71-year-old man headed to prison for child sex crime

Plea deal lets Colony man avoid 25-to-life sentence after child sex crimes from 2013

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — A 71-year-old Colony man will spend the next four years in prison for a sex-related crime against children.

George B. Voorhess was sentenced June 23 to 61 months in prison on one count of aggravated indecent liberties with a child. He has been in Anderson County Jail since September 2014; because of time already served, he will spend about four years in a state penitentiary. As of Monday, he remained at the Anderson County jail awaiting transportation by the Kansas Department of Corrections.

Voorhess was accused of sexually-related crimes against two children between July 6, 2013, and July 13, 2013. At the time, the children were 14 and 15.

If Voorhess had been convicted of a sex-related crime against a child 14 or younger, he could have faced between 25 years to life in prison under the Jessica's Law sentencing guidelines. However, he accepted a plea deal that avoided that sentence.

Defense attorney Craig Cole argued for a lighter sentence in a petition that said Voorhess had accepted responsibility for his crime and had been a model prisoner. He also had shown remorse, written letters of apology to his victims and chose to plea guilty rather than put his victims through a preliminary hearing or trial. Cole asked for a sentence of

A driver apparently escaped serious injury when his car somehow became stuck under a semi-tractor while driving on U.S. 169 north of Colony just after noon Monday, June 29. A responder at the scene said the driver received only minor injuries, and the car was dragged along the highway for a short time before the semi was able to stop. Few details about the accident were available because it happened just before The Review went to press.

Building Bridges

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 6-30-2015 / Vickie Moss

Crews with B & B Bridge Company LLC of St. Paul clear trees for a new bridge west of the current bridge on U.S. 59 over the Pottawatomie Creek, about three miles north of Garnett. At right, you can see the start of a clearing for the new bridge. Traffic will continue on U.S. 59 and the current bridge with only minor delays, Kansas Department of Transportation officials said.

Bridge work starts after rain delays

Traffic delays expected to be minor as bridge is built west of current structure

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Construction to replace a bridge over the Pottawatomie Creek on U.S. 59 north of Garnett has begun in full force, after slight delays caused by late spring rains.

Crews with B & B Bridge company LLC of St. Paul have begun clearing and dirt work as the project kicked off earlier this month. Crews are building a "shoe-fly" detour, pushing traffic slightly to the east while the new bridge is built to the west. Donna Schmit, a construction engineer with the Kansas Department of Transportation in Garnett, said traffic could be delayed slightly at times, including times when travel is reduced to one lane but those times should be limited to a day or less.

The speed limit through the construction area has been reduced to 50 miles per hour, and at times could be reduced to 45 as crews haul material through the zone, Schmit said. She encourages motorists to be cautious as they travel through the area because trucks will be exiting and entering the highway.

The project will replace a 58-year-old bridge over the Pottawatomie Creek about three miles north of Garnett on U.S. 59. The project, which costs about $5.2 million, is expected to be finished by the summer of 2016.

The new bridge will be built just west of the current structure. That presents special challenges, Schmit said, because construction crews have to contend with the rock, a tall hill and the creek below, as well as regular traffic. Crews will cut into the rock of the hill, but the resulting bridge will be built on an angle similar to the current bridge.

Replacement of the bridge was included in KDOT's Transportation Works for Kansas (T-Works) Program passed in 2011. T-WORKS is a 10-year, $8 billion transportation program designed to create jobs, preserve highway infrastructure, and provide multimodal economic development opportunities across the state.

A look back: 1990 same-sex marriage 'joke' now reality

Court official: No local requests for same-sex marriage licenses yet

BY VICKIE MOSS

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Twenty-five years ago, The Review published a wedding announcement featuring two men as an "April Fool's" joke. Public outcry against the photo came immediately and from all sides. Readers in 1990 threatened to cancel subscriptions to the newspaper and called it "a mockery" and "sick, sick, sick." Some homosexuals also found the joke to be in poor taste, as it appeared to reinforce stereotypes and mocked such a union.

Now, such an announcement is no joke. Across the United States, same-sex couples can legally marry after a controversial Supreme Court ruling Friday, June 26.

Still, some of the present-day

GARNETT — Rumors continue to swirl over the fate of the former Alco retail store building, and at least one nearby business owner said he is concerned the rumors could affect his business.

A representative from Orscheln Farm & Home said the company was not prepared to comment on rumors that it would be moving to Garnett, David Hult, Director of Store Operations, said Monday.

City officials said representatives from Orscheln have requested information about zoning, fencing and parking

E. David Brown passed away on May 24, 2015 surrounded by his wife and children. Dave was born in McComb, MS on July 4, 1948. He graduated from Garnett HS in 1966 and married his high school sweetheart Karen in 1969. He was a veteran of the Vietnam War where he served honorably in the United States Navy.

Brown

Dave was a loving husband, father and grandpa who never veered from those responsibilities no matter how tough things got in life. He coached his children for many years in baseball and was never too tired to play catch after a hard day's work. He was an avid reader and a fan of all sports. Dave worked at Boeing in Everett, WA for 18 years as a CNC Technician, Instructor and Engineer.

Dave is survived by his wife of 45 years, Karen; his sons Dave (Stacy) of Winchester, CA and Ryan (Lindsey) of Snohomish, WA; his daughter Susie (Zac) of Menifee, CA; his sister Iris and 8 grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his parents Emmett Brown and Dora Good; his brothers Richard and Jim.

He will be remembered by his family for his unconditional love, compassion and sense of humor.

He will be laid to rest at Riverside National Cemetery in Riverside, CA with full military honors.

issues, and requested a permit application to build a fence three or four weeks ago, but so far have not yet returned the permit application. Nothing has been confirmed, and company officials simply were seeking information, Garnett City Manager Joyce Martin said Monday.

"We're just waiting to see if the information we gave them is helpful," Martin said.

Ramesh Patel, owner of the Economy Inn, a building which also houses the Northside Cafe and is next door to the Alco building, said he is concerned that people are spreading rumors about his business. He said several people have told him they heard Orscheln had purchased his building, and the motel and cafe would close. That's not true, Patel said.

"I'm doing good business here," he said. "Why would I close?"

Patel said he has not talked to anyone from Orscheln and has not been approached by anyone about buying the building. Patel said he was concerned the rumors could hurt his business, and wanted to reassure customers.

Hult said he could confirm that Orscheln had not purchased Patel's property.

Orscheln has purchased some of the former Alco properties after Alco went bankrupt late last year. Orscheln purchased Alco's 357,000-square-foot distribution center in Abilene in January and announced plans to double its number of stores. An announcement was made last month that Orscheln had purchased a former Alco in Ellsworth; in February, Orscheln purchased the former Alco in Sabetha.

Orscheln, based in Moberly, Mo., operates a chain of more than 160 retail stores in Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Missouri, Nebraska and Oklahoma.

Ottawa and Iola also have Orscheln stores.

arguments against same-sex marriage echo those from 1990.

"Just as an organization has its by-laws, we must protest when you violate one of God's laws, who so many of us love," one reader wrote in 1990, citing Scripture later in the letter to the editor.

Another reader, however, urged people to be more tolerant.

"Jesus' main thought was love. He said love thy neighbor as thyself," the 1990 comment read.

Despite the ruling that cleared the way for same-sex marriage across the nation, there was no run on area court-houses for same-sex marriage licenses.

No requests for such marriage licenses have been made since Friday afternoon at any of the district court offices in the Fourth Judicial District, which is composed of Anderson, Franklin, Coffey and Osage counties, court administrator John Steelman said Monday. One inquiry was made at Franklin County Friday morning, before a district judge ruled that court clerks should issue same-sex marriage licenses. No other inquiries or requests had been made since Friday.

But at least one couple has requested a same-sex marriage license in Anderson County in the past. In November 2014, after a federal court decision appeared to clear the way for same-sex marriage, Steelman said one same-sex couple applied for a marriage license in Anderson County.

That application was denied, because Chief Judge Phillip Fromme said he would wait for further order from a higher court. It is not known if that couple ever re-applied for a license, or if they plan to do so.

The order Fromme was waiting from came from the highest court in the land Friday morning, and at noon Friday Fromme instructed the Clerks of Court in each county of the Fourth Judicial District to treat same-sex marriage license applications just as they do opposite sex marriage licenses.

The Supreme Court decision was both celebrated and condemned on social media, with many people adding a rainbow filter to their Facebook avatars while others took to social media to decry "judicial activism" or share religious messages.

Local pastors either could not be reached for comment or did not want to comment for this article. However, the issue was briefly alluded to during at least one Sunday sermon. At the Garnett Church of the Nazarene, Pastor Phil Rhoades was absent. Tom Horstick, a church member, filled in for him, and briefly addressed recent Supreme Court decisions that, he said, "may not sit well with Christians." He encouraged the congregation to remember their primary purpose is to seek and study "God's word," and that attempting to change a community's moral standing is a secondary purpose.

"It is truth and the word of God that will change lives," he said.

Flags don't kill people

You can hate the Confederate Flag or you can love it all you want; the simple fact is that flags don't kill people. Living without free expression though... well, that already has.

To me the Confederate Flag was always a symbol that supported slavery, ignorance and redneckery. But then again I'm a Yankee, caste with the benefit and prejudice of 150 years of hindsight, like pretty much everybody else dominating the discussion over the Stars and Bars right now after the South Carolina shootings and resulting SC statehouse flag furor.

I don't like the Confederate Flag. But if I was a southerner, I might see things differently.

Because if you're going to stand behind the governor of the State of South Carolina in demanding the Confederate Flag be taken down from the statehouse grounds, then you pretty much have to support ideas like banning church services without a government permit; you must be in favor of closing deliberations in courtrooms, of having government censorship of your local newspaper and art gallery. You can agree that South Carolina Legislators should be censored, but in so doing you have to agree to censor the rest of us too, because someone in charge eventually won't like what you have to say, either.

The South Carolina Legislature is a body of elected officials. If they choose to take the flag down, that's their call. It is no affair of the Governor's office, except to opportunistically try to curry favor with blacks and black supporters at a time ripe for exploitation.

Notwithstanding actions by government against expression, the morality or immorality of the Confederate Flag is convoluted by the hair-trigger politicization of all race issues today — something increasingly apparent and which separates blacks and whites more so now than at any time in the past 40 years. Corporate America is fine-tuned to be seen as pro-minority on every issue in order to avoid the bad publicity and freaked-out stockholders that might result from threats of uncaring insensitivity to the minority cause du'jour. We may not know what minority issue will arise next, but we know American corporations will always have their finger in the wind.

What is also known is that a demented and damaged little punk went into a House of God and mowed down people in the midst of their worship. His hatred of blacks had nothing to do with the Confederacy. His hatred of blacks had to do only with his need for superiority and his own ultimate feelings self-loathing and inconsequence. He was as much in search of a scapegoat as the race baiters like Al Sharpton and Jesse Jackson, whose excuse for every black shortcoming begins with race instead of personal responsibility.

If I was a southerner I might have an ancestor who served in the Confederate Army. If so, I would admire his loyalty to what he believed was a just cause: The idea that states at that time were not subject to the total tyranny of a federal government and could choose their own sovereignty. We had, after all, won independence from Great Britain not 100 years previous. We sometimes hear the same desire for freedom from federal overreach espoused even these days.

I would acknowledge that my ancestor and his contemporaries lost their fight and that our nation as a whole ended up better for it, but I wouldn't disparage the honor of their loyalty to their cause any less, any more than I would disparage the honor and loyalty of any veteran of today's War on Terror.

Attacking the Confederate Flag is nothing more than a scapegoat that makes some of us feel better while we deny ownership of the real reasons we just can't get along.

I would like to say that my car and several others would like to thank whoever is responsible for the topping of our streets down here south of 8th Street. It's a beautiful drive now. Some of the streets didn't need help but some of them did. It's a beautiful job and we thank whoever is responsible.

I think I would accept Mr. Wizard's analysis on climate change before Pope Francis', since his church nearly burned Galileo at the stake for correctly stating the sun was the center of the universe. Following Catholic doctrine on science is like following Baptist doctrine on dancing. Take away the mitre and the robe, and this guy is still just an Argentine socialist. But he is in good company considering the socialist we elected president twice and the entitlement culture pervasive in the U.S. and the rest of the world.

Why do many counties in a state like Kansas still need a courthouse? At one time we had Township governments, city/town governments, school districts (governments), County Governments. Then we began to consolidate school districts, a step in the right direction.

Why does Anderson County need those remaining city/ town governments and a county government? Why does each county still need 100 plus year old courthouses? Heritage is important of course. But the square has been dying for years, and a new HVAC system in the courthouse will not change that. Why is it necessary to renew licenses at the courthouse? Some states have DMV websites, and the US mail still works.

I keep hearing about the Alco building. Well, the city doesn't own the Alco building. The city can't make them do anything. It's up to Alco. Thank you.

You got to be kidding There's still morons and idiots that think Obama's a Muslim? OMG buddy get a life, take your head out of your butt. That's the stupidest thing I've heard yet. He's not a Muslim. It's old, get over it. What a moron.

I was just wondering why they couldn't get a bathroom or at least a port-a-potty set up at the ball field up by the swimming pool? I realize there's one across the road and down a ways, but when you have parents there that sometimes have two or three littler siblings there to watch a brother or sister and one of them has to go to the bathroom, and then they're having to miss the game to take the other ones over to the other side to go to the bathroom, I just think it would be real convenient if it was a possibility to have a restroom of some sort set up at that ball field. Thank you very much.

Ever since our country began we had a policy that we will not negotiate with terrorists and we won't pay ransom for hostages. Well, Obama just changed that. He said now we will pay ransom if we have to. I guess the reasoning for that is that when he leaves office in another year and a half, he knows nobody will buy his damn memoirs, so he's going to join ISIS and take hostages and charge us for them. That's his plan for getting rich after he leaves office.

Well folks, better be prepared. I'm sure this certain ethnic group and their foolish supporters will get the Confederate Flag removed from South Carolina. After that they'll probably want it removed from every house in North America that has one. Will their demands end there? I doubt it. Next the white stripe in the American flag will be considered racist. And what could be more racist than the White House? Whoops. Looks like it will have to be renamed and repainted. So much for democracy.

Wow. I sure hope the county's getting this 7th Street resurfaced for free. This outfit they've got is making it every bit as rough or rougher than our local crew could do. I think our local crew could do better for a whole lot less. If you want a joy ride just jump in your car and head out west 7th Avenue. You'll come back with your teeth chattering.

This veterans memorial this town is trying to do is going to be a big joke. Going to be half (deleted) done because what about your fathers, brothers, uncles who have served in the military and have passed away? Where are we supposed to come up with the papers to prove that? Just like this town, half-(deleted done) not enough time to prove anything that makes any sense.

I notice there is a camper sitting at the North Lake that's been there for several weeks. According to the city's website you have to move to a different city park after seven days. If you are going to have rules then you need to enforce them and they should be for everyone.

Pope Francis goes off the rails

A quasi-religious movement now has a genuinely religious leader.

The pope's encyclical on the environment is being hailed for its embrace of science, although it is about as scientific as the Catholic hymnal.

Pope Francis writes that Sister Earth "now cries out because of the harm we have inflicted on her by our irresponsible use and abuse of the goods with which God has endowed her." Really? Is that what the United Nations' Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change says?

The Catholic Church brings comfort and meaning to the lives of countless millions. That doesn't mean that climate science, economic policy and cost-benefit analysis are its core competencies. No one has ever said: Yes, but what did Gregory VII do to fight the onset of the Medieval Warm Period?

All that matters to the media, though, is that Pope Francis has taken an apocalyptic climate alarmism and given it the imprimatur of the Vatican. The same people who dismiss the pope on more central moral matters, like the dignity of life, are now attributing to him an authority that might have made Pope Innocent III, who challenged kings, blush.

The document could have benefited from an editor cutting out the bizarre ramblings. The pope writes of "harmful habits of consumption," including "the increasing use and power of air conditioning." He argues that "an outsider looking at our world would be amazed at such behavior."

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

That's assuming the outsider lives in a very cool climate, or doesn't mind sweating. Anyone not so lucky probably thinks the inventor of air conditioning should be canonized.

While the pope pays lip service to technological advances, he doesn't truly appreciate their wonders. The Industrial Revolution was a great boon to humankind. Consider the unrelieved misery -- the disease, the poverty, the illiteracy -- before around 1800, when if you weren't an aristocrat, a general or a bishop, your life was probably nasty, brutish and short.

But at least when everyone died at a much earlier age, we weren't engaging in the ravages of the planet that so exercise Francis. This sinful assault on the Earth, by the way, largely consisted in taking otherwise completely useless glop from the ground and using it to power economic and technical advances that enriched average people beyond anyone's imagining. This is obviously a secular miracle of the highest order.

And the bounty hasn't ended. Something like a billion people have been lifted out of poverty in places like India and China in recent decades as they have embraced markets and global trade. The pope should be delighted, except he has a blinkered view of capitalism as a zero-sum game benefiting only the privileged.

For all that the pope portrays modern development as a long exercise in environmental devastation, it is the advanced countries that have the cleanest water and air, and are best prepared to adapt their way around any far-off environmental challenges.

His encyclical will be portrayed as the best thing the church has done since Pope Leo dissuaded Attila from sacking Rome, but on climate change, it merely bends to the fashions of the hour.

State legislators aren't quite done yet

Not in recent memory has the sine die (that's the formal name) adjournment of the Kansas Legislature left quite so much unfinished work for state government.

In the good—or at least the old—days, that sine die adjournment was shaking hands, wishing fellow legislators a fun and productive summer, a little vacation planning talk. The high point for many lawmakers was the lifting of the during-the-session ban on taking campaign contributions from political action committees, businesses, unions, lobbyists and such. In the old days, there were actually envelopes handed to legislators as they walked to their cars—containing those campaign contribution checks.

But after this year's sine die last Friday, there's a real sense that this year's work isn't done.

And, it isn't. The immediate action will be watching this month and next for the governor, through his budget director, to cut about $50 million in spending which lawmakers will read about in the local newspaper. And, these cuts are unilateral, no legislative fingerprints on them, no legislation, no debate, no conference committee action, just the governor's office looking for places to cut state spending with the minimum political effect on Kansans.

Which Kansans? That's what insiders are looking for...will the prosperous who may occasionally need a Highway Patrol trooper to stand by while auto club workers change a flat tire on the Interstate or who need to renew their drivers' licenses be inconvenienced?

Or, will Kansans who generally have more

STATE COMMENTARY

money spent on them—the poor, the sick, the children, the hungry—see cuts in spending that will show up almost immediately in their lives?

Or, of course, are there things that the state hires workers to do that just aren't that important? This could be a thoughtful pruning of services the state has traditionally provided that not many even notice. Who really cares who takes possession of the antlers of a deer shot in someone else's wheat field? Not enough hands go up to create much shade, do they?

Surprisingly, that $50 million in administration-ordered spending cuts might just create a few waves...but chances of that happening are slim.

The larger-spectrum effect of those cuts is to create about $80 million or so of ending balance in the budget for the coming fiscal year, enough to take care of emergencies and opportunities that might occur in the upcoming year. There are times that state government, like most individuals, just needs a little pocket change—though obviously the state's pockets are considerably larger than even those loose-fitting jeans we tend to wear as we grow older.

Now, there is that other $50 million that a panel of judges just demanded the state spend on school districts... That's a problem, which means if the state can't wriggle out of it, there's another $50 million to be spent from the relatively small fiscal year 2015 carryover from Tuesday (June 30) to Wednesday (July 1) that creates. But that $50 million is owed to schools, and wriggling out of it doesn't sound right.

So, we have the upcoming cuts, the bill owed to schools, and if both are accomplished, then there's about $37 million left in the treasury at the end of the next fiscal year. Probably enough, but it is dependent on all those tax increases passed this session that might, or might not, produce all the money that bookkeepers predicted they would.

Sine die adjournment? How about we classify that little exercise as just a breather, not exactly the summer off, but a break while non-legislative wheels of government are spinning and providing us some interesting money-moving and sliding of funding from here to there and hoping that it's possible for us to at least scrape through until Jan. 11, 2016, when things start again...

We cannot see our way without the light

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL By David Bilderback

In John 8:12 we read, when Jesus spoke again to the people he said, "I am the light of the world. Whoever follows me will never walk in darkness, but will have the light of life."

In order to understand this passage we need to understand something about light. Light is made up of a spectrum of seven colors. When you put all seven of the colors of the spectrum together the result is pure light. It is light that causes plants to produce food and the whole life chain of animals and humans depend on the process. When Albert Einstein formulated his theory on relativity he said he was able to put forward this theory because there is one thing and one thing alone in the world that is constant—the speed of light. Everything else is relative. Light is the only thing constant in our natural universe and Jesus is our one constant in the spiritual realm.

Darkness in its simplest terms is nothing more than the absence of light. If you walk into a dark room and turn on the light darkness vanishes. Where does the darkness go? It is consumed by the light.

This is why light is such a perfect example of Jesus. It is pure and undefiled. In John 1:10 we read about Jesus. "He was in the world, and though the world was made through him, the world did not recognize him." Jesus was not of this world. We read in John 1:2 that, "He was with God in the beginning."

Light and life are interwoven. You cannot have life without light. When God said, "Let there be light" the seas began to swarm with life and the seeds of the earth began to bud and blossom. In John 10:10 Jesus says, "I have come that they may have life, and have it to the fullest."

There is another truth about light. Light is always victorious over darkness. In John 1:5 we read, "And the light shines in the darkness, and the darkness did not comprehend it." All of history has been a battle between light and darkness. In Luke 23:44-46 we read the following statement about Jesus. "It was now about the sixth hour, (noon) and darkness came over the whole land until the ninth hour, (3:00 PM) for the sun stopped shining. And the curtain of the temple was torn in two. Jesus called out with a loud voice, Father into your hands I commit my spirit. When he had said this he breathed his last."

If we go back to the simple definition of darkness being nothing more than the absence of light it is clear we must make a choice. We must either choose light or darkness. Our physical lives are lived in both but our spiritual life will be lived in one or the other. Look at it this way. When we come home late and it is dark what is the first thing we search for? The light. Why is that? Because we cannot see our way. It is much more comfortable with the light on. Let Jesus turn your darkness into light.

Richmond Library's Summer Reading Program going strong

The 2015 Richmond Public Library Summer Reading Program is off and running. What have we done so far?

We had sign up and frizbee toss on June 3.

June 10th we celebrated National Black Cow day, everyone who came into the library between 2:00 and 5:00 was offered a Black Cow [chocolate Root beer float], on the 10th the younger kids also decorated super hero masks and headbands.

June 11th was senior craft day, we made card stock birdhouses.

On the 12th adults decorated full masks.

June 17th & 18th the kids made Father's Day gifts.

June 19th was Alphabet Club day, we had food that started with F, O or X.

Operation "Save-a-Life" was on June 24th with Nurse Dawn Hasting and EMT Matt Hasting.

The Teens made catapults on Thursday, June 25 and the Adults made Super Hero Foods on June 26th at noon.

Monday, June 29, was Fire Safety at the Richmond Fire Dept.

Tyson: Tax, tax and more taxes

Will Rogers said, "The only difference between death and taxes is that death doesn't get worse every time Congress meets." This can also be said of the Kansas Legislature.

The legislature has done well cutting taxes the last several years but has failed to cut spending to balance the budget to make the tax cuts work. On the 108th day of the 2015 Session, the Senate passed a mega-tax increase bill to cover a $400 million budget deficit. The House initially rejected the tax package but on the 113th day reconsidered. The reconsideration was based on the Senate passing a second tax bill, referred to as the trailer bill. The trailer bill made changes that were more palatable to House members. The crux of the tax bills are: sales tax will increase from 6.15% to 6.50% July 1st 2015; cigarette tax will increase by $.50 a pack to $1.29; and when filing personal income tax-returns only 50% of deductions will be allowed except for charitable donations, which are still allowed at 100%. There were a couple of good items in the bill: low income earners (anyone filing single that makes $5,000 or under, and anyone filing married jointly that makes $12,500 and under) will pay no income tax starting in 2016; and the Rural Opportunity Zone (ROZ) will continue for five more years. The ROZ program encourages people, by using tax incentives, to move into rural counties that have not been increasing in population.

The mega-tax bill would have sunset a majority of tax exemptions. The trailer bill removed the sunset but still requires a review of all exemptions by the Tax Committees. There are some outdated exemptions that should be cleaned up but there are many tax exemptions that if they are removed would be a major tax increase on Kansans. It is important that legislators understand the consequences of removing these exemptions and the increased tax burden. One such exemption is a sales tax exemption on utilities, including electricity. If this exemption were removed it would be a 6.5% tax increase on utility bills. Currently, we pay local and county utility sales tax but not state sales tax.

I voted No on all measures because it is a huge tax increase that grows government. You sent me to Topeka to fight for the Constitution, your freedom, and a smaller less intrusive government. I'm holding to that promise.

The Kansas Constitution limits even years of the legislative session to 90 days. However, odd years (which we are in) are not limited. There has become an expectation that all sessions be completed within 90 days. Last year's session was reported to be 79 days, the shortest session in 40 years. This year the session lasted 113 days, and is reported to be the longest ever. It was a grueling session. There are two legislative bodies, the Senate and the House. In order to pass legislation, 21 Senators and 63 Representatives must vote Yes. It is difficult to come to a consensus on how to deal with a $400 million budget deficit and it took 113 days to find agreement on how to close the budget gap.

The Senate worked diligently for eighteen consecutive days, often into the evening and sometimes late at night to decide how to handle the budget deficit. The Senate Ways and Means Committee Chairman told me they were able to cut over $30 million based on suggestions that I had made. These cuts did not negatively impact any programs but were common-sense ways of saving money. For example, the State will spend $43 million on travel in Fiscal Year (FY) 2015 which is a $4 million increase from FY 2014; by limiting national and international travel the State can save millions of dollars. Another example was capturing some of the $7 million one department had just sitting in a bank account. Departments and Agencies are adept at hiding money which makes it difficult to find the savings. Because of this, the push from leadership and the Governor was to increase taxes.

Duncan earns Eagle Scout rank

Riley Duncan, 17, of Irvine, Calif., became an Eagle Scout on June 8. He is the son of Vivian Ecclefield of Irvine, Calif., and grandson of Wayne Ecclefield, Garnett. He is the nephew of Gary Ecclefield, Garnett.

He is a junior at University High School. He joined Troop 695 in California after completing his Cub Scout Arrow of Light and participated in many community service projects, scouting events and outdoor trips. He said his favorite outing was a horseback trip in the High Sierras.

For his Eagle Service Project, Riley led his volunteers to build a long and rugged wood-post fence installed in the Newport Back Bay ecological preserve.

BUSINESS BEAT

Resourcefulness, creativity wins in advertising

Want to know how hard it is to get your advertising message across these days? I recently was a captive audience for three hours, and I can only remember two things...

Taylor Swift and Homeland Security.

I drove to a conference and spent three hours en route listening to the radio and driving down a couple of major interstates, and those are honestly all that sticks out to me over the course of that drive. Actually, I don't really even remember hearing a Taylor Swift song, but I know in fact that every radio station in the country is apparently bound by FCC regulations to play a Taylor Swift song once every 17 minutes.

How many different advertising messages to you suppose I was exposed to on that 3-hour drive? Radio commercials, bumper stickers, logos on the sides of semi trailers, billboards - I'll bet it had to be in the thousands.

But the one that sticks out to me was a Homeland Security SUV that followed me for a while and then passed me. Why did it stick in my head? Because I've never seen one before, and it was... well... interesting; it was notable and unique.

That's how your marketing efforts have to be to rise above the melee of modern commercial clutter - unique and interesting. They also have to ring with your targeted customer - the Homeland Security vehicle made an impression on me because I'm a news and political suspense geek - I used to watch "24" on TV anytime I could catch it.

Roy H. Williams, writing in the marketing section of Entrepreneur Magazine's website, urges business owners to "create an ad that will stick with your customers long after they see it." He talks about the "Hamp Baker says: Drive with care" signs that were spray painted on old car hoods salvaged from junk yards in Oklahoma in the early 1970s and hung on barbed wire fences along the roads. No one knew who Hamp Baker was, but in no time his name was a household word. He eventually ran for state corporation commissioner and won 65 percent of the vote.

HOW TO SELL STUFF

Williams mentions another cool option which I've rarely seen - projecting your company logo or advertising message at night from the window of one building across the street onto the side of another building (with the property owners' permission of course). Nowadays you could even run your company video through your laptop projector and make a silent movie out of it.

If you don't have a lot of money to spend - or even if you do - you have to get resourceful and creative to make yourself and your company memorable. That, of course, will help you sell stuff.

Know the rules for stagecoach travel

Yes! I know this isn't a picture of a real stagecoach, in fact it's a little pencil sharpener. I must admit it makes a good prop for this week's column.

A lot of you probably know I just returned from two weeks attending the KANSAS ARCHEOLOGY TRAINING PROGRAM FIELD SCHOOL held near Hays, Kas.

Every evening while there we either had a tour or talk by some guest speaker.

On the evening of Wednesday June 17th Dr. Leo Oliva gave a wonderful talk entitled: Smoky Hill Trail: Transportation Corridor. The transportation he talked about was the founding, need and use of the B.O.D. Otherwise known as Butterfields Overland Dispatch.

Here are 10 rules posted at the stations and on the coaches for riding a Stagecoach.

The best seat is the forward one, next to the driver. If you have tendencies toward stage sickness when riding backwards, you'll get over it quicker in this seat and receive less jolts and jostling.

Call (785) 448-6244 for local archeology information.

If the stage teams run away or are pursued by Indians, stay in the coach and take your chances. Don't jump out, for you will be injured or scalped.

In cold weather abstain from liquor for you are subject to freezing quicker if under its influence than as though you were cold sober.

But if you are drinking from a bottle, pass it around. It is the only polite thing to do.

Don't smoke a strong cigar or pipe on the stage, especially when women or children are present. If chewing tobacco, spit to leeward side.

Don't swear or smoke or lop over on neighbors sleeping. Let others share the buffalo robes provided in cold weather.

Don't shoot firearms for pleasure while enroute as it scares the horses.

Don't discuss politics or religion. Don't point out sites where Indian attacks took place.

While at stations, don't lag at wash basins or privies. Don't grease hair with bear grease or buffalo tallow, as travel is very dusty.

Don't imagine you are going on a picnic, for stage travel is inconvenient. Expect annoyances, discomfort, hardships. Bear them with fortitude. Be friendly and helpful to other passengers and you will be a more pleasant one.

This is a little pencil sharpener, not a real stagecoach, but local archeologist Henry Roeckers said he learned a lot about stagecoach travel on a recent Kansas Archeology Training Program Field School near Hays.

Garnett Public Library to discuss 'The Silver Star'

The Garnett Public Library will hold a book discussion on Wednesday, July 22nd at 7 p.m. This month's book is "The Silver Star" by Jeannette Walls. Her memoir, The Glass Castle, has been a New York Times bestseller for more than six years. Leading our discussion will be Paulabeth Henderson.

It is 1970 in a small town in California. "Bean" Holladay is twelve and her sister, Liz, is fifteen when their mother, Charlotte, takes off, leaving her girls enough money to last a month or two. One day Bean sees a police car outside the house, and she and Liz decide to take the bus to Virginia, where their Uncle Tinsley lives. Bean soon discovers who her father was, and hears many stories about why their mother left Virginia. Bean adores her whip-smart older, nonconformist sister; however, when school starts in the fall, it's Bean who easily adjusts, and Liz who becomes withdrawn. Then something happens to Liz.

The books are available for checkout at the library. The discussions are held the fourth Wednesday of each month at 7 p.m. in the Archer Room at the library. Notification is posted in case of cancellation.

SEKLS budget meeting in Iola. Magazines were discussed. Several magazines now subscribed are not being checked out. No children's magazines are subscribed and changes will be made when time to renew. The Library board policy was reviewed. Changes will be made to the internet policy. Children under 18 years of age must have a parent/guardian signature and are not allowed to use computer sights that are obscene. Kloma presented several ideas she learned when visiting other libraries and library sites.

Books added to the library in May: "Those Jensen Boys" by W. Johnstone, "Trail of Shadows by Lauran Paine, "Burned with the Coyote" by Dan Cushman, "Painted Buttes" by A. Gooden. Movies added in May: "Paddington, Black or White, and "The Gambler".

Lions

Thirteen members and four guests attended the June 17 meeting. Guests included Lions Terry Weldin, Dave Branton, Randal Beckmon and Biggest Loser second place winner, Brenda Stephens was presented her award. Kenton King, president conducted the meeting. June 20 at 9 a.m. was set to paint the cemetery committal building. Drawing for the gun raffle was held with Shirley Ulrich winning the Savage 17 B-Mag Rifle. Reports of a tree to be cut at cemetery and Jay Dutton has several to be cut; Steven Thomas had been unable to contact Superintendent Chuck Mahon concerning the flower beds.

Terry Weldin, Burlington informed them the progress on purchasing equipment for the Vision Screening program. The Leo Club at Baxter Spring's High School gave a donation of $500 towards purchasing this equipment. The Humboldt Lions Club has filed for a local grant for funds to purchase another device. The state Lions organization is requesting a grant from Lions Clubs International. We will be able to have several Vision Screening devices in our area. Also, our zone has expanded and now includes Franklin County.

4-H

Seekers Not Slackers held their May 20 meeting at the Lone Elm Community building. The meeting came to order and roll call was answered by "what you are going to do for the summer." Song leaders Gunner Ellington and Trevor Church led the group in singing "Row Row Row your Boat."

Club leaders informed members about Discovery Day sign up, nominations for swine, sheep, and meat goats due for Kansas State Fair and Kansas Junior Livestock Show. It was reminded that the Anderson County Fair is August 3-8, Kincaid fair is Sept. 17-19 and State fair is Sept. 11-20. Several committee reports were given including club trip committee, 4-H promotion committee, and banner committee. During new business it was decided to donate $50 to Operation Military.

After new business for the program Gunner talked about his bucket calf project and Dal gave a project talk about basic welding. After program the club played a game of "Close Pin Tag." After recreation the meeting was adjourned by saying the 4-H motto. The next regular meeting will be Wednesday, June 17 at 7 p.m. at the Lone Elm Community building.

Jolly Dozen

The Jolly Dozen Club met June 15 at Giovanni's in Iola. Seven members were present.

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 6-30-2015 / Photo Submitted by Gregory Hardwick Gregory Hardwick is 8th from left, back top row, is shown in a group tour to Washington DC for the Junior National Young Leaders Conference. Gregory was so appreciative of all the donations and especially to his grandpa (Robert Hardwick) for donations so Gregory could get to Washington DC. He saw the White House, Vietnam, Korean and Martin Luther King, Jr. memorials and the Maryland Science Center along with a host of other students throughout the US. It was a wonderful educational experience for him of which he had qualified.
