Ethanol plant tax break ends soon

$6.5M in taxes would have been owed in 2014, exemption ends in 2015

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — When a 10-year tax break for East Kansas Agri-Energy ethanol plant expires at the end of this year, it could add as much as $6.5 million to local tax coffers.

That's good news for local taxpayers and government taxing units, who already are looking forward to easing their tax burden after several difficult years caused by the recession. County treasurer's office records show the EKAE ethanol plant would have owed $6,556,002.65 in taxes for 2014, but instead paid $172,887.98 in taxes on plant additions and developments made after the abatement was granted. That's because the plant was given a 10-year tax exemption as part of an Industrial Revenue Bond issue in 2006. EKAE began production in June 2005.

Because of many variables that could play out between now and the time taxes are assessed

Start date set for veterans memorial

Delay for stone panels leads to decision to wait until spring to start work

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Plans to build a veterans memorial on the Anderson County Courthouse lawn now have a target start date — next spring.

Anderson County Commissioners told memorial organizers earlier this month they wanted to wait about a year before starting construction, after learning it will take at least six months to receive marble panels with veterans' names.

Work to bring a veterans memorial to the courthouse lawn has been ongoing for at least two years. Organizers estimated the memorial could cost between $200,000 to $250,000 and are hoping to pay for the memorial with a combination of a small tax levy and donations.

The project has faced numerous delays over the year for a variety of reasons — from debate over which veterans should be included in the memorial to questions about the design and location, lack of volunteers

County plans new shop

Site of former nursing home targeted for new shop for county trucks

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — The site of a former nursing home could become the site of a new county shop building.

Anderson County Commissioners are pursuing plans to construct an 80 by 100 foot metal building to replace its current, crowded county shop. The site is being surveyed and preliminary drawings are being made to help them prepare to send the project out for bids, county commissioner Gene Highberger said.

Cost estimates for the project will not be known until bids come back, but Highberger said he hopes the project will be less than $500,000. If the project is

Oil price drop turns to jobless jump

County, state, area see higher unemployment amid lower oil, gas prices

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

TOPEKA — Unemployment across the area rose slightly in April, primarily reflecting a statewide drop in manufacturing jobs, especially in the oil and gas drilling industry, according to the Kansas Department of Labor in Topeka. The labor report was released May 22.

In Anderson County, 204 people were jobless out of a labor pool of 4,197, which translates to a rate of 4.9 percent. That's slightly higher than March, when unemployment was 4.7 percent. A year earlier, in April 2014, unemployment in the county was 4.4 percent.

Dennis Arnold, economic development director for the City of Garnett and Anderson County, told Garnett commissioners at a meeting May 12 that at least two local oil-related businesses, Hurricane Services and Rickerson Pipeline, had laid off workers because of lower oil prices.

Unemployment in the state was 4.3 percent, up from 4.2 per-

Older adults more at risk from fires

Safety precautions can reduce risk of fire-related death, official says

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Older adults are more likely than other age groups to die in a fire, but safety precautions can reduce those risks, local emergency and fire officials say.

Nationally, May is Older Americans Month. J.D. Mersman, Anderson County Emergency Management Director, wanted to remind older Americans to take extra safety precautions to protect themselves in the event of a fire.

Older adults — those 65 and older — are 2.7 times more likely to die in a fire than the general population, according to statistics from the U.S. Fire Administration. The risk increases with age — those 85 and older are 4.6 times more likely to die in a fire.

Locally, a 67-year-old man who was homebound died

ANDERSON COUNTY BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS MAY 11

Chairman Jerry Howarter called the meeting of the Anderson County Commission to order at 9:00 AM on May 11, 2015 at the County Commission Room. Attendance: Jerry Howarter, Present; Eugene Highberger, Present; Leslie McGhee, Present. The pledge of allegiance was recited. Minutes of the previous meeting were approved as presented.

Road and Bridge

Lester Welsh, Road Supervisor met with the commission. He reported the insurance adjustor came last week and looked at the truck that was damaged in an accident. They wanted to straighten the frame, however, Lester told them that he did not feel the truck would hold up to daily use if that was done. Insurance is going to have the truck hauled to Wichita to be looked at and will get back with Lester. Dan Harden, BG Consultants joined the meeting. Discussion was held on the layout for a new shop building.

Tri-Ko

John Platt, Tri-Ko updated the commission on what they are doing and presented a budget request for 2016.

Executive Session

Commissioner Highberger moved to recess into executive session for 15 minutes for the discussion of nonelected personnel with James Campbell, County Attorney and Mick Brinkmeyer in attendance. Open meeting to resume at 10:40. Commissioner McGhee seconded. Approved 3-0. No action after executive session.

Veterans Memorial

Leon Lickteig met with the commission on the Veterans Memorial. He reported it will take six months to get the marble engraved and delivered. He informed the commission the company will want a 50% down payment when the slabs are ordered, one fourth when the slabs are completed and the final one fourth when the slabs are delivered. We need to send them the names on a list exactly as they are to be on the memorial. Commission recommend waiting until next spring to start so that the site is not sitting half done over the winter.

Abatement

Abatement B15-267 was presented and approved.

Executive Session

Commissioner Highberger moved to recess into executive session for 5 minutes for the discussion of nonelected personnel with Sheriff Valentine in attendance. Open meeting to resume at 12:00. Commissioner McGhee seconded. Approved 3-0. No action after executive session.

Meeting adjourned at 12:10 PM due to no further business.

ROBINSON

August 2, 1929-May 3, 2015

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW
Published May 26, 2015

Donna Marie Robinson passed away on May 3, 2015, in Monterey CA.

Donna was the owner of Aunt Donna's Candy Cottage that was located on South Oak, in Garnett and she was married to Melvin Robinson who worked for the city of Garnett.

Donna was born to Ralph and Erma Gillette on Aug. 2, 1929. Preceding her in death were her husband Melvin Robinson, her son Eddie Barber, Sister Frieda Corel and Brother Bobby Gillette.

Still surviving are her sisters Ruby Chaffin of Monterey CA and Kay Thompson of Sun City CA. She also has two nieces in Monterey CA, Michelle & Donna Ward.

Donna's remains will be laid to rest on Friday 29 May at 10:00 A.M. at her family plot next to her son and husband in the Garnett Cemetery.

and collected, it's too early to know exactly how much revenue the ethanol tax will provide for 2016.

Garnett and Anderson County officials as well as taxpayers in general are eagerly anticipating that extra tax income from the ethanol plant. Garnett City Manager Joyce Martin and county commissioner Gene Highberger both said they are excited about being able to add what could be millions of dollars of revenue to offset 2016 budget expenses.

Even though the tax exemption soon will end for the ethanol plant, EKAE has been paying various taxes throughout its existence. That's because the exemption covers only the original property; any structures added after that was assessed like any other property and taxed accordingly.

The plant also pays a business commodity tax to the city in lieu of property taxes as part of the negotiations for the tax break, Martin said. That amounted to about $162,500 per year, but that also ends this year.

For 2015, EKAE will pay taxes on $3.3 million worth of property, according to Anderson County Appraiser Steve Markham. That's property added after the original tax-exempt construction.

For 2015 EKAE's total assessed value - not counting the exemption - is $32.7 million, Markham said. Ethanol plants are taxed on production value rather than personal property.

EKAE also is building a facility to produce renewable diesel fuel from the corn distillers oil already produced at the plant. Construction began in late 2014 inside his rural home when it caught fire Jan. 15.

In Kansas last year, 42 of 223 fire-related death victims were 65 or older. That represents 19 percent of all fire-related deaths in the state. That's less than the national average of 35 percent.

The Kansas Fire Marshal and Kansas Department for Aging and Disability Services (KDADS) offer these tips to keep seniors safe from the dangers of fire:

- When space heaters are on, keep them at least three feet away from anything that can burn, such as curtains or furniture.

- If you're exiting the room, or if you're going to bed, make sure that your turn off and unplug the space heater.

for the committee at times and slow sales of memorial bricks that will help pay for the memorial.

"It was never 'dead in the water,'" County Clerk Phyllis Gettler, a committee member who has served as a spokesperson for the group, said. "It's not an easy project. It's not something that's going to materialize overnight."

Greeley artisan Leon Lickteig was selected to design the memorial, and he'll be in charge of the construction. Lickteig told county commissioners earlier this month it will take six months to get the marble panels engraved and delivered. The company he plans to work with will need a down payment of 50 percent of the cost when the slabs are ordered, 25 percent when the slabs are completed, and the remaining 25 percent when the slabs are delivered. The cost to engrave the panels will be $1.50 per letter, so the cost will vary depending on the number of names submitted.

Organizers are in the final stages of determining a list of names. Gettler urges people to stop by the clerk's office at the Anderson County Courthouse in downtown Garnett to double-check names of loved ones.

Organizers will finalize the list and send it to the marble company in a month or two, she said.

The memorial will include the names of veterans regardless of donations from loved ones, Gettler said. Some peo-too expensive, it may be postponed or canceled, he said.

The county purchased the former Arkhaven Nursing Home property on West Seventh Street in March 2014 during its delinquent property tax sale. The former owners owed $184,849.23 in past-due taxes, but the county purchased it for $4,516.

cent in March and down slightly from 4.5 percent in April 2014.

ple are confused and think they must purchase a memorial brick in order to recognize a veteran, she said. That's not the case. The memorial bricks will be used to line a walkway around the memorial. They can include, within reason, the name of any individual, family or business. The bricks can be engraved with up to 15 characters and are offered for a minimum donation of $100.

Gettler said the committee would like to sell as many as 2,000 bricks, but so far they have sold fewer than 100. The bricks will serve as the primary financial source for the project; the county collects a small tax levy - one-tenth of a mill that raises about $17,000 per year - so the memorial fund so far has collected about $70,000.

The memorial is expected to be built on the northeast side of the courthouse lawn, with a series of marble panels surrounded by tile and brick walking paths.

After learning the black marble panels from India will take at least six months, county commissioners decided to wait until next spring to begin construction. Lickteig said he plans to start construction with the memorial slabs, which are in the back portion of the design. It would be too complicated and difficult to build the base of bricks and tiles, then drive over them to place the marble slabs, so he will need to wait for the slabs before beginning the project. Commissioners said they also didn't want the project hampered by bad weather in the winter months.

county commissioners said they hoped to purchase the property because it was located next to the current county shop. Highberger said it was always the intention of the commissioners to build a new shop at the site.

The current shop building will remain in use. The new shop is expected to house the majority of equipment for working on county trucks and other needs.

Letterman was no Carson

I missed David Letterman's big sign-off show last week – not surprising since I pretty much gave up on him in 2008. But the expected hubbub about his final show pointed out in my mind that I'd seen two eras of late night comedy come to an end.

I liked the first one better. Maybe it was an issue of acclimation. I'd grown up with Johnny Carson. My family watched him almost every week-night – my brother and I used to con our folks into letting us stay up to hear Johnny's monologue. I didn't even know what a monologue was, but I knew he did one, it was funny, and it got me out of going to bed on time.

Carson was a comedian. Letterman was a clown. Carson's writers wrote jokes, skits and parodies and hoped they'd be funny. Letterman dropped ice cream cakes off buildings. Carson would interview celebrities but also interesting guests. He'd have the Arkansas State Hog Calling Champion on the show, or some other real-life oddity whose contrast with the glitzy show business Tonight Show aura made their appearances on the show even more poignant. Letterman would pester his guests and interrupt them to try to make himself look more cute.

It wasn't necessarily all Letterman's fault. The audience was changing, too. The audience that got such a kick out of watching Bob Hope, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis Jr., John Wayne and that ilk as guests on Johnny's show were yielding to the "whoop-whoop-whoop" crowd that was following Arsenio Hall. Letterman, who started out with some very funny and creative ideas (remember the Velcro suit stunt in which he jumped off a trampoline and stuck himself to a Velcro wall? I have to hand it to him on that one – that was funny) knew his audience was becoming less sophisticated, more based on their tastes, more short-attention spanned and eventually more nose-in-phone. The gags had to become more innane and easier for the new breed of late night dullard viewers to understand.

Then there was the endless parade of so-called celebrities Letterman played host to, shoveled onto the show's schedule by the conglomerates who own the late shows as well as the motion picture companies who use the talk shows to promote their latest releases. Carson's celebrity guests came at the caliber of Jimmy Stewart and Bing Crosby and Phyllis Diller; Letterman's were single-syllable types like Joaquin Phoenix or ranting Tina Fey liberals. As our society accepted less in terms of general manners and decorum, so did we accept less in quality of celebrity – yet we became ever more obsessed with them.

Not only did audiences become more intellectually shallow but their numbers got thinner as well. When Johnny started out in 1962 there were three TV networks – three options for late night programming. Cable television, satellite service, later Netflix and streaming Internet options – they split the audience hundreds of ways and gave us way more options than Leno or Letterman.

In the end Letterman probably got tired of this game himself. He most certainly must have gotten tired of being thrashed in the ratings by Jimmy Kimmel and Jimmy Fallon.

But Letterman gets credit for setting the tone and direction of the talk shows that followed him – that's probably why I have so painfully little interest in Kimmel or Fallon, et. al. They make me miss Johnny Carson all the more.

I bet that school the historical society museum is in had a cafeteria. They should hang all the old stuff on the walls, get a liquor license and open The Anderson County Historical Society Bar & Grill.

You could nearly put a new football field in front of the new hospital where they tore the old hospital down. When they have the little park built in there with the trees and the bushes you won't even be able to see the hospital from the road. This seems to be an odd arrangement. I voted for the new hospital and I think we needed it but I think it's too bad there wasn't some way to tear down the old one and build the new one on that site instead of moving it way back off the road like that. When people pass by they should be able to see the hospital. Thank you.

I was interested to read the story in the paper about the ATVs tearing up the dam at the reservoir. This is not a new problem, this has been going on ever since the reservoir was built. I think the city council should go ahead and let them have their ATVs at the reservoir but they should have an annual fee of about $250 so they can save up the money to help pay for the damage they're doing out there.

It would be nice if emergency management would let people in Garnett know where storm shelters are located. Thank you.

Please people, when your dog goes to poop take them in your own yard. Or, take a baggie and clean up after them. I don't appreciate stepping in it.

Yep, I went and did it. I finally dumped this cable TV system for satellite. I don't know why I haven't done this sooner.

Let's see if I understand this correctly. President Obummer, er, Obama, wants to take away certain equipment being used by police departments. He says this equipment scares and intimidates his brothers and sisters. Glory be, we can't have this. After all, who wants to be hassled by the police when you're having fun destroying sections of cities, looting, burning, throwing bricks, etc.? Hey, just ask the mayor of Baltimore.

Isn't it ironic that because someone made a remark about the new hospital not offering any new services, that one of the promoters had to come out and talk about our new state-of-the-art technology and you don't have to go out of town to get X-rays done and the people are so friendly? Well you could get X-rays at the old hospital. So what did we gain but higher taxes? Obama used to say you can put lipstick on a pig, but you've still got a pig.

The problem with high speed rail

The Amtrak crash outside of Philadelphia was an invitation for practically every politician in the Northeast and every transit expert in America to complain about lack of funding for the county's infrastructure.

They didn't even wait to know what was the cause of the tragedy to take to the airwaves and recite the usual litany of laments for our "crumbling" infrastructure and our lack of high-speed rail.

What these advocates rarely do is take account of Amtrak as it actually exists. It is a test case of a highly subsidized (and politicized) rail system. Hideously inefficient and wasteful, Amtrak is rail brought to you by the federal government, with the results about what you would expect. Amtrak is the DMV in an Uber world. All told, the taxpayers pour about $1 billion into it a year.

Amtrak's unionized employees made on average more than $90,000 a year in wages and benefits as of a couple of years ago. Outside of the Northeast and a few other places, it serves uneconomical routes that account for the bulk of its losses (although Congress insists on those routes for political reasons). Amtrak can't even sell food and drink to a captive audience at a profit. It loses $80 million a year on its food service.

If Amtrak is the future of American transit, American transit has no future. Yet visions of high-speed rail dance in the heads of liberal rail enthusiasts, who believe that what we need is Amtrak, only more so. President Barack Obama is a devotee, urging on the country to match the high-speed rails of Europe and Asia and backing his vision with billions in federal dollars.

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

The problem with high-speed rail in the U.S. is that few places outside the Northeast have the population density to support it, so the economics don't work. High-speed rail is one thing in densely populated Japan; it is another thing altogether in the sprawling continental United States.

Although it's not as glamorous, we already have an extensive transit system that can take people door to door pretty much anywhere they want to go – i.e., roads. If people don't want to drive between cities, they have the option of buses, which are cheaper than trains even if they don't have the same romance.

And, of course, airplanes are faster than trains. Randal O'Toole of the libertarian Cato Institute points out that the travel patterns of Americans don't support the soaring ambitions of the passenger-rail enthusiasts. As of 2012, highways accounted for 87 percent of passenger travel and airlines 12 percent, but Amtrak only .14 percent.

It's not as though the country can't do rail. It's just that we are good at moving goods rather than people. Our freight-rail system is world-class. Deregulated by the 1980 Staggers Rail Act, the freight sector has benefited from abundant private investment. Cheap and efficient, freight rail is doing booming business. No one brags about freight rail, though, because it lacks the appeal of grandiose public infrastructure projects and doesn't entail envy of France.

Amtrak may be many things, but it is emphatically not an argument for more government investment in passenger rail.

Legislators 'dabble' in court management

Remember the separation of powers business you learned in school? You know, there's the executive branch of government, the legislative branch of government and the judiciary, separate from the other two because there's not supposed to be politics in the courts.

Well...there's an interesting little provision in the Legislature's yet-to-be passed bill that would finance the judiciary in Kansas for the next two years that has the Legislature dabble in the management of the Judiciary and maybe it is constitutional, maybe not.

Here's the deal. The Legislature, dabbling, of course, tied the last two years' judicial budget to a shakeup in court management that most people never heard about: Judges of the state's 31 judicial districts will elect their local chief judge instead of having the judge appointed by the Chief Justice of the Kansas Supreme Court. Oh, and that chief judge in each of the districts can opt to take over the budget of each district, deciding which judge gets a new desk, more staff, whatever...

The judiciary, of course, wasn't intrigued by this dabbling, seeing it as just the first baby step into injecting politics into the operation of the courts. There was opposition by the court to linking those organization policy changes and the budget for the courts in the same bill, but it happened.

And, the plot grew thicker when a district court judge from out west this spring filed a lawsuit asserting that the management issues that the Legislature inserted into the previous judicial budget bill were unconstitutional. That's the appropriations/policy bill for the fiscal year which ends June 30.

STATE COMMENTARY

Well, the new bill that finances court operations for the two years starting July 1 has that "non-severability clause," too. Which means the policy issues in the nearly expired budget/policy bill will carry over into the next appropriation for the judiciary.

The new budget bill renews that non-severability clause, which means if the policy decisions the Legislature imposed on the court are found to be unconstitutional—by the courts—that because the policy issues and the budget are unseverable, the policy issues are thrown away and so is the appropriation to operate the courts.

Hmmm... Sounds a little like extortion, or at least a lesser included offense, doesn't it?

So, if the dabbling with court management is found by the courts to be unconstitutional, there's no budget for the courts. Any chance that might influence a court decision on the management provisions that the Legislature passed? Any chance that a judge hearing this case will wonder whether he/she can make his/her car payments if there is no judicial budget that provides their salary?

That's just the first issue of the Legislature sticking its nose into the operation of a different branch of government.

And, of course, if that western Kansas judge wins his suit and lawmakers can't essentially manage the courts, the issue then quickly turns to whether the non-severability clause cutting off funding for the courts works. That's the bigger issue that will have wider ramifications on the public than judges deciding who runs their district court.

Of course, there's a chance that the non-severability clause is unconstitutional for some reason other than just not feeling right to some grown-up Kansans. So, if the judge wins and the Legislature can't dictate who manages the courts, that's one thing, and it leads to the second step of this dance, whether a non-severability clause in itself is an unconstitutional overstep of the Legislature's authority.

And, the courts will decide that one, too.

Kropf, Morrison honored by governor

At the invitation of Kansas Gov. Sam Brownback, Regan Morrison of Lone Elm and Crest High School; and Melissa Kropf of Westphalia and Anderson County High School were selected to attend the 32nd Annual Governor's Scholars Awards Program on May 3 in Topeka.

The recognition ceremony honors the top academic one percent of Kansas high schools seniors. Scholars are selected from accredited public and private schools in the state.

"These high school seniors have shown dedication in their studies and a commitment to learning. They've earned this honor, and I want to congratulate them on this achievement," Gov. Brownback said. "We also should recognize their families, teachers, and mentors for helping these outstanding students achieve their academic goals."

This program is coordinated for the Governor by the Confidence in Kansas Public Education Task Force. It is funded by donations from private sector businesses in Kansas. The Confidence in Kansas Public Education Task Force was formed 32 years ago to strengthen public confidence in education. The following organizations are members of the Task Force: American Association of University Women, Kansas State Board of Education, Kansas Association of School Boards, Kansas Congress of Parents and Teachers, Kansas State Department of Education, Kansas-National Education Association, Kansas School Public Relations Association, Kansas State High School Activities Association, Kansas League of Women Voters, and United School Administrators of Kansas.

2005: Freeze puts crops in danger

May 17, 2005

Nearly a decade after it started one of the most contentious debates in recent times, state officials say construction on the final leg of the Prairie Spirit Trail from Welda to Iola should be finished by late fall of this year.

Anderson County farmers may have a cold weather bullet in late April and early May. Anderson County experienced sub-freezing temperatures on April 24, 25 and 30, and again on May 2 and 3. Farmers said they expected to see considerable damage to wheat caused by those below freezing temperatures. Yields could have dropped by as much as 50 percent because of freezing temperatures.

Heavy rains last week have more than put a damper on area corn planting. Most farmers who haven't got corn in the fields already probably won't plant any more this year. Wet fields will have the additional effect of preventing the germination of corn seed that has already been planted, but hasn't yet come up. Some of the early-planted corn, which many farmers in Anderson County were able to plant because of the mild winter, was looking strong due to warm, sunny weather in the area a couple of weeks ago.

Anderson County received a $21,080 grant from the Historical Preservation Office of the Kansas State Historical Society that will be used to help pay for repairs to the Anderson County Courthouse. The money will be used to fix the steps on the north and south sides of the building and complete some tuckpointing on the bricks in the building's towers.

prehistoric fossil was found through the generosity, friendliness and supportive attitudes of the family on whose farm the "digs" were made, and a Canadian who organized the display said he wanted the public to appreciate all those who labored to uncover the mysteries of a bygone era on the grounds that are now called northwestern Anderson County. The mother of the family, Margaret Hardesty, on whose farm they were digging between 1979-82, "let us live in the shack and I remembered the ice cream she gave us." The remains were approximately 300 million years old. The area was a coniferous forest then and the trees extended to the shore of a sea near Garnett. The region gradually flooded and the forest and its inhabitants were washed away or covered with mud. The resulting rock formations contain a rich assemblage of fossil plants, trackways and animals. The amphibian prehistoric animal was unique to the Garnett area.

The 50 feet of pipe and necessary appliances for connecting the boiler with the engine at the city electric light plant arrived in Garnett last night. Today it is to be transported to the power house and the work of installing it has begun. When the shipment of pipe for the electric plant was invoiced today, when workmen were ready to take it to the power house, it was found that some of the important connections were missing. This will prevent the connections from being made until a new order can be made.

DIGGING UP THE PAST

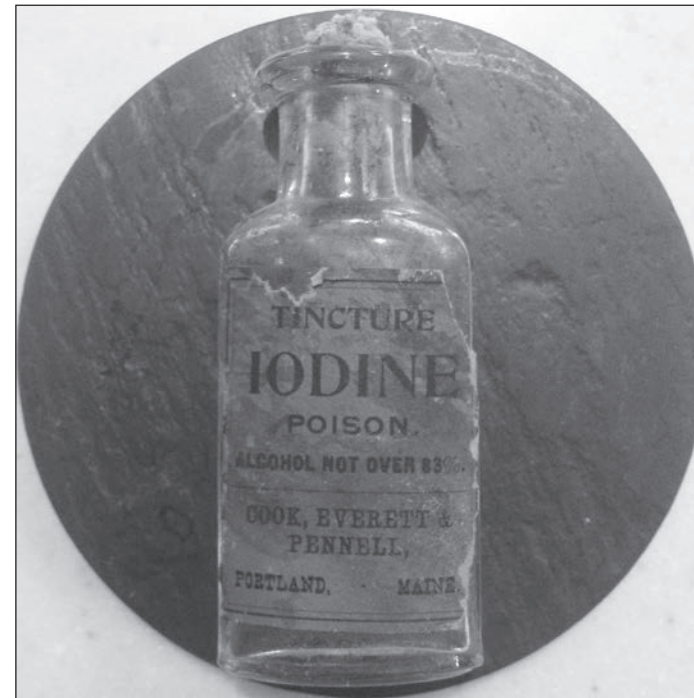

Henry Roeckers
Call (785) 448-6244 for local archeology information.

Almost 45 years ago my youngest daughter and I recovered this little bottle from the old original Topsham, Maine, town dump site. This site has been mostly covered over and is now a playground for a local school.

What makes this little medicine bottle so special, is it is most definitely a small "corker" and has some of the original cork still in its neck, plus it still bears a paper label on its side, with every word still readable.

A little history. According to the "Drugs Act of June 30, 1906" two samples of Tincture of Iodine was sent out as Reported by the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station University of Maine at Orono, Maine.

Dodge City Community College sophomore Jack Rickabaugh of Garnett led the men's golf team at the NJCAA Championship Tournament with a 294 after four collective 18-hole rounds. He tied for 16th overall as an individual, earning himself a spot on the NJCAA All-American Team. He shot 72, 74, 73 and 75 throughout four rounds to top off the Conquistadors' 7th place finish. Rickabaugh was six over par on the tournament while shooting even on par five opportunities and plus one on par three scoring. He tabbed one eagle and led the tournament after shooting for par in 55 rounds. The team of Jack Rickabaugh, Zach Kirby, Ben Maskus, Dylan Coffey and Jace Larson eventually led the Conquistadors to 7th place with a total team score of 1195 after four 18-hole rounds.

time of 51.37. Kueser also qualified in high jump with a 3rd place finish and a mark of 5'2".

McCullar finished 4th in triple jump to qualify with a jump of 32'1", behind Jasmine White's 3rd place finish of 33'3". Averil Wilson finished 4th in the 1600 meter run with a time of 5:33.55 to qualify and marked 2:27.87 in the 800 meter run for a qualifying rank as well. Audrie Goode ran a 2nd place finish in the 300 meter hurdles with a time of 50.19 to make the cut, and the 4x400 meter relay team of Wilson, Conner Parks, Danielle Mills and Gwen Sibley qualified with a 4th place finish in 4:27.5.

AC's 4x800 meter relay team also qualified with a 3rd place finish. Gwen Sibley, Bailee Wilson, Eliza Sibley and Averil Wilson ran a 10:24.44 to earn the state meet berth.

The state meet is this Friday and Saturday at Cessna Stadium on the campus of Wichita State University.

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 5-26-2015 / Vickie Moss

Gabby Spring pitches against Osawatomie in a regional game Tuesday, May 19. Anderson County won the game, 11-8, but lost in the regional championship game to Prairie View, 19-4, in wet and rainy conditions.

CHHS falls in 4-2 regional

COUNCIL GROVE - A season of challenged hitting came to an end last week for Central Heights when Marion topped the Vikes two runs in the opening game of the Council Grover 3A regional and ended the Vikings' 2015 season in a 4-2 final.

"We played well, we just did not hit the ball," said head coach Jason Brown. "We did not get enough going offensively all night."

The Vikings jumped out early on to a 2-0 lead but Marion came back with 3 runs in the bottom of the second inning. Ethan Shields took the loss for Central Heights.

The loss also meant the final game for Viking players Eli Davis, Will Thoele and Chase Brown. Thoele and Davis will attend K-State; Brown is headed to the University of Kansas.

Chamber Players offer female version of 'The Odd Couple'

Rock & Roll or Country & Western? Beer & pretzels or wine & cheese? Cats or Dogs? If you choose any one of these, chances are you know someone who would choose the other. The world is full of opposites, and nowhere will you find a better example of opposites than in Garnett's Thelma Moore Community Playhouse where The Chamber Players Community Theatre presents "The Odd Couple - Female Version" by Neil Simon. This theatrical twist on Simon's original "The Odd Couple", is a leading ladies version that brings a uniquely feminine perspective to the classic comedy and promises to tickle the funny bone and fill the room with laughter.

Jackie Fursman (Garnett), long-time CPCT veteran, portrays Florence Ungar, the neat freak who loves to cook, clean and spend her evenings complaining about her ailments. That's a strong contrast to Olive Madison, played by CPCT veteran Shauna Devening (New Strawn), who prefers ballpark franks, clutter, and a night of passion spent in the arms of a man. Any man. They're long-time friends but the relationship is put to the test when they become roommates. Although the living arrangement has good intentions, the claws soon come out and the action quickly escalates into throwing things: witty insults, teacups, plates of pasta and the like. And what's a roommate spat without a room full of dysfunctional friends to help smooth out the bumps? A weekly game of Trivial Pursuit is a girls' night out for tough cop Mickey (Katrina Kichler, Garnett), gossipy Renee (Hannah Snedecor, Garnett), wise-cracking Sylvie (Amanda Holloman, Greeley), and ditzzy Vera (Krystal Stahl, Richmond). They're a comedic quartet of sass, brass, and brassieres. No comedy would be complete without a little heat. Hot-blooded Spanish brothers Manolo (Dave Schwarzer, Ottawa) and Jesus (Gary Rommelfanger, Garnett) round out the ensemble with hilarious bravado.

Fursman

Neil Simon's "The Odd Couple" opened on Broadway in 1965 - introducing Felix Ungar (played by Art Carney) and Oscar Madison (Walter Matthau) to the world. The play ran for 964 performances and earned Simon his first Tony Award. In 1968, he adapted the play for the movie screen. Jack Lemmon replaced Carney as Felix and Simon was nominated for an Academy Award. Perhaps the most familiar pairing is from the television sitcom, launched in 1970 and starring Tony Randall as Felix and Jack Klugman as Oscar. The women's incarnation of "The Odd Couple" made its Broadway debut in 1985. Simon has now been nominated for more Academy Awards and Tony Awards combined than any writer in history. He won the Pulitzer Prize for drama in 1991 for "Lost in Yonkers" and the Mark Twain Prize for American Humor in 2006.

As the final production of CPCT's 24th season, "The Odd Couple - Female Version" runs June 4-7 and 11-14. The Chamber Players will perform matinees on June 7, 13 & 14 at 12:30 pm. All other performances will be at 6:30 pm. Catered by ACA Catering of Edgerton, KS, tickets are $22 for adults and $17 for K-12 students. Advanced purchase is required. For reservations, call the theater at 785-304-1683.

The Chamber Players will celebrate their Silver Anniversary Season beginning in August with "Cheaters" by Michael Jacobs, running August 20-23 and 27-30. Tickets go on sale to members of the theater on July 27 and to the general public on August 3. To join the theater or for more information about the Chamber Players, call the theater or email ChamberPlayersGarnett@gmail.com. You can also visit them on Facebook and at their website: www.TheChamberPlayers.org.

GES students study robotics

Through a Clorox Grant with funds specially designated for GES, several computerized Finch robots were purchased this year.

On Friday, May 8, Rich White, a computer robotics specialist from Greenbush, met with 15 GES 5th graders. Among other things, students learned beginning coding, programming, and how to create simple computer games.

By the afternoon, students were able to apply their programming skills to move their robots down specific lines or through mazes.

Although it was very challenging, students enjoyed applying previous math and computer skills with new thought processes in this fun project.

Budget, taxes still get most discussion at statehouse

May 15, 2015

It has been reported that some schools are barely scraping by and need to make cuts to schedules and/or staff as a result of the legislature cutting K-12 funding. According to the Kansas Department of Education (KDE) this year there was a $142 million increase in state aid K-12 funding; 2013-14 funding was $2.95 billion not including KPERS and $3.26 billion including KPERS; while 2014-15 funding will be $3.09 billion not including KPERS and $3.4 billion including KPERS. That is an increase of $142.19 million not including KPERS and $144.72 including KPERS. There are some who will tell you that the increase is because the legislature started counting KPERS money. The numbers from KDE show there was an increase even when KPERS money is not included.

Budget and Tax are still two main topics being discussed in Topeka. As you can imagine, with 165 legislators, there are several items being considered to close the $400 million gap between the budget and revenue estimates (tax collection estimates). One of the items, under consideration is to freeze the budget and freeze individual income tax cuts that are in law for 2016 and 2017. Other items being discussed are increased taxes on everything from income to liquor. A small group of legislators are proposing putting the income tax back on small businesses and creating a tax credit for small businesses with employees. This group is ignoring that all small businesses contribute to the Kansas economy. Ronald Reagan said that government attitude is, "If it moves, tax it. If it keeps moving regulate it. And if it stops moving, subsidize it." It seems this mindset and the "don't tax me - tax the other guy" is prevalent in Topeka.

The majority of 2012 state tax cuts went to individuals in the form of income tax cuts and an increase on standard deductions, even though the most talked about portion of the bill is that small businesses are not paying income taxes. One report says, "at least 22 states project budget shortfalls for the coming fiscal year." With 21 states and Kansas experiencing decreased state revenues, there may be other factors than the Kansas 2012 income-tax cuts contributing to the budget gap.

The Senate passed the conference committee report for Senate Substitute for House Bill (S Sub for HB) 2095 which extends the working after retirement for KPERS employees. The current law that allows individuals receiving KPERS to return to work for another KPERS eligible employer sunsets this year and is not compliant with federal regulation. In order for individuals to continue employment and bring Kansas into compliance, the Senate passed the report unanimously.

Kansas has also been out of compliance regarding spring elections for sending military ballots. House Bill (HB) 2104 changes election law by moving spring elections to the fall and keeping them non-partisan in odd-years. Starting in 2017, local elections will be held in November odd-years instead of April. Winners of these elections will take office in January of the next year. The Kansas County Clerks Association and others believe that the changes could increase voter turnout and get more Kansans involved in local government. I don't know if it will increase turnout, but it does bring us into compliance, providing our troops an opportunity to vote in our local elections and simplifies the dates for elections. Kansas primary elections will be held the first Tuesday of every August and general elections will be held the first Tuesday of every November. The bill passed the Senate 22 to 13. I voted Yes.

Senate Bill (SB) 91 will replace the Renewable Energy Portfolio (RPS) requirements from a mandated 20% of renewable energy to a negotiated goal of 20%. There was support from Wind Energy leaders, who were in strong opposition of a bill in 2013 that would have repealed the RPS 20% requirement. The bill passed the Senate on a vote of 35 to 3. I voted Yes.

The Senate unanimously passed HB 2154 which will allow employers the option to adopt policy to give preferential hiring to veterans. The bill will also grant in-state tuition to all current military personnel and their spouses or dependents.

Please contact me with any questions or comments via phone 785.296.6838; email Caryn.Tyson@senate.ks.gov; or by mail, at Kansas State Capitol, 300 SW 10th St., Topeka, KS 66612.

Bill Pracht, of Westphalia, shown with wife, Ruth, was appointed in April by Gov. Brownback to serve on the Kansas State Board of Agriculture. He is being appointed to serve a four-year term. A lifetime farmer and rancher from Anderson County, Pracht is currently the East Kansas Agri Energy Board Chairman.

When should you fish for customers?

You can't catch fish in a dry pond and you can't attract customers when they won't buy. If your business itself is seasonal or your products are bigger sellers during certain times of the year, the idea of seasonality is a concept you've got to embrace to sell the most stuff.

It might seem like basic logic to most of us, but I've had business owners try to convince me in the past that they didn't need to promote when sales were already good, because, hey - I'm already busy enough. The time to try to sell more, they argued, was in months when sales had trickled off, because those are the times when you need to pump up sales.

The truth, of course, is exactly the opposite, and the proof is in the actions of your customers. Do this exercise: Take a piece of graph paper and chart your sales in all 12 months of last year. Obviously some months are better than others, and the seasonality of your business or your products will be revealed by clusters of months that are higher, say, spring/summer if you're a lawn care business, January-April if you prepare taxes, etc.

These are your pulse periods, and if you've been in business any amount of time you probably already have a feel for these pulses - times when for some reason you're busier or customers are more active.

So when the fish are hungry, that's when you need to be fishing. As you connect the dots on your sales graph, you should also plot points on your promotional budget that roughly follow your sales graph. However you promote - "boosted" Facebook posts, radio advertising, sales people who go door-to-door, industry newsletters, etc.

HOW TO SELL STUFF

Dane Hicks
Review Publisher

- you want to apply more budget during the times customers are most likely to buy.

That's because - like fishing when the fish are biting - the more hooks you have in the water when they're hungry the more fish you'll catch. Apportioning your budget more generously during the times customers are more likely to buy means you have a better chance of landing them. If you're not there when the fish are biting, some other fisherman's going to go home with your fish.

Conversely, using your budget to push product when customers are naturally not interested makes your promotional dollars inefficient - your return on investment will be naturally lower than if you bumped up your spending during times the market is more responsive.

So the key for seasonal businesses or products is proper planning - which may take months of preparation to staff, plan promotions, book advertising and order product in order to be ready when the "fish" start "running."

Friesen honored

A former Garnett resident was recently awarded the top law enforcement honor in the Greater Kansas City Area.

Master Patrol Officer Dan Friesen of the Lenexa Police Department was named the Thomas R. Meyers Award recipient for 2014. The award, presented by the Greater Kansas City Chapter of ASIS, is named in honor of Kansas City, MO, Police Officer Thomas R. Meyers who was killed in the line of duty by a drunk driver while investigating a traffic accident on January 14, 1998, and recognizes an outstanding law enforcement officer who exemplifies professionalism and is a role model in the community.

MPO Friesen is a 30-year veteran of the LPD. Since 1985 he has held many positions, including dispatcher in the Communications Unit, Patrol Officer, operator on the department's tactical unit, investigator in the Detective Division, Field Training Officer in the Patrol Division, certified forensic examiner for the FBI Heart of American Regional Computer Forensic Laboratory, and Crime Prevention Officer and Press Information Officer, the position in which he currently serves.

Additionally, MPO Friesen has many collateral duties within and outside of the agency. Among those duties is being coordinator of the Citizen Police Academy courses for the LPD.

Criteria for the Thomas R. Meyers Award are: displays excellence in the chosen field, pioneers or innovative solutions to current community problems, and proactively addresses emerging issues related to law enforcement.

MPO Friesen's excellence in his law enforcement career has resulted in several honors, including the City of Lenexa "Service Award" in 2011, the City of Lenexa Integrity Award in 2013, and the Commander's A+6ward for the Lenexa Police Department in 2014.

The award presentation was made on Thursday, May 7, during the ASIS Greater Kansas City Law Enforcement Appreciation Luncheon. Also in attendance at the luncheon were his wife, Kathy, his son and daughter-in-law, Rich and Niki Friesen, and his parents, Gene and Shari Friesen, who had been invited as a surprise.

Richmond student competes as entrepreneur

EMPORIA - A Richmond student was part of 17 teams that competed in the final round of the Emporia Entrepreneurship Challenge at Emporia State University. They participated in a Community Showcase-style event for a chance to win cash prizes of $4,000 for first place, $2,000 for second and $1,000 for third.

Dustin Bosse, a Senior Business Administration major from Richmond, presented Bosse Designs.

The Emporia Entrepreneur

Challenge began in February with 38 student teams from Emporia State University and Flint Hills Technical College submitting business plans to the competition. Those initial entries were carved down to semifinalist teams who gave oral presentations in early April to a panel of judges. The semifinalist teams set up a booth display at the Community Showcase featuring their business concepts and answered questions from judges and event attendees.

Jenna Gruner receives the 2015 Director's Award at William Crisman High School in Independence, Mo.

Gruner recognized with award

Jenna Gruner was awarded the 2015 Director's Award (awarded by her peers) in the William Crisman High School, Independence, Mo. Orchestra. Jenna is the daughter of Phil and Kim (Campbell) Gruner of Independence, Mo. She is also the granddaughter of the late Bill L. Campbell and Shirley (Campbell) and Richard Roeckers of Garnett. She graduated May 23 from Wm. Crisman High School with honors and plans to attend Longview (Metropolitan Community College) for two years and then transfer to study Environmental Engineering or Biochemistry at University of Missouri Science & Technology, at Rolla, Missouri.

Duplicate bridge played

Steve Brodmerkle and Anita Dennis edged Tom Peavler and Mary Margaret Thomas for first place at the duplicate bridge match May 20 in Garnett. Dave and Faye Leitch were in third place. The next duplicate match is May 27 at 1 p.m. at the Garnett Inn. All bridge players are welcome.

How shall we escape?

In the Old Testament perhaps no man struggled with God more than Jacob.

In Genesis 32:22-30 we read, "That night Jacob got up and took his two wives, his two maidservants and his eleven sons and crossed the ford of the Jabbok. After he had sent them across the stream he sent over all his possessions. So Jacob was left alone, and a man wrestled with him till daybreak. When the man saw that he could not overpower him, he touched the socket of Jacob's hip so that his hip was wrenched as he wrestled with the man." Then the man said, "Let me go, for it is daybreak."

But Jacob replied, "I will not let you go unless you bless me." The man asked him, "What is your name?"

"Jacob," he answered. Then the man said, "Your name will no longer be Jacob but Israel, because you have struggled with God and with men and have overcome."

Jacob said, "Please tell me your name."

But he replied, "Why do you ask my name?" Then he blessed Jacob there.

So Jacob called the place Peniel, saying, "It is because I saw God face to face, and yet my life was spared."

First I believe we need to identify who this man was that Jacob wrestled with. The Schofield Study Bible states that when Jacob said that he had seen the Lord face to face he simply meant that he had looked at a Divine Being, the Angel of the Lord.

Scripture says that Jacob and the man wrestled till daybreak. Jacob was physically a very strong man. Physical strength is a wonderful gift from God. I don't believe this wrestling was only about physical strength. I believe God was wrestling with Jacob over his strong will. You see Jacob's will was bent toward himself. He tricked his brother Esau out of his birthright, then deceived his father into giving him the family blessing which should have gone to Esau. This type of behavior was typical of Jacob throughout his life.

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL

By David Bilderback

In Genesis 47:9, we read Jacob's own summary of his life as he gives it to Pharaoh. And Jacob said to Pharaoh, "The years of my pilgrimage are a hundred and thirty. My years have been few and difficult, and they do not equal the years of the pilgrimage of my fathers."

Jacob struggled through life much like we do today. Because of Jacob's strong will God wrestled with him through his entire life. God wrestles with each of us. For the most part I don't think many of us realize he is ever there. We just see another obstacle in our life to overcome. If we try to operate our life independently of God we are rejecting him. God does not condemn us. We do that to ourselves.

In John 3:17 we read, "For God did not send his Son into the world to condemn the world, but to save the world through him." You see Jesus died for the ungodly which is you and me. In simple terms he was a substitute for me on that cross. I deserved the cross but he suffered for me.

In the letter to the Hebrews the writer asks this question which all of us must answer. "How shall we escape if we ignore such a great salvation?"

David Bilderback: A Ministry on the Holiness of God.

Minckley 50th anniversary

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 5-26-2015 / Photo Submitted

Gary and Sharon Minckley of Colony are celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary.
