Orscheln Farm and Home LLC has taken steps to move into the former Alco building in Garnett.

Orscheln steps toward Garnett site

City needs to approve permit request, variance at August commission meetings

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Rumors that Orscheln Farm and Home would move into the former Alco building in Garnett were confirmed last week, as the company officially filed for special city permits to operate at the property.

Company officials did not return a phone call before presstime Monday to comment, but recent events appear to confirm a move that had been rumored for several months.

Orscheln requested a special use permit to build an 8 foot fence at 700 North Maple Street in Garnett, the site of the former Alco store. The company also requested a variance that would allow them to display merchandise outside, which would reduce the number of available parking spaces as required by city zoning laws.

Company officials also have talked to city staff about establishing utility services, City Manager Joyce Martin said.

The city's planning commission will discuss the special use permit and variance request at a meeting 6 p.m. Tuesday, August 11, at Town Hall Center, 125 W. Fifth Ave., Garnett. The meeting is open to the public.

At that meeting, the planning commission will recommend whether commissioners approve the permits. Martin expects city commissioners to make a decision on those matters at an Aug. 25 meeting.

Other than deciding zoning and related matters, the city has no control over whether Orscheln or any other business moves into the old Alco building, Martin said.

Orscheln has purchased some of the former Alco properties after Alco went bankrupt late last year. Orscheln purchased Alco's 357,000-square-foot distribution center in Abilene in January and

Police scanners go dark for most

Digital tech upgrade means you can't hear law enforcement chatter

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - People who monitor police scanners no longer can hear messages from the Anderson County Sheriff's and Garnett Police departments because of a technical upgrade that was installed Friday, July 17. The move puts a new cloak of secrecy around local police work in a community where many residents relied on their police scanners to hear what was going on locally and to monitor and evaluate the actions and policies of local law enforcement.

That isn't likely to change, Anderson County Sheriff Vernon Valentine said Monday morning. There is no easy way to allow the public to monitor communications that previously were available to anyone with a scanner and a frequency code. Some communications, such as between fire departments, still are available.

"It's not something we've chosen to do and we're not trying to hide anything from the

Firefighter back at work after LibertyFest injury

Annual firework show resulted in arm injury to volunteer firefighter

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - A volunteer firefighter injured while helping with the LibertyFest fireworks show July 3 is back at work now.

City fire crews were helping with the Garnett Area Chamber of Commerce's LibertyFest fireworks show Friday, July 3, when something went wrong, City Manager Joyce Martin said. Exactly what sparked the incident wasn't known, but Martin said it appeared that either a mortar holder burst or the firework exploded early. Shrapnel hit the firefighter, Joe Ray, who fell into another firefighter. The other firefighter was not injured.

The accident caused a deep cut to Ray's upper left arm. The cut involved a tendon but didn't require surgery, Martin said. He was taken to Anderson County Hospital and then to St. Luke's for treatment.

City tax rebate program change slow to take off

Only one person has taken advantage of citywide expansion

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - A year after city leaders expanded a property tax rebate program that rewards people for making improvements to their properties, only one resident has taken advantage of the program.

The Neighborhood Revitalization Program was initiated by the Garnett Area Chamber of Commerce in 2001 as a way to encourage housing, commercial or industrial improvements in blighted areas of Garnett. Property owners who make substantial improvements - at least $5,000 in added valuation - can qualify for a refund of new property taxes assessed because of those improvements for five-to-eight years. Property owners in the downtown area, primarily businesses, are eligible for eight years worth of refunded property taxes; owners in other zones are eligible for the five-year benefit. The tax rebate comes from three taxing entities: the City of Garnett, USD 365 and

Most school enrollments change to online process

USDs 365, 288 go online but Crest sticks with paper forms; students return to classes soon

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

In just a few weeks, area schoolchildren will head back to the classrooms. Before that happens, though, families need to enroll to make sure the school has all the information it needs to know that little Johnny will be in his seat when the bell rings.

Two of three area school districts now offer online enrollment, and encourage that process as the default method. Paperwork was mailed to USD 365 parents last week. Parents in USD 288 - Central Heights also should expect to receive paperwork with online enrollment information.

Parents in USD 479 - Crest will enroll the old-fashioned way, by paper.

USD 365

Online enrollment is available by visiting the district's website, www.usd365.org. A link is offered halfway down the home page. Parents should have received login information.

Those unable to enroll online can fill out paperwork in person Tuesday, Aug 4, at ACJSHS for all schools. Westphalia also will offer enrollment from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Thursday, Aug. 6.

School begins in USD 365 for elementary students, seventh grade students, freshmen and ACJSHS students new to the district. ACJSHS students in grades 8 and 10-12 will start school Aug. 20 if they have attended the school before.

USD 479 - Crest

Crest students can enroll at the school Aug. 26-28.

Students whose last name begins with A-M should enroll Aug. 26. Students whose last name begins with N-Z should enroll Aug. 27. New students should enroll Aug. 28.

NEWS IN BRIEF

FARMERS MARKET

The Farmers Market is open from 4:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. Thursdays in downtown Garnett. Sweet corn, tomatoes, cucumbers, squash, baked goods, local meats and eggs will be available.

COMMUNITY BAND

Come hear The Garnett Area Community Band on the Courthouse Square Northside on Thursday, July 23 at 7 p.m. The band will perform patriotic, Broadway and movie favorites plus some stirring marches. Bring your lawn chairs and support the band. The band is striving to make this a summer tradition in Garnett. In case of inclement weather for an outdoor concert this summer, the First United Methodist Church, 205 S. Oak Street, Garnett, will be the alternate site for the scheduled concert. If it is raining or the band is not on the square, please come to the church. For more information, please call Beth McCord (785) 448-3795.

SUPPLY DONATIONS

ECKAN is in need of monetary, school supply or new back pack donations in order to provide all students with the supplies necessary to succeed this 2015-2016 school year. You may also "Adopt a Student" and provide all supplies for one child. Please contact Brandi Lopez or Jennifer Hartle for more information, (785) 448-3670.

COMMUNITY BREAKFAST

A community breakfast will be offered from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m. Saturday, July 25, at the First United Methodist Church, Second and Oak streets, Garnett.

MEMORIAL BRICKS

Inscribed bricks are being sold for the Anderson County Veterans Memorial and will be used in creation of the walking area. Bricks can be inscribed with whatever names the purchaser desires. A minimum $100 donation is requested. Forms for the bricks are available in the office of the Anderson County Clerk.

MEMORIAL NAMES

The Anderson County Veterans Memorial Committee is requesting the community's assistance in obtaining a precise and correct list of the veterans who have served our country from Anderson County. Lists from the different conflicts are available in the office of the Anderson County Clerk for review and revision.

MORE PHOTOS SOUGHT

Veterans or their family members who have additional "field photos" taken by their veterans while in service and who want to submit them to the Review for possible inclusion in "Anderson County Portraits of Honor" may submit them along with caption information to the Review to be scanned and returned. We've expanded the page count in the book and will have room for a number of such photos. Please submit your photos ASAP.

ANDERSON COUNTY BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS JULY 6

Chairman Jerry Howarter called the meeting of the Anderson County Commission to order at 9:00 AM on July 6, 2015 at the County Commission Room. Attendance: Jerry Howarter, Present; Eugene Highberger, Present; Leslie McGhee, Present. The pledge of allegiance was recited. Minutes of the previous meeting were approved as presented.

Rural Fire

Mick Brinkmeyer, Rural Fire Director and JD Mersman, Emergency Management Director met with the commission. They reported that when they get a grant for a new truck they have to take the worst truck out of service. JD reported he received a grant for $188,000 to purchase 32 air packs. The county's share will be $10,000. JD reported there is also another 50/50 grant through the forestry service to purchase radios.

Commissioner Highberger moved to fund $4,500 out of the Rural Fire Fund for the county share of radios along with the Kansas Forestry Grant. Commissioner McGhee seconded. Approved 3-0.

Road and Bridge

Lester Welsh, Road Supervisor and Ted Weber, Coughlin Company, met with the commission. Discussion was held on the milling and relaying of the road towards Westphalia. They have reset their equipment and relaid part of the road that was rough.

Cost of Living

Commissioner McGhee moved to allow a 3% cost of living raise with the county absorbing the raise in insurance and the employees share of insurance premiums remaining the same. Commissioner Highberger seconded. Approved 3-0.

Meeting adjourned at 12:05 PM due to no further business.

public," Valentine said. "The public might not be happy with it, but there's nothing we can do."

The two local departments switched from an analog to a digital communications system Friday, as part of a "Next Generation" requirement from the Federal Communications Commission. Law enforcement agencies across the country have begun to switch to the new digital system. There are a limited number of analog frequencies, and the digital system provides more options to transmit data.

A major reason law enforcement switch to a digital system using encrypted data is to prevent communications from being overheard by criminals. Valentine said that's an advantage to the new system, but it's not the primary reason for the change locally.

Most of the communication systems in Anderson County are old and out of date - so old, in fact, that it is difficult or impossible to repair items that break, Valentine said. Because of state and federal requirements, the county eventually would be forced to upgrade to the new digital system. Valentine said Anderson County was slated for the upgrade in either 2016 or 2017. State officials recently examined the county's equipment and bumped up that timeframe because of its age. Valentine said he was told Anderson County is one of the few agencies in the state that has been upgraded.

The system was changed for the sheriff and police departments Friday, with Colony to be upgraded in the next couple of weeks and Kincaid within the next year. The dispatch center will be upgraded by the end of the year, Valentine said.

The change doesn't apply to fire departments within the city and county. Major incidents like wrecks and fires still can be heard via the fire department frequencies, Valentine said.

Even someone who owns a digital scanner won't be able to hear the transmissions from law enforcement. That's because the data is encrypted, or scrambled. Valentine said he will not provide the code to the public.

Now, anyone monitoring local law enforcement frequencies will hear what sounds like a machine gun rather than normal radio chatter. He recommends people delete the frequencies for the police and sheriff's department; the other local frequencies should come through without problems.

Most of the expense related to the upgrade was paid for by a state grant. Valentine said he does not know how much the entire upgrade cost, because the state did not provide that information. The county recently purchased digital radios for officers, at a cost of between $650 to $750 per radio for a total of $23,000. That money came on the Parish Council until they moved to Garnett and joined the Holy Angels Catholic Church in Garnett in 2001.

 He was preceded in death by his parents, Anthony and Anna Weber; brothers, Eugene and Anthony Weber.
 Francis is survived by his wife, Margaret Weber, of the home; Richard Weber and wife Denise of Crowley, Texas; Julia Adams and husband Richard of Gig Harbor, Washington; two grandchildren, Jennifer and Jessica Weber; brothers, Paul Weber and wife Marilyn of Wellington, Kansas; Charles Weber and wife Karen of Beaver, Oklahoma; Allen Weber and wife Shirley of Wellington, Kansas; sisters, Mildred Eichman and husband James of Saint George, Kansas; Vera Kohls and husband Richard of Bella Vista, Arkansas; Berniece Zook and Norma Larson and husband Skip, all of League City, Texas.
 Memorial services will be held at 10:30 a.m., on Friday, July 24, 2015 at the Holy Angels Catholic Church, Garnett, Kansas. Family will greet friends one hour prior to the service at the church.
 Memorial contributions may be made to Holy Angels Catholic Church; the Garnett V.F.W. Post 6397; or to Knights of Columbus Council 1368.

Anderson County.
 Last year, city commissioners decided to expand the five-year program to apply to all parts of the city instead of defined blight areas. But Anderson County Commissioners balked at the expansion and decided to stick with the old program, offering the county's rebates only in the previously designated locations. As a result, someone who makes changes outside the blighted zones will receive a smaller rebate because they'll still have to pay regular county property taxes.
 Although city commissioners hoped the change would encourage owners to invest in their properties, it appears that hasn't been the case. One year later, only local mortician Reuben Feuerborn applied for the program rebates after he built storage units on West Seventh Avenue, according to city records.

 In recent years, Garnett commissioners have made a concentrated effort to clean up properties within the city limits, such as asking police officers to target people violating the city's nuisance laws. The change to the revitalization program was to be a way to reward people who invested in their properties, city leaders said at the time.
 It's likely city commissioners will review the program at some point to see if adjustments need to be made, City Manager Joyce Martin said. It's typical to periodically review such programs, she said. The advantage of the revitalization program is that it doesn't cost anything; administrative costs are taken out of the rebate.
 "I think they (commissioners) felt good about offering it to the entire city. And really, it's not hurting anybody," she said.

War is here on U.S. soil

REVIEW COMMENTARY

DANE HICKS, Publisher

at the Snake River Canyon developed millions of fans worldwide. His exploits forced the public to consider its own macabre conscience – he used to say he knew half the people watching his jumps were watching to see him crash.

Sometimes it happened – he holds the Guinness Book record for most bone fractures survived in a lifetime at 432. As opposed to the professional athletes and showmen of his time and after, he literally faced death for the entertainment of the crowd. He was, as coined by his promoters, the last real gladiator in the New Rome.

Though he frequently ran astray of the law in his younger days, Knievel drove home a pre-jump message from the launch ramp of his shows when he was certain to have the attention of the hoards of pre-teens and teens that followed him like a rock star: Stay away from drugs, and always wear a helmet if you're riding a motorcycle. That advice made him a pop star even parents could admire.

Topeka Harley Davidson acquired what's being billed as the largest collection of Knievel's personal possessions on display to outfit the memorial. It will make a fitting pilgrimage for those who remember Evel Knievel as the last great entertainer willing to literally give it all for the show.

Our enemies in the War on Terror haven't abated their attacks despite our force reductions in Iraq and Afghanistan. In addition to our civilians, our military and other government personnel have been proven targets on our own soil. Because of that they should be armed.

So we applaud 3rd District Congressman Kevin Yoder's endorsement of a California lawmaker's bill that would provide for American service members to be armed while working recruiting across the country.

The bill and the defensive mindset that sponsored it came too late to allow soldiers at Ft. Hood, Texas, to protect themselves in the 2009 attack by one of their own secretly radicalized officers who killed 13 soldiers, and too late to protect four Marines and a sailor who died in last week's shootings at a recruiting center in Chattanooga, Tn.

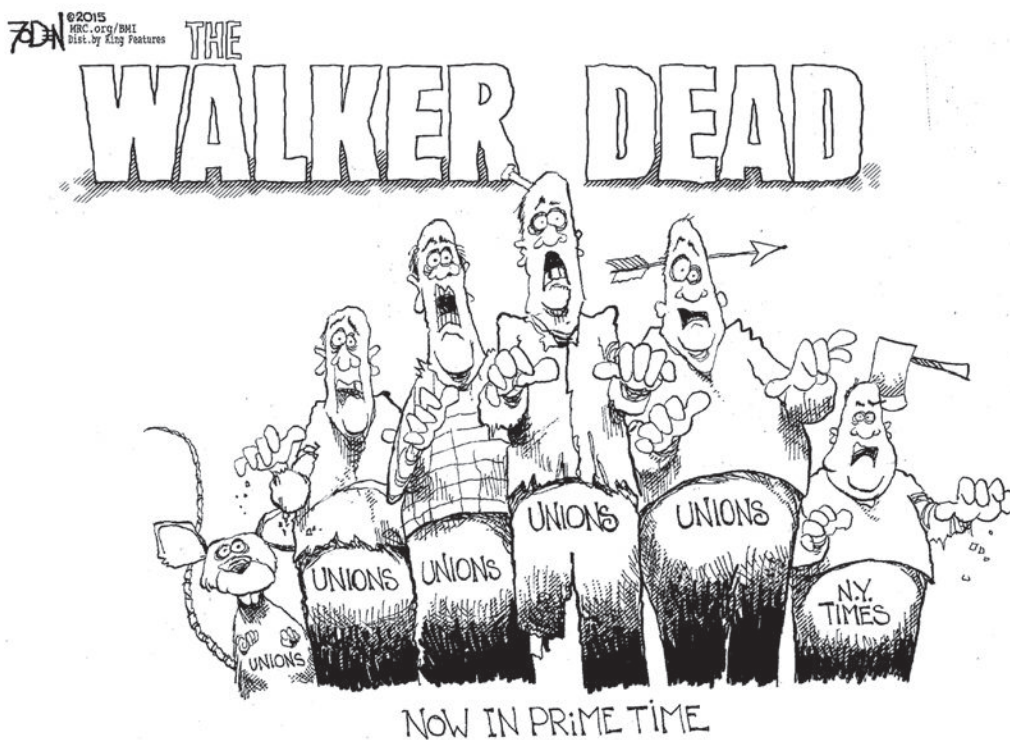

There was a time that Americans were chagrined at the idea of armed soldiers in our streets – it was seen as an example of the governmental militarism of lesser nations. But for the protection of soldiers on our soil against a suicidal enemy, we're going to have to get used to it.

The rest of Kansas' congressional delegation should follow suit. This bill can't become law fast enough.

A monument to Evel

If you're too young to remember the 1970s, you won't realize what a prize a motorcycle shop in Topeka recently claimed by wrangling a collection of original memorabilia to become the Evel Knievel Museum.

Knievel's motorcycle stunts at racing and other public events in the 1970s in a sense personified America's decade of glam while his eminent risk of his own life stood in contrast to the selfishness of the "me generation." His motorcycle jumps over buses, shark tanks, trucks, the fountains at Las Vegas' Caesar's Palace and eventually a failed attempt

The news media is reporting that 3,700 teachers are either retiring or leaving Kansas because of the budget cuts – which goes to show their interests were not in teaching the children, but in the money. There's a TV show called "Are You Smarter Than A 5th Grader," and I'll bet most of those teachers couldn't get past the 2nd grade questions without the help of those 5th graders, so good riddance to that 3,700 that wants to leave.

Don't count on our city commissioners and our city manager doing what they said they're going to do at the reservoir, like building a walking bridge in the spring of 2016 and fixing the roads and stuff. They told the ADA people they would have wheelchair access out to the physicians' building in 2013. That's two and a half years ago and it still hasn't happened. They'll say anything to take the pressure off of them but they don't live up to what they say, and that's both our commissioners and our city manager.

In his opinion piece "Flags Don't Kill People" Dane

Hicks exercised his free expression to address the issue of free expression in relation to the Confederate battle flag. Interestingly, Mr. Hicks appears to draw the line at free expression with South Carolina Gov. Nikki Haley. She apparently has no right to voice her opinion on the flag flying on the grounds of the South Carolina statehouse. For me, Mr. Hicks' often illogical essay on issues surrounding race and the Confederate battle flag crossed the line deep into racist territory itself. Did he actually pen the words "blacks and black supporters" and "black shortcoming"? Did he actually draw parallels between the motivations of Dylan Storm Roof and those of the Revs. Al Sharpton and Jesse Jackson? Mr. Hicks has the right to his opinion. He has the right to print it in his newspapers and share it with his friends. I'm just not sure why the (Parsons) Sun felt his offensive little rant was something to share with its readers. By the logic that Mr. Hicks and others have used in support of the Confederate battle flag, it would seem to be just fine if the German government decided to raise the Nazi flag over the Reichstag. After all, it is part of Germany's heritage. Men and women lived proudly under it. Believed in the cause it stood for. Fought bravely and loyally beside it. Died for it. So, does it matter that most Germans now see the swastika as a symbol of hate? Does it matter that most of the Western world now sees it as a symbol of hate? When it comes to a flag flying over a government building that is representative of the people, yes, it matters. It should matter in considering the display anywhere of any symbol that is widely seen as hateful. Mr. Hicks closed his piece with how we deny ownership of the real reasons we just can't get along. His apparent obliviousness to his own words illustrates his point beautifully. Maybe that's why the Sun printed it.

To whom it may concern: Why don't you stop boring us with all this Obama crap that you can't change. Start talking about something important like the drug problem in this town. Meth is out of control. The person so worried about the people staying at the lake – why don't you park at the gas station across from the hospital people are always b*ing about. I'm sure you can tell which ones are the meth heads, and worry about why they're still running around.

We are the camp hosts at the North Lake, and with all the concern about us being out there 24/7, it seems like someone has a lot of time on their hands to just drive around and around. Why don't you just pull in and talk to us face-to-face and we can discuss your concerns about us being out there? We were asked by the city to perform this service and it's worked out very well. We meet new people, we pick up trash, we mow, we clean bathrooms and we just are greeters. So just pull in and let's talk about this. Bye.

This is addressed to the person or persons concerned about the Garnett reservoir's boat ramp and roads and so on. He or she should have been in the courtroom when the city condemned our land to build the reservoir. The city told the jury that there was not going to be any recreation on the lake and that it was to be condemned for city water supply only. The 19 acres they condemned from us on the west of side of the lake where the boat docks and camping are located could well have still belonged to us. But the city seemed to think they could buffalo the jury, and they did. So we had 80 acres, and after all was said and done we ended up with 43 acres left without a water supply on the east side of the reservoir. So good luck with your recommendations to the city on these issues. They got to us years ago and we haven't forgot it.

Last week's Review was refreshing to read. Mr. Hicks' commentary and items in the Phone Forum gave me a glimmer of hope for this country. There are some white people who will take a stand and say "enough is enough." For way too long we have been dancing to a tune by a certain ethnic group that supposedly makes up 13 percent of the population. I for one am a very poor dancer especially if I don't like the tune that's being played.

I'm really surprised that Obama's response to the four Marines that were killed down in Tennessee wasn't that, 'well, we needed to thin out our military anyway.' Thank you.

Hillary rails against the Uber economy

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

RICH LOWRY, King Features Syndicate

Grandmothers may know best, as Hillary Clinton has put it in tweets, but judging by her latest economic speech, they don't necessarily get or like Uber.

The ride-sharing service is synonymous with the new efficiency and convenience enabled by information technology, and is anathema to regulators and entrenched interests everywhere. Add to the list of its critics the presumptive Democratic presidential nominee.

Hillary Clinton didn't mention Uber by name but warned about the disruption caused by it and other companies in the so-called sharing economy. Her husband wanted to build a bridge to the 21st century; Hillary worries about the downsides of "advances in technology and expanding global trade."

Republicans would be foolish not to welcome a contrast with Hillary over some of the hottest companies in the world. The Bush campaign let it be known that Jeb will order an Uber ride in San Francisco during a campaign swing there.

In the liberal imagination, the sharing economy is hurting workers by substituting part-time, contractor work for higher-paying full-time jobs that come with the full panoply of traditional benefits and protections. This line of attack creates the impression that these new firms are sucking workers from stereotypical 9-to-5 jobs so they can be dis-sessed by tech-savvy entrepreneurs. But obviously something is drawing workers to this kind of work.

In a study for Uber, Princeton University economist Alan Krueger found "drivers who partner with Uber appear to be attracted to the platform in large part because of the flexibility it offers, the level of compensation and the fact that earnings per hour do not vary much with hours worked, which facilitates part-time and variable hours."

Uber is really a paragon of choice. Its drivers decide when or if they are going to work, and customers call it up at will. It cuts out the middleman in the form of the shabby, highly regulated taxi cartels more concerned with their own interests than customer satisfaction or convenience.

And that gets to the real issue, which is control. The sharing economy tends to do an end run around regulators, and to challenge entrenched business interests that benefit from a cozy relationship with government.

As a disrupter of sclerotic practices in the economy and government, the sharing economy is predictably the subject of a furious regulatory and legal counter-assault. Uber has been a target in cities around the country, and abroad.

Presumably the CEOs of sharing-economy companies in the U.S. don't have to worry about being hunted down and jailed (at least not until Bernie Sanders is president). But when Hillary pledged to "crack down on bosses who exploit employees by misclassifying them as contractors," it was clear what she was talking about. She is signaling her intention to declare open season on innovators not to the liking of the regulatory-business complex.

One would think that new services that link up workers and customers in creative ways would be welcomed, not feared. But Democrats are increasingly the party of economic nostalgia.

EPA ethanol proposal bad for Kansas

LOCAL COMMENTARY

JEFF OESTMANN, EKAE

Dear Editor:

This year is historic for the shareholders and employees of the East Kansas Agri-Energy plant in Garnett. It was 10 years ago this summer that the first load of corn was delivered and the first gallon of ethanol was produced here. What started as an idea among farmers and businesspeople in eastern Kansas has changed the economic forecast for Anderson County. Every year the East Kansas Agri-Energy plant converts 16 million bushels of corn into more than 45 million gallons of fuel grade ethanol. We also produce 15,000 pounds of corn oil each day along with distiller grain that is a high quality feed ingredient that is ideal for livestock.

It is no coincidence that our company was founded in the same year that the EPA first introduced the Renewable Fuel Standards (RFS) which passed with bipartisan support and was expanded in 2007 to lay the foundation for development, innovation, and expansion of our nation's renewable fuels industry. These standards set a minimum amount of renewable fuel to be blended with traditional fossil-based fuels, which encouraged our company to continue looking forward at expansion opportunities.

However, last month the EPA announced a new proposal that reduces the amount of required renewable fuel to be produced. This decision being considered in Washington has the potential to destabilize the robust industry environment under which our company has thrived for the past decade. It is my hope that the EPA will reconsider this plan.

If you, like me, are concerned about this, tell the EPA. They are accepting comments until July 27, 2015. Submit your comments, identified by Docket ID No. EPA-HQ-OAR-2015-0111 at www.regulations.gov.

A strong RFS is critical to our local farmers and to the renewable fuel industry in Kansas.

'Women on Target' event set for September

Lake Garnett Sporting Club will host a Women on Target Shooting Clinic for women. The event, sanctioned by NRA will be held at the shooting range on Saturday September 12, 2015 from 8:00 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Shooters of all skill levels are welcome.

Staff will introduce women to the sport of recreational shooting. Participants will be instructed on safety and will be able to shoot a variety of firearms: handguns, rifles, shotguns, air rifles, black powder rifles, and archery. Women who would like to participate should get their reservations in early as there will be room for 30 participants. The organizers are also asking local businesses and individuals to serve as sponsors for the event to help with the costs.

To participate in or Sponsor the event, contact: Lake Garnett Sporting Club or Katie Rockers 785-835-6580

K-State Beef Conference coming to Melvern

Coffey County Extension and Frontier Extension District will be hosting one of this year's K-State Beef Conference locations at the Melvern Community Center, Melvern, Kansas, August 11th. Registration will begin at 9:00 a.m. followed by the program at 9:30 a.m. The meeting will conclude after lunch at 1:00 p.m. The Melvern Community Center is located at 102 NE Main. Thanks to our sponsors the meeting and meal are free to the attendees. Please RSVP by August 5th to Rod Schaub or Darl Henson, 785.828.4438 or 620.364.5313 respectively, so we can be sure to have a meal for you.

This year's conference theme is "Improved Management, Improved Nutrition, Improved Profits." When profits from cattle are slim, producers look for ways to reduce costs and improve their returns. However, when times are good we need to look for those things as well. Making changes now with higher prices may allow us to put more money back for when times are not as good.

"The idea of continuous improvement is an important management principle beef producers should employ, even when the cow-calf sector is profitable," said Bob Weaber, cow-calf specialist for K-State Research and Extension and one of the conference presenters. "Profitable times are good ones for managers to evaluate their operation and deploy new profit-improving practices, recognizing at some point ahead we'll experience leaner times."

Rich Porter of Porter Cattle Company of Reading, Kansas will give the keynote address. Porter will discuss building successful personal and professional relationships. Joining Porter at this year's conference will be speakers from K-State Research and Extension, including Justin Waggoner, beef systems specialist, and Chris Reinhardt, feedlot specialist. Waggoner will discuss low-stress cattle handling principles and techniques. Reinhardt will present information on the benefits of a year-round mineral supplementation strategy. He will cover motivations for supplementation, practical feeding advice and cost containment methods.

A "town hall" style question-and-answer session will follow lunch and all presenters will be on hand to answer producer questions. Producers are encouraged to bring their questions for the panel of speakers.

SMART BUSINESS: A new direction for farming

While food safety will always be the cornerstone of our farm and ranch production process, allegiance is making inroads into why and where consumers buy their products.

Sure, the majority of today's shoppers enjoy and often take for granted the expanded menu in supermarkets. They look forward to shopping in a meat case filled with dozens of new cuts, pre-packaged, oven or grill-ready, custom portioned, "natural" and pre-cooked products. Today's shoppers can't wait to get their mitts on the marinades, dry rubs, cooking bags and other specialty items designed for time strapped, two-income families.

There's also another growing group of consumers who are purchasing products based on trust and nostalgia. This notion of nostalgia, or pining, harkens back to the good old days - a time when events and lives were perceived as simpler, more wholesome, just downright better.

Many in this new group of consumers want to share in the story behind the product they are buying. They wish to establish a direct link and cultivate a relationship with the producer who provides them with tomatoes, asparagus, corn or that special meat dish for that back-yard barbecue, upcoming birthday bash or summer get-together.

There is a growing number of shoppers who yearn to develop a trust with producers who they believe will provide them with a quality, consistent, wholesome product time after time.

Tapping into this ever-changing consumer landscape, today's food producer - especially those located near large-population, urban areas - must not miss the opportunity to reach the hearts, minds and stomachs of consumers who feel strongly about their food.

Some consumer-savvy producers are already honed in on this concept. They've retooled their farming operation from a conventional commodities-only business to one that includes pick-your-own sweet corn, pumpkins, flowers and strawberries. They're giving people what they want.

Others now provide home deliveries of fresh produce and sell their produce at local farmers' markets. Still others have added a corn maze, day-on-the-farm activities, ice-cream socials and chuck-wagon cookouts, while inviting everyone from school-aged kids to wedding rehearsal parties - all to enjoy the farm and ranch way of life.

This new direction in farming is being driven by farmers and ranchers who are attempting to be less dependent on cheap land and vast acreage. This pioneer is tapping into the population surge and wealth of consumers who shop online, drive a couple cars including a pick-up and don't mind paying a premium for the food they feed their families.

Another common element of this non-traditional farmer is the belief that this shift in production style may not make them rich, but will keep them out in the open spaces, running their own business and doing what they enjoy and want to do. A large percentage of those willing to try something new are younger farmers. In many cases, a young farmer is often considered someone who has yet to reach the half-century mark.

For some, traditional farming became too expensive. Others decided traditional farming was no longer worth the effort. Whatever the reason, any farmer will tell you that farming is a difficult process. Still, most would agree they are glad they bought their land, and glad they're doing what they enjoy and want to do.

No doubt, more and more farmers will be looking at a different direction to stay on their land in the future. The land will continue to be farmed. There will no doubt be fewer farmers but those who are determined to stay in this business of agriculture will have to find innovative ways to farm.

Turf, flowers hit spotlight

HAYS - Anyone interested in learning the latest about flowers and lawns is encouraged to bring friends and neighbors to Horticulture Night at the K-State Agricultural Research Center in Hays on Tuesday, Aug. 25. The focus will be on the Prairie Star Flower Performance Trials and the low-water use turf demonstration plots. The event will occur near the north main entrance roadway through the Center.

This year, 216 flower cultivars are being evaluated on appearance and adaptability to Kansas' conditions. The public is invited to stroll down the grassed borders and take note of the varieties. Holly Dickman, Ellis Country Research and Extension horticulturalist will conduct the outdoor presentation. She will highlight flower varieties that performed well. And she will also discuss those which did not and offer an explanation as to why.

Jason Riegel, Hays water conservation specialist and Vaughn Sothman of Sharp's Brothers Seed Company will lead a turfgrass discussion. The demonstration is in conjunction with the Turf Conversion Program promoted by the City of Hays. This program encourages homeowners in Hays to convert their full-sun exposure lawns currently planted to a cool-season turf, to a low-water use turfgrass. The advantages of established warm-season grass is water conservation and less maintenance. Riegel will share his experience with planting warm-season turf as well as managing the Hays Turf Conversion Program. Attendees will see one bermudagrass and seven buffalograss varieties for visual comparison.

Questions about flower and vegetable gardening, as well as turfgrass, will be addressed but are not limited to these topics. Registration begins at 5:30 p.m. with the program starting at 6 p.m. The research center is located south of Hays at 1232 240th Ave. For more information call 785-625-3425 or check Facebook or Twitter @WKARC.

Archeological training 2005: Body to be exhumed after 30 years field school continues

These notes were taken from my daily log at the 2015 KATP Training Field School.

Thursday 4 June 2015

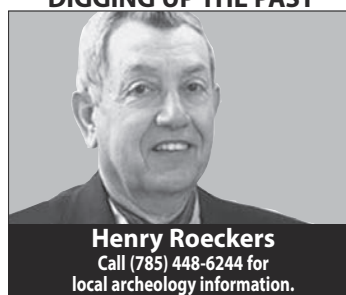

I actually drove out to Hays, Ks the day before the school began. Leaving home at 12:00 noon. I soon drove into a very bad thunder storm (blinding rain and very strong winds) about 20 miles west of Topeka. Driving on toward Salina I soon began to see hundreds of wind turbines and rock fence posts still standing. I stopped at a very nice roadside park east of Salina and called Kay. As I continued on I saw golden wheat fields and farmers haying and raising big clouds of dust in lots of fields. I arrived at the Hays Middle School at 4:55 pm, where our Headquarters was located. I called Kay to let her know of my safe arrival. After I registered and picked up my work schedule for the next two weeks, I soon met several KAA members that had also arrived early.

I drove to the gas station $2.44 9/10 per gallon and had supper at Long John Silvers. Back to the Hays Middle School for a good night's rest, only to be wakened to a terrific thunderstorm from 10:30pm -1:00am strong wind, small hail and oh my the wicked lightning.

Friday 5 June 2015

Everyone had to attend the Site Orientation at 8:00am-10:00am. At 10:15 we headed for our 1st day in the field only a 20 minute trip. Upon arriving at the site, we found a beautiful grass plateau on which we would be working. It is our very first day in the field, so most of our time was spent removing sod from the tops of all grids, so excavation can begin. I'm assigned as a full time screener and a few flint flakes and bone fragments began to show up in the screen. I received a phone call saying that Kay was being transported to a Hospital in Heston, Ks with a serious leg problem. She was attending the Christian Women's Conference at Camp Crosswinds at the time.

Supper at Wendy's --my evening was free.

Saturday 6 June 2015

My daughter Lori called and up-dated me on Kay's condition and I was not needed at home.

I found my first small perfect arrowhead while screening today. It was made from Wyoming Hills heat treated Red Jasper stone. The first pottery shards and stone hide scrapers were found today.

Supper at Wendy's. Attended a very interesting talk given by Deb Aaron and Tom Fleming entitled: Minersville, Ks 1880-1945. There were at least 31 coal mines in this area years ago.

July 19, 2005

More than 30 years since the body of an unidentified man was found southeast of Garnett and eventually buried in Garnett Cemetery, the Kansas Bureau of Investigation hopes the exhumation of the body and new investigative techniques may reveal the man's identity - and possibly his killer. District judge Tom Sachse signed an exhumation order on a request from the KBI and county attorney Fred Campbell. The body, buried May 2, 1973, after an investigation yielded no leads in the case, is set to be exhumed July 29. The badly decomposed body of the man estimated to be between 18 and 20 years of age was discovered at the Margaret Mulligan farm southeast of Garnett on April 18, 1973.

Anderson County Commissioners awarded the contract for clean-up of the former Scipio dump to Matador Construction Monday after delaying the decision one week while the county engineer verified the math on the bid sheets. The lane company bid $33,411.91 for the work, considerably lower than the other bids. The losing bids were in the range of $50,000 to $55,000, but the Kansas Department of Health and Environment had budgeted only up to $43,394.16 for the job.

July 17, 1995

As the temperature edged past the 100 degree mark for the third day in a row Friday, area residents turned up their air conditioners, used lots of water and generally tried to stay cool. So how hot did it get? The official readings at the Garnett Municipal Airport showed highs of 100 degrees Tuesday, 101 degrees Wednesday and 101 degrees Thursday. A spokesperson at the Anderson County Hospital said Friday that a couple of people had been treated at the hospital for dehydration, but no cases of heat stroke a much more serious and life-threatening condition, were reported.

A plan to begin the gradual replacement of city sewer lines will show up as an 8 percent increase in sewer charges on utility bills of city residents in September. The Garnett City Commission adopted the plan Tuesday night, which is designed to begin the replacement of aging sanitary sewer lines in the city, any of which were originally laid in 1911.

July 22, 1985

Comments of Senator Nancy Kassebaum: On July 9, the Senate passed legislation which would modify significantly the federal regulation of firearms. As is often the case, the debate in the Senate, in the media and among interest groups focused on "pro-gun" and "anti-gun" labels. Common sense and moderation were shuffled to the background and litmus test votes were recorded for use by one side or the other in the next election. Perhaps the most significant flaw in the Senate action was the failure to maintain the ban on the interstate sale of handguns. I supported an amendment which would have permitted the interstate sale of rifles and shotguns while retaining current law prohibiting the similar sale of handguns.

July 19, 1915

From the Kincaid Dispatch: A new road law which recently became effective provides that when the highway crosses a railroad track, the crossing shall be sixteen feet wide and that the road shall be level for 10 feet from the center of the track each way.

From the Topeka Capital: In May and June, more rain fell in Kansas than in any two months since the weather bureau was opened in Topeka, 29 years ago. The total figures showed that 13.90 inches fell, which, added to that of the first four months of the year, makes a total of 29.38 inches for the first half of 1915. If Topeka gets only the normal rainfall for the next six months, 43.68 inches will have fallen and 1915 will be one of the three wettest years on record.

Arthritis, chronic conditions make life more difficult

TOPEKA, Kan. - A recent report from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention found adults with a chronic condition are more likely to report serious psychological distress and limitations on social activities outside their home. Adults with arthritis as one of their chronic conditions are even more likely to report these negative effects. Increasing physical activity and participating in self-management programs are effective non-drug options to reduce pain and improve function for people with chronic conditions.

In Kansas more than 500,000 adults have been diagnosed with arthritis and about 3 in 4 Kansas adults with arthritis have at least one other chronic condition. Chronic conditions include arthritis, asthma, cancer, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD), diabetes, hepatitis, hypertension, heart disease, kidney disease and stroke.

Kansans with chronic conditions are able to access resources supported by the Kansas Department of Health and Environment (KDHE) to get needed physical activity to be healthier and happier. KDHE works with partners across Kansas to support physical activity and self-management education programs that reduce the negative effects of chronic conditions, including arthritis.

KDHE supported physical activity and self-management programs include Chronic Disease Self-Management Education programs developed by Stanford University (available in English and Spanish), the Walk With Ease program developed by the Arthritis Foundation, and EnhanceFitness classes that are starting at several YMCAs across Kansas. For more information about programs designed specifically for people with arthritis and/or other chronic conditions, visit www.toolsforbetterhealthks.org or contact the Kansas Arthritis Program at 785-296-2330, abridges@kdheks.gov.

Summer Ball Players Heat Things Up

The Anderson County Review/Dane Hicks
Straton McGhee of the Greeley Red team fires a pitch in Tuesday's game with Mound City in 12 & Under boys baseball action. Greeley won the game.

The Anderson County Review/Dane Hicks
Edgecomb Builders' catcher Colton Palmer looks for a verdict from the umpire on Hunter Bones' slide after a play at the plate in the Edgecomb versus Richmond game Tuesday night.

High temperatures call for common-sense actions

From 1999-2003, there were 3,442 deaths reported nationwide that were caused by exposure to extreme heat, an annual average of 688. Of those for whom age information was available, seven percent were younger than 15, 53 percent were between 15-64 years old, and 40 percent were 65 years or older.

With current weather forecasts indicating temperatures in the mid-90s and higher accompanied by high heat indexes, the Kansas Division of Emergency Management is urging Kansans to use caution and common sense when venturing outside. Similar in nature to the winter wind chill factor, the heat index, given in degrees Fahrenheit, is an accurate measurement of how hot it really feels when relative humidity is added to the actual air temperature. A heat index of 105 to 130 degrees means prolonged exposure or physical activity may result in sunstroke, heat cramps, heat exhaustion or heatstroke.

As conditions warrant, each National Weather Service Weather Forecast Office may issue the following heat-related outlook, watch, or warning for their forecast area:

Excessive Heat Outlook: Issued when the potential exists for an excessive heat event in the next 3-7 days. An Outlook provides information to those who need considerable lead time to prepare for the event, such as public utilities, emergency management, and public health officials.

Excessive Heat Watch: Issued when conditions are favorable for an excessive heat event in the next 12 to 48 hours. A Watch is issued when the risk of a heat wave has increased, but its occurrence and timing is still uncertain. A Watch provides enough lead time so those who need to prepare can do so, such as cities who have excessive heat event mitigation plans.

Excessive Heat Warning /

Advisory: Issued when an excessive heat event is expected in the next 36 hours. These products are issued when an excessive heat event is occurring, is imminent, or has a very high probability of occurring. The Warning is used for conditions posing a threat to life or property. An Advisory is for less serious conditions that cause significant discomfort or inconvenience and, if caution is not taken, could lead to a threat to life and/or property.

Here are some guidelines to follow when a heat emergency is declared:

- Stay indoors as much as possible and limit exposure to the sun;

- Stay on the lowest floor out of the sunshine if air conditioning is not available;

- Consider spending the warmest part of the day in public buildings such as libraries, schools, movie theaters, shopping malls, and other community facilities. Circulating air can cool the body by increasing the perspiration rate of evaporation;

- Eat well-balanced, light, regular meals;

- Drink plenty of water. Persons who have epilepsy or heart, kidney, or liver disease, are on fluid-restricted diets, or have a problem with fluid retention should consult a doctor before increasing liquid intake;

- Limit intake of alcoholic beverages;

- Dress in loose-fitting, lightweight, and light-colored clothing that covers as much skin as possible;

- Protect head and face by wearing a wide-brimmed hat;
- Check on family, friends, and neighbors who do not have air conditioning, and who spend much of their time alone;

- Never leave children or pets alone in closed vehicles;

- Avoid strenuous work during the warmest part of the day. Use a buddy system when working in extreme heat, and take frequent breaks.

Know These Heat Disorder Symptoms!

Sunburn: Redness and pain. In severe cases, swelling of skin, blisters, fever and headaches. First aid: Ointments for mild cases if blisters appear and do not break. If breaking occurs, apply sterile dressing. Serious, extensive cases should be seen by a physician.

Heat Cramps: Painful spasms usually in muscles of the legs and abdomen possible. Heavy sweating. First Aid: Firm pressure on cramping muscles, or gentle massage to relieve spasm. Give sips of water. If nausea occurs, stop giving water.

Heat Exhaustion: Heavy sweating, weakness, skin that is cold, clammy and pale. Pulse is thready. Normal temperature is possible. Fainting and vomiting. First Aid: Get victim out of the sun. Lie down and loosen clothing. Apply wet, cool cloths. Fan or move victim to air conditioned room. Give sips of water. If nausea occurs, stop giving water. If vomiting continues, seek immediate attention.

Heat Stroke (or sunstroke): High body temperature (106 degrees or higher). Hot, dry skin. Rapid and strong pulse. Possible unconsciousness. Seek immediate medical attention.

Don't forget Fido and Fluffy KDEM also reminds the public to remember their pets during heat emergencies. The Humane Society of the United States offers these safety suggestions for pets:

- Never leave a pet unattended in the car on a warm or sunny day;

- When taking a dog for a walk on a hot day, plan for shorter walks midday when temperatures peak, and longer walks in the morning and evening when it's cooler. Hot sidewalks can burn the pads on a dog's paws, so walk on the grass when possible;
- Pet rabbits should be kept indoors because they don't tolerate heat well.

- Shade and water are a must.

Anytime your pet is outside, make sure he or she has protection from heat and sun -- a doghouse does not provide relief from heat -- and plenty of fresh, cool water. Heat stroke can be fatal for pets as well as people.

In case of an emergency, it's important to be able to identify the symptoms of heat stress caused by exposure to extreme temperatures. When in doubt, contact your veterinarian immediately. Some signs of heatstroke are:

- Heavy panting;
- Glazed eyes;
- A rapid heartbeat;
- Restlessness;
- Excessive thirst;
- Lethargy;
- Fever;
- Dizziness;
- Lack of coordination;
- Profuse salivation;
- Vomiting;
- A deep red or purple tongue;
- Unconsciousness.

If the animal shows symptoms of heatstroke, take steps immediately to gradually lower the body temperature and contact your veterinarian as soon as possible.

Richmond Library teaches safety tips

This summer the library has had two educational programs. The first on June 24th was called Operation "Save-A-Life". We had Dawn Hasting, a nurse at Ransom Memorial and her husband Matt Hasting an EMT come to the library and talk to the kids about what nurses and EMT do, the kids also got a tour of the ambulance. They really liked that part. Many thanks to Dawn and Matt for taking the time to come and talk to the kids!

Then on June 29th the Richmond Fire Department gave a Fire Safety program. Fireman Phil showed the kids how to get on the floor in a fire; he showed them fire equipment, told them to make a plan on where to meet in case of fire. He was very informative. when the program was over the kids all got fireman hats and with some help from Modern Woodmen of America club 499-1L the kids got a few extra gifts, firemen ducks, fire extinguisher water guns and a few other items. The kids had a great time at the fire station, many thanks to fireman Phil for the great job and to all the volunteer firefighters!

4-H Scholarship Quilt constructed

This quilt will be auctioned off at 7 pm on Friday, August 7th at the beginning of the 4-H/FFA livestock sale held at the 2015 Anderson County Fair. Proceeds from the sale of this quilt will benefit the $1,000 4-H Scholarship that is awarded each year to a graduating Anderson County 4-Her. This year's recipient is Seth Wolken.

The blocks used to make this quilt are from entries in the 2013 Anderson County Fair Quilt Block Contest. Using a county fair theme, the fabrics were available in kits from Country Fabrics, Garnett. Quilters entered quilt blocks made using fabric from kits. Under the supervision of Terri Gifford and Ruth Teis, Pieces & Patches Quilt Guild members; Abbie Fritz, Jenna Schmit, Remington Hedges, Rebecca Sprague and Kendra Sprague helped sew the borders of each block to get the quilt ready for quilting. On the back of the quilt are the names of each person who made a quilt block used in making this quilt.

The business of failure

Some people don't like to talk about failure because they don't want to be negative. I'm here to tell you if you're in business or considering getting into business on your own, you better explore failure in your mind every single day.

Because that's the best way to keep it as far away from you as possible.

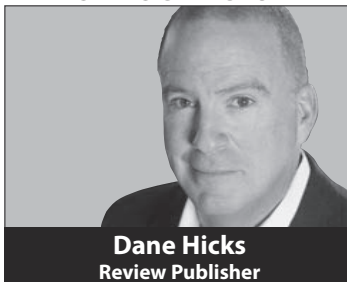

The statistics vary of course based on who compiled them and how different industries are grouped, but a huge – and I mean a huge number of start-up businesses and first-time business people fail within their first two years. It's as much as 50 percent and sometimes more depending on the industry. Failures continue at a slower rate, on average, all the way up to year 17 when the curve seems to level out at a set rate of annual failure.

Most of those failures are complete failures. Small percentages of closures within those statistics salvage something; they're either purchased by another competitor because they had value or their principals got hired away to other better paying options. But by far most fail completely, meaning they run out of money, end up with unsatisfied debt to lenders and/or vendors or worse yet tax liens from federal or state government, or are forcibly closed through foreclosure or eviction.

These are the three major reasons for failure. Anticipate and avoid them:

- 1) The first is easy – running out of cash. Start-ups either don't start out adequately capitalized and/or they fail to generate adequate cash flow in their initial operating months. If you're starting a business you should have enough cash-in-hand to survive 90 days without any revenues – payroll, rent, utilities, taxes, marketing costs, inventory utilities – the works. If you haven't taken advantage of (free) SBA or regional Small Business Development Center assistance to learn how to budget, you're on a suicide mission.
- 2) Directly related to the above – misunderstanding or ignorance of the market. You simply must have your head wrapped around how, why and to what extent potential customers need your product or service. How much business is out there now? Who are the main providers? What would make some of their customers switch to you and how much is the market expected to grow? What makes you unique enough to steal market share from the competition? How will you identify and market yourself to prospects? If you haven't spent the time to really work out these aspects – and that means more than just working for someone else in the industry for a few years – you will probably fail.

HOW TO SELL STUFF

Dane Hicks
Review Publisher

3) The gasket-blowing boss: As if the above aren't enough to trip up the start-up, dysfunction in the boss is another major contention. Stress of business will exacerbate any weakness you have. Booze, gambling, marital problems, anger issues – all will become a heavier burden to bear under the stress of being an entrepreneur. Get on the road to counseling. Steve Jobs may have been able to afford his eccentricities, but you better have similar brilliance to compensate if you want to overcome yours.

Having a successful small business is a wonderful thing. A real understanding of the pitfalls of going into business for yourself will help you make better decisions and may save you from financial devastation that can last years.

KDOT employees celebrate service anniversaries

The Kansas Department of Transportation expresses its appreciation for employees celebrating state years-of-service anniversaries in August. KDOT is proud to acknowledge them for the long-term dedication they have provided to the state of Kansas.

Those celebrating 20 years of service include: Shawn Denny, Highway Maintenance Supervisor, Garnett.

Those celebrating 10 years of service include: Jon Sherwood, Equipment Operator Midpoint, Colony.

Former Kansas Timeshare Company's ID Stolen

Better Business Bureau (BBB) serving Nebraska, South Dakota, The Kansas Plains and Southwest Iowa has been contacted by consumers from across the US and Canada who were seeking information about Wilson County Abstract Company, Inc. The consumers had been called by representatives from the company asking them to list their timeshares with them.

BBB found a company called Wilson County Abstract that had been located in Fredonia, Kansas, but it had "forfeited" its Secretary of State corporate listing. It closed in 2012. BBB also discovered that in March, 2015 a website using the name Wilson County Abstract Company was created, and the business was reinstated using the previous owner's Federal ID Number. BBB contacted the former owner who was unaware that her corporate listing had been hijacked.

BBB President Jim Hegarty explained, "It is very important that when a business decides to close and forfeit its corporate listing, it should also dissolve its corporation status. Even though a company's former name is known, someone wanting to steal its identity would not have access to the vital information of the previous business that is needed to reopen it."

In addition, Wilson County Abstract Company's website states that it's located in Topeka, Kansas. BBB's investigation found that there is no company by this name physically located in Topeka, but it had rented a "virtual" office space from a realtor there. The proper paperwork had been completed, using the former business's information, and its first month's rent had been paid by credit card. Its second month's rental payment could not be processed by the lessor who claims that the renter has been "very evasive."

Fortunately, there are currently no victims that have lost any money because the consumers contacted BBB to get information about Wilson County Abstract Company before doing business with it, said Hegarty.

BBB advises consumers to:

- Be skeptical if you are randomly contacted by someone who wants to sell your timeshare or anything else you may own.
- Make sure the business is trustworthy. Don't agree to anything on the phone or online until you've had a chance to check out the reseller. Contact BBB at bbb.org, the Attorney General and the local consumer protection agencies in the state where the reseller is located and ask if the company has any complaints on file

• Use a timeshare appraisal service. To do this for U.S. based timeshares, you'll need to research the company with the real estate commission in the state in which your timeshare property is located.

Businessidtheft.org recommends that both active and closed businesses protect and monitor their state's registration to avoid Business Identity Theft by:

- Enrolling in email alerts.
- Many Secretaries of State are beginning to offer free email alert services that can notify you when your business registration information, (name, address, registered agent, and business owner and officer information) has been changed or updated. Enrolling in such a service can provide early warning of potential fraud. Use the State Resources page at www.businessidtheft.org to find more information about the availability of these services, as well as additional resources, in your state or territory.
- Regularly reviewing your business registration information online.

If your Secretary of State or Corporations Division does not yet offer email alerts, you can still go to their website and use the public "Business Entity Search" to enter your business name and review the information on file for your business. You should also periodically check any past businesses that you may have closed, to ensure that they have not been fraudulently reinstated.

MANHATTAN – Kansas is hosting an unwanted traveler this year – wheat flag smut has made its way into the state's wheat fields for the first time since the 1930s. The fungal disease poses no threat to humans or animals and has no effect on grain quality, but can reduce yields.

The finding is significant because some countries that buy U.S. wheat have import restrictions on grain produced in areas where flag smut is known to occur. Kansas is typically the No. 1 U.S. wheat-producing state and typically grows about 20 percent of the total U.S. crop. Annual average wheat production for the past five years has been about 328 million bushels, according to Kansas Wheat.

The fungus Urocystis tritici causes flag smut, which was initially found in a Rooks County field in May during routine crop monitoring by K-State Research and Extension and the Kansas Department of Agriculture. Since then, it has been confirmed in 39 other Kansas locations, mostly in north central and south central parts of the state, according to the KDA. The percentage of infected tillers found in those fields, however, has been low.

To help growers identify and determine the best ways to prevent the disease, Kansas State University has a new fact sheet (Publication MF3235) available online. It includes photos of infected wheat, as well as background information.

The fungus can survive in the soil for at least four years, and can be moved to adjacent fields by wind, plant debris, or equipment, said Erick De Wolf, K-State Research and Extension plant pathologist.

Most of this year's winter wheat crop has been harvested, but it won't be long before growers start planting a new crop this fall.

"In general, the risk of infection is greatest when winter wheat is planted into warm, moist soils," said DeWolf, who authored the K-State fact sheet.

"Fungicide seed treatments are the most effective way to manage flag smut," he said. "Crop rotations with non-host crops such as soybeans, sorghum, or corn provide time for the fungal population to decline between wheat crops and lower the risk of infection in subsequent years."

More information about wheat flag smut in Kansas, including steps that the KDA is asking farmers to take, is available on the KDA website.

The disease is relatively easy to manage, but because of the potential trade implications, the KDA is taking the detection of the disease very seriously, said Jeff Vogel, manager of the KDA's Plant Protection and Weed Control Program. In an interview on K-State Research and Extension's Agriculture Today radio program, Vogel said that because infected wheat has tillers that are stunted and below the canopy, it can't be observed from the road or above the plant.

"You have to look under the canopy," Vogel said. A working group is being formed which will include representatives of the KDA and K-State Research and Extension, to look at long-term solutions to address flag smut and other diseases, Vogel said.

The full interview with Vogel is available on the K-State Research and Extension Agriculture Today web page.

Notice on Kansas creates 10-day concealed grace period for online carry rules vehicle tag renewals

(Published in The Anderson County Review Tuesday, July 21, 2015)

ORDINANCE NO. 4112

AN ORDINANCE REPEALING THE PROVISIONS OF TITLE 6, CHAPTER 1, SECTION 33 OF THE MUNICIPAL CODE, REGULATING CONCEALED CARRY OF FIREARMS; AND REPEALING THE ENTIRETY OF TITLE 6, CHAPTER 5, OF THE MUNICIPAL CODE, REGULATING AIR GUNS AND FIREARMS.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE GOVERNING BODY OF THE CITY OF GARNETT, KANSAS: SECTION 1. Title 6, Chapter 1, Section 33 of the Municipal Code, regulating concealed carry of firearms, is hereby repealed. SECTION 2. Title 6, Chapter 5 of the Municipal Code regulating air guns and firearms, is hereby repealed in its entirety. SECTION 3. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and its publication in an official newspaper of the City of Garnett, Kansas. PASSED this 14th day of July, 2015.

TOPEKA – Kansas vehicle customers will be able to renew their tags online on the last day of the month without worry of a ticket for expired car registration.

Starting July 1, 2015 drivers who have renewed online at KSWebTags.org will have a 10 day grace period from the day their tags expire to receive the new decal in the mail.

Customers will be able to print and carry the online renewal paid receipt in their vehicle until the decal arrives or save the confirmation receipt on their mobile device. Either will serve as proof to law enforcement that the customer has renewed their registration and are waiting for the decal to arrive.

The grace period will not apply to those who renewed by mail. It also does not apply to those who do not complete their registration before their tags expire, which occurs on the last day of each month.

The Division of Vehicles proposed the change to address concerns from county treasurers about long lines that consistently form in offices statewide at the end of each month.

"People who wait until the last days of the month currently must go into an office and stand in line to receive their decal before the end of the month or risk getting a ticket before their new decal arrives after renewing online," said Director of Vehicles Lisa Kaspar. "This will allow customers to renew online instead of in person right up until the last day of the month."

I, Phyllis Gettler, Anderson County Clerk do hereby certify that the above is a list of the claims approved by the Anderson County Commission during the second quarter of 2015.

Notice of special use permit

(Published in The Anderson County Review, Tuesday, July 21, 2015)

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING BEFORE THE GARNETT PLANNING COMMISSION

The Garnett Planning Commission has received one application for a special use permit and one application for a variance. TAKE NOTICE that both matters will be considered on the 11 day of August, 2015, commencing at 6:00 p.m. at the Town Hall Center, 125 West Fifth Avenue, Garnett, Kansas.

1. Application for Special Use permit filed by Orscheln Farm and Home LLC to enclose exterior merchandise display area in connection with a proposed farm and home supply store with a fence 8 feet in height at 700 North Maple Street, Garnett, Kansas.

2. Application for Variance file by Orscheln Farm and Home LLC to utilize a part of the parking lot space for exterior merchandise display in connection with a proposed farm and home supply store at 700 North Maple Street, Garnett, Kansas. If granted the variance would result in fewer than the minimum require3 customer parking spaces being available. The complete application(s) may be viewed during regular business hours at City Hall. The purpose of the hearing is to take comments from the public which will be considered by the Planning Commission in making its decision regarding each application. At the hearing, any party may appear in person or be represented by an agent or an attorney.

Band to perform Thursday

The Garnett Area Community Band will perform the final concert of the Summer Season on the Courthouse Square Northside on Thursday, July 23 at 7:00 p.m. John Bechen, Director, has asked the Band to select their favorites for this program.

The Band thanks everyone who have come to our Concerts this summer. A special "Thank You" to all the musicians who have traveled from out of town to join. Such towns represented have been Lawrence, Olathe, Paola, Osawatomie, LaCygne, Richmond, Westphalia and Burlington.

Bring your lawn chairs and support the Band. In case of inclement weather for an outdoor concert this summer, the First United Methodist Church, 205 S. Oak Street, Garnett, will be the alternate site for the scheduled concert. If it is raining or the Band is not on the Square, please come to the Church

The Band will begin their Fall 2015 Season in September. For more information, please call Beth McCord (785) 448-3795. Special thanks to Beth for providing Band Music this summer.
