Property owners protest sidewalk project

City pushes back some sidewalk work after delays by owners

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — City leaders blamed reluctant property owners for delays in the city's sidewalk improvement plan, a requirement under the Americans With Disabilities Act. Plans to install new sidewalks on Fifth and Sixth avenues have not gone as intended, with delays on several properties on Fifth Avenue. Very few properties on Sixth Avenue have completed required sidewalk replacement or repairs.

The work is required under an agreement between city leaders and state and federal officials to make sure the City of Garnett is compliant with ADA guidelines to improve handicapped accessibility throughout the city.

Because the city is under state and federal scrutiny to comply with ADA requirements, modifications to the original plan have to be done by resolution and submitted to the state for approval. The city's plan laid out work that would be done each year until this year, 2014, to make buildings and sidewalks more accessible. But each year, the city was forced to postpone parts of the project. City Manager Joyce Martin last week gave commissioners a lengthy list of projects that still need to be completed in 2015. The list will be forwarded to state officials. It's possible the state will not approve of the change, but Martin said it's not uncommon for cities to amend their plan.

Commissioner Greg Gwin said he was concerned about the many projects that still need to be completed. However, Mayor Preston Peine said the problem seems to be with homeowners who have been notified of the need to improve their sidewalks, but who have not yet done so, primarily because of financial reasons.

"Our alternatives are to do nothing and hope like hell it works out. The second option is to amend the plan, which is what we are considering here this evening. The third option is to get more aggressive with homeowners on the requirements," Peine said during discussion at the commission's regular meeting Tuesday, Sept. 23.

Peine and Gwin both said they were reluctant to force homeowners to comply with the sidewalk improvements. Under the current process,

Governor appoints new judge from Coffey County

Doug Witteman picked by governor over AC attorney Jones

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

TOPEKA — Coffey County Attorney Douglas P. Witteman has been appointed as a new district judge in the 4th Judicial District.

Gov. Sam Brownback announced the appointment last week, selecting Witteman over Anderson and Osage county attorney Brandon Jones, who was also nominated by the district selection committee. "Douglas brings both a breadth and depth of legal knowledge and experience that will make him a strong asset to the 4th District Court," Brownback said in a press release Wednesday, Sept. 24. "I am confident that he will serve the community well."

Witteman initially was one of four people who applied for the judge position, which was left open with the retirement of Judge Thomas H. Sachse. A nominating committee selected Witteman and Jones as finalists for the position, with the final decision left to the governor.

City looks at slight tax increase in 2015

Utility improvements, health care costs lead to higher rate

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — The City of Garnett will hike taxes by a little more than half a mill in 2015, although it's possible the rate could decrease slightly after officials study issues like employee health care and upgrades to the water plant. The city expects to spend about $320,000 more than last year with a total budget of more than $11.5 million.

Unlike governing bodies for the county and USD 365, which decreased the tax rate for 2015 because of increased property and mineral rights values in rural areas, Garnett commissioners were faced with property values in the city that remained essentially flat. When property values are higher, the tax rate goes farther.

"I was hoping our valuation would go up, which means our mills would generate more dollars, but it didn't happen," Garnett City Manager Joyce Martin said.

Martin has said it was very

Former AC commissioner, hospital board member dies at age 90

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Without Ann Calahan's attention to detail, Anderson County might not have retained ownership of the Anderson County Hospital building after a management agreement was penned in the 1990s.

Calahan, who died last week at the age of 90, served on the Anderson County Commission for two terms in the 1990s and was on the board when the county entered into a management agreement with St. Luke's Health System.

Fueller Duernborn, who served on the commission at the time along with Howard Thompson, said Calahan insisted on having her attorney review the contract; she previously had served on the hospital's board of direc-

Record-breaking crowd causes a few concerns

Security guards kept busy as rowdy country concert fans celebrate annual festival

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — The 10th anniversary of Cornstock ended up being quite a party, bringing the largest crowd to date — somewhere between 4,000 and 5,000 people — for the annual "Concert on the Hill."

But more people can translate to more problems, and there were a handful of issues, including at least one fight in the crowd that prompted the Casey Donahew Band to stop playing mid-song until the matter was addressed. Organizers and Garnett's police chief, however, said there were relatively few problems considering the number of people at the event.

Ticket sales are still being tabulated, so it's difficult to know exactly how many people were at the concert, according to co-organizer Susan Wettstein. She estimated between 4,000 and 5,000 people attended the concert, making it a record-sized crowd. Previously, the largest crowd at a Cornstock concert was just under 4,000 people.

The entertainment lineup featured Ottawa native and three-time concert favorite Travis Marvin as the opening act, with the Casey Donahew Band and Jerrod Niemann. Wettstein said the popularity of those acts likely contributed to Cornstock's attendance, and both the Casey Donahew Band and Jerrod Niemann had about equally large fan bases in attendance.

The near-perfect weather - in the 70s and sunny - also was a major factor in bringing people to the event, she said. Wettstein added that many people have made Cornstock a tradition, bringing people together for family reunions or to meet with friends.

Some of the problems at the concert were relatively minor, Wettstein said. She said organizers likely will look at adding more security next year, or at least adding more people who can answer questions and give directions. Security guards typically serve as the go-to people for those types of questions, but this year they were too busy with crowd control.

Garnett Police Chief Kevin Pekarek said officers reported no major problems because of Cornstock, and no arrests. A representative from the Anderson County Sheriff's Department was not available Monday morning, but deputies were called to the event at least once.

One of the issues keeping security busy appeared to be a low barrier between the general admission crowd and a designated VIP area. There were two VIP areas, one on the general crowd side and one on the "over 21" beer garden side. As the crowd grew, the plastic barriers were nearly destroyed and security had to alter the barriers halfway through the show. Security guards appeared to have more problems with the general admission crowd rather er than the beer garden side.

One security guard said a change in the stage configuration also caused some problems with crowd control. This year, the stage featured a runway and the crowd was able to get next to the stage, rather than being stopped by a fenced buffer zone near the stage.

That change was made at the request of the entertainment, Wettstein said. Some entertainers like to be able to closely interact with fans. She said Niemann, in particular, tours with Keith Urban who likes to get close to and touch his fans.

In addition to crowd control, some attendees noted that food and beverage vendors ran out of stock during the event. Several people complained about long lines for port-a-potties.

Wettstein said she hopes people are able to overlook a few minor issues, and overall the event was quite enjoyable. She pointed out that Cornstock helps the local economy by bringing large numbers of out-of-town visitors, and therefore out-of-town dollars. The event also helps local civic organizations raise money for their good works.

"People should be careful when they complain and start nitpicking little things. The people there are all volunteers, and they can unvolunteer," Wettstein said. "Instead of being on the pessimistic side, we need to commend what these people are doing."

It's a challenge to find enough people willing to volunteer their time to help organize the numerous activities and responsibilities that come with a large event like Cornstock, Wettstein said. She said people don't realize just how rewarding it can be to take part in the behind-the-scenes work for such an event. She encourages anyone who is curious to check out the "Volunteer" link on the event website, www.acornfest.com.

property owners can choose to hire a contractor or do the work themselves, and can receive financial assistance from the city to help pay for the work. They also can ask to make payment arrangements with the city. If the city were to force property owners to comply, the city would hire a contractor to do the work and then bill the property owners.

"I don't think it's beneficial as a city to get heavy-handed with citizens over this. We've got a plan, and we're working on it," Peine said.

In 2013, city officials did not notify property owners about the requirements in a timely manner, so many projects were late. This year, however, city officials notified property owners in February, giving them plenty of time to make arrangements, Peine said.

However, Gwin said the problems extend beyond property owners who can't afford the cost of sidewalk improvements.

"It occurs to me we're way behind on several things. I don't know what to say to that," Gwin said.

Martin said several parts of the plan had been completed, and some property owners who weren't yet required to improve sidewalks saw others making improvements and wanted to take advantage of the city's assistance program. That meant some work got done ahead of schedule, while some was delayed. She pointed out that the early stages of the plan, which were done a few years ago, were much more extensive and demanded quite a bit of the city's resources. The city has completed more than 5,000 feet of sidewalk improvements in recent years, she said.

She said some of the delays also came from concrete contractors. The city has three companies that are available to do the work, with one company getting most of the business. That company also received a contract for concrete work at the new Anderson County Hospital, which often made workers unavailable for small-scale sidewalk work.

"All I can say is we're chipping away at it," Martin said of the city's sidewalk improvement plan.

Gwin said he didn't want to impose on property owners any more than necessary, but he believed some of the items on the list could be handled by the city. Those items included new curbs in some areas.

Martin said those items likely would be completed before the end of the year, but she was including them in the 2015 plan just to make sure the city was covered if, for some reason, the work was delayed by unforeseen circumstances.

In the end, commissioners approved a resolution to postpone some of the unfinished work until 2015 but expressed the hope that much of it could still be done by the end of this year.

COMMISSIONER...

Her tenure on the county hospital board was often fraught with controversy as well, but she said she always tried to support the majority vote even if she didn't agree.

"Even if I'm the only one who votes against something, I'll work with the other commissioners to make sure we get it done," she said at the time. "I think we're all going to have to work together to make this county work. ... And if the county is going to prosper, people in the county and the city will have to cooperate."

Calahan was a very intelligent person, and Feuerborn said he was saddened when her mind started to fail as health ailments overtook her in recent years.

"When you serve with someone for two terms, you get to know someone a lot more. We were friends," he said. "She was a thorough commissioner and did what she thought was right for the people, not popularity. I respected her and hoped she had the same respect for me."

She was raised in Mont Ida where her parents owned a hardware store. In addition to serving as a county commissioner and hospital board, Calahan was a schoolteacher, counselor and social worker at the hospital. She also worked as an accountant with her husband, Kenneth, who started an H & R Block firm in Garnett. She sold the firm after her husband died in 1985. She also was active in many civic organizations.

She and her husband had four daughters. She died Tuesday, Sept. 23. An obituary is published on page this page.

Sex toy sale strictly business

Some Kansans, including CJOnline.com readers who comment on the stories found there, had some fun recently with the news that Kansas is involved in an online auction of sex toys.

An first glance, the uninitiated probably were startled, given the deeply held religious and moral views of Gov. Sam Brownback. But they shouldn't have been. The governor's feelings didn't figure in the equation, nor did the personal feelings of anyone else. There is nothing personal about the auction, it's strictly business.

The merchandise listed at the online auction site was confiscated in July from adult sex shops in Topeka, Wichita, Junction City and Kansas City, Kan., because the owner of the business, United Outlets LLC, owed the state $163,986 in unpaid taxes.

The Kansas Department of Revenue's standard practice in such cases includes meeting with the business owner to establish a payment plan. If that isn't feasible and the business owner can't come up with the money to satisfy the debt, inventory and other business assets are seized and sold to pay the taxes.

It isn't unusual for The Capital-Journal's readers to see a story about a business that has been locked, and emptied, due to tax debts. The next logical step, and the state's standard operating procedure, is to get its money by selling the property. In this case, it was the nature of the property, rather than the process, that garnered attention.

Kansas Senate Minority Leader Anthony Hensley, R-Topeka, is well aware of the process, as are most Kansans, as his comment that the state of Kansas was now in the porn business was clearly a political swipe at Brownback.

"The merchandise listed at the online auction site was confiscated in July from adult sex shops in Topeka, Wichita, Junction City and Kansas City, Kan., because the owner of the business, United Outlets LLC, owed the state $163,986 in unpaid taxes."

Kansas isn't in the porn business, but its revenue department is in the business of collecting taxes owed. Governments have a great interest in collecting what is owed them, and when businesses falter, taxes trump other claims.

In the case of United Outlets LLC, doing business under the Bang label, the property seized was released to the owner, who then contracted to sell the items at public auction and apply the proceeds toward the tax debt.

Taxpayers should be pleased the state is diligent about collecting taxes owed by United Outlets LLC, other businesses and individuals. When some don't pay their share, the rest of us pay more.

Someone in the city works should hang their head in shame. We arrived at the cemetery for a graveside burial and no grave has been dug. A man set out with a shovel – a shovel- started digging in the wrong place. Late on the backhoe. The young man who died suddenly was a shock, but to go through this was a travesty.

I just want to know why people are so stupid, saying Obama was born in Africa still. Are these people clueless or just too racist to admit he wasn't born in Africa? Doing more for his homeland than the country, I thought that was funny. What an idiot.

Instead of sending 3,000 of our military to combat ebola, why not send 3,000 of the people who are infected with ebola to join ISIS?

What an eyesore on the square. Can we get those boarded up windows fixed?

Mr. Hicks in your editorial you missed the biggest reason someone shouldn't vote for Paul Davis. With Republicans in control of the House and Senate and a Democrat governor our constipation of state government would be as bad as that of the national government in Washington. We don't need that here. Thank you.

Just read the Phone Forum. Someone is complaining about the 2014 queen candidates being out of the Kincaid area. Number one, it is up to the club to choose the candidate they would like to represent them. If you have a concern please contact the club that picked them. Number two, there are not that many girls in the area to pick from. If you would like to be a candidate for the 2015 fair please let one of the clubs know. Number three, if you do not like something about the fair you're welcome to attend the next fair meeting and address your concerns. The candidate from Gardner is my grand daughter, and for the past five years she's come down on Fridays to be my gopher at the fair setting up.

I don't always agree with some Sam Brownback's decisions but I think he made a wise decision in appointing the judge. It would be a shame for Mr. Jones to have a brand new $10,000 desk and not get to use it a little while longer.

The media's absurd NFL hysteria

During the past few weeks, two sets of initials have dominated the news -- ISIL and NFL -- and the casual listener would be hard-pressed to decide which is more odious.

It's a wonder that President Barack Obama hasn't pledged to bring NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell to justice.

Such is the weight the press has put on the NFL's punishment of Baltimore Ravens running back Ray Rice for punching his then-fiancee that Denis McDonough, the president's chief of staff, had to weigh in on "Meet the Press": "We all know Ray Rice being suspended indefinitely seems to be exactly the right thing."

On the NFL, the media has lost its collective mind. The coverage of the Rice elevator video managed to combine moralistic preening with voyeuristic pandering. Everyone on TV professed to be so outraged by domestic violence that they had to show a clip of a woman getting viciously punched, over and over again (until many of the networks finally recoiled from their own overkill).

At least the NFL gets its ratings by broadcasting images of men hitting other men.

In recent weeks, you'd think that the fate of justice in America depends on how harshly the NFL punishes a few miscreants. Only if Ray Rice and accused child-abuser Adrian Peterson are banished can women and children be safe from violence and abuse.

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

This is patently absurd. No matter how many sermons we hear to the contrary, the NFL is not the key to fighting domestic violence. Domestic violence declined 63 percent from 1994 to 2012, according to the Justice Department -- even though the NFL had a lenient policy toward domestic abusers across this period.

Nor is the NFL the sink of criminality you might assume from the headlines. Benjamin Morris of FiveThirtyEight writes that "arrest rates among NFL players are quite low compared to national averages for men in their age range." (Although domestic violence accounts for a disproportionate share of the arrests for violent crimes.)

It is true that Ray Rice should have gotten more than the initial two-game suspension for his shocking assault, and the NFL needs a clear, certain policy for punishing for such offenses.

Yet no one seems to care how the vortex of outrage affects the victim, Janay, who married Rice after the incident. She gets to see that horrible night replayed everywhere, to hear people bray for the end of her husband's career and to receive lectures from people who presume to know what's best for her and her marriage.

Now, Minnesota Vikings running back Adrian Peterson is the new focus of outrage. Facing child-abuse charges for disciplining his son with a switch, he is taken as a symbol of the noxiousness of all corporal punishment.

This is all so wildly disproportionate that perhaps something more than the usual ax-grinding, ratings-chase and group-think is at work. It may be that these cases are ways to express a deeper discomfort with the NFL, which sacrifices men's bodies and minds for our viewing pleasure every week.

That, of course, is something in which everyone who enjoys football is implicated and isn't such a ready subject for table-thumping condemnations.

Decision on Senate ballot will have fallout

Yes, much of the recent press was about the Kansas Supreme Court overruling law professor/Secretary of State Kris Kobach's assertion that Democrat U.S. Senate primary election winner Chad Taylor had inadequately professed that he was incapable of serving in the U.S. Senate.

The case, still being wrung out before a Shawnee County District Court three-judge panel, may determine whether a Kansas City Democrat was disenfranchised by Taylor's removal from the November ballot—and goes several other ways in the politics of the Kansas Statehouse.

And, yes, we're going to see some battling between the Legislature, possibly the governor, and the courts no matter how that matter finally turns out.

Because, well, the Legislature is the Legislature and, because the Legislature writes the check for the Supreme Court operations, it doesn't like to be overruled—especially when it is run by Republican lawmakers who have little tolerance for their Republican secretary of state being overruled.

The high court may have dodged an initial bullet when Supreme Court Chief Justice Lawton Nuss cannily got a unanimous decision from his court that Kobach was wrong, that Taylor was right and that Taylor, who is Shawnee County District Attorney, didn't have to actually carve into stone the word "incapable" to get off the November general election ballot.

A split decision would have identified justices who—regardless of the actual basis for a ruling—voted for Kobach or voted against Kobach. That's a sharp divide and if Kobach wins reelection, he'll be around to encourage sanctions of some sort against the court, or at least those justices who opposed him and, by implication, three-term U.S. Sen. Pat Roberts, R-Kan.

STATE COMMENTARY

It could be as simple as the Legislature just cutting the court's budget, reducing justices to driving economy cars to the Judicial Center, where they might lose their indoor private parking spaces. Or, it could be a little stealthier, possibly putting a mandatory retirement age on justices, which could force retirements or resignations.

Or—and this is the one to watch for—a proposed constitutional amendment on the 2016 ballot that would let the governor select his own appointees to the court without the intervention of the nonpartisan, lawyer-heavy Supreme Court Nominating Commission, which vets applicants for high court vacancies and sends the governor a list of three from whom to choose.

That means, essentially, that a sitting governor could over time pack the court with politically and philosophically like-minded jurists who would shape life in Kansas for decades.

Or, it might even go to requiring justices to run for office...a tack that would essentially evaporate the relatively nonpolitical fog in which the court operates.

Yes, the high court has ruled against the Legislature occasionally—take the spate of school finance decisions in recent years—but those decisions have been of a different nature, against the entire Legislature and bills signed into law by the governor, while this off-the-ballot decision, well, it has a different feel. It's a decision that changes the politics of the state, an area where the Legislature doesn't like to see the court meddling.

What's gonna happen? Something...count on it. Probably less dramatic action taken against the court if Roberts is reelected, probably more if Roberts loses and independent candidate Greg Orman is elected with a margin that can be statistically attributed to not having another candidate (besides Libertarian Randall Batson of Wichita) on the ballot.

We'll see what the district court panel does, but at this point, the Supreme Court has put itself in the bull's eye...

difficult to keep the tax rate low and maintain services, especially after recent years when the city tried to hold the line on taxes again and again. The city's budget shows modest increases in several areas, without anything specific to pinpoint as a reason for increased spending. The city's general fund, for example, will increase by less than $30,000.

The city has budgeted $11,598,595 for 2015, up from $11,277,898 in 2014. The mill levy is expected to increase to 43.356, up from 42.686 for a difference of 0.67 mills. However, Martin said it's possible the city could actually spend less than that, but city officials cannot spend more money than allowed once the budget is approved. The commission will have a budget hearing at 6 p.m. Oct. 14 at Garnett City Hall. At that time, taxpayers can address the commissioners before they decide whether to approve the budget.

Infrastructure to support city utilities is one of the areas that still could make a significant difference in the 2015 budget. The city has budgeted roughly $100,000 more in 2015 for the water department, primarily because of the need to replace a backwash pump that could cost about $75,000. In the next week or so, engineers will study the city's water plant to see what changes could be made to make the plant more efficient.

Other utilities also are facing increases. The cost of natural gas is expected to increase, and the city is getting ready to upgrade a main electric artery on Walnut Street that will involve installing new poles and stringing new lines.

Martin said it's possible the city will need to consider a utility rate increase at some point. It has been several years since the city raised utility rates.

She's also waiting for a report from Blue Cross and Blue Shield to determine the cost of health care insurance policy increases. She planned for a 7 percent increase in health care insurance rates, but is hopeful the actual cost will be less.

The city also has faced increasing costs in their share of the KPERS fund, the retirement fund for government employees. Increased costs for KPERS and health care are part of the employee benefits fund, which is expected to increase by about $73,000 in 2015.

She said the city plans to hold the line on capital outlay, with possibly purchasing another patrol car for the police department but fewer other major expenses.

A copy of the city's 2015 budget is published on page 4B of this newspaper.

Wilson sisters seal AC CC win

PARSONS – Sisters Averi and Bailey Wilson led AC Bulldog runners to a first place team finish at the Parsons Cross Country Meet last week.

Averi Wilson was the top individual runner with a first place finish and a time on the 5k course of 17:01.14. Bailey Wilson finished in fourth with 18:19.46.

Anderson County managed a 28 overall team score among its finishers, followed by Frontenac with 32 and Independence a distant third with 70 points.

Gwen Sibley came in 5th with a 18:23.62, followed by Paige Scheckel in 7th at 19:07.56. Eliza Sibley at 13th 19:46.93, Remi Hedges 20:00.18 and Morgan Egidy in 17th 20:38.24.

AC's JV runners also had a solid day with Shylie Scheckel finishing 2nd in 20:29.55, Bel Sibley 4th in 20:45.86, Adriann Garbarino 8th 23:07.24 and Emma Porter 13th 24:13.43.

Green TD in 4th seals win for Lancers

ST. PAUL – It was a game dynamic that can be typical of 8-man football, and it almost got out of the Lancers' hands Friday.

But Crest managed to survive an admirable comeback by the St. Paul Indians and bring home a 28-24 victory.

Crest hopped out to an early 20-0 lead in the first period with three touchdown runs by Rene Rodriguez totaling more than 80 rushing yards in a matter of minutes, but St. Paul defense clamped down and stopped the Lancer attack for the next two periods.

St. Paul scored on a short running play and on a 19-yard pass completion in the second quarter, and again early in the fourth period on a three-yard run.

Austin Green was able to break a two-quarter scoring drought for the Lancers in the fourth period on a one yard run with a conversion to make the final score 28-24.

Brandon Brallier had three receptions for 36 yards. Gage Adams led the Lancer defense with 10 tackles. McGhee had 6 and Vermillion 5.

Extra efforts pay off for Lancer girls

COLONY – The 6 a.m. practices; the hustle; the concentration; the devotion. For the 2014 Lady Lancers volleyball team, the investment they've been sweating into their season is bringing in a return.

"The last time out I used in the first set," said coach Abigail Hermreck of last week's come-from-behind win in their Chetopa matchup, "I could see it on their faces that they were going to get the job done. I hardly said anything. They reassured me that they got this."

And they did. Crest nudged the Hornets 26-24 in game one and 25-22 in the followup. They went on to beat Altoona 26-24 and 25-13.

"It was a great night for our team to finally realize the potential that coach Hammond and I have been trying to show them in practice, film and other matches," Hermreck said. "We were mentally tough and played aggressive instead of being worried about making mistakes."

Senior Emily Wyant and sophomore Shelby Ramsey led with 100 percent serving on the night followed by sophomore Karlee Hammond at 92 percent and senior Madison Covey at 90 percent. Hammond also led with 22 assists on the night and Miranda Golden paced the offense with 15 kills.

Sophomore Laurel Godderz was tops on the Lancer side in free ball passing and serve receive over both matches.

The Lancers are next in action at Uniontown Oct. 7.

AC JV volleyball wins two

GARNETT – The AC junior varsity volleyball squad moved its record to 3-1 with wins over Prairie View and Osawatomie last week.

AC stopped the Buffaloes 25-10, 23-25, 15-3 and Oz 25-19, 25-23. The wins brought the Bulldogs to 2-0 in Pioneer League.

"It was a good start in league," said coach Samantha Overstreet. "We get better each time we play- we're a tough serving team."

Katelyn Alley hammered in 18 aces on the day and Samantha Nickel had 10. Team-wide the Bulldogs served 51 aces on the day to go 82 percent from the serving line.

AC girls trade wins

CARBONDALE – AC swapped wins with Wellsville and host Santa Fe Trail last week in 4A volleyball action.

The Bulldogs topped SFT 25-12, 25-14 but fell to Wellsville in three 16-25, 25-18, 25-10.

Kinlee Jones and Jessica McCullar were 100 percent on their dig percentages for the day. Reagan Jirak led the AC attack with 12 kills. MaKayla Kueser was 24/25 from the serving line.

JUDGE...

Both Witteman and Jones are registered Republicans.

"I am thankful for the confidence expressed by the 4th Judicial District Nominating Commission in nominating me for this position, and I am humbled by Governor Brownback's trust in appointing me to the District Court bench," Witteman said. "I look forward to this opportunity to serve the citizens of the 4th Judicial District and the State of Kansas."

Witteman is expected to take the bench Oct. 17 after a swearing-in ceremony tentatively scheduled for 10:30 a.m. at the Franklin County District Court in Ottawa. He will serve primarily at that court.

Witteman said he has no immediate plans to relocate from his home in LeRoy. His oldest son is a senior and his wife works in the area, so it is not a good time to make a move right now, he said. The position requires him to live within the 4th Judicial District, and LeRoy is within the district.

Witteman has served as the Coffey County Attorney since 1997. He received his law degree from Washburn University School of Law in 1991. His past experience includes working in private practice as a principle attorney for the law firm Patterson, Nelson, Nolla & Witteman, L.C., and as an associate attorney with Hinkle, Eberhart & Elkouri, L.C., both of Wichita.

"I have been fortunate that for over 17 years I have enjoyed a 'job of a lifetime.' I have truly loved being the Coffey County Attorney. In many respects, moving forward to another stage of my career is bitter-sweet," he said.

Vikings drop to Olpe 48-9

RICHMOND – Central Heights' defense was no match for Olpe's running attack Friday night in Olpe's 48-8 win over the Vikings.

Olpe plowed through 309 of 363 offensive yards on the ground. Central Heights could manage only 109 yards with the ball on the night.

Zeke Smith doused what might have been a Viking goose egg with three minutes to go in the fourth period with a 7 yard run. Merrick Brown passed to Jason Clissold for the two-point conversion.

Chance Schooler led the defense with 9 tackles and 7 unassisted.

The Corn Keeps Coming

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 09-30-2014 / Dane Hicks

Adam Janson stands atop a mound of corn at the Beachner Grain location in Garnett on Thursday. Area farmers transported their grain for ground storage due to surplus yields in the recent harvest. Numerous storage facilities around the region have run out of space, and are resorting to storing the remainder of the 2014 crop on the ground.

Survival isn't enough for your business

You opened or bought your business all bright-eyed and bushy-tailed and full of enthusiasm. Then reality set in.

It's always harder than you think. Costs are higher. Sales are tougher to get. Problem employees. Paperwork you hadn't counted on. The economy back-hands you and your customers. Before long you're just trying to survive.

It isn't enough. We talk about sales in this column but we rarely talk about 'why?' The 'why' in growing your sales is to grow your business, and if your business isn't growing, it's dying.

Growing is better, and here's why:

Profits: That nasty capitalist word. No, not just a few pennies above your costs - you should focus on profits as your own reward for taking the risk, dealing with the headaches and doing the work. You should also earn enough beyond your own reward to be able to reinvest in your business as it needs it and as new opportunities. Most of all, you should earn ample profit in order to help recognize new opportunities.

Growth: Growth, simply put, is expanding your operation

HOW TO SELL STUFF

Dane Hicks

into new markets, developing new products for your market or for other markets, expanding employment, etc. Essentially - making more money and becoming more of an economic force.

Scale: Growth allows you to take advantage of economies of scale. You can buy cloth cheaper by the yard if you buy more of it to make your product. This lowers your unit cost, but only if you have sales waiting for the additional units. Hiring employees to do some of your work allows you to work on producing revenue and effectively lowers the cost of your time because you don't have to do everything.

Brand Development: Believe it or not, there was a time before Apple, Coca Cola and General Electric. With each development into new products and new markets, these companies built their reputations as leaders - movers and shakers within their industries. Expanding brands attract the best talent with the best ideas and command respect and have leverage in their business dealings.

Social Impact: Companies that grow have the money to pursue their owners and stockholders altruistic goals. They put their profits to work not just with valuable employment but also in service to their communities by contributing smart leadership to civic causes, donating money to stop hunger, fight cancer and AIDS, etc.

So forget survival. Think growth!

Richmond Library plans variety of October events

October is almost here and what does the Richmond Library have planned? The library has several things planned for October.

First up will be Senior Craft day on Thursday, Oct. 9. We will be painting gourd bird houses after senior meals in the back of the Richmond Community building.

On Friday, Oct. 10, the library will be having a Kansas Notable Book Food Fest. The library has purchased five of the 2014 Kansas Notable books, two of these books are cookbooks. The library was able to purchase the Notable books with the help of a grant from the Institute of Museum and Library Services. We are asking those who would like to join us to pick a recipe from one of the cookbooks and bring it on Oct. 10. We will sample the food and talk about the books.

Wednesday, Oct. 15, at 4 p.m., the kids will be making Halloween crafts. There will be green monsters and Halloween stand ups to color your own.

Monday, Oct. 20, at 4 p.m., kids will again be making Halloween crafts, this time they will be making ghosts.

Wednesday, Oct. 22 at 4 p.m., the teens will be making coffins and spider ornaments.

Oct. 29, 30 and 31, the librarians will be in Wichita attending the State Library conference, so library hours will change a little bit that week. Watch for postings.

1984: First crappie stocked at reservoir

Oct. 5, 2004

Kansas Department of Commerce officials rejected a $750,000 grant application for part of the construction of the EKAE Ethanol plant, possibly throwing a wrench into the construction timetable for the plant construction project. Construction workers started dirt work at the plant site in the Golden Prairie Industrial Park two weeks ago, but state statute regarding the grants like this one said such grants can't be awarded if the project is already under main construction.

Officials with the Kansas department of Transportation and Union Pacific Railroad walked away empty handed last week after city officials declined to close any of the five railroad crossings suggested by the two entities. The proposed closings would have blocked through traffic on six lesser-traveled Garnett streets where they crossed the UPAC railroad tracks, and at the same time offered upgrades for new and better crossing signals at the more heavily trafficked crossings in the city.

Apparently, word of Anderson County's tax sale last July which collected over $30,000 and put several properties back on the local tax rolls hasn't gotten around to everybody. A local government critic, Bill Manners, told county commissioners at a recent commission meeting that he was tired of paying property taxes on his land while others fail to pay their taxes and get away with it. He told county commissioners when they met Monday that he knew "for a fact" that the county had not had a sheriff's sale to sell the land of those who failed to pay their taxes for several years. Commissioner Ann Calahan then informed Manners the county did, in fact, have a tax sale July 7 of this year. He told commissioners after the revelation that he is glad a tax sale has been conducted.

Portions of the Garnett Cedar Creek Reservoir were stocked with 20,000 black crappie Friday by the Kansas Fish and Game Commission, Fisheries Department. "Two years from this fall, these fish will be about 10 inches long and weigh three quarters of a pound," said District Fish Biologist, Leonard Jirak. The fish came from the Kansas Fish and Game fisheries at Farlington.

Sept. 28, 1914

Mrs. D.W. Woods, who with her two daughters, Misses Rachel and Marie, attended the fair at Kincaid last week and report it is one of the very best fairs she ever attended. The exhibit of farm products, fruits, cattle, horses, mules, hogs, poultry, ladies handiwork - fancy work, needlework, canned fruits, jellies, preserves, etc. - was simply wonderful in quality and quantity. There was a parade over a mile in length, in which there were eight loads of as fine corn as ever grew anywhere, and the display of horses, mules and cattle in this parade was truly good to look at and showed the progress attained by the framers of that section.

You name it, we print it.

So what is this artifact? First let me tell you this artifact is made of brass. Secondly you can see where the pin or fastener was attached.

Brass artifact brings questions

How many of you have ever heard the saying, "I'm going to turn the tables on you." Well that's exactly what I'm going to do for this week's column. In the past weeks I have included pictures, along with the brief history of the artifact or its manufacturer, etc. in my columns. This week however I'm including pictures, but, leaving it all up to you readers of my column to identify and find its history etc. and report back to me.

DIGGING UP THE PAST

Henry Roeckers
Call (785) 448-6244 for local archeology information.

Otherwise I'm letting you know that I have no idea what this artifact is or used for etc.

I've had only one opinion told to me by a person who's actually seen this artifact. He said, since it's had a pin or fastener on the back, that it may have been a very early Sharpshooters or Marksman Medal which was attached to the ring at the bottom.

I will anxiously be awaiting phone calls expressing your ideas of what this long lost artifact truly is or was!

'New to Medicare' trainings offered

OTTAWA- New to Medicare trainings hosted by the East Central Kansas Area Agency on Aging

The East Central Kansas Area Agency on Aging (ECKAAA) will host a training for people new to the Medicare system who are turning 65 or receive benefits due to disability and for business staff who help transition employees into Medicare from employer based insurance. The training will be held Wednesday, October 8th. The training will be held at the ECKAAA office in Ottawa at 117 S. Main Street. The training will be conducted by Leslea Rockers, Special Projects Coordinator, and Lenora Brecheisen, ECKAAA Medicare Volunteer.

Accessing and using Medicare benefits can be a complicated process for individuals to use or to explain. Retirees need to understand how Medicare will coordinate with their employee insurance, what they need with Medicare if they are losing their employee coverage and employers need to understand what questions retirees should be asking before making a decision regarding Medicare and their current insurance benefits.

The training will be held from 10 a.m. to noon and is FREE of charge. God remembered his promise to Abraham

In the first chapter of the book of Luke, Mary is visited by the angel Gabriel. God sent Gabriel to Nazareth to announce to Mary that she would be the mother of the long-awaited Messiah. Under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit Mary sings a song of praise called the Magnificat. Within this song is the phrase "He (God) has helped his servant Israel, in remembrance of his mercy, as he spoke to our fathers, to Abraham and to his offspring forever." Mary was 2000 years past the covenant God had made with Abraham yet she realized that the birth of this child was the fulfillment of the promise God had made to Abraham 2000 years earlier.

Jesus was the God/man. When Philip asked Jesus to show them the Father, Jesus answered him by saying, "Have I been with you so long, and you still do not know me, Philip? Whoever has seen me has seen the Father."

Jesus was truly divine, the absolute image of God. The only Godly attribute Jesus did not have when he served on earth was his glory which we see manifested in the transfiguration referenced in Matthew 17:2, "He (Jesus) was transfigured before them and his face shone like the sun, and his clothes became white as light."

Jesus was fully man as well. The doctrine of the Incarnation declares that Christ was also fully human. Jesus lived out his earthly life by experiencing all the pressures, temptations and limitations that we experience.

The two natures are united in Jesus, without mixture confusion, separation or division and each nature retains its own attributes. In John 14 Jesus reveals to the twelve the way of salvation when he says, "I am the way, and the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me." This salvation is the supreme gift of God mediated by Jesus and given freely to the redeemed through faith in Christ.

Today we stand 4000 years past Abraham and 2000 years past the birth of Christ. Some will say as those in 2nd Peter 3:4, "Where is the promise of his coming? For ever since the fathers fell asleep, all things are continuing as they were from the beginning of creation." We are told in Acts 1:11 at the Ascension of Jesus that, "This Jesus who was taken up from you into heaven will come in the same way as you saw him go into heaven."

At the Second Coming, Jesus will bring an end to history. He will raise the dead and judge the world and impart to God's children their final glory. Christ teaches that it will be a tragic disaster for anyone who is not ready when he returns.

Four Winds DAR announces Junior American Citizen Contest

The Four Winds Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution is announcing a Junior American Citizen (JAC) contest that is open to all pre-school through 12th grade students in public, private, and parochial schools, and in sanctioned home study programs in the divisions: gifted, general and special needs. The contest is conducted without regard to race, religion, sex, or national origin. However, pre-school and kindergarten students may participate only in the banner and group community service project contests. Youth groups, scout troops, and other organizations may submit entries. Entries do not have to be done at school. All entries MUST follow the theme and meet the specifications of the category entered. Only One individual entry per student will advance to the State Level, although more entries may be submitted. A group entry is three or more students working together. The average grade level will be used if group entries are of different grade levels. Every grade level is judged separately within the divisions, so that every child may enter the contest regardless of ability. The ability of the student is never disclosed.

The ART CONTEST includes four categories: poster, banner, stamp, and photographic essay. A winner will be selected in each grade level and category. Students may compete as individuals only in poster, stamp, and photo essay; in the banner category only groups may enter, groups being three or more students. Art generated on the computer using clip art, cut and paste technique, or scanned images is not allowed. Preschool and kindergarten may participate in the banner category only.

The CREATIVE EXPRESSION CONTEST includes two categories: poetry and short story. Students compete as individual only - group entries are not allowed. Pre-school and kindergarten students may not compete in the Creative Expression Contest.

The COMMUNITY SERVICE PROJECT is by both individual and group entry for students in 1-12. In addition, pre-school and kindergarten students may compete as a group comprised of three or more students.

The 2014 theme is "FOCUS ON THE FUTURE." Students are encouraged to think of people, events, customs, or traditions that can impact America's future. Students may want to explore their future role as a citizen. Consider how future decisions may make significant contributions to continue to make America the great country it is today. Community service may focus on the student's future and their ability to serve America. Be creative and have fun!

Let's get those creative juices flowing and let everyone see what the future of America looks like through the eyes of the future generations of American Citizens! All budding artists and aspiring writers now is the time to enter this contest! The contest entries are all due by DECEMBER 1, 2014. Local winners will advance to the Kansas State Contest and all winners of the state will move on to the national level. Prizes and awards are awarded at all levels.

For more information and the specific guidelines please contact: Connie Becker, Four Winds JAC chair, 785-489-2449 or csbrltsk06@wildblue.net. All entries will be appreciated and will be returned to the owner at the end of the contest! We look forward to honoring our local, state, and national winners.
