Old ACH demo gives way to memorial garden

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 3-24-2015 / Vickie Moss

Tom Adams works to demolish what had been the Long Term Care Unit of Anderson County Hospital Friday afternoon, March 20. Demolition of the old hospital building began last week, to make room for a new parking lot at the site of the new hospital just west of the former facility.

Hospital foundation launches plans to add 'green' space at site

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - With the demolition of the old Anderson County Hospital underway, the ACH Foundation has launched a $135,000 fundraising drive to accent the new hospital's exterior with a functional as well as therapeutic "green" space which will blend the new hospital's entrance and outer grounds with its spacious parking area. The ACH Foundation has been the prime funding mechanism for equipment and other hard assets of the hospital, which is owned by county taxpayers and leased for health-care operations by St. Lukes Health System. The walking trail and memorial garden, which will sit on part of the area now taken up by the old hospital, will be the capstone to the project approved by voters in August 2013 and opened to patients in January. The project includes a paved walking trail that meanders around the hospital grounds and is punctuated by various landscaping features. Its route includes a new outdoor physical therapy terrace - part of the hospital's onsite rehabilitation center - that features different types of terrain, steps and other common obstacles used in standard physical therapy all with access to the trail and memorial garden. Donation options will allow locals to memorialize loved ones or otherwise show support at different points along the route.

Teens charged in 2013 rampage

Broken car windows, property damage lead to criminal charges

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Six teenagers have been charged with a series of local vandalism incidents that occurred nearly two years ago. During a one-week period from about June 3 to June 10, 2013, several Garnett residents reported property damage that included broken car and garage windows, damage to satellite dishes and destruction of yard lights. Someone apparently broke the windows of at least four vehicles and damaged a tailgate and taillights of another pickup. Two other property owners reported broken garage windows and two more reported someone broke yard lights and satellite television dishes. Five of the teenagers were charged March 11 in juvenile court with 10 counts each of criminal damage to property. Court appearances are scheduled for April 7. Each one of the charges is a Class B misdemeanor, which means the value of the property or the damage

School leaders watch block grant drama

Superintendents say they're OK for now, but concerned about future

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

Area school superintendents are watching the state legislature and court system carefully to find out how a bill that overhauls school funding will affect local students, teachers and taxpayers.

But whatever happens, all three area superintendents said good money management practices over the past few years should help them weather state funding storms for the immediate future. All three area superintendents - Don Blome in USD 365 - Garnett, Chuck Mahon in USD 479 - Crest, and Jim White in USD 288 - Central Heights - said there is too much uncertainty

Paint project delayed

GAPP leaders cancel this year's event, hope to bring it back in future

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Plans to bring a home improvement mission project back to Garnett have been postponed at least another year, organizers announced recently.

The Garnett Area Paint Project, known as GAPP, brought 356 youth and adult leaders to Garnett in the summer of 2013 to paint homes and build wheelchair ramps and porches. Organizers planned to bring the program back to Garnett July 5-11, but have canceled those plans because of concerns they can't attract enough volunteers and participants. They hope to bring the program back at some point.

was less than $1,000. Because juvenile cases are handled differently than adult criminal cases, a juvenile found to be guilty is "adjudicated" and possible penalties could include probation with requirements such as community service, curfews, counseling or classes, or writing a letter of apology.

Juveniles charged included: Hunter Wade Gilbreth, who was 15 at the time of the crime; Vincent J. Hamilton Jr., then-16; Jordan Chase Null, then-15; Jose Vincent Trujillo, then-16; and Patric Michael Vandenberg, then-16.

One of the defendants, Trevor D. Young, was 18 at the time of the crimes and has been charged with 10 counts of criminal damage to property in the adult criminal system. A conviction of a Class B misdemeanor as an adult can bring a sentence of up to six months in jail and a fine of up to $1,000, although probation is likely in most cases and depends on prior criminal history. A hearing for Young has not been set.

County Attorney Brandon Jones was not in the office Monday morning for comment on the cases.

"We are very excited to see this project begin and to be able to provide a great outdoor setting to compliment our new state of the art hospital," said foundation chairman Mike Burns. Burns said a limited number of coated steel benches would be part of the plan which would be available for individual, family or group sponsorship as a fundraiser for $5,000 apiece, complete with bronze plaques for the sponsors' personal dedication.

Burns said nearly half the available benches had already been sponsored, but that other less expensive sponsor options included some 34 trees at a $500 fee throughout the garden area.

"We still have plenty of opportunity to get involved in supporting such a great project and honoring those important to you," Burns said.

The project is expected to be completed by early summer. For more information, please contact Mike Burns at 785-448-3600 or mburns@auburnpharmacies.com.

GAPP was organized through Group Workcamps, Inc., a Colorado-based provider of Christian youth mission trips. Youth and adults travel throughout the country and internationally to improve communities.

When Group Workcamps partnered with the Garnett Ministerial Alliance and other local entities in 2013, they brought 356 teenagers and adult leaders from 11 states to Anderson County for one week. During that week, small groups worked on 49 homes in seven communities in Anderson County and provided 12,000 hours of volunteer service worth more than $200,000 in economic impact. The groups painted homes and built porches or wheelchair ramps.

Since then, GAPP organizers and youth mission workers have continued to work on projects throughout the region. Last summer, for example, GAPP helped the Scipio Carmelite Starts youth at a similar mission camp in Lawrence. This year, they'll work on another project in Atchison.

But the work and number of volunteers needed to host a local event has proven to be too much of a hurdle this summer, organizers Scott Rogers and Chris Goetz said in a press release March 12.

The camp initially was scheduled for July 5-11, right after the Independence Day holiday, which was not a good time for the camp, they said. Instead, the camp will be canceled this year.

Organizers are looking at dates to see when a camp might be able to return to Garnett, Rogers and Goetz said in the press release.

For more information, contact Scott Rogers at 785-448-6500 or Chris Goetz at 503-474-7965 or email garnettarepaintproject@gmail.com with any questions, suggestions for projects, or volunteer opportunities.

Garnett tourism, oil and Sea World

I was standing at Sea World in San Antonio recently stealing a spoonful of my daughter's Dippin' Dots when the frustrations of tourism development here in Garnett gave me one of those "ah-hah" moments.

We had taken a little Spring Break tour of Texas to see the Alamo and Sea World and Austin and to dip our toes in the Gulf of Mexico, and I couldn't help contrasting the aspects of a hard-core tourism area to those our local community activists try to promote in Garnett and Anderson County.

It made me wonder how many tourists came to Garnett for Spring Break, and whether we've ever really created a job from our tourism efforts?

In a lot of ways a trip to Garnett probably would have been a nicer trip. San Antonio was tired-looking and trashy, although it's reveling in the jobs, spending and tax revenues produced by Eagle Ford Shale oil drilling in recent years. Paper trash and debris lined the highways, and not even multiple highway fly-overs could alleviate the motor traffic. Tourists around the downtown Alamo location and River Walk and nearby Sea World attraction compounded the traffic. The free-admission Alamo was jam-packed with tourists - we stood in line for a good 15-20 minutes before we could even get inside the building, and once we did, the layout and route of the self-guided tour was so confusing, by the end of it I wasn't sure which side won.

Once you got past the giant new refineries at Corpus Christi Bay, it was clear to see the amazing impact of higher oil prices of the past few years on the port city. A brand new convention center and a bunch of high-rise bank buildings now grace the north bayfront and give the town a more modern feel than it had back in 1991 when I finished my first novel in one of its 1960s -vintage hotels. Jobs exploded with the development there in the last five years, helped along by some $20 billion in oil-related investment from mostly foreign-owned firms. An owner of a video production company I met there told me it took oil topping $80/barrel to start the ball rolling in Corpus.

What happens now? Last Friday oil was at $43.

In Austin, where music and the University of Texas are king, things seemed a little more laid back and a lot cleaner. But I'm sure there's a lot of oil money being spent there too - at least until recently. We rode one of those cool turbo-fan chambers that simulate free-fall skydiving - recently built and I'm sure designed for college-town crowds but certainly not hurt by tourist traffic or oil money. What hit me about it all was the raw volume of activity - whether in tourism or in vibrations made by a boom in the oil industry - that it takes to create jobs. I don't know the answer, but somewhere there's a number - gallons of oil produced or dollars in sales generated or something - that defines the average amount of oil activity which creates one industry-related job. So too with tourism.

The oil boom, which to the jubilation of most of America's drivers may be over now if crude oil prices are an indicator - resulted in jobs being produced right here in Anderson County. We saw that by the hiring that took place in oil field jobs and the location of Hurricane Services plant in Garnett's Prairie Plaza industrial park.

It isn't that all the hub-bub created by Garnett's transient guest tax and the effort and resources we put into various tourism efforts isn't good for the community - projects like the Cornstock Concert and Square Fair and Second Saturdays and the upcoming Art Walk make great temporary traffic drivers and give us the opportunity to connect with outsiders or former residents whose assets we may be able to exploit.

But jobs created? Nada.

We've spent a lot more time talking about transient guest taxes and tourism efforts locally in the last few years than we have the pursuit of real job creation - for instance the construction of a "spec" industrial building to pitch to possible manufacturing companies looking to relocate.

We're never going to have Sea World in Anderson County. We don't have The Alamo. We need to be devoting more attention to development of conventional jobs and efforts that build hard, sustainable economic assets in our community.

A national embarrassment

Finally, I've figured out what "American exceptionalism" is all about. We are exceptionally dysfunctional - at least our federal government is. A recent Gallup Poll revealed that when asked what America's biggest problem is, the answer was the government. And no wonder. Imagine you're the leader of a country trying to deal with the United States right now. Any country, like, say Iran, or the Europeans, or Russia, or Israel.

Then, right at the most slippery point in negotiations with an elected U.S. president and his secretary of state haggling over a nuclear Iran, imagine what you'd think if the upper chamber of his country's legislature (we call it a Congress) suddenly gummed up the delicate works with a heavy-handed letter saying that the Iranians should know that an agreement with the U.S. might not be worth the paper it's written on, that a new president two years' hence might go back on the bargain with the "stroke of a pen." It's not exactly the way to inspire respect on the world stage.

The GOP in the House and Senate apparently has decided that this president, despite the fact that he has been elected and re-elected, somehow is not the valid chief executive. That could be the only explanation for an opposition party so blatantly stomping on territory it shouldn't even be approaching, i.e., the president's responsibility to conduct foreign affairs. The letter was the brainchild of freshman Republican Sen. Tom Cotton of Arkansas. He has just fallen off the turnip truck, so he can be forgiven, perhaps, for his amazingly amateurish move, but 46 other senators from his party signed it, including the various leaders, who should know better.

This comes just a week after the Republicans and Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu engineered a treacherous behind-the-back move, where Netanyahu was given a joint session of Congress to trash the administration's bargaining with Iran.

Quoting former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton about the motives behind the hyperpartisan shenanigans: "There appear to be two logical answers. Either these senators were trying to be helpful to the Iranians or harmful to the commander in chief in the midst of high-stakes international diplomacy." Obviously, a GOP decision has been made to neutralize the nation's leader, no matter what harm it does to the country.

And you'll notice my oh-so-clever mention of Hillary Clinton. (We call that a "segue," and it was a mighty good one, if I say so myself.) The really big story is the explanations for hiding all her emails, official and unofficial, behind a cloak of secrecy given by the woman who wants to be the next president.

Her grudging explanation for why she went to astounding lengths to conceal her emails is like a blast from the past: She didn't want to carry two smartphones. It wasn't convenient. Not only that, but after she determined what emails she'd turn over to the government, she simply decided to get rid of the rest. Deleted more than 30,000. How dumb does she think we are? And the point of all this is a question many have asked for a long time, about whether America is ready for self-government. Maybe not.

Hospital helps, reader says

Dear Editor: About a month ago I found myself very ill while at home. It was necessary to call an ambulance to take me to our local hospital. I want to share my experience with our community because it was so positive.

From the ambulance attendants to the Dr. and nurses in the emergency room that day I received excellent care from the very first moment I met them. I was subsequently admitted to the Anderson County Hospital and stayed for five days. All of the medical staff I came into contact with during the nine or so different shift changes while I was there were extremely professional, compassionate and caring to both me and my family every time they were in my room, without fail. The lab technicians who visited me every morning to draw blood never administered a painful stick, and that was very important to me!

If you have never met Dr. Ross Kimball, one of our relatively new local Primary Care Physicians, you should if you are looking for a great doctor. I have never had a better relationship with a doctor than with him. He makes it so easy.

Obviously, I cannot praise the Anderson County Hospital enough following my experience. I would encourage any member of our community to make use of this wonderful new facility and all of the professional medical staffing, if the need arises.

Thank you. Sharon Brown, Garnett

Tom Cotton's truth bomb explodes

Republican Sen. Tom Cotton hasn't been frog-marched from the Russell Senate Office Building - yet. To believe the Arkansan's harshest critics, that's only because felonious traitors don't get the punishment they deserve.

Cotton wrote an open letter to the leaders of Iran pointing out true and obvious things about our constitutional system, and the world came crashing down on his head.

Disgracing the Senate, per a hyperventilating Vice President Joe Biden, was the least of his supposed offenses. He was aiding Iranian hard-liners, violating the Logan Act against subverting U.S. foreign policy and committing an act of treason. If there were any doubt about the latter, the New York Daily News ran a picture of him and fellow Republican signatories of the letter on its front page with the subtle headline "TRAITORS."

Cotton's alleged sedition is hard to fathom. It's not as though he wrote secret letters to the Iranians (that's what President Barack Obama has made a practice of doing). It's not as though he traveled to a foreign country to glad-hand a foreign thug in an express effort to undermine the president's foreign policy (that's what then-Speaker Nancy Pelosi did when she went to Damascus and met with Bashar Assad). Cotton wrote a letter and posted it on his website. As Brian Beutler of The New Republic pointed out, the letter is functionally indistinguishable from an op-ed. The contents of Cotton's letter shouldn't have been news to anyone. It is inarguable that as a matter of domestic law a subsequent president can get out of the agreement at will and Congress can pass laws in contravention of the agreement, if a president will sign them. If these are things the Iranians don't know, shouldn't someone tell them?

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

The foreign-policy debate in the Age of Obama is the world turned upside down. In the president's transposition of the norms of American foreign policy, inviting the leader of a close ally to address Congress is an affront, and forging a - to put it gently - highly generous deal with an enemy is such an urgent necessity that no one should say a discouraging word.

A more confident administration would have brushed off Speaker John Boehner's invitation to Bibi Netanyahu, as well as the Cotton letter. The Obama administration is so defensive because it has a lot to be defensive about.

It has been outnegotiated by the Iranians. Once, we wanted to prevent Iran from having a nuclear-weapons capability. Once, we wanted zero enrichment, and so did the United Nations. Those goals have long since been abandoned by an Obama administration desperate for any deal so it can include an opening to Iran among the president's legacy achievements.

So, here is my own seditious foray into interfering with the conduct of U.S. foreign policy:

To Whom It May Concern in Tehran, You are unlikely to ever encounter someone this weak and credulous again in the Oval Office.

The president used to say that no deal is better than a bad deal. Now, that line is inoperative. It's any deal is better than no deal, and woe to anyone who dares say otherwise.

Will we have a showdown over school funding?

We're coming to what might become one of the most significant confrontations of recent Kansas history, when Gov. Sam Brownback inevitably signs into law the new K-12 block grant school finance bill—policy and appropriations all in one.

The bill? It's just about what the governor called for in his State of the State address to the Kansas Legislature: Eliminating the current finance program for K-12 schools and handing out block grants for two years while the Legislature figures out a new plan for sending money to school districts.

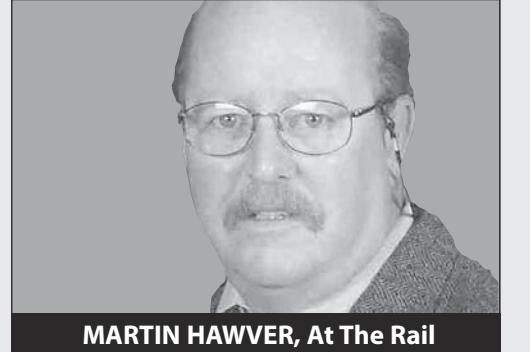

But...there is a three-judge panel working at the direction of the Kansas Supreme Court which is assessing whether the state is providing "adequate" support—that's money—for operation of the state's elementary and secondary schools to make sure that our children get a good education.

And, that three-judge panel—whether it is called "activist" or supportive of that constitutional funding mandate—has put everyone on notice that it "may agree or elect to impose such temporary orders to protect the status quo and to assure the availability of relief, if any, that might be accorded should the court deem relief warranted."

What? Basically it is the court telling the participants in the Gannon v. Kansas lawsuit over adequacy of funding for K-12 that it could step into that appropriations bill, or law whenever the governor signs it, with temporary court orders.

Because the bill specifically eliminates that "status quo" finance formula and doesn't provide the amount of aid that we're figuring the court wants, well, that sounds like the

STATE COMMENTARY

MARTIN HAWVER, At The Rail

Legislature and the court panel are clearly at odds.

That panel could, essentially, shut down the K-12 block grant bill, freeze the money it proposes to spend and propel the Legislature back to work. That's a bold threat from judges, but at some point, it makes sense not to let the state spend money that might be needed to satisfy the panel that the state is "adequately" funding schools.

Now, that's just a three-judge panel, and if it goes to the end of the leash and prohibits the law from becoming effective, look for the issue to quickly wind up before the Kansas Supreme Court—a blockbuster of a scrap between the Legislature and the governor and the courts.

Oh, and did we mention that the current state budget that will be debated this week requires more taxes from someone or someplace to balance? And, that if the courts stop the school finance bill, there's likely to be more taxes needed to end the upcoming two fiscal years with money in the bank?

And...it is probably worth remembering that though there are 97 Republicans in the House, the school bill was passed by just two votes (64-57) with nary a Democrat vote for it in either the House or the Senate, where it passed 25-14.

Everything coming together now? It's the Legislature, and as soon as he signs it into law, the governor vs. Kansas Courts, or at least a three-judge panel that the Supreme Court may have to either support or abandon. Or, there's of course the chance that the governor won't sign the bill and it becomes law without his signature...not exactly a high testosterone way to deal with the issue by the governor.

So, where are we on school finance?

Will the bill become law? Will the three-judge panel figure a way to freeze the bill temporarily because it eliminates current law on school finance which is apparently constitutional, just not funded sufficiently? Will the high court step in on the issue? Will the Legislature look for direction, and to whom?

Lots of questions, not many answers, and this week, or maybe the week after—when the Legislature starts its "spring break" before the veto session—we'll see where this is headed.

Is this the remains of an old forgotten Fort, Trading Post or Spanish Church? Pictured are my two assistants on this project, John Bayles, who recovered the artifacts I found and his daughter, Joan, who collected, photographed, bagged and recorded them. All the blocked stone is Sandstone.

Latest archaeological adventure looks at old fort, trading post or Spanish church

My latest archaeological adventure found me answering a request to metal detect a site in Wilson County, Kansas and to possibly verify the long ago existence of an old lost Fort, Trading Post or Spanish Church.

As always, I take daily field notes of all my trips and for this week's column I will share my latest with you.

Tuesday 10 March 2015 - I left Garnett at 8:05am. 42 degrees. I ran into a brief shower near Humboldt and then very dense fog from just west of Chanute to my destination near Coyville arriving at 9:40 am. There I met my assistants on this project John and Joan Bayles area residents.

Before I began my metal detector surveys, I walked up to the top of a small hill and visited the forgotten Hunter Cemetery. Among the under brush etc. are 18 recorded burials, 10 small children from birth to 4 years of age, 6 are very young women and 2 are men. The last burial was in 1892. Fascinating.

My walking tour didn't stop there, but continued down a very worn and preserved old Indian Trail which led directly to our work site.

After lunch in the field we began conducting metal detector surveys around the ruins until 4:00 pm.

Some of the artifacts found that pertained to the time period we were interested in were:

Civil War style 4-hole iron button, Brass canvass grommet, Harness buckles and snap hooks, 3-types of square nails, 2-large Clout nails (used to secure iron to wood), fragments of very thick window glass and the find of the day approx. 4" or 1/3 of a Lead Bar (used to make bullets).

We all drove to John's home, where I camped in my truck for the night, however, before bedtime I enjoyed a delicious bowl of homemade chili and several hours of wonderful fellowship with John, Brenda and Joan Bayles.

2005: 400 apply for ethanol plant jobs

March 22, 2005

More than 400 people have asked for job applications at the new ethanol plant being built by East Kanas Agri-Energy. Most of those applications were handed out at a career fair hosted by EKA. The plant is seeking to fill 30 permanent positions of all types, including laboratory technicians, maintenance, material handlers and production. About half of the people who asked for an application, or about 200, have filled it out and returned it.

A law aimed at cracking down on teen drinking parties now makes property owners liable if minors are invited to parties and caught with booze on their properties.

Anderson County Commissioners were rubbed a little raw by the fact that Garnett officials extended a facility lease agreement for Garnett Church Furnishings earlier this month without consulting the county. The city approved the extension after the company president told them he needed an extension to guarantee a $450,000 job contract the company was set to be awarded. The city had legal authority to grant the extension under its agreement with the county, but county officials said they resented not being consulted first.

Escalating employee health insurance costs drove the Anderson County Hospital to nearly a $100,000 financial deficit for 1994, according to an auditor's report. The hospital self-insures its employees, reinsuring itself for claims over $10,000 per employee annually. In 1993, the hospital paid claims totaling $236,985. In 1994, that expense climbed nearly 51 percent to $357,672. Coupled with a decrease in patient volume over that same period, the hospital posted a loss of $99,547.

Millard Filmore installed the bathtub there and red-blooded

Americans everywhere protested that the president was a sissy. He had introduced them from Europe, an abominable "monarchical luxury." If he felt he must take baths - an un-American practice anyway - the White House bathroom was good enough for any man. Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson hadn't had bathtubs. This was a striking example of the conservatism of the public mind and its resistance to technological improvements. Less than 10 years before, the National Resources committee of Philadelphia Common Council had come within two votes of passing an ordinance against bathing of any sort between Nov. 1 and March 15. This allegedly growing practice was sapping the vitality of the citizenry. It was denounced as a menace to public health and decency. About this same time the degrading habit was getting a foothold in Virginia. Several Old Dominion towns imposed a tax of $30 on every bathtub in an effort to discourage the vile things.

Rampage volleyball club new to Garnett

Rampage volleyball club is new to Garnett this year. Their teams traveled to many different places for competition throughout the off season to learn more about the sport, learn new things, and better themselves on a competitive level.

Their players ranged from ages 12 to 16 with 4 teams this year. They had a 12's team coached by Kaleigh Malone and Victoria Lutz, two 14's teams coached by Tarrie Miller, Amy Galey, and Amy Cottner, and a 16's team coached by Katelyn Wolken and Jenny Heck.

Starting this club is something Tarrie Miller has always wanted to do.

"Volleyball is a sport I have always had a passion for, and not only do I get to help others I get to coach my daughter too," she said.

Tarrie also reached out to a good friend of hers who she played volleyball with in High School, Moria Feuerborn. She also has a love for the sport. She was more than happy to be a part of the club as club representative.

"I don't know what I would do without her help," Miller said. "She keeps me organized and on my toes."

"I learned a lot as the director this year and really enjoyed my time as a coach. I can't wait to see the club grow throughout the years."

Heeling for Health wants to honor local heroes

So who is your hero? Who has fought a health crisis and won? Who have you watched battle a tough situation with grace and dignity? Who has motivated you to get a medical test or to become a donor or a volunteer to help others? Who have you loved or lost that still makes an impact on your daily life? Who do you miss that you want to honor? Whoever comes to mind would be a great choice for your team honoree for the 15th Anderson County Hospital Foundation Annual Heeling for Health walk on April 25s.

Each year the committee works to find someone special who has fought hard and won a multitude of health battles for themselves or thru what they do for others. This year the committee decided that the 15th year should bring a different approach to finding the honoree. It was decided to let each team decide who they want to honor on the track the last Saturday of April. Each team honoree will then be asked to help lead everyone in the first lap of the event. This year's event is scheduled for Saturday, April 25th at the ACJSHS track. The event will kick off at 6:00 p.m. with the introduction of teams and the first lap.

A team is made up of 10 friends, co-workers or family members. Teams are encouraged to have a team name and to wear a team "uniform" identifying their team. Each team has a captain to help organize the team effort and this year each team will have a designated honoree(s). Team registration is $100 or $10 per member. Each team should have a member on the track walking at all times. Individuals can participate for a $10 fee.

Cow-Platty BBQ & Catering is offering food during the event. Cow-Platty Catering is operated by Glen Platt of Garnett. He will be offering a variety of food options and drinks. Information will be available soon on food options for the event.

Teams are also encouraged to set up a home base at the track with tents, chairs and food. Grills can be used if kept in the parking lot area. In case of bad weather the event will be held inside ACJSHS.

Support of the event can be done by forming a team or thru the purchase of Love Lights. Love Light Honorariums can be purchased for $5 to honor someone you love, have lost, those in the military or anyone you want to remember for a special reason. The Honorarium bags will be placed around the track and lit for the final lap. Names of those honored will be read at that time.

Team registration forms and Love Light forms can be picked up from Stephanie Smith at Anderson County Hospital by calling 785-204-8098 or by email to stesmith@saint-lukes.org. Committee members include co-chairs Diane Doran and Leslea Rockers, Dr. Jerry Padfield, Stacy Holloran, Kim Barnes, Sandra Hamilton, Steve Benjamin, Dorothy Miller, Tracy Brown, Marcia Mader, Stephanie Smith, Connie Thompson, Holly Reeder, Phil Bures, Sarah Holloran, Janis Hightower and Janet Hermreck.

More information will follow in the weeks ahead. Pick your hero and organize your team for a fun and worthwhile

Women in Training to kick off

GARNETT — This spring, Anderson County Hospital's Women in Training will offer women of all ages and fitness levels the opportunity to participate in a self-paced walk/run and cross-training series. Participants will also have the opportunity to talk with medical experts about improving their health and reviewing their baseline health numbers. The program will run from April 9 through May 28.

The eight-week program begins Wednesday, April 9, in the front lobby of Anderson County Hospital with registration and the first night's program. The remaining seven weeks of the program will be held at the Depot building next to the Prairie Spirit Rail Trail in Garnett, Kan.

Two sessions will be offered each week and will include a 15-minute talk by a health care professional at 6 p.m. and an hour-long walk/run/cross-train session at each woman's pace. Participants may choose to attend the 5:15 p.m. or 6:15 p.m. session. Health care professionals will share the latest information on heart and breast health, nutrition, cross training, and other health and wellness topics.

The cost to participate in the eight-week program is $35. For no additional charge, participants receive a cholesterol profile, thyroid and glucose check, body mass index (BMI) screening and weight and waist circumference measurement. Vitamin D testing will be offered for an additional charge of $25. Free childcare is provided.

Better productivity equals better sales

Okay, this is supposed to be a column about tips and ideas for generating sales in your small business, hence the ultra-creative name "How To Sell Stuff" which I labored all of about 4 minutes to come up with.

So I assume if you're reading this, you're someone who has an interest in selling either through your own small business or a side business in addition to your regular job. Regardless, you know by now that your productivity in sales depends on a lot of factors, the most important being you.

"Your" general productivity, then, is directly tied to generating sales. Be more productive and you'll generate more sales. See where I'm going with this?

Here are some ideas on giving your productivity a boost. Pick at least one and discipline yourself to use it this week:

1) Protect your "Zone": Everybody has that time of the day when they do their best concentrative thinking - that hour or couple of hours where you seem to be more creative, your concentration is better and ideas seem to pop into your head easier. It's different for everyone, but it's usually in the morning before the day wears you down. This is your "zone," and you need to protect it from distractions - clingy co-workers, email, social media, etc. Giving yourself "zone" time produces new products, new services, new business endeavors and other new ideas that turn into sales - arguable the most important part of your day.

2) See your "virtual day": Make a practice out of visualizing your day the night before, from the mundane tasks like what you're going to have for breakfast, what you'll wear, what route to take to work, etc., as well as tasks that are more substantive like meetings, sales calls, etc. Having already walked the path in your mind relieves the delay and dithering over small decisions that can distract you. The more things you've already thought through, the less you have to think about now and the more thought you can commit to being productive.

HOW TO SELL STUFF

Dane Hicks

3) Limit social media: If you're posting a new product description or photo on your Twitter or Instagram Account, that's one thing - looking at your friends' new puppy pictures on Facebook is another. I have no idea what the latest statistics are on lost workday productivity due to social media, but anecdotal evidence tells me it's staggering. If you have to have a SM fix during the day, do it just after lunch or at some other low-energy time and limit yourself to no more than 5 minutes.

Being more productive means getting more done, and if you're in business or sales, it means selling more stuff!

We find God, we find joy, we find happiness

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL

By David Bilderback

“created to be like God in true righteousness and holiness.” (Ephesians 4:24)

God is righteous. Righteousness as applied to God refers to his affirmation of what is right as opposed to what is wrong. God is the sole authority of his moral laws laid down to guide the conduct of humankind. Adam and Eve would have acted righteously in their relationship with God if they had obeyed him.

God is love. Love is the essential self-giving nature of God. The love that God has for his human children seeks to awaken a responsive love of man for God. If we love God we do not find it difficult to follow his commands. Without such love of God we are as nothing. God loved us so much he redeemed us by the death of his Son on the cross.

God is truth. Because of God's perfect nature and will, God has to speak and act in truth. He cannot lie. “He who is the glory of Israel does not lie.” (Hebrews 15:29a)

God is wisdom. God's wisdom is revealed in him doing the best thing, in the best way, at the best time, for the best purpose. We were created in the image of God. Man was created for fellowship with God and to do God's will and work. It is true we cannot find happiness apart from God. It is a simple progression. We find God, we find joy, we find happiness.

David Bilderback: A Ministry on the Holiness of God.

ACHS plans spring play

The ACHS Theatre Department showcases the talents of many young performers in Midsummer/Jersey, a high-octane retelling of the familiar Shakespearean tale, A Midsummer Night's Dream, set on the boardwalk of a seaside town in modern-day New Jersey.

Performances are set for 7 p.m. Friday, March 27 & Saturday, March 28 at Anderson County High School Auditorium.

The story revolves around the impending marriage of the Governor of New Jersey (Zane Phelps), the love affairs of four beach-bound high school crushes (Bel Sibley, Austin Wickwire, David Pozzie, Tana Benton), a lively crew of fairies (Remi Hedges, Ellie Lutz, Bailey Wolken, Hunter Gilbreth, Adam Kropf, Seth Wolken, Tyler Wolken, Jami Sutton, Sammy Hicks) and the staff of the local beauty salon (Lilli Richardson, Lauren Egidy, Karly Wheeler, Tim Comfort), run by Patti Quince (Gwen Sibley) and Stylist Nikki Bottom (Grace Urquhart). The night takes a magical turn when Oberon (Asa Young) and the impish Puck (Melissa Kropf) arrive on the scene armed with a powerful love potion and a desire for mischief making. With several weddings and the acting careers of six beauticians hanging in the balance, the lovers take to the boardwalk, backed by pop music and an iPhone-obsessed wood sprite.

Suitable for the whole family, the comedy follows four young lovers, a vivacious crew of fairies and the staff of the local beauty salon as they play in the sand, sea and, of course, the boardwalk.

Director is Vicki Markham. Student Eliza Sibley is the assistant director and Bobbi Jo Rockers is stage manager.

Ticket price is $4 for adults and $3 for students. Come out for a night of laughs.

ECKAN: Prom dresses still available

ECKAN's 8th Annual Prom Boutique was held February 21st, 2015 in conjunction with Green Prom Movement.

The event started with a fashion show featuring 12 local models.

Despite the potential for rough weather, 42 individuals from nine middle and high schools came to peruse the selection of free gowns.

Miss Kansas United States, Victoria Wiggins, and Miss Teen Kansas United States, Tobie Roberts, both spent the day at the event helping girls find the perfect dresses.

Prom Boutique was started in 2007 to provide formal dresses regardless of a family's ability to pay.

Dresses are still available for those unable to attend Saturday's event. Please call Lindsey Fincham at 785-242-7450 ext. 7205 to see the several hundred dresses remaining.

ECKAN, one of eight community action agencies in Kansas, has been in existence since 1966 serving low-income persons in East Central Kansas. ECKAN's mission is to identify and focus available resources that enable eligible families and individuals to attain critical skills, knowledge and attitudes necessary to achieve self-sufficiency.
