Heavy rains cause flooding, no damage

More rain ahead as area farmers deal with too much moisture

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Nearly 4 inches of rain has fallen in the area in less than two weeks, leading to flooding in some areas over the weekend.

Most of the creeks and rivers in the area had started to recede by Monday morning, and there were no reports of any closed roads within Anderson County, according to Mick Brinkmeyer, county fire coordinator with the Anderson County Emergency Management office.

Since Wednesday, May 13, more than 2 inches of rain was reported to have fallen at the Garnett Industrial Airport, which is the official weather reporting station for the county. However, more rain fell in the western part of the county than the east, Brinkmeyer said. On Thursday, the airport recorded rainfall of 0.85 inches during the previous 24 hour period; on Sunday, the airport recorded 1.27 inches of rain over the previous 24 hour period.

Four-wheelers blamed for dam erosion concern

City leaders want to stop problems before bigger issues emerge

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — City leaders want to stop people from riding four-wheelers on the Cedar Valley Reservoir dam, after an engineer's report found the city's primary water source could be in danger if the practice continues.

The back side of the dam is beginning to show signs of erosion, which likely has been compounded by people riding four-wheelers at the site, City Manager Joyce Martin told commissioners at their regular meeting Tuesday, May 12. Although the dam facade was in good condition, damage to the back side could become a serious problem in two to three years if it isn't stopped, the report said. The dam is inspected every three years.

It's illegal to ride four-wheelers on city property, except on

Get ready for Cobra attack

Lake Garnett Grand Prix Revival to honor Shelby Cobra anniversary

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Expect to see sports cars — particularly Cobra Shelby race cars — return to Lake Garnett in October.

In 1965, the AC Cobra won the FIA World Championships. The Lake Garnett Grand Prix Revival group plans to incorporate the Cobra's 50th anniversary celebration with this year's revival in Garnett, organizers of the event told Garnett city commissioners at their regular meeting Tuesday, May 12.

The revival began in 2013 as a tribute to Garnett's historic Grand Prix sports car races that ran from 1959-1972 and brought national attention to the city along with crowds of up to 75,000 people. This year's revival event will increase from one day to the entire weekend, Oct. 11 and 12.

Bridge work starts tomorrow

New bridge will replace one from 1957 over Pottawatomie Creek

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Work to build a new bridge over the Pottawatomie Creek on U.S. 59 north of Garnett is expected to start this week.

The project will build a new, 44-foot roadway west of the current bridge. Motorists should expect few, if any, traffic delays because the bridge will be constructed on an offset highway alignment to the west. The bridge is about three miles north of Garnett.

The project officially starts Wednesday, May 20. Construction is expected to take about a year, with the new bridge expected to be open by the summer of 2016.

A St. Paul company, B & B Bridge Company LLC, was awarded the $5 million bid for the project in March.

The bridge was built in 1957. Replacement of the bridge designated trails at the reservoir and with a special permit. But people have violated those laws for at least 10 years, probably longer, Commissioner Gordon Blackie said. A relative of his used to own property near there, and said it was an ongoing issue.

The use of four-wheelers on the dam was a problem until the city opened the trails and permit process to encourage people to stay off the dam while still enjoying the use of four-wheelers at the reservoir, Martin said.

"It stopped, but now it has started again," she said.

"This is a big problem," Blackie said. "You're talking about destroying a pretty valuable asset to the city - our access to water."

He added the damage could be very costly to repair, and a total failure of the dam would be catastrophic. Erosion damage also could make for a dangerous situation for people who need to be on the dam, like city crews who mow the back side of the dam.

Commissioner Preston Peine agreed. "Once erosion starts and we get a heavy set of floods come through here, we're going to be hurting."

"It can happen overnight with the right storm," Blackie said.

Commissioners were not sure of the best approach to discourage people from riding four-wheelers on the dam. They discussed increasing the penalty if someone is caught, although it is a difficult area to patrol. They also considered asking for suggestions from engineers to see if they could make changes to the dam, like installing rocks or cables or fences, that would not allow access to the dam via four-wheelers.

City staff at times have erected various barriers and fences to prevent access to the dam, but people simply cut them down or otherwise destroy the barriers, Martin said.

Garnett Police Chief Kevin Pekarek encouraged commissioners to stop allowing four-wheelers at the reservoir, but commissioners said they didn't want to take such drastic action if it could be avoided.

"I would be more for having a designated area and stiff fines, not for punishing the ones who are doing it right," Mayor Greg Gwin said.

localized areas of flooding, but no major damage. Rivers and creeks were full and at times overran their banks, but most of the water had receded between Sunday and Monday.

Saturday storms were more severe in other parts of the state, with a weak tornado reported to cause some damage north of Neosho Rapids in Lyon County.

The heavy rain is a concern for area crops, especially corn, Shannon Blocker, an agent with Anderson County's office of the Frontier Extension District, said. Most corn farmers have planted their crops for this season, and she is concerned that too much water could cause damage.

"All plants need oxygen. The roots need oxygen. They need pore space that's not full of water," Blocker said.

Not much can be done, however, except wait for the soil to dry, she said. In this part of the state, soil can be tricky because it doesn't hold water very long.

"I always say we're about 24 hours away from a flood and two weeks from a drought at any point in this part of the state," Blocker said. "Even though we're really wet now, if it does dry out for two or three weeks we'll be crying for rain."

racings history. In 1963, Carroll Shelby brought three of his cars to compete with Corvettes and prove the might of his new racing vehicle; Shelby's cars took first, second and third places, followed by three Corvettes.

In honor of the Shelby Cobra history, this year's event will feature a special track event for Cobras only on Saturday, Oct. 10. Organizers estimate about 50 Cobras will attend. Other planned activities include a car show, an autocross event at the Garnett Industrial Airport, low-speed spectator rides around the track, parade laps, a downtown cruise, and various track sessions.

The cars don't actually "race" on the track, but the event recreates circumstances that give drivers and spectators a good idea of what it was like to be part of the historic race events.

Lake Garnett Grand Prix Revival group chairman CB Harris and secretary Darren Traub told city commissioners they plan to develop the revival into an ongoing, annual event. Each of the events the past two years have grown considerably, and this year's event is expected to bring hundreds of people and vehicles to Garnett. Harris said he has talked to local motel and hotel owners, who already have booked most, if not all, of their rooms for that weekend. Last year, organizers donated some of the proceeds to the City of Garnett, and they expect to do the same this year, Traub said.

Because of their group's commitment, Harris and Traub asked city commissioners to make a commitment of their own. They asked the city to establish an advisory commit-

Local church offers Vacation Bible School

GARNETT - A summer kids' event called Everest VBS will be hosted at Garnett First United Methodist Church from Tuesday, May 26 to Friday, May 29.

At Everest, kids discover what it means to hold on to God's mighty power in everyday life. Kids participate in memorable Bible-learning activities, sing catchy songs, play teamwork-building games, make and dig into yummy treats, experience one-of-a-kind Bible adventures, collect Bible Memory Buddies to remind them of God's love, and test out Sciency-Fun Gizmos they'll take home and play with all summer long. Plus, kids will learn to look for evidence of God all around them through something called God Sightings. Each day concludes with a Summit Celebration that gets everyone involved in living what they've learned. Family members and friends are encouraged to join in daily for this special time at 11:00 am. Everest is for kids from 4 yr olds to 5th grade and will run from 9 am to 11:30 am each day. For more information, call 785-448-6833.

It's a tricky place to farm."

Most farmers haven't yet planted soybeans, so the weather conditions don't yet impact them. She said wheat seems to be doing quite well, especially compared to other parts of the state.

Overall in Anderson County, rain has fallen 12 of the past 19 days in May for a total of 3.88 inches. May typically is a wet month, though, averaging 4.83 inches for the month. The county remains about 3 inches short of average rainfall for the year, despite going through a relatively wet spring. Rainfall in April was near the average of 3.98 inches.

May temperatures have been on the cool side lately, but at times reached into the 80s. The high temperature for the month so far was 83, reported on May 5 for the previous 24-hour period. The low was 39 on May 12, measuring overnight temperatures May 11-12.

More rain is expected tonight and tomorrow, and possibly on Friday through the weekend, according to forecasts from the National Weather Service at Topeka. Temperatures were expected to remain cool, with highs in the upper 50s to lower 70s by Saturday. Low temperatures were expected in the upper 40s.

tee to address some of the concerns about the track and lake condition that have come up over the past two years. They cited issues like large trees too close to the track, and places where the asphalt ends with significant drops on the road shoulder, creating potentially dangerous situations. The condition of the asphalt in places also is a concern, although Traub and Harris said they understood resurfacing the entire track would be too expensive. A committee could help prioritize the issues and make suggestions to the governing body about the best ways to maintain the sites.

City commissioners were receptive of the idea, and took it a step further. Commissioner Preston Peine pointed to several motor sports and racing events in the community, and suggested a committee could address a combination of their concerns. He referenced the local go-kart club, which has races on the Lake Garnett track twice a year. He also mentioned boat races, which have been held at both Lake Garnett and Cedar Valley Reservoir. The local car club might also want to be part of the committee, he added.

"If, for some reason, this (revival) event doesn't continue, the committee would still be viable in our community," he said.

City Manager Joyce Martin said she would advertise for people willing to serve on the committee. Because it will take time to organize the committee, Peine suggested Harris and Traub make a list of their immediate concerns so that Martin and staff could see what improvements might be possible for this year's event.

Graduation's final test

Congratulations graduates – you made it out of high school or college.

But the real news is this: You have one final exam remaining, and it lasts the rest of your life.

Since no one met you at the other side of the podium with two buckets to show you how to compare and contrast Substance and Shinola, I'm going to give you my version of the study guide for the big exam that's coming.

Number One: You've come a long way, but you're not living in your world anymore. You're living in the world of your parents and of older people and those who came a significant amount of time before you. This is the world they made – with all those cool things like the Internet and music downloads and Twitter and iPhones and fuel injection; and all the cruddy things like crime and war and rent and house payments and shrinking cereal boxes. You're at the bottom rung of the ladder, graduate, and it will take a long time until you move up and then only if you're lucky. In the mean time, give us credit for what we did right as well as what we did wrong.

Number Two: Take your nose out of your phone and pay attention. Pay attention to everything; to what your new boss says; to what your parents say; to the damage you might do if you say or do this or that; to what your girlfriend says; to the numbers on your bank statement; to the fine print on the finance contract for that car you're buying. Open your eyes and look at the sunrise, the view out your car window. Remember the video of the girl walking down the sidewalk so absorbed in her phone she never sees the open manhole she steps off into? This is a new world, and there are manholes everywhere.

Number Three: Things that don't matter to you matter to the People In Charge. You may not like it, but that's how it is, and for now they control a good deal of the world you live in. If you've spent the last couple of years drawing spider web tattoos on your throat, don't be surprised if your new boss gives somebody else the important promotion that deals with the new clients. If you can't wear appropriate clothes, wash your hair, speak intelligently and clearly, etc., you're going to be constantly surpassed by people who can. You're subject to the values of the People In Charge and you will be for a long time. Somewhere someone may have told you that you can do what you want, treat people any way you want, live free and easy and follow your own rules – but those people never had to make a car payment. Say “sir”, say “ma'am,” say “thank you” and “you're welcome.” Don't say “yup” and grunt. Open doors for people.

REVIEW COMMENTARY

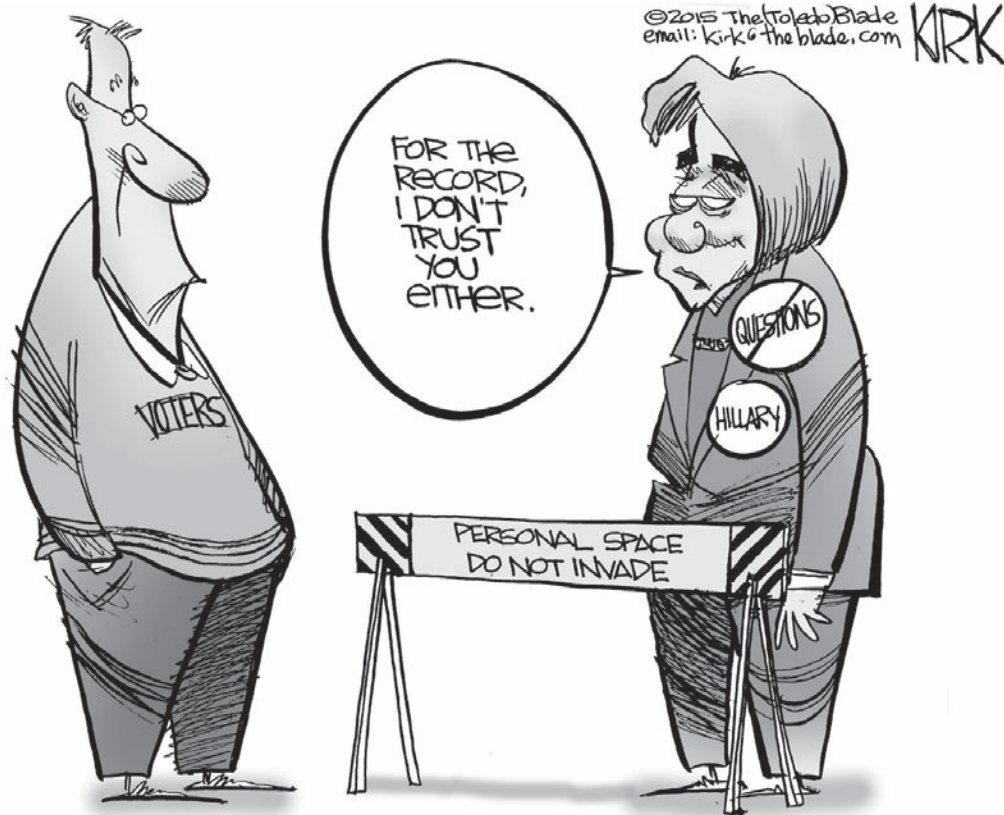

DANE HICKS, Publisher

Number Four: Get some experience. Flip burgers for a while. Haul hay. Mow yards. Work an internship for free if you have to. Right now it's more important what you're accomplishing than how much you're getting paid doing it, and if you learn the right lessons you'll end up with both money and knowledge.

Number Five: Remember how you eat an elephant – one bite at a time. You don't have to solve all your problems today, but you have to have a plan that gets them done, then you have to do the plan. Take things a step at a time. Pray – for other people and yourself – it really does help. The sun really does come up again tomorrow, and every day is another chance to do it right as long as you're willing to get up early and put your back into it.

So study hard and bring two No. 2 pencils. The exam is beginning.

Yeah, the first paper with the Phone Forum in it comes out and I have to be amazed. You have a hospital that people have already voted for, have already built, already standing, already got the old hospital torn down, state of the art technology and you can't get nothing newer, and people are still (deleted) about it. You got a $25 million hospital, 70 percent of it being paid for by St. Luke's, and somebody's still (deleted) about it. Some of you people would (deleted) if they hung you with a new rope. Thank you.

I hope we get the Forum back in our paper, everyone liked it. I want to write something in it. I had to go the Anderson County Hospital a short time ago. I didn't think we needed the new hospital at the time but I have changed my mind. I want to tell everyone what wonderful help we have at our hospital. They are so friendly and right there when we need them. I hope the hospital administrators realize what a good bunch of doctors, nurses and all employees they have at the hospital. It was wonderful that I didn't have to be taken out of town for all my xrays and so on. We are so fortunate to have the Anderson County Hospital. Let's keep the Forum in our paper. I looked forward to it every week and really missed it.

We were entertained by the junior high band at the senior meal site May 6. Thank you Mr. Russell and band members for an enjoyable and delightful treat. Hope you come back next year. Bye.

Mr. Hicks your article in the May 14 Review about the wind power is right on. The point in there that you made about if your kid was on kidney dialysis you'd have to wait 'til the wind blows brings up another subject. Our new hospital is supposed to have offered new services, but our new $25 million hospital you can't get that done here. Quite a few people here have to get that done and have to go somewhere else to get it done. Expensive trips to get there. If one of the big promoters of this hospital had to be on dialysis I bet they would have the service. Speaking of wind power there was a lot of it used on this hospital.

There's been lots of rain and the weeds and grass are really growing. Some of these properties around town look like nobody lives there but there really are people living there. Please people let's not make our neighbors properties look bad by not mowing our own. If you're unable to mow your yard due to age or lack of money, contact a local church and they may be able to find someone who can help you. Thank you.

The price of cheap labor, with pretty nails

Manicures and pedicures aren't usually news or fodder for commentary, but a blockbuster report in The New York Times has made them a compelling issue.

Under the headline “The Price of Nice Nails,” the story cataloged the abusive treatment of workers in New York City's ubiquitous nail salons. The story generated an enormous reaction; it highlighted the poignant juxtaposition of affluent women enjoying what once would have been a luxury, thanks to poor, exploited women with no other options.

It is a tableau that doesn't feel very American or very modern. We thought we had put the age of sweatshops behind us, but we hadn't. It turns out that sweatshops are where New York City women go to get their mani-pedis.

The Times story is, in part, about the ugly underbelly of immigration. The salons are what an industry that subsists on substantial illegal labor looks like.

Census Bureau numbers say that 59 percent of personal-appearance workers are foreign-born, according to Steven Camarota of the Center for Immigration Studies. By his estimate, about a quarter of those foreign workers are illegal, and judging by the Times report, the number is higher in New York City.

“Almost all of the workers interviewed by The Times,” the report noted, “had limited

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

English; many are in the country illegally. The combination leaves them vulnerable.”

Manicurists usually pay a fee of $100 or $200 to begin working at a salon, and then work without pay for weeks or months, before finally getting wages -- of perhaps less than $3 an hour, supplemented by tips. That's assuming that the workers are allowed to keep all of the wages or the tips.

Their stories are heart-wrenching, if drearily predictable. These are women who often don't know the language, don't have any social support, have very few skills in an economy that increasingly demands them, and have little ability to complain about their working conditions, or anything else.

No-tracks tax vote was a gift from state Dems

Ever do a little, polite, considerate favor for a friend, maybe trimming the grass on the sidewalk clear to your neighbor's driveway, not just stopping at the property line?

Well, we saw one of those little, considerate favors last week on the floor of the House when legislators debated that tax-increase bill, the one that pulls about $400 million out of our pockets and deposits it in the State General Fund.

The favor, in the building where the public wants to know every detail of every bill and who voted for it and who voted against it, was simply not doing that.

Eventually legislators are going to have to pass a tax increase bill and a budget for the state. Those are going to be ugly votes. Nobody likes taxes, and legislators who stand for reelection next year—after those taxes have taken effect and are pulling money out of your wallet—don't like voting for them.

And, no matter how the state's budget turns out, we know that there are going to be disappointments, too little money for environmental projects, not enough for assistance to the poor, not enough cash to compete with other states to lure new industry and the resultant jobs to each community in Kansas.

Nope, nobody is going to like all of either the upcoming tax or spending bills, so the key is to vote on them just once, not over and over while citizens and the political community are keeping score.

Simple as it sounds, while the House was debating the widely hated tax increase bill, there was a courtesy provided to Republicans by Democrats.

STATE COMMENTARY

MARTIN HAWVER, At The Rail

In nearly two hours of debate, including an amendment that would have levied income taxes on those 330,000-plus Kansans who don't pay income tax because they have incorporated their businesses in a manner that makes non-wage income exempt from taxes, there wasn't a single call for a roll call vote that would have forced members of the House to have their names associated with the bill.

It was all voice votes, both to reject that tax-business-income amendment and to forward the bill to a publicly recorded final action vote (which failed).

That little leave-no-tracks courtesy for the House's Republican (97) majority was provided by...the House's Democratic (28) minority.

It just takes 15 hands in the air to force that politically dangerous roll call vote on amendments or forwarding the bill to a final vote, but Democrats who don't like the bill didn't force it.

While that means that there isn't a firm number of House members who are apparently willing to vote on tax increases, it also means that Republicans who are willing to vote on tax increases don't get identified this early in the tax-raising process—so lobbyists and the executive branch and others don't target them for political opposition.

That's a little courtesy provided to Republicans by Democrats.

Now...will that little courtesy be repaid? It might be maybe an extra tenth of a percent reduction in sales tax on groceries, which Democrats like because it means poor Kansans—all Kansans, really, but Democrats tend to forget that the wealthy pay sales tax on groceries, too—save a little money.

Or it might mean that some Republicans could go for putting back some of those income taxes that Democrats maintain Republicans aren't paying...though Democrats pay income taxes too, and luckily, there is no statistic on how many Democrats are income tax scot-free.

Or, it might mean that Republicans will just have to hold their noses and vote once on taxes. Just once.

Or, it might mean that Democratic House members next year get to keep parking in the Statehouse garage...instead of having to leave frequently to plug the meter...

Four Winds DAR recognized at state conference

Four Winds Chapter was represented at the State Conference of the Kansas Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution which was held in Manhattan Apr. 23-25. Members Connie Becker, Donna Roberts and Regent Alice Walker were delegates and Associate Member Gretchen Jackson Magee served as a Page.

Among the speakers, two stood out as they were very informative. One was Thomas Tavtigan who had founded Wounded Warriors - United, which is different from some of the other Wounded Warriors groups. This was organized to get vets back outside, those who used to be active outdoors, but came back from war to just sit inside all day. They work one-on-one or in small groups, taking them hunting, fishing, hiking, camping, gardening, etc — anything that they had enjoyed but thought they could no longer do. As soon as he got through talking, he was taking 6 men to SE Kansas for the weekend outside. Most of the vets come back with a changed attitude: that they can do the things that they had enjoyed in earlier years. The men working with them are all volunteers, get no pay, give of their time and money to help those vets. They accept donations of money or new or used equipment that they leave with each vet.

The other speaker was Cecile Wimberley who is the National DAR Chair of Junior Membership. DAR Juniors are full members but only ages 18 through 35, They have special projects, especially in the education field, raising hundreds of thousands of dollars for the schools that DAR is supportive of. It was a very informative talk on the start of the group and its growth over the years.

As the State Chairs of DAR National Committees as well as State Committees report the varied activities that are being done across the state, many members go home with new ideas for the following year. Outstanding work by a chapter or a member is recognized. There is a Constitution Week Scrapbook contest. This year there were 5 chapter entries with each one being very outstanding. Four Winds knew that they had a very good entry made by Donna Roberts and were pleased that the judges thought so also, as it was named the First Place winner. Constitution Award Certificates were given to Donna Roberts, maker of the scrapbook as well as being dressed as "Polly Patriot" and taking her displays to several school and libraries, to Ruth Allen for her articles on the Constitution printed in the four newspapers as well as being sent to churches and other organizations to be read aloud or printed in their church bulletins; and to Four Winds Chapter for their overall outstanding Constitution Week activities.

The chapter received two awards for Veterans: one for at-risk and in-patient vets at the VA facilities and one for honoring Veterans at Outside Facilities. Four Winds Chapter received an award for having national defense reports at every chapter meeting. (Judy Carr, Chair.) They received three different awards concerning the flag and distribution of flag literature, etc. (Betty Penn Chair) and also received the Americanism award. Other awards received by the entire chapter were the following: DAR Magazine subscriptions (39%); American Heritage for Outstanding Programs; American History Programs and displays; Print Coverage (as four different newspapers cover Four Winds Activities); DAR Museum Outreach — Information Minute; American History Essay Participation (Juanita Kellerman, Chair); Conservation (Caitlin Jackson, Chair); for making Teacher's Special Honor Roll for excellence in School Programs or Minutes (Alice Walker, Chair); Historic Preservation. Four Winds Chapter and Connie Becker (Chair) received an award for working with Junior American Citizens (JAC) and Connie Becker for DAR Genealogy Preservation (as she indexes national DAR records).

It was a very busy and long 2 ½ days (and nights) of information, education and awards for work accomplished. At the same time it is a time of seeing long time friends and co-workers and missing those honored in the Memorial Service. But it is also a time of making new DAR friends and co-workers and enthusiasm for another year.

Vintage cheese crock found at old dump

I'm sure a lot of you have seen this artifact and know what it contained. If not, let me properly identify it for you. It is a Vintage Kaukauna Klub Dairy Company Wisconsin Stoneware Cheese Crock with lid, rubber seal and original wire bail. Copyright 1933.

I actually found this beautiful little crock about four years ago while digging in an old dump near Garnett.

Here are some key dates and facts concerning this crock.

1887- Peter Fassbender builds a cheese factory in Kaukauna, Wisconsin.

1901- The factory is sold to his son Hubert Fassbender, who turns it into one of the largest creameries and cheese factories in the area.

• 1918- Fassbender starts a distribution company known as South Kaukauna Dairy, which eventually takes the name of Kaukauna Cheese.

1933-Fassbender creates the Kaukauna Klub brand of cheese, which becomes a National Brand carrying the slogan: IT SPREADS LIKE BUTTER

Isn't it surprising what one can find in an old dump!

Garnett native Diane "Dink" Miller, now an assistant softball coach for the Nebraska Cornhuskers, high-fives a player during a game.

Garnett native to be honored by Missouri Sports Hall of Fame

The voice on the other end of the line paused, and soon got choked up.

For Diane "Dink" Miller, trying to describe the man who showed her the game, taught her the game and who was her biggest fan was emotional.

"In September 2013, I lost my dad," Miller explained. "And while my family has been supportive, he by far was probably the most influential person just because he shared the love of sports with me."

Miller took her passion for softball and amplified it, leading Missouri Southern to the NCAA Division II national championship in 1992 and going on to coach major collegiate fast-pitch.

Which is why the Missouri Sports Hall of Fame is honoring Miller on May 27 as part of the Baseball Sports Enthusiasts Luncheon. The Hall will name former St. Louis Cardinals manager Tony La Russa a Missouri Sports Legend, induct two former high school coaches and a men's fast-pitch legend and honor the Diamond 9, a group of former high school and college standouts.

Miller certainly made a name for herself at Missouri Southern in Joplin. A catcher, she is the program's career leader in RBI (134), second in triples (22) and doubles (53), third in hits (103) and sixth in at-bats (598).

A career .339 hitter, she was an at-large selection to the D-II softball championship all-tournament team, first team all-region in 1992 and first team GTE

Academic all-district and second team All-American and Academic All-American.

This for a player who climbed out of Garnett and yet found her way to success - including a current assistant coaching role with the Nebraska Cornhuskers after assisting at Colorado State.

At the time, Garnett High School didn't offer softball. Miller, who spent her springs throwing the javelin and shot put on the track and field team, caught on with a summer travel softball team out of the Kansas City suburb of Olathe just to get noticed. Three friends on that team eventually signed with Missouri Southern, and Miller followed after initially considering the University of Kansas until a coach was let go.

Four years later, Miller found herself back in Johnson County, Kan., site of the conference and national tournaments, and helping the Lady Lions and coach Pat Lipira win the national title.

Miller remembers that the lessons from her dad, Chuck, and Coach Lipira have stayed with her into her coaching career.

"It's a huge responsibility to grow young people," Miller said. "Softball gives us a chance. Softball teaches you about dealing with adversity, dealing with things that didn't go your way and you don't quit. You have to control the things you can control."

In other words, handle the fundamentals, do the little things. Her dad and mom, Carol, certainly helped as well as her siblings Ellen, Mike, Theresa, Debbie and Mark.

"The only option (in high school) I had to play was summer ball," Miller said. "My parents made the commitment to drive me 55 miles to practice. That's how they were active in my amateur career, and they're still active in my professional career."

Westphalia to celebrate 135th birthday in June

In September, 1879, Smith P. Cornell settled on a farm one and a half miles east of the Coffey County line at the head of Thomas Creek. The farm was located on the route of the St. Louis, Kansas, and Arizona Railroad, which was one of several small railroad companies consolidated into the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company in August of 1880.

In November, 1879, railroad tracks had been laid across Anderson County to the Coffey County line. A railroad station was located on the Cornell farm and given the name Cornell. Also, in November a post office was opened in Mr. Cornell's home.

S. P. Cornell and J. C. Merrill surveyed and platted a town on forty acres of the Cornell farm. The town plat for the city of Cornell was filed on January 2, 1880.

In February, 1880, two brothers, Carl and Emil Flusche, German immigrants from Westphalia, Iowa, arrived in Cornell. They liked the looks of the area so they bought 320 acres of land from M. L. White of Garnett and several building lots from S. P. Cornell. They returned to Iowa to get their families.

On March 12, 1880, August Flusche, Carl Flusche and family, Emil Flusche, and several other families arrived in Cornell. Three days later Emil and August Flusche bought the Cornell farm with its half built residence and the eastern half of the town site from S. P. Cornell.

In April, 1880, the Flusche brothers began construction on the first store building in Cornell. It was a general merchandise store. On May 12, the Flusche brothers bought the merchandise and store furnishings from David Kellerman of Cherry Mound and moved them to Cornell and opened for business on May 20, 1880.

On April 28, 1880, Anton Flusche was appointed the first postmaster of Cornell and on June 11, he became the first station agent for the railroad. At his request the name of the railroad station was changed to Westphalia. On July 1, the postal department also changed the name to Westphalia. On September 15, 1881, a petition was filed in the District Court of Anderson County to officially change the name from Cornell to Westphalia. Since the majority of the legal voters of the town had signed the petition and there was no other town, village, or town site in Kansas by that name the petition was granted. The name was officially recorded and changed to Westphalia on February 7, 1882.

The first birth in Westphalia took place on October 12, 1880, when a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Anton Mueller. The first death happened on November 12, 1880, when Mrs. Theodore Kleinsorge passed away. She was buried at Mt. Carmel Cemetery at Scipio because there was no cemetery in Westphalia at the time. The first marriage took place on January 20, 1881, between Anton Berles and Katherine Schmitt.

In the early days of Kansas many town sites were platted. Some of these sites became thriving communities while others remained only dreams. Westphalia took root and grew on the Kansas prairie and became a prosperous town because of the courage and determination of the founders and early settlers who came, the good farmland in the area, and its location on the railroad. The city has survived the great depression, droughts, storms, fires, and many other major events. For this reason the City of Westphalia will celebrate its

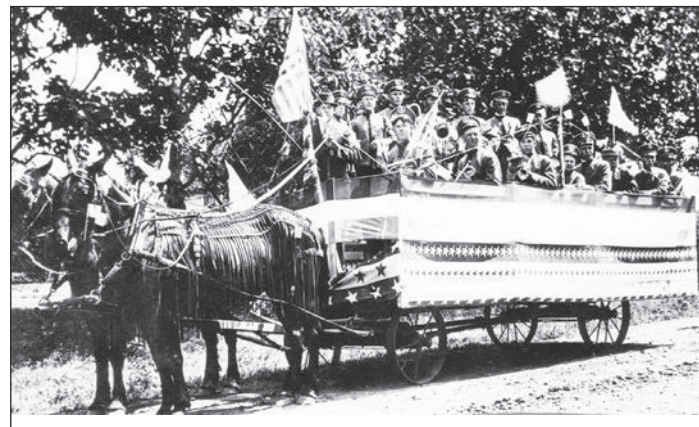

This photograph shows Westphalia on July 4, 1885, looking north on Warne Street from the railroad tracks. The town was established as Cornell in 1880 but the name was changed to Westphalia in 1882. The city will celebrate its 135th anniversary this year with a celebration June 7.

The day begins with the Biennial High School Reunion from 10:30 a.m. - 2:30 p.m. in the St. Teresa's church basement with a pot luck dinner at noon. A parade will begin at the elementary school at 3 p.m. and circle through down town. The floats will be recognized on Lincoln Street along with Westphalia trivia. Everyone is welcome to participate and register by 2 p.m. at the school. Kid's activities follow the parade in the church yard and pictures from the past will be shown in the church basement at 4 p.m. Our free will donation dinner will begin at 5 p.m. in the church basement. The menu will consist of pulled pork, hot-dogs, cheesy potatoes, baked beans, dessert and drinks.

Mother's Day was also the actual day of Weldon's 90th birthday. Their children hosted his birthday on the prior Sunday at his farm lake which was reported in last week's items. Mother's Day at the City Hall community room was misreported earlier.

Sympathy is expressed to Garry and Kathy Holloway at the death of his father, Neil Holloway, 86, who passed away May 2 at the Allen County Regional Hospital, Iola. Funeral services were held May 8 at the Feuerborn Family Funeral Service Chapel in Garnett, burial in Lone Elm cemetery.

Sympathy is also expressed to Michelle Hendrix and children at the death of her husband, Scott Hendrix, 45, on May 4. Among the survivors are their four children, Arlyna (Arli), Jordan, Austin and Jamison, all of Colony. A celebration of Scott's life was held May 9 at the Garnett Church of the Nazarene, Garnett followed by burial in the Colony Cemetery.

They were just names on stones

As I send this article Memorial Day is right around the corner. As a boy my earliest memories of Memorial Day start with the name of the holiday. Then everyone in my family called it Decoration Day. It was not part of a three day weekend and occurred any time during the week. My mother always prepared sandwiches and we traveled to the Goodrich cemetery to meet relatives many who drove hours to get there. One other memory which is clear in my mind is I didn't know any of the people whose graves they decorated. They were just names on stones. I quickly learned some facts about them by listening to my relatives discuss them but still I had no real knowledge of their life.

This quickly changed as I grew older. Now many of my relatives are deceased. Their names on stones represent memories for me. They tell a story of a life lived but most of all they confront me with my own mortality.

In the 12th chapter of Mark Jesus relates, "The Parable of the Tenants." He tells how a man planted a vineyard, put a wall around it, dug a pit for a winepress and built a watch-tower. He then rented the vineyard and went away on a journey. At harvest time he sent a servant to collect from the tenants some of the fruit from the vineyard. The tenants seized the man and beat him and sent him away empty handed. The man sent another servant and they treated him the same way. We read he sent many others some of whom they beat others they killed. We read the man had one left to send, a son whom he loved. But the tenants said to one another, "This is the heir. Come let's kill him, and the inheritance will be ours." So they took him and killed him.

Jesus then asked the chief priests and teachers of the law, "What will the owner of the vineyard do?" He will come and kill those tenants and give the vineyard to others. This parable pictures Israel and her unfaithfulness. Jesus is talking to the chief priests and scribes and is referring to the process by which God sent prophets only to see them beat and killed. Jesus refers to himself when he says, "a beloved son", knowing full well what awaited him. The Apostle John confirms this in John 1:11 when he says, "He came to his own but his own received him not."

We prefer not to think about our mortality. But we need to think about it. And we need to think about it in this way. The resurrection of Christ destroyed death. The Bible teaches that death is not the end of life for the Christian, and Jesus promises us a new heaven and a new earth where there is no more death or sickness. God's glory, power and beauty within the sphere of heaven extended to all his people.

The secret selling power of balloons

You're a savvy business person. You know in order to continue to make an impression on old customers and attract new ones, you have to continually come up with new and novel ideas. Something different is always worth a shot.

You know that some customers are buying today because they have a direct want or need. You know that some buyers will move into that want or need phase at a later date, and that's when you need to have "top of mind" awareness in their heads so they buy from you and not someone else.

Which is why you need balloons. Or cheese.

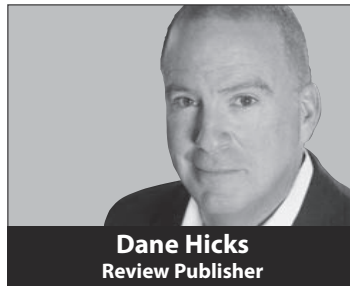

When I was a kid, my folks used to shop at the Farmers Exchange grocery store owned by what was then the Missouri Farmers Association (MFA) where we lived in southern Missouri. The butcher would always cut a piece of cheese off the block and give it to us little kids when mom passed the meat case. I've remembered it for 50 years.

Laugh if you want, but balloons rock; maybe even better than cheese. They're cheap, they're fun (even for adults) and they say something that a printed coaster or koozie or ink pen doesn't. They say "Look at me! I'm fun!"

A couple hundred balloons printed with your logo only costs a few bucks. A tank of helium is a little more expensive but lasts forever. Combine the two and your store becomes just like the Land of Oz without all the short people.

Does your restaurant have a kids menu? Give away balloons to every kid under 40 at the cash register. Have a little front end space to spare? Make a cool balloon archway just inside your front door. Blow up a bunch of them and just weight them down outside in your parking lot or near your sidewalk. A bunch of balloons gets attention – it says "There's a party here!"

If you're at an indoor event of some kind you can even make a game out of all the balloons kids let go and end up in the ceiling rafters. Roll over a couple of pieces of tape and stick them to the top and sides of a balloon, tie on a long, long piece of thin ribbon or string, and see who can capture the most balloons off the ceiling.

You'll come up with all kinds of neat ideas once you start blowing them up, because nobody's really too far from 8 years old when it comes to balloons. And, after all, they can help you sell stuff!

Governor appoints Pracht to serve on state ag board

TOPEKA – William Pracht, Westphalia, was appointed in April to the Kansas State Board of Agriculture.

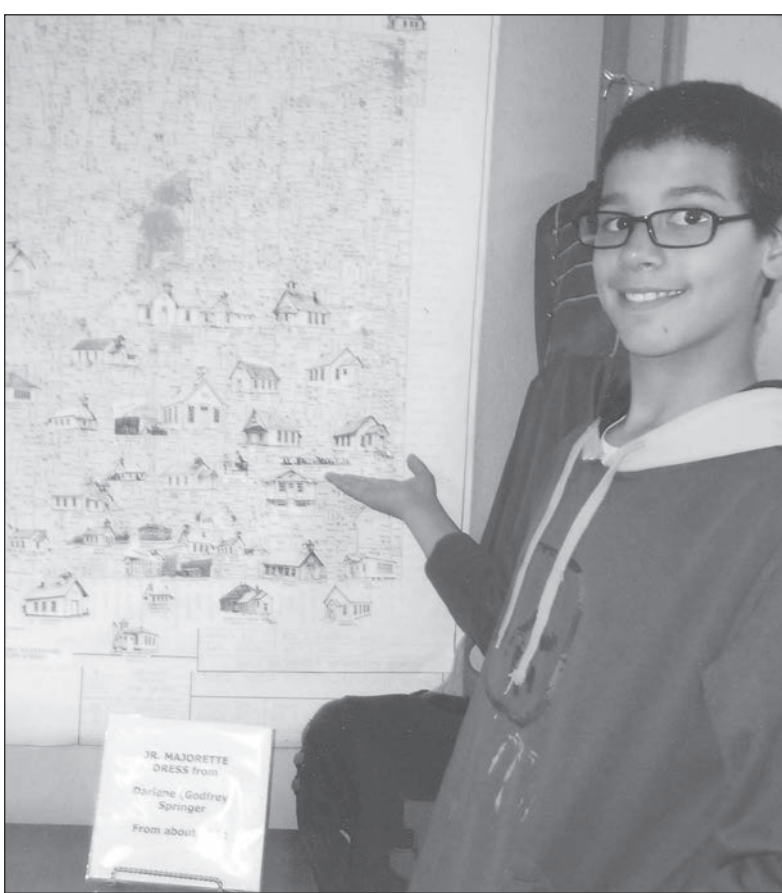

Pracht is being appointed to serve a four-year term. A lifetime farmer and rancher from Anderson County, Pracht is currently the East Kansas Agri Energy Board Chairman.

The State Board of Agriculture reviews and makes recommendations on the Department of Agriculture's legislative initiatives and proposed rules and regulations. The governor appoints nine members to the board. No more than five members shall be from the same political party and each congressional district must be represented. All members serve a four-year term.

Kansas Governor Sam Brownback announced the appointments to boards and commissions April 10.

"Thank you to these men and women for dedicating their time and talents to serve their fellow Kansans," said Governor Brownback. "Through their work, Kansas will continue to become the best state in the union to start a family and grow a business."

The Governor's Office is always looking for qualified, interested Kansans to serve the state on commissions and boards in their areas of expertise. If you are interested in serving on a commission or board, please visit <http://governor.ks.gov/serving-kansans/office-of-appointments>.

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 5-19-2015 / Photo Submitted

Darrious Prock of the Central Heights 6th grade class points to that school on a map of former country schools and the almost 50-year-old Central Heights on a map that was made by local artist Mary L. Hall and given to the Museum. Central Heights 6th grade classes and teachers visited the Richmond Community Museum recently.

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 5-19-2015 / Photo Submitted

A Central Heights 6th grader, Justice Quillin, admires the wedding dress of the late Imelda Pickert Nilges who was from Richmond when she was married in the 1940s. Her husband, Tony Nilges, lives in Aurora, IL. Two other wedding dresses displayed are from the early 1900s.

New items displayed at Richmond Museum

Several new artifacts and archival items will greet visitors when the Richmond Community Museum opens for its 8th season Memorial Day weekend, May 23rd and 24th.

Hours are Saturday and Sunday, 1-4 p.m., each weekend through Labor Day and there is no admission charge. The Museum is in the former lumber yard on the town's main street.

New items which join the more than 1,000 other artifacts include a 1939 Richmond Masonic Lodge No. 264 apron that belonged to Charles Lyle Craig who published the "Richmond Enterprise" (newspaper) from 1938-1944.

The apron came to the Museum because of the thoughtfulness of Bill Gifford of rural Garnett who received it from a funeral home director years ago. Recently, Gifford gave the apron to Larry Cox of Richmond who then gave it to the Museum, knowing something with a name, town and date is an important museum piece.

An ice box that belonged to the late

Evelyn Kuiken who was affectionately known as "The Egg Lady" was made available by Bob and Margaret Hadsall. Mrs. Kuiken lived in the Berea area for years.

A Co-op jacket worn by Louis Schrant was given by his wife, Nona, along with his draft notice and a WWII ration stamp book.

Numerous pages have been added to the many albums of local history, including newspaper stories, photos, obituaries, veterans, and similar paper things.

A new album is the History of the Richmond Post Office, prepared by PMR (post master relief) Lynn Anderson and given to the Museum.

Since this is the 150th anniversary of the end of the Civil War, the special display for this season focuses on how that war affected the Richmond area. Dennis Peters, who prepared the display, has identified about 250 men who were from this area or who came to the area after the war ended; some staying much longer than others. Peters also researches and writes early family histories which are on the Museum facebook and in a notebook.

Included in the Civil War display is a ribbon from Co. D, 12th KS Regiment, from the veterans' 1909 Reunion, and the transcribed diary of Thomas Stevenson, great-great-grandfather of Mark Stevenson, Richmond businessman.

Recent visitors include the Central Heights 6th grade classes and teachers and four members of the Dietrich family.

The Museum will open at 10 a.m. Saturday, June 13th so Richmond High School alumni may visit before going to their banquet at 12:30, and will also be open that afternoon, as usual.

To visit at times other than weekend afternoons, call (785) 835-6598 or (785) 835-6170. Follow the Museum on facebook or E-mail to museum62@yahoo.com.

You're sure to enjoy a trip through yesterday at the Richmond Community Museum!

Thompson 60th anniversary

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 5-19-2015 / Photo Submitted

Howard and Leila (Welsh) Thompson are celebrating their 60th wedding anniversary. They were married in Selma, Kansas on May 29, 1955. They made their home on the farm at Kincaid until 2001 when they retired and moved to Garnett. They have been active in the Kincaid United Methodist Church and now the First United Methodist Church in Garnett. They have enjoyed many years of traveling with RV camper whenever the farm and family life allowed time for this activity.

They will celebrate this special anniversary with family and friends at the Riverside Park in Iola. Friends and acquaintances are welcome to stop by to join the celebration from 2:00 to 4:00 at the picnic area in the park on Sunday, May 31.

They have four children, twelve grandchildren and 23 great grandchildren that will be celebrating with them: Chardel and Mark Hastings (Iola), Joleata and Roger Kent (Garnett), Rick and Connie Thompson (Kincaid) and Janell and Ron Yelm (Iola). Grandchildren or Great grandchildren: Mary and Michael Hull with Maddox, Mason, and Micah; Chandra and Greg Pippert; Megan and Steve Silberski with Gage, Finley and Blaydin; Jared and Fay Hastings with Jadrian, Quinlan and Milo; Brynn Hastings; Jason and Candy Kent with George, Brooke and Lilly; Johnna and Bruce Brumley with Sammy and Kent; Blake and Hannah Thompson with Owen, Nora, Molly and Ruby; Erin and Justin Zook with Brylee, Brekyn and Britni; Nick Thompson; Jarick and Whitney Yelm with Taylin and Hadley; Tyrell Yelm.

Historical society visits Mineral Point

Forty three members and friends of The Anderson County Historical Society were guests at Mineral Point on May 7th for a wagon tour across the prairie, dinner, and tours of the historic home, hosted by David and Erma Hirt. David's narration for the wagon tour told the story of Samuel and Lydia Tipton's 1857 arrival from Ohio and their use of the nearby natural resources to build their home and establish a general store, post office, and stagecoach stop that served other early day settlers. Tipton was a rancher, and is known to have brought the first Shorthorn cattle to the area. As the group rode across the prairie, viewing a vast expanse to the east, he identified inspiration point, a sandstone quarry site, coal pit, family cemetery, and ponds that provided a water supply to settlers. Rebecca's house, built for the Tipton's daughter when she married, is now in ruins on the property. Stones from that house were used in the renovation of the stage stop entrance to the main house.

Following dinner, Erma guided tours of the second and third floors of the house and discussed the restoration process. The Tipton family had lived on the second floor, and the Hirt family resides there today. They added a modern kitchen and dining room, along with a bedroom, baths, and utility room to that level. The third floor has three small bedrooms, a landing, and a balcony with a panoramic view to the east. Stagecoach travelers found lodging in these upper rooms. Furnishings include period antiques, built-in walnut cabinets, a stone fireplace, and a desk from Rebecca's house that was recently returned to the family.

David guided tours of the lower level that housed the general store, post office, and food storage areas. Gun turrets were built into the walls, although the house was never known to have been under attack. Stagecoach routes, pony express, and wagon trails passed the spot and services were available to travelers. Artifacts from Rebecca's house, excavated by Henry Roeckers, including buttons, combs, china, pottery, and tools are on display. An early trail map shows Mineral Point on the trail from Hyatt to Leroy. The width of the stone walls is evident from the deep window wells. David explained that the stone was quarried on the property, and likely hauled on sleds pulled by oxen teams to the building site. The walnut lumber was hauled from Leavenworth by wagon. During the renovation they discovered that the house is framed with walnut.

President Kristie Kinney expressed thanks to the Hirt family for their hospitality and the informative tours. Our next meeting will be Thursday, June 4th, at the Berea Social Hall in Greeley, 6:30 p.m. The program is early settlements and missionaries in the area. Annual dues are five dollars and all who are interested in the preservation of our county's history are welcome.
