Veterans memorial plans take shape

After three years of delays, memorial design and fundraising efforts begin

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - A memorial to recognize military veterans from Anderson County will be unique, organizers say.

A committee planning to build a veterans memorial on the lawn of the Anderson County Courthouse met a couple of weeks ago to discuss plans for the memorial. The committee has been working on the project for about three years without much result, but committee members were able to accomplish quite a bit in the recent meeting, Phyllis Gettler said. She is

Anderson County's clerk and serves on the committee.

Part of the delay had been waiting for preliminary design sketches from local artisan Leon Lickteig. At the recent meeting, Lickteig presented some rough hand-drawn sketches that would feature a separate wall monument for each war to include veterans' names; a centered design on the floor and a wall in the back to depict all branches of military service. Three flags - for the U.S., Kansas and MIA/POW - also would be featured in the memorial.

"It's not going to be a little thing. There's a lot to it," Gettler said. "We want Anderson County's memorial to be original. We don't want it to look like anyone else's."

Mayor wants to keep trucks off Park Road

Damage to street is unfair, costly for city taxpayers, Garnett mayor says

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Mayor Preston Peine is determined to keep heavy trucks off Park Road to minimize damage to the road surface. Exactly how that could be possible, especially without the cooperation of county commissioners, remains to be seen.

Peine pressed Garnett City Manager Joyce Martin and staff to study the matter and find some sort of alternative to keep heavy trucks off the city street. But just about every option, Martin said, is either very difficult to manage or impossible without help from county commissioners. Anderson County Commissioners have said they do not feel truck restrictions are necessary, and their portion of the road is fine.

City leaders say that Park Road was never designed to handle heavy truck traffic. The road frequently suffers damage, and fixing the damage can cost the city tens of thousands to hundreds of thousands of dollars each year. If the city were to replace the road with a better-designed base to handle heavy trucks, the price tag

City warns big trees will be targeted in electric upgrade

Trees in way as Walnut Street gets upgrade in poles, new wiring

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Some city residents are in for a shocking surprise, as an electrical upgrade on Walnut Street will mean several large, old trees need to come down.

Garnett City Manager Joyce Martin said she expects some property owners will be upset to learn that some of their trees will be cut to make way for the upgrade, but she assures residents the improvements will be worth it.

City electric and street crews already have been prepping Walnut Street for the change, which is expected to be completed by spring. City crews will do much of the work, but an electrical contractor must complete some of the more technical aspects. The city may also need to

Variety of events set for this weekend

Car race revival, art show, Second Saturdays event all on tap for Oct. 11

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - For the past several months, city tourism and business leaders have focused on bringing people to Garnett on the second Saturday of the month for various events and activities.

This month, the second Saturday in October features a triple threat, with a classic car event, art tour and the usual "Second Saturday" music and entertainment fare, with a fall twist. There will be lots of events Saturday, Oct. 11, to keep residents, visitors - and even their dogs - entertained.

Second Saturdays

Second Saturdays in Garnett has become the time to find bargains for shopping and dining, as well as art, music and more. An afternoon Golden Ticket drawing downtown gives shoppers the chance to win $50 in gold dollars.

This month's event features fall festival events starting at 10 a.m. at ReFinEd-ReCherished, where a miniature pumpkin patch will be set up. Kids can decorate small pumpkins until 1 p.m., then head to the Anderson County Courthouse lawn at 2 p.m. for a variety of activities including pump-

Area school districts lose students

Enrollment down at 2 of 3 districts; only Central Heights up

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

Central Heights was the only area school district to show an increase in enrollment this year but even then the increase was slight, with just a couple more students this fall compared to last year.

Area superintendents have been prepared in recent years to lose students, a trend in rural districts in the area. But until this year, the past couple of years brought surprising increases. When the annual enrollment count was conducted on Sept. 22, the numbers fell about as superintendents expected.

State funding to schools is based on the number of students enrolled, and districts must determine how to estimate enrollment when preparing the budget for the coming school year. Districts can submit enrollments based on this year's estimated enrollment, the previous year's enrollment or an average of the past three years. Local district's feared a series of declining enrollments hurt the budget in light of other cuts to some state and federal programs, as well as uncertainty about continued school funding by the state legislature.

USD 365, with schools in Garnett, Greeley, Westphalia and Mont Ida, saw 1,062 students attending school in the district, a decrease of 55 students compared to the 1,117 students reported Sept. 20, 2013. The district had been expecting 1,090 students this year, but the actual enrollment fell short of expectations by 28. All schools reported fewer students than expected, with Westphalia reporting the biggest decrease. Officials expected an enrollment at Westphalia of 99 students; actual enrollment was 85, a difference of 14 students. Garnett Elementary School lost 13 students compared to expectations, with 420 students currently enrolled. Anderson County Jr./Sr. High School stayed fairly consistent, with

KANSAS NOTABLES

The State Library of Kansas has announced 15 books featuring quality titles with wide public appeal, either written by Kansans or about a Kansas-related topic. The Kansas Notable Book List is the only honor for Kansas books by Kansans. A committee of Kansas Center for the Book (KCFB) Affiliates, Fellows, librarians and authors of previous Notable Books identifies these titles from among those published the previous year, and the State Librarian makes the selection for the final List. An awards ceremony was held at the Kansas Book Festival, September 13, to recognize the talented Notable Book authors. Throughout the award year, KCFB promotes all the titles on that year's List electronically, at literary events, and among librarians and booksellers. For more information about the Kansas Notable Book project, call 785-296-3296, visit www.kslib.info/notablebooks or email infodesk@library.ks.gov. MEMORIAL...

Lickteig hopes to start construction in the spring.

The committee also discussed key issues needed before the memorial can go forward. One of those issues involves fundraising; the other considers just what types of veterans should be included in the memorial.

Anderson County commissioners have set aside a tenth of a mill against property taxes to raise money for the memorial. Currently, there's about $53,000 in that fund but it will take considerably more than that to complete the monument, Gettler said. The cement work alone is expected to cost nearly $30,000, she said.

To raise money for the project, the committee will offer inscribed bricks or tiles to be placed near the memorial. Anyone who is interested in purchasing a brick can do so for a donation of at least $25. The bricks can be ordered at the county clerk's office in the courthouse. The clerk's office has forms that will allow purchasers to write what he or she would like as the inscription. Gettler estimated about 3,000 bricks would be used at the memorial site, and more could be added as a walkway if needed.

The other issue – who should be honored by the memorial – has been one of the more controversial discussions about the project. Some have argued the memorial should recognize all veterans who served, while others feel it should honor only those who died while in service.

Gettler said the committee has decided to honor all veterans who lived in Anderson County at the time of service. However, including all veterans will be difficult, because it's possible someone could be left off or someone might want to include a veteran who served in a war and later moved to the county. Gettler said the committee welcomes public input to help resolve questions.

could top $500,000. Peine said he doesn't believe it is fair to ask city residents to shoulder the repair or replacement debt caused by heavy trucks, especially if there are alternatives to keep the trucks off the road.

Instead of using Park Road, heavy trucks on U.S. 169 can travel several blocks south to Sixth Avenue, a business highway route designed to handle such vehicles. Trucks can travel on Sixth Avenue to U.S. 59, or can travel even farther south to the roundabout where U.S. 169 and 59 meet. However, Park Road is often seen as a shortcut, especially for trucks headed to and from the Anderson County Sale barn at the intersection of Park Road and U.S. 59.

The city must maintain all of Park Road from U.S. 59 east to the cemetery road (Nebraska Road). The city also maintains the south half of Park Road from the cemetery road to Catalpa Street, while the county maintains the north half. The city can only restrict traffic in portions where it controls both sides of the road. That means if city leaders want to restrict truck traffic, they can't do so until just west of the cemetery road. At that point, however, there is no place for westbound trucks to turn around.

City commissioners initially wanted a sign that would restrict traffic just west of the cemetery road, and wondered if they could install a warning sign near the intersection of Park Road and U.S. 169 so truck drivers would know about the coming restriction before they left the highway or before they passed Catalpa. But, again, in order to post such a sign, they would need approval from the county.

Martin said it's possible that the design of Olive Street, which connects to Park Road just west of the cemetery road, could handle heavy trucks. Such trucks could be diverted on Olive to Sixth Avenue. However, such a diversion would cause many concerns for city residents. Olive is a very residential street, and trucks would be forced to drive through a school zone and over railroad tracks before making a sharp right turn onto Sixth Avenue.

Commissioner Gordon Blackie said he was concerned that any possible solution to the problem would only create more problems.

"There's going to be some angst in the beginning, but word will circulate," he said.

Student government representative Asa Young pointed out that any truck driver who was forced to go that route would likely only do it once or twice before seeking an alternative.

Young and commissioner Greg Gwin said they were concerned how the change would affect business at the sale barn, but city attorney Terry Solander said trucks can still get to the sale barn by driving about a mile or so farther to Sixth Avenue or the roundabout.

"I think we create a problem if, for no other reason, you'd have a lot of angry truck drivers," Solander said.

In addition to the logistics of where to restrict traffic, city commissioners also must consider how to enforce those restrictions. One city police officer has been trained to enforce weight restrictions for large vehicles, but there is no easy place to pull over a heavy truck. Park Road features little to no shoulders, with residential areas along most of the road. City leaders could prohibit trucks based on the number of axles rather than weight, but that also would be difficult to enforce. The restrictions likely wouldn't affect delivery vehicles to businesses on Park Road, because of exceptions already written into city laws, Solander said.

Martin said she and staff would continue to research the matter, and report back to the commission at a later meeting. She also said she would continue to talk to county commissioners to seek some sort of compromise.

hire someone to cut the tops of trees that are too large for the city's bucket trucks to reach.

The job includes moving electric poles from the east side of the road to the west side, and stringing new wire. The old lines have lost significant insulation and copper wires are much heavier, making the lines more susceptible to power outages during wind and ice storms. The lines along Walnut Street are one of the city's main arterial routes from the city power plant.

The upgrade is expected to reduce power outages during storms and increase efficiency in the city's electrical system. Martin said it's especially important to upgrade the system for the new Anderson County Hospital, because the new system will provide an emergency loop to better protect the hospital from power outages.

Although several trees along the city's easement will need to be cut to make way for the changes, Martin said the improvement is important to the city.

"Anytime we can improve the system and do most of the work ourselves, that's a good thing," she said.

A vote for Roberts, Brownback is a vote against Barack Obama

An arduous and wearisome six years has seen "Hope & Change" fall flat, disorganized and directionless in America. National polls are clear. The swing voters who put Barack Hussein Obama in the office of the Presidency of the United States now say, if they had it to do all over, they wouldn't.

For Kansas voters in the upcoming November election one thing is certain: This election isn't about whether you dislike Pat Roberts for barely living in Kansas or whether you shun Sam Brownback for cutting state income taxes – it's about whether or not you stand against the "government is the answer" philosophy of Barack Hussein Obama.

The fact that Brownback and Roberts exemplify the anti-Obama effort gets lost in the fray. Beset by a state media that despises Republicans and especially conservatives, both conservative and moderate leaders in the state's GOP have done a poor job of minimizing their divisions and instead selling the credo that unites them: 1) Smaller, less intrusive government; 2) Pro-business/ job creation; 3) Individual rights. The Republican trifecta should be clear and well pronounced to the electorate, and the fact that Roberts and Brownback have both worked in their own way to oppose the assault of big government should be paramount.

But if the majority of Americans and Kansans wouldn't vote for Obama again, why do so many seem to be leaning toward the opponents of two candidates who stand against him? It's almost like they disconnect Democrat governor candidate Paul Davis and "Independent" Senate candidate Greg Orman from Obama's record of failure as chief executive. Indeed, Orman and Davis are tied to Obama's philosophy not just by party affiliation, but by their past actions.

Orman's past financial support of Obama as well as liberal Senate leaders Harry Reid and Hillary Clinton shatter his 'Independent' façade. Asked whether he would oppose Obamacare, Orman replies that it's "an interesting question." Orman is not an Independent; he is a liberal who supports amnesty for illegal aliens and a host of causes embraced by the liberal left. Roberts has fought to enforce immigration laws for three decades – a cause putting him in diametric opposition to the Obama mantra, which wants to give rights – especially voting rights – to illegal newcomers who would cast Democrat votes.

Sam Brownback is one of few state governors who've shown the courage to implement real Republican principles into state government to make it leaner and more effective, and he's had to do it against the tide of an opposing liberal media and the depths of a lingering recession. The result has been 55,000 new jobs created in Kansas in the past year alone and education spending increases every year since 2010. Davis, on the other hand, voted against a Republican school finance bill that put 129 million new dollars into Kansas schools because he was bent on protecting labor union-style "tenure" laws that prevented school districts from firing bad teachers. Beyond that and his past voting record in the Legislature it's hard to tell what direction Davis wants to take the state, because his only campaign theme has been "I'm not Sam Brownback." The lack of direction rings familiar, from a now president who was elected for being "not George Bush."

The fact is the philosophies of the modern political spectrum could not be anymore well defined in the United States today. With Obama's campaign promises worn thin and the country's standing in the world diminished by his apologetic approach to U.S. foreign policy, Americans have had six grueling years to decide where they stand.

Kansas voters who oppose Barack Hussein Obama's vision for America should cast their votes for Brownback and Roberts.

Hey gun people, have you ever heard of a gun show? That's where you can take your guns and display them.

To the Garnett city leaders: You should repay all the people that had new sidewalks put in. A lot of people spent money they didn't have to do it because they felt they had to or else. It's not fair that others will just ignore doing it, and then there's all these streets in town that don't even have sidewalks. Why should some taxpayers have to do it and others not? The city should pay for all the sidewalks. All you are doing is driving people out of Garnett.

I read in the Town Talk today that the city's planning a Forest of Fear and Haunted Trail event for the youngsters. The location is going to be at the old dump ground west of town on 31 Highway. I remember that old dump being infested with copperheads and I doubt the situation has improved much over the years. But they are still active this time of year.

This article about the people on Fifth and Sixth Streets against the sidewalks, you know this is completely ridiculous and it's not the fault of the people, it's the fault of the city leadership. I sat in the meeting whenever the handicapped people just asked for access to get to the medical services at the hospital and access to the grocery store. Now it's just turned into a big circus. People are stalling because they don't want to pay for it and the city doesn't know how to handle the situation. Well, how did they handle the situation when people were against building the jail, the new school and the hospital? They did it anyway and charged it to their taxes.

Was talking to some fellows who fish up at the north lake. They said they've never seen no giant catfish. Of course you are not going to see him during the daylight hours. There's too much noise from the kids at the soccer field and the shooters over at the gun range.

The south lake would look even nicer after being mowed if the growth of brush growing around most of the shade trees was cut. It's easy to sit on a mower and mow, but the brush takes some physical labor. Could this be a fall project to get done?

Hey people who live down the street. If you would feed your dog it wouldn't get out of your fenced yard and tear up everyone's trash. You really shouldn't have pets if you can't feed them.

The Insipid War On Women 2.0

The "war on women" is back, and more tententious than ever.

Democrats are replaying one of their greatest hits of 2012 in their furious battle to minimize their midterm losses in a political environment defined by an unpopular president and general unease.

And why not? The war on women has a proven record of success -- in mobilizing Democratic women and trumping what would otherwise seem much more important issues -- and it is so simple that any idiot can run on it.

The recipe is one part taking offense where clearly none was intended, and one part discerning new nefarious schemes to deny women access to birth control. If War on Women 1.0 was strained and unconvincing, the new version lacks all self-respect. To paraphrase Karl Marx, it is history repeating itself, first as farce, then as self-parody.

During their first debate in North Carolina, Republican candidate Thom Tillis referred to Sen. Kay Hagan by her first name, offending her supporters with his undue familiarity. He compounded the sin by saying Hagan's "math just doesn't add up," a hoary cliché in politics for decades.

Hagan pronounced herself (what else?) "insulted," while a spokeswoman for the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, Regan Page, fired off double-barreled complaints. She accused Tillis of "ugly condescension,"

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

RICH LOWRY, King Features Syndicate

"outrageous mansplaining" and "condescending patronization," which is always to be distinguished from "patronizing condescension."

This is all so silly that it is especially off-ky in current circumstances. The implied Democrat message is that, yes, the president is broadly unpopular, the economy is middling and the world is falling apart -- but someone called me "ma'am"!

To the extent that the war on women has any substance, it centers on minor but flawed pieces of federal legislation like the Violence Against Women Act and the Equal Pay Act. And contraception. Always contraception. The Democrats deserve credit for managing to portray a position supported by no one serious in public life -- that women should be denied birth control -- as the default position of the Republican Party.

The Colorado Senate race has been so focused on abortion and contraception, it could be mistaken for a leadership election of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists. Playing defense, Republican Cory Gardner is one of a handful of GOP candidates who have come out in favor of over-the-counter birth control. Yet this innocuous proposal to provide more ready access to birth control is itself taken as a dastardly plot against women.

The wonder of the war of women is that it works, or at least it has. Republicans have a better chance of deflecting it this year. They have more deft candidates, and while the over-the-counter contraception proposal is small beer, it is a compelling way to demonstrate comfort with the very access to contraception that Democrats allege Republicans want to take away.

More importantly, the Republican Party should realize that its fate with all voters depends on having a concrete agenda to address the nation's challenges here and abroad. That is the ultimate insulation from the insipid politics of the ever-more-tenuous war on women.

Let's all celebrate the power of journalism

I believe in newspapers. Well, that's no surprise, you might say, you're the executive director of the newspaper association for Kansas.

That's true, but I sincerely believe those words.

Why? It's simple: in a newspaper career that now spans more than four decades, I have witnessed hundreds of times how the power of the printed word and the timely photograph can spark change in our culture.

I've seen communities rise to the occasion because local editors believed when citizens are presented all facets of complex issues, they will challenge their leaders to make the right decisions.

Time after time, I've seen controversial issues dealt with and resolved when reporters did their best to lay out all the facts for readers and when editors followed up by providing reasoned commentary urging the community to act.

It may be that this special week of Oct. 5 through 11 -- what we in the industry affectionately call National Newspaper Week -- might more accurately be called National Journalism Week. Because it's really journalism that we celebrate.

Journalism, Merriam Webster's Dictionary says, is the practice of gathering, processing and disseminating news and information to an audience.

STATE COMMENTARY

DOUG ANSTAETT, Kansas Press Assoc.

For the first two centuries in America, we presented journalism to a mass audience through newspapers, then added radio and television to the mix.

Today, journalism is disseminated in all those ways and also through the World Wide Web to our computers, tablets and smart phones.

You may not even realize it, but you're "reading a newspaper" even when you're on the newspaper's website or reading a story that has been scraped from a newspaper website and added to sometimes tens of thousands of other websites around the world.

In whatever way it is delivered, what makes it journalism is that it is accurate, fair, balanced and comprehensive. It has context and depth.

Part of the reason journalism still thrives is because our Founding Fathers recognized the importance of freedom of thought and penned the First Amendment to our nation's Constitution.

Their words were powerful, and they were specific: "Congress shall make no law," they said, "respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

What visionaries they were; they realized that citizens had to be protected from a tyrannical government and that the best way to do that was by guaranteeing the freedom of expression.

This week, we Americans celebrate the First Amendment, newspapers, journalism and the overarching need for an informed citizenry in a democratic society.

Doug Anstaett is executive director of the Kansas Press Association, headquartered in Topeka.

Historical society learns about family's history in Anderson County

The Anderson County Historical Society met on September 4, 2014 at Duffy's Bar & Grill in Greeley, Kansas at 6:30 p.m.

President Kristie Kinney called the meeting to order. The Treasurer's report was provided by Terry Solander and Shirley Roeckers provided the Vice-President report. Kristie Kinney provided the President's report. She reported that the recorded video tours of the museum have almost been completed with Dorothy Lickteig, Ona Mae Hunt and Juanita Kellerman. Once the tours are completed, we will video tape tours of the Harris House. Dorothy Lickteig has completed Volume 2 of the Colony history book.

Kristie reported that she has been working on scheduling a Civil War special program to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the Civil War. There are one or two regiments of reenactors who plan to be here in the spring, and she is working on finalizing those details. Next spring will be the end of the 150th anniversary of the 4-year conflict. Kristie reported the October 2nd meeting will be at Mineral Point. The wagon tour will begin at 6:00 p.m., rather than 6:30 p.m. in order to complete that tour before dark.

Clara Ann Kempnich provided an interesting program on her family's history in Anderson County. Her ancestor's surnames were Smith's and Stewart's, who were English speaking and Presbyterian Protestants. They held onto the memories of the bloody massacre their ancestors had suffered at the hands of the English conquerors when they moved into Scotland. When the northern region of Ireland wanted to drive out the Catholics, they offered land grants to English speaking Scots. Once in Ireland, the Scots became known as the dissenters. They would not vow allegiance to the Church of England and they detested tithing to the church. Dissenters could not be baptized, married or buried by their own ministers. It had to be a minister that was ordained by the church of the state, so once again they were being persecuted. Many of the Scots-Irish then came to America to escape economic and religious hardships. Between 1717 and 1775, a quarter million people migrated from Ireland. Her 6th great-grandfather, Samuel Glasgow Stewart, migrated to Pennsylvania in 1720 and established a Presbyterian meeting house. At the time of the American Revolution at least one of every fifteen Americans was Scots-Irish and they supported America's fight for freedom. After years of oppression, they were unwilling to have a dictatorship in their new country.

Her Scots-Irish ancestors were ministers, missionaries, educators, surveyors and many started businesses. They supported the Underground Railroad and helped organize Presbyterian churches and schools in Kansas. Her great-grandfather, Reverend James Nelson Smith, came to the Kansas-Nebraska border to establish a colony. He was the leader of the church and established schools. In 1857, he returned from Pennsylvania to Kansas to start a Presbyterian colony in Berea, about midway between Richmond and Greeley, Kansas. In 1874, he started the Garnett College and classes were held in the United Presbyterian Church. The college began with two teachers and thirty students. There was a pledge of $25,000 by the synagogue for the support of the college in 1872, but there is no record of action and the college did not materialize. In 1857-1858 the crops were good, but 1859-1860 were dry years. Reverend J.N. Smith set up a saw mill and grist mill. He regularly preached in a log cabin. During the drought he aided his congregation by soliciting donated clothing and supplies from communities in the east and offered the supplies in trade for labor to build the church.

The town of Berea was laid out in 1858. During the next few years, the company store, church, schoolhouse, and post office were established. The town only had a few scattered houses and was not growing. In 1870 when the railroad bypassed Berea and the post office moved to Richmond, the town could no longer survive. Rev. Smith was the minister in Berea from April, 1857 to October, 1869. From 1860 to 1866, he served both congregations at Berea and Garnett. In 1866, the family moved to Garnett. When they moved to Garnett, the LL&G Railroad was being built. He was the Anderson County Surveyor from 1866 to 1870.

While in Berea, during the Underground Railroad, slaves stayed in a cabin for 30 days and food from Rev. Smith's cellar was shared with the slaves. A baby boy was born to one of the slaves during that stay. Todd Mildfelt, historian and resident of Richmond, Kansas, wrote a book titled "Almost Freedom". When he was young he heard stories about the settlement of Berea and the Underground Railroad in the Richmond area. In his book he wrote that Reverend Smith quietly encouraged the community to understand the plight of the slaves. At the time, no one could publicly talk about who was involved because aiding the slaves was against the fugitive slave law. Mr. Mildfelt also composes music and has written lyrics about Reverend Smith.

In the middle of the prairie not far from Berea, a mound of dirt nearly 150-feet high was known as Wadsworth Mound, or Steamboat Mound. It stood alone and could be seen for miles. Across the prairie were a few hills and one was known as Paradise Hill. Those working for the Underground Railroad used a semi-hidden cabin on the hill in December of 1858, to hide eleven slaves. The slave patrol was usually watching for runaway slaves on the banks of the river, not in open areas. A few men were stationed on Wadsworth Mound to watch for slave hunters, since they could see in all directions, and they would signal if they saw any. Local people now call the mound, Peine's Mound, which is the name of the people who own the surrounding land.

Her grandfather on the Stewart side of the family, Harold Stewart, was born in 1890. Her Grandpa Harold use to make yeast cakes and he and her Grandma Elsie would sell them around the county, and also in Lacygne, Paola and Osawatomie. The historical society has Mr. Stewart's yeast machine, and her Aunt Mary's recipe for the yeast cakes, on display.

Poet Laureate of Kansas to present reading, discussion

In Conjunction with the Walker Art Tour, The Friends of the Garnett Public Library will host an event with Wyatt Townley, Poet Laureate of Kansas on Saturday, Oct. 11, 2014 at 11:00 in the Garnett Public Library Archer Room. Members of the community are invited to attend the free program. The program is made possible by the Kansas Humanities Council.

The Walker Art Tour will consist of touring 11 locations with 17 artists, 1 group, and the Walker Art Gallery. Maps and tour info available online at: www.ExperienceGarnettKS.com. Artists Larry Peters and Barbara Waterman Peters will be here to discuss their artwork from 2-3 p.m. Their artwork is currently on display at the Garnett Public Library.

The notion of "home" is a long-held Kansas value. Join Poet Laureate of Kansas Wyatt Townley as part of her state-wide conversation about coming home to poetry. "Poetry is a place we can return to in all kinds of weather, with its innate power to heal and comfort, transform and inspire. Its porch light is always on." Wyatt will read and discuss her work as well as that of other poets, inviting us to come home to the poetry that underlies our lives in an age of distraction.

Wyatt Townley is a widely published, nationally known poet and a fourth-generation Kansan. Her work has been featured on National Public Radio's "The Writer's Almanac" with Garrison Keillor, in US Poet Laureate Emeritus Ted Kooser's "American Life in Poetry" column, and published in journals ranging from "The Paris Review" to "Newsweek." She has published three collections of poetry: "The Breathing Field" (Little Brown), "Perfectly Normal" (The Smith), and "The Afterlives of Trees" (Woodley Press), a Kansas Notable Book and winner of the Nelson Poetry Book Award.

A founding board member of The Writers Place in Kansas City, MO, Townley has served as a teaching artist with Young Audiences and Writers in the Schools program, and has appeared at writers' conferences and literary festivals in the Midwest and Northeast.

The Poet Laureate of Kansas is a program made possible by the Kansas Humanities Council, a 501c3 nonprofit organization that promotes the humanities as a public resource for all Kansans. Townley explores the humanities through public readings, presentations, and discussions about poetry in communities across the state.

The Kansas Humanities Council conducts and supports community-based programs, serves as a financial resource through an active grant-making program, and encourages Kansans to engage in the civic and cultural life of their communities. For more information about KHC programs contact the Kansas Humanities Council at 785/357-0359 or visit online at www.kansashumanities.org.

Iola stops Central Heights 34-0

IOLA - The Iola Mustangs whit-tled away at Central Heights Friday night, scoring in every quarter and sticking to the Viking offense like glue to inch up to their 34-0 win.

The Iola defense not only thwarted the Vikes' scoring attempts, they also secured extra time on offense for Iola. The Mustangs massed 407 yards on offense to Central Heights' 117. Iola ran 60 offensive plays to CHHS's 43 and held possession nearly a third longer than CHHS.

Zele Smith managed 51 yards on 16 carries for Central Heights and caught three passes for 34 yards. Chance Schooler had 23 yards on the ground. Jason Clissold caught two passes for 23 yards.

Schooler led the Vikes with 9 tackles and 7 solo stops. Cody Hermreck had 8.5 and Smith had 7.

AC tops CHHS, falls to Iola

IOLA - Blocking and passing were problematic for the AC Bulldogs last week when Garnett clipped a 25-21, 25-17 win from Central Heights, but fell 25-16, 25-18 to host Iola.

MaKayla Kueser led AC's offense with 12 kills followed by Kinley Jones with 11. Jones also set for 96 percent on the day. Jasmine White was 12/13 for defensive digs. Lexi Pedrow led from the serving line with 4 aces, Kueser and Jessica McCullar both had 3.

AC struggles at Wellsville

WELLSVILLE - The AC girls struggled through a five-game grid in the Wellsville Invitational Volleyball Tournament Saturday, managing wins over West Franklin and Osage City but falling to Baldwin and to Wellsville in both pool play and consolation play.

"We played better throughout the day," said head coach Glenn Suderman. "Injuries to Madison Martin and illness of Reagan Jirak made the day a challenge."

MaKayla Kueser led all servers with 6 aces on the day and 22 kills. Cassidy Lutz had a .357 kill percentage and 14 kills.

Jasmine White, Kueser and Jirak helped the Bulldogs with solid defense.

The Bulldogs follow up with home meets on Oct. 18 and 21.

The Lake Garnett Grand Prix Revival

Lake Garnett was known for its sports car races in the 1960s and 70s, and an event on Saturday will honor that heritage. The Lake Garnett Grand Prix Revival has more than 160 pre-entries in this event.

This is the first actual structured event of this type to be held in Garnett since the national SCCA sanctioned races held in 1972 on Garnett's 2.8-mile "true-road" course and includes a track event, car

Lancers win homecoming

COLONY - Crest head football coach Chuck Mahon knows it's unseemly to win by 52 points and still have complaints. But beating Elk Valley Friday night 60-8 didn't belay fears of better teams coming down the road at the Lancers this season.

"I'm very concerned about our defensive play," Mahon said. "I don't know if it's technique - they don't want to grab cloth. If we do that next week we'll be on the other end of that. Hartford's a very good team. They've got five or six really good players."

"On the other hand, we did some really good things on the offense," he said. "We moved the ball really well."

The Lions mounted several solid drives against the Lancers but were plagued by fumbles on their offensive snap, which resulted in at least two salvos that launched over the quarterback's head and yielded Lancer fumble recoveries or significant losses of yardage. On offense, the Lancers were clearly in control and scored on each possession. The Lancers kicked off so many times the first period, the 12-minute quarter lasted 51 minutes.

The game was beyond the 46-point rule and was called after the first half.

Austin Green led the Lancer offense with three TDs and 184 of Crest's 320 total offensive yards. Rene Rodriguez, Hunter Frazell and Evan Godderz and Brandon Brallier also scored for Crest. Gage Adams and Codi Vermillion led the defense with 5 tackles apiece. Adams, Christian Troxel and Braden McGhee each racked up a QB sack apiece.

AC girls rule at Central Heights

RICHMOND - The Anderson County girls placed three runners in the top 4 slots last week to take first place in the Central Heights Cross Country Invitational.

Averi Wilson was first on the 4k course with a 16:43.29, Bailee Wilson third with 17:40.70 and Gwen Sibley 4th with 17:52.55.

With 35 points AC was a solid distance from second place West Franklin at 49. Iola had 74, Spring Hill 86 and Osawatomie 96.

AC's Eliza Sibley finished 18th with 19:17.19. Remi Hedges was 19th with 19:20.20, Paige Scheckel 23rd at 19:50.88 and Morgan Egidy 25th at 20:15.57.

The AC varsity boys were 6th in their 7-team competition. Top finisher was Dyla Brenneman of Spring Hill with 17:01.30 on the 5k run. AC's Tyler Jument was 13th with 19:37.33, Trevor McDaniel 14th 19:37.89, Josh McAuley 29th 20:19.45, Owen Lutz 34th 20:40.89, Vincent Trujillo 41st 21:20.84, Justin Jument 51st 22:17.02, Nate Gainer 59th 24:54.66.

Central Heights' Dillon Welch ran a 20:40.14 for 32nd for the Vikings. Matt Ashwill was 33rd at 20:40.46 and Kyle Cardin 39th at 21:04.11.

Hicks 1st on bars at Newton

NEWTON - Callie Hicks scored a 9.2 for a first place finish on the uneven parallel bars in Friday's 6-team, 6A gymnastics meet at Newton, helping the Lawrence Free State Firebirds to a first place overall finish on the day.

Free State totaled 107.525 points across four events, edging hosts Newton by 4.325 points for top honors

Hicks, a junior, also placed fourth in the balance beam competition. Senior teammate Grace Bartle averaged a 9.0 rating across the vault, bars, beam and floor events to lead the Firebirds.

Hicks is the daughter of Dane and Barb Hicks of Greeley.

Three events in 1 day

GARNETT - Garnett is the place to be with three activities in one day.

"Second Saturdays" kicks into overdrive on October 11, with bargains galore, great dining, art, entertainment and more. October Second Saturday activities in Garnett feature an "Octoberfest of fun". Bring the kids to ReFined-ReCherished from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. for a miniature pumpkin patch for kids where they can enjoy decorating small pumpkins. Run down to the Anderson County Courthouse Lawn at 2 p.m. for a variety of activities the whole family will enjoy, including pumpkin slinging, pumpkin bowling, a pumpkin carving contest (bring your pumpkins ready for judging), a fall photo booth and more. These free family friendly activities are courtesy of the Life Assembly of God.

Another event will revive what is hoped to be the return of Garnett's sports car racing heritage. The Lake Garnett Grand Prix Revival has over 160 pre-entries in this multifaceted motorsports event to be held on Saturday, October 11. This is the first actual structured event of this type to be held in Garnett since the national SCCA sanctioned races held in 1972 on Garnett's 2.8-mile "true-road" course and includes a track event, car show, and an auto cross at the Garnett Industrial Airport.

Garnett also is where the art is Saturday, October 11, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Visit 11 locations featuring 17 artists, 1 group and the Walker Art Collection. View the art, meet the artists, and register at each location to win prizes, including one $50 cash prize. Refreshments are served in the Walker Art Gallery located in the Garnett Public Library building, 125 W. 4th Avenue. There is no charge for this tour.

Be sure and cash in on the sales and featured promotions at many of the Second Saturday participating businesses. Don't forget to ask for your Golden Tickets for the Second Saturday Drawing where you could win gold dollars at a minimum of $50.

At 2:30 p.m., catch musical entertainment "on the patio" at ReFined-ReCherished located at 6th and Oak with Angie Huff and Tori Ponce.

The favorite October Second Saturdays event is the Howl-O-Ween Mutt Strut. Dress up your dog and yourself and join in the pet parade around the town square. Parade check-in is at the gazebo on the Anderson County Courthouse Lawn at 3 p.m. The parade will begin at 3:30 p.m. Judges will award prizes.

Following the Mutt Strut, gather at the gazebo once again at 5 p.m. for the GoldenTicket Giveaway ($50). The winning name/numbers will be announced at the gazebo.

KU, Chiefs and Royals fans will want to visit Royal Rubbish No. 2 and view the spectacular sports photography art exhibit by Moppix (Professional photographer Jeff Moffet).

As the cooler weather sets in Second Saturdays musical entertainment heads indoors at great dining venues around Garnett.

Would you like fries with that?

It's an old adage - "I only went to the grocery store for eggs and milk and came home with a car load." You should operate your business like the grocery store and be sure to sell complementary products and accessories to your main product or service.

Think about it: Home Depot puts the grill scrapers, charcoal chimneys, etc., next to the new grills on display; the Verizon kiosks at the mall conveniently have those little rubber phone covers (and at $25 for a little piece of rubber, the mark-up has to be awesome!); lawn & garden departments of big stores put the fertilizer spreaders right next to the fertilizer.

If you're in competition particularly with a larger mega-retailer, try offering a second product for free or at a discount. The add-on will enhance the value of the purchase. Strongly consider the freebie - everybody loves a freebie - but if you can't make it free at least do a solid discount.

With the add-on in mind, be sure to communicate the extra value. If you're selling a new barbecue grill and offering a new 9-piece grill kit as a premium, be sure to note that the $150 grill comes with a grill kit worth $39.95 - and tell your customer to keep that in mind when comparing your price to your competitors.

If your customers tend to comparison shop (and many do, particularly with online options), don't hesitate to put a time limit on a premium or freemium as an urge to action.

Another idea is to give customers a choice of premiums or freemiums. If they get one free with a purchase but really want both, you have an excellent chance of making the second sale.

Remember: complementary products can turn one sale into two or three, and can help build customer loyalty and word-of-mouth promotion.

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 10-07-2014 / Photo Submitted

Cookie jars were more popular during the Great Depression, when our grandmothers were forced to abandon daily trips to the baker in favor of home-baked goodies.

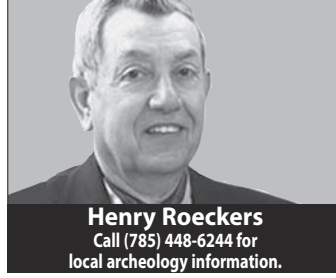

Cookie jars took leap in 1929

This old cookie jar has been in Kay's family for many, many years. What isn't known is whether it once belonged to her great grandmother or to her grandmother.

Cookie jar history can be traced back to the 18th Century England, where it is generally believed that they originated as "Biscuit Jars." Our English cousins used the term "biscuit" for a small tea cake or scone, which in the U.S. translates as "cookie." Once baked these biscuits had to be stored in a place that protected them and kept them fresh. The biscuit jar eventually migrated across the Atlantic, and by the turn of the century they could be found on the counters of stores and bakeries across America, usually filled with fresh baked "cookies."

Due to the lack of funds, brought on by the Great Depression, our grandmothers were forced to abandon their daily trip to the bakers, and opt instead for more "home baked goodies." This increase in home baking of course brought on a need for more suitable cookie storage containers, than the make-do cardboard oatmeal box or empty coffee tin. It wouldn't take long for U.S. Industry to recognize and fill this need.

Cookie jar history took a giant leap in 1929. Early cookie jars were usually very simple cylindrical or bean pot shaped, with very little or no decoration. In the 1940s cookie jars shapes, designs and decorations consisting of people, fruits, vegetables, flowers, animals and cartoon characters zoomed up until the mid 1970s.

Cookie jars are very collectible artifacts today.

KU to honor local seniors

LAWRENCE — Students from six Kansas high schools will be honored Wednesday, Oct. 15, by the University of Kansas Alumni Association and KU Endowment.

Franklin County coordinators. Terry Solander, of Garnett, is the Anderson County coordinator.

2004: First Cornstock artist, Chely Wright, signed

Oct. 12, 2004

Country music starlet Chely Wright will be the featured performer at "Cornstock" Sept. 24 of next year, an evening concert topping off a day of corn-related events at the Anderson County Corn Festival.

The Anderson County Commission was told they will have to borrow money locally to finance construction of the Welda sewer project because a $268,300 loan from the USDA's Rural Development Agency will not be available until the completion of the project, but the project engineer said the net result will be money saved for the county.

After being rebuffed by the Anderson County Commission last summer, the Kansas Department of Health and Environment has promised to pay for a cleanup of a dump site near Scipio if the county will write a work plan and submit a grant application.

The average person walking through Anderson County Jr./Sr. High School notices a large amount of open space, a profusion of windows that augment artificial lighting and in general a sense that the building is a well planned and built structure. But administrators and school board members, like the owners of a newly built house, also notice some of the little things that aren't quite right. They notice a wavy wall here, some mildew that might signify a moisture problem there or the odd crack that wasn't there a few months ago. The board agreed to a construction walk-through, and a cursory inspection earlier this month found 11 items that may need attention, including some water leaks, various cracks in bricks and floors, uneven floors, some missing or improperly installed floor drains and a problem with escaping sewer gas.

ACJSHS Activities Director Tom Tucker will start research later this year on the implementation of softball and baseball programs in the district. More than 30 people attended the school board meeting Thursday in support of a plan to start the new programs.

Anderson County Sheriff Tom Hermreck and county workers cut down cultivated marijuana near Colony Thursday afternoon. The marijuana is of estimated value of approximately $18-20,000 on the "streets" and is of good quality. The marijuana was destroyed by burning.

The weather has been cloudy and fairly cool the past week. The highest temperatures during the past week were recorded Wednesday and Thursday with 83 degrees, while the lowest temperature was Sept. 30 with 28 degrees.

A burglar entered Jones' grocery last night, but so far, Mr. Jones has missed no goods. J.H. Rodgers thinks a box or two of cigars were taken, but of that he is not sure. The burglar tried to cut a glass out of a back window with a black-handled razor, but by some means, he only succeeded in breaking several chunks out of the blade, so he threw it down on the doorknob and broke the glass. There are iron bars up at the windows, and he bent them enough to admit his body, and entered the store. As stated, Mr. Jones has missed no goods, but a black overcoat hung in the closet in the rear of the store and it was taken. The coat was left in the store last spring by some customer and was never called for. The burglar opened the cash register, but found only a few pennies, which he left. Mr. Jones still has the razor, and he says the owner can have it by calling the store.

Tuesday, Oct. 13, has been designated by the board of directors of the Booster Club a Road Day, and every man who has a motor car which he will donate for that day please call W.W. Gowdy, and get your route assigned. Every member of the club who possibly can is asked and expected to assist on this day's work, and all citizens of the town and country surrounded, who are interested in better roads, are to report to the committee and will be assigned a car. Each man is asked to furnish one tool, either garden rake, shovel, pick or sledge. The object of this day is to remove the loose rock from the streets and roads surrounding the town.

Change of season

As the days shorten and the trees turn their vibrant colors we are again reminded of the change of a season. Fall is a time of change. Isn't it just like God to turn the tree leaves brilliant colors before they fall and disappear leaving the tree bare? The late afternoon autumn sun strikes the bluestem grass in a way that almost seems to make it shine. This has been another dry fall and the cattle kick up dust in the lots that at sunset makes them appear as silhouettes. Perhaps the most striking thing about autumn is the sunset. As the sun prepares to disappear from sight it turns a shade of red. Then in minutes it has set signaling the end of another day.

Fall is a time of reflection. It is a time when I am more inclined to look back rather than forward. To remember things that over time have become more and more important to me. Those times with family and friends, good and bad. When people took time to encourage me or to educate me or to even correct me. Times when people shared my sorrow or joy. These are relationships I cherish and will never forget even though most of these people have passed away.

Autumn perhaps more than anything else has helped me to understand my own mortality. Someday you and I will go the way of our family and friends and step into eternity. A place that has no beginning and will have no end. You see man is eternal. You and I will pass from this life but we will pass into eternity.

In Genesis 1:26-27 we read, Then God said, "Let us make man in our image in our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea and the birds of the air, over all the livestock, over all the earth, and over all the creatures that move along the ground." When God created man he gave man dominion over everything except man himself. Man answers to God. This has created a struggle between man and God. We want to put ourselves in the place of God. However this can never be for the creature will never be greater than the creator.

To those who overcome this struggle God makes a wonderful promise in Revelation 21:3-5, "Now the dwelling place of God is with man, and he (God) will live with them. They will be his people and God himself will be with them and be their God. He will wipe every tear from their eyes. There will be no more death or mourning or crying or pain for the old order of things has passed away." Make a commitment today to accept Jesus Christ as your personal Savior.

Library to discuss 'The Invention of Wings'

The Garnett Public Library will hold a book discussion on Wednesday, October 22nd at 7 p.m. This month's book is "The Invention of Wings" by Sue Monk Kidd. Leading our discussion will be Paulabeth Henderson.

Hetty "Handful" Grimke, an urban slave in early-nineteenth-century Charleston, yearns for life beyond the suffocating walls that enclose her within the wealthy Grimke' household. The Grimke's daughter Sarah, possessed of a ravenous intellect and mutinous ideas, has known from an early age she is meant to do something large in the world, but she is hemmed in by the limits imposed on women.

Sue Monk Kidd's sweeping new novel is set in motion on Sarah's eleventh birthday in 1803, when she is given ownership of ten-year-old Handful, who is to be her handmaid. The Invention of Wings follows their remarkable journeys over the next thirty-five years as both strive for lives of their own, dramatically shaping each other's destinies and forming a complex relationship marked by guilt, defiance, estrangement, and the uneasy ways of love.

The books are available for checkout at the library. The discussions are held the fourth Wednesday of each month at 7 p.m. in the Archer Room at the library. Notification is posted in case of cancellation.

National 4-H Month

What is 4-H?

- 4-H is a volunteer-led educational program that supplements the teachings of home, church and school
- 4-H is an informal education program open to all youth 7 to 19 years of age, regardless of whether they live in town, the country or on a farm
- 4-H is kids having fun and learning with their friends
- 4-H is an out-of-school volunteer-led family-oriented program
- 4-H is an educational program conducted through the Kansas State University Extension Service
- 4-H is a powerful leader in the development of positive and responsible youth

• 4-H focuses on these lifeskills: a positive self-concept; an inquiring mind; a concern for the community; healthy inter-personal relationships; sound decision-making skills

History of the 4-H Pledge

Every month, 4-H members across the country stand and recite the 4-H pledge. Although millions of people have recited the pledge many times during their 4-H careers, many don't know its origin or history. The 4-H pledge was originally written in 1919 by the state 4-H leader of Kansas, Otis E. Hall. In 1927, the pledge was adopted by a group of 4-H delegates during the first National 4-H Camp which was held in Washington, D.C. That camp has now evolved into the National 4-H Conference. The phrase "and to my world" which was added in 1973, is the only change that has been made to the pledge since its adoption.

4-H Clover: International Symbol

Millions of past and present 4-H members look to the 4-H clover as a symbol of personal growth, responsibility and achievement. Why a clover to symbolize the youth organization?

In June 1906, when Wright County, Iowa, school superintendent O.H. Benson, visited a one room school near Clarion, Iowa, he received a gift of seven four-leaf clovers from the children. Benson told them that he had been searching for an emblem to represent the nation's agricultural clubs and schools and that they had just given him that emblem.

The four-leaf clover, which stands for good luck and achievement, reminded Benson of his own idea of a "four-square education" that included: education, fellowship and physical and moral development.

Benson had three sketches of possible emblems in his office - a three-leaf clover, a four-leaf clover and a five-pointed star.

The three-leaf clover was selected to be the Boys' and Girls' Club emblem in 1907. An "H" was placed in the center of each leaf to represent the head, heart and hands; the head trained to think, plan and reason; the heart trained to be true, kind and sympathetic; and the hands trained to be useful, helpful and skillful.

Around 1908, the idea of the four-leaf clover was becoming more popular. The word hustle was chosen as the fourth "H" because it renders easy service and develops health and vitality.

In 1922, the four-leaf clover was adopted and the word hustle was replaced with health to represent the equal training of the head, heart, hands and health of children. The green color of the clover was said to stand for youth, life and growth, and the color white was chosen for each "H" because it symbolizes purity.

In 1924, the Boys' and Girls' Club became known as 4-H and the emblem was patented. When the patent expired in 1939, Congress passed a law to protect the use of the 4-H club's name and emblem for unauthorized use.
