Diesel production to add 12-15 jobs at EKAE plant

Upgrade will allow plant to turn corn oil into diesel fuel over the next year

BY DANE HICKS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — The East Kansas Agri Energy ethanol plant will boost employment by 12-15 workers after a new renewable diesel production upgrade takes place at the plant over the next year, enabling the plant to turn its corn oil into diesel fuel which it will sell in addition to ethanol.

"It's molecularly the same diesel you'd buy at the pump," said EKAE CEO Jeff Oestmann. "The only difference is we'll be making it out of our corn oil byproduct from the plant instead of out of petroleum."

The upgrade will require new construction at the plant which will take place over the next 12-14 months, Oestmann said. After the upgrade the plant will be able to produce three million gallons of hydrocarbon fuel per year, with the ability to double that capacity at some point in the future, according to a press release from the Renewable Fuels Association, a bio fuels support and lobby group in

Next week could test fair's future

Long-awaited carnival could largely determine success of county fair this year

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Next week, the Anderson County Fair Board will see if the extra effort they put into this year's fair was worth it. They're counting on good attendance at the fair and a large amount of advance ticket sales for the carnival to find out if a carnival really can determine success or failure of the annual fair.

So far, their extra efforts appear to have made some strides. This past weekend's tractor pull, an annual staple of the fair, brought the return of a full slate of categories. Attendance appeared good, although organizers didn't have a tally on tickets as of presstime. The tractor pull traditionally kicks off fair activities, but because the fair board pushed back the dates of the fair to meet requirements for a carnival, the fair actually won't begin until next week, Aug. 5-8.

The biggest change at the fair, however, will be the much-anticipated carnival from Fun Time Carnival Rides, an amusement company based in southeast Missouri. The fair has not had a carnival in several years, and many blame declining attendance at the fair in recent years to the lack of a carnival. After last year's fair, Fair Board President Jess Rockers made it a prior-

A primary primer: Don't forget to vote

Republicans face big decisions across state, but not locally

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Without significant local races to draw voters, it may seem as if the primary election on Tuesday, Aug. 5, doesn't matter.

But the outcome of the primary election could have a significant impact on state and national levels. Electing a strong party candidate makes it more likely the candidate will triumph in the general election, therefore carrying the party's principals and ideals on through until at least the next election cycle.

For the most part, the outcome of many of the races seems certain, such as in the Republican party's race for governor. It's unlikely Gov. Sam Brownback will lose the nomination, and is expected to advance to the general election where he faces a more uncertain outcome. But other races, such as the fight for the U.S. Senate seat held by long-term incumbent Pat Roberts, have turned into a heated battle. In politics, nothing is ever certain until all the votes are counted.

Local Democrats will be disappointed with the ballot, as there are no local contested races at any level and only one contest to decide.

County rebuffs city revitalization plans

County not swayed by plans to include all of city in tax rebate plan

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — A plan to expand tax breaks for people who improve their properties in the City of Garnett didn't impress Anderson County Commissioners, who last week voted against the city's plan.

Their decision was a blow to the decades-old Neighborhood Revitalization Program, but it wasn't quite a death knell.

Homeowners still can benefit from tax breaks from the City of Garnett and USD 365, and it's likely the original revitalization program will continue with the county's participation

The Neighborhood Revitalization Program began in the 2001 as a way to encourage improvements in blighted areas of Garnett. Property owners who make substantial improvements — at least $5,000 in added valuation — can qualify for a refund of new property taxes assessed because of those improvements for either five or

Area schools enroll next week

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — It's almost time to trade in the summer swimsuits for school-appropriate clothes, backpacks and school supplies. The first day of a new school year is nearly here, and area schools will enroll next week.

Enrollment for all three school districts in the area will be on Tuesday, Aug. 5, with Crest also offering enrollment on Wednesday, Aug. 6, and Thursday, Aug. 7, for Pre-K and new students. USD 365 is trying out a new online enrollment option for the first time this year, but parents still can attend traditional enrollment at Garnett Elementary School Aug. 5.

Below is a breakdown of enrollments by district, and when classes begin:

USD 365 — Garnett, Greeley, Mont Ida, Westphalia schools

• Enrollment is available online, and paperwork was mailed to USD 365 parents and students earlier this month. For returning students, most of the information already was provided in the online format. Parents can simply log on, fill in the missing or incorrect information, and submit the form all online. All students in the family may be enrolled via the same online form. Some forms, like requests for free or reduced price lunch, cannot be submitted online. Parents can fill out those forms during traditional enrollment, or can be dropped off at the school. Enrollment fees and lunch fees can be paid online through Efund for Schools. If you did not receive information to enroll online, contact the district office at

(785) 448-6155.

For those preferring traditional enrollment, all schools will enroll at Garnett Elementary School gymnasium from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 5.

• School supply lists can be found online at www.usd365.org.

• The first day of classes for all elementary students is Thursday, Aug. 14. Anderson County Jr./Sr. High School will have classes Aug. 14 for seventh and ninth graders, and for students who did not attend ACJSHS last year. Classes for students who previously attended ACJSHS will begin on Friday, Aug. 15.

USD 479 — Crest

• Enrollment for students whose last name begins with A through M can enroll Tuesday, Aug. 5. Students whose last name begins with N through Z ity to find a carnival for 2014. It proved to be quite a challenge; Rockers estimated he contacted about 80 companies starting soon after the 2013 fair. While researching amusement companies, Rockers found there are only about 200 carnival companies in the United States. In the early 1990s, there were 1,200 such companies. The increasing costs of insurance, fuel and equipment maintenance took its toll on the companies, but the demand for their services by county fairs and festivals has not diminished. That translates to greater demand and fewer suppliers.

It costs $25,000 to bring the carnival to Anderson County, an amount paid for by commitments from the City of Garnett and Anderson County commissioners as well as private donations to the fair board. Advance carnival ticket sales can help offset some of those costs. Advance ticket sales are available for $15 until Aug. 4 at area banks and other locations. The plant expansion will mean new jobs at the Garnett plant, as well as additional revenues for the company from the sale of diesel. That's good news for the local economy, although plant officials haven't said as of yet how much the new payrolls will amount to. Bernie Hoffman, vice-president of WB Services, the Sedgwick, Kan.,-based technology partner on the project, said in an article last August in Ethanol Producer Magazine the payout on such an upgrade was usually two years or less, although that timetable could vary according to varying selling prices for the diesel product.

"The main driver is to create greater value for our unit (stock) holders," said EKAE chairman Bill Pracht. "We'll be taking advantage of our experience and current facilities to create two biofuels out of one kernel of corn. We'll be adding value to the corn oil we already produce."

eight years. Property owners in the downtown area, primarily businesses, are eligible for eight years worth of refunded property taxes; owners in other zones are eligible for the five-year benefit.

This past spring, city leaders announced plans to expand the program to include all properties within the city limits and not just designated areas. City staff and commissioners cited ongoing efforts to clean up and improve the city, like a massive house painting and porch improvement project last summer, and current efforts by Garnett police to target nuisance violations. By rewarding people who made significant improvements, they hoped to build on the momentum from those efforts.

USD 365 board members immediately signed on for the expansion, but county commissioners weren't sure it was a good idea and asked for more time to consider the matter. The county's participation is not required, but without the county's participation, county taxes still would be assessed while City of Garnett and USD 365 taxes for the improvements would not be collected.

The county's participation was important because the county collects significantly more taxes than the other two entities. The county's mill levy is set at 92.685, which means the county collects about $92 for every $1,000 of a property's assessed value. The City of Garnett has a mill levy of 42.686; USD 365 has a mill levy of 56.556.

During discussions, county commissioner Jim Johnson said he was concerned that someone who built an expensive new home in a "nice" part of town could avoid paying property taxes for five years. County commissioner Jerry Howarter was concerned that if a tornado or major disaster struck Garnett, homeowners could rebuild and avoid taxes.

City attorney Terry Solander made changes to the wording of the revitalization agreement that would allow taxing entities to exempt the program in the

The process of turning corn oil into diesel fuel also produces byproducts like naphtha, a component in gasoline which is also used in ethanol production as a denaturant. Another byproduct is a fuel gas similar to pipeline natural gas which will also be used to fuel the plant and reduce energy consumption.

Oestmann said EKAE already has a receptive market for the new fuel.

"We have positive relationships with customers and within the biofuels industry that have come to know EKAE as a reliable and trustworthy supplier" Oestmann said. "By using corn distillers oil we produce as the primary feedstock, we will have quality control that will underscore our reputation for quality in the marketplace."

The corn oil produced diesel will be used in traditional diesel fuel markets such as automobiles, trucks and trains, heavy-duty equipment in agriculture, construction, and in aviation fuel.

case of a natural disaster, but city commissioners admitted there was nothing to prevent someone from building a new home in the city and avoiding taxes for five years. However, Garnett commissioner Preston Peine pointed out that no new houses had been built in the city for at least eight years; if the program encouraged someone to build a new home, it would be worth forgoing taxes for five years because the home would likely stand for decades.

In the end, commissioners Highberger and Johnson voted down the expansion and Howarter voted in favor. A decision on continuing to participate in the program under its former restrictions was expected at the county's meeting on Monday,

DEMOCRATIC PARTY BALLOT

The only choice for Democrats will be in the U.S. Senate race. Dems will decide if they want Chad Taylor of Topeka or Patrick Wiesner of Lawrence to face the Republican contestant in November.

REPUBLICAN PARTY BALLOT

The most heated contest of the primary season in Kansas is the race between U.S. Senator Pat Roberts of Dodge City and challenger Milton Wolf of Leawood. Roberts has held the seat for 47 years, a fact that Wolf has criticized by calling Roberts a Washington insider who doesn't really live in Kansas anymore.

But there are even more choices in the race, with DJ Smith of Osawatomie and Alvin E. Zahner of Russell also vying for Roberts' seat.

U.S. House Of Representatives, Dist. 2

Incumbent Lynn Jenkins of Topeka must fend off a challenge by Joshua Joel Tucker of Pittsburg before facing a challenge from an active but untested Democratic candidate, Margie Wakefield of Lawrence.

Governor/Lt. Governor

Gov. Sam Brownback with Lt. Gov. Jeff Coyler are favored to win over challenger Jennifer Winn, of Haysville, running with Robin R. Lais. The bigger test for Brownback will be in the general election, where Brownback faces a Democrat, Paul Davis.

Secretary Of State

Incumbent Kris Kobach of Piper faces a challenge from Scott Morgan of Lawrence.

Commissioner Of Insurance

The departure of outgoing insurance commissioner Sandy Praeger has seen five Republican candidates vying for her open seat, and only one Democrat. Candidates include Beverly Gossage, of Eudora; David J. Powell, of El Dorado; Ken Selzer, of Leawood; Clark Shultz of Lindsborg; and John M. Toplikar, of Olathe.

State Board Of Education, Member Dist. #9

Martin Burke, of Riverton, will fight for a seat on the state's education board against Jim Porter, of Fredonia.

LOCAL CONTESTS

Locally, there are no major contested races but two of the grassroots party-level positions will see contests. Both positions are in Lincoln Township, where voters will select a committeewoman and committeeman from among two families. Committeewoman candidates are Cathy D. Hoke and Arlene Patton. Committeeman candidates are Gary Hoke and David Patton.

Who to vote for, and why

The Kansas primary rolls around next week and I've done the research for you so you'll know who to vote for.

Don't thank me. It's what I do.

Let's start on the Democratic side, since on the entire Anderson County ballot there's only one contested Democratic primary race. That's in the U.S. Senate race between two-term Shawnee County District Attorney Chad Taylor and Lawrence tax and bankruptcy attorney Patrick Wiesner.

In this case I have to encourage my Democrat friends to vote Patrick Wiesner. Wiesner should know enough about debt to know its pitfalls, and that's the biggest current issue in our nation next to terrorist attack and preserving whatever company now produces Twinkies. Taylor seems like a decent guy and decent prosecutor, but he's a big wind mill fan, and frankly anyone without enough judgment to see through the farce of wind mill power doesn't deserve your vote.

In the Republican race for Senate, Pat Roberts will try to fend off Milton Wolf of Leawood, Della Jean Smith of Osawatomie and Alvin Zahnter of Russell.

It's a tougher choice than it should be, but with reservations I'm picking Pat Roberts, even though I think Roberts and those like him are indeed a lot of what's wrong with Washington. Wolf is right: 47 years is too long to be in Washington, and Roberts is more Beltway than he is Dodge City these days, particularly because (and again, Wolf is right) Roberts really doesn't live in Kansas anymore.

But Wolf-Smith-Zahnter put the Senate and the country for that matter in peril if they should win the primary. The reason is all of them are beatable by whichever Democrat wins the party's choice. For Republicans to win control of the Senate and hold control of the house is far more important to the country in general than dumping Roberts or teaching him to appreciate his roots. For their part, Wolf has that creepy Facebook thing following him around; Smith's website bio extolls her childhood training in setting traps for rabbits and squirrels (granted, skills certainly necessary in the U.S. Senate); and all Zahnter needs to complete the Floyd R. Turbo imitation on his website Youtube video is an earflap cap.

Incumbent Lynn Jenkins still gets my vote for 2nd District Congress. Jenkins makes a solid effort to get back to her diverse district and get educated about its varied aspects, whether visiting the Army staff college at Leavenworth or touring the industrial park in Columbus. The problem of course is that despite her contact with her district and solid work for her constituents, she's too small a fish in D.C., where small fish swim upstream to get... well, nothing major done these days.

Jenkins' primary opponent, Joshua Tucker of Pittsburg, professes some fine conservative principles but he's no match for Jenkins' experience and developing congressional seniority, and his campaign has zero traction.

Wichita's Jennifer Winn decided to take on Governor Sam Brownback for the Republican nomination last year after her son was implicated in a marijuana bust and faced murder charges. She's a proponent of drug legalization, which is not a bad idea in itself, but that's not going to do much for the Ogallala Aquifer or grow the state's economy or any of the other challenges confronting the state. Brownback has experience and commitment and his tax and spending cuts aimed at reducing the size of government and letting us keep our own money are some of the only true conservative principles being employed anywhere in the country. Despite the wailing of the state media most Kansans actually get it - less government means less government revenues and a bigger private sector economy. I've been critical in the past of Brownback's Church Lady bit, but he's making small government happen and that's why Republicans should vote for him.

REVIEW COMMENTARY

Another conservative with a target painted on him is our pick for a second term at Secretary of State, Kris Kobach. Kobach had the audacity to assert that if you wanted to vote in a Kansas election you had to prove you were a citizen and produce some ID. Doesn't seem so outlandish, does it? And liberals hate him because he spends his spare time helping states dodge the legal barricades to securing themselves against illegal aliens. Tsk, tsk. He is a sharp guy, his SOS office runs well and he has a commitment to legally thwart immigration criminals. I like him.

Kobach's Republican opponent Scott Morgan of Lawrence asks "Why Scott?" on his website, but only talks about his journalism, publishing and lawyering background, and never tells us "Why Scott." Under "Why not Kobach?" he reveals he's basically mad because Kobach is hard on illegal aliens. Blah, blah. Republicans, vote Kobach.

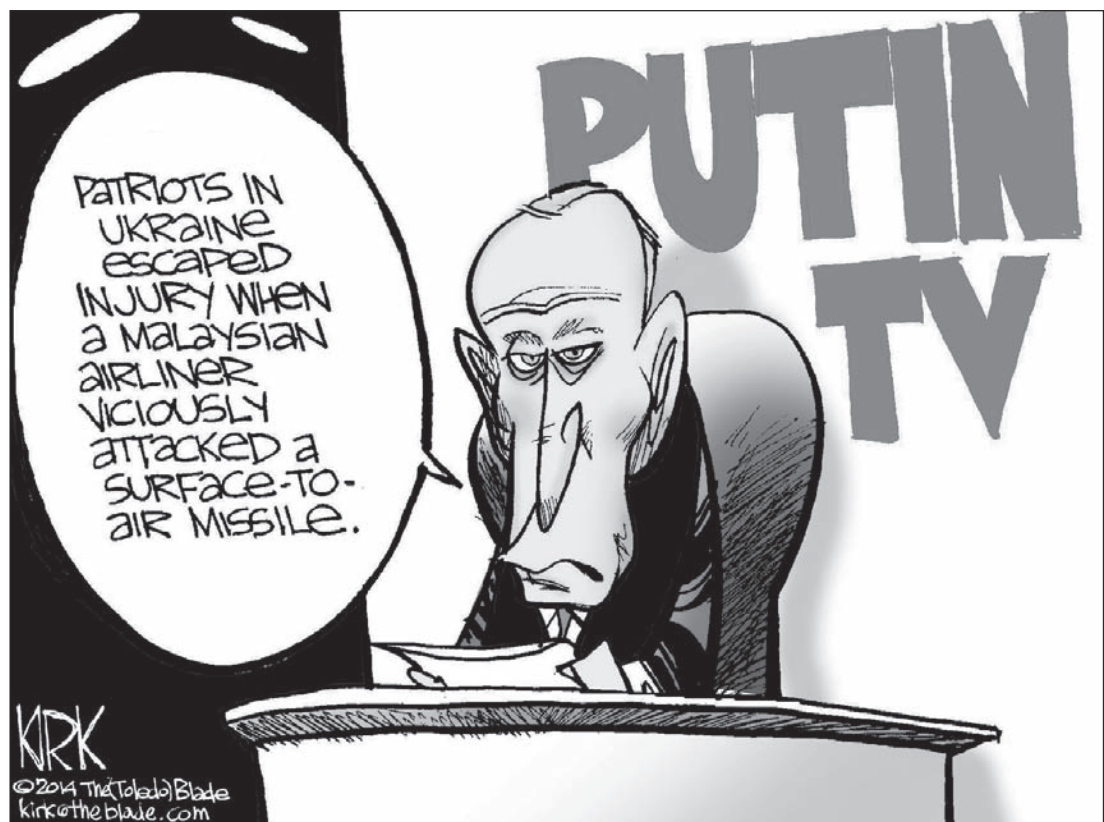

But everybody on the Republican side, it seems, wants to be Kansas Commissioner of Insurance, even though only one guy seems to know anything remotely about the office. Beverly Gossage of Eudora, Clark Schultz of Lindsborg and Jon Toplikar of Olathe all want to be Insurance Commissioner so they can get rid of Obamacare.

Newsflash guys: You're stuck with Obamacare, whether you're insurance commissioner or not, until the U.S. Congress does something about it.

In this case you should probably vote for Ken Selzer - even though he's from Leawood, which, let's face it, really isn't Kansas.

It's a little better than a coin toss win over David Powell of El Dorado. Selzer is the only one who ever talks about trying to make sure there are lots of insurance companies in Kansas competing for our insurance business, and that's a pretty good goal for the consumer. Powell wants an explanation why insurance companies use credit scores to base rates, but doesn't talk about what the ICs office could do about it.

That wraps it up. Don't forget to vote!

I want to say thanks to J.R. and the fair committee for deciding to have a carnival this year. It's not a fair without a carnival. It may cost a lot, but what doesn't these days? It will give kids something to do after the parade. Everyone I have talked to has said they are glad we're having a carnival this year and hope to continue in future years. Thanks again fair committee-good decision.

Cheer up folks, in two years the country will be rid of its so-called president. Hopefully in less than two years, Garnett will be rid of its so-called police chief. Hopefully. Thank you.

Why is it when people rob banks, they go to prison; when people rob taxpayers, they get re-elected?

I'm glad the fair is going to have a carnival. Good job fair board and thanks for taking the bull by the horns to make this happen. You can't have a fair without a carnival.

Our strongest ally in the Middle East is Israel, and they're in a war with Hamas which is a terrorist group that wants to destroy Israel and the United States. Our president, Obama, just gave $47 million of our tax dollars to Hamas to fight Israel. It appears he is trying to follow the dreams of his Muslim father who also hated Israel and the United States. What did we do by electing this man as our president? He is definitely out to destroy the United States as we know it. Thank you.

If people would all treat people equally in this town then our children would be treated equally when they go to school. We wouldn't have to worry about impressing those parents we like and not worry about those we don't like with their children. Just food for thought.

My neighbor listens to the scanner and told us about the two teenage girls in the silver pickup who dumped the cat over on Monroe today. Please people, if you have an animal you don't want, take it to the local shelter or go to the swap and talk and tell someone, you'll find someone who wants it by the end of the day. Dumping an animal in a place they're unfamiliar with, with no one to care for it is cruel and can make the animal dinner for predators. Please behave responsibly with your animals.

Labor trouble on stage at the New York Metropolitan Opera

The fat lady will sing -- but only in strict keeping with the work rules set out by the American Guild of Musical Artists.

The Metropolitan Opera has a labor problem. Personnel expenses account for $200 million of the financially struggling Met's $327 million budget.

In the interest of survival in an era more attuned to "Keeping Up With the Kardashians" than "Le Nozze di Figaro," the Met wants to reduce its labor costs by 16 percent by getting the unions to accept common-sensical work rules and less-generous pension and health benefits. The unions say no and accuse the Met of waging war on their families.

The storied but precarious institution could see its next season disrupted in the labor discord. The Met's general manager, Peter Gelb, warns that without union flexibility, the very existence of the world-famous, 130-year-old opera is at risk.

Well, if worst came to worst, at least the Met's singers and musicians could make a go of it at the New York City Opera. No, wait, it shut its doors last year.

It doesn't take an opera aficionado to realize that the 21st century isn't the 19th, and opera is an embattled art form. Unfortunately, the Met is locking horns with a force, the unions, that has proven adept at helping to drive struggling industries into the ground.

A New York Times editorial recently noted that orchestra members, who on average make $200,000 a year, get 16 weeks off with pay. The American Federation of Musicians Local 802 shot back that it is really only 10 weeks of guaranteed time off with pay. Touche'.

Under the current rules, the base pay for chorus members, who also make on average

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

RICH LOWRY, King Features Syndicate

$200,000 a year, covers four performances a week. The members get paid extra for rehearsals -- even if they haven't sung in four performances that week.

They also earn overtime for singing in any opera over four hours, which makes Richard Wagner the best thing that ever happened to a Met singer's paycheck. His "Parsifal" clocks in at five hours, and wasn't performed last season, in part because of labor costs.

The union case against its nemesis Gelb is that he's a spendthrift, and there's something to it. Gelb dropped almost $20 million a few years ago on a production of Wagner's "Ring" cycle that included a 45-ton set. If the production underperformed at the box office, it was on a scale worthy of the Met and was funded by a gift. Only unions would complain that an opera manager is spending too much on opera and not enough on overtime pay and pension benefits. Given the headwinds in the culture, what the Met accomplishes is extraordinary -- more than 200 performances a season, in front of 800,000 people in the house and another couple of million in broadcasts in movie theaters. It is working to preserve a demanding art form that represents one of the high points of Western civilization. It would be a shame for the ages if it were brought low, not just by indifference without, but by shortsighted union grubbiness within.

Some campaigns come down to slogans

Well, except for some of you who early-voted, you have about a week to decide just what sort of campaign you have been treated to by the candidates out there at the parade or park or community dinner or maybe at the front door.

And, it's going to be interesting because this election cycle is different than ones we've seen recently.

There are hot-button slogans that, with just a glance, appear to be virtually useless except to fill out speeches or brochures, and there are issues that probably are important, but which nobody is talking much about.

A campaign that is mostly about slogans? Check the GOP primary to replace retiring Kansas Insurance Commissioner Sandy Praeger, who served three terms.

Anyone talking about car insurance, life insurance or maybe whether you got a good estimate on the cost to replace that damaged roof? Nope, it's the Affordable Care Act, and while most everyone either likes it or doesn't like it, there is virtually nothing that the Kansas Insurance Commissioner can do about it. It's almost like campaigning in opposition to hail.

What? Isn't that most of what we're hearing on the campaign trail, this Obamacare and how the Republicans in the race don't like it? Yes, but there probably is more that a Kansas insurance commissioner can do about fire insurance and car insurance and such than Obamacare. You just aren't hearing much of it. Biggest issue in the insurance race that few are hearing about is whether insurance companies ought to be subject to Kansas regulation, so Kansans get the insurance they are paying for, and not being tricked. For most legislative races, while there is still the Obamacare issue that state lawmakers can't do anything for or against—that's Congress, not the Kansas Legislature—it's still a hot topic. The real question reflects on us voters. Why do we keep the screen door open for candidates who talk about something they can't fix or kill, anyway?

Now, once the talk about Obamacare is over, we get to the stuff that ought to mat-

Is a relationship with Jesus a necessity?

Is a relationship with Jesus a necessity? In John 4 Jesus talks to a Samaritan woman. Jesus arrives in a town called Sychar. There he meets a Samaritan woman who is coming to Jacob's well to draw water at noon. The reason the woman comes in the heat of the day is because she has a checkered past and she wishes to avoid meeting the other woman of the town. Much to her surprise Jesus engages her in a conversation.

Weekly Devotional by David Bilderback heritage handed down through Jacob.

She was like many of us are today. She was convinced of someone greater than herself but she was not converted. There was no sign of transformation in her life. She had five previous husbands and the man she now had was not her husband. Jesus did not berate her for this, his intention was to show her the need for a Savior, which would lead to the transformation of her life.

The woman could not change her past just like we cannot change our past. However God understood this when he sent Jesus to die on a cross for our sins. This is the reality of Jesus. Aside from Jesus there is no other way we can clear the garbage and clutter from our lives.

Many live a moral, upright life but their lives are not transformed. The same old things continue to drag them down and prevent them from living transformed lives. We must understand that Jesus is the only way to salvation. That is a reality. When we understand this the necessity of Jesus becomes apparent.

Patriots Bank Donates Television to Richmond Exercise Group

Richmond - Every Tuesday and Thursday a group of older adults meet at the Richmond Community Building for exercise class. They follow a video routine, and until recently held their breath and hoped their older model T.V. would cooperate and not randomly change the channel or perform a number of other strange functions.

Jesica Steele, the summer health and wellness specialist, working for the East Central Kansas Area Agency on Aging, began attending the classes and providing extra fitness activities for the ladies. Steele quickly noticed what an obstacle the T.V. was becoming. She returned to the agency and worked with her co-workers to find possible donors to help purchase a new television for the ladies.

Patriots Bank was contacted and graciously offered to donate the television. Within the next week the television was ordered and installed. The Richmond ladies are now exercising without any delays and can now get a complete work out in. Thank you to Patriots Bank for helping build a healthier community, your generosity is appreciated by all.

If you are interested in what health and wellness resources are available to you in your community please contact the East Central Kansas Area Agency on Aging at (785) 242-7200.

Partner promotions help small business

I like the trend we're seeing nowadays of small private businesses promoting each other, because in the long run I think it's going to help everybody involved sell more stuff.

A bank I did some business with down in Missouri last year took a neat twist on this mutual promotion idea. As I was standing in the lobby waiting for one of the VPs, I noticed a nice stand-up display at one end of the lobby with a table in front covered with a matching fabric cover. It looked like the kind of thing you might see in a trade show booth, and the display had the logo of a local insurance agent with his brochures and other merchandising items on the table.

When I eventually sat down with the bank staff, they told me the insurance display was for one of their commercial clients in town; every week or so they would ask one of their commercial clients or maybe a non-profit who banked with them to be the feature on the display. I don't know how much traffic that bank lobby got, but what a great way to reward a customer by promoting his/her business - and hey - if one of those contacts turned into a sale, think how much loyalty that would generate from that bank customer.

Small businesses really are all in this together, and it's a banner idea to cross promote each other. The simplicity is the best part - just contact a fellow small business person through your network of friends or business organization and propose that you put some of their merchandise on your counter or shelf display if they'll do the same for you. Make it a few weeks or a month, and then do the same promo swap with another contact.

A real attention grabber would be to copy your store's short promotional video to a DVD and set it up in one of those little portable DVD players in your partners store front. Even if all you have is a brochure or some business cards, you can still strike a promotional partnership with another local business so you can both sell stuff!

instead of taking his mind off work, the operation plunges him into one of the most perplexing and mind-blowing mysteries he's ever faced.

1914: City sued over electric light plant

July 27, 2004
The Kansas Agricultural Service has called this summer's wheat harvest "Dismal" but this summer's corn harvest could be outstanding - and so could bean and milo harvests if the weather holds. There was a wide range of wheat yields across Anderson County from 30 bushels per acre to the low 40s per acre, but rains during harvest caused a lot of people to have test weights that were down. Nearly five years to the day from the first time they made the proposal, the Kansas Department of Health and Environment has again asked the Anderson County commission to consider applying for a grant to clean up an old dump located on private property north of Scipio. The dump is the site of a former pumping station that was dismantled in 1912. It later became a dumping spot for the City of Richmond, but was abandoned for that purpose as well.

The aging but stately Odd Fellows Building on the northwest corner of Oak and Fourth streets in Garnett may have an overhaul in its future if its new owners, Garnett's Fuller-Thompson Post 48 of the American Legion, can raise enough funds to complete a renovation on what the post hopes will become its new headquarters.

July 28, 1994
Anderson County commissioners decided to increase the county's mill levy by one mill in 1995 when they met Monday, reversing a decision made last week to hold the line on county taxes for the coming year. Last week, the commission voted to keep the county mill levy at its 1994 level of 50.332 mills. Commissioner Ann Calahan voted against the measure, saying the county needed to increase its mill levy to make up for unbudgeted expenditures for the new solid waste transfer station and county jail renovation. Commission chairman Dudley Feuerborn held onto his belief that the county could get by if the mill levy was left alone. The swing vote was cast by commissioner Howard Thompson, who noted the commission failed to budget money for the salary of a county engineer that the county is planning to hire later this year.

July 26, 1984
Garnett's city budget calls for an overall less than two percent increase which includes a large increase of nearly five mills in the bond and interest fund. Except for the bond and interest fund increase, the largest budget increase was $24,233 in employee insurance, retirement and other benefits, which is shared equally by the city and the employees. These amounts increase nearly every year and the city has no control over their costs.

July 29, 1914
Last evening, a petition was filed in the district court by J.G. Johnson, as attorney for J. Q. McAfee, for failure of the city to buy his electric light plant. The petition also asks that the city commissioners be restrained from letting a contract to build a city light plant, as advertised in this paper. The contention of Mr. McAfee is that, as the commissioners have elected to buy his plant, as provided in the franchise, and given him notice of their election, they cannot now abandoning that proceeding at will, notwithstanding the fact that the two appraisers heretofore appointed to value the plant have reported that they are unable to agree on the value of the works, or upon a third appraiser. Mr. McAfee fixed the value of his plant at $15,000, which is the amount sued for.

A wooden building is being erected near the Irving school building for the special use of the Manuel Training Department. The building is a one-story affair, 32 by 36 feet, with a large attic.

Ground yields harness shop tools

A few years ago while conducting an excavation around a very old abandoned farm site, I discovered what I believe was once a harness repair shop. What I dug up were numerous iron buckles of all sizes, shapes, iron and brass, brass harness rivets of all sizes and lengths, brass rivet burrs, small triangular files and a large number of these strange looking tools.

DIGGING UP THE PAST

Well, these strange tools are known as gimlets. Pictured here are three lead "barrel" handled and one iron "looped" handled. As you can plainly see the barrel handled ones have been damaged severely in times past.

Exactly what is a gimlet? A gimlet is a small hand tool for drilling or making small holes in wood or leather, without splitting it. It is defined in Joseph Gwilt's Architecture (1859) as "a piece of steel of a semi-cylindrical form, hollow on one side, having a cross handle at one end and a worm or screw at the other.

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 07-29-2014 / Photo Submitted

"Gimlets," or tools used for leather works, were common items in harness shops and blacksmith operations in the 1800s. Such tools worked leather into functional work machinery all driven by horse, mule and oxen power.

A gimlet is always a small tool. A similar tool of larger size is called an auger. The cutting action of the gimlet is slightly different from an auger, however, at the end of the screw, and so the initial hole it makes, is smaller; the cutting edges pare away the material which is moved out by the spiral sides, falling out through the entry hole. This also pulls the gimlet farther into the hole as it turns. The word gimlet originated in France. Gimlets can be traced as far back as the 14th Century. One just never knows what they are going to discover next at one of these early homesteads.

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 06-29-2010 / Photo Submitted

The Carmelite Stars from St.Boniface at Scipio recently attended a week long mission camp in Lawrence. They painted houses and worked on yards for those in need besides enjoying camp activities and worship. Helping host the Garnett Area Paint Project last summer inspired this journey and GAPP was proud to partner with them in making this trip a reality. Ethanol - Fueling A New Generation

Proud Corporate Sponsor of the Anderson County Fair

Attention Livestock Growers:

Moran Locker wants you to compare processing prices and save on costs. Your hand-raised livestock is cut to your specifications to fit your needs, double-wrapped (the best way and most freezer stable way) and frozen. Locally owned and operated, we are a home-owned business with the experience of four generations of meat processing and butchering. Keeping our prices as low as possible for over 25 years. Slaughter fees are still only $35 per head for average size beef and hogs. With the economic slump you need to know where to go for the highest quality processing and slaughtering at the lowest prices. That's Moran Locker, where you actually get the quality processing you expect at the lowest price you deserve.

PLANNING TO PURCHASE A FAIR ANIMAL?

If you are planning to purchase a fair animal for slaughter, contact Mitch or Sharon for prior arrangements or see us at the Anderson County Fair and we will do all the work, including free hauling from the fair.
