still be in place. Gun-controllers could have achieved their long-ago goal of barring the private purchase of handguns. And every step of his mayhem at the Washington Navy Yard would have been unimpeded.

The media rushed, based on erroneous reports from law enforcement, to place in his hands an AR-15, the popular rifle that has been used in mass shootings before and that an assault-weapons ban would prohibit.

The front page of the New York Daily News blared "Same gun, different slay." The newspaper's columnist Mike Lupica worked himself into lathers of dudgeon over the offending gun. "They call semiautomatics like this sports rifles," he fumed. "You bet. Mostly for the sport of killing innocent people, and killing them fast."

But according to law enforcement, Alexis used a shotgun, a weapon, as it happens, that has been endorsed and promoted by the vice president of the United States. At a Facebook town hall earlier in the year, Joe Biden urged a mother concerned about safety: "Buy a shotgun, buy a shotgun."

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

This may be fine advice, but there should be no mistake: Shotguns are dangerous. When it comes to "the sport of killing innocent people," almost any gun will do, especially if it is in a permissive environment where no one else is likely to be armed. This makes a hash of the conceit that the government can ban a few select guns and make shooting rampages less likely.

Other common panaceas would have had no effect, either. Alexis bought his shotgun from a duly-licensed dealer, not at a gun show. He passed a federal background check with no problem. He didn't have a high-capacity magazine. He reportedly got the handgun or handguns he also may have used in the attack after shooting a security officer.

So the Navy Yard rampage demonstrates the essential sterility of the gun-control debate. It is true that James Holmes and Adam Lanza used AR-15s. But Seung-Hui Cho and Jared Loughner used 9 mm semiautomatic pistols. And Aaron Alexis used a shotgun. The common theme is that they were all deeply disturbed young men whose acts of murder had a sickening aspect of utter senselessness. The Daily News got it backward. Its headline should have read "Different gun, same slay."

Maybe this time we can have a real debate about mental illness. When Aaron Alexis called the Rhode Island police a month ago to tell them that enemies were harassing him with a microwave machine, it was clear that he was suffering paranoid delusions and needed help. But the authorities let him go his merry way, evidently to sink deeper into the madness he mistook for reality.

It needs to be easier to compel treatment for the mentally ill. There will be another Aaron Alexis. If we can't predict what gun he'll use, we already know his mental state.

GOP and food stamps: Starved of decency

It contradicts the very concept of our nation: One in six Americans goes hungry some of the time -- that's one in six who is "food insecure," the term used by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Forty-nine million in this land of plenty don't get enough to eat. It's even more shameful for children: One in five is deprived of adequate meals. But even that is not the worst. That would be the hateful vote by Republicans in the House of Representatives to severely cut the federal program that allows those millions to get the nutrition they need.

In their zeal to show scorn for the poor and any government program that might offer a helping hand, a majority of the GOP members in the House have decided to slash $4 billion a year from the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, otherwise known as SNAP, and otherwise known as food stamps. That's 5 percent of a program that is literally a lifeline for those who are unable to meet the most basic of needs in our cruel economy.

Fortunately, the White House has promised a veto, even if this got through a Democrat-majority Senate, which it won't. The chair of the Senate Agriculture Committee, Debbie Stabenow, calls it "a monumental waste of time." What it is is a monumental example of nastiness. For those in the House, this was just a symbolic vote, symbolic of heartlessness. It fails to measure up to the minimum standard of decency. Democrat Lloyd Doggett called it the "Let Them Starve" bill. President Barack Obama accuses the hard-liners of "trying to mess with me." There's little question about that.

Not that Republicans will suffer any political damage. After all, the impoverished don't make campaign contributions. That's left to the bloated special interests that want to expand their riches at the very same time the unfortunate are scraping for basic sustenance. Not only would this legislation sever millions of recipients starting next year, but it would treat many who remain with utter contempt, allowing states to require them to take drug tests.

It's one thing if the zealots insist on trying to gut Obamacare with their equally futile votes to defund or delay health reform just as it's ramping up. That's just juvenile and self-destructive, since they're ignoring warnings about how a government shutdown or forcing the nation into the humiliation of debt default would rain scorn on them. None of that is as low as cavalierly leaving Americans hungry.

The next time you hear one of them talk about how the Republicans are trying to reduce government spending to make sure our children are not saddled with a crippling national debt, it's fair to ask about a concern for the children today. What about that one in five who is malnourished and would be in real trouble were it not for the very programs they are trying to reduce just when the need is greatest.

Our nation has a proud tradition of protecting the defenseless. But now, the GOP is dominated by harsh elements that would have us turn our backs on the most vulnerable and simply toss them aside. That's beneath low.

Paul preaching in Athens

Weekly Devotional by David Bilderback

In Acts 17: 16-34 we read how the Apostle Paul was forced to flee to Athens from Berea because a political charge was brought against him by the Jews saying he had spoken concerning the spiritual kingdom of God thus threatening the Roman government. At that time Athens was the leading city of Greece and upon arrival Paul became greatly distressed to see that the city was full of idols.

There were statues of gods and goddesses in the temples as well as in the public and commercial buildings. Paul began to reason with the Jews and God-fearing Greeks as well as in the market place with those who were there. A group of philosophers began to dispute with Paul because his reasoning clashed with their personal practices which represented the two schools of thought at the time.

These schools of thought defined the purpose of life as the pursuit of pleasure and freedom or living in harmony with nature and depending on human reason and other self-sufficient powers. These two groups took Paul to the Areopagus which means "Mars Hill". Here a council met daily and spent their time doing nothing but talking about and listening to the latest ideas. For Paul this represented a tremendous opportunity to present his message.

In verse 22-23 Paul addresses the council, "Men of Athens I see in every way you are very religious. For as I walked around and looked carefully at your objects of worship, I even found an altar with this inscription: "TO AN UNKNOWN GOD". Now what you worship as something unknown I am going to proclaim to you" Paul goes on to say in verse 28, "For in him (God) we live and move and have our being." I am not sure we fully grasp the weight of this text. What Paul is saying is God brought you and I into being and we only exist by his providence. Because of the great emphasis on education and science as the basis of self-improvement of mankind we have been desensitized to God. Unfortunately this has not been to our betterment. God cannot be intellectually understood or explained scientifically. When Gods states in Isaiah 55:8, "For my thoughts are not your thought, neither are your ways my ways", that is exactly what he means.

This same "UNKNOWN GOD" that Paul preached about reigns today. Because God makes demands on us we don't like we tend to be like the council on "Mars Hill", listening and searching for a new way to appease both God and ourselves. We have two choices either we can continue the futile search for this dual solution or we can accept Jesus Christ as our personal Savior and meet God on his own terms.

Bulldogs can't stop Viking drive, fall 27-12

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

RICHMOND - The Central Heights Vikings bumped up two touchdowns in the first quarter of play Friday night and then held on to the margin to defeat Anderson County 27-12.

AC managed a TD in the second quarter on a short rushing play by quarterback Eric Small, but the offense continued to sputter through a scoreless third quarter. Hilliard hit Ryan Alley on a fourth period pass play to score another 6 from about 5 yards out, but it was too little too late.

Viking Tristan Davis scored first on AC on a short run with 4 minutes to go in the first period after AC was forced to punt. Jacob Pryor punched in again about three minutes later on a 15 yard run and the extra point kick was good. Jordan Horstick hit Tanner Erhart on a 14-yard pass play as the second quarter closed to make it 19-6. Chase Brown dealt a blow to AC with an 80 yard runback of the AC kickoff to start the second half to make it 25-6 and the Vikes scored the conversion on their final touchdown.

AC was just unable to stop the Viking running attack most of the night. The Vikes had 267 yards rushing on 52 attempts. Pryor racked up 121 yards rushing on 24 attempts for Central Heights. Tristan Davis had 89 yards on 18 attempts. Horstick was 4/8 for 37 yards. Kobe Robertson led the Vikings on defense with 8 tackles, 4 of those behind the line of scrimmage.

AC's Zach Hilliard had 20 carries for 113 yards and completed 10 of 19 passes for 128 yards. Alley had 6 receptions for 78 yards. Altogether AC could manage only 128 yards rushing and 128 passing for 256 total yards.

Hilliard also massed 14 tackles to lead the Bulldog defense. Wyatt Hulet had 7 and Lee Koch had 6.

Crest musters win over St. Paul 24-14

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

COLONY - The Crest Lancers kept up a slow but steady offensive attack on St. Paul Friday night, putting a TD on the board in the first two quarters and two more in the third to send the Indians home with a 24-14 loss.

Quarterback Evan Godderz racked up 100 yards rushing on the night and scored all 4 of Crest's touchdowns. He was 2 of 10 passing attempts for 15 yards. The Lancers never managed to put an extra point effort on the board.

WF stopped AC 25-13, 21-25, 25-12, but AC then beat Lyndon 20-25, 25-20, 25-23 to set up the championship rematch with WF in the finals. The Falcons came back with a vengeance in the final however and blew AC out 25-10, 25-9.

Four Winds, DAR discusses body armor for women

Four Winds Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, met Thursday, Sept. 5, with Donna Roberts as hostess. The meeting was opened with the Opening Ritual led by Regent Alice Walker and Chaplain Agnes Carr followed by the Pledge of Allegiance and the American's Creed.

Agnes Carr read the message for the newly installed National President General Lynn Young. Judy Carr read the National Defense Report that U.S. Military will now make body armor clothing especially designed for women instead of trying to adjust the men's clothing. There was much talk about this. Louise Stites, the wife of a former Linn County sheriff, commented about the women deputies' problems with adjusting men's clothes to fit and when the U.S. makes changes, it eventually works down to the local law enforcement and the women deputies will certainly be pleased.

The minutes of the regular June meeting and the June planning meeting were read and both approved as read. The treasurer gave her report and it was filed for audit.

Ruth gave a Constitution Minute and handed out Constitution notices for members to take to their own churches to announce Constitution Week.

Jeana Brownback of rural Mound City is a new member of Four Winds Chapter. Jeana is an elementary teacher at Jayhawk Linn and her husband is a banker in Mound City.

Ione was thanked for having done the yearbooks and gotten them handed out or mailed.

The KSDAR Fall Workshop was in Junction City Sept. 20-21 and Louise and Alice will attend and bring back the materials for the chapter for the coming year.

Donna Roberts gave the program on "Quilts from Our Past," telling about the different materials and patterns used over the years. She had brought many quilts of her own to illustrate. Following her presentation, quilts and banners that other members had brought were looked at and discussed as to materials, patterns and quilting. It was extremely interesting lesson and generated much discussion.

The meeting adjourned. The next meeting will be Thursday, Oct. 3, with Louise as hostess and Alice giving the program.

The Daughters of the American Revolution is a non-profit, nonpolitical women's volunteer service organization dedicated to promoting historic preservation, education and patriotism. Any woman who can prove descent from a man or woman who gave military or civil service during the Revolution is invited to join. Contact Ione Sweers or Juanita Kellerman in Garnett, Louise Stites of Centerville or Alice Walker of Blue Mound.

Exit Work

Construction began recently on a secondary exit out of the Anderson County Jr./Sr. High School parking lot. The exit will offer an off-street waiting lane for motorists who are waiting for students after school lets out.

Wildlife checkpoint planned in central Kansas

TOPEKA - The Kansas Department of Wildlife, Parks, and Tourism (KDWP), KHP and local law enforcement will conduct a joint checkpoint in central Kansas in early October. The fall turkey season starts October 1, and the regular big duck season starts October 5. The checkpoint is intended to help enforce state and federal wildlife laws, as well as the state's driver's licensing laws.

Local law enforcement officers will operate the first stage of the checkpoint to be sure drivers are properly licensed to be driving. If a driver does not have a valid license, appropriate enforcement actions will be taken. Travelers should not expect major delays from this portion of the checkpoint.

Occupants of vehicles in the first check lane will be asked if they are hunters or are transporting wildlife. If yes in either case, drivers will be directed to a nearby KDWP check lane where natural resource officers will check for required licenses and permits, count the game and gather biological, harvest, and hunter success information. This portion of the checkpoint should also cause minimal delay.

Additional wildlife checkpoints will occur around the state during the fall and winter hunting seasons.

1913: Commissioners address water woes

Oct. 7, 2003

The victim of a stabbing incident last week at a teen beer bash northeast of Garnett says he's being falsely characterized in the incident, and he wants his side of the story told. The 17-year-old victim describes the teen charged with stabbing him as a bully and says the fight that erupted between the two was payback for a beating he says his cousin received at the hands of the other teen and his friends. The fight happened around 2 a.m. at a party spot called "The 45" in Monroe Township near Pottawatomie Creek just off a minimum maintenance county road. The victim was left with a stab wound to the chest that collapsed his left lung.

The Sherwood Inn may reopen as early as Wednesday or Thursday after a fire last week closed the business. The owner discovered the fire when she opened the building on Friday morning. It was electrical in origin. The owner credited fire-retardant insulation over the kitchen with helping control the blaze.

The City of Greeley extended its deadline for submitting bids on construction of its planned senior citizens' housing complex. The council had hoped to be able to approve bids in order to start construction this fall, but have delayed that decision until later in October. Greeley voters approved construction of the senior citizens' housing facility in June by a 5-1 margin. The vote to issue $225,000 in general obligation bonds to cover construction costs of the facility was okayed 68 to 14. Plans call for a one-story complex with eight individual units.

The Kansas Department of Wildlife and Parks Commission will hold a special meeting in Garnett to tour a portion of the proposed Ottawa to Iola rail trail, and hear a presentation on the trail by KDWP staff members. Officials also expect to choose an official name for the trail at this time.

Petitions are being circulated in Garnett to bring the city's proposed $2.25 million revenue bond issue for the Cedar Creek reservoir to a vote by city voters, and some people circulating the petitions say that they expect enough signatures on the petition to bring the bond issue to a vote. The process entails that the petitioners have 20 percent of the city's voters on the petition by Oct. 21, and present the petition to the city clerk by that date. The most recent statement of registration of city voters, dated May 17, 1983, showed that there were 1,729 registered voters in the city, and 20 percent of that figure would be 346 voters. One of the people circulating the petition said there were six to eight people circulating the petition, and she thought the group would be "darn close" to getting the signatures needed on the petition to bring the revenue bond issue to a vote.

Garnett High School homecoming ended Friday with the crowning of the Homecoming King and Queen and the Garnett-Gardner football game, and the day was packed with activities at the high school and in the downtown area.

A statement by commissioners: The questions have been frequently asked: What plans have the commissioners for a greater water supply? Where do they intend to spend the money, if the bonds are voted? With your permission, we will give to the public the results of our investigations, and the plan we have adopted, and which we believe to be the most efficient and least expensive to secure permanent results. Everyone realizes that our city should have a more ample water supply; that we should prepare enough water to carry us through any such dry season as this one has been without being compelled to conserve on every possible point. Our city not only loses in revenue by the cutting off of water consumption, but also loses in attraction to investors, so long as the water supply does not answer all present purposes in both wet and dry times. We know there are many ideas as to how to procure an abundance of water for Garnett. Your commissioners have not ignored these different ideas. There are but two principal plans for water supply. One is by wells, and the other is surface water conserved. There are some who believe that plenty of water can be had by digging a few large wells in the Pottawatomie valley, either east or southeast of town, where there is claimed to be sheet water. Now, we find by talking with a number of farmers who live along the Pottawatomie valley that their wells, while sufficient for farm use, are far inadequate for our city supply. There are very few, if any, wells in this valley that cannot be dipped or pumped dry in a very short time, and are capable of producing from 1,000 to 5,000 gallons per day. This town, with the railroad disconnected and the ice plant using about half what they have used, requires a supply of 150,000 to 200,000 gallons for each 24 hours.

the spire on the building from Highway 95. Inside you'll find a modern museum facility recounting the entire history of the U.S. Marine Corps, what it's like to arrive at basic training, and the history and traditions that make the Corps. It's a have-to visit for any former Jarhead or anybody who digs military history.

Anyway, a few ideas to get you through the cold winter to come and into the fun of spring behind it.

Dr. Samuel Pitchers Castoria

This past week while working at my dig site, I uncovered the side panel from one of Dr. Samuel Pitcher's old Castoria medicine bottles.

Here is a little bit of history about Dr. Pitcher and his early day medical discovery.

Samuel Pitcher, Jr. was born at Hyannis, Mass., on Oct. 23, 1824. His great grandfather, Joseph Pitcher, had moved there from Scituate in the 1700's and resided near the road now named Pitchers Way. His father, Deacon Samuel Pitcher, was a founding member of the Universalist Society of Hyannis in the 1820's. Young Samuel began his medical career as a perceptive of Dr. S.C. Ames in Lowell, Mass. Formal studies followed at the Philadelphia College of medicine during 1847-48 and the Harvard Medical School in 1850. Returning to Cape Cod, he began a general prac-

Dr. Samuel Pitcher expired suddenly from a heart attack at Ormond, Florida, on 22 Feb. 1907. His body was buried in Hyannis's Oak Grove Cemetery. Hannah Pitcher lived until 4 May 1914, when she died at the age of 91 and was laid to rest beside him.

The following inscription appears on a Cape Cod boulder which marks their graves. "We leave this realm and straightway enter other mansions of the King."

on 30 March 1846. Their adopted daughter Ida, became the wife of Captain John H. Frost of Hyannis.

Dr. Pitcher ignored many conventionalities of health, and without coat or hat and in slippers in the coldest weather, it was not uncommon to see him about his place or calling upon a neighbor at 82 years of age.

in my opinion whether at hotels or restaurants wasn't as good as in New York. Barb and I actually spent our honeymoon here and went back with some friends years later, but our kids had never seen DC except on TV. One tip: spend the extra few bucks and take a bus tour first, then decide how you want to prioritize your stops based on that quick once-over. You can spend days doing the Smithsonian alone, so budget your time. Start early and wear comfortable shoes. The National Mall where all the cool stuff is or is near, is pretty flat but it's more than two miles from the capital building to Arlington National Cemetery and 24 million tourists walk it every year. This is a trip you should definitely take with your kids, preferably when they're old enough to appreciate what they're seeing. We plan to take our kids back in a few years when maybe seeing the Declaration of Independence will be a little more impressive.

Third: Go to Virginia Beach, Va. It's like Branson with saltwater and no country music. Like any tourist area the hotels again are pretty steep, but you get to see FA18 jet fighters streaking up the beach every now and then, and the beach is really awesome. We were there during a tropical storm which lifted the day we left, of course, but in June it was still warm enough to walk in the rain on the beach and the boardwalk running down the beach is pretty cool.

Fun Fact: Seal Team 6, credited with wacking Osama bin Laden, is based out of Virginia Beach.

And just up the road from Va. Beach is Quantico, where the Marine Corps was kind enough to train me for a couple of summers in the Office Candidate School. Now they've built an awesome National Marine Corps Museum just south of the main base entrance. It's not very well promoted but you can see the spire on the building from Highway 95. Inside you'll find a modern museum facility recounting the entire history of the U.S. Marine Corps, what it's like to arrive at basic training, and the history and traditions that make the Corps. It's a have-to visit for any former Jarhead or anybody who digs military history.

October is National 4-H month and 4-H week is celebrated Oct. 6-12. It is an out-of-school volunteer-led family-oriented program, an educational program conducted through the Kansas State University Extension Service, and is a powerful leader in the development of positive and responsible youth. 4-H focuses on these life skills-a positive self-concept, an inquiring mind, a concern for the community, healthy inter-personal relationships and sound decision-making skills.

Anyone interested in join-

The Wood Shed

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 10-01-2013 / Photo Submitted

This booth for The Wood Shed was displayed at the Colony Day celebration by Angie and Seth Black.

Couple makes wood creations

This booth for The Wood Shed was displayed at the Colony Day Celebration and Kincaid Fair by Angie and Seth Black. Violet Holt, Lone Elm, placed some of her sewing items in the booth also. Larger items are made from reclaimed barn wood for specific purposes such as potting stations and dry sinks by Seth.

From reclaimed items such as old windows, doors and tables, Angie constructs small items which she personalizes. The Blacks sell from their home, making the items in their garage. They have a facebook page "The Wood Shed", their phone no. is 620-757-6782.

Projects began with personal types of craft items, then making bigger ones and it snowballed from there. Angie has made shelving units, coffee table-shadow boxes, wreaths and anything decorative for the home. She makes special order things also. They will be attending the Chanute Artist Alley, Burlington Fall Festival and Baldwin Maple Leaf.

Waterfowl hunters cautioned about blue-green algae

TOPEKA - The Kansas Department of Health and Environment (KDHE) and the Kansas Department of Wildlife, Parks and Tourism (KDWP) urge waterfowl hunters who use dogs to be vigilant for the presence of harmful blue-green algae. Dogs that swim in or drink water affected by a harmful algae bloom (HAB) or eat dried algae along the shore may become seriously ill or die.

Blue-green algae are really a type of bacteria called "cyanobacteria," which occurs naturally in all of our waters. Under the right conditions, the algae can rapidly increase (bloom) and produce toxins. HABs typically begin in May and can occur through October or later. They generally coincide with longer days and warm water temperatures and often flourish in nutrient-laden waters. However, dead algae can wash up on shorelines and in marshy areas and persist for long periods - posing a risk to dogs that eat or drink the algae or ingest it while licking their fur. A HAB may look like foam, scum or paint floating on the water and be colored blue, bright green, brown or red. Blooms can develop rapidly; if the water appears suspicious or there is decaying algae on the shore, avoid contact and keep dogs away.

Dogs are usually exposed to the toxins by drinking the HAB-affected water. However, they may still be exposed if they walk on, roll in or eat decaying algae along the shore or retrieve a bird with algae on its feathers.

The signs of illness in dogs usually occur within 30 minutes of exposure and include vomiting, diarrhea, lethargy, convulsions, difficulty breathing and general weakness.

If your dog has ingested algae, or has any of these signs after exposure, contact your veterinarian immediately as HAB poisoning can quickly lead to death.

People may also become ill after contact with a HAB. Symptoms vary depending upon the type of exposure (e.g. direct contact, ingestion, inhalation) but can include rash, vomiting, diarrhea, fever, sore throat, and headache. If you, or your dog, come into contact with algae rinse the area with clean, fresh water.

KDHE samples publicly-accessible bodies of water for cyanobacteria when the agency is alerted to a potential HAB. When a HAB is present, KDHE, in cooperation with KDWP and other lake managers where appropriate, responds by informing the public of these conditions. KDHE does not sample private bodies of water such as farm ponds or livestock watering tanks.

Receive up-to-date lake conditions at this Toll Free Number: 1-855-HAB-LAKE (1-855-422-5253).

For information on blue-green algae and reporting potential harmful algal blooms or to report a possible animal exposure, go to: http://www.kdheks.gov/algae-illness/algae_advisories.htm.
