Garnett man saves 3 people from house fire

Businessman spotted flames, woke up residents inside home

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Don Millington saw the flames from the intersection at Fourth and Oak a little after 11 p.m. Wednesday, June 25.

Something was on fire on the east side of the 200 block of Fourth Avenue. At first, he thought it was the building he recently purchased for his automotive shop, where he had been headed when he saw the flames. As he got closer, Millington realized it was a house. What's more, he realized he knew the residents, and knew they likely were asleep at that time of night.

The front of the house at 218 E. Fourth Ave. was on fire, so Millington called dispatch to report the fire, drove through the alley to the house and tried the back door. It was locked. He kicked the door several times, making lots of noise to wake

Sex crime falls under Jessica's Law

47-year-old man had sex with 13-year-old, court records say

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — A 47-year-old Garnett man could spend the next 25 years to life in prison for having sex with a 13-year-old girl in 2013.

James Franklin Atkisson, 47, of Garnett, recently entered a plea and was found guilty of one count of rape, according to court records and a press release from Anderson County Attorney Brandon Jones. Sentencing is set for 1:30 p.m. July 14 at Anderson County District Court.

Atkisson remains in the Anderson County Jail pending sentencing.

Drug-dealing lifestyle leads to man's death, prison for '08 ACHS grad

Greeley mom to spend 13 1/2 years in prison for drug trafficking

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, KAN. - A 24-year-old Greeley mother will spend the next 13 and a half years of her life in federal prison for her role with a group of drug traffickers who killed an Ottawa man and stuffed his body in a refrigerator in late 2010.

Tracy Rockers pleaded guilty about a year ago to selling methamphetamine as part of a drug trafficking ring and was sentenced June 23 to 162 months in federal prison with five years of post-release supervision. Thirteen other people connected with the drug ring also have been convicted, with sentences ranging from 52 months to 30 years in prison. Her seven-year-old daughter has been in the custody of Rockers' mother and father since August 2011.

The story painted by court records tells of a powerful, intimidating group of drug traffickers who severely beat and tortured "retailers" who didn't pay their drug debts. After the death of one of those customers, Gregory Price of Ottawa, they tried to cover up his killing by stuffing his body in a refrigerator and dumping it at a rural location near DeSoto. After investigators began closing in on the traffickers, they learned about the death and recovered Price's body more than a year after it was abandoned.

Lost Girl

Rockers graduated in 2008 from Anderson County High School and became a Licensed Practical Nurse, working at the Anderson County Hospital from 2006-2010. In early 2011 Rockers became involved in a relationship with Michael Quick, one of the other defendants, who lived in Eudora and worked for a local farmer. She apparently became part of the drug ring sometime after October 2010, according to court records, about the time she left the job at Anderson County Hospital. Hearing records show Rockers worked only temporary and odd jobs after that.

A review of Rockers' Facebook page in early 2011 and the posts from her friends hint at an individual leaving former friends behind. Numerous posters

Family to build Christian school in Philippines for missionary work

Coltranes to visit local church to raise money for mission project

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - A former Garnett man and his family will return to the community this weekend to raise money in their quest to start a Christian school in the Philippines.

Ben Coltrane and his wife, Sara, will visit the First Baptist Church in Garnett at 10:30 a.m. Sunday, July 6, to talk about their mission project. They plan to move with their three children to the City of Puerta Galera on the Island of Mindoro, a small town near the northern coast. Over the course of two to three years, they will help establish a school for children in the Aninuan Christian Church.

away, and many parents only earn $2 a day when working, so travel is difficult," Ben Coltrane said.

Local elementary schools often have about 60 students in each class, and schools have a short schedule so students can attend in shifts. Many students drop out before high school, Coltrane said.

The Coltranes are well-suited to the project. Ben has taught math at the middle and high school level and has been an elementary school principal. He currently teaches power plant technology at Flint Hills Technical College. Sara has taught music in elementary

Annual LibertyFest fireworks display planned for July 3 at Lake Garnett

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Fireworks will light up the skies around Garnett on July 3, and organizers are hoping the event will encourage people to open wallets and checkbooks to keep the tradition going. The annual LibertyFest fireworks display will go on this year as it has in the past. But organizers say it takes community donations to keep the event going, year after year. The fireworks display is supported entirely by donations; no tax dollars are used to fund the event. But every year, organizers have pleaded for donations to help pay for the display.

The Garnett Area Chamber of Commerce sponsors the event, and previous estimates show the annual fireworks display costs about $2,000, more or less. The event typically brings most of its donations at the gate. Volunteers stationed at Lake Garnett ask patrons to make voluntary donations when they arrive. Gates open at 6:30 p.m. and the Community Band will perform at 8 p.m. Fireworks begin at dusk. No fireworks are allowed at the park.

For more information or to donate to the event, call the Chamber at (785) 448-6767.

school and at her music studio. She is part of the worship team at their church in Emporia.

Ben grew up in Garnett. His parents are Dan and Loretta Coltrane of Garnett. Sara is the daughter of Harold and Rita Mayes of Ottawa. The couple has three children: Clara, 9; Noah, 7; and Elliott, 3.

The couple visited missionary friends in Manila last summer. After teaching a mini-vacation Bible school and helping with other projects, they visited Aninuan Christian Church in Puerto Galera. The pastor told them of his desire to start a Christian school to help children stay in school and complete their education.

After their trip, the Coltranes could not stop thinking about the need for the school. They were appointed as missionaries with One Challenge, OC International Ministries, and Threads of Hope to start the school. They hope to begin the project in the fall of 2015.

They recently began a fundraising campaign to help make their dream a reality. Anyone who is interested is invited to visit them at the First Baptist Church July 6. asked where was the former high school softball pitcher and popular, why she didn't respond to messages or texts. There was seldom a reply and no information volunteered. In November 2010 one poster echoed others' thoughts: "Tracy- I miss you. Hope everything is going okay."

As she slipped further into a darker life, she took time out to be a bridesmaid in her sister's wedding.

Family members contacted for this story said they did not want to comment citing the advice of an attorney, but one of Rockers' sisters said she hoped the story would convey the fact that "drugs are not prejudiced to whose lives they destroy."

Deadly Path

Rockers apparently met Mike Quick sometime in late 2010 through a Garnett man, Jerry MacAfee, according to court records. Investigators interviewed Rockers several times, and according to records based on those interviews she said MacAfee purchased meth from Quick or Quick's roommate, Mike Redifer. Rockers soon began dealing with Quick and Redifer without MacAfee and started selling meth. The men apparently were impressed by how quickly Rockers was able to sell the drugs, and soon she was selling about an ounce of meth "every couple days."

Trial records show that by December 2010 Rockers was living in Eudora with Quick and another drug dealer, Steven Hohn. On approximately Dec. 17, 2010, Redifer brought Price to the home and Rockers convinced him to come inside to talk about an $800 debt he owed to Quick. Price apparently had purchased meth from each of the occupants and another man who was present, Kerry Randall. Rockers, Redifer, Quick and Randall threatened and yelled at Price, and all except Rockers, according to court records, had firearms.

After Price indicated he was not going to pay the debt, the group decided to take him to "the farm," a rural location outside DeSoto, to either continue to threaten or kill him. Hohn was called to the residence, and after he arrived, Redifer and Randall tried to pull Price through the front door but he resisted. The men threw him into the door, and he collapsed and began "making gurgling noises."

Records show Hohn and Quick went out to put a camper shell on a truck while the others stayed inside the residence. Rockers checked periodically to see if Price was still breathing, but at some point while lying on the floor, he died. The five decided against calling the police and instead stuffed Price's body inside the refrigerator and dumped it at the farm. The body wasn't recovered until April 19, 2012, after a tip to police officers who were already investigating the ring.

Court records detail multiple aspects of the brutality by which the ring operated. One man reported Hohn would distribute the meth through various avenues, including hiding it in towel displays at Wal-Mart. The man, who sold about 7 grams of meth every other day, said he was given a 24-hour window to pay for the drugs. If the money wasn't paid quickly enough, Hohn sent "the reapers" after the person who owed the money. The man said he once failed to pay Hohn for three days, and was beaten and tortured including having his hands beaten and burned with a shovel heated in a fireplace and his head split open.

In January 2011, not long after Price's death, Rockers "cut out the middle man" and began dealing drugs directly through Quick. She regularly accompanied Quick to buy drugs from his source, two Mexican brothers in the KC Metro area. When that source dried up, they found a new source from a Hispanic woman also in the region.

Law enforcement began investigating the drug ring after a tip to the Gardner Police Department about Hohn and his associates. A KBI agent developed a confidential informant in Garnett who said she could purchase drugs from Rockers. The informant and an undercover agent purchased meth from Rockers in August 2011, and attempted to buy meth again several days later but were unsuccessful.

Rockers was arrested Sept. 16, 2011, after returning from a meeting with her source. While on house arrest in connection with that incident she then sold meth two more times in October 2011 to an undercover agent.

By November 2011, Rockers quit dealing meth and checked into an inpatient rehab clinic. But by late December 2011 or early January 2012, she once again began dealing and continued to do so at least through January 2012. An indictment against several members of the drug ring was filed Jan. 25, 2012, and Rockers was arrested two days later. She was released on $50,000 bond Jan. 31, 2012.

Rockers documented drug transactions and law enforcement recovered notebooks that contained detailed information about money owed, money paid and quantities of drugs received and distributed.

Penalties

In April 2013, Rockers reached a plea deal with federal prosecutors, agreeing to cooperate in exchange for a lighter sentence. She pleaded guilty to one count of conspiracy to distribute meth.

A little flag; a little revolution

The story of a Florida Vietnam vet whose homeowners association may foreclose on his home because he displayed an American flag in a flower pot on his front porch includes two very important lessons:

- 1) Some Americans really love their flag.
- 2) Anyone who lives under the jackboot of a homeowners association probably should have known better.

The 73 year-old vet, Larry Murphree of Jacksonville, said if the homeowners association wants to foreclose "bring it on." He's been getting calls of support from all over the country telling him he should tell the homeowners association to take a long walk off a short pier, and he has no plans to back down.

The association started hitting him with $100 a day fines last year for violating the association agreement that says members can only display flags on a flag pole that meets certain construction mandates. Now the tab adds up to better than $8,000, and Murphree says if they want to foreclose on him to collect, that's exactly what they're going to have to do.

"It's a small flag but it stands for a big thank you and it shows the love and respect I have for my country," Murphree said.

Homeowner associations are pretty much the rule out in suburbia these days. Nobody wants to plop down a $350,000 home next to the dude who's had the transmission from his '69 Dodge spread out on his lawn since last spring and the whole yard protected by a chicken-wire fence and two Rottweilers. Those associations really do protect people's investments and keep the blight out of the neighborhood, and everybody knows going in to the deal that the rules apply.

The problem, as is recounted time and time again in these homeowners' board horror stories, is that the only folks they can usually get to serve the thankless, lightning rod positions on those neighborhood association boards are the obsessive compulsive, monomaniacal great-grandchildren of the Third Reich.

REVIEW COMMENTARY

DANE HICKS, Publisher

All the tools are in the right place in their garage, and they didn't go to Woodstock.

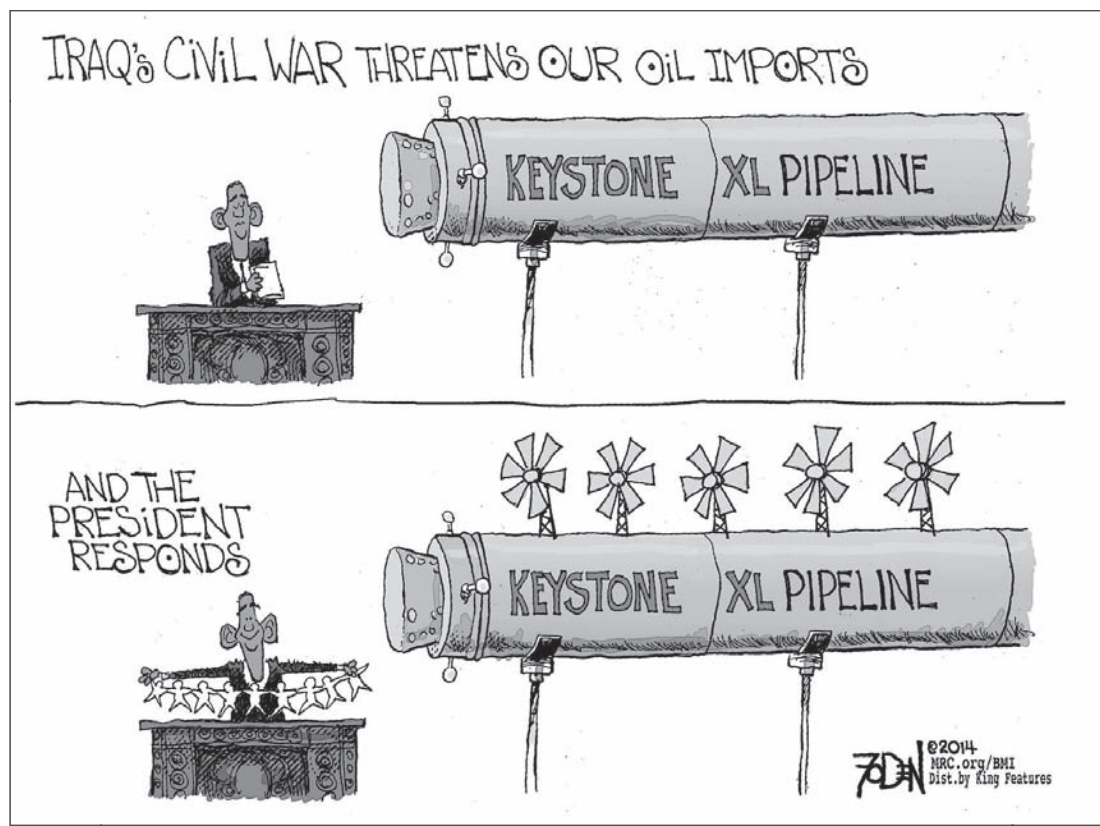

They're not the type who appreciate free spirits or compromise, and they get more than just a little joy out of enforcing rules and regs. Usually they bulldoze right over any opposition, but occasionally they run into a real freedom-loving Patriot.

Anybody else might be willing to amend the flag display provisions in those rules to accommodate a less expensive presentation in the name of patriotism, but not these guys. The logic and moral of the situation pale in comparison to the need to crush the resistance.

This is the kind of American story, however, that screams for the support of like-minded rabble rousers across the country and the world. If Murphree hasn't yet thought of setting up a crowd funding website so guys like me all over the country can send a little cash to his cause in tying up the foreclosure in court and bankrupting his neighborhood association with its own legal bills, I hope he figures it out soon.

If not, and if the Neighborhood Nazis are intent on foreclosing on his house over a tiny display of Old Glory stuck in a flower pot, he ought to consider bringing his aunt Eunice and her 127 cats in to live with him while he still has possession.

I mean, logic has completely flown the coop in the dispute, he might as well have a little fun.

Garnett needs a lot of things to improve itself but this new theater they're talking about isn't one of them. You know, we're going to be left here holding the bag as taxpayers like we did on the furniture factory and the new jail that was going to pay for itself in no time at all.

It's so funny how our modern liberal society over reacts to all the stupid things and yet lets the important things go. A bunch of high school kids up in Kansas City steal a goat from the farmstead at Overland Park and turn it loose in a McDonalds, and my Lord we've got all kinds of charges pending against them and animal cruelty and child psychologists and this and that. In my day they called it a prank, made the kids return the goat and clean up the goat (deleted) on the farm for a day, then go clean up the goat (deleted) at McDonalds, and sent them home to their folks to finish the job. Give me a break.

Thank you very much to the person that cleaned off the rocks and the mud on the rail trail at First Street. It makes is so much safer riding a bike. The broken red glass near Second Street isn't so nice.

Obama lets people out of Guantanamo, and he ends up running the show with ISIS in Iraq. Meanwhile, our officials in Washington, D.C., are concerned about changing the name of the Washington Redskins.

Hail to the Redskins! While we still can

The U.S. Patent and Trademark Office's contribution to the Washington Redskins debate is pettifogging absurdity in the service of rank politically correct bullying.

A panel of the office's Trademark Trial and Appeal Board ruled in favor of plaintiffs claiming that the Redskins name "may disparage persons or bring them into contempt, or disrepute," and therefore stripped the team of six trademarks. In theory, the ruling will hurt the team's bottom line by making it impossible for it to stop others from selling its merchandise.

Exercising his constitutional power as arbiter of tastefulness in sports, Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid rallied almost all of his Democratic colleagues a few months ago to implore the NFL to change the offending name, and hailed the patent ruling as the beginning of the end of the profound historical injustice perpetrated by the football franchise that dare not speak its name.

The patent board ruled this way once before. In response to a complaint in the 1990s, the board made its decision, as it noted this time around, "after seven years of litigation, involving multiple discovery and pre-trial motions." Then, the ruling was reversed in court -- after about another 10 years.

Certainly, opinions differ about the appropriateness of "Redskins" as a nickname.

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

RICH LOWRY, King Features Syndicate

But some perspective: There is no time in American history when Native Americans have been held in higher regard. Their nobility is celebrated in our popular culture, and their unjust treatment recounted in our schools. The existence of a professional football franchise with the same name that it has had for 80 years -- no matter how anachronistic -- has self-evidently not caused Native Americans to be held in contempt and disrepute.

The Washington Post called the patent decision "a victory for tolerance." A bureaucratic body seeking to harm a sports team because some people don't like its nickname is a strange exercise in tolerance. The paper went on to note that the tide is running against the Redskins since so many people have spoken out against them, "including the president of the United States and half of the United States Senate, which controls the tax breaks enjoyed by the NFL." Get it? It would be too bad if something happened to your nice football league. How tolerant.

In a section establishing the standing of the anti-Redskins petitioners, the patent panel made it clear they have no direct interest except that they are offended. Fine. Don't be Redskins fans. Root for the Cowboys or the Giants, the team's NFC East rivals. Never go to FedExField. Don't buy Redskins paraphernalia. If you must support a Washington sports team, make it one with a nickname so thoroughly anodyne that even the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board approves -- the Major League Soccer team, D.C. United.

But in the 21st century, this isn't the American way. If something offends you, it must be crusaded against and crushed underfoot, using whatever instrument of power is available. That the franchise is holding firm against this assault is reason to say a hearty "Hail to the Redskins!" -- while we still can.

Time to pick your Bachelor... er, candidate

If there was a radio version of the "Bachelor" or "Bachelorette" TV show in which contestants compete for your favor, it would probably be a lot like the next few months when candidates for the Kansas House of Representatives ask for your vote.

The candidates are on their best behavior, and try to be as appealing and friendly as possible to convince you that they are the ones you want to send to Topeka to manage your government—and essentially your life in Kansas.

There's good reason for you to take a hard look at the qualities you want in your representatives. You don't have to marry them, of course, but you will be wed to them and their ideas for government for at least two years.

So, even though you probably have a real life and responsibilities, it's time to start thinking about those key questions you'll want to ask those candidates.

Party affiliation? That's probably the beginner for the primary election season but even at the primary level, if the candidate is on your doorstep or chatting after the 4th of July parade or wandering the grounds at the county fair, you ought to find out all you can that matters to you about your party's candidates—and even the other party's candidate for your decision in November.

Have kids or grandkids or neighborhood kids in school? You probably ought to consider where the candidate is on financing public education. Do you think that the local youngsters are getting a good education—especially those with special needs? You'll want to hear the candidate's opinion of your local schools and whether they have enough money to handle the kids, or not enough, or know. Or, if you feel the schools don't make best use of their finances, does your potential representative have a better idea?

STATE COMMENTARY

Yes, there will be candidates who know less about public education and how it is financed and managed than you do. "I don't really know" might be the answer you get, but public education takes more than half of the state's budget and it's probably reasonable to find out the candidate's inclination for financing schools.

If abortion or guns are your hot buttons, of course, get the candidate to be specific. An endorsement by an association is a bit, but if those are big issues for you, press a start to find out whether the candidate leans the right way for you.

Taxes? Nobody except those 190,000 Kansans who don't pay state income taxes at all because of previous legislative action thinks taxes are too low. But, you gotta also figure that it takes some money to run the state and provide the services you want. So, be cautious about a candidate who just talks about cutting taxes without some sort of link to providing services you specifically want.

There are, of course, local issues that will be important to have a champion for during the Legislature—maybe it is a new off-ramp from the highway or a plan to make sure that your town doesn't run out of water. If your neighbors are talking about a specific issue, see where the candidate goes with it.

But the real key may be asking that candidate why he/she decided to spend the summer running for election to a job that pays less than $20,000 to winter in Topeka. Is there something here that makes sense to you locally or some grand design that sounds like it was pulled off an Internet website?

This election probably ought to be a workout for voters just as it is for candidates. It's OK to be picky, and it's OK to present your issue to the candidate and see whether he/she will represent that issue for you under the dome.

And, the nice thing about this Bachelor/Bachelorette derby is that it could be on radio...because it doesn't matter how cute they are. Your representative is your voice in the Legislature.

Boy Scouts earn badges, rank advancement

Boy Scout Troop 126 held their annual Fall Court of Honor and Troop Feast on November 3rd. The Scouts and their guests enjoyed a bountiful pot-luck dinner followed by the Court of Honor. Troop patrols served as color guard called by Senior Patrol Leader Dustin Botwinik. Assistant Senior Patrol Leader Jeremiah Dickens led the Boy Scout Oath and Boy Scout Law. Scoutmaster Jackie Olson and Advancement Chairman John Olson presented seventy five merit badges earned in the last six months to thirteen Scouts. Twenty seven of the badges earned are Eagle Rank requirements. Nine Scouts were recognized for rank advancement and awarded new rank badges. Additional awards presented were the God In Life Award to Peyton Fields and the World Conservation Award to Isaac Kubacka and Aaron Kubacka.

Book about Elizabeth Smart to be discussed at Garnett Public Library

The Garnett Public Library will hold a book discussion on Wednesday, July 23rd at 7 p.m. This month's book is "My Story" by Elizabeth Smart with Chris Stewart. Leading our discussion will be Paulabeth Henderson.

On June 5, 2002, fourteen-year-old Elizabeth Smart, the daughter of a close-knit Mormon family, was taken from her home in the middle of the night by religious fanatic Brian David Mitchell and his wife, Wanda Barzee. She was kept chained, dressed in disguise, repeatedly raped, and told she and her family would be killed if she tried to escape. After her rescue on March 12, 2003, she rejoined her family and worked to pick up the pieces of her life.

For the first time, ten years after her abduction from her Salt Lake City bedroom, Elizabeth Smart reveals how she survived and the secret to forging a new life in the wake of a brutal crime.

The books are available for checkout at the library. The discussions are held the fourth Wednesday of each month at 7 p.m. in the Archer Room at the library. Notification is posted in case of cancellation.

Inside the house, Rusty Harvey awoke to find his bedroom filled with smoke, Millington said. Harvey felt his way to the walls and realized they and the door were hot, so he made his way to the bedroom window. He broke the window, stuck out his head and breathed fresh air.

Millington heard glass break on the east side of the house and found Harvey, his head out the window, coughing.

"Where's Emma?" Millington asked, concerned about Harvey's 5-year-old daughter. Millington's girlfriend is the girl's grandmother, and he knew the girl was supposed to be with Harvey.

Although the girl's bedroom was at the front of the house, she was sleeping in her father's bedroom that night. Harvey carried the girl to the window and handed her to Millington.

Meanwhile, another man who was staying in the basement of the house, Preston

Morgan, heard the noise Millington made while beating on the back door. The smoke wasn't as bad in the basement, and Morgan was able to leave through the back door.

Millington said someone else arrived at the scene as Harvey was crawling through the window, but he left and took Emma to her grandmother's house. When he returned, fire crews were busy putting out the flames.

Garnett Fire Chief Pat Tate credited Millington with saving the lives of three people, but Millington said anyone would have done the same thing.

"It's nothing particularly extraordinary," he said. "I just saw the fire and woke them up. That's what anybody would do if they saw somebody's house on fire. I'm just glad they're OK."

Tate said no working smoke detectors were found in the house.

Harvey was taken to Anderson County Hospital for treatment of cuts to his hands from the broken window. The other occupants were not injured.

The house was heavily damaged by the fire. Owner Denny Hachenberg said he is waiting to hear from insurance adjusters about the extent of the damage, and it was not yet known what caused the fire. It appeared the fire began on the front porch.

Hachenberg said he has owned the home for about 15 years, and it was one of the first places he lived when he moved to Garnett as administrator of Anderson County Hospital. The home was built in the 1920s and has been a rental property for many years.

"I'm just thankful the tenants got out with minimal problems," Hachenberg said.

Hachenberg said he hopes the incident will serve as a reminder to people to practice a fire evacuation plan.

"Fires are so unpredictable and they go so fast," he said. "It can happen to anybody."

Ethanol Boat Races ride into Garnett July 12-13

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The popular Garnett Ethanol Hydroplane Shootout is returning to Garnett, Kan., July 12-13. This National Boat Racing Association (NBRA) competition pits drivers of hydroplanes and roundabouts against each other in a fast-paced race to the finish. The upcoming race is sponsored by the Renewable Fuels Association (RFA), East Kansas Agri-Energy, and the Kansas Corn Commission. Admission is free and earplugs or noise reducing devices are suggested. The NBRA, host of the event, has a long history of using E10. They broke speed records on the high-octane ethanol blend. According to Vernon Barfield, tech chairman and vice president of the NBRA, he has had no issues using E10 in their more than 20 years of racing. He has also won more than 35 national championships. The NBRA represents more than 250 drivers in 30 states.

“The Garnett Ethanol Hydroplane Shootout is a popular, family-friendly event where people of all ages can enjoy high-stakes action while learning about the environmental benefits and high-octane power boost of ethanol-blended fuel,” said Robert White, RFA’s director of market development. “There is a lot of misinformation out there about ethanol’s impact on boats, but E10 is safe and approved for use in all marine engines. The Lake Garnett event gives us an opportunity to educate boat owners and non-boat owners, and set the record straight.” Jeff Oestmann, president and CEO of East Kansas Agri-Energy, touted the race as a unique opportunity to highlight the benefits of ethanol. He stated, “It is exciting to see a national organization select Garnett for this event. It allows us to further promote the benefits of ethanol, not only in marine engines, but in all engines. We are proud to be a sponsor, and look forward to the races.” “The Garnett Ethanol Hydroplane Shootout is a great opportunity to spotlight Kansas agriculture and ethanol,” said Greg Krissek, head of the Kansas Corn Commission. “We are excited to sponsor this year’s race and hope everyone will join us to cheer on the competitors.”

Make your referral program simple, motivating

The gist of “referral” programs isn’t nearly as complicated as it sounds. It just goes back to the old adage that “word of mouth is the best advertising.” And it really is. One business study showed that a customer who’s referred to your business from another customer has a 16-18 percent higher lifetime value – they’re more loyal and they’re less expensive to acquire on average than other customers. The music industry has been the best example of an unsung referral program for eons. “Hey, listen to these guys,” someone tells you as they cue up a song they like. That happened to me when I was in the 7th grade, and I’ve been buying KISS records and merchandise ever since. KISS acquired me as a fan and a customer without ever running an ad, offering me a coupon or spending a nickel on marketing directed at me. My cousin did all the work for them.

Though that kind of referral is cheap, the problem is it can be the hardest to get, because unlike placing an ad in your local newspaper or radio or TV station or free Internet site, you have little or no control. Your customer is in charge. How do you know your present customer will refer you? You don’t. But you can organize things you’re already doing to try to ensure it.

For starters, you have to be a business that a customer wants to refer someone to. That goes back to value – the idea that customers get their money’s worth or more by doing business with you through great products and great service.

Next you need a premium – not just for the present customer you hope will do the work for you, but also for the unknown new referral as a motivator to come experience you. I recommend making both the premiums the same – a free something (everybody likes getting something for free) or a percentage off a followup purchase.

Next you need a simple vehicle to communicate the referral offer. There are loads of special software programs you can buy on the Internet to track referrals and award “custom points” and all that jazz, and that’s great if you have the money and staff to conduct it, but I like a simple referral card or tear-off coupon at the counter you can hand to a customer as you’re thanking them for their business. Don’t ask them if they want to participate – just put their name on it and hand it to them. You can find free formats for these on the web and print them from your own computer, or have a local print shop make them up for you.

Make sure you have a line with the present customer’s name, and a blank line beneath it for the referred customer’s name. Ideally, your present customer hands off the card to someone who then redeems it with you on your promise of a free pair of gloves with purchase, a free sandwich with a $10 order, etc. When redeeming the card, write the referred customer’s name on the second line.

Then the best idea is to find a place on the wall or near the cash register to tape or thumb-tack up the redeemed referral cards – that way referrers can see if their buddy redeemed the card, and you promote the program to in-store traffic.

Referral programs don’t have to be complicated, they just have to be motivating.

BUSINESS BEAT

Burns to lead Anderson County Hospital Foundation

The Anderson County Hospital Foundation has named Mike Burns president of the Anderson County Hospital Foundation board. Burns replaces Dr. Jerry Padfield who will now serve as vice president.

The Anderson County Hospital Foundation’s mission is to support capital purchases for Anderson County Hospital, a critical access hospital. This mission continues to be the focus for Burns as he looks to the future and hopes to establish a robust endowment for the foundation.

“An endowment is key to the sustainability of the foundation to ensure monies are available to fund growth and capital improvements as needed,” said Burns. “My goal is to have everyone see the value of establishing an endowment and how having one in place can allow for additional support to our patients and ultimately, our community.”

The Anderson County Hospital Foundation was established in 2000 and in the last 14 years has raised monies through various fundraisers including the annual Heeling for Health walk held each April and the annual foundation golf benefit held in September. Funds raised from these events and other campaigns have been used to support capital improvements for the hospital such as the addition of state-of-the-art digital mammography and new radiology equipment.

To make a contribution to the Anderson County Hospital Foundation or learn how you can become involved, visit achfoundation.com or call Anderson County Hospital at (785) 204-4000.

Ticks, warm weather challenge dig site

The Archaeology Field Training School continues on.

1 June 2014

Up at 6:05. A heavy-heavy dew on the ground. Breakfast at the "Whistle Stop." To the field at 7:45, roll-call at 8:00, field brief 8:10 and in the field metal detecting by 8:15. Lots of metal targets, but as usual there were the good and the not so good artifacts uncovered. Lunch at the Sonic. Back to metal detecting at 1:00. A few finds of the day were: Table Fork, Double Bladed Ax (very old hand forged), an Iron Plate with the name Weirs Co. 1865 on it, Brass Clip, Lead Seal, fragment of Clay Pipe Bowl, a Virginia Musket Trigger out. 10:30 wind, heavy rain and pea sized hail. I was awake until 11:15.

2 June 2014

Up at 6:15. We had gotten 1/2 inch rain. Breakfast at the "Whistle Stop". Normal day routine of roll calls, briefings, breaks and metal detecting. Was quite warm and humid this afternoon. It even brought the ticks out. One young lady had six on her before she realized they were dropping down from the trees she was working under. Ticks love them cedar trees.

Once again we found several artifacts. Bone Handled Pocket Knife Side Plate with a small Shield on it, Old Playing Jack, .32 Caliber Spencer Rim Fire Cartridge, Iron Key, Two iron Buttons, Rectangular Buckle, Little Brass Hinge, Glass Marble, Ring, China Egg Cup, Old Bottle, Caste Stove Parts, Fish Hook, Lots of China Dishware Sherds, etc.etc.

At approximately 2:30 p.m. my right wrist started paining me and it became so swollen that I could not use it or move my fingers. That ended my day very quickly. By 3:30 I was back home swallowing pain pills and applying ice packs to my wrist. It just wasn't my day as besides the swollen wrist, Kay helped me remove seven ticks. Home for the night.

Meldahl earns honors

McPherson College has recognized its highest academic achievers for the 2013-2014 academic year with their honor roll and honorable mention students. To qualify for the honor roll, students must be a full-time student and earn a grade point average of 3.55 or higher during the previous term. Students earning a grade-point average from 3.25 to 3.54 are named to the honorable mention roll.

Erin Meldahl, senior, from Richmond, has been named to the honor roll at McPherson College for the spring semester.

Fire department gets grant

Garnett Fire Department has been awarded a FY2013 Assistance to Firefighters Grant (AFG) in the amount of $10,920 to replace several hundred feet of fire hose and purchase 2 portable ground monitors.

The primary goal of the Assistance to Firefighters Grant (AFG) is to meet the firefighting and emergency response needs of fire departments and non-affiliated emergency medical service organizations. Since 2001, AFG has helped firefighters and other first responders to obtain critically needed equipment, protective gear, emergency vehicles, training and other resources needed to protect the public and emergency personnel from fire and related hazards.

"These grants are not the easiest to come by. Captain J.D. Mersman has really worked hard to obtain this equipment which will greatly benefit the department. I personally want to thank him and others who have worked to secure the grant," Garnett Fire Chief Pat Tate said.

1984: Police, sheriff clash over policy

June 29, 2004

Trinity Lutheran Church in Garnett celebrated its 20th anniversary this past weekend, and it was a milestone achieved by faith, perseverance and providence. By faith, Lutherans of Garnett tried once again in 1966 to form a congregation after earlier attempts in the 1920s and 1950s were unsuccessful. By perseverance, many of them maintained memberships at Faith Lutheran in Ottawa yet met for Bible Study in individual homes for about 10 years before they began worshipping at the Presbyterian Church in 1976. The Lutherans held worship at the Presbyterian Church from 1976 to 1982, leaving the church building on Sunday morning about the same time the Presbyterians were arriving.

A recent tour of farmers' markets in several Kansas communities gave some clues as to how a market could succeed in Garnett, and how it might assist in bringing retail customers to downtown Garnett in particular. The markets visited were in Burlington, Ottawa, Lawrence and Topeka. There are also markets in Iola and Paola, as well as some smaller towns, and a larger market in

Librarian Andrea Sobba told the Garnett City Commission recently budget shortages at the library will force a reduction in services next year unless the city's property valuation increases or the commission agrees to additional tax funding. Sobba's remarks were the first of any city department so far publicly directed toward the city's 1995 budget, on which the city staff have begun preliminary work for finalization next month. At issue now is whether the city's property valuation will rise next year, allowing more revenue to be raised with current tax levies, or if it will decline like last year and leave local government in tougher financial straights.

The Crest USD 479 Board of Education approved a salary agreement for district teachers. The contract includes a base pay of $22,400 and an average increase of 3.41 percent over last year's contract.

June 28, 1984

There is a need for city police officers to respond to accidents within the vicinity of the city when other law enforcement personnel are not available, Anderson County Sheriff Tom Hermreck told the Garnett City Commission. Hermreck said that a problem had developed during the serious accident last Friday night on U.S. 169 and Park Road, as the sheriff's deputy was east of Garnett six to eight miles and the nearest trooper was south of Colony. One police unit responded but another said he would not do so until he had clearance from Police Chief Lawrence Kellerman. The current police handbook policy instructed policemen to secure permission from a supervisor prior to covering accidents or other incidents outside the city limits. This is so the city will not be unprotected.

Every reliable newspaper desires to print the news correctly, and nobody regrets an error appearing in the paper more than does the editor; yet, careful as he may be, errors creep in occasionally. There are people who appear to delight in watching for these errors and "bawling out" the editor in a crowd with something like this: "Hey, don't you know where Kalamazoo is? Didn't you know it's in Michigan? Haw! Haw! Haw!" Maybe the editor wrote the name of the state right, and the typo got it wrong; or maybe the editor wrote it wrong. Anyhow, the name was wrong when it appeared in the paper, and the smart critic enjoyed himself "calling the editor down." And of course the editor enjoyed it, too. Speaking of these errors, the Yates Center News says: "We were criticized last week for a mistake in the personnel of a local item. Did you ever make mistakes? Yes. Then how would you like to have them printed on a piece of white paper every week so the public could see them? Would they be fewer than the average editor makes?"

All God needs is a spiritual response

In his book "In Pursuit of God", A. W. Tozer asks the question, "Why do some persons find God in a way others do not?" As I think about that, what does it mean to find God? In order to find something you must search for it. Even more than that you must have a desire for it. Each of us have inward longings and desires. Everyone is searching for something. All of us search for security. We want our families to be safe and secure. We want job security. I know of no one who has found either. All of us want good health and a long life. This is more difficult to find than security. Because of our failure to find either security or lasting health we often pursue some type of pleasure which will ease the frustration we feel from our inability to find security and good health.

So where is the failure or the disconnect? Tozer states, "The difference lies not with God but with us." Now we need to get back to the question what does it mean to find God? Tozer believed the most important quality anyone can have is a spiritual awareness. If we are not aware of God and his desire to reveal himself to us we are disconnected from the greatest source of light and power we could ever possess. Now that being said many people are aware of God but never offer any meaningful spiritual response. Simply put most of us pursue everything ahead of God. In order to take the high road of spiritual living and offer a meaningful spiritual response to God would require us to put God ahead of everything else. Now that puts us on the horns of a dilemma. Do we pursue God or do we pursue our desires? In Psalm 22:18, David said, "When thou saidst, seek ye my face; my heart said unto thee, Thy face, LORD, will I seek."

If you want to find God the next time you feel that inward longing do something about it. Make a spiritual response, say "Thy face, LORD, will I seek."

FLASHBACK

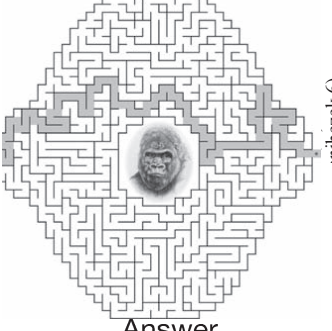

- POP ROCK & SOUL TRIVIA BY MIKE
- Who sang "Norman"?
 - In which song does the singer live in the "third boxcar, midnight train" while seeing signs advertising "trailers for sale or rent"?
 - Who had a hit with "10538 Overture"?
 - Name the group that wrote and released "Go Your Own Way."
 - Name the song that contains this lyric: "Every generation blames the one before, And all of their frustrations come beating on your door, I know that I'm a prisoner to all my Father held so dear, I know that I'm a hostage to all his hopes and fears."

Answers

- Sue Thompson, in 1961. She also released "Sad Movies Make Me Cry" the same year. Both were million-selling hits.
- "King of the Road," by Roger Miller.
- Electric Light Orchestra in 1972. The number refers to a prisoner who escaped.
- Fleetwood Mac, in 1977. The song is about a relationship between band members Stevie Nicks and Lindsey Buckingham.
- "The Living Years," by Mike and The Mechanics in 1988. The song's heartfelt lyrics express the regret of a son who never did get conflicts resolved before his father passed away, shortly before the singer's own son was born.

discussed which began June 24 in the community room from 10-11 a.m. and continues each Tuesday morning throughout the month of July.

4-H

Seekers Not Slackers 4-H Club met June 18. President Dal Lacey called the meeting to order. Brock Peters and Karson Hermreck led the club in saying the flag salute and 4-H pledge. Roll call was a favorite sport answered by 14 members and two leaders. Song leader Jerrick Jones led the club in singing "Heads, Shoulders, Knees, and Toes."

Community leader Stacy Sprague informed members that fair entries are due July 1. She also mentioned fair superintendents need to let Extension leaders Shannon and Nancy know if they can help. Project leader Cara Bowen announced there will be a photography meeting on June 29. They will be going to the Overland Park Arboretum.

During program, Brock Peters led the club in playing a game. Brock would hold up an item used for cattle and members would guess what it was. Dal Lacey showed the club how to change a tire. For recreation, Trevor Church and Brooklynn Jones led the club in playing a water balloon toss. Members sang Happy Birthday to Zane Hermreck. Vice president, Brock Peters, announced the next meeting will be July 21 at the Lone Elm Community building. The meeting was adjourned by saying the 4-H motto.
