Teen survives train crash

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 9-8-2015 / Photos Submitted

Tanner Tush, 15, at right, said he hopes other drivers will think about his story and be more careful when approaching train tracks. His Honda Accord, above, collided with an oncoming train Tuesday evening, Sept. 1, southwest of Garnett. Tush said he was listening to the radio and not paying close enough attention when he crossed the tracks in front of the train.

Tush learns important lesson from train wreck

Teen pulled onto tracks in front of oncoming train, but escaped with minor injuries

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Tanner Tush, 15, hasn't been driving long, but he's already learned a powerful lesson he hopes will benefit even more experienced drivers: Pay attention and look both ways before crossing railroad tracks.

Tanner, a sophomore at Anderson County High School and the son of Ben and Renee Tush, walked away with only bruises after colliding with a train Tuesday, Sept. 1, on a rural Garnett road. Tanner and his family say they're grateful the accident wasn't worse, and hope other drivers will read about his story and be more cautious at railroad crossings.

The accident happened as Tanner was driving home after football practice at ACHS a little before 6:30 p.m. Typically, he takes Mitchell Road south of Garnett, then follows a curve onto Missouri Road to his home near 1500 and Missouri. But because of construction work, someone was blocking much of Missouri Road so he took a longer route that would swing southwest and bring him back to 1500 Road.

Tanner thought he was being cautious as he approached a railroad crossing on 1500 Road near Missouri - just a quarter mile or so from his home. The crossing is on top of a slight hill, with no crossing arms or light signals, and two sets of tracks. Tanner slowed, looking to his left before entering the crossing. His windows were rolled up, with the radio cranked to a high volume. He didn't hear the train whistle frantically blowing, and didn't see the train bearing down on him from the right.

The accident happened so quickly, Tanner couldn't recall specific details.

Trial date set in child rape case

Former firefighter, EMT facing charges of rape against 10-year-old girl

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - A trial is scheduled for later this month for a former public servant facing charges of rape against a 10-year-old girl.

If convicted, Michael J. Spellmeier could face 25 years to life in prison. He was arrested and charged in May with four counts of rape between Oct. 1, 2014, and April 24, 2015.

Spellmeier worked in various capacities of local public protection during the past 20 years, including as a former firefighter, EMT and emergency services dispatcher. Most recently, he was a firefighter for the City of Garnett until May 22, the day after his arrest.

A trial is scheduled to begin Sept. 30 and is expected to last three days.

Spellmeier was arraigned July 13 and pleaded not guilty. Earlier, on June 30, he waived his right to a preliminary hearing, which is an opportunity for the defendant to hear the state's case against him and for the judge to decide if there is enough evidence to continue with the case.

Spellmeier remains in jail on $250,000 bond, but has been

Corn harvest kicks off

Erratic growing season leads to unpredictable harvest, ag expert says

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Area farmers headed into corn fields this week to kick off a corn harvest expected to vary about the same as the weather during the summer growing season.

It was a tumultuous season for crops, with spring rains and cool temperatures delaying planting in most fields. After the corn finally got into the ground, long periods of hot, dry temperatures were broken by occasional rain storms, high winds and sometimes cooler temperatures. Some parts of the county were deluged with rain at times, while areas nearby stayed nearly moisture free.

As a result, the corn crop so far looks to vary drastically from field to field, according to Shannon Blocker, agriculture agent with the Frontier Extension District in Anderson County. She said it's difficult to predict, at this early stage, what kind of harvest will result.

"I've heard everything under the sun," she said about early corn condition reports. "It's hard to make generalizations,

Big 3 fall sports still attract most kids in USD 365

Football, volleyball cross country steady or growing in numbers

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Some of the most popular sports - football, volleyball and cross country - continue to attract the most students at Anderson County Jr./Sr. High School, while other activities like band, music and girls golf may be losing ground.

USD 365 Board of Education members received their annual "Fall Activities Report" at a meeting Thursday, Sept. 3. Some board members said they were concerned that interest in the girls golf program, especially, seems to be waning. Only four girls have signed up to play golf this year, the same number as 2014 and 2012. In 2013 and 2011, eight girls joined the golf team. There were nine girls in 2010, and six in 2009.

Fall activity participation seems to be slightly lower across the board, which likely reflects decreased enrollment at the school in general. But the most popular activities continue to be in the three primary sports, with more than half of participating students taking part in one of those three activities, or 206 out of 410 (some students participate in more than one activity).

Minutes of the previous meetings on August 13th and 17th were approved as presented.

He feels that if we have a different company to do it periodically we will get better inspections. Dan Harden, BG Consultants was also present. Lester presented a bond for Coughlin Company for the work on 1600 Rd road to Westphalia. The bond will cover materials but not labor if any repairs need to be done in the next year. Commissioner Highberger moved to accept the bond as presented by the Coughlin Company. Commissioner McGhee seconded. Approved 3-0. Discussion was held on the Cedar Creek bridge repair. Highway permit 15,0824:1 for CenturyLink was presented and approved. Insurance has decided to pay off the county on the truck that was rolled several months ago and is working with Lester on deciding on the price. Lester will now have to look at purchasing a new truck and he has another truck that needs replaced. Dan presented drawings of the proposed shop building.

this year more than some other years."

So far, corn coming into Valley R Agri-Service in Garnett has been good quality, but smaller yields than last year, said George Miller, an employee at the company. Last year's corn harvest brought yields well above average, at around 120-130 bushels per acre. Miller estimates yields are down about 30 bushels or so from last year, closer to the average of 80 to 90 bushels per acre. Like Blocker, he said the quality and quantity depend on the field, which varies greatly this year.

It's still early in the harvest season, though, with an estimated 20 to 25 percent of area fields harvested.

Blocker estimates this year's corn crop will fare better than soybeans, although it's still too early to tell. Soybeans also got off to a late start because of weather delays, and early indicators show those late-planted beans are smaller than normal. Some plants themselves may be large, she said, but that doesn't mean they will yield much at harvest time. But beans can be resilient, especially when it comes to dry weather, so Blocker said there is still hope for a decent soybean harvest later this fall.

Both corn and soybeans have battled insect problems - corn ear worm, which also affects soybeans, has taken a significant bite out of the marketable part of the grain, Blocker said. She expects that to have an impact on yields.

"This close to harvest, there's not much you can do about it," Blocker said.

Instead of tearing down Garnett, let's work to grow it

The demolition order for yet another house in the City of Garnett, this time at 134 W. 6th, points out a disturbing trend in our county seat. Like its commercial buildings, residential housing in Garnett is in a demonstrated state of decline, and we should be turning our development efforts to focus on that issue.

It's generally a problem which we would conceive afflicts blighted urban areas – the degradation of traditional single family housing units, either owned or rented, in areas beset by crime and poverty and where people simply don't want to live any more.

Is that Garnett? Consider the math. In recent years, while mortgage interest rates have remained low and mortgage lenders have to some degree reopened post-recession lending, Garnett has issued only a handful of new construction permits for residential housing. It currently has three houses targeted for demolition – about an annual average the past several years.

To the contrary, in rural Anderson County – in some cases only a few hundred yards from the city limits – the county's planning and zoning office has issued 10 new construction permits in 2015 alone – upwards of 200 since the county implemented its zoning plan in 1999.

Fewer people want to live in Garnett, but in many, many cases they want to live close by enough that they can take advantage of numerous city services. City facilities, parks, recreation services, youth activities, water sales to rural water districts serving rural homes, assisted fire protection, proximity to shopping and commercial services like insurance and banking – even proximity to government offices – rural residents depend on these conveniences more than they know and often take them for granted while enjoying the avoidance of the city's tax levy.

Hence the reason for solid growth in rural residency and the sliding number of livable homes in the City of Garnett.

And it isn't just the loss of housing that's notable – numerous properties in town clearly illustrate the owners/renters lack of attention to residential hygiene – yards are unmowed, lawns and porches strewn with abandoned toys, furniture and yard sale junk. These houses are big, flashing neon signs that say the folks living there simply don't give a damn.

Think back decades ago: every house in Garnett was built for a reason. Someone either wanted to live in it or someone made the bet he could build it and sell it or rent it to someone else who wanted to live here. For the first 120 or so of Garnett's 150 years, that plan worked. Now hardly anyone builds in Garnett, but lots of people build nearby in the county. Meanwhile, Garnett's tax base and its economic vitality dwindles with every demolished house or old business building. How long until the services Garnett offers and which are enjoyed by nearby rural residents are so pressed for financial support that they are no longer tenable?

Yes, Garnett has a problem. Its residences are being demolished and not replaced. Its historic business district is crumbling from lack of interest among entrepreneurs and investors. The time is long past for a Community Summit in Garnett made up of all the stakeholders – businesses, city, county, churches, schools and more – to examine our economic sickness in detail, to listen to input from experts from outside our community and to brainstorm new attempts at new solutions.

That ball should start rolling with our local economic development committee and the leaders who staff and support it – and it should start rolling now.

To the local lady (deleted) in your town she is a fraud and a scam artist. Please be very careful about sending anything to her because she will scam you out of your money and everything else.

Some of you folks who run these dirt roads of the county and never wash your cars need to remember something: when your tail lights become so encrusted in dust and mud and dirt, they cannot be seen during these sunshiny days when the illumination from your tail light is not strong enough to be as easily seen as it is at night. You're just asking to be hit from behind and have an accident if you don't keep the rear end of your vehicles washed at least every couple of weeks. Thank you, bye.

What are we doing? We're becoming a nation of potheads. After our forefathers fought and died and made this country what it is, we're sitting back now and letting it be taken over by Africans and Mexicans. It's time that we stand up and take our country back. Thank you.

Hello Phone Forum readers. If you must call the Phone Forum and talk about something you clearly don't know anything about, could you please do so with good grammar? Mr. Hicks, is this your handiwork or your callers? Thank you.

What in the world are they doing out at Meyers-Blome Field now? Looks like they're putting up a 7-8 foot high chain link fence right along the trafficway so people walking across the parking lot or walking in to the game don't have any choice but to walk across the road that brings all the auto traffic into the parking lot. That place is going to be like a Frogger game this football season.

I live on the corner of Park Road and Oak Street. Every day I watch people in wheelchairs coming up from the rail trail on the south side of Park Road and trying to cross at Oak Street over to the north side of Park Road. You think the traffic will stop and allow those people to cross? Even after they painted new white lines at the crossing? There could be five cars coming both directions and none of them will stop. It all starts with our leadership downtown and how they treat the wheelchair people. I've even seen cop cars that won't stop.

To the City of Garnett, we really appreciate you trying to update the Cedar Valley Reservoir road signs. They look very nice, but they're not very readable - they're not very directional that way. Good layout, but definitely not the right type size. I don't know if there's something we can do about that, maybe make it more readable as you come down the road so you don't have to be nearly on top of it before you can read it. I think it's a great effort but just not readable.

TRAIN...

But when his car came to rest on an embankment next to the tracks, he immediately pulled out his cell phone and called his mom.

Renee Tush got the call at 6:28 p.m. His first words, "Mom, I was in a wreck," obviously concerned her, but it helped that Tanner was the one who called and she could hear his voice. Whatever had happened, at least he was OK.

Then he said, "I was hit by a train!"

"Then I freaked," Renee said.

Although the accident was less than a quarter mile from the family's home and Renee could see the train as it pulled to a stop, it was between her and Tanner. She had to drive a mile or so to get around it. She stayed on the phone with Tanner.

As Renee pulled up to the accident site just two minutes later, she saw the Union Pacific train's engineers running toward the car.

"It's my son. He's fine. I'm on the phone with him," she called out, seeing the relief on their faces.

Later, they told her what had happened. The engineers saw Tanner's Honda Accord pull up to the crossing and thought he was going to stop. But he pulled into their path, and his car hit the edge of a snow plow at the front of the train. It dragged the car a short distance before the rear of the Accord struck a set of stairs on the train with enough force to dislodge the car and send it spinning three or four times. A rear tire became stuck on a rail of the unused set of tracks, leaving the car hanging on the embankment.

A report from the Anderson County Sheriff's Department said the train was traveling at about 35 mph.

The engineers told Renee they saw it was a young driver, and feared the worse. A half-second earlier, and the train likely would have hit the car broadside.

Tanner was wearing his seatbelt, and received bruises on his leg and arm. EMS checked Tanner at the scene, and he visited a doctor the next day. The next day, he was scheduled for an orthodontic appointment to get braces and chose to keep the appointment despite the accident. He said Thursday, about 48 hours after the wreck, that his teeth hurt more than anything caused by the wreck.

He received a $178 ticket from an Anderson County Sheriff's Deputy for failure to yield. The Accord - which Tanner bought from his older brother and still owes him money for it - was totaled.

Tanner has only been driving for a few months, having taken driver's education at ACHS. He drove to school Thursday, and was especially careful at railroad crossings.

"I looked eight times," he said, admittedly exaggerating a little.

At school that day, one of his driver's ed teachers lectured him on railroad crossing safety, he said.

That's a lecture he could appreciate, and hopes others will think a little more carefully as they approach a railroad crossing. It's easy to take safety for granted, even at marked crossings like the one on Missouri Road that he normally crosses. But it's important to pay close attention, and to turn the radio and windows down so you can listen for the train whistle, he said.

Railroad crossing collisions have decreased in recent years in the U.S. as organizations like Operations Lifesaver Inc. have worked to increase safety awareness. In 2014, there were 40 collisions at Kansas railroad crossings, killing six people and injuring eight, according to Operation Lifesaver and the Federal Railroad Administration. In 2013, there were 46 collisions with three deaths and 12 injuries.

Renee Tush said she has much to be thankful about and thinks maybe Tanner had a guardian angel with him. She said she appreciates the emergency personnel and train officials who responded and helped Tanner after the wreck. Someone at the scene said something she hopes Tanner will remember:

"He was probably meant for something special in this life. Make it count."

students. There are 57 students participating in band this year. Board members said band had more students last year, but numbers were not available for 2014.

Although football, volleyball and cross country tend to attract the most students, those sports also have seen fluctuations in participation over the past few years.

The largest football team in the past several years came in 2010, when 102 students (54 junior high, 48 high school) joined the team. This year, there are 80 football players (45 junior high, 35 high school). The fewest number was in 2013, with 79 (40 junior high, 39 high school). Numbers were not available for 2014.

Volleyball participation has increased the most since 2009, when 56 students (24 junior high, 32 high school) participated. Although numbers were not available for 2014, this year's team has attracted the most participants since 2009, with 84 students (47 junior high, 37 high school).

Cross country also has increased significantly since 2009, when it was at its lowest with 30 students (3 junior high, 27 high school). This year, there are 42 students participating, the most since 2009, with 16 junior high students and 26 high school students.

Board members said they were pleased with the number of students participating in fall activities.

ACTIVITIES...

Other than those sports, music and band attract a large number of students, but participation in those programs tends to fluctuate from year to year. This year, a total of 104 junior high and high school students are participating in vocal music, compared to 122 in 2013 (numbers not available for 2014). Since 2010, vocal music participation has gone up and down, with as few as 46 students in 2010 and the highest numbers reported in 2013.

Similar reports are found for band students, with the highest numbers reported in 2010 at 72 and the lowest in 2013 with 56 band

America's first clock

Known as the first African-American scientist, Benjamin Banneker invented a wooden clock that struck on the hour. He built the clock in 1753 at the age of 22, and scholars believe he modeled it after a borrowed pocket watch, which he studied after taking it apart piece by piece. He built his wood clock entirely with indigenous American parts, with each wood part and pinion hand-carved to scale. It continued to work reliably until Banneker's death in 1806.

In addition to inventing his clock, Banneker studied astronomy and made astronomical calculations to predict solar and lunar eclipses. In the early 1790s, he worked with a team of surveyors to plot the federal district that would become Washington, D.C.

"Pearson's Pilot Bread", but eventually became known as hardtack and sea biscuits, a staple part of a diet of sailors and sea voyagers.

Just nine years later, Josiah Bent, a Massachusetts baker, burned a batch of biscuits and became convinced that the crispy result would make a good snack. He called them "Crackers" because of the crackling noise they made when broken and began selling them to Boston-area consumers. Years later, he sold his successful cracker company to the firm that would one day become known as Nabisco.

1995: Former EMS director arrested in computer crime

September 6, 2005

After a two-and-a-half day trial, an Anderson County jury found of 31-year-old man guilty of 78 counts of sex crimes involving a 12-year-old boy. The man was already on the Kansas registry of sex offenders after pleading to a charge of lewd and lascivious behavior in connection with an Allen County case in 2000.

A Garnett man was declared guilty of involuntary manslaughter in Osage County after pleading "no contest" to an amended charge in connection with the shooting of a Garnett man at a party in April. He had previously been charged with the second degree murder of a 19-year-old man at an early morning party in Melvern April 10.

safety on the map. The voluntary procedure identifies county residents' homes and locates them prior to an emergency, so personnel know where they're going and what to expect before the tense moment arises.

The former director of county EMS was arrested as a suspect in the theft of and damage to Anderson County Hospital computer files. He was the prime suspect in a KBI investigation, and another former emergency medical technician at the hospital was identified as another suspect but had not been charged.

Prime suspects in the burglaries that occurred in the Kingsolver Drug Store and Gambles on or about June 28 this summer in Garnett have been apprehended in Greenwood County. The investigation is continuing concerning the two Anderson County burglaries and other related burglaries in east-central Kansas.

Last evening, when Mr. and Mrs. W.G. Miller and their 7-year-old son, Grant, undertook to cross the Santa Fe railroad in front of the Oil Flyer, in their Ford car, the locomotive struck the car, completely wrecking the Ford and killing the three occupants. Mr. Miller was thrown 50 feet. The accident occurred near the fairground gate. The car was going from the east toward the fairground. It is thought Mr. Miller became excited and made a wrong move, going toward the railroad track when he intended to stop his car. The Ford was dragged some distance and the pilot of the engine was injured and the cow-catcher broken.

Anderson County rural letter carriers met at Kincaid last Saturday. County Commissioner Swonger was present and he gave a very instructive talk. In comparing Anderson County with some other counties as to the road tax levy and number of county roads, he showed Anderson County has the lowest tax and more miles of county roads. For that reason, other counties have three to five times as much money to spend, per mile, on their county roads. That being the case, we cannot expect to have as good of roads as other counties have.

Trey Ahring, who will be performing in the Bull Riding on Wednesday, September 23, at the American Royal Youth Rodeo, rides a bull during a competition last month.

Ahring qualifies for American Royal Invitational Youth Rodeo

KANSAS CITY, MO. - The American Royal Invitational Youth Rodeo kicks-off Tuesday, Sept. 22 and continues through Friday, Sept. 25 in Hale Arena at the American Royal Complex. Trey Ahring has qualified to compete in Senior Bull Riding. This four-day event features top student-athletes competing in events such as bull riding, barrel racing and the crowd favorite, mutton busting. Since 2007, the American Royal has awarded $70,500 in scholarships at the Invitational Youth Rodeo, along with additional prize money and awards.

"I am really honored to compete at the American Royal, it is where many champions have gone and won before," says Trey Ahring, a 17 year old Senior at Anderson County High School in Garnett.

The event will be divided into Junior and Senior Divisions. The Senior Division is made up of athletes ages 14-18 who will compete on Sept. 22 and Sept. 23 at 11:30 a.m. both days. Senior Division events include bareback riding, bull riding, barrel racing, breakaway roping, steer wrestling and much more. The Junior Division, composed of athletes ages 13 and under, will compete on the final two days of the Invitational Youth Rodeo on Sept. 24 and Sept. 25 at 12:00 p.m. both days. These energetic youngsters will compete in events such as mutton busting, barrel racing, junior bareback riding, breakaway roping and goat tying.

This high-energy event only happens once a year—don't miss your chance to be a part of the action!

Invitational Youth Rodeo tickets are available through Ticketmaster and the Kemper Arena Box Office. Further information regarding the event is available online at www.americanroyal.com.

The American Royal Association is a not-for-profit 501(c)(3) corporation that has been a Kansas City tradition since 1899. Each year more than 270,000 people attend events at the American Royal Complex. In 2014, the Royal was able to give $1.4 million in scholarship and educational awards. In addition to its educational mission, the American Royal generates some $60 million of economic impact, $4.4 million in local tax revenues and supports 450 jobs.

A salvation by faith in a risen savior

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL
By David Bilderback

In Romans 3:19-24 the Apostle Paul explains that righteousness comes by the grace of God through man's trust in the saving work of Christ. We read, "Now we know that whatever the law says it says to those who are under the law, so that every mouth may be silenced and the whole world held accountable to God. Therefore no one will be declared righteous in his sight by observing the law; rather through the law we become conscious of sin. But now a righteousness from God, apart from law, has been made known, to which the Law and the Prophets testify. This righteousness from God comes through faith in Jesus Christ to all who believe. There is no difference, for all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God, and are justified freely by his grace through the redemption that came by Jesus Christ."

To begin to work our way through this first we must understand prior to our acceptance of Jesus Christ through faith as our Savior we are under the law. The law comes from God, issues through his nature and is holy, righteousness and good. Everyone is equal before God's law. The problem arises because we cannot meet the demands and intent of the law. When we fail in this respect we can start over but ultimately will fail again.

An even bigger problem for us is God holds us accountable and God knows we are not capable of keeping the law. God, says, "No one will be declared righteous in his sight by observing the law, rather through the law we become conscious of sin." In order to deal with the issue of sin Paul says, "But now a righteousness from God, apart from the law, has been made known." When Jesus Christ was crucified, died, was buried and resurrected God set forth a new covenant. A covenant not based on works but based on faith in a risen Savior. A righteousness from God that comes by faith. If we look at salvation as if it were a course of study under the law we received an F on the first day of class with no chance to improve it. Paul says, "There is no one righteous, not even one." No amount of work, effort or study will overcome the sin nature we are born with. On the other hand when we finally see the futility of the law and accept Jesus as our personal Savior God presents us with an A on the first day of class.

F. F. Bruce said, "God pronounces a man righteous at the beginning of his course not at the end of it." Perhaps the best example of this occurred at the crucifixion when Jesus told the one thief being crucified beside him he would be in paradise today. The thief had no merit for this accept he believed Christ was the Messiah. As the old hymn says, "Nothing in my hands I bring simply to the cross I cling."

Book event will feature illustrator

The Garnett Public Library and the Friends of the Garnett Public Library are hosting the event "Celebrate the Book... a story for everyone". This is a free event that will be held at Garnett Elementary School on Saturday, Oct. 24th from 10-2. There will be authors, illustrators, book character meet & greets and activities for all ages. One of the featured illustrators is Brad Sneed.

Sneed

Brad Sneed grew up near Newton, Kansas. An artist from an early age, what he really wanted to be when he grew up was a cowboy or a football player. Somewhere along the way, he decided his odds of making a living were better as an artist, so he went to Kansas University to study illustration.

After graduation, Brad began illustrating his first picture book. Nearly two years crept by before the UPS driver delivered a box of brand new copies of Grandpa's Song. It was official... he was now a REAL Picture Book Illustrator! Twenty-six years later, his heart still flutters when the UPS driver shows up at his door with a big box of books from the publisher!

Brad Sneed has illustrated 29 picture books. Recent titles include, When the Wind Blows; Washday; Johnny Kaw: A Tall Tale; Cock-a-doodle-doo, Creak, Pop-pop, Moo; and Mr. President Goes to School. He authored Lucky Russell, and Deputy Harvey and the Ant Cow Caper, and retold Thumbelina, and a collection of Aesop's Fables. In 2007, Brad joined two others to form, MarbleSpark, a company specializing in publishing personalized picture books. Their first three titles are now available from the company's website.

Brad lives in Prairie Village, Kansas with his wife and daughter. He can't imagine a better job than illustrating and writing and picture books... although sometimes he still daydreams of being a cowboy or a football player!

Brad will lead the audience on a tour of the imaginative image making process of illustrating a picture book. Stops along the way include: reading a story without pictures; looking for clues within the manuscript; converting imagination to doodles on paper; creating a "road map" for the book; assembling a dummy book; and finally, making the art that accompanies the story in the finished book. The path isn't always smooth, but there are folks along the way to help us find the way. The Editor, and Art Director will help us through the rough spots. At the end of the journey, audience members will have a good understanding of what it takes to illustrate a story, and just maybe be inspired to step into their imaginations and begin exploring!

A complete schedule of speakers and activities will be available at the library soon.

Feuerborn helps PSU dedicate expanded, renovated Overman Student Center

For Regent Bill Feuerborn, participating in the rededication of Pittsburg State University's Student Center on August 19 was more than just an opportunity to represent the regents at another university milestone. It was also a short trip down memory lane.

Feuerborn said he had fond memories of playing basketball for the Gorillas in 1969 and 1970 in the old campus gym, which once stood where the new student center expansion now stands. In the old gym, Feuerborn earned a place in the PSU record books, not only lettering, but also gaining recognition on the NAIA All-District 10 list and in the Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference.

Feuerborn praised the many people who worked to make the $14 million student center renovation and expansion happen, especially the students, and singled out PSU President Steve Scott for his leadership.

"These things don't happen without good leadership," Feuerborn said.

In his remarks, President Steve Scott told the gathering that the completion of the student center put a cap on what had been a milestone year for PSU.

"We have celebrated the completion of three major construction projects (the Bicknell Family Center for the Arts, the Robert W. Plaster Center, and the Overman Student Center), all filling an important university need, in less than nine months," Scott said.

The president said other university leaders often ask how Pittsburg State has been able to accomplish so much in such a short time in a challenging financial landscape.

"Some ask, 'How did you do it?'" Scott said, "to which I answer, 'The way we do everything at Pittsburg State - together.'"

Student Center Director Jeff Steinmiller said that of all of the building projects the university has completed this past year, the student center was special.

"It's because, in my opinion, there isn't a facility on this campus that has a deeper connection to our students," Steinmiller said.

Overman Student Center fast facts:

- The renovation/expansion project added almost 32,000 square feet and renovated an almost equal amount in the existing building. The Overman Student Center now encompasses about 119,000 square feet.

- The project created 14 technology-filled meeting rooms and a flexible Crimson and Gold Ballroom that can accommodate up to 800.

- Student offices for campus activities and student government are now highly visible and are located on the main crossroads of the first floor.

- Places to relax and study are abundant on each of the three floors of the structure. Many of the pieces of furniture include USB ports for charging smartphones and tablets.

- Two new food options have been added to the U-Club in the lower level. They are Einstein Brothers Bagel Co. and Holy Habernero.

Free publicity can mean big bucks

Getting free publicity, the kind that can illuminate your business no matter its size to a new range of possible customers and generate thousands or even hundreds of thousands of dollars in new sales, is just pretty cool.

That's why you should devote a little time this week to brainstorming how your business can generate some advertising that is sought out by media and that you don't have to pay for.

It's done all the time. Read the newspaper or magazines. Watch local television (especially the morning shows) listen to your local radio station or your National Public Radio affiliate. Editors and broadcast producers have to fill hours and hours of news space every day or week, and they're always looking for the opportune source that rounds out coverage on a timely topic or one that's just flat out interesting. Here are some tips - think about how they apply to your business:

1) You may not be a professional writer, but a press release can be as simple as a couple of paragraphs about what your business is doing that's newsworthy - are you sponsoring a special event, retiring, having an outlandish promotion, expanding your building, adding a location, hiring or promoting staff?

2) Find something that is newsworthy. If you're just announcing a new product line or changing your hours, news editors will recognize it as a ploy for free advertising. Remember, to be newsworthy, it has to focus on something more than just your business. How do you do that? Read on.

3) Watch for a chance to comment on something timely. If you're a local tire shop and

HOW TO SELL STUFF

your local landfill is raising its tire disposal fees, contact your newspaper or TV station with some tips and info on other recycling options or even home uses for old tires. You may get quoted in a story on the topic.

4) Sign yourself up at www.helpareporter.com. This is a site that catalogues expert sources like you on every topic imaginable for journalists all over the U.S. and the world. When someone at ABC News, Huffington Post or the London Times is working on an article, many times they don't want to hear from the corporate PR department of some major company or organization - they want more of a "man on the street" or a regional perspective. That could be you, but you have to sign up and list your credentials and areas of expertise. Best of all it's free.

In a modern world in which media is even more driven by competition to have the "trending" story, you need to make sure you're making your business available for that free publicity. It'll help you sell stuff!

The town of Colony passes its 100 year anniversary in April but because that time is during the busy farm season, has more risky weather for festive events and also school will still be in session, the planners decided to hold the event on the Saturday before Labor Day, Aug. 31. # Emergency supply kits can make a big difference

BY NANCY SCHUSTER & REBECCA MCFARLAND
 FRONTIER DISTRICT EXTENSION AGENTS

Lynette Blakeslee had a sense of foreboding on May 24, 2011. That was the day a tornado ripped through Stafford County, Kansas and destroyed her home and other buildings on the farm where she and her husband raised three children. "I had an awful feeling that day," Blakeslee said of the uneasiness she felt as she listened to weather forecasts and watched the changing sky. She took items of importance, including financial documents, her purse, some of the quilts she'd made and other items to the basement and the storm did indeed come... roaring through at about 5:30 p.m. Once the tornado passed and the house grew quiet, she climbed the stairs and opened the door. "Everything was gone. The roof of the house, out-buildings, and trees," she said. Her car was also destroyed. She would learn later that a woman and her two children had stopped their car under a cottonwood tree at the end of her driveway - taking shelter from the storm. The woman and her teenaged son were killed and her daughter injured when the tree fell on their car. "I still think about it a lot. I would just tell people to get ready, even if you just think it might happen," said Blakeslee, when asked about advice she'd give. Her family still owns the farm, but did not rebuild the house. She has moved into Great Bend. The Frontier District Extension office is helping citizens prepare for disasters through Prepare Kansas, a free K-State Research and Extension online program, designed to help Kansans prepare in advance in order to ease the effects of disasters after they've happened and allow for a quicker recovery. Prepare Kansas coincides with September's designation as National Preparedness Month by the Federal Emergency Management Agency <http://www.fema.gov/>. Participants complete weekly activities and by the end of September, they will be better prepared to recover from any disaster that strikes. Start out by preparing a communication plan with family members and co-workers, and assemble an emergency supply kit. A family may not be together when a crisis happens, so it's important to think ahead about how you'd communicate in an emergency. Think of different scenarios - different types of disasters as well as methods of communication. What if cell phones weren't working? How about land lines? Would your 12-year-old know who to call if he couldn't reach you? Something as simple as making contact cards with email addresses and telephone numbers of family members and close friends and colleagues and making sure every member of the household has a copy, can be important. Younger children can keep the card in a backpack or school bag. Start assembling a disaster supply kit that includes such items as:

 • One gallon of water per day per person for at least three days;
 • A three-day supply of non-perishable food;
 • A battery-powered or hand crank radio and a NOAA Weather Radio (with tone alert and extra batteries);
 • Flashlight and extra batteries;

• First aid kit;
 • Whistle to signal for help; and a
 • Wrench to turn off utilities. For more complete information, sign up for Prepare Kansas at <http://bit.ly/1p-wiiFE>. More tips are also available at the Prepare Kansas blog <https://blogs.k-state.edu/preparekansas/>, available to everyone, whether participating in Prepare Kansas or not.
