Theater plans take big leap forward

Land purchase, grants help plans to bring new building to city

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT— Like dominoes, the pieces have fallen into place perfectly.

That's how Tom Emerson, treasurer for the Garnett Chamber Players, describes plans to build a new performing arts center in downtown Garnett.

There are many pieces that have been put into place recently, in a process that was expected to take as long as a decade. The group purchased the perfect land location at a great price earlier this year, Emerson said. Recently, the group received two grants toward the building process. And organizations already are starting to donate money for the project.

Exactly how those plans will develop still has yet to be determined, but recent developments will go a long way toward bringing a new theater and performing arts center to the community.

The Chamber Players Community Theater group is looking to erect a new building that will better serve their needs. Currently, the group performs at the Thelma Moore Playhouse, the 150-year-old former United Presbyterian Church building at Fifth and Walnut in Garnett, which has been the group's home since 2007.

Although the Chamber Players were glad to have a home base after more than a decade of bouncing from location to location, the old church comes with its own set of issues. The cost of utilities to heat or cool the building, for example, are significant.

"We didn't start out with a building plan, we started with a building problem," Emerson said.

The group realized that within 20 years, members would be forced to consider whether to invest a significant amount of money to replace or rehabilitate the building. So when they learned that a large lot of land on the north side of the downtown Garnett square was going to be offered at auction, board members quickly met to decide whether to bid. The previous landowner had donated the lot to Holy Angels for a benefit auction, and the Chamber Players were able to scoop it up for $11,000, less than half of the

Do you know how to display your flag for Flag Day?

Flag Day celebrates birth of 'Stars and Stripes' as official U.S. symbol

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

WASHINGTON, DC — It's been 237 years since the "Stars and Stripes" was officially born.

On Saturday, June 14, 1777, the "Stars and Stripes" was authorized by Congress as the national flag of the United States. More than 100 years later, in 1885, a teacher in a one-room schoolhouse in Wisconsin asked his students to write essays on what the flag meant to them, calling June 14 the flag's birthday. Thus began the tradition of "Flag Day," marked each June 14 to celebrate the birth of the U.S. flag. Nationally, Flag Day is celebrated by a national essay contest and other events.

Here are a few flag rules, as provided by the National VFW:

- The federal flag code says the universal custom is to display the U.S. flag from sunrise to sunset on buildings and stationary flagstaves in the open, but when a patriotic effect is desired the flag may be displayed

24-hours a day if properly illuminated during the hours of darkness. Also, the U.S. flag should not be displayed when the weather is inclement, except when an all-weather flag is displayed.

Displaying the Flag:

- On Same Staff
- U.S. flag at peak, above any other flag.

Community says 'Farewell, Leroy'

Delivery driver served local community for more than 34 years

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — For more than 30 years, Leroy Hamilton made friends in 30-second intervals.

He forged relationships while making deliveries as a UPS driver, serving the Garnett area nearly all his career. On Friday, signs of those relationships could be seen throughout the city.

"Farewell, Leroy."

"We will miss you."

Hamilton retired from UPS Friday, June 6, which also was his 58th birthday. He said he was overwhelmed by the outpouring of support and friendship, as numerous businesses and people around town posted farewell banners.

"Friday will always be probably the most joyous day of my life, retiring, but also the saddest day seeing everyone say goodbye," he said. "It was a lot harder than I thought it would be."

Even though he's retiring, Hamilton will remain an active part of the Garnett community. He has taken a part-time job as a custodian and maintenance man with the First Christian Church. He'll also offer his services for home maintenance and repair.

"I'm not the kind of person to just sit around," he said of his retirement plans.

Hamilton started working for UPS in late 1979, at a time when the company was just getting its start in Kansas and did not have the brand recognition it enjoys today. He knew very little about the company, only that there was a job opening for a delivery driver. There were eight routes in Kansas at the time; now, there are between 18 and 20 routes.

The first few years Hamilton served mostly as a substitute driver, working long, stressful days. He nearly quit several times, he said. But about four-and-a-half years after he started, Hamilton was assigned to a route that featured Garnett as the core area. The route has changed over the years, but Garnett always was the core area. At the time he left, a typical day included about 90 to 110 deliveries and another 10 to 12 pickups, traveling an average of 150 miles each day.

Over the years, Hamilton became part of the Garnett community. Although he was born and raised near Pomona, he decided it made sense to move to Garnett in 2006, after going through a divorce.

"I feel like it's been my home for over 30 years," he said. "I was made to feel very welcome."

Brief stops became opportunities to make friendships. Interacting with people along his route easily became the most rewarding part of the job, he said. Some people came to trust him to leave packages inside the doorway to their homes or businesses.

"It amazes me how much I know about people after talking to them in 30-second increments," he said. "I feel very blessed I had so many friendships with people I've had contact with over the years."

He also appreciates the nearly-constant concern from children who worried about his safety because his delivery truck didn't have doors.

"There was one little girl who was worried sick about me not having doors on my truck," he said. "I love the kids on my route. I've seen kids grow up and become parents."

And while he enjoyed seeing the children, he didn't always enjoy seeing dogs along his route. He's been bitten by dogs "hundreds of times," he said, with the most serious bite soon after he started working for UPS.

"There were dogs whose owners said, 'He won't bite,' as he was chewing on my leg."

He recalled one of his most memorable stops, at a rural location. After delivering the package, he returned to his truck to find a goat sitting in the driver's seat.

Another time, he made a delivery, drove a few miles to the next stop, and opened the bulkhead doors to find an angry cat that had stowed away.

He also said he appreciates the people who have kept an eye on him along the way. In earlier years, UPS allowed cash-on-delivery, or COD, packages. He was carrying $3,000 once when his truck broke down on I-35 near Ottawa. A highway patrol officer promised to keep a close eye on him. When Hamilton's boss stopped to pick him up, the highway patrolman was right there to make sure Hamilton was OK.

He's also seen floods, ice storms and blizzards, and trees blown across the road. But, somehow, he managed to end his career accident-free.

"It's always interesting," he said. "It's never the same day twice."

Hamilton lives in Garnett with his wife, Sandra. Between them, they have six children and 11 grandchildren.

He's not sure yet who will inherit his route, and admits there will likely be an adjustment period. He had more than 30 years to learn not only the route, but also people's preferences about deliveries.

And although he will miss seeing everyone on a daily basis, Hamilton said, "At least I can stand and talk for a few minutes, now."

while strengthening the role of arts and culture, promoting regional identity and enhancing the quality of life for citizens, according to a website page about the grant.

Arnold announced Friday the city's request had been approved. Under terms of the grant, the money will be released July 1 and groups will have about a year to complete the projects.

Arnold said he was pleased that so many organizations came together to make the grant a reality, and it's likely that cooperation helped state officials make their decision. "We're going to be able to help a lot of different organizations with this," he said. "It's a win for the city, culturally."

In addition to the City of Garnett, the grant application included support from other government organizations like the Garnett Chamber Players, Anderson County Development Agency and the E-Community Committee.

land's appraised value.

"We got the land we wanted at a price that couldn't be beat, and the money went to a good cause," he said.

The land was ideal in more ways than one. In addition to its location on the downtown square, the lot is near the site of the historic Garnett Army Hall, also known as the Grand Opera House, which burned in 1924. Emerson described it as the opportunity to offer "the first dedicated performance-based building in the community since the opera house burned."

The group recently received a grant from the Kansas Department of Health and Environment to pay for environmental testing at the site.

On Friday, June 6, board members learned the City of Garnett received a grant from the Kansas Department of Commerce to help pay costs of architectural renderings of the new building, plus other needs for the group. That news followed an announcement that the Chamber Players had been named a regional winner in the Kansas Department of Commerce's 2014 Business Appreciation Month contest.

During Sunday's performance of the latest theatrical offering, "Red, White and Tuna," representatives of the Garnett VFW and Ladies Auxiliary presented donations to the building fund. The Chamber Players is a 501c3 organization, meaning donations to the building fund are tax-deductible.

The Chamber initially planned a process that could take up to 10 years to complete the building. Depending on donations from organizations, businesses and individuals, that timeframe could be significantly decreased to as little as two years.

When the architectural renderings are completed, the Chamber Players will be able to present potential donors with a better idea of what will be needed to make the building a reality. Under terms of the grant, they cannot start the architectural process until July 1 and will have exactly one year to complete the drawings.

"We have lots of ideas and no plans," Emerson said.

Over the next few months, the group will consider what type of building is best suited to their needs.

"We'll begin our 24th season in August and we've never been in a building that was designed with us in mind," Emerson said.

Although the primary purpose of the building will be for use as a theater, board members hope to design something that will be of use for others in the community. For example, some have suggested the building could offer a public storm shelter in the basement. The board plans to carefully consider a variety of options, Emerson said.

"We're very open to all possibilities. There's a lot of excitement. Everybody is waiting for us to tell them what's next."

The Chamber Players have seen success that is nearly unheard of for a community theater group, especially in a city of about 3,000 people. The group offers four dinner theater performances each year, and nearly all shows are sold out. Attendance has grown nearly 50 percent over the past four to five years, primarily from within a radius of about 30 miles.

Emerson attributes the success to several factors: having a building that is identifiable to the group; utilizing local resources such as local actors, caterers, craftsmen and promoters; and, perhaps most importantly, knowing what the audience wants. The group is known for delivering quality comedies, with the occasional foray into something a little more dramatic, such as a murder mystery or dramatic comedy like "Steel Magnolias."

"We don't stray too far from the formula," Emerson said. "We know people come here to get lost in the entertainment. Our audience lets us spread our wings a little bit, but mostly, we are an escape."

Seattle gives recruiting gift to Garnett

The City of Seattle's mandate that employers in the city would be required to pay a minimum wage increasing to $15 per hour in 4-7 years marks an opportunity for Anderson County's economic development efforts – we should start advertising to recruit Seattle businesses to our market-based wage towns immediately.

This most recent attempt to use the defibrillator paddles of local government to boost socialism against the forces of private business reveals a window to the battle being waged between liberals and conservatives for the very soul of the nation. But in a less dramatic and more immediate sense, it means businesses in Seattle are already looking for greener pastures.

To characterize opponents to minimum wage increases as Cambodian sweat shop owners is a tired cliché, and no one knows that better than the board of directors who will make the decision over whether or not to bring a manufacturing plant or a data center or other job creator to your town. In truth, most jobs are created far above the minimum wage level in communities like Garnett – because scarcity of good labor drives up the price. Keep in mind, the socialist agenda as we're witnessing it today cares nothing about you feeling fulfilled in a career life in which you transition from an unskilled trainee and then progress up the income ladder as your value as a worker increases; socialists believe in taking away from those who have more than you and "redistributing" it, on the basis that everyone will then rejoice in their worth as dictated by the government.

Seattle Mayor Ed Murray hailed the city ordinance as a "historic moment." Kshama Sawant, a socialist member of the city council (a real socialist- no kidding!) declared it would "turn the tide against corporate politics."

It will turn the tide against job growth in those lesser skilled jobs too. But that will be Seattle's loss and other cities' gains.

Seattle was already defined as a hard place to do business. In just a few days, commercial property owners in Seattle already say the wage hike is giving tenants of business buildings pause to consider if they will renew their leases. The Seattle Times says one sit-down restaurant near the Seattle-Tacoma International Airport has already closed its doors.

The airport's minimum wage increase preceded the city's. The Northwest Asian Weekly newspaper reported minimum wage employees there are losing benefits such as 401(k)s, health insurance, paid holidays, overtime, complimentary meals and free parking. Waiters and bartenders are seeing drops in tips from customers who believe they no longer need to tip as much, causing servers incomes to actually drop.

But the biggest and longest-term casualties of Seattle's socialist leap are young workers, who will be denied the vital training provided by entry-level jobs – the basic blocking-and-tackling of learning to show up on time, smile at customers when you don't feel like it, do what the boss says even though you don't like him, and take pride in high quality work even if no one pats you on the back for it. Teen unemployment in Seattle was already higher than during the recession years of 2008 and 2009. Can you imagine employers hanging out "Help Wanted" signs and looking forward to paying a 16 year-old kid with no skills an annualized salary of $31,000 per year?

But all of those negatives will be positives for the communities elsewhere in the country that are savvy enough to start sourcing up those companies most effected by Seattle's $15 minimum wage. They'll make their pitch for relocating those companies, saying there's still enough free-market left in the country for both businesses and communities to find value.

Yep – and we should be making our pitch.

Yeah, this is a heads up to somebody. The Optimist sign that's 20-30 yards north of the intersection of Park Road and Highway 59 in Garnett on the west side of the road there is leaning over almost to the point it's going to fall down. Somebody needs to straighten that up, maybe put a repainted sign on that post as well, it's looking pretty faded. Heads up to somebody. Thank you.

You know it's not surprising the city would punish the whole community just to get back at someone for proposing a sidewalk. But there's similar things that they've done in the past but in the Phone Forum I can only take up so much space. But it is pretty dang low that things like this do happen right here in Garnett.

I have found it interesting listening to the Kansas City big-wigs court and coo the national Republicans to get them to bring their convention to Kansas City, when I remember all the way back to Truman and Pendergast and the unions in that town all the way down to the school board and the councilmen, the liberals at the newspaper and on the TV news, you name it, Kansas City wouldn't (deleted) on a Republican if he was on fire. I guess money really does talk after all. If they do pick Kansas City I hope at their convention they remember to mention the closed up malls at Indian Springs and Bannister Mall and the thugs taking over Westport and the Plaza and the city zoo and the infamous school district, and remind the country that this is what happens when Democrats run things. Thank you.

Every time I think this so-called president of ours has completely taken the cake he goes and does it one better. Why in the world would you trade five high-value terrorist prisoners from Gitmo for one loser who walked off his post and joined the enemy and they took full advantage of his stupidity? I just can't understand it. Everytime I think it's as bad as it can be it gets a little worse. November 2016, get this guy out of office, it can't happen fast enough.

Rumor has it that one of the classmates of the graduating class of 1954, in an attempt to grow better tomatoes than his classmates here in Garnett, is importing Texas tomatoes and tips on how to grow them.

I just wondered if there are any plans to mow out at the new sports complex or are we just going to continue to let it grow for a few more days, cut it and bail it for hay. This is ridiculous.

#hashtagidiocy; women take on white male privilege

It takes a nearly impenetrable obtuseness to conclude that the most salient thing to know about University of California Santa Barbara killer Elliot Rodger is that he was a white male who didn't like women.

Yet many liberal commentators have managed it in the painful festival of stupidity that has followed his horrific act of mass murder. The reaction has featured rants about sexism, white privilege and Hollywood, all of which are absurdly detached from the reality of what happened at UCSB.

It is usually only the details of these sorts of rampage killings that differ, not the central element: a sick young man not getting proper treatment for his severe mental illness. Rodger's mother had been so frightened by his YouTube videos that she alerted his counselor, and the police visited his apartment. According to The New York Times, Rodger had been prescribed risperidone, an anti-psychotic, but evidently refused to take it.

Even without that background, it is obvious that Rodger's final YouTube video and his 140-page manifesto promising to exact vengeance upon the women who spurned him are the ravings of a deranged person; as such, it is the derangement itself, not the content of the ravings, that is most important. Nonetheless, some commentators have plumbed his lunacy for meaning as if they were reading "The Bell Jar."

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

RICH LOWRY, King Features Syndicate

Washington Post film critic Ann Hornaday led the way with a piece asserting that it is "clear that his delusions were inflated, if not created, by the entertainment industry he grew up in" (his father works in Hollywood). According to Hornaday, "a sexist movie monoculture" dangerously misled Rodger into believing that he could always get the girl in the end.

Salon ran a piece by Brittney Cooper arguing that "white male privilege kills." Cooper seems to believe that severe psychiatric disorders are something that rich white kids are prone to because they consider themselves so entitled.

The other interpretation is that, as Jessica Valenti put it in a piece for The Guardian, "misogyny kills." There is no doubt that Rodger hated women. But who watches Rodger's final video promising to annihilate all of unworthy humanity like a god and thinks: You know what's wrong with that guy? The sexism. If only he were cool with women, he would want to spare humanity from his wrath.

Nonetheless, the Twitter hashtag #YesAllWomen got started as a rebuke to Rodger's toxic attitude to women. It cataloged all that women suffer from sexism. I don't doubt that it's hurtful, to sample one of the tweets, to be a female shark biologist told that the public isn't ready to see you on camera. It just has nothing to do with Elliot Rodger's condition or his crime.

The reaction to the UCSB killings is sadly typical. Our political and media culture has proven impervious to serious discussion of severe mental illness and how it is treated in this country.

Rep. Tim Murphy, a Pennsylvania Republican, actually has a proposal to make it easier to treat the severely mentally ill. Alas, his bill won't get a viral Twitter campaign because it focuses on the real problem rather than exploiting the latest horror for cheap ideological points.

Next session will be a dirty job; who wants it?

You've almost gotta wonder whether those candidates for the Legislature know what they're getting in for this election year—and once elected, whether they're going to have a good time.

The luckiest, or at least those with the least to worry about, are the 35 House candidates who don't have a major party opponent. They're virtually already elected, unless they do something very wrong, or lose to a Libertarian or an independent candidate in the general.

Scattered across the state are those 23 Republicans and 12 Democrats who, if they're smart, still turn out for the parades and toss candy to the children in the crowd and act like they're losing. That's showing character that they might need two years from now if they want to come back to Topeka for the winter.

And for another 15 would-be House members—all Republicans—if they can make it through the low-turnout primary election, they're ready to start thinking about business cards and letterhead.

Wow, by Aug. 5, we'll have 50 of the House's 125 seats likely filled.

Nineteen House districts have primary elections that are warm-ups for the November general election which ought to give the voters a chance to see what sort of candidate the other party chose to toss at them. It's a chance for those primary candidates to get some experience, learn a few tricks of the campaign trade, and probably learn how to be absolutely un-bashful when it comes to asking for campaign contributions.

Those warm-up elections will see 14 Republican vs. Republican primaries and just four Democrat/Democrat contests. Busiest primary? Look to Johnson County's 16th District, where incumbent Rep. Amanda Grosserode, R-Lenexa, has two Republicans to fight off, and Democrats have their own primary to select a challenger for whoever emerges from the GOP tiff.

For much of the state—that's 56 House seats—this is a one-shot hunt. No primary elections, just the title bout in November.

All that campaigning for what is likely to be the toughest legislative session we've seen in decades.

Statehouse-dwellers are looking for an upcoming session—yes, just a couple weeks after final adjournment of this session—for which there will be no tax breaks to hand out and a merciless effort to squeeze spending to avoid red ink in the budget.

That doesn't mean that social issues that don't cost any money won't be the first bullet point on campaign handouts. But it means that they become distractions when the state has to cut spending on programs ranging from schools to health care to law enforcement.

It may be a little like completing your wedding ceremony, and then having to tell your newly official spouse that you can't afford the honeymoon and to hold down on the rice-tossing because you may need it for dinner.

Or...maybe there's a candidate out there who has the answer, a plan to make an anorexic budget work; find ways to cut spending that most Kansans won't notice. Or, to find a group of Kansans, or an industry or product that most people won't mind raising taxes on. Maybe folks who didn't vote?

And, there is of course that standby for the Legislature: Sending programs and spending down to the local level. Protect programs that Kansans are interested in, just make them and the responsibility for financing them something that counties or cities or school districts have to levy property taxes to pay for. Call it "local control."

Gotta wonder whether the new candidates to the Legislature had that in mind when they ponied up the filing fee, or whether they were just embarrassed by the ties or purses that incumbents in their districts are photographed wearing and carrying.

This might be interesting. But some successful candidates—once they emerge from the campaign and get sworn in—may find that the best part of being a legislator is that the work is indoors.

Community Band plans first outdoor concert of summer

The Garnett Area Community Band under the direction of John Bechen will present its first concert of the summer season on Thursday, June 12, at 7 p.m. on the Anderson County Courthouse lawn, north side. Bring your lawn chairs to enjoy music, the lovely downtown and to visit with friends and neighbors.

John Bechen has a Bachelor of Music degree from Loras College in Dubuque, Iowa, and is employed at The Reuter Organ Company in Lawrence.

In case of inclement weather for an outdoor concert this summer, the First United Methodist Church, 205 S. Oak Street, Garnett, will be the alternate site for the scheduled concert. The band appreciates the availability of this location. It is good to know that even if it rains, the band will play on.

Grant awarded to LPLC

The Goppert Foundation of Kansas City, Missouri has awarded a matching funds grant of $27,650, to benefit the First United Methodist Church and Little People's Learning Center of Garnett.

The Little People Learning Center was incorporated on August 15, 1996 as an outreach of the First United Methodist Church. The funds will be used to install a sprinkler system and other repairs required by the Office of the Kansas State Fire Marshal. Little People's Learning Center serves 59 families with 73 children enrolled. There is a staff of 9 working in this center - based licensed facility for children ranging in age from 12 months and walking to 6 years of age. Also, they provide before and after school care for elementary students. This is the only summer program available to parents in Anderson County.

The community will benefit as our church is a designated Garnett Emergency Shelter, used by the Blood Mobile, home of the local Boy Scouts, weekly meeting location for TOPS, also for Rotary Pancake Day along with Lions Club Chili Day.

We are grateful for the Goppert Foundation's generosity and support of families in our community. This grant will continue to provide parents with an efficient, effective, economical and safe development program for their children. LPLC goal has always been to foster creativity, self discipline and a love of learning. Also, LPLC encourages children to acquire self-esteem, concern for others, a sense of community and a spirit of sharing.

Remember to report planted acres to FSA

Area farmer and ranchers should remember that filing an accurate acreage report for all crops and land uses, including failed acreage and prevented planting acreage, will prevent the loss of benefits for a variety of Farm Service Agency (FSA) programs. Failed acreage must be reported within 15 days of the disaster event and before the disposition of the crop. Failed acreage only needs reported if another crop will be planted for harvest in 2014, once the initial crop is destroyed. Prevented planting must be reported no later than 15 days after the final planting date.

July 15, 2014, is the final date to report CRP, corn, grain sorghum, soybeans, and sunflowers. Please contact the Anderson County FSA Office at (785) 448-3128 once your crops have been planted and before the deadlines noted above. USDA is an equal opportunity employer and provider.

Westphalia's 'Jean Day' collections helps charities

In November 2012, an idea was brought to Westphalia principal Debbie Alford by sixth grade teacher Lacie Brandt: "Wednesday's can be such blah days. Can we make them something to look forward to, by allowing the staff to wear jeans if they pay?" Thus, "Jean Day" was born.

Every Wednesday is Jean Day at Westphalia School. If a staff member wants to wear jeans, they pay a minimum of $2. Each month, the money collected is given to a cause or an organization. This has turned out to be a blessing for many. Look what Jean day has done, each month, at Westphalia:

- November 2012: $69 to ECKAN.
- January 2013: $45 to Hope Unlimited.
- February 2013: $106 to Big Brothers Big Sisters.

- March 2013: $65 to March of Dimes.

- April 2013: $59 to Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation.

- Total for 2012-2013: $344.

- September 2013: $98 to Muscular Dystrophy Association.

- October 2013: $115 to WINGS.

- November 2013: $68 to Ministerial Alliance.

- December 2013: $115 to Adopt-a-Family in Westphalia.

- January 2014: $230 to Kansas State for the Blind.

- February 2014: $45 to Shriner's Hospital.

- March 2014: $52 to March of Dimes.

- April 2014: $127 to Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation.

- Total 2013-2014: $850.

Central Heights FFA member recognized as the State STAR in ag placement

MANHATTAN - Central Heights FFA member Tristan Davis competed as a finalist against three other district stars for the state's top honor of State Star in Ag Placement May 28-30 at the 86th Kansas FFA Convention on the Kansas State University campus.

Each year, the Kansas FFA Association recognizes three FFA members who have the top Supervised Agricultural Experience (SAE) programs with the Star Farmer, Star in Agribusiness and Star in Ag Placement awards. The Star competitions are sponsored by ICM, Inc., United Bank and Trust and Kansas Farm Bureau.

Davis's SAE is in Diversified Livestock Production Placement. Helping his dad with the family farm, Davis has learned how to operate machinery and care for the cows and pigs. He began his interest in the industry at a very young age when his grandfather gave him his own heifer to breed and calve. Davis says he goes to work everyday motivated to gain more knowledge on how to manage his own ranch and pig farm, so he can achieve his dream of one day owning his own farm.

Davis is the son of Jack and Lisa Davis. His advisors are Aaron Cubit and Trent Page.

This award was sponsored by ICM Inc., United Bank and Trust, Kansas Farm Bureau and the Pageant was sponsored by Farm Credit Associations of Kansas.

American Legion, Auxiliary donate to Chamber Players building fund

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 06-10-2014 / Vickie Moss

K-State local government report tracks county budget trends

MANHATTAN – Per capita revenues (adjusted for inflation) in Anderson County increased 15 percent between 2004 and 2012 to $1,162. The County's per capita expenditures increased 29 percent to $1,116.

Meanwhile, real per capita revenues in the average Kansas county increased 30 percent to $1,533 and expenditures rose 29 percent to $1,497.

This data comes from researchers at Kansas State University who have just released the newest "Kansas County Fiscal Conditions & Trends" report to county commissions statewide.

The 15th in a series, the report's customized analyses detail each county government's budgetary trends from 2004 to 2012. The data used to fuel these analyses came from the counties' own budget documents, submitted to the Kansas Department of Administration every year.

The report's main purpose is to be useful to county elected officials as they prepare the budget for the next year. But, it can benefit all Kansas citizens, said economist John Leatherman, director of the Office of Local Government, a K-State Research and Extension outreach program.

"It all starts with having access to basic data," Leatherman explained. "We're simply trying to give county commissioners tools that can help them monitor their financial situation."

"At the same time, though, the report can provide average citizens with unbiased, independent information about local government finance. So, it can serve as a starting point for dialogue between elected officials and their constituents."

The report contains the information for 34 expenditure categories and 20 revenue categories for Kansas counties. By adjusting this data for inflation over time, K-State's local government economists could also identify and evaluate any underlying trends.

Even so, Kansans must take care when attempting to draw their own conclusions from the data, warned Rebecca Bishop, lead author of the report and the Office of Local Government's public finance program director.

"You need to look beyond the numbers to understand the local situation. You also need to consider any part of the broader context that may be affecting local finances, such as the current economic environment or trends in state aid programs," Bishop said.

This augmented approach is particularly important when counties are examining major capital expenditures, she said. For example, infrequent but often costly investments might include a new jail, major road project or courthouse renovation.

Office of Local Government staff now are working to develop a similar, targeted financial trends report for Kansas' cities. (Due to a unified county-city governing structure, some communities within the greater Kansas City area may be excluded.) The staff's goal is to distribute a copy of this cities' report to each of the state's county seats next spring.

Free access to the Anderson County Fiscal Conditions & Trends report is available online at the Office of Local Government's website: <http://www.ksu-olg.info>. More information about the Office of Local Government is also available online or by calling 785-532-2643.

There's psychology in good store layout

If you're a retailer, a proper layout of your store does more than encourage purchases – it can also help ensure a customer becomes a regular customer. Or, if poorly done, it may ensure he/she views you negatively and passes that along to others.

So there are a handful of rules that not only encourage purchases but also make your customer feel comfortable in your store, and feeling comfortable is critical to his/her endorsement of you.

1) For starters, remember that studies show most customers entering a store look and often turn immediately to the right after passing what some big retailers call the "decompression zone." The decompression zone is that first 15 feet or so of space from the entrance looking into the store within which a shopper more or less gets into the store's groove.

Think of a customer walking into your store from a busy street or a mall. Outside there is noise, traffic, the sound of the mall merry-go-round and kids pitching a fit. Step into the store and suddenly all the focus changes – now, it's nearly all shoes or clothes or hardware. The mentality of the store starts to replace whatever noise was in the shopper's head seconds before. It takes 3-7 seconds or about 15 feet.

So merchandise placed within this area isn't going to get much of a look. It is, however, a good place for a customer to get his first taste of your hospitality. Ever notice where Wal-Mart greeters stand?

2) Obviously the store layout you choose needs to fit your business. If you're inventory-rich, like a grocery store, it's easy to understand the logic in longer aisles laid out in a grid with end cap displays. You can direct traffic in a loop or a square with inventory on the sides and a center island. A more open layout helps spur impulse buying because shoppers can move more freely across larger areas.

HOW TO SELL STUFF

Dane Hicks
Review Publisher

3) Avoid long counters. The larger the barrier, the more an "us versus them" psychology that's created in the customer's mind and the more discomfort it entails. If you have to have counter space for a register, etc., try configuring a desk or taller podium that makes less of an obstacle.

4) Avoid the "butt brush." If aisles are so narrow customers can't face different directions to look at merchandise without brushing bootys with each other, they'll avoid that aisle altogether.

Give your customers a sense of openness where they're not crowded in looking at your products and make them comfortable, and you'll sell more stuff!

Chip seal project starts in Anderson, Linn counties

The Kansas Department of Transportation (KDOT) has begun a project to place a chip seal on approximately 30 miles of roadway in Anderson and Linn Counties.

The project includes the following highways:

- K-31, from the south U.S.59/K-31 junction west of Kincaid continuing east to the junction of K-31/K-52;

- K-52, from the K-31/K-52 junction east to the K-7/K-52 junction at Mound City;
- K-152, from the K-7/K-152 junction east to the west city limits of La Cygne.

Flaggers and a pilot car will direct one-lane traffic through the work zone during daylight hours. Expect delays of 15 minutes or less. Weather permitting, the road work is expected to be finished by early July.

KDOT awarded the construction contract of $854,755 to Apac Kansas, Shears Division of Hutchinson.

Donna Schmit, construction engineer with the KDOT Garnett Area Office, reminds drivers to obey the signs and flaggers, slow down and "Give 'Em a Brake!" at the work zone. The preservation project is funded under the T-WORKS transportation program. Those with questions may contact Schmit at (785) 448-5446, or Priscilla Petersen, 1-877-550-5368. 2004: ADA requirements cause concerns

June 8, 2004

The Anderson County Commission voted Tuesday to approve renovation of the bathrooms at the community building on the Anderson County Fairgrounds, but the work will not be done in time to prevent the bathrooms from fouling the air at the 2004 Anderson County Fair. The estimated cost is $68,145. The condition of the bathrooms has been an ongoing source of complaint from people who rent the building. The existing commodes are jail-issue, do not flush properly and are an eyesore as well as a safety and public health concern.

Forty years ago, Anderson County voters went to the polls to decide the fate of a school unification plan that proposed placing most of the county in one unified school district with a single six-member board. By the time the proposal failed and the dust finally cleared in subsequent elections, school unification would cause the same scars in Anderson County as in nearly every other small community in the country which endured it. On June 2, 1964, the day of the referendum, there were six high schools in the county plus elementary schools and innumerable rural schools, each with their own three-member school board.

Anderson County Clerk Phyllis Gettler said a handicapped accessibility law passed by the 2004 Kansas Legislature will force her to close six polling places throughout the county before this summer's Aug. 3 primary. Voters will no longer be able to vote at polling places in Scipio, Harris, Northcott, Bush

City, Lone Elm or Mont Ida.

New information discovered during discussions with Garnett city financial consultants has made it apparent that the city can in fact retain ownership of a physicians office complex proposed to be constructed for the Anderson County Hospital. That news prompted city and hospital officials to plan preliminary talks with architects this week. That's a 180-degree turn from the last word on the project several weeks ago, in which the city believed that it would be illegal for a municipality to retain ownership of a facility for rental or lease purposes.

Three letters, ADA, strike fear into many public organizations that operate public buildings. ADA stands for Americans with Disabilities Act, which requires that all public buildings be accessible to the handicapped or at least have a plan for such accessibility for the end of the year. Linda Davis has been working on the ADA plan for Anderson County over the past few weeks. She and an architect took a walk around the county courthouse and the Garnett Community Center to try to determine what needs to be done to comply with ADA requirements. She said both buildings should be able to be made accessible quite easily. Some changes will have to be made to the courthouse ramp leading to the west entrance since its slope is a little too steep for ADA requirements. She proposed to have more meetings moved from the basement of the courthouse to the community building. The second and third floors of the courthouse, which comprise the district court and other offices, also are not accessible except for steps.

The $1.2 million sewer project of the City of Garnett is nearing completion, with finish work on the painting and sandblasting of the south sewer plant expected to be completed this week.

Kansas Archeology Training Program Field School begins in Miami County

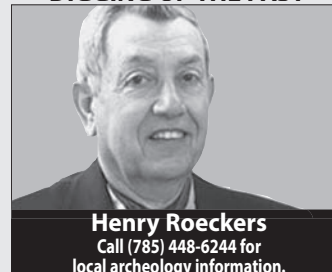

The time for the 2014 Kansas Archeology Training Program Field School has arrived. (May 30-June 14). This year's training school is at Site 14MM327 in Miami County, Kansas, near Osawatomie. I have personally attended this school for three days thus far.

First a little about the site itself. The log cabin of Samuel and Florella Adair once stood on approximately forty acres of land at the western edge of Osawatomie. This cabin was moved to the John Brown Park where it can be toured as it is well preserved. There is a second house on the property that was erected in 1903 by the Adair family which stands today.

The Adairs. Samuel Lyle Adair made his mark in the Kansas Territory as a Congregational missionary and abolitionist homesteading near Osawatomie, Kansas. He was born on April 22, 1811 in Ross County, Ohio. Died Dec. 27, 1898.

Florella Brown Adair was a Kansas pioneer, abolitionist, seamstress and a half sister to John Brown. She was born

"FOR YOUR ROOFING NEEDS, WE'VE GOT YOU COVERED"

'Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God'

In Matthew chapter 5 Jesus delivers the famous Sermon on the Mount. We are told when he saw the crowds he went up on the mountain side and began to teach them. He began his teaching by telling the crowd who would be blessed and what that blessing would be.

In Matthew 5:8 Jesus references this specific blessing, "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God." We read in John 4:24 where Jesus told the Samaritan woman, "God is Spirit." Since God is a spirit and does not live in and through a body as we do the specific nature of God is difficult to understand. God told Moses that no one could see his face and live.

The best interpretation of this text I have heard was by Dr. R. C. Sproul, President and founder of Ligonier Ministries. Dr. Sproul stated the reason we can't see God in our current human state is not because we have a vision problem but is because we have a heart problem. Our human nature is not bent toward God but is naturally contrary toward God. Certainly some people are more religious than others but we must be careful here because Christianity is based on a personal relationship with Jesus Christ not on any outward form of human goodness. In short your heart and my heart are not pure enough to be able to see God.

The God who is Spirit must be worshiped from a heart renewed by the Holy Spirit. As time passes our worship and love for God should grow but our sanctification, the process by which the believer is separated from sin and becomes dedicated to God's righteousness, will not be complete until we cross over from this life into the next. For now we are asked to believe in a God we cannot see.

In order to bridge this gap God sent his Son, Jesus Christ, to be a visible manifestation of himself. In John 14:9b, Jesus says to the disciples, "Whoever has seen me has seen the Father." In 1st John 3:2, the apostle tells us this. "Dear friends, now we are children of God, and what we will be has not yet been made known. But we know that when he appears, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is." What that tells me is someday I will meet God face to face and then my knowledge of him will be complete. For now the knowledge that, "he is righteous" will bring increasing righteousness to my life. The preparation required for a pure heart.

We would like to thank our families and friends, for the outpouring of love and support during the time Leon was in the hospital and since his passing. The food, paper products brought to our home, for the flowers and plants. To the Altar Society for the bountiful and delicious funeral dinner. To Elaine, Shirley, Diana, Fred and Nancy for hosting the visitation and for those providing snacks, cookies and drinks. To Reuben, Stacey and Tracey for helping us make decisions, arrangements and giving support during our time of planning the funeral, your personal attributes meant so much. To Father Matthew, it was so special, the time we got to spend with you and sharing Leon's life with tears and laughter and how important his religious and Catholic faith was to him. It was very evident during this time that Leon touched many lives and was loved by many, many people. We miss him dearly.
