Seat belt crackdown

High schools will be focus of seat belt enforcement effort

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Local cops are poised to start a crack-down on high school drivers to make sure they're wearing their seat belts.

A special enforcement effort between Feb. 24 and March 7 in Anderson County will target local high schools before and after school. Officers will look for people who are not wearing seat belts and will issue citations that could cost between $10 and $152, Anderson County Sheriff Vernon Valentine said.

Police plan bike rodeo

Voluntary bike registry could help police find owners of lost bikes

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — City commissioner Preston Peine remembers when he was a young boy and his bicycle kept disappearing off the front porch. Usually, he would find the bike nearby and speculated that someone took it for a brief joyride. He had to start locking up his bike after awhile.

He also remembers how Garnett police at the time helped him and other young bike owners. They had a bike rodeo and

2-year highway project ahead

Traffic between Welda, Garnett will be closed or reduced in 2017

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

WELDA — A major highway closing on U.S. Highway 169 between Garnett and Welda will be the subject of an open house event sponsored by KDOT Feb. 27, in hopes of educating local drivers early about what will be a major change in local driving that will last for two years.

The project will improve a dangerous stretch of highway between Welda and the U.S. 59 junction at the Kincaid turn-off from U.S. 169. The project will widen highway shoulders Welda, flatten the roadway and improve intersections and overall safety along the stretch. Its slated to begin in 2017 and will last through 2019.

An open house planned for 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 27, at the Welda Community Center will allow residents and others to learn more about the Kansas Department of Transportation's plans for the project. No formal presentation is planned, so the public can stop by at anytime during the open house to review project maps and displays. KDOT staff will be on hand to provide information, answer questions and receive comments.

Construction is expected to start in the spring of 2017

City bumps up guest tax

Tourism could get boost as guest tax increases to 5 percent in July

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Visitors who stay in motels, hotels and bed-and-breakfast facilities in Garnett are going to have to pay more for the privilege — less than a dollar per night — after city leaders agreed to a 66 percent increase of a guest tax that funds local tourism.

In a rare split vote, city commissioners voted 2-1 to increase the transient guest tax from 4 percent to 5 percent. The city's tourism committee had asked for the increase as a way to increase the amount of money the city uses to promote events and activities. By increasing the tax, tourism supporters also will be able to consider new ways to use the money, such as helping organizers launch a new event.

The transient guest tax funds are collected by hotels, motels and bed-and-breakfast facilities. People who rent a room are charged the extra fee, which goes to the city for use in promoting tourism. In theory, tourism leaders use the tax to promote events to bring more visitors to the city, which translates to more rooms rented and more money collected to promote the events.

distributed a tag that would identify the bike if it was stolen.

"The main thing I remember is getting to meet the officers," Peine said of the event. "When you're this tall and the officers are joking around with you, it's a big deal."

Garnett police officers plan to bring a bike rodeo and bicycle identification program back to town. The event is in its earliest stages, so there are few details about how the program will be organized or even when and where it will be located. But police officer Jason Sumner said he and Chief Kevin Pekarek have been looking at community policing options, and decided a bicycle program to help youth would benefit people the most, he said during a presentation to city commissioners Tuesday, Feb. 11.

Commissioners and city staff expressed support for the program. Commissioner Gordon Blackie, who recently criticized the police department for having "an image problem" but wouldn't go into details about those problems, said he thought the bicycle program could go a long way to "build bridges with kids and make friends."

Sumner said the police department frequently recovers bicycles that were lost, stolen or taken for "joyrides" like the bikes from Peine's youth. But once those bikes are recovered, it can be difficult to find the proper owner. The police officers plan to organize some sort of voluntary registry that would allow them to easily track the owners of a bike when it is found by police.

Police likely will launch the registry during a bike rodeo, an event that teaches safety using various activities. Children ride their bikes through a series of obstacles to test balance. Officers teach kids how to obey traffic signals and other "rules of the road." Police also could check helmets or offer helmets for sale.

Peine suggested Sumner contact a local insurance company that has sponsored bike rodeos in the past. Organizers of those past events could offer suggestions or may want to help sponsor the event, he said.

would much rather use that money for gas than give it to the cops," Valentine said. "So please, buckle up."

The enforcement effort is part of the Kansas Department of Transportation's traffic safety program, SAFE (Seat Belts Are For Everyone).

KDOT statistics show that 43 children between ages 13 and 19 lost their lives in vehicle accidents in 2012, and 74 percent of them were not wearing seatbelts.

Law enforcement and SAFE teamed up in 2013 with the goal of reducing that number. In 2013, 33 teens were killed in car wrecks, and of those 57 percent were unrestrained. All but one of those 57 percent were ejected from the vehicle.

City wants to fix parking lot problem

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - A busy parking lot that spans an alley has provoked complaints from area residents, and city leaders plan to step in to solve the problem using a secret weapon: Paint.

A parking lot at Short Stop on U.S. 59 spans an alley between Fourth and Fifth avenues. Because of the way the lot crosses the alley, it appears to many motorists as if the alley is part of the lot. Delivery drivers and patrons of the business frequently park in ways that block the west side of the alley.

That poses a problem for residents who live in the area and use the alley. The alley is marked as one-way, forcing traffic to exit to the west. But when cars and trucks block the west exit, residents have no choice but to head east and break the city's traffic laws.

The building was built several years ago as a convenience store and fueling station, and featured a fast food drive-through on the east side. Because the drive-through funneled traffic into the alley, city leaders restricted traffic to one-way to avoid having business traffic drive through a residential alley.

An easy solution would be to lift the one-way restriction because the drive-through is not used by the building's current occupants, Commissioner Gordon Blackie said.

But Mayor Greg Gwin, who raised the issue after hearing from residents who live near the alley, said that would only create more problems. The residents like having the one-way alley because it continues to prevent large amounts of traffic from utilizing the residential alley. If Short Stop customers were able to use the alley as another exit, it could create safety issues and hazards, Gwin and City Manager Joyce Martin said.

"With all the traffic that goes to Short Stop, I imagine a great deal of them would try to go east," Martin said. "There are five houses right in this area, so it could be a problem for them."

Instead, Gwin suggested city street crews use paint to better mark the alley so customers know it's not part of the parking lot. He also suggested attaching a sign to a pole near the highway to let people know not to block the alley.

Martin said she planned to talk to the business owners to see if they could do anything to further alleviate the problem.

Tax supporters say because the tax is assessed to visitors, some of the burden to promote tourism is kept off of local tax-paying residents. But Mayor Greg Gwin, who opposed raising the tax, said he objects to the city increasing a tax by 66 percent in less than a year. Commissioners in January 2013 approved increasing the tax from 3 percent to 4 percent. The change didn't take effect until July 1, which means the city has collected the tax for about six months before tourism leaders asked for another increase.

"I personally feel it's too much, too soon," Gwin said.

Susan Wettstein, city assistant administrator, gave a presentation about tourism activities and the transient guest tax during a late-January meeting. During the presentation, she and other tourism leaders said the increase would bring in an extra $5,000 that could be used to expand the services they now provide. They pointed to a recent request from the Anderson County Fair Board to help pay for a deposit to bring a carnival to the 2014 county fair. Commissioners scrambled to find money to meet the fair board's request; the process could have been much easier if they could have used transient guest tax money for the event, Wettstein said.

The money also could be used to help groups start new events, or provide matching funds for grants to improve tourism or arts. They pointed to efforts to bring a Grand Prix sports car rally to Garnett, an event that would bring in many out-of-town guests.

The money also could be used to improve infrastructure, such as extending utilities to a park for a special event, Wettstein said.

In the end, Commissioners Preston Peine and Gordon Blackie voted to approve the increase, with Gwin voting against it.

From Russia with ...eww

I'm a little excited for the end of the Winter Olympics in Sochi, Russia, because I'm interested to hear more about stray dogs roaming the hotel hallways.

Welcome to Russia, comrade, and try not to leave any scraps on the room service tray outside your door.

I love Russia. Russia is like your brother-in-law who's bound and determined he can rebuild the transmission in your car and then keeps it in his garage so long you just go ahead and buy another one. Russia is the neighbor kid who's convinced he can build his own space shuttle; the waitress who brings three drinks to your table with a great big smile and her fingers inside the glasses. Russia feels obligated to prove it's a member of the world stage but can't guarantee the footlights will work or anybody will be in the box office to sell tickets.

Which is why the first stories out of Sochi weren't about the amazing human interest stories behind the athletes. Instead they were about warnings from the front desk clerk that journalists in the hotels shouldn't wash their faces with the water coming out of the tap in the bathroom.

The most expensive Olympics preparation of all time – the Russians claim to have spent $51 billion preparing Sochi for 17 days in the world competitive spotlight – has yielded some of the most quintessentially Russian horror stories of any Olympics so far. Mitt Romney, who turned around the financially troubled organization that put on the 2002 Winter Olympics in Salt Lake City, is probably laughing so hard it's making his hair move.

It has to do with something central to Russian life, and that's the legacy of 80 years of communism; the theme that it's the government's job to do "it," but that really, "it" will probably never get done anyway.

I got to travel in Russia for 8 days back in 1993 (missed my flight out of Moscow, but that's a topic for another column) and I got to see first-hand some examples of how the rusted engine of Russian life works.

The one that stays with me the most is a highway traffic accident we passed on the highway between Moscow and Serpukhov. A vehicle was overturned on the far right of the three lanes, driver and passengers were sitting along the side of the highway clutching makeshift bandages to their heads, and the only people stopping to help so far were a couple of other motorists or the uninjured in either of the cars involved.

REVIEW COMMENTARY

Not an ambulance or fire truck in sight. I could tell by the distance the antifreeze and (gulp!) gasoline- from the vehicles had spread across the pavement, that this wreck hadn't just happened; these folks had been sitting here for quite some time. I asked my interpreter why there was no ambulance.

"Sometimes they come, sometimes they don't come," she replied matter-of-factly.

I reached down to click on my seat belt in our driver's Lada. There wasn't one.

It isn't that Russians don't care about each other. I found them personally to be very warm and caring people. But modern Russians spent most of their lives through the early 1990s being told the great benefactor of communism was taking care of all their needs, but still realizing they were going without. They grew up never really expecting more.

Except the crooks. Russian mobsters were the only ones who really ever understood capitalism, and when it began to seep into the country after the fall of communism, they were the ones on top. My bet is their pockets are where most of that $51 billion ended up.

So once out from under the public relations pressure of not angering their Russian hosts, I have a feeling the stories from journalists covering Sochi in the weeks after competitions end are going to be even more illuminating. Unfortunately the victims of the bad PR, as always, will be the Russian people.

Hi, there's something that I've noticed in the last few years about various colleges that offer our local high school athletes scholarships. When they do a picture in the paper for the signing of the letter of intent to go to that certain school, how come nobody from that college or university ever shows up anymore? This is a special moment for that player and that family and their high school, but I guess it's too much trouble from anybody from the college to come down to be involved in the event? Is this just a photo op to publicize the college, or do they really care that this young person is coming to their school to compete and hopefully do well academically? I for one think they could show a little more respect and send someone to at least stand there for a picture. Thank you.

Hey Garnett, hate to break it to you but there are other kinds of music besides country music. Why don't you have another kind of music at your thing for a change, like Raekwon or Easy-E or Heavy D? Let's put Jethro back on the tractor and send him home and rock the house. Thanks.

I wanted to say congratulations to QSI at Richmond on their recent expansion project. I think it's wonderful to see a local success story and a company that's growing and providing jobs instead of businesses that are declining. We're glad you are in our community.

I just wanted to say that officer Thompson is an incredible police officer and I'm really glad that he's on our police force and he helped us out a lot today.

What happened to wearing a suit and tie if you're an administrator – principal, superintendent, athletic director and so on? If you're an administrator you should wear a professional suit and tie. Also I'd like to comment on the corrections director wasting money in this district. It's taxpayers money and they should be aware of how much is being wasted.

Democrats: The Party of Less Work

The Democrats once styled themselves the party of workers. Now, they are the party of people who would have been workers, if it hadn't been for Obamacare.

The Congressional Budget Office released a new analysis of the economic effects of the health-care law that estimates that it will reduce the number of workers, in effect, by 2.5 million in 2024.

This unleashed a torrent of arguments from the Democrats implicitly denigrating the value of work. Perhaps not since Southern "fire-eaters" attacked Northern "wage slavery" in the mid-19th century has a good honest day's work been talked about so dismissively.

The old jobs crisis was people not having jobs; the new jobs crisis is people having to work. The party devoted to combating inequality is now blithely unconcerned about a law discouraging people -- especially people down the income scale -- from earning more. So much for its championing of economic mobility.

A few caveats are in order: We aren't talking about jobs that are eliminated in the usual sense of discouraging employers from hiring, as some Republican talking points suggested. And the 2.5 million number isn't for jobs per se, but for "full-time equivalent" positions, i.e., the cumulative lost hours of millions of people deciding to work less.

Nonetheless, the number is devastating.

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

RICH LOWRY, King Features Syndicate

Democrats want to pass it all off as ending the "job lock" that keeps people in a job only to preserve their health insurance. There is a little something to this, but it isn't the main problem. Obamacare has created a vast apparatus of subsidies, penalties and taxes that is effectively anti-work.

The CBO explains that Obamacare's subsidies, by giving people more resources, allow "some people to maintain the same standard of living while working less." And the way they phase out creates another disincentive, as "subsidies decline with rising income (and increase as income falls), thus making work less attractive." The penalties and taxes, meanwhile, "will ultimately induce some workers to supply less labor."

Democrats consider all this and pronounce themselves well-pleased. Rep. Mark Pocan, D-Wis., sees only upside in people working less: "What that means is instead they might be able to tuck their child in bed at night and read a bedtime story, or go to an activity, which means they're better off."

White House economic adviser Jason Furman made an inapt comparison. "Getting rid of Social Security and Medicare would cause more 95-year-olds to work," he said. "You wouldn't judge whether Social Security or Medicare are good or bad based on what they do to labor supply."

No, you wouldn't -- because they are programs for the elderly. Discouraging work among 95-year-olds is different than discouraging work among people in the prime of their lives. No one told us when the bill was being considered that Obamacare would have some of the same effects as a retirement program.

The latest CBO numbers are part of the growing list of facts about Obamacare that, if they had been widely acknowledged before its passage, would have doomed it in Congress. But that debate seems so long ago. It was back when both political parties professed to be pro-work.

Take your frustrations out on the 'refresh' button

There's a new pastime among Kansas Statehouse insiders—we're calling it "ReFresh Friday."

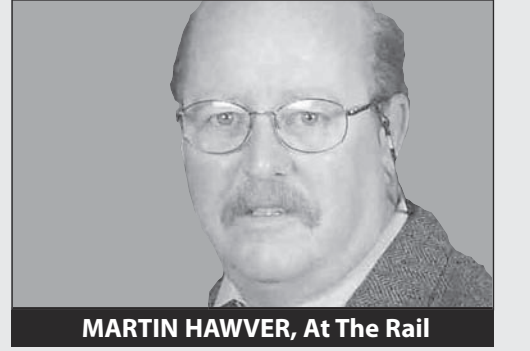

Huh? Yes, it's the act of hitting the refresh button on your computer to see whether the Kansas Supreme Court has issued at about 9:30 a.m. on any Friday, along with its other decisions, the Gannon v. Kansas school finance case decision.

Because the 9:30 a.m. release time is not precise (that's why you have to ReFresh the court website frequently, and we figured the odd capitalization might give someone an idea for a T-shirt plus ReFresh Friday makes a nice companion day to Throwback Thursday, the day you post old photos on social media), you hit the button over and over again to check.

Catching the first glimpse of the decision that might order the state to spend upwards of $440 million on school finance is something that will carry bragging rights...no matter which way the decision goes.

A decision that the state has under-funded its support for K-12 education sets off a battle between the Legislature, the governor and the courts over who is responsible for financing education and whether the court can order the state to actually pay a judgment handed down by the court. It gets into tricky constitutional law, whether the Supreme Court can order the Legislature to make an appropriation.

STATE COMMENTARY

A "no-harm, no-foul" ruling? A possibility, too.

But the legislative anxiety over the decision—and being the first to know it—has apparently spurred a couple of bills that target the Kansas Supreme Court and specifically its Chief Justice Lawton Nuss for a trim of his authority.

One of those bills flatly orders that no court in Kansas can spend any money on hiring lobbyists. Not a lot of court-hired lobbyists around the Statehouse, lobbying, for, say, nicer robes, or maybe softer chairs, but it's a little tug on the leash for the Kansas judiciary.

Another takes from the chief justice the authority to designate the chief judge of each of the state's 31 judicial districts. That's a little perk of being chief justice, designating the district court chiefs. The bill would have the judges in each district vote among themselves for the job of being in charge, and making an extra $1,000 a year.

The bill would also have the 14-member Court of Appeals elect its own chief judge—just another diminution of the chief justice's authority that might lead to some interesting little campaigns that the general public will never hear about.

And, of course there are the resolutions that would let the governor choose his own Supreme Court justices without any nomination commission in the way...and another that would elect those justices.

Oh, and did we mention that the Supreme Court needs a little extra money in its budget to avoid furloughs for its non-judge staff?

Makes you wonder how hard some legislators are hitting that ReFresh button, doesn't it?

Case No. 13CV47
 Court No.

 Pursuant to K.S.A. §60

NOTICE OF SALE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that under and by virtue of an Order of Sale issued to me by the Clerk of the District Court of Anderson County, Kansas, the undersigned Sheriff of Anderson County, Kansas, will offer for sale at public auction and sell to the highest bidder for cash in hand at the West Side Entrance of the Anderson County Courthouse, Kansas, on February 26, 2014 at the time of 10:00 AM, the

Notice of appraisal market study results for 2014

(Published in The Anderson County Review, Tuesday, February 18, 2014)

Results of the Market Study Analysis for Anderson County For the Appraisal Year 2014

January 1, 2014
 Pursuant to L. 1991, ch 279

A study of the real estate market in Anderson County indicated that approximately 50 percent of the non-agricultural real properties in the county will trend upward in market value from 2013 to 2014. The average increase was less than two percent for residential properties and less than three percent for commercial properties. Forty-eight percent of the parcels will trend downward. The average decrease in value will be less than two percent for residential properties and less than three percent on commercial properties. The remaining two percent of the parcels will see no change in value. Values on specific properties change because of corrections of descriptive information based on field visits by the appraiser's office, from calibration of residential values based on comparable sales of similar properties in the county, recalibration of the county's cost tables for both residential and commercial properties or from changes to the income and expense tables for commercial properties.

In accordance with the provisions in K.S.A. 79-1476, the Property Valuation Department (PVD), Kansas Department of Revenue is required annually to furnish each county the results of its study relating to changes, if any, to the use value of agricultural land. Changes can and do occur as a result of several factors including cropping practices, commodity prices and production costs. Based on the values per acre provided by PVD the value of cropland in Anderson County will typically increase between; 13% to 20% depending on the soil type. Both pastureland and tame grass values on the average will decline between; 5% to 12%. Overall 60 percent of the agricultural parcels will see value increases from 2013 to 2014 while 40 percent will either decline or stay the same.

A Brief History of the National FFA Organization

The passage of the Smith-Hughes Vocational Education Act in 1917 not only provided federal funds to states for high school courses in vocational education (agriculture, family and consumer sciences, and trades and industries) – but it also led to the idea for an organization that is known today as the National FFA Organization. In the early 1920s, just a few years after the Smith-Hughes Act was enacted, Virginia formed a Future Farmers of Virginia club for boys in agriculture classes. Other states soon followed Virginia's lead and formed their own Future Farmers organizations. The next logical next step was to create a national organization to bring together all of the state organizations.

In 1928, a group of vocational agriculture students were in Kansas City, Mo., for the third annual National Congress of Vocational Agriculture Students, which was held during the American Royal Livestock and Horse Show. On Nov. 20, 33 of those students from 18 states met at the Baltimore Hotel in Kansas City and formed the Future Farmers of America (FFA).

FFA was for young men who were studying vocational agriculture in public secondary schools, and the new organization was designed to develop agricultural leadership, character, thrift, scholarship, cooperation, citizenship and patriotism.

The organization was structured on three levels – local, state and national – with students starting their FFA experience by joining a local chapter at their school, where the agriculture teacher serves as the chapter advisor. As part of the larger program that is now called agricultural education, FFA members are encouraged to participate in all three components of the program: (1) classroom/laboratory work (through enrollment in agriculture classes); (2) membership in FFA; and (3) hands-on work experience through the supervised agricultural experience

(SAE) program.

Each FFA chapter develops and follows an annual program of activities, and all members share in planning the program and participate in its execution. Through their participation, members learn how to take part in meetings, follow parliamentary procedure, speak in public and cooperate with their fellow students.

Student officers are elected on each level to lead the organization's activities, and FFA members receive recognition for their achievements through competition and award programs. The annual national convention offers FFA members an opportunity to come together from across the country and celebrate their accomplishments over the past year.

By 1935, FFA membership had topped 100,000 with more than 3,900 chapters in 47 states, Hawaii and Puerto Rico. That same year, the New Farmers of America was established to provide leadership opportunities to African-American students enrolled in vocational education classes.

Land was purchased in Alexandria, Va., for the National FFA Headquarters in 1939, and in 1944, the National FFA Foundation was created to raise funds from business and industry to help support the many new programs being developed for the growing FFA membership. In 1950, Public Law 740 was passed by the U.S. Congress, granting FFA a federal charter and requiring that a U.S. Department of Education staff member be the national FFA advisor.

FFA membership took a leap in 1965 when 58,000 members of the New Farmers of America merged with the Future Farmers of America. This followed an act of Congress that prohibited segregation in public schools. Four years later, delegates at the 1969 National FFA Convention voted to allow women to be members of the FFA.

In 1976, Alaska became the 50th state to obtain a state charter. An all-time membership high was recorded in 1977, with 509,735 members in 8,148 chapters in all 50 states, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

By the 1980s, the Future Farmers of America had become more than an organization for rural farm students. In 1988, the delegates at the 61st National FFA Convention voted to change the organization's official name from Future Farmers of America to the National FFA Organization. This change was made to recognize that FFA is not only for those interested in farming, but it is also for those with more diverse interests in the industry of agriculture, encompassing science, business and technology in addition to production farming.

The late 1990s marked a period of location changes for the National FFA Organization. The National FFA Center was moved from Alexandria, Va., to Indianapolis, Ind., where a new building was dedicated on July 20, 1998. And after 70 years in the same city, the national FFA convention was held for the last time in Kansas City, Mo., in 1998. The 72nd National FFA Convention in 1999 moved to Louisville, Ky., where it remained for seven years; in 2006, the national FFA convention moved to Indianapolis. Attendance at the national convention reached an all-time high in 2008 when 54,731 FFA members, advisors and supporters came to Indianapolis for the 81st National FFA Convention. Over the years, FFA has shown the value it places on service to country and community. This was never more evident than in 2005. Following Hurricane Katrina, the National FFA Organization raised more than $835,000 through their Seeds of Hope campaign to help FFA members, chapters and agricultural education facilities affected by the hurricane.

Today, the National FFA Organization is a premier youth leadership organization with 507,753 members in 7,439 chapters in all 50 states, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. The FFA mission is to make a positive difference in the lives of students by developing their potential for premier leadership, personal growth and career success through agricultural education.

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 02-18-2014 / Kevin Gaines

Central Heights' Tanner Erhart had 19 points in the Vikings' 38-22 win over Iola Friday night. The Vikings and other local teams have another week on the regular game schedule before starting sub-state tournament play the first week of March.

Viking defense shuts down Iola

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

The Central Heights Viking boys' defense completely dominated the Iola Mustangs in an impressive 38-22 victory Friday night at home.

The Vikings took advantage of early struggles offensively by Iola to jump out to a 12-6 lead after the first quarter.

An 8-2 run keyed by back to back three-pointers in less than a minute by Central Heights to begin the second quarter seemed to deflate Iola. Halfway through the second quarter the Vikings led 20-8. By the end of the period, the score was 23-12.

"Defensively we were really good. We had a look in our eyes that we haven't had all year," Coach Randy Cannady said. "They were together from the tip. They sat down and guarded as well as I have seen."

Coming out of halftime, Iola needed to make a run to get back into the game. The Vikings quickly squashed any ideas of losing the game as they scored the first 11 points of the third quarter to put the Mustangs away. In fact, Iola didn't even get on the board in the third until the final minute of the period.

"We were excellent on defense in the third quarter. You know things are going good when you catch yourself watching kids play instead of coaching them," a happy Cannady said. With the Vikings protecting a lead, the pace really slowed in the fourth quarter. Iola scored 7 points and held the Vikings to just 4.

Following the impressive win, Cannady had this to say about his team. "We couldn't be more proud of our kids. We are proud coaches tonight."

Leading the way for Central Heights offense was Tanner Erhart with 19 points.

Box Score
Iola (22) - Latta 5, Wallace 4, Endicott 4, McIntosh 4, Kauth 4, Peterson 1
Central Heights (38) - Davis 9, M. Brown 3, Horstick 4, Pryor 2, Erhart 19, Hendron 1

Iola knocks off Viking girls 41-33

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

On Friday night at home, the Central Height Viking girls' came up on the wrong end of a 41-33 defeat at the hands of the Iola Fillies.

In the first quarter the teams exchanged baskets and saw the score knotted up at 9 at the end of the period.

Iola created a little breathing room in the second quarter as they clamped down defensively holding the Vikings to just 4 points as they opened up a 19-13 lead at intermission.

To begin the third quarter, Central Heights did just what they needed to do. Just over 2 minutes into the third quarter, the Vikings cut the lead to 19-17. Iola then showed great resiliency as they countered the Viking run by scoring 7 straight in less than a minute to push the lead to 26-17. Heading into the fourth, the score was 30-21. The Vikings outscored the Fillies 12-11 in the fourth quarter to hang on for the victory.

Central Heights was led by Mayer with 13 points.

Box Score
Iola (41) - Wade 11, Piazza 2, Lohman 2, Haar 18, Driskel 4, Macha 4
Central Heights (33) - Erhart 6, Kraus 2, Schaefer 2, Markley 8, Mayer 13 Hayward 2

Bulldog girls fall to Wellsville

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

The third time was a charm for the Wellsville Eagle girls as they figured out a way to knock off the AC girls for the first time in three tries this season, winning the game 41-32.

The Bulldogs and Eagles played a competitive, back and forth, first half of basketball.

Wellsville led 10-8 after the first before the Bulldogs responded in the second quarter outscoring the Eagles 12-8 to take a slim 20-18 lead into intermission.

Wellsville took control coming out of the locker room and took a 33-29 heading into the fourth quarter.

With the game still well within reach, the AC girls went ice cold in the fourth quarter only connecting for 3 points. The Eagles pulled away slightly as they scored 8 in the final period for the victory.

Box Score
ACHS (32) - Scheckel 11, Lutz 6, Jirak 5, McCullough 5, Rockers 5
Wellsville (41) - Kayhill 15, Newhouse 8, Sparks 6, Graniewski 6, Patton 4, Geist 2

Crest boys drop 4th straight

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

The Crest boys have had a tough last week and a half as they are needing a confidence boost following their recent losing streak, including a 72-57 loss Friday night at home to Oswego.

Poor first quarters have been a problem during their recent skid and the game against Oswego wasn't any different as they saw themselves looking at a 15-6 deficit after the first.

Both teams picked it up offensively in the second. Oswego was able to extend their lead by outscoring the Lancers 22-18 in the period.

After another solid third quarter that saw Oswego outscore Crest 20-17, the Lancers saw themselves in a 57-41 hole heading into the fourth quarter.

The two teams played an even fourth with Crest slightly outscoring Oswego just 16-15.

Four players hit double figures for the Lancers, led by Hunter Frazell with 14 points.

Box Score
Oswego (72) - Eckermann 12, Oldham 15, B. Yeohman 8, K. Yeohman 17, Kirkpatrick 2, Schenker 16, Williamson 2
Crest (57) - Frazell 14, Green 11, Godderz 1, Stephens 10, Davis 2, Ellis 11

Slow start dooms Crest boys against Olpe

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

In a 56-40 loss to the Olpe Eagles, any chance the Lancers had at pulling off the upset was made incredibly difficult following a first quarter dominated by Olpe, 16-3.

In a back and forth second quarter, Crest and Olpe both scored 14 points to make the score 30-17 heading into intermission.

The Lancers started out well in the third period, cutting the lead to as little as 8 at one point before the Eagles responded and pushed their lead back up to 12 heading into the fourth. Crest outscored Olpe 17-16 in the period.

Crest just couldn't make a run in the fourth quarter. Olpe only scored 10 points, but Crest responded with just 6 of their own.

Olpe improved to 14-2 with the victory and Crest dropped to 6-7 following the loss.

Leading the way for Crest was Hunter Frazell with 16 points.

Box Score
Olpe (56) - Krueger 16, Cole 15, Smith 12, Redeker 4, Stout 4, Scheidegger 3, Hall 2
Colony (40) - Frazell 16, Green 7, Ellis 7, Davis 5, Stephens 3, Brallier 2

Wellsville downs ACHS boys 60-46

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

Tuesday night, for the second time in less than a week, the Wellsville Eagles had the Bulldogs' number as they cruised to a 60-46 victory.

After losing just last Thursday to Wellsville 86-63, the Bulldogs knew they would need to tighten up their defense and play great offensively to pull off the upset.

Unfortunately the struggles continued for the AC boys. Wellsville had a 13-9 lead after the first quarter and expanded that lead to 29-19 at the break.

Any hopes of a comeback for the Bulldogs were quickly put to rest as the Eagles put their best quarter offensively together in the third quarter. Wellsville outscored AC 20-11 in the period. Facing a 49-30 deficit heading into the fourth, the Bulldogs outscored the Eagles 16-11 in the final period.

Leading the way for the Bulldogs was Spencer Walter who had 13 and Tyler Woodard with 11.

Box Score
Wellsville (60) - Breithaupt 2, Silsby 13, Gretencord 2, Smith 2, Kearney 18, Mann 13, Meyer 4, Klamm 6
ACHS (46) - Woodard 11, Lickteig 6, Ratiiff 1, Hilliard 2, Comfort 5, Small 6, Walter 13, Nelson 2

Chamber Players offer 'Dixie Swim Club'

"The Dixie Swim Club" will open at the Thelma Moore Community Playhouse on Thursday, Feb. 27 until March 2 and continue March 6-9. This is the third dinner theatre comedy in the Chamber Players' 23rd season.

Written by the team of Jessie Jones, Nicholas Hope, and Jamie Wooten, it's the hilarious and touching story of five women who first met as teammates on their college swim team. Every August since graduation, they've gathered at the same beach cottage on the Outer Banks of North Carolina with three simple rules: "No men, no kids, no work!"

The team is introduced in their mid-40's: the team captain, the nun, the man-chaser, the lawyer and the hard-luck school teacher. Over 4 weekends spanning 30 years, their outrageous personalities and fierce loyalty get them through the challenges of men, children, and aging with southern flair and an endless supply of martinis. For every curve that life throws their way, the team provides a hearty laugh, some southern-fried wisdom and a collection of strong shoulders. Melissa Story of Ottawa makes her Chamber Players debut alongside four of the most experienced actresses on the Garnett stage: Denise Scheibmeir, Allison Russell, Karen Katzer and Shauna Devening. Tom Emerson, Jr. and David Carr direct the play. Catering is by L & M Catering of Garnett. The meal is a mixed greens salad, oven-baked chicken quarters, mashed potatoes and chicken gravy, corn and southern style buttered biscuits.

Tickets go on sale Monday, Feb. 17. Advanced reservations are required and can be made by phone, (785) 304-1683, or email (chamberplayersgarnett@gmail.com). Tickets may also be purchased in person at the theatre during box office hours from 4-6 p.m. Feb. 17-21. Tickets cost $22 each for adults and $17 for students in high school or younger. Performances begin with dinner at 6:30 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and begin with lunch at 12:30 p.m. on Sundays.

The Chamber Players are a non-profit theatre company located in the Thelma Moore Community Playhouse at 140 W. 5th Ave. in Garnett. Visit their website at www.TheChamberPlayers.org.

The color of selling

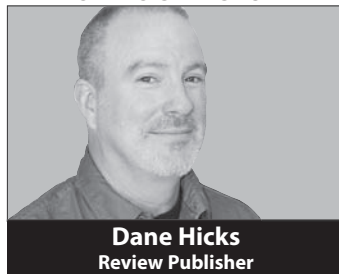

When I was a kid, my dad had a top water bass lure about the size of a pill bottle that was colored with the old red and white Budweiser can design. I inherited it and from time to time I put it on my line if nothing else is working.

It never worked, but the double treble hooks are good for clearing pond weeds and moss. Clearly the color of that lure was designed to hook my dad, not a fish. In that respect it was a huge success.

And scientists and media researchers tell us colors really do make a difference when we buy things. So naturally, it should play into your plans when selling things.

In the same way a fish associates certain colors and hues with food, we associate certain colors with things like comfort, satisfaction, action, etc. Those can be important pieces of information when designing product displays for your business, packaging - even a logo design and interior retail area design.

HOW TO SELL STUFF

Dane Hicks
Review Publisher

Studies say as much as 85% of shoppers list color as a prime reason they bought a certain product. Consumers place visual appearance and color - at 93% - above factors like sound, smell or texture when shopping for new products.

Keep these color tips in mind:

- Yellow: It's upbeat and exudes youth; effective in window displays for its sense of vibrancy.
- Black: It's the color of luxury; conveys power and sleekness. Think of a sports car and you naturally think of red or black.
- Red: Conveys energy and literally increases heart rate in people when tested. Use it in clearance sales to communicate urgency.

• Pink: Obviously feminine, hints at romance. Pink is the color that talks to women and young girls.

• Blue: Demonstrates trust and security - look how many bank logos and motifs you see in blue.

• Green: Analogous in the mind to wealth, it is the color the human eye processes fastest. Conveys relaxation and contemplation.

Tip: The human eyes' most recognizable color combination is not black on white; it's black on yellow.

Color fact: Shoppers in one study spent about 50% more on televisions that were posed in front of a blue display; in front of a red display, twice as many postponed their purchase.

2004: Geese shut down airport

Feb. 17, 2004

Losing last week's basketball game to Gardner was bad enough, but the ACHS team returned to the locker room after the loss to find pilfered belongings and more than $300 in cash missing. The thief apparently gained access through one of two doors to the visitor's locker room at Gardner-Edgerton High School. The Gardner principal sent a letter apologizing for the situation and commending the conduct of the Anderson County players and coaches, saying "Even though they were frustrated and angered from the loss of their personal items, they remained respectful and cooperative throughout the time the SRO was completing the individual reports."

Safety concerns over a flock of geese prompted the closing of Garnett's airport last Wednesday morning. The airport manager first noticed several thousand of the birds leaving the vicinity of the airport Tuesday evening, but since they were leaving he didn't give it much thought. But the birds returned Wednesday morning, landing on property just south of the airport. They were in a location where they could have interfered with airplanes on approach and take off, posing a serious safety threat if they collided with a plane. Police used a shotgun to scare the birds away, but were not certain if they would be able to scare the geese away permanently.

Feb. 26, 1994

State funding amounting to $200,000 for the Prairie Spirit Rail Trail was approved by the Kansas House of Representatives Appropriations Committee Monday - with a few strings attached. The money, which will be part of the Kansas Department of Wildlife and Parks budget, will go before the full House for approval. KDWP originally proposed a $75,000 line item in its 1994 budget that would be used for the trail and would be used as match money for a $1.375 million federal grant. Without the $275,000, the federal grant would not be approved. The money was cut last year, but if it is approved by the house and senate, it stands a good chance of being reinstated in the state budget.

If your computer suddenly blinked off in the middle of that huge spreadsheet or your television went black at that pivotal point of the Oprah Winfrey show Monday afternoon, then you already know all too well that the power was off for at least a short period of time. You can thank a backhoe owned by the contractor working at the city water plant for the power outage. The backhoe dug up control cables at the substation.

Feb. 16, 1984

There have been conflicting reports about the association of the sponsors of a meeting held last Friday, though proposal presented at the meeting stated the purpose was to help farmers in financial trouble. People in attendance stated that the National Agricultural Press Association, or NAPA, was involved in the meeting. Law enforcement sources say NAPA was a newspaper public relations arm of the Posse Comitatus organization, which is a far right social movement that opposes the federal government. People at the meeting said one lady mentioned a method to harass bankers by calling their wives, then stating that they had been told by the banker that this was a good time to catch him at home alone.

A $243,234 proposal for an elevator and fire alarm system for the Anderson County Courthouse was presented by the architect to the Anderson County Commission. The proposal would build an elevator in the courthouse without undue disturbance of existing structures.

Feb. 18, 1914

Our Lone Elm correspondent sends the following account of a distressing accident: "Saturday, Eugene Bibens, aged 9 years, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Bibens, who live three miles south and a half a mile west of the place, was out with his sister, playing at hunting in the snow, when they came upon which they supposed to be a brush pile, and thinking to frighten any hiding rabbits from cover, they jumped upon it, when to their horror, the brush gave way and the little boy fell into an old well consisting eight feet of water, where he drowned before anyone could come to his assistance, although his sister, aged 10, made all possible haste after extricating herself, for she nearly shared her brother's fate."

Rosary ring unearthed in 2007

Is this artifact rare? Perhaps, but I believe it is a very unique discovery. I found it while metal detecting a lawn here in Garnett in 2007. At the time I dug it, I had no idea as to what I had uncovered. After researching I have found out it is a "One-Decade Silver Hand Finger Rosary Chaplet Ring with Crucifix."

Single-Decade rosaries, also referred to as Chaplets, can also be used to pray the Rosary; the person who is praying counts the same ring of ten beads repeatedly for every decade. During religious conflict in 16th and 17th century Ireland severe legal penalties were prescribed against practicing Roman Catholics. Small easily hidden rosaries were thus used to avoid identification and become as "Irish Penal Rosaries". Sometimes rather than a cross, other symbols of specific meanings were used, such as a Hammer to signify the nails of the cross, Cords to represent the scourging, a Chalice to recall the Last Supper, or a crowing Rooster signifying the Resurrection of Christ.

DIGGING UP THE PAST

Henry Roeckers
Call (785) 448-6244 for local archeology information.

A rosary ring is a ring worn around the finger representing one decade of a rosary. These rosaries were given to some Catholic nuns at the time of their solemn profession. A finger rosary is similar to a ring, but is somewhat larger. Rosaries like these are used by either rotating or just holding them between a finger and thumb while praying. Small ring rosaries became known as "Soldiers Rosaries", because they were often carried into battle, most notably during World War I.

This ring rosary I found is known as a "Basque Rosary", it is a finger ring with eleven knobs on it, ten are round and one is a crucifix.

Creative Kids

Welcome to Review's annual Creative Kids creative writing and advertising design section. Each year we tap the resource of local school students' creativity in the 4th, 5th and 6th grades. Students can write on any topic they choose in any format; area advertising clients also participate by sponsoring space and selecting from among competing ad designs the ads you see here. The Review awards cash prizes of $25, $15 and $10 for 1st, 2nd and 3rd places in each grade, with additional top honorable mentions published here as well. Thanks to our advertising clients, participating teachers and our students for making our annual contest possible.

Mr. Quirin's sixth grade class at Garnett Elementary School won a pizza party for having the most ad design entries.

The Tricky Owl

Khloe Utley
Crest
4th Grade, Mrs. Jones

Once upon a time a princess got roused by her sister Midori. The princess got mad and slapped Midori. Midori started crying. The princess got in trouble and got grounded for a week. The princess got mad and ran upstairs to her room, climbed out of her window, and ran away from home.

She was in a dark forest and really scared. She heard a hooting sound and got frightened. The owl flew down and sat on her shoulder. Then the owl said something, but the princess couldn't tell what she said. "Gold sword, I said," said the owl.

"What do you mean?" said the princess.

"I mean there is a golden sword at the top of that mountain and my friend Bosco can't fly without that sword because Borne put a spell on him.

"Who's Borne?" asked the princess.

"Borne is a very mean eagle, and he put a spell on Bosco so now he can't fly until we get the sword." "Slow down now," said the princess. "If we get the so called gold sword your friend will be able to fly again?" "Exactly! Well then we better get going hadn't we?"

After a few days of climbing they got too tired and almost gave up. "Can we take a break?" said the princess. "No. We have to find that sword or else Bosco won't be able to fly anymore. Please don't give up now. You're about half way there."

Ugh. The princess sighed. "Do you see that cave at the top of the mountain?" said the owl. It was the brightest thing here. "Of course it is, the gold sword is in that cave."

"If I get the gold sword for you, can I keep it?" asked the princess.

"No because if you keep it Bosco can't fly," said the owl.

"Ok, so if we get the sword we have to bring it back to Bosco?" asked the princess. "Exactly!" said the owl. "Then why did I come all this way?" said the princess.

Back at the castle the mom and dad are worried sick about their little princess. "Hon, have you seen Monica?" asked the mom. "No I haven't see her in three days. I hope she is ok. She doesn't know anything about the outdoors," said the dad.

Princess Monica had been walking for four days and was very tired. They had found the sword and took it to Bosco when.... "Where is Bosco?" asked the princess. "He is at your castle," said the owl. "Why would he be at the castle?" said the princess. "Well, because he is a prince see, and the person that picks up the gold sword find their true love, and well, that was just a story made I made up to get you to come along," said the owl.

"So I came all this way for nothing?" asked the princess.

"Well, I wouldn't say for nothing, just yet," said the owl. "Why not?" said the princess.

"Well, because you have now found your true love," said the owl.

"And why do you say that?" asked the princess.

"Because you haven't seen Bosco. He is charming, and very polite, and sweet," said the owl.

"How am I supposed to believe you? Because you told me we were going to get the sword so Bosco could fly again, but it turns out he never flew in the past," said the princess.

"Well, your mom has known me ever since I was a baby because she took care of me, and she thought you were alone way too much," said the owl.

"Maybe I like to be alone. I bet you never thought of that," said the princess.

"I sort of did, but I thought it would be good to take a risk every now and then," said the owl.

"That's not the point. I don't like you busting into my business," said the princess.

"I am sorry for intruding," said the owl.

"Well you should be. Now I am going to meet this Bosco guy," said the princess.

"Wait for me! You're going too fast!" shouted the owl.

"Mom! Mom!, said Monica. Monica saw the prince and was amazed.

"Well hello there," said Bosco. "How are you doing?"

"I am doing good," said the princess. "Have you seen my mom around here? I can't find her anywhere."

"She is in the kitchen cooking dinner," said Bosco.

"I need to get her because now I have a messed up life because you are supposed to marry me!" said the princess.

"Is there something wrong with me? Is it my hair or my uniform?" said Bosco.

"No, silly. It's that I'm meant to be alone."

But in the end they got married and lived happily ever after.

Salem's Mysterious Opponent

April Pows
5th Grade
Westphalia Elementary, Mrs. Ball

BANG! Salem's stallion went wild at the sound of the gunshot. Salem held on for dear life as Artimes, Salem's 15 year old stallion, reeled on all fours and charged through the field. He had never done this before, this was the first time in 15 years he had ever gone wild at the sound of a gunshot. There was definitely no stopping him now.

Salem had to think fast if she were to stop Artimes from running into the neighbor's fence. She grabbed the noose in her messenger bag and quickly made a loop. Salem began to hear steady hoof beats behind her, Chris and Tony, her brothers, had come to help. Chris was beside her now.

"So what's the plan?" Chris yelled over the wind.

"I was going to put a couple of nooses around his neck and give them to you and Tony. When you two have a good hold on the ropes, I'll give you the signal to stop your horses and pull. How does that sound?" Salem remarked as the wind caused her eyes to water and burn.

"Great just as long as it stops Artimes," Chris replied. "Tony, give Salem your nooses." Chris barked as he handed over his own.

Salem tied the nooses onto Artimes's neck as fast as the adrenaline pulsing through her body could go. Finally she tied the last one. She breathed a sigh of relief as she threw the ropes to Tony and then to Chris.

"Tony, when I count to three, you pull and stop your horse," Chris barked, and of course, Salem could clearly see he was enjoying the authority greatly as his thirst for adventure took him over.

"One, two, three, PULL!" Chris commanded. He struggled to stop his horse as its hooves made deep ruts in the soft dirt. Tony was merely four feet behind Chris. At the sudden jolt, Artimes reeled as he let loose a noise Salem had never heard a horse make. It sounded like fear, anger, and sheer confusion all mixed up in one sound. After he seemed to settle down, he still had a strange and very wild look in his eyes.

After the sudden adventure, they all decided to go back to the things they were doing before the eerie gunshot. Salem could tell that Artimes had had enough excitement for one day. As he was walking him back to the stables, her coppery, dirty blond hair rippled slightly in the gentle breeze, a breath after destruction and turmoil.

"I wonder what the shooter and destination of that mysterious gunshot was and I wonder why it scared Artimes so much," Salem pondered.

While she was unsaddling Artimes, Salem noticed something in his eyes was different, like he knew something she didn't. "Maybe you can tell me about it," she thought. She looked deeper, perhaps he could give her a clue to the new development. She saw nothing but her own hazel eyes staring back at her clouded by his black ones.

BANG! Her ears pricked at the sound of the car door. "Dad's home!" she gasped. Her father had been gone on a "business trip" for the past month. Salem dashed across the yard toward the front door. She heard the greenhouse door slam as Tony and Chris left their job of fixing the water pipe.

"Is it him?" they shouted over the wind.

"Yeah, I know that car door anywhere," she replied as she turned and stopped to let them catch up with her. Chris' goldish blond hair looked ablaze as he ran while Tony's red tinted dark brown ear length hair flew gracefully atop his head.

They raced across the yard at what seemed at record speed. They charged their dad as he looked stunned at the speeding stampede of teens. At the last minute, he stepped to one side. Salem, as a result, tumbled onto the ground with Chris and Tony close behind her.

"Yikes, what a dog pile. Glad I wasn't part of that," he chuckled. "Now let's see if I can teach you how to know when someone is going to side step you."

"Uhhhh, Chris, get your elbow out of my mouth, and Tony your sitting on both of us," Salem's muffled voice groaned from beneath the pile.

"Oh my," their father gasped in astonishment, "Salem dear, are you down there?"

"Dad, I think she passed out," Chris mumbled through a mouth full of kicked up dirt.

"No, not yet, but I might if I don't get out from underneath you," she threatened.

"You know, I could do with a nice glass of lemonade," Tony remarked as he lay eagle-eyed on the top of the dog pile.

"Yeah, that does sound very appealing. What about you Salem?"

Chris questioned dreamily.

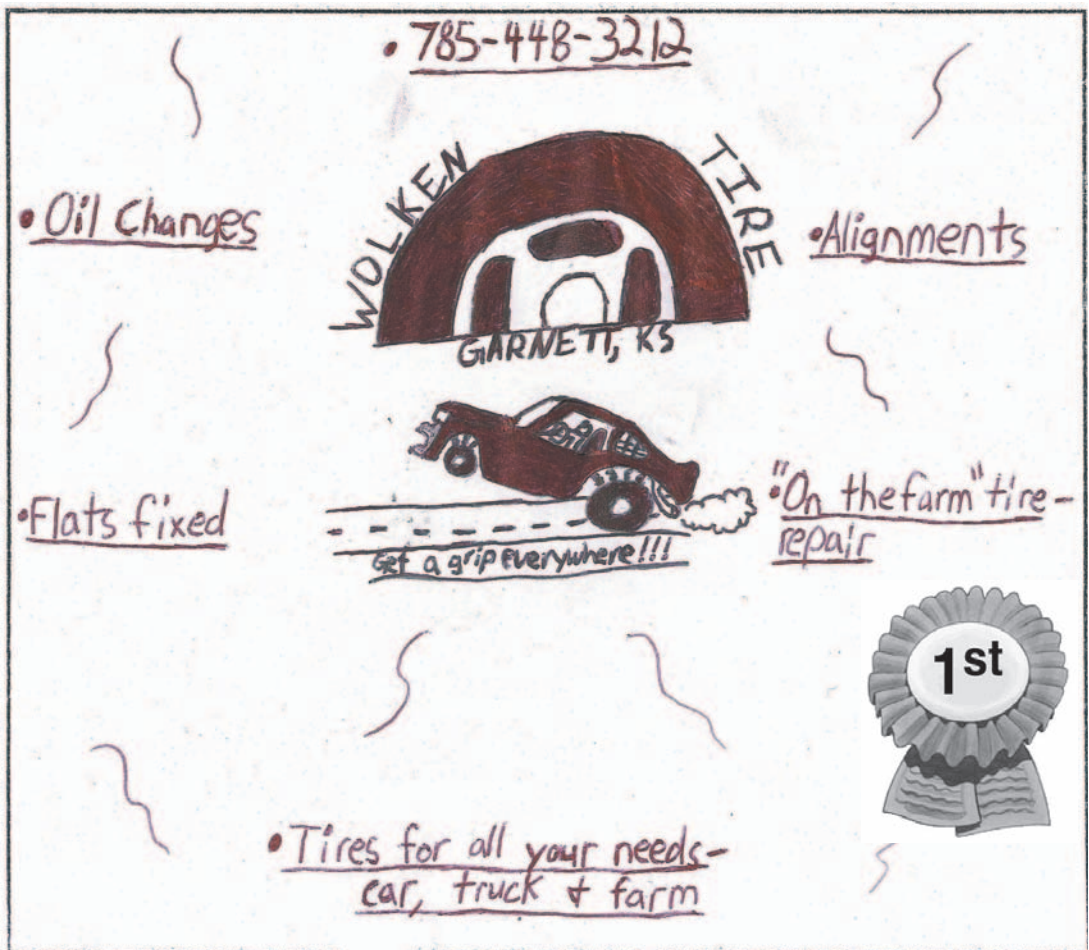

"Well, I would go, but currently I am being squashed by you day dreaming dopes," she muttered angrily.

"Antonio, get off your brother and Chris, help Salem out of the dirt. After you've all done that, meet me in the kitchen and I'll tell you about our next vacation," he mentioned trying not to notice and not to laugh at the excited yet questioning looks on his children's faces.

The three looked at each other for maybe two seconds before they jumped up and ran after their father.

"How was your trip honey?" Salem's mother asked while washing leftover salsa off the lunch plates. Salem's dad put a finger to his lips as he mouthed saying one, two, three, then pointed at the door. As if on cue the teens burst through the door like they were on a rampage.

"You see, I know my children well enough to know when they're

Fortune Cookie Gone Wrong

Lilly Spring
6th Grade
GES, Mr. Quirin

There was once a girl named Ally. Ally was just another normal 16 year old girl living in Norvelt, New York. She did everyday things like everybody else her age. In fact, she was one of the sweetest girls in town. Little did she know that her life was about to completely change. One day her two best friends invited her to go out for Chinese food after school. She said she would join them and that afternoon they all piled into Ally's car and headed to the Chinese Palace. It was the best Chinese restaurant in town. Everything was good and fine, actually they had very much fun. Then of course when they had finished their meals the waiter brought them fortune cookies. Every girl took turns reading the fortune they got out loud. When it got to Ally she opened up her package and was about to read it to the other girls, when suddenly her eyes got really big, she dropped the fortune, and ran out of the restaurant. Her friends grabbed the fortune so they could get a look at what was psyching their friend out. The fortune said this "WARNING your life is in danger. Say nothing to anyone and leave town immediately. NEVER RETURN!".

The next day at school Ally was watching her every move, yet she was still having bad luck! So far that day a pencil almost hit her in the eye, and when somebody was chopping down a tree on her walk to school they swung it back and almost chopped her head straight off. She had explained to her parents that her family needed to leave town, but they thought it was silly she believed her fortune. So since Ally couldn't leave town, she decided to go back to the Chinese restaurant to see if they could reset the fortune, or if they knew how. The owner told Ally that the only way she could reset the fortune she received was by traveling all the way to China. He told her if she found the magical golden cookie hidden in the factory that made her fortune, World Cookies, Inc. She thought that would be perfect because it was only three days to summer break and her parents had planned a trip to China. The minute she got home from school on the last day, her parents loaded up the car and they left for the airport. Once they got to China her parents had checked into their hotel and told Ally she could go see sights but to meet them in the hotel at 3 p.m. Ally headed straight for the cookie factory. She was determined to stop her bad luck before she died. When she got there the back door was open and she slipped right in. Then she started sneaking around searching high and low for any signs of the magic fortune cookie. She was about to give up when she saw a box that had a lock over it. She ran over to the box and took a bobby pin from her hair.

She was lucky to be able to get it opened up and on the inside were some directions and a magic, golden, sparkly fortune cookie. She read the directions and they said to look straight at the fortune cookie and say, 'please, please, please reset my fortune so nothing bad will continue to happen'. She did as told and suddenly the whole room was glowing. Ally figured that it had worked and she decided it was time to go. On her walk home nothing happened to her. She was happy knowing bad things wouldn't constantly happen anymore, and to make things better that night for dinner they had pizza.

The Fantastic Day with Mozart

Karoline, a 13 year old 7th grader, loved music and sleeping in. "Karoline, get up!" Mom shouted. "Uh! It's only 6:00," she moaned rolling over and covering her face with a pillow. "No, it's 7:30. Your clock is way off and school starts at 8 a.m.," Mom shouted. "Oh no!" Karoline shouted. Quickly Karoline bolted out of bed and thought about what she was going to wear.

from?" Mozart asked. "Well, as I was saying, I don't know where I'm at and I don't know how to get back," Karoline cried. "It's ok, it's okay, just tell me where you're from," Mozart calmly said. "I am from a small town, by a small school in Kansas," she told him. "That's the strangest place I have ever heard of, but I will still help," Mozart said. "Thank you Mozart," Karoline told him.

Mozart," Karoline said jumping up and down. "Why are you so excited about writing a report by tomorrow?" Hugo asked Karoline. "Hugo, stay out of it. Why are you excited?" Mom asked as she got done putting a snack on the table. "This is my chance to prove Mrs. Story wrong," Karoline explained to all of them. "But a 200 word report by tomorrow," Mom stumbled. "You better get upstairs and get busy." So Karoline went up to her room. "Now what did I learn about Mozart?" Karoline asked herself.

The Princess and Doby's Adventure

Marissa Lansdown

Once upon a time there was a princess who needed to get to a wizard in the mountains. She needed to ask the wizard a question. Would she become a queen? She went on her way. She went through a cave and met an elf. The elf's name was Doby. The princess told the elf that she had to get to the wizard. Doby was no ordinary elf. He was an elf that was the wisest of all. Doby had a special route, the shortest route ever! They went through the magical rainforest, over the hilly hills, then finally into the mountains. They got to the wizard's cabin. The princess asked the question and the wizard said, "Just wait and we'll see." "What?" said the princess. The wizard pointed behind her and a dragon popped out of nowhere. Right after that happened a sword popped into Doby's hand. He started to stab the dragon but it wasn't powerful enough. They needed more help. The princess started running but she couldn't control her body. She started running towards the dragon. When she got to the dragon she started punching the dragon. On her eleventh punch the dragon blew up! Then her question got answered. Doby asked her to marry him and she said yes. They got married, had eleven kids and lived happily ever after. The end.

"You don't want to be late Monday, composer day at school," Mom said hooking her short brown hair around her ear. "Oh yippy!" Karoline grumbled sarcastically. "Do I have to go today?" Karoline asked her mom, her short brown hair sticking up everywhere from static electricity as she got out of bed. "Yes you do! You know how important it is for you to have a good education!" Mom growled.

explained with a big breath of air. "Since we know who I am, who are you?" "Whoa, whoa, whoa, how did you start to enjoy music?" she asked tilting her head. "Well, when I was three years old I started to listen to my sister's harpsichord lessons, so I tried to copy what I heard. My dad, who taught my sister to play, heard me playing and he gave me lessons," Mozart explained while his white hair was bouncing up and down. "Wow, how I started to like, enjoy, and make music, was at a music class at school, but all I have now is a history teacher who doesn't know her facts," Karoline said with disappointment.

"I just have one question, Karoline, why do you have music class in history class?" he asked. "Well, the school had to cancel music class because they couldn't pay the teacher, so the history teacher, Mrs. Story, said that we could study a new composer each week," Karoline said as she sighed, just thinking about the fact that she doesn't have music class anymore. "Karoline Space, get up right now!" Mrs. Story yelled. "What? Am I in school again?" Karoline asked. "Yes, still, you were snoring again. For sleeping in class you will have to write a 150 word report by tomorrow," Mrs. Story told her. "You managed to sleep right through the bell ringing," Karoline looked around and saw that all the other students were gone.

"The next day at school the class had a treat. "We have a special person that would like to share a report because she slept in my class," Mrs. Story said proudly in a loud voice. Karoline was so nervous because she knew she didn't have 200 words. The first paragraph said: Mozart was a great man. He wrote wonderful music. He learned to play the piano by listening to his sister's lesson. He tried to copy what he heard. His dad heard him playing what he heard and so he got lessons. "Wow that was really good, but not 200 words, so you get a B," Mrs. Story told her. "What? Only a B," Karoline said disappointedly. "Okay, an A-, tell us more about Mozart," Mrs. Story insisted. After school Karoline went straight home. "Hi Karoline," Dad said. "Sup, Dad," Karoline said. She went right to her room to go to Mozart by sleeping knowing that Mozart was her true role model.

"You just don't get it mom. Mrs. Story's my boring history teacher's facts are not even close to being right," Karoline blasted with anger. Later at school she reluctantly went to history class.

"What is history class?" Mozart asked. He looked very confused and was shaking his head. "History is anything that happened in the past. We have a class to learn about it," Karoline explained. She was wondering how she got to be here with Mozart in 1782. Did I die? If I didn't die, will I ever get out?

"I'm always listening Space. Now get to math class," Mrs. Story told her. Later walking home, Karoline told Hugo and Jo about how she thought she had been in 1782 with Mozart but she was really sleeping in Mrs. Story's class and that I have to write a 200 word report about Mozart by tomorrow. "Well, let's get home," Hugo said as he ran ahead. "Hi Mom! We are home!" Karoline said excitedly. "Hi Margaret Ethel Jr. the Third," Mom said to Karoline. That was one of the nicknames her dad had given her.

Mrs. Story let her blond hair flow loosely. "Today we will learn about Mozart, a great man. He wrote wonderful music," Mrs. Story started, as I dozed off into a deep sleep. Clomp, clomp, clomp, clomp.

I am a huge fan of your music," Karoline said with amazement. "Thank you, thank you," Mozart replied as he adjusted the ruffles on his shirt. "So where am I?" Karoline asked as she pushed up her blue and black glasses. "You are in Vienna," he answered with a big smile. "The Vienna, really, really, wow!" Karoline exclaimed and when she said that her long blond hair was just shining in the sun and her smile was from side to side. "You wrote so many songs," Karoline declared. The Wild Camping Trip

Amanda Miller
6th Grade
Mont Ida, Mrs. Rockers

I was very excited. My friends Sylvia, Teresa and I were going to go on a week long camping trip to the mountains. We planned to go the next Tuesday and come back the following week. I'd already packed everything I needed for the trip. We would all take a few pots and pans, a compass, matches, sleeping bags, camping chairs, tents, and a borrowed canoe.

That next Tuesday we said our good-byes and headed for the mountains on a bus. We arrived that night. We made a fire and fried a few fish for supper. Then we sat around and talked for a while before going to bed. In the middle of the night I was suddenly awakened by a sound or noise. I decided it was new surroundings that made me jumpy. I was almost asleep when I heard it again. It was the oddest noise! It seemed far away and sorrowful.

Quickly I crawled out of my sleeping bag and slipped out of my tent. I listened for the sound again. There it was again! It was closer now. It sounded like coyotes but a little stronger and more sorrowful. I ran through the thick forested mountain side, slipping and stumbling as I went. Suddenly I heard a panting noise right ahead of me and a growl behind me. I whirled to my right to get away and I found myself staring into the yellowest eyes I had ever seen.

I gasped as I realized I was surrounded by wolves.

The wolves were now so close I could feel their breath on my skin. I tried yelling for help, but my throat was so dry with panic that only a few croaks escaped. I remembered that I had a flashlight with me with a red light on it (which wolves are afraid of). Quickly I grabbed it and turned the red light on and shone it straight into those yellow eyes. The wolves yelped and ran one by one into the dark forest. That's when I heard the voices of my friends. They were looking for me. "I'm right here," I yelled. Boy was I glad to see them!

We found each other and headed back to camp. By that time the horizon was already gray with the coming of dawn. That day we had a lot of fun exploring the area around us. We were just sitting down to a supper of wild nuts and berries we'd found that day while exploring when we heard a crackling noise. It sounded like a huge animal making its way through the forest. We looked at each other and ran for the nearest trees. We had just seated ourselves in separate trees when a huge bull moose came trotting into camp. The moose stopped to graze right under my tree! I was so taken by the sight of the moose that I lost my grip and fell out of the tree. I landed right on the big moose! Now I was in for the ride of my life. We crashed through the forest with me clinging to everything

I could find on the moose's back (which was mostly hair). On we went for what seemed like ages. Then the moose decided he wasn't going to get me off by running so he started to buck and rear up into the air. The next thing I knew I was flying through the air.

I guess I passed out because when I came to I was back at camp. Sylvia and Teresa were there with me and I got better after a day's rest. Sure, I still have a few scars, but not any broken bones.

The next few days we had a lot of fun by going canoeing, fishing, staying up late and just sitting around being lazy. On Monday night we all sat around the fire talking about the past week and all the fun we'd had when all of a sudden we heard this snuffling and snorting noise. By now we had made a dugout hideaway for emergencies like this. We all ran for the dugout. We were just settled when a big grizzly bear came lumbering into camp. After sniffing the pots and pans that still held the aroma of cooked fish, it lumbered over to the fire which was now glowing red coals. It stuck its nose into the coals and jumped back in surprise at the sudden rush of pain in its tender nose. It walked around camp for a while before lumbering away into the night. My friends and I sighed in relief when we found no damage.

The next night we were all back home talking about everything that had happened in the past week. Every night since that trip I can still hear the rushing of the stream and the howls of distant wolves.

Stuck in Time

"Help! Help! The earth is eating my leg!" cried Peter. "Help!" "Come on dude. The earth isn't eating your leg," chuckled Robert. "You stepped into a really deep hole, that's all."

"Will you please get me out?" said Peter, very embarrassed. "I am kind of stuck."

"I wonder who put this here?" questioned Robert as he helped Peter out of the hole.

"I don't know," answered Peter, "But there is something unusual about that piece of paper in the bottle down there in the hole. It looks ancient and I think I can see some writing on it. Let's check it out!"

After they got the bottle out of the hole they sat on their favorite rocks by the biggest tree in the park called the Jumbo Mumbo. It was Peter and Robert's favorite tree.

"Ouch!" yelled Peter as he was trying to get the old ancient piece of paper out. "I got my finger stuck in the top of the bottle." POP! "Ah, there it goes." "Quit messing around," snapped Robert. "Give it to me and I'll tell you how to do it. Tip it upside down and out it comes easy as pie."

"Will you hurry up and open up the piece of paper," exclaimed Peter. "I want to know what it says."

"Ok, here it is," said Robert. He read it aloud, "Buried under the yellow slide, you will find it."

"Find what?" Peter asked. "I don't know. That's all it says," said Robert. "Except for the year and his signature at the bottom of the page."

"What was the year?" asked Peter.

"I think it says 1602," answered Robert squinting at the piece of paper because he did not put his glasses on before he left like his mother told him to.

"I don't know about you, but I am going to go check it out under the yellow slide," said Peter, "It sounds like a mystery and I don't want to be left out."

"Wait for me!" yelled Robert chasing Peter to the yellow slide.

"My older brother told me how to find buried treasure," explained Peter. "You stomp on the ground until you find a different sound."

STOMP, STOMP, STOMP, THUD!

"I think I found it. Come on, let's dig!" shouted Robert.

Ten minutes later they had dug up the hole and found a very ancient looking pocket watch.

"We went through all that work for just a little watch?" questioned Peter. "Well I guess we better make out what we have. Let's look at it."

Five minutes later they had opened the clock and were looking inside.

"Help!" cried Peter and Robert as they were getting sucked into the clock. "Help! Help!"

When Peter and Robert got sucked into the clock they got knocked out for a half an hour.

"Where are we?" asked Peter as he was getting up off a hard wooden floor beneath them. Robert was already up and looking at the walls of the mysterious place they were trapped in.

"Hey!" said Robert. "We learned these in school whenever we were in the 4th grade, but that was two whole years ago and I can't talk this language as good as I used to."

"Well can you try?" asked Peter. "I wasn't paying attention during that lesson."

"I can try, but I might not get all the words right," proclaimed Robert.

"Ok, then try," encouraged Peter. "At least we have some hope."

"Ok, I think it says, 'you will have to fix this clock before sunset', I mean before sundown, 'or else the world will end and all will be destroyed,'" Robert said reading the wall.

"What?" shouted Peter. "Did you just say that we will be in this clock until sundown and make it out ok if we fix it, but if we don't fix it the world will end and all will be destroyed?"

"Basically yes, but I did not shout it like you did," announced Robert calmly.

But Peter was not paying attention. He was looking at something different. He was looking at three dozen rattlesnakes coming towards him and Robert.

"Robert you might want to be quiet and start running. Look what's heading towards us," interrupted Peter. "And they do not look nice at all."

"Run!" they both yelled as they ran into a mysterious place located on the other side of the clock from where they were.

"Wow, that was a close one," said Peter almost out of breath.

"Hey, what's this?" exclaimed Robert. "It looks like a clue to fixing the clock. Maybe it is."

"Yes it is," announced Peter. "Maybe we will not be stuck in here for a while after all. I will read it so you will not have to go through all that trouble. Here is what it says, 'you are almost done with your quest. Just one more clue then you are done. You will have to turn the clock around by turning the switch with a green knob in the door with a square on it.'"

"What time is it?" asked Robert. "According to my clock it is... oh no!" cried Peter. "It is already 7:45 p.m. and the sun goes down at 8 p.m. We better hurry or else you know what."

"The world will end!" cried Robert.

"Instead of talking, let's go find the door with a square in it to find the switch with the green knob," suggested Peter.

They both ran to the door as fast as they could run and opened the door. Creak! Went the door as they opened it.

"We have to hurry and find the switch with the green knob on it," said Peter nervously.

"I think that will be hard to do. Look at all these lasers blocking our way. There's no way we can make it through there," announced Robert.

"Yes there is," exclaimed Peter. "I took karate lessons and took the extra class where you learn how to jump through lasers."

"That sounds like a very weird karate class," blurted Robert.

"Yes, it was back whenever I lived in Manhattan," informed Peter.

The Old Woman and Her Daughter

Karyn Elisabeth Yoder

Mont Ida, Mrs. Johnson

Once upon a time I was taking a walk in the woods when I saw a light in the distance. It was night. When I came up to the light I realized it was a house. I sneaked up to the window and looked into the house. There was a woman and her daughter in the house. They were eating supper. I looked around to the other side of the house and knocked on the door.

The woman opened the door and said, "Hello. What's your name and how old are you?"

"My name is Tiena and I am 13", I said.

The woman's name was Helena and her daughter's name was Katina. She asked me to stay for the night. I slept with Katina and we laughed and laughed until we cried. Katina was born October 2, 2000, also.

We soon became friends. Every day I came back to visit. Nobody liked Katina because they thought she was a witch, but she was a friendly pal. We played hide and go seek every day. We even made a little play-house out of wood. It was cute. We liked to play in the playhouse. We made little bureaus and drawers. We put stones and pretty things in the drawers. We put a pretty tea set in the bureau. The tea set had little roses inside the teacups and plates. We even had saucers to go with the cups and plates.

The Beast

In the year 1944 a little baby boy was born, but no one knew that the little boy would one day become a legend. Here's his story. The baby boy is now 12. His name is Logan and Logan never really found any sport that he was good at, but it didn't really bother him because his mom always said your day will come.

Then his day came. It was the football sign ups. He had never thought about football because he always thought he would get hurt. Now he knows never to be afraid again, and as he brought the sign up sheet to his mom he said, "Today is my day."

The day is here and it is Logan's first day of practice. When he got there his coach said, "You look pretty fast. I think I'll put you as running back." All the other players got there and the coach told them their team mascot was the Thunderbirds. Then the other players started making fun of Logan because he had never played before. But he just kept telling himself, "Today is my day."

Finally they started practice and they had all their pads on and Logan thought I really like football. After warm ups the coach had try outs for positions. The coach said running backs to the left, wide receivers to the right, and all the linemen to the middle. Logan ran over with the running backs and the coach said get in a line.

Since Logan was new he went last to make sure he did the drill right. The coach said just take the ball and run it down the field. Do your best not to get tackled. The first person went, but he got tackled, and then the second, then third, and so on. Then the moment came and it was Logan's turn. All the other players said he wasn't going to make it, but he just kept saying "Today is my day". He took the ball and ran down the field. He dodged left, then he dodged right, and finally came to the biggest player on the team and jumped right over him! He did it! All the players were amazed.

From that day on every practice went great. He was not tackled at all and finally at his first game he was playing the Yellow Jackets. He was nervous, but he just kept saying "Today is my day". Come to find out, Logan scored all his teams points and the score was 24-0, and that's when it happened, everyone called Logan "The Beast". I'd say he is one, don't you? All season long it was the same. Logan scored all the points. They even went to the championship game and won!

Then Logan went all the way through junior high and high school being known as The Beast. Then he went to play college, and then the NFL. And he made it into the NFL Hall of Fame. Oh, and you know what he said before every game? "Today is my day". But that was a long time ago and I just thought you wanted to hear the story of The Beast, a football legend.

Vampire Cow

I had just got off the bus to school and it was raining very hard. I looked left and right. Then I saw a very dark barn. I didn't like school so I went over there and saw the barn doors were boarded. I looked in my backpack for my toy hammer so I could pull out the nails from the boards. I used all my strength to pull off the nails with my toy hammer.

Once I pulled all the nails off the boards the door opened by itself and made a sound like one of those scary movies you would hear on television. I looked around and saw very bright red eyes. Next the creature opened its mouth and I saw huge sharp teeth with drool coming down on the dark ground. I looked very closely and saw it was a cow hanging upside down. I remembered all the things I saw. It's a vampire cow!

I ran as fast as I could. It was faster than lightning. Then it tackled me. I yelled for help. Right then I knew it would suck the blood right out of me. Finally I heard a clown honk his nose. The clown stabbed a wooden stake through the vampire cow. The vampire cow blew into dust. The clown asked me why I wasn't in school. I didn't tell him anything because I was terrified. So the clown took me to school and told the teacher that I got lost and he brought me back to school. I never saw that cow again.

Enemies Unite

Grimsenberg was a peaceful little city, until the long-time mayor died, and rich, spoiled Emanon Jones decided he should be the new mayor. His money could buy anything he wanted, except the approval of the people in his hometown, and he wanted that more than anything. When the votes came in, Emanon Jones was not the mayor, and this was more disappointment than he could take. He went on a rampage through the city, terrorizing it until the people gave in and he was appointed the mayor by the city council.

But that was just to buy the people time to figure out how they could solve their problem once and for all.

In a secret meeting, the council came up with the names of Dr. Tech and Earthquake, two Grimseberg graduates who had been high-school enemies but separately had gone out into the world to fight crime and evil. But when the city council called each of them hoping one of them would come to help, surprisingly they both showed up at the next meeting.

Dr. Tech, the school nerd, had been working on a special suit that had a laser shooting helmet, an iron fist that had different tools, and hydraulic boots that allowed him to jump as high or as far as needed. Earthquake, the school jock, had super strength and could cause an earthquake of any size, at any time or place. But because Earthquake had always stole the spotlight, he and Dr. Tech had always fought, so when they graduated, they went their separate ways. But now here they were back in Grimsenberg ready to fight together to defeat Emanon Jones and restore peace to their hometown.

Walking down the street, Emanon Jones spies both Earthquake and Dr. Tech, and sensing problems, he immediately tells them "Get out. This is my town now." The pair of them answer back "NO WAY!" and the fight was on.

Emanon Jones had just enough time to call his henchmen to the scene, and the next thing he knew, Dr. Tech shot a laser, knocking the phone out of his hands. Jones' henchmen showed up, but Dr. Tech distracted them. Earthquake fled into action, knocking Emanon on the ground. Dr. Tech jumped on, holding Emanon on the ground. Earthquake stomped his foot, causing just enough earthquake to make a hole, big enough for Emanon and his henchmen to fall into.

At just that moment, the cops arrive, handcuff Jones and his hoods, and haul them off to jail. Dr. Tech and Earthquake realize that time has healed old wounds, and they are better together as a team than they were alone. From then on, they went out to fight evil as a team, and Emanon Jones spent a long time in jail thinking about his poor choices.

THE END.

My family and I went to St. Louis. First we went to the hotel. Then we went to our room and after that we all went out for lunch. We went to go swimming in their pool. After that we went to the St. Louis Zoo and got to see really cool animals. Then we went to this playground for a little while. We also went to the St. Louis Butterfly House. It was so cool and had really pretty butterflies. I saw this butterfly that was blue, black, and white. It was really pretty.

The next day the boys went to the Cardinals game while the girls stayed at the hotel and hung out. Then we went to the top of the St. Louis Arch. It was awesome to see all the people from down below and see the tall buildings and Cardinals stadium and all the cars on the streets below. It was a really cool trip. One I will never forget.

STUCK...

"Well, let's hurry up. We only have ten minutes left before sundown!" shouted Robert.

"I will turn the knob and you tell me where it is, ok?" suggested Peter.

"Got it," Robert said sounding like a super spy.

As Peter zoomed through the lasers Robert would tell him where to go. "Left, no right, I mean left. It is at the top of that tall tower. Can you climb up there?" shouted Robert.

"Yes, just give me a second," answered Peter. As Peter climbed up the tower Robert stood there trembling and hoping he would make it up the tower.

"Yes!" they both exclaimed after Peter made it up the tower.

"Now turn the knob and let's get out of here!" shouted Robert.

Peter turned the knob and a portal appeared. "Let's go!" he shouted and they went through the portal. One minute later they made it to the park at exactly 7:59. They both went to Peter's house because Robert was spending the night there.

"Where have you two been? I was looking all over for you," said Peter's Mom.

"That's our little secret," they both said with suspicious smiles on their faces.

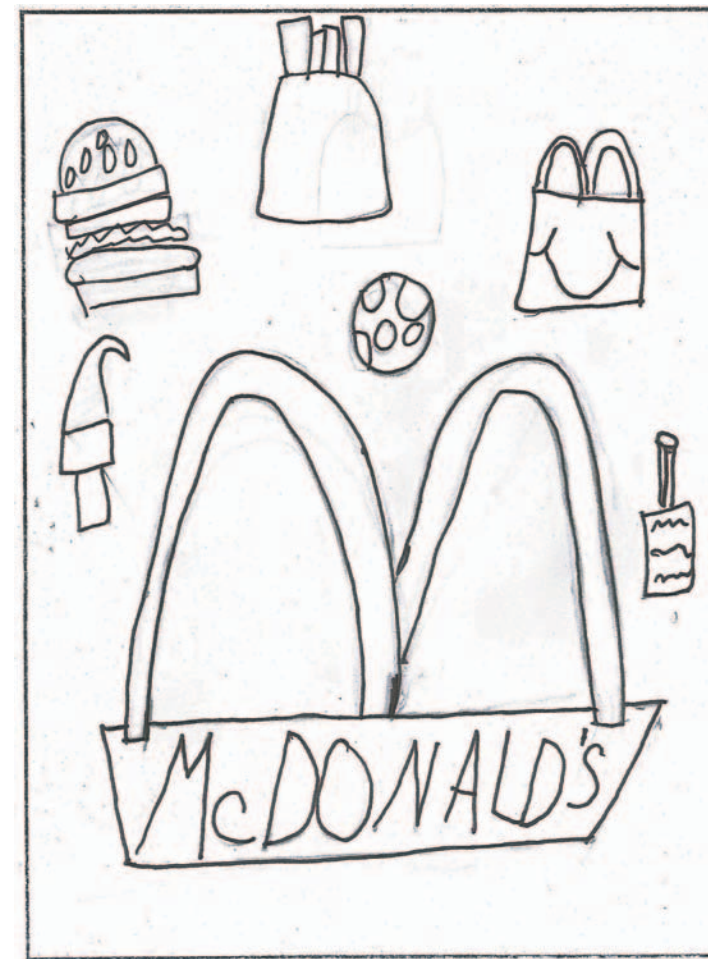

Exploring the Outdoors

Have you ever taken a walk through the woods by a stream? There are so many cool things to see. Have you ever seen a beaver slide or a dam built by a beaver? The beavers cut down small trees with their sharp, sharp teeth and build a place to live in the water. To get the water from the land, they slide their belly across the ground and create a path.

You can see all kinds of animal tracks. There are deer, turkey, coyote, bobcat, and raccoon tracks in the mud. I wonder where they are going? As we walk along, I noticed a tree that fell in the water. It provides shelter for the smaller fish. I really wish I had my fishing pole so I could try to catch one. I know there are bass, catfish, perch, crappie, and carp in these waters.

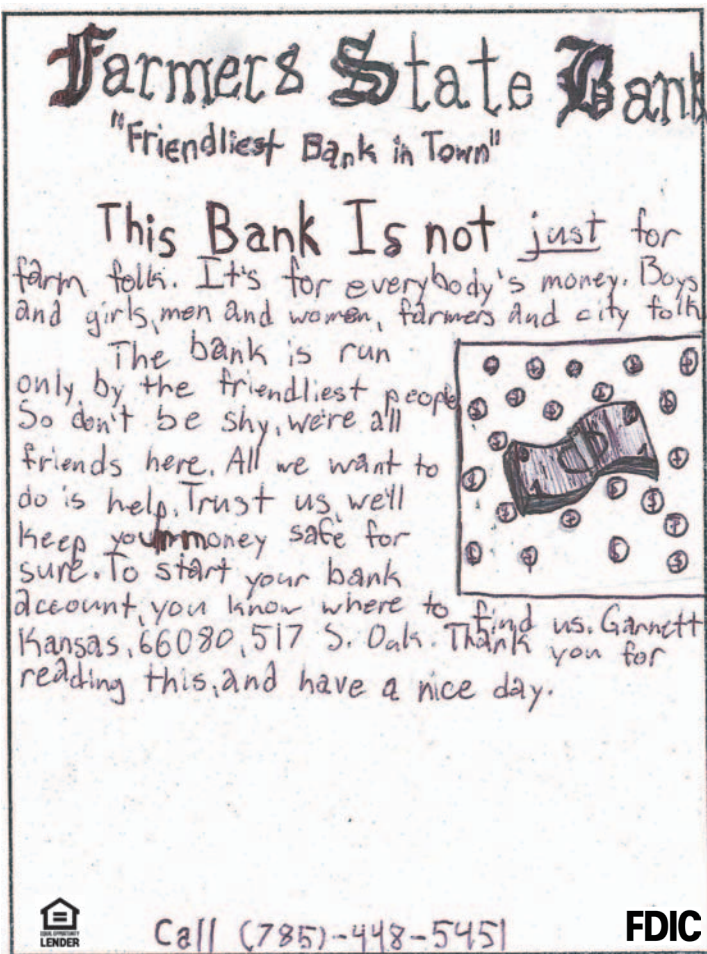

There is so much to see in the outdoors. You should take a walk and find some interesting things for yourself.

The Big Game All Over Again

Corbin Danner
6th Grade
GES, Mr. Quirin

Basketball all-star John Tibet had just lost his championship game. Let's just say he's not too happy. He always walked home after his game, but today he didn't go home. John went to the lake to think about what he could have done better. Honestly, there wasn't really anything they could have done better except their wings.

That night John made a wish that he could have this day all over again. So after that John walked home and his mother shouted, "Where were you?" He tried to tell his mother but she was too busy screaming so he went to bed.

He woke up the next morning and took a shower and went to get ready. John was looking in his closet and saw his game uniform was washed. So he went to ask his mother what day it was and she said it was Wednesday without freaking out. So John replied, "Yesterday was Wednesday". His mother said he had something wrong. John walked upstairs to his room without saying anything and got dressed, grabbed his backpack and ran downstairs. His mother said, "Why aren't you wearing your game uniform?" And John told her his game was yesterday and they lost. His mother told him his game was today and you never lose. So John ran upstairs and quickly put his game uniform on. John ran back downstairs and ate some pancakes and eggs for breakfast. Then John went to get in his mother's car and she took him to school.

When he got to school he ran inside and John's friend

Billy said, "Ready for the game tonight?" John looked puzzled and told him he had asked him that yesterday. "Are you losing it?" Billy said. "We have the big game tonight." So John said ok and went to class. Half of John's team asked him if he was ready for the game and John just kept playing along and telling them yes.

Later that afternoon his mom picked him up and took him to the recreation center. John put his basketball shoes on and ran to the coach without saying anything and waited for the rest of his team. Once everybody got there John and the other four guys walked onto the court. John was the tallest so he jumped. This time he got the ball to his team, unlike last time. Suddenly the ball came to John. He could hear the coaches yelling so John ran up and passed it to the post. They made it and ended up winning and the team went out for ice cream.

The Room Cleaner

"Oh geez Stan, your room is a mess!"
"But Mom!"
"You need to clean this by tomorrow."
"Ok fine."

Well, here I am cleaning my room. I just hate this. Why does my mom have to make me clean my room? So the next day I had just got home from school and my mom was at work. So I had time to clean my room. I heard the door shut and Mom said, "Stan, I'm home." And my room is not clean. I feel this horrible feeling in my stomach. My mom walks through my bedroom door and says, "Stan, I told you to clean your room."

"I just got home from school Mom."

"Ok Stan, I will give you one more day to clean up this mess."

Ok, this is my nightmare. I can't take it anymore. I have to clean my room. The next thing I hear is "Stan, supper is done" so I go downstairs to the dinner table and we're having hotdogs and green beans. My mom asked, "Is your room clean yet?" I said yes. Mom told me she was proud of me. So when I went upstairs into my bedroom I start to think "why did I lie to my mom?" Next thing I see is my mom's head peaking through my bedroom door. Mom asked, "Did you lie to me?"

"Yes Mom. I just wanted to make you happy. I'm sorry."

"It's ok, just get it done."
The next morning I see that my room is cleaner than it has ever been before. Then I realize I can help around the house and make my mom happy.

The Man

Abby Brown
6th Grade
Central Heights, Mrs. Thurston

The bell had just rung and I was walking down the school steps with Austin, Josh, and Alex. Austin turned to me and said, "Hey Abby, are you ready for the Chiefs game on Sunday?" "Yeah," I said, not really paying attention. I was watching a little squirrel run up a tree with a nut in its mouth.

At dinner I was telling Mom about our math assignment when there was a big clattering sound on the front porch. My dad went out to see what it was. He was out there for a few seconds before he came in and said that he didn't see anything. I really didn't think anything of the incident.

After dinner Mom and Dad went to their room and I went to mine. I was just laying in my bed, trying to sleep, when I heard another clattering sound outside of my window. I got up out of my bed, walked to my window, and looked. I almost screamed so loud that somebody in Hawaii could hear me, but I bit my bottom lip like I was never going to let it go. The man was staring at me from the field. He was wearing a pair of overalls, a straw hat, and had a pitchfork in his hand. I went over and laid down in my bed, frightened of what I just saw. I laid there for at least 45 minutes before I got even a little sleepy, but right as I was about to go to sleep, I looked over to my window and saw the man standing right there, staring at me, just a few feet from my window screen. He took his free hand that was not holding the pitch fork and pointed at me. I immediately hid under the covers and didn't open my eyes again.

I must have fallen asleep because when I opened my eyes I saw light coming through my window. I got up and out of bed as fast as I could. I had to tell my parents what had happened the night before. I ran into the kitchen and saw a piece of paper on the table that said, "Hey Honey. You're father and I decided to go to town for breakfast. We'll be back in a couple of hours. You can eat anything you want." I really wished I hadn't read that piece of paper, because they left me alone with the man and God only knew where he was. He may be in my closet for all I know.

I just hung out at my house for a while and was thinking about the night before. I was starting to come to the conclusion that I had just imagined the whole thing. Mom and Dad came home a couple hours later. I decided not to tell them about the man. We went over to my cousin's house and stayed there until after dinner and by that time it was about 9 o'clock.

I got home and got in my bed. After a while of just laying there, facing the wall, and thinking about the Chiefs game tomorrow, I heard a rustling sound coming from outside my door. I just lay there frozen like a rock. Then I heard my doorknob turn. I could see light coming through my door. I looked over and saw my dad. He whispered to me and said, "Sorry to wake you. I just wanted to make sure you had all of your dirty clothes."

I had no more incidents with the man until about three weeks later when I heard on the news that a man with overalls and a straw hat on and a pitchfork in his hand had gotten run over by a truck. He was pronounced dead ten minutes later.

going to rampage into the kitchen," their dad chuckled.

"So what's the surprise? Salem questioned with a serious expression, but you would instantly know that she was hiding a curious expression underneath it.

"Is it a mystery for us? Tony speculated.

"Of course it's a new mystery! Guess what?" Their father didn't wait for an answer as he blurted out.

"It's in Virginia!"

"Wow, for real?" Chris gasped.

"Virginia," Salem echoed. She looked at her father to the calendar pinned to the wall. "When do we leave?" She whispered with a dreamy look in her eyes.

"Tomorrow at five!" he proposed. "So I suggest that you all better start packing. He snickered, "Myself included."

The family rushed upstairs to their rooms. Salem ran into hers and heard Chris and Tony on either side of her room do the same. She rushed to her closet and pulled out her blue, black, silver Maxpetition, camouflaged suitcase and plopped it on her bed. She rushed to her dresser and started pulling clothes out of her drawer with one hand while throwing them on the bed with her other hand. Finally, she found the very last thing she was looking for.

"Now how do I get all these clothes in my suitcase?" she said to herself as she stared down at the mound of clothes completely hiding her suitcase.

How do you understand the purpose for your life?

In his teaching Jesus always used illustrations that were applicable to his audience. The crowds were always composed of different classes of people. There were the Pharisees, who were the ruling authority at the time, very powerful and rich and there were the rest of the people who one might classify as the working class.

Weekly Devotional
by David Bilderback

Obviously this man had worked hard and was a good farmer. He would be no different than anyone of us today who in our chosen profession has accumulated a measure of wealth. Year after year we continue to put away wealth for that time when we, just as the man in the parable, can take our ease to eat, drink and be merry. The issue that this man and the issue that you and I face is simply this. Our feelings don't correspond with the state of our soul. In this man's mind he saw no need for God. His sole purpose in life was to eat, drink and be merry. It is very easy for us to be blinded to the things of God by the attractions of this world.

The plan this man had and the one we follow as well is not a purpose but it is merely an outcome of our own endeavors. Until we know and understand who Christ is we cannot understand the purpose for our life. God created each of us for his purposes. When we fail to follow Christ our life is merely a series of outcomes and of no value to God.

David Bilderback: A Ministry on the Holiness of God.

Viking boys pull away late

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

The Vikings played three very good quarters, but a lethargic second quarter left them playing catch up early in the second half on their way to a 52-42 victory against Prairie View.

Central Heights used a strong first quarter to set the tone for the game as they jumped out on top 15-4.

The Vikings head coach, Rusty Cannady said "Tonight's game started off really well. Defensively we were active and communicating (well). Offensively we executed and got high percentage shots."

All the momentum of that strong first quarter was quickly erased in the second quarter. Prairie View tightened down defensively and held the Vikings to just 5 points and scored 17 of their own to give them a 21-20 lead into halftime.

"The second quarter was a different story. We started playing defense with our hands and got into foul trouble. We didn't communicate well. Offensively we got lazy and started to stand and watch," coach Cannady stated.

Central Heights returned to their first quarter form in the second half. The Vikings outscored Prairie View 15-10 in the third quarter and 17-11 in the fourth to pull away for a 52-42 victory.

"The second half I was extremely pleased with our kids. They were disciplined on both ends. Defensively we played good help defense and on the offensive end we kept feeding our posts," Cannady said when describing the differences of the second half in his teams performance.

Jordan Horstick and Tanner Erhart led the way for Central Heights with 20 and 15 points respectively.

Box Score:
Prairie View (42) - Barthol 16, Ackerson 1, Spears 4, Lee 6, Phelps 8, Ross 5, Robbins 2
Central Heights (52) - Robertson 3, Holler 4, M. Brown 1, Horstick 20, Erhart 15, Hendron 9

Fourth quarter collapse hurts

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

On Friday night the Anderson County Bulldogs were unable to hold on to a 44-34 lead heading into the fourth quarter on their way to a disappointing setback to Osawatomie, 59-51.

The Osawatomie Trojans jumped up early on the Bulldogs and raced out to an early 16-8 lead. This seemed all too familiar as the last time these two teams squared off, Osawatomie ran away with a 62-33 win.

This time though, the Bulldogs had a lot more fight in them. The boys countered the bad start by outscoring the Trojans 17-7 in the second quarter to take a 25-23 lead into halftime.

Coming out of the locker room, the boys seemed to ride that second quarter momentum and extended their lead even further by outscoring the Trojans 19-11 in the third quarter to take a 44-34 lead heading into the fourth.

All that went right in the second and third quarters quickly went wrong in the fourth quarter for the Bulldogs. Osawatomie completed the impressive comeback by dropping 25 fourth quarter points and limited the Bulldogs to just 7 as they pulled off the come from behind victory.

Spencer Walter scored 14 points for the Bulldogs to lead the attack.

Box Score
Osawatomie (59) - England 8, Arts 2, Soucie 14, Rayl 15, Booe 20
ACHS (51) - Woodard 6, Lickteig 9, Hillard 8, Comfort 3, Small 9, Rundle 2, Walter 14

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 02-18-2014 / Dane Hicks

EKA Energy buys grain rescue equipment

On Jan. 10, Anderson County emergency responders received equipment purchased by East Kansas Agri-Energy LLC of Garnett.

The "Wall of Rescue" grain engulfment rescue tube is a simple-to-use piece of equipment designed to be placed around a person who has become trapped in grain or other type of product found on many farms throughout Anderson County.

The simple design and ability to be broken down into several pieces makes it ideal for rescue use in confined areas such as a grain bin.

Firefighters from across Anderson County attended training in 2013 conducted by the University of Kansas Fire and Rescue Training Institute in grain engulfment rescue. An additional training is scheduled for Feb. 22 in Westphalia.

This piece of equipment is carried on an apparatus stationed in Garnett that is specifically designed for various types of technical rescue. This apparatus was purchased with Homeland Security money through the Northeast Region of Kansas. The equipment on this apparatus makes it a deployable resource that can go anywhere within the State of Kansas.
