Spring storm brings rain, hail, flooding

Teen storm chaser drives into flooded ditch, rescue crews concerned by failure to report it

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — What has been an unpredictable year of weather brought its first severe storm of the spring season last week, dropping golf-ball sized hail and flooding parts of Anderson County.

Although the official rain total at the Garnett Industrial Airport was 2.01 inches of rain between April 2 and 3, southern and southwestern parts of the county reported receiving as much as 5 inches of rain. The onslaught caused creeks to swell, flooding the Cedar Valley Reservoir west of Garnett. Greeley residents also reported flooded roads in some areas, and Garnett airport manager Gary Ecclefield said the Southfork Creek overflowed its banks, something he hadn't seen in the five years he worked at the airport. The creek at one time spilled across a new bridge on 1750 Road, also known as East Fourth Avenue, east of Garnett.

The storm apparently caught a teenaged storm chaser by surprise, as he slid off a road and into a flooded ditch. Logan Burrell, 18 of Bella Vista, Ark., was storm chasing in the area when he slid off 600 Road between Missouri and Montana Roads, according to a report from Anderson County Sheriff

This hail fell at Welda April 2, and Welda resident Peggy McGregor used quarters to show the size. Reports of rain and hail varied across the county, with the southern and southwestern parts of the county reporting the heaviest amounts.

Tax sale recoups $117K

County buys former nursing home building for just $4,500

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — The sale of properties with delinquent taxes helped Anderson County recoup about $117,000, and will move more than 50 properties onto paying tax rolls.

The $117,000 represents the amount paid for the 58 properties and doesn't include fees paid by the purchaser of the properties. The tax sale took place March 24 at the Anderson County Courthouse. About 70 potential bidders attended the sale. The total unpaid property taxes on the 58 properties was more than $373,000, which means the county recouped about 31 percent of the total owed.

"I was very pleased. It was higher than I expected," Anderson County Counselor James Campbell, who organized the sale, said.

Tax sales allow the government to recoup unpaid personal property taxes. Even if the property is sold for less than the amount of taxes owed, the county will recoup some of the money and the transfer of ownership is expected to at least bring the properties back onto county's tax rolls. The last delinquent personal property tax sale was May 2004, although the county had a delinquent mineral rights sale in May 2010.

Of the properties sold March 24, the largest amount of overdue taxes was the former Arkhaven Nursing Home,

City to replace computers as XP support dropped

IT report shows city has made security, backup improvements

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — The City of Garnett will need to replace or update about half of its computers in order to avoid security concerns that could begin as soon as today.

Support for Windows XP ends today, about 12 years after the operating system began. That means Microsoft will no longer offer security updates or technical support for the XP operating system. Microsoft first announced its intentions to end XP support in 2007. PC users are encouraged to update their systems to either Windows 7 or 8. Nearly half of the city's computers, or 13 of 27 computers in all but two departments, use the XP system.

About eight months ago, in July, city commissioner Preston Peine asked for a full report on the city's Internet and computer system. He encouraged city staff to start replacing or updating computer systems to avoid any problems when XP support ended. City clerk Kristie Kinney, who also handles the city's IT needs, said she was aware of the situation.

Kinney presented a report on the city's IT system at the March 25 city commission

Jail medical plan could save $33K

National company appears to offer best deal, sheriff says

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — A proposal by a Peoria, Ill., company to provide in-house medical care to inmates at the Anderson County Jail likely will save the county more than $33,000.

The high cost of providing healthcare to inmates became an issue over the past few years, as inmates apparently took advantage of lax rules at the jail to take care of long-standing medical issues. At one point, an inmate claimed she needed an organ transplant and expected the county to pick up the tab; her condition later was found to be significantly less dire, but still resulted in hefty medical bills. Another elderly man also required expensive healthcare during his stay at the jail.

Sheriff Vernon Valentine pledged during his election campaign in 2012 to reduce healthcare expenses, and has been working on various proposals including a policy that requires inmates to reimburse the county for prescription drugs and over-the-counter

Just 86 voters turn out for election

Gordon Blackie ran unopposed in only race on city ballot

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Just 86 Garnett voters — a dismal 3.833 percent of eligible electors — turned out Tuesday, April 1, to elect Gordon Blackie as city commissioner.

Election officials had predicted a low turnout, perhaps about 7 percent based on similar past elections, because Blackie was running unchallenged with no other contests on the ballot and no write-in campaigns in the wind.

There were 2,237 eligible voters in the city. Of the 86 votes cast, Blackie received 74.

Blackie was running unchallenged for the position. He was appointed to the city commission in late 2012 to fill the unex-

School sign planned to honor late attorney

Group Steve Doering helped form wants to donate sign in his honor

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — A memorial in the form of a new, electronic sign at Anderson County Jr./Sr. High School is planned to honor the late Steve Doering, who served as USD 365's attorney for about 35 years.

Doering, a 1969 Garnett High School graduate, was instrumental in the formation of the USD 365 Endowment Association in 2007. The group oversees three scholarships for USD 365 graduates, and also provides money for special projects or other needs in the district.

From the beginning, the group wanted to replace a sign that sits in front of the high school and serves as a sort of announcement board for special events. The sign has been there since the school was built

ANDERSON COUNTY BOARD OF COMMISSIONER MARCH 24

Chairman James K. Johnson called the meeting of the Anderson County Commission to order at 9:00 a.m. on March 24 at the County Commission Room. Attendance: James K. Johnson, Present; Eugene Highberger, Present; Jerry Howarter, Present. The pledge of allegiance was recited. Minutes of the previous meeting were approved as presented.

Road and Bridge

Lester Welsh, Road Supervisor, met with the commission. Dan Harden, BG Consultants, was also present. Dan explained the Federal Highway Trust Fund. The county could take the money that is held in reserve for county projects and purchase it for $.90 on the dollar. The county could then use the money for whatever they want. The other option would be to leave the money in place and use it for future projects in the county.

Solid Waste

Scott Garrett, Solid Waste Supervisor, met with the commission. The transfer station was inspected by KDHE last week and no infractions were found. He has been looking for a vehicle for the transfer station. He has found one at Beckman's that they are willing to sell for approximately $23,000. Commission questioned the need for a vehicle at that price. They would like for him to see if he can get a vehicle for a lower price.

Appraiser

Jerry Wohler met with the commission. He questioned if the appraiser works for the county or for the state. He is concerned with the value that has been placed on his residence.

Emergency Management

JD Mersman, Emergency Management Director, met with the commission. Discussion was held on the calls the fire department has responded to the last few weeks and the reasons for the burn bans that were in place most of the time. He has gone to Iowa to look over the truck for sale. The truck is for sale for $16,000 or $20,000 delivered. There will be about another $6,000 in repairs after it comes here.

Appraiser

Marion Johnson, Appraiser, and Steve Markham, Assistant Appraiser, met with the commission. They would like to replace the older appraiser vehicle as it is getting some miles on it and has needed repaired several times lately.

Meeting adjourned at 11:55 a.m. due to no further business.

STARR

January 2, 1925-April 2, 2014

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW
Published April 8, 2014

Wilmer Clarke Starr, age 89, of Bison, South Dakota, passed away on Wednesday, April 2, 2014, at his home in Gas, Kansas.

Starr

He was born on January 2, 1925, at Welda, Kansas, the son of Karl S. and Lena R. (Wiley) Starr. He spent his early years on various farms in the Welda community where his grandfather Mervin Starr had settled in 1844. He attended several rural schools until he started the 7th grade when he started going to Welda. He graduated from Welda High School in 1943. This was also the start of his farming career which was the love of his life until his passing. He had planted over 70 years of crops, having planted his first crop when he was a senior in high school and his last 325 acre wheat crop in the fall of 2013.

In 1946, Clarke had his own truck and was spreading lime on various farms in Anderson County. When the government contracts ran out, Clarke went to western Kansas to haul grain for a custom combiner. On his return through eastern South Dakota, he asked permission from his employer to go to Meadow, South Dakota, to visit his uncle Jim Starr. This was the start of his adventures in the Dakotas. He farmed land around Meadow in 1947.

During the winter of 1948 Clarke returned to Kansas. He and Ruby Mitchell were married in Garnett, Kansas on January 31, 1948, a marriage which lasted for over 66 years. During the next several years they farmed as many as seven different places, the farthest being as much as 100 miles apart.

Clarke planted his spring wheat crops and followed the grain harvest with his combine crew during the summers. In the summer of 1952 the harvesting was from western Kansas to the Canadian border. His combine was loaded in the ditch that separated the United States from Canada. He returned to Meadow, South Dakota, to harvest alfalfa seed down in the Wall, South Dakota area.

A son, Wayne Starr, was born on March 18, 1953, at the Iola, Kansas hospital, being the first caesarean birth that had taken place at that hospital. The baby's birth prevented Ruby's return to Dakota with Clarke in the spring. It was a late planting season. Bored by idleness, Clarke purchased his first airplane and made his first solo flight in a beautiful aluminum Luscombe airplane. Several years later he delivered this same plane to Pennsylvania.

Clarke added semi-trucks to his life in the following years delivering grain to Minneapolis, Denver, Salt Lake, and Kansas City. To make this possible and profitable he began selling fertilizer in Minnesota and North and South Dakota. For the volume of fertilizer he sold, he won two free trips to Acapulco, Mexico, one to the Grand Bahamas, one to Las Vegas, Nevada, and three trips to Hawaii. He was able to take Wayne and his wife Diann with him on his last trip to Hawaii. While in Hawaii he was hailed by a friend from Lemmon, South Dakota. Neither had known that the other was visiting there. He had to travel a long distance before he was in an area where he was not known.

In his love for the soil, he became involved with selling Noble Machinery which he purchased from Canada. This machinery involved the under cutting of the soil, which kept the dry Dakota land from blowing. He introduced this machinery into the Bison, South Dakota area to start with.

In 1955 the Starr's basically settled at Bison, South Dakota. Clarke's love of flying led him to purchase his 1959 piper airplane. He obtained his commercial flying license and started his years of crop spraying. The largest one day of spraying was a 960 acre field. It was a section and a half of straight flying. Try telling that to the people of Florida. They were used to small 60 acre patches. The days started at day break and ended at dark. One time he was starting to fly just as the dance crowd was going home. Clarke sprayed his own crops with this same little airplane not so very many years ago. Clarke's last flying took place a little over a year ago. By this time he was flying his twin Comanche. When he became involved in the spraying business he quit making the trips south for the western Kansas harvesting season.

Since he had his own farming acres and his own trucks, Clarke began building the elevator and grain bins out on his farm, which led to getting the elevator and fertilizer licenses. The grain purchasing continued for many years until he sold the land in 2004.

Finally the years began to catch up on this hard working man. The South Dakota winters became harder and harder to endure. Clarke returned to the land of his birth in eastern Kansas. He farmed here until last year. Each summer he returned to his beloved Dakota land. Each winter he came again to Welda, Kansas where he was born. The trips to the doctors and hospitals in Kansas became more and more frequent. Still his love of farming never decreased. He experienced considerable pleasure even in the summer of 2013 out in the fields on his tractor.

Clarke was a 60 year member of the Masonic Lodge at Garnett, Kansas. He was a 50 year member of the Fairview Chapter of the Eastern Star at Bison, where he was three times the Worthy Patron of that order. For many years he was a member of the A.O.P.A. flying organization. He also was a member of Farm Bureau for many years.

The greatest joy of Clarke's life was his son, Wayne, five grandchildren, and three great grandchildren. Each year he looked forward to their visits to his house at Bison.

The Welda High School alumni reunion was also a looked forward to event. He traveled for many miles to return to this yearly visit and didn't miss very many of them. He enjoyed "showing off" his granddaughters when they were able to accompany him.

Clarke had two philosophies in life. The first, "THE IMPOSSIBLE just takes longer". The second, "Strangers are just friends I haven't met yet". I don't think that he ever met a stranger. He loved to visit with everyone.

He was preceded in death by his parents; an infant brother, and a three month old sister.

Clarke leaves to mourn his passing his wife, Ruby Starr; son Wayne Starr and wife Diann of Estelline, South Dakota; one grandson David Starr of Milbank, South Dakota; four granddaughters Carol Jergenson and husband Ryan and great grandson Zane of Fargo, North Dakota; Mary Heckenlaible and husband Lee of Chancellor, South Dakota; Linda Miller and husband Derek and great granddaughter Melani Eckman, and great grandson Body Miller of Watertown, South Dakota; Nancy Starr of Brookings, South Dakota; sister-in-law Edna Boots of Tulsa, Oklahoma; brother-in-law Bob Mitchell and wife Ginny of New Strawn, Kansas; three cousins, five nieces and nephews, and a host of friends and neighbors.

which had $184,849.23 overdue. Although the property sold for significantly less than that, its sale was a success for Anderson County. That's because the county itself purchased the property for $4,516. The property sits next to the county's road department shop and rural fire department. It's expected the county will raze the building, which is in very poor condition. County officials already have discussed how to handle asbestos removal when the building is demolished.

Some properties sold for more than the amount owed. The county can only collect the amount of past due property taxes and interest, and must in some way refund any additional money to the previous owner. Campbell said in one case, the previous owner is at Anderson County Jail and owes the county restitution for his crimes. Campbell and other county officials are investigating the possibility of using money from the sale of his property toward restitution.

The largest amount paid for a property was $37,000. Two properties sold for $10,000 each, and another for $14,000. Campbell said he didn't know details about the properties, but he believed the higher prices were paid for properties that included residential homes or buildings. The bidding started at a minimum of $20 and several properties sold for around that amount, he said. In most cases, those properties were for small chunks of land, such as a triangle or odd-sized property that likely was sliced off during a property transfer at some point. In many cases, the new owner is an adjoining property owner.

Campbell is completing paperwork to finalize the transfers of deeds to the property, which is expected to happen soon. Although the people who purchased properties in the tax sale technically are the owners, they won't be able to prove ownership until the deed has been recorded.

The recent tax sale included properties that were delinquent for about eight to nine years, up to 2006. Campbell said he expects to have another tax sale within the next calendar year that will clear up delinquent properties up to about 2011. The next sale likely won't have as many properties, he said.

Delinquent tax sales require a significant amount of paperwork and behind-the-scenes procedures, Campbell said. The county had been trying to organize a sale for several years, but it kept getting delayed. Even after it seemed everything was in order, the most recent sale was delayed because a property owner filed a protest. Campbell said he has handled about four tax sales and this was the first time anyone filed a protest. Campbell handles the tax sale as part of regular counselor duties and does not receive additional compensation.

Although county commissioners have said they would like to have tax sales on a more regular basis, Campbell said it's reasonable for a county the size of Anderson to have a sale between every five to 10 years.

Eventually, they tracked down Burress.

Despite the recent storm, the county remains below-normal for precipitation so far this year, with each of the first three months of the year less than an inch below normal. The county

Temperatures are expected to be a little warmer this week, with a high near 60 today increasing to the lower 70s throughout the rest of the week. There is a 20 percent chance of showers and thunderstorms Saturday, increasing to a 60 percent chance by Sunday.

more than 20 years ago, and the plastic housing for the letters has turned yellow.

The endowment association previously looked at replacing the sign with an electronic version, but found the cost would be a minimum of $8,000 to $10,000 for a very basic, one-sided model. Group members estimated it now would cost about $12,000 for a double-sided sign, which they would prefer.

Doering died suddenly in February 2013. In June of that year, the endowment association dedicated their annual 5K run/walk event in his honor. They plan to dedicate this year's 5K run/walk on June 7 in his honor as well, Connie Rockers, with the endowment association, said.

Last year's run/walk event brought in $5,000, and the Goppert Foundation, which owns area banks including GSSB, matched that amount. Other groups also gave donations, and the fund currently is $10,600. Rockers said she expects this year's event to bring in enough money to pay for the sign plus the group's annual scholarship commitments. She said she hopes the endowment association will be able to donate $12,000 for the sign after the June 7 event.

School board members said the new sign likely will need to be repositioned, and they would prefer to have the sign placed higher on a pole rather than sitting on the ground like the current sign. They would prefer to have the sign positioned so that travelers on K-31 could see the sign from either direction.

meeting. She updated commissioners on changes that had been made since she arrived in 2007, and outlined specific systems at each of the city's departments. Kinney said she is seeking estimates to replace or update about 13 computers, laptops or workstations that use the XP system out of a total of 27 in various departments, not including the airport or library, which have IT agreements with the FAA and Southeast Kansas Library System, respectively. Kinney said she hoped to have the improvements done soon, but did not offer specifics about cost or timeframe to have the new workstations up and running.

The city will need to replace or upgrade eight of 14 workstations at City Hall, two workstations at the sewer plant, one at the police department, and two computers at the city's housing authority office. All of those computers use Windows XP, and most will be upgraded to Windows 7. Kinney said some of the programs the city uses are not compatible with Windows 8, which is the newest operating system available.

Some departments have IT contracts with outside agencies. The police department, for example, uses an XP system to submit reports to the Kansas Bureau of Investigation. Although the KBI still uses the XP system, the police have had problems sending reports and plan to replace that computer and submit reports another way. The airport has one computer system through FAA, and one computer through the city. The library's computers are obtained through the SEK library system. The library has 14 workstations; of those, eight use XP. SEK plans to update or replace most of the library's computers, although they plan to leave one offline XP computer in the children's section because it has children's games that aren't compatible with newer systems.

Kinney said she has made significant changes to the city's IT system since she arrived, such as installing new security features and improving backup systems and procedures. She said it took considerable time and effort to compile the report, which looked at several details in each of the city departments. In addition to the computers and workstations, the report also included details about the type of Internet available at each department. Internet speeds and availability vary by department, typically depending on what package was available for the best deal at the time the city added Internet to a department.

Peine thanked Kinney for the report. He said he saw numerous areas where the city could improve efficiency, and said he would meet with her to discuss those items.

"Typically these end up being living documents," he said, adding that he expected the report was simply a starting point and would be modified over time.

Presto! More education money in Kansas

Santa Claus returned to Kansas education Sunday night with $126 million in new money, courtesy of a State Supreme Court somehow now in charge of state education funding and a Legislature willing to pay big money for less “educratic” control of local education.

It’s the logical follow up to what has become a familiar refrain in Kansas Education, as teachers and administrators stand with their palms upturned and their pockets turned inside out, lamenting the constant decline in education dollars, and the heroic state court system which has deemed itself the “Magnificent 7” of beleaguered education in the Sunflower State.

We could argue all day about the justifications for the Kansas Supreme Court’s decision last March that commanded the Legislature to put more money into schools to “equalize” education between poor and rich districts in the state. We could talk about the fact that Kansas already spends more than 55% of its budget on K-12 education. We could argue the favorite point among conservatives, that education funding is actually way, way higher once you add all funds together than just the “base” state aid amount paid per-student that educators are always complaining about. We could argue the problems in education are as much or more social in nature than financial and that everything ultimately comes back to messed-up households and parents that don’t participate in their kids’ formal education process, and an education system too neutered of effective discipline to handle them.

We could argue all that, as we have for the past 20 years or so in Kansas, but we wouldn’t get any further than we already have.

So despite the anemic economy the conservative-controlled Legislature opened its wallet, but in doing so insisted on including some education reform measures which conservatives have wanted for some time. For starters:

- Allow businesses and corporations to make tax-deductible contributions for scholarships to private schools for low-income or special needs. This is a hint toward the old argument about “school choice,” or taking some of the tax money we spend on public school in Kansas and allowing it to be spent for private school costs, in an effort to make public schools compete. Public schools are typical against it, of course.

- Provisions in the bill make it easier for school boards and administrators to fire teachers they don’t want anymore by eliminating their “due process” rights. That basically guaranteed the right to a hearing regarding the firing and some trip mileage charged by the KNEA representative who always attends the hearing to cajole the school board into keeping that teacher on. Conservatives and even some administrators have wanted this one for years, they say, so districts could run tighter ships. Obviously, teachers and their union, the KNEA, oppose it.

- The bill would also relax requirements for teacher licensing when districts hire instructors with real-world professional experience in areas like math, science, finance and technical disciplines. That way someone who retired to your town after a 35-year career in pharmacy could teach chemistry at the local school if the district was in a pinch.

Presuming the governor signs the bill as it stood yesterday, you can bet on this: Though most people won’t know the background on this new law or the particularities of it, it’s going to be a big, big deal within the education establishment in Kansas particularly because of the due process clause sacrificed to get the funding.

What is it they say about being careful what you wish for?

Well, I’m one of the mean old business people in Garnett who the Colony junior mom is so upset about. How many Colony customers do I have? I can’t think of one. The only time I see anyone from Colony is when they want donations for their Colony Days or prom or something. Do you come to Garnett to shop? If you do, I don’t see you. You like Lola so much? Go get your donations from them. Thank you.

A special thanks to all the volunteer firemen. You have all worked so hard. We do appreciate what you do.

I just thought I’d call and give a heads up to the community. I live directly across from the Anderson County barn where the volunteer fire department keeps their vehicles and I’ve noticed in the last few weeks with the high winds we’ve been having they are being called out so many times I’ve lost count. They seem to no sooner get back and get their equipment put away and cleaned up and within the hour they’re called back out for another fire and it’s been going on like this the last two weeks. I just wanted to let these dedicated firefighters know how much we appreciate their service.

Hey everybody, watch out for the “not-a-speed-trap, speed trap” on West 7th. It sure is hard to maintain the correct speed there since it was changed but the officer there at the corner each night will help you remember.

How did a zoning change get approved for the monstrous storage building on Hayes Street behind the hospital in a residential subdivision? Does Garnett not have a zoning board?

This is to thank the Garnett Fire department for their very helpful work last week. We had a little fire and they were very prompt, prepared and very professional and they did a great job. I think we are very fortunate to have such a great fire department for this great small town.

Why the renewable fuels standard matters so much for Kansans

When it comes to developing alternatives to fossil fuels and foreign oil, should the United States move forward or backward?

That’s the issue before the federal Environmental Protection Administration (EPA) as it decides whether to reverse its proposal to reduce the amount of biofuels that must be blended into the nation’s motor fuel supply.

The EPA’s proposal would weaken one of the most successful energy policies ever implemented in the US, the Renewable Fuel Standard (RFS).

Supported by both parties in both Houses of Congress, signed into law by then-President Bush, and backed by President Obama, the RFS has nurtured the growth of the US ethanol industry that supports almost 390,000 direct and indirect jobs, added $44 billion to the economy in 2013, paid $8.3 billion in taxes, reduced our dependence on imported oil from 60 percent in 2005 to 41 percent in 2012, and cuts greenhouse gas emissions by 25 to 40 percent, compared to gasoline.

As I testified at an EPA public hearing in December, Kansans have a stake in the RFS. In spite of the national downturn, the US ethanol industry has revived rural economies and created good jobs – 46 percent paying more than $75,000 a year, 96 percent providing health insurance, and 92 percent offering retirement plans. By spending $36.1 billion on crops and other goods and services, ethanol provides a stable market for farmers and local businesses.

Now the nation’s ninth largest ethanol producer, Kansas’ 12 ethanol plants support about 13,000 jobs, while creating a market for about 183 million bushels of sorghum and corn. Thanks largely to ethanol, Kansas has the nation’s ninth lowest unemployment rate.

Preserving the US ethanol industry and

LOCAL COMMENTARY

JEFF OESTMANN, EKAE

the policies that promote it are intensely personal for me. I have proudly served in this industry since 1996 and am currently CEO of East Kansas Agri-Energy in Garnett, a rural community with a population of about 3,000 in Anderson County.

As the US ethanol production grew from less than 1 billion gallons to more than 13 billion, I saw the positive impact on local economies in Kansas and throughout the Midwest. Before our facility, Anderson County was one of the poorest counties in Kansas. Now, with our company’s substantial investment in ethanol production, the area is beginning to boom and thrive.

But all this economic progress could be reversed if the EPA weakens the RFS. This proposal could destabilize rural economies, just as farmers are expecting a near-record corn crop, while jeopardizing tens of thousands of high-paying, family-supporting, jobs that can’t be outsourced overseas.

Moreover, the EPA’s proposal would strand billions of dollars of private capital investments by renewable fuel producers who have brought the industry from infancy to maturity because of the stability provided by the RFS. With the industry on the cusp of commercializing the next generation of even more environmentally-friendly biofuels, the EPA must not throw this progress into reverse gear.

As a Marine Corps veteran, I am proud that the ethanol industry reduces our dangerous dependency on foreign oil. As our country reduces the $1 billion-a-day that we spend on foreign oil, often from unfriendly or unstable countries, we will stop paying for the petroleum profits of our enemies. And we will have less need to defend oil routes and put our troops in harm’s way, at a terrible human and financial cost.

If the EPA’s proposal takes effect, the losers will include economic growth and job creation, especially in rural America, as well as our natural environment and our national effort to end our addiction to imported oil.

The only winner will be Big Oil, which desperately wants to maintain its monopoly over the nation’s gasoline pumps and fuel tanks. Having known since 2007 that the RFS would require ethanol blends greater than 10 percent, the oil companies have refused to make the investments in the infrastructure to offer motorists more choices at the pump. Now, the oil companies and the EPA are using the resulting “blend wall” as a justification for weakening the RFS.

The RFS program was designed to force the oil industry to change, for the sake of our economy, our environment, and our energy security. Let’s keep moving forward.

Kansans should tell the EPA, loud and clear, “Don’t mess with the RFS.”

Get ready to take a gamble with the legislature

While the Legislature is out of the Statehouse for its Spring Break, let’s take a little spin at the roulette wheel.

There’s a game of chance going on in the governor’s office, and it will mean jobs, entertainment and state tax revenues, or...not.

Spin the wheel, and the governor either signs — or doesn’t sign or allows to become law without his signature — a bill that would allow someone with about $55.5 million in cash and chips to build a casino in either Crawford or Cherokee counties in southeast Kansas.

The area — which has seen across-the-state-line casinos sprout like crabgrass in Oklahoma — needs some economic development, and a casino sure is one.

It’s probably not odd that casinos don’t make it into most of the governor’s eco-devo speeches, or jobs creation speeches or cut-income-taxes speeches.

This is eco-devo with a little moral/social sandbag of gambling riding on it.

And actually, the chance for a casino in southeast Kansas would mirror the southwest Kansas casino at Dodge City, where to encourage the business, the state reduced the capital investment requirement from the $225 million for the Kansas City area to $50 million. And cutting the cash-up-front privilege fee for getting the casino license — sorta like a tip to the blackjack dealer after a good hand — brings the price to $5.5 million instead of the big-city casino fee of $25 million.

The investment requirements? Well, in the Kansas City area where there’s lots to do, a little more glamour is demanded to make sure that the casino draws a crowd than in far-west Kansas and southeast Kansas. And, of course, the nice thing about playing slot machines is that people play slot machines in a pole barn if they have to...or maybe the back room of a fraternal organization.

But there is this gambling/spend the rent money social overtone that non-gamblers refer to, and it turns out to be a fairly interesting little social policy decision for the governor. Socially conservative Kansans would prefer their fellow Kansans spend their money on painting their houses, feeding their children or probably attending even R-rated movies instead of putting money into slot machines or card games.

At some point, you have to figure that Gov. Sam Brownback already has that conservative crowd, and if it gets ticked off that he allows the casino, well, everyone makes mistakes. But, if he vetoes the bill to please the conservatives who are already going to be voting for him, does he upset the eco-devo crowd that likes to see bulldozers moving dirt and steelworkers welding building frames?

Interesting little decision coming up here. And, the governor tends to be tidy enough that nobody’s going to believe he lost the bill in a stack of old newspapers and candy wrappers on his desk.

Vikings baseball lose two

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

WELLSVILLE - The Central Heights' baseball team opened their season March 31 with two disappointing defeats at the hands of the Wellsville Eagles.

The first game of the doubleheader was a pitcher's dual that was won by Wellsville 2-0. Jordan Horstick pitched 4 1/3 innings, allowed one hit, struck out 10 batters and only gave up one unearned run.

"He was tremendous for his first outing of the year. He gave us a chance to win the game," Coach Jason Brown said when talking about the solid start on the mound by Horstick.

As well as the pitching and defense was, the offense was equally inept. Horstick and Will Thoele each had one hit, but that was all the Vikings were able to manage for the game.

"We only had two hits on the night and didn't perform well at the plate. We faced a good pitcher in (Shamus) Kearney, but we have to do better to get where we want to be," Brown said.

Kearney of Wellsville tossed the two-hitter and struck out 14 batters in the process.

In the late game, the Vikings came up just short again losing the game 7-5.

Defensively the team let down the pitching staff. Tristan Davis and Coby Robertson combined for six innings as they allowed seven runs, just three of them earned.

Horstick led the team offensively going 1-2, scoring three runs, one run batted in and walked twice.

Despite the five runs, Coach Brown knows his club had their opportunities.

"We left a lot of base runners on base. We left the bases loaded two innings in a row with no outs and didn't even put the ball in play," he stated frustratingly. "We have a lot of little things that we need to fix to get better. This gives us a chance to know what we need to work on."

ACHS Track teams compete at Baldwin

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

BALDWIN - The Bulldog boys' and girls' track teams traveled to Baldwin for their first track meet of the season April 3 and came away with mixed results.

The boys' team struggled to place throughout the meet, but with only 9 athletes it will be very difficult to compete against much larger teams.

Tyler Woodard finished third in the long jump with a jump of 20 feet 3 inches. Woodard was the only athlete on the boys' side to place.

The girls' squad had numerous members place at the meet.

Sophomores Makayla

Kuesser finished second in the high jump with a jump of 5 feet 2 inches, Reagan Jirak picked up an eighth place finish with a heave of 101 feet 8 inches in the javelin and Jessica McCullar long jumped 14 feet 8 inches to finish in fifth place.

Senior Tayler Porter finished fourth in the 2000 Meter Steeplechase with a time of 9:34.

Right behind Porter was another sophomore, Eliza Sibley, who finished the race in 9:48.

In relay events, the girls finished sixth in the 4x800 meter relay and fourth in the 4x1000 meter relay with a time of 53.89.

Kuesser placed sixth in the 1000 meter dash with a time of 13.73 seconds.

Wellsville manhandles Vikings softball team

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

WELLSVILLE - The Wellsville Eagles weren't gracious hosts March 31 to the Central Heights Vikings softball team as they dominated both games, 13-0 and 14-1.

In the season opener, Wellsville pounded out 16 hits as they cruised to an easy 14-1 victory.

Central Heights actually got on the board first in the top of the first inning, but Wellsville would take control after knotting the game at one following the opening frame.

The Eagles would go on to score four in the second, six in the third and three more in the fourth to round out the scoring.

The second game of the doubleheader didn't go any better. Wellsville scored 13 runs on 13 hits and the Vikings were shut out and picked up only one hit for the game.

The Eagles scored three runs in each of the first inning and tacked on four more in the fourth to pull out the 13-0 victory.

The second game of the doubleheader didn't go any better. Wellsville scored 13 runs on 13 hits and the Vikings were shut out and picked up only one hit for the game.

The Eagles scored three runs in each of the first inning and tacked on four more in the fourth to pull out the 13-0 victory.

ACHS girls softball swept

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

CARBONDALE - Thursday, March 28, the AC girls hit the road and lost both games of a doubleheader to the Santa Fe Trail Chargers.

Santa Fe jumped up early on the Bulldogs as they scored 2 runs in the first and 4 in the second to take an early 6-0 lead on their way to a 10-3 victory.

The AC girls got their first run in the third inning. Magner led off the inning with a walk and was able to get around to score to cut the lead to 6-1.

The Chargers responded by scoring two runs in the bottom half of both the fourth and fifth innings.

The Bulldogs were able to plate a run in both the sixth and seventh inning, but it wasn't nearly enough.

The final game of the day saw the Chargers control the game, 10-0.

Santa Fe Trail took command in the bottom of the first. The first three batters reached and scored on their way to an early 4-0 lead.

The Chargers put the game away by scoring 3 runs in the fourth and 2 more in the fifth.

Bulldogs win season opener, drop second game

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - The Anderson County Bulldog baseball team won their season opener Tuesday, March 25, 4-2 over the Jayhawk-Linn Jayhawks. The second game of the doubleheader would see the Jayhawks roll 20-0 over the Bulldogs.

In the first game, the Jayhawks broke into the scoring column first with one run in the top of the first inning to take an early 1-0 lead.

The Bulldogs were silenced for the first two innings before breaking through for four runs in the bottom of the third to take a 4-1 lead.

Ryan Alley tripled in the inning as he picked up the only extra base hit in the game for the Bulldogs.

Bryce Dieker, Tyler Wolken, Preston Emperley and Mitchell Highberger all drove in a run during the third inning rally.

With a combination of solid pitching and defense for both teams, the only other run scored was in the seventh and final inning as the Jayhawks scored one more.

Emperley, who is a sophomore, led the way for the Bulldogs offensively with two hits, scored one run, drove in one run and had a stolen base.

Sophomore Mason Skiles went five strong innings allowing just one run on five hits. He also had five strikeouts and walked three batters in the impressive performance to open the season.

Head coach Jeremy Ball commented about the season opening victory. "Defensively we made plays that good teams make. Offensively we started out slow but caught some momentum in the middle of the game."

The second game wouldn't yield the same results for the Bulldogs. The Jayhawks scored seven runs in the first and 12 more in the third on their way to a dominating 20-0 victory.

"Jayhawk-Linn came out ready to hit the baseball (in the second game). Defensively we weren't focused on making the routine plays that we were making in the first game," Coach Ball said. "You give a good hitting team like them extra chances and they will make you pay."

Tanner Lickteig and Wolken each had one hit, but that was all that the Bulldogs were able to muster for the game that only lasted three innings.

Dieker started the game on the mound for the Bulldogs and gave up eight runs, just two of them earned, on seven hits in the first two innings.

Vincent Trujillo came on in relief in the third inning allowing 12 runs on 11 hits.

Bulldogs swept by Santa Fe Trail

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

CARBONDALE - The ACHS Bulldogs baseball team made their first road trip Thursday, March 27, as they were swept by the Santa Fe Trail Chargers.

In the early game, the Bulldogs took a 2-0 lead after the third inning as senior Tanner Lickteig hit a 2-run double to give his team the advantage.

Preson Emperley, the starting Bulldog pitcher, ran into some troubles in the fifth and sixth innings after holding the Chargers scoreless up to that point.

Santa Fe Trail scored four runs in the bottom of the fifth and two more in the sixth to put the Bulldogs into a 6-2 hole they weren't able to recover from.

"Defensively we were making good team plays until the last few innings," Coach Ball said referring to a dropped fly ball and balk that both resulted in runs scoring. "Offensively we hit the ball well and were able to get a few runs across," he said.

Anderson County did add a run in the seventh on a double from Lickteig, but that was where the rally stopped.

Lickteig led the team offensively with two hits and drove in all three runs. Tyler Woken contributed with three singles and a run scored.

The second game of the doubleheader was dominated by the Chargers.

Santa Fe Trail scored 12 runs in the first inning and five more in the third to knock off the Bulldogs 17-2 in just three innings.

"Again we had a lack of focus for the second game on defense. We didn't make the routine plays on defense to keep the game going past three innings to give our offense a chance to get something going," Coach Ball stated.

Iola sweeps Bulldogs

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

IOLA - The ACHS Bulldogs traveled to Iola to take on the Mustangs Tuesday, April 1, and lost a pair of games. The Mustangs knocked off the Bulldogs by scores of 7-2 and 9-5 to pull off the sweep.

In the first game of the doubleheader, Iola took a 4-0 lead heading into the fourth thanks to three runs in the bottom of the third off a Mustang homerun to give them some breathing room.

The Bulldogs were able to muster one run in the fourth inning but the Mustangs answered with two in the bottom half of the inning to lead 6-1.

Both teams rounded out the game by just scoring one more run each to account for the final score of 7-2.

Preston Emperley and Mitchell Highberger led the Bulldogs with two hits each.

"Defensively we made most plays and gave ourselves a chance to be in the game. Offensively we started out slow and didn't make the most of our opportunities," head coach Jeremy Ball said regarding his teams' performance in the opener.

In the second game of the night, Iola jumped out to an early 5-0 lead as they scored 2 runs in the first and three runs in the second inning.

A leadoff homerun in the third inning by Highberger cut the lead to 5-1, but Iola didn't allow the Bulldogs to gain any momentum as they shut them down not allowing any more runs until the sixth inning.

The Bulldogs did rally for three runs in the sixth inning and were threatening in the seventh before a strikeout ended the game with the bases loaded in the 9-5 defeat.

Ryan Alley, Zach Schroeder and Mason Skiles all picked up two hits in the second game. One of the hits for Schroeder was a double as he drove in two runs for the game.

Ball, once again, was happy with the team defensively but knows his team has to get off to better starts to win some games. "We had another slow start offensively, but came alive in the sixth inning and had the bases loaded in the seventh. We just weren't able to take advantage. We are close to putting a full game together and when that happens we'll be looking good," he said.

That guy's a real card

Use your business card as a modern business weapon; think of it as a tiny 3.25x2 inch ninja star you can fling with Jackie Chan precision and speed. It's a great, but underused tool to help you sell stuff.

A quick warning though: If you're using your home computer to print your own business cards - BE SURE they are of proper quality. Nothing says "I do this on the side" more than a cheesy-looking homemade business card complete with tear-away perforation edges, ink smears and typographical errors. I print business cards so I can't say I'm unbiased - but when you have a professional printer print your cards you get the benefit of his grammar and language skills and a higher quality product. A decent set of 500-1,000 cards will cost you $50-$70 and will be well worth every penny.

You may already have a great set of cards, and they may be pushed back to the back of your desk behind that old sandwich wrapper and the "D" batteries which have probably gone bad by now. Take them out and set them somewhere you'll see them every day. Put some in your shirt pocket (or somewhere they won't get dogeared from wear every day) and follow these tips to use them to generate sales.

1) On the counter: If you have a storefront with a register counter, be sure to put them out for the taking, and be sure your clerks drop one in every sack or bag that a customer takes out.

2) Anytime you leave a tip, leave your card.

3) There's obviously a fine line between card drops and littering, so don't overdo this, but be sure to leave cards on public bulletin boards or at coffee shops, etc. You can even go into neighborhoods or door-to-door in business areas and leave a card. Some may get tossed, but some may not.

4) Slip your card into video cases when you rent movies. And don't forget when you mail a bill or pay your taxes or send anybody a check for anything - drop in a card.

5) If you go to a fair or an expo - even if you don't have your own booth - chat with vendors and give them your card.

Make it a game with yourself. Carry cards with you every day, and think of a new place each day to leave a card. It's one of the cheapest ways to market yourself and generate sales.

BUSINESS BEAT

Anderson County Hospital kicks off Women in Training program

GARNETT - Anderson County Hospital's Women in Training program begins Thursday, April 10, with the goal to help area women better understand the importance of physical fitness and give them the tools needed to lead a healthier lifestyle.

Research shows that exercise can slow or help prevent heart disease, stroke, high blood pressure, high cholesterol, type 2 diabetes, arthritis, osteoporosis (bone loss), and loss of muscle mass. Yet, according to the President's Council on Fitness, Sports and Nutrition, less than 5 percent of adults participate in 30 minutes of physical activity each day, and only one in three adults receive the recommended amount of physical activity each week.

Women in Training is an eight-week program that offers women of all ages and fitness levels the opportunity to participate in a self-paced walk/run and cross-training series. Participants will also have the opportunity to talk with medical experts about improving their health and reviewing their baseline health numbers.

The program will run from April 10 through May 29 at the Depot building next to the Prairie Spirit Rail Trail in Garnett, Kan. Two sessions will be offered each Thursday and participants may choose to attend at 5:15 p.m. or 6:15 p.m. Each session will include a 45-minute-long walk/run/cross-train session at each woman's pace, and a 15-minute talk by a health care professional. During these talks, our health care experts will share the latest information on heart and breast health, nutrition, cross training and other health and wellness topics. The cost to participate in the eight-week program is $35. Free childcare is provided.

For no additional charge, participants receive a cholesterol profile, thyroid and glucose check, body mass index (BMI) screening and weight and waist circumference measurement. Vitamin D testing also will be offered for an additional charge of $25.

To register or for more information, contact Michelle Cunningham or Karen Gillespie at 785-448-3131.

Anderson County Hospital is a member of Saint Luke's Health System, which consists of 10 area hospitals and several primary and specialty care practices, and provides a range of inpatient, outpatient and home care services.

There's been a lot of smoke in the air in Anderson County the past few months. Dry, warm and windy conditions have kept fire fighters on their toes. Already in the first three months of 1994, fire departments have spent more than half of the amount of money they spent in all of 1993 to pay the costs of fighting fires. In 1993, fire fighting in the county cost $12,140. The first quarter of this year, the costs are $6,160.

The Lone Ranger was a fictional masked former Texas Ranger who fought injustice in the American Old West with his Indian side kick and friend, Tonto.

The Lone Ranger was played by several actors, but the one we knew and loved most was Clayton Moore.

Tonto was played by more than one actor also, but the one we knew was Jay Silverheels, who was a Mohawk from Six Nations Indian Reserve in Ontario, Canada.

Clayton Moore born as Jack Carlton Moore on Sept. 14, 1914, in Chicago, Ill. He died of a heart attack Dec. 28, 1999, at age 85, in West Hills, Calif.

Jay Silverheels was born Harold Smith May 26, 1912, at the Six Nations Indian Reserve in Brantford, Ontario, Canada. He died March 5, 1980, from complications of a previous stroke in 1976 at age 67 in Calabasas, Calif. Besides acting he excelled in the sport of Lacrosse.

'Do you see the trouble we are in?'

Weekly Devotional by David Bilderback

The Book of Nehemiah chronicles the rebuilding of the city walls of Jerusalem by a Jewish servant named Nehemiah. Nehemiah served as cupbearer for the Persian king. He received distressing news about his native land. The walls around the city were still in ruins although the project to rebuild the city, and its Temple had been underway for many years. So Nehemiah went to Jerusalem on special assignment by the king to oversee the rebuilding of the city.

In Chapter 2 Nehemiah inspects the walls around the city. In 2:17 he says to the people, "Do you see the trouble we are in, how Jerusalem lies in ruins with its gates burned." The city had lain in ruins for almost 150 years. An earlier attempt to rebuild the wall had been stopped. The people had become accustomed to the deplorable condition of the city and had given no further thought to rebuilding it.

This is the same thing that happens in our lives today. We never seem to be able to rise above our circumstances and soon we are accustomed to whatever condition we find ourselves. Perfectly willing to admit we can probably do nothing to alleviate the problem. This applies to individuals as well as families, church's or businesses. In order to ever move beyond this state some type of leadership is required.

Through Nehemiah's strong leadership the people rebuilt the walls and gates of the city and at the same time the people found their identity again as God's covenant people. Just as in the days of Nehemiah when an attitude of indifference had allowed the people to lapse into a life style that was unacceptable to God so today we are faced with the same issue.

Because we have legislated God out of most areas of our lives we have now grown accustomed to this landscape, a life without Godly influence, just as the Israelites had grown accustomed to their beautiful city being in ruins. We are willing to accept behavior today that only a few years ago would not have been acceptable. It is presented under the false pretense of new found freedoms. But freedom without accountability only brings failure and disappointment. Nehemiah pointed out to the people their deplorable condition.

Instead of praying to God for him to show us what his will is for our lives we need to recognize the trouble we are in and correct it. Then and only then will we be able to do the will of God. There will be no startling revelation from God. We will then be performing the will of God for our lives.

Library to discuss 'The Memory Keeper's Daughter'

The Garnett Public Library will hold a book discussion on Wednesday, April 23rd at 7 p.m. This month's book is "The Memory Keeper's Daughter" by Kim Edwards. Leading our discussion will be Paulabeth Henderson.

A brilliantly crafted, stunning debut for Kim Edwards, "The Memory Keeper's Daughter" articulates a silent fear close to every parent: What would happen if you lost your child, and she grew up without you? Based on this novel, A & E Television Network created a Lifetime Movie drama by the same title, which aired in 2008.

On a winter night in 1964, Dr. David Henry is forced by a blizzard to deliver his own twins. His son, born first, is perfectly healthy. Yet when his daughter is born, he sees immediately that she has Down's syndrome. Rationalizing it as a need to protect Norah, his wife, he makes a split-second decision that will alter all their lives forever. He asks his nurse to take the baby away to an institution and never to reveal the secret. But Caroline, the nurse, cannot leave the infant. Instead, she disappears into another city to raise the child herself. So begins the story that unfolds over a quarter of a century-in which these two families, ignorant of each other, are yet bound by the fateful decision made that long-ago winter night.

The books are available for checkout at the library. The discussions are held the fourth Wednesday of each month at 7 p.m. in the Archer Room at the library. Notification is posted in case of cancellation.

JAIL...

Now, Valentine is looking at a healthcare service to provide routine visits from a nurse or physician assistant (PA). Although there still will be times when an inmate requires treatment at a hospital or other medical facility, the nurse or PA can determine when the situation is an emergency and when the inmate can be treated at the jail. He also plans to require inmates to pay a $20 copay each time they see a doctor, and the costs will be assessed against them or added to their restitution.

Valentine said he expects to decide soon between two bids to provide the healthcare. The two proposals vary only slightly when it comes to providing routine visits, but there is significant differences when it comes to providing prescription drugs and over-the-counter medications.

Anderson County Hospital submitted a proposal with an annual cost of $39,108, under their proposal, a physician assistant would visit inmates weekly.

Advanced Correctional Healthcare, a company based in Peoria, Ill., that specializes in providing healthcare to correctional institutions, submitted a bid for $38,131. The company would provide nurse visits on a weekly basis, and doctor visits every-other-week, as well as extensive training to jail personnel and better insurance coverage in the event of malpractice or other health-care-related lawsuits. The big difference between the two is that Advanced Healthcare also would provide prescription drugs and over-the-counter medications.

The jail spent about $27,000 on prescriptions and over-the-counter medications last year, so the proposal from Advanced Healthcare essentially would save the county that cost. The ACH proposal would not.

Valentine said he has been working with ACH because he would prefer to give the business to a local vendor. However, he said the proposal from Advanced Healthcare essentially is about $28,000 lower, so he is more inclined to accept their bid.

Advanced Correctional Healthcare provides in-house medical care to more than 15 correctional facilities in Kansas, and about 200 nationwide. In the region, the company is used by Franklin and Linn counties. Valentine said he has been impressed by their track record and expertise in the field of correctional healthcare.

The county spent about $72,000 in inmate healthcare last year, not including dental care, so the bid from Advanced Healthcare could save the county more than $33,000.

Valentine said he plans to make a decision after he meets with county commissioners, perhaps as early as next week. Although the sheriff has the authority to manage the jail, he said he would like the commissioners to be on board with his
