Everything old is new again

This new recycling trailer will replace an old trailer on the county's rotational stops at local communities.

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 12-8-2015 / Vickie Moss

Nathan Adams, an employee at the Anderson County landfill and recycle center, processes corrugated cardboard for recycling Friday afternoon, Dec. 4, at the center at 25404 NE Nebraska Road.

County recycling director watches prices to sell your old paper, plastic, more at best value

Recycling is service county provides, not money maker, county recycling director says

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Scott Garrett, Anderson County's solid waste director, watches the prices of recycling material the way

some people watch the stock market. When prices are low - and they have been recently - he holds on to truckloads of scrap metal, cardboard, plastic and other recyclable material.

Recycling is not a profitable business, though. Whatever money the county makes on higher-value material like cardboard is swallowed by the costs of business - things like labor and equipment. The county even has to pay someone to take lower-valued recyclables, like glass.

"It's a service the county provides. It's not a money maker," Garrett said. "It's all about keeping it out of the landfill."

As more and more people learn the value of recycling, Garrett reminds them the ultimate goal is to reduce waste at

Library lights could save $15K in utilities

Grant would provide new LED lights; tech is more energy efficient

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - The future looks just a little bit brighter for the Garnett Public Library, thanks to a grant that is expected to install new, more efficient lights throughout most of the building and save the city about $20,000 over the next seven years.

Garnett commissioners recently approved paying for about 45 percent of the $11,000 cost to install new LED lights at the library. A USDA grant would pick up the majority of the cost, or about $6,000, and the city's portion would be about $5,000. Commissioners needed to approve their portion of the grant before it can be awarded; their decision and a public meeting Nov. 24 were part of the final stages in the grant application process.

Over the next seven years, the more efficient lights should save the city about $20,000 in utility costs, librarian Andrea Sobba told commissioners during the Nov. 24 meeting.

Taylor Forge to close Garnett plant

Some of 28 employees could earn jobs at Paola plant; closing in January

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Low oil and gas prices are blamed for the imminent closing of a longtime pipe-fitting industry in Garnett, expected to displace about 28 employees.

The Taylor Forge - Humco plant in Garnett is expected to close at the end of January, said Mike Kilkenny, CEO of Taylor Forge Engineered Systems, Inc., based in Paola. Employees were given the news

Friday. The closing is not expected to significantly affect the Greeley plant, while the Paola plant will absorb the manufacturing work currently done at Garnett and possibly up to half of its jobs.

Kilkenny called the move a consolidation, as the Garnett

City issues $645K in bonds for infrastructure

GARNETT - After months of debate, city commissioners at their Nov. 24 meeting approved issuing $645,000 in general obligation bonds to pay for recent infrastructure upgrades like new electric lines and sewer line improvements.

Commissioners initially wanted to pay for the infrastructure projects out of the city's reserve fund, which has about $1.8 million, or more than enough to cover the cost. But they changed their minds after learning it's better to keep cash reserves that would cover about nine months of operations, according to a report from Piper Jaffray investment and asset management firm. Having such a reserve fund would allow the city to handle most emergency scenarios, as well as any major equipment failure. A strong reserve fund also gives the city a better credit rating and lower interest rates, which helps if the city were to take on a major project.

The bonds will be paid at 3.39 percent interest over 20 years, but can be paid off as early as eight years. Commissioners wanted an option to pay the bonds early, in the event city reserve funds increased and it made more sense to lower debt. The money was expected to be delivered into city accounts as early as Dec. 10.

The city expects to pay back the debt using revenue from customer utility accounts. But by issuing general obligation bonds rather than revenue bonds, the city still can use utility revenue or can increase the mill levy to pay the debt. General obligation bonds are preferred because it guarantees the city's ability to pay the debt, a consultant with Piper Jaffray said.

The bonds will be used to pay costs of an electric line project that brought new lines and new poles from the city's power plant along Walnut Street to the alley between Fourth and Fifth avenues, and to the new Anderson County Hospital. Most of the work was done this summer, with final stages recently completed.

The bonds also can be used to pay for sewer improvement projects, including a new lift station currently under construction near the Garnett Swimming Pool.

RECYCLE...

landfills. The Anderson County landfill was designed with an 80-year life expectancy, but the more people recycle and keep material out of the landfill, the longer it will last. Garrett manages both the landfill and adjacent recycle center at 25404 NE Nebraska Road.

It's with that goal in mind that Garrett watches for ways to reduce the cost of recycling, and for ways to make it easier for people to recycle. In addition to keeping a close eye on the price of recycled material, he also looks for ways to make the recycling process more efficient, both for people who recycle and for his employees who process the material.

Recently, the county purchased a new recycling trailer for $22,500. The modern, blue trailer will replace an old green recycling trailer. It will take the old trailer's place on the county's recycling rotation schedule. On specific days each month, the trailer is moved to a different location in the county with eight total stops: Kincaid, Colony, Garnett Welda, Westphalia, Harris, Greeley and Bush City. The trailer now stops at Country Mart in Garnett the second Tuesday of each month, after a request from city leaders. The trailer's schedule is printed in The Review the last Tuesday of each month, showing stops for the following month. The trailer had been stationed at Country Mart until Monday, when it was moved to Kincaid as part of the county's regular rotation.

Anderson County obtained its first recycling trailer in 1997, when each of the six counties in the Lake Region Resource and Conservation District introduced recycling programs. The original green trailer, which served the county for 18 years until its recent replacement, was made from an old horse trailer. Anderson County is the last of the Lake Region's six counties to replace the original trailer.

The old trailer wasn't exactly user-friendly, Garrett said. It was labor intensive, as someone had to climb inside the trailer to remove the bins. The new trailer is more efficient, with bins that pull out. It also comes with a 50-year warranty. The new trailer allows the county to introduce a more efficient way of handling recycling material, making the old trailer obsolete. The old trailer, which also needs expensive repairs, will be retired.

The county's recycling center has four employees, including Garrett. They must handle all of the recycling material, which is baled at the landfill and loaded onto trucks to be shipped and sold.

By the Numbers

So far this year, the county's recycling center has handled hundreds of thousands of pounds of recycling material. Here is a look at the amount of specific items handled so far this year by the county:

- 320,000 pounds of cardboard.
  - 39,000 pounds of magazines.
  - 26,000 pounds of glass.
  - 26,000 pounds of newspaper.
  - 8,500 pounds of tin cans.
  - 7,700 pounds of #1 water bottles.
  - 7,200 pounds of mixed plastic #2-7.
  - 3,000 pounds of milk jugs.
- Over the last two years, the county also handled:
- 9,200 pounds of television CRT monitors.
  - 3,800 pounds of computer CRT.

Prices of all recycled material have been low lately, particularly metal prices. Cardboard currently brings in the best price, Garrett said. Glass prices are so low that Garrett has to pay someone to take it.

"But you're still keeping it out of the landfill," he said to justify the expense.

Citing statistics from the Kansas Department of Health and Environment, recycling rates for material in Kansas in 2005 were about 14 percent. By 2013, the rate had climbed to 34 percent. The goal is to reach the 40s, he said.

How to Recycle

The easier it is to recycle, the more likely someone is to do it, Garrett said. And once you establish a recycling habit, it becomes a normal part of your routine, he said.

"It's like exercising. Once you get into it, you realize 'This is good for me,'" Garrett said.

There is no cost to drop off recycling material, either at the county's recycling center or at the trailer. Although many use the trailer when it comes to their community, anyone can drop off recycling material at the center at 25404 NE Nebraska Road during business hours: Monday through Friday: 7:00 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.; Saturday: 8:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon. Closed Sundays and holidays. Numerous bins can be found at the center, each designated for a specific type of material.

In addition to the trailer and recycle center, the county also has a truck that picks up recycled material from many area businesses, particularly those along U.S. 59.

Recycling material must be clean and separated. Garrett suggests keeping boxes in a garage or shed, somewhere it's easy to simply toss recycling items until you are ready to take them to the trailer or recycling center.

Just about everything can be recycled, Garrett said. To find out where an item belongs, look for the recycle triangle somewhere on the bottom of the item. In the center of the recycle triangle is a number, 1-7. The lower the number, the more valuable the item.

In larger cities, recycling programs can be much simpler. Lawrence, for example, recently built a plant that will separate the material without relying as much on human labor. But those centers are very expensive, and it's unlikely Anderson County will be able to introduce such a program in the foreseeable future, Garrett said.

Education is an important part of encouraging people to recycle, he said. Many schools talk about recycling, and he's found that kids often drive the family's recycling program. Children often are the ones who ask to start recycling at home. Garrett often sees a family pull up to the recycling center, and the kids get out and drop items into the bins.

"The easier you make it, the more apt people are to recycle," Garrett said.

operations and some Garnett employees will be moved to Paola. Others will be encouraged to apply for positions which will relocate. He said employees will be evaluated based on skills needed for the new positions at Paola. The other half of the employees will be laid off.

The average wage of employees at Garnett was about $18 per hour, plus various benefits. For employees from Garnett that are hired at the Paola plant, they'll face a commute of about 30 miles.

Market conditions, particularly low prices in the oil and gas industries, were the primary factor in closing the Garnett plant, Kilkenny said.

The Garnett plant also is being closed because of the condition of the facilities, particularly in its lifting capacity, Kilkenny said. Taylor Forge products require lifting of large, heavy pieces of fabricated steel product; the company cannot install larger, heavier cranes at the Garnett plant without major modifications.

"Our Garnett plant is not in great shape. It needs an investment to get it where we think it should be," Kilkenny said.

Taylor Forge is an engineering and fabrication firm for products primarily related to the oil and natural gas industries, such as building steam drums for boilers, extruded outlets and scraper traps for gas pipelines. The Garnett plant essentially makes the same type of products as the Paola plant, but on a smaller scale, Kilkenny said. The Garnett plant has lower overhead costs, but the current market conditions offset any savings there, Kilkenny said.

It is not yet known what the company will do with the plant itself. Kilkenny said it's possible the company could sell the plant, or hold on to it in the event the oil and gas industries turn around. A different type of company might not need to make the same kind of repairs Taylor Forge would need at the Garnett plant, he said.

It's also not yet known what the company will do with the equipment. Some could be moved to Paola, some could be sold, and some of the equipment is fixed in place and likely will be left with the plant.

An exact date for the closing of the plant has not yet been determined, but likely will come at the end of January, Kilkenny said. Employees were told about eight weeks in advance to give them time to make other arrangements, and to ease fears that they might lose their jobs before the holidays.

Taylor Forge purchased the former Humco Steel plant in Garnett in the early 1990s during Humco's bankruptcy proceedings. Humco was founded in 1973 in Garnett by Joe Humbert.

"It's very disappointing," Kilkenny said about the Garnett plant's closure. "This is not a reflection on our people there. Our people have done very good work. Their safety record was very good. Their productivity and efficiency were very good. First and foremost, this was about market conditions. Secondary was the physical condition of the plant."

LIGHTS...

"A $15,000 net gain is what that is," Preston Peine, city commissioner, said, factoring the city's share of the cost versus the savings.

Commissioner Gordon Blackie, an electrician, said he was pleased the lights were LED rather than modern fluorescent lights. He said although the new lights will be a different style, most library patrons probably won't notice a significant difference inside the building. The building's design allows a lot of natural light, Sobba said.

The lights will be installed inside the same structure as the current lights, using a retrofit system. It takes about 15 minutes to change each lighting structure, but the lights shouldn't need to be changed for about 20 years, Sobba said. In all, about 92 fixtures will be replaced, most in the general library section.

The main library building was built in 1968, and an addition was added in 2001. Some of the lights in the addition, particularly in the children's section and Archer Room, also will be updated.

"It's something we need, and this is a great opportunity," Sobba said. "Really, the only thing left (without the new lights) will be the hallway and maybe a few in the office."

office announcing it. However, some area landowners said they had received invitations to the event, and the Anderson County Clerk's office confirmed the company had reserved the county community building for the event.

Officials from Calpine met with Anderson County Commissioners in early November to determine the county's regulatory stance and requirements regarding wind farms. County zoning places a number of regulations on wind farms and requires a permit to be issued by the county for their construction and operations.

Calpine officials told county commissioners their target site was south and east of Greeley.

A controversial wind farm with some 90 turbines is presently under construction south of Waverly with some 150 lease holders, according to owner Kansas Wind Energy.

Houston, Tx., based Calpine's website says the company is the largest generator of electricity from natural gas in the country with some 83 power plants, including geo-thermal generation plants in some locations.

Taylor Forge points out bigger problem

REVIEW COMMENTARY

DANE HICKS, Publisher

The announcement to employees on Friday that the Taylor Forge plant in Garnett would close in January is another tragic indicator of a broader economic problem in Anderson County and Garnett. When it comes to jobs and economic activity here, things are getting worse. It's a little hard to gauge because time makes us lose track. Industries both here and elsewhere which provide commuter jobs to our local residents are lost, retailers closed, the occasional opening of a new franchise takes place. In the hustle of daily life we forget where we were some years ago. Jobs in Anderson County have been on the decline since the closing of Kids Creations in 2011 and a fire at Astro West manufacturing which resulted in that plant moving to Ottawa that same year. There were other small job losses as well, trimming positions as result of the lagging recessions and small business closures as entrepreneurs simply gave up pursuing their own private businesses and sought work as hired hands. As those jobs evaporated so too have the people who filled them. State labor department figures show a decline in Anderson County's available labor force from 4,645 in October 2010 to 4,268 a month ago. Those actually employed in the county went from 4,320 in Oct. 2010 to 4,079 in Oct. 2015. Coincidentally, the county has seen a population decline of more than 200 residents over the past decade. People of working age, unable to find local jobs or those available within an acceptable commute, move on to somewhere else. Nearly as bad is when employers in nearby communities close. A 2011 study showed the median commute for an Anderson County worker was 25 minutes, so we know the job outlook in Ottawa, Iola, Burlington and even Kansas City impacts our local economy as well. What's the impact? The leading producer of personal income in Anderson County is retiree income – some $108 million according to a study from 2011. Next is government payrolls – city, county, state, school district, some federal – $24.3 million – in fact, local government jobs, farming, retail trade and manufacturing job payrolls combined don't total more than retiree income for Anderson County. Still, healthy communities need a mix of work places and opportunities for people of varying ages to find employment. Those options have been declining in Anderson County for years, and the statistics bear that out. Anderson County is involved with the Project 17 regional economic development organization, but the government-funded entity rarely makes news here. Communities have gotten away from the old-fashioned "smokestack chasing" which used to define their efforts to recruit local employers. We've pushed harder to have resources for existing business to take advantage of, but few of them ever do. We've worked on tourism efforts to draw people to the community – which works during the event but doesn't create any retainable jobs. If we want jobs in Anderson County, it's time we get back to some old fashioned door-knocking to sell ourselves. Nothing else seems to be working.

Well, I know all the people around Greeley are all excited about the money they think they'll make off of leasing ground to the wind farm they want to put in over your way, but before you start spending the money you ought to come over to Waverly and look at this monstrosity we're dealing with over on this side of your county. Land torn up, terraces done away with, water damage to neighbors' ground from drainage off those leases, property devaluations for neighbors' property because they're within eye view of these monsters. In the long run there ain't nobody making money off this mess except (deleted). Watch your step on this one Greeley. Thank you.

Why does the city bother to have lights on their buildings if they're not going to light them up at night? The last three nights, not a light on at the buildings up town. What's the use of having them? And what happened to colorful lights instead of these subtle white ones? Can't see them anyway, they're not on. Bye.

I'd like to comment on your spending big bucks to bag big bucks. If you've got to make money to hunt deer then you're not a very good sportsman. You're out there to hunt deer for the pleasure, not for the money. For these so-called hunters out scouting for deer with spotlights, you're not a sportsman at all; you shouldn't even have a gun in your hand.

For the guy that wrote in about the soup supper, what is wrong with you dude? Are you one of the owners of a restaurant that doesn't have any business or what? A) Nobody makes them come to the fire station to eat, they can eat anywhere they want; two, it's a good way for the fire department to raise money for what they need. And I didn't know they were a tax supported organization because the firemen are employees of the city, that's who pays them. It's a good way to raise money and it's not hurting anybody. A) it's cheap; two, it's good food. They been doing it for 13 years and all of a sudden you're upset. Get a life.

They hate what we hold dear

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

RICH LOWRY, King Features Syndicate

The Paris attacks have occasioned a wide-ranging debate about what they mean and how to respond, involving Islam and its role, military strategy and, oddly enough, how Muslims in New Jersey reacted to Sept. 11 (thanks, Donald Trump). It's all very interesting and, for the most part, quite important. At bottom, though, the import of the Paris attacks is not complicated: ISIS terrorists are enemies of our civilization. In Paris, they chose their target well. They assaulted a city that dates back thousands of years and has been a leading Western capital going back to the Capetians, a place representing geological layers of Western civilization, and its glories and conflicts and follies. To simplify crudely, the Western story began in the 5th century B.C. on an Athenian hillside where people sat and voted on public questions and, over the course of millennia – and with multiple, often clashing sources, from the Romans to the Catholic Church to the Enlightenment – produced our current liberal dispensation. The West respects the rule of law, which protects the individual from the caprice and degradations of the powerful. It divides church and state. It governs by the consent of the governed. It honors the dignity – and the conscience and the rights – of the individual. It celebrates reason, discovery and creativity, and gives a wide berth to commerce and entrepreneurial energy. Obviously, this hasn't always been true, and the road to the adoption of these norms has been winding and bloody, sometimes spectacularly so, in great clashes within and among Western powers. But they have created the conditions for stupendous human flourishing. It is represented in staggering artistic and literary expression, in awe-inspiring scientific, technological and medical advances, and in mind-boggling levels of economic development that mean the average Westerner lives like a sultan compared to the average person throughout most of history.

If we are inclined to take any of this for granted, we should have a renewed sense of its wonder and fragility when it is under attack from barbarism. ISIS embodies a theocratic totalitarianism that seeks to subject the human spirit to its perverted dictates. It kills, in part, as an advertisement for its own vileness and brutality. It gleefully vandalizes ancient cultural treasures, and considers Paris "the capital of prostitution and obscenity." We are different, although we aren't ourselves responsible for that. The West is our windfall. None of us were at Rummeyed in 1215 or Philadelphia in 1787. None of us contributed a brush stroke to a Rembrandt. None of us invented the steam engine or the iPhone. None of us discovered penicillin or the polio vaccine. None of us fought at Poitiers, and very few of us at Normandy. If you are not thankful and humbled by all of this, you are an ingrate. Your freedom and material comfort depend on generations of sacrifice and effort before you. It is your privilege to enjoy all that our enemies – if they had the power – would wantonly destroy. If nothing else, Paris should be a reminder of that. What they hate, we should hold all the dearer.

Catchy slogans don't catch Kansans' interest

STATE COMMENTARY

MARTIN HAWVER, At The Rail

While Kansas is looking for a new slogan to lure tourists, businesses and economic prosperity to the state, we Statehouse habitués are waiting to see how that last catchy slogan — "tax amnesty" — worked out. Kansas has put out a request for bids to gin up a new slogan that will help the state market itself to the nation and world, a few catchy words that will galvanize English readers and draw them here. Forgot that last state slogan? From 2004 to 2011, it was "Kansas...as big as you think." It just evaporated rather than wore out, and most of us never heard anyone humming "as big as you think" in the liquor store, bars or across the border in Missouri... or anywhere else. That's why the state is looking to contract out to some private business creation and promotion of a new slogan, because the last catchy phrase thought up in-house, or at least in the Statehouse, was "tax amnesty" and we've got no idea yet, but some indications are that it didn't catch on. Tax amnesty? Remember, it was a key to meeting the state's budget for this fiscal year, to allow delinquent taxpayers to pay up without penalties and interest, a way to get off the hook for debt to the state with no additional baggage. The concept was that if folks who owed the state tax money could pay it off without any of those pesky penalties and interest, well, they'd contact the Department of Revenue, pay what they owed, and use that penalty and interest money for maybe a party or to hire a new roofer for their business. Kansas lawmakers and the governor thought that there was probably about $30 million in delinquent taxes owed the state, and it would roll in from taxpayers seeking absolution for tardy payments. Did "tax amnesty" work? Well, it doesn't look like it, at least yet, because those tardy taxpayers' back taxes were just rolled into the general income and sales tax receipts reported by the Revenue Department last week with no catchy asterisk noting how much was regular tax payments and how much was from that amnesty program. It all blended together. Upside? Well, if you didn't watch Statehouse activities closely enough, you'd just be glad that the state took in about $7.7 million more than expected for the month. That's always good news. Downside? If the state has been taking in that penalty-free money under the amnesty program and still just raised $7.7 million more than expected, that means the amnesty didn't raise near the $30 million lawmakers hoped for, and state revenues continue to drop, which means that the state won't have enough money to pay its bills through the current fiscal year, and won't have any left to help pay for next fiscal year. We're thinking that maybe fresh eyes and ears can come up with something snappier than the amnesty catch-phrase to bring more people and their money to the state. If "bigger than you think" didn't draw people and investment and prosperity to Kansas, we're wondering what contractors will think up for a new slogan that will boost the state's public image and make it worthwhile to skip those other states to come here. No telling whether "cozier than you think" or "flatter than you think" or maybe just "just to the right of Colorado" might be the key to a slogan that will make Kansas stand out. There's probably a slogan—and bids for thinking one up and selling it to the state end at the Department of Administration just after lunch (2 p.m.) Dec. 23—that might actually give the state a boost. It appears "tax amnesty" didn't work out as expected. Who knows? Maybe "Tax Amnesty!" would have ginned up more excitement...and revenue.

Everything comes with a price

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL
By David Bilderback

In Numbers 13 we read where the LORD said to Moses, "Send some men to explore the land of Canaan, which I am giving to the Israelites." So Moses sent out one man from each of the twelve tribes. Their instructions were to see what the land was like and whether the people who lived there were strong or weak. To see if the cities were un-walled or fortified. To check the soil to see if it was fertile or poor. To check the trees and the available fruit.

The reports came back and the land was said to flow with milk and honey, but the people were powerful and the cities large and fortified. Only Joshua and Caleb spoke up in favor of entering the land and taking possession. The other men spread a bad report among the people and the people rebelled against Moses and Aaron. This rebellion resulted in 40 years of wandering in the desert, one year for each of the forty days the men explored the land. The people then made a second mistake by trying to go ahead and take possession of the land. Moses cautioned them saying, "This will not succeed! Do not go up, because the LORD is not with you." Nevertheless they went up and they were routed by the inhabitants of the land.

As I read and study this passage a phrase I often use comes to mind. Everything comes with a price. The Israelites saw the problem in respect to their own resources and were frightened. Joshua and Caleb saw the problem with respect to God and were encouraged. For lack of a better explanation the people were afraid to trust the outcome to God. They determined they lacked the proper resources to defeat the inhabitants of the land. They were leaning on human wisdom rather than divine power. This points to how difficult it can be to live the Christian life.

If you are a Christian you enter in at the narrow gate of life. It is shut and must be opened and there are not many people entering in. The wide gate of life used by the non-believer is so busy it is kept open and many people are going in and out. The path inside the narrow gate is initially rough and narrow but after a short distance it smooths its out and widens. The wide gate has a smooth wide path but after a short distance it narrows and becomes rough. This explains why so many people are coming out of the wide gate and looking for another gate. Everyone seems to be looking for rest.

When we come to Christ by faith we find salvation rest. When we yield and learn of him and obey him by faith we enjoy submission rest. The first is "peace with God". (Romans 5:1) The second is the "peace of God". (Phil. 4:6-8) It is by believing that we enter into rest; it is by obeying God by faith and surrendering to his will that his rest enters into us. It costs to follow Christ, but not as much as it costs if we don't.

ACHS wrestling team starts season at Fort Scott Dual Tournament

The ACHS Bulldog wrestling team traveled to Fort Scott this last weekend to starting the wrestling season off at the annual Fort Scott Dual Tournament. The Bulldogs wrestled well but had many open weight classes which made it difficult to compete in the dual format. Blue Valley Southwest won the tournament going 5-0 on the day, with Louisburg finishing 2nd, and Fort Scott finishing 3rd. The Bulldogs finished 6th on the day going 0-5.

The Bulldogs started off against the home team Fort Scott Tigers, losing the dual 15-61, but many Dogs wrestled well. Blade Marmon, wrestling at 132lbs, started off his final season as a Bulldog defeating Gorman 10-6, in a tough match that went back and forth until he sealed the deal with a 3rd period reversal. Sophomore Cole Denny faced Miller in the 138lb class and dominated the match from the whistle pinning him in the first minute. And Junior Kyle Lamb, wrestling at 182 in this dual, defeated Daniels pinning him in the 2nd period.

The second dual of the tournament had the Dogs facing Paola, the Dogs wrestled tough but fell short again losing 24-42. Only two AC wrestlers came away with wins, Freshman Maggie Price and Kyle Lamb both won by forfeit, but Junior Caleb Anderegg and Cole Denny both dominated their opponents. Anderegg, wrestling at 126lbs, faced Cline and came out on fire scoring a takedown quickly and pinning him in just :50 of the first period. Denny continued his winning ways on the day by pinning Ohlmier in the second period after scoring a takedown and near fall in the first period.

The Dogs faced Shawnee Mission West next and battled to a close 36-39 loss, many wrestlers won by forfeit, which scores 6 points for the team during a dual. Those winning by forfeit were Caleb Anderegg, Blade Marmon, and Cole Denny. Kyle Lamb faced Hohnacker and once again scored a quick takedown before pinning him in 1:01 of the first period.

Dual number four was against the winning team Blue Valley Southwest, the open weight classes really hurt the Dogs in this dual, losing 12-58. Kyle Lamb was the only Bulldog to come away from this dual with a win, defeating Devnhart with a pin in the last :06 of the first period.

Finishing out the day, the Dogs faced Louisburg losing once again, 15-60. Three Dogs won their matches in this contest, the names are familiar-Marmon, Denny, and Lamb. Marmon defeated Batten by a score of 10-3 in a match he dominated from start to finish. Denny continued his winning ways, pinning Turner in the second period. And Lamb defeated Hupp in the first period by fall in 1:43.

The AC wrestling team will travel to Central Heights on Tuesday the 8th of December to wrestle in a quad with Central Heights, Jayhawk Linn, and Wellsville. On Friday the 11th the Junior Varsity team will be wrestling in the Santa Fe Trail JV Extravaganza, and on Saturday the 12th AC will have the annual Anderson County Wrestling Tournament here in Garnett. Wrestling starts at 9 am this Saturday, the AC team would love to see the stands filled with a sea of red, come out and support the Bulldog wrestling team.

Don't forget to report wheat acres

Area farmers and ranchers should remember that filing an accurate acreage report for all crops and land uses will prevent the loss of benefits for a variety of Farm Service Agency (FSA) programs.

All small grains such as wheat, rye, and cover crops that were planted this fall for 2016 harvest, grazing, and for cover only must be reported by December 15, 2015.

Failure to timely report your acres will result in a late-filed penalty of at least $46.00 per farm. Please remember the programs in the new farm bill do require you to timely report acres.

If you are in town swing by the office and get your wheat reported before December 15th.

Contact the Anderson County FSA Office at 111 N. Maple, Garnett, KS or call 785-448-3128 for more information about acreage reporting requirements.

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 12-8-2015 / Vickie Moss

Vanessa Katzer and Barbara Katzer walk through the home of Ron and Alice Anderegg during the annual Garnett Friends of the Library's "Holiday Homes Tour" Sunday, Dec. 6. In addition to the library and a local church (this year's featured church was the United Methodist Church in Garnett), the tour lets visitors see how three area homes are decorated for the holidays. In addition to the Anderegg residence, visitors also could see the Jenny and Charlie Jasper home and the Jody and Alan Newton home.

2015 Kansas Reads asks 'Is Your Mama a Llama?'

The 2015 Kansas Reads to Preschoolers had volunteer readers reading "Is Your Mama a Llama?" Kansas Reads to Preschoolers is a statewide reading initiative supporting early childhood literacy and a one-book/one-state intergenerational reading project to highlight the importance of reading to children. This year's chosen book was "Is Your Mama a Llama" by Steven Kellogg. Lloyd the llama meets all kinds of animals as he asks his question, until at last his friend Llyn leads Lloyd to the answer he longs to hear! The goal of this project was that every Kansas child from birth to age five, be read to during Kansas Reads to Preschoolers Week, November 16th-24th, 2015. The Garnett Public Library and Anderson County volunteers read to over 140 children including 10 daycares, and preschools, and were able to hand out 160 copies of the book. The library also had a special drawing for a basket of items that went along with the story including a movie, CD of kids songs, activity books, learning flash cards, board books, animal crackers, a Llama llama puppet, and the book "Llama Llama Time to Share". The winner of the basket was Sam Caylor, son of Adam and Caryn Caylor. We could not have done this without the generosity of our sponsors and our many volunteers that were willing to donate their time reading to our young ones during this worthwhile project that highlights the importance of reading to children. Sponsors this year's project were: BPW, Chapter Y P.E.O., DAR, Four Winds Chapter, Friends of the Library, Garnett Lions Club, Garnett Rotary Club, The Optimist Club of Garnett, Patriots Bank, Rockers Insurance Agency, and Roland and Patricia Mosher. So again we thank you for helping us reach new heights during this year's Kansas Reads to Preschoolers project.

What's your big pitch?

There's a national sandwich franchise that stakes its whole marketing message on a single benefit it wants to convey. Don't do it the way they do, but do it sort of like they do.

The big push through their national TV and radio advertising is that they can get you a sandwich so fast it's practically there before you order it. Why, their delivery is so fast they can even beat the fire department to your house if you order a sandwich at the same time you call 911.

It's a witty and somewhat memorable ad campaign, but I'm not sure if getting your sandwich delivered at near the speed of light is the most important thing to their customers. I've eaten at their franchise restaurants on a dine-in basis and frankly, I wasn't that impressed with their product - it wouldn't really matter how fast they got it to me - it just wasn't that good.

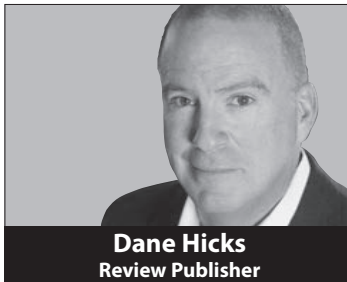

What they've done is to take a relatively parity product - a sandwich is pretty much a sandwich is a sandwich, just like a gallon of gas here is a gallon of gas there - and come up with what they believe is a dominant benefit that makes them more competitive - speed of delivery. Presuming customers are so hungry they can eat the upholstery off the furniture when they order a sandwich, this franchise can get a sandwich to them and satisfy their hunger faster than anyone else.

Even if the actual sandwich is, well, eh, eh, eh.....

Yet the concept they're working on is sound, and it's one that can help all of us in small business define our sales and marketing efforts.

In my opinion they missed the mark - I'm not sure delivery speed is the most important thing the customer wants when ordering a sandwich. What is the most important thing? You have to listen to what your customers, and those of your competitors, say.

A great and cheap way to get this customer input is to haunt the online review sites and blog discussions about the product or service your business offers. Customers participating on those online discussions have no reason not to be honest - they're usually anonymous after all - so what you get there are their honest responses. Look for issues and problems that are repeated among the customers who buy your product or service, and you find what to them is a dominant benefit - and a dominant value if you can communicate that point and make good on the promise to provide it.

Maybe the sandwich customer really wants fluffier bread, or tastier meats, a cheaper deal or fresher veggies on his sandwich more so than speed. You don't know unless you listen to him.

Once you have that information regarding your own products or services, you know how to promote yourself.

Central heights middle school prepares for annual Christmas Giveaway

Central Heights Middle School has celebrated Christmas with their students the last 19 years on the last day of school before Christmas. The Christmas giveaway will be on December 17 in the school's little theater.

School staff said they try to create opportunities for students that normally don't come their way. The school receives KU, Chiefs, and concert tickets for students that don't get these opportunities. The school also receives donations from businesses as well as patrons within the community. Some of the other items purchased are shoes, winter coats, sports apparel etc.

With the economy the way it is, it gets more difficult for school staff to collect these items for the students. Without the donations from business and private individuals this would not be possible.

Every student leaves CHMS with a positive feeling as they leave school for Christmas. In the past years, school staff have heard students say this is the only gift they receive for Christmas. Alumni have said the only time they've ever been to a Chief's, KU, or Royals event is through the giveaway.

If you would like to help in this year's giveaway contact Mr. Welch at (785) 869-3555 (Ext. 1101 or 1105).

Pocket knife brings lots of mysteries

A picture of yet another piece of "junk". No! Not at all. This little pocket knife carries with it a lot of history.

First of all it's a child's Keen-Kutter pocket knife. How do I know it was a child's you ask? Because the engravings on both side panels tell me so. One side says "When You Are Large, Ask For A Keen-Kutter" and on the other side is a picture of a child flying a kite.

How old is this little pocket knife? I wish I truly knew. I do know it wasn't lost yesterday, because I found it approximately eight inches deep, lodged under a tree root at least four inches in diameter.

A few questions I wish I had answers to are: Who did this little pocket knife once belong to? When and how was it ever lost, etc. etc.

Keen-Kutter is a trade name first used by Simmons Hardware Company of St. Louis, Missouri in 1866. The name was adopted as a trademark by Simmons Hardware Company in 1870 and was used on their highest quality tools and cutlery.

Simmons Hardware Company was purchased by arch rival Shapleigh Hardware Company (also of St. Louis) in 1940.

Items bearing the Keen-Kutter trademark are considered collectible. Pocket knives, hand tools, railway locks and many other advertising items from Keen-Kutter are of special interest to many collectors.

1995: Business owners purchase old hotel

December 6, 2005

The gunman who fired a 12-gauge shotgun through a 68-year-old woman's bedroom window south of Garnett a month ago is still on the loose, and local and state investigators apparently have no new information on the crime. The woman was severely injured Oct. 26 when an unknown individual pushed the barrel of a shotgun through her bedroom window screen and fired at her as she slept only a few feet away. She received wounds to her arm, shoulder, neck and face. She is recuperating.

Local sales tax data from Garnett and Anderson County, which will be released next week, shows sales from local companies in Garnett slightly behind the same time period last year, while sales overall from county business is slightly up from a year ago.

Prospects for downtown Garnett rooted in the advent of the Prairie Spirit Rail Trail have breathed new life into a historic hotel, which two local business owners plan to re-open after some 45 years - this time under a new name: The Prairie Spirit Hotel. Mike and Marjorie Riggs, owners of the Old American Inn in Garnett on U.S. 59, purchased the two downtown buildings

Vickie Moss

Dec. 1 from Georgetta and Bill Foxx of rural Garnett. Located on what was Garnett's infamous "south side" of the county square, the hotel is located over two separate downtown storefronts at 140 E. Fifth Ave. The hotel was built in 1883 by Louis W. Steinbacher, a Pennsylvania native who would later own the hotel and several businesses in downtown Garnett. The business was run as an inn until the mid 1920s and was later reopened as boarding rooms in the mid-1940s.

Anderson County commissioners Monday turned down a request from county clerk Phyllis Nolan for the purchase of an election computer system which would help the county meet requirements of the National Voter Registration Act. In the April 1996 election, voters for the first time will be able to vote "advanced" which will effectively do away with absentee voting. Election officers across the country say the change will greatly increase the number of voters who will request ballots before election day, and thus increase the workload of local election workers to keep track of those advanced voters.

December 9, 1985

An Anderson County youth died in a drowning accident. He went hunting with his dog Friday evening and did not return home. During the search, a dog from the Odessa team picked up the trail and led officers within a few feet of where the youth had been trapped under the ice over the stream. Team members theorized the youth's dog had gone out on the ice and broke through, and the youth went out on the ice to save the dog.

December 9, 1915

Little did the friends of Mrs. Elizabeth Haggard Marshall think, when the news of her death reached Garnett, that a tragedy was connected with her death; yet, such was the case - and her husband, Dr. Herbert Marshall, is charged with killing her. Mrs. Marshall died Sunday, Nov. 28, at a hotel in Salt Lake City "as the result of a bullet wound, thought at that time to have been self-inflicted, either accidentally or with suicidal intent." Evidence for murder included a witness who lives at the hotel, and the fact that the pistol was extremely difficult to fire. A woman in ill health, as was Mrs. Marshall, would have had difficulty in discharging the gun at all, and it was unlikely she could have discharged it while holding it at the back of her head. One of the most important bits of evidence was a letter, not mailed, written by Mrs. Marshall the night before her death to Miss Flora Bell Hedges of Garnett, a close friend, with hints of domestic troubles. Mrs. Marshall suggested she may go home to live with her mother in Kansas.

Governor Capper spoke at Colony and Lone Elm last Sunday, to large audiences. At both places, he had overflowing houses. The burden of his talks was peace, and the ideas he expressed were enthusiastically received.

Chamber Players perform 'A Christmas Cactus'

The Christmas cactus is "The Cool New Christmas Tree Alternative" according to this month's Vogue magazine. It's also the current offering by The Chamber Players. Eliot Byerrum's "A Christmas Cactus" plays through December 13th in Garnett at the Thelma Moore Community Playhouse.

The playwright is also a mystery novelist, writing under her own name, Ellen Byerrum, the Crime of Fashion mystery series. "Cactus" carries the same mystery theme as her novels, focusing on a leading lady - Cactus O'Riley, private investigator.

Katy Holloran debuted with the Chamber Players just last season in a tour-de-force turn as the tipsy receptionist, Tina, in "Whose Wives Are They Anyway?" - a role that earned her "Best Debut" accolades at the annual Gala earlier this year. She stars as Cactus opposite Jason Clissold, a Central Heights senior, as her erstwhile secretary, Fred. Clissold made his own debut with the company one year ago - opposite Holloran - as the siblings of "PS: Merry Christmas". He has most recently appeared on his high school's stage as The Cat in the Hat in "Seussical".

Evan Ladewig is fresh off his debut in "Cheaters" earlier this fall. He plays Deputy District Attorney Windsor, who has romantic designs on Cactus, who only has eyes for Fred. Complicating the holiday is the arrival of Fred's meddling mother, played by Shanna Richards, Central Heights librarian and two misdirected criminals played by Dave Schwarzer ("The Odd Couple") and Kevin Lewis - veteran of the children's series of plays and "Love Thy Neighbor", among many others.

Dennis Richards directs the action with catering provided by Kevin & Marty Stoughton - benefitting Garnett Church of the Nazarene. The menu is a green salad, barbecue pulled pork, seasoned green beans and cheesy mashed potatoes. Tea, water and coffee are included. Dessert is provided by the Anderson County High School Drama Club. Tickets are $22 for adults, $17 for K-12 students.

Advance reservations are required and available by phone (785.304.1683) or email (ChamberPlayersGarnett@gmail.com). Performances begin with dinner at 6:30 pm December 10th and 11th and with lunch at 12:30 pm December 12th and 13th. The company's 25th Season will continue in February with local playwright Gary Stapp's latest original production - a sequel to his first play, "Love thy Neighbor" titled "Leona, Love Thy Neighbor, Too".

The Chamber Players are a non-profit theatre company located in the Thelma Moore Community Playhouse at 140 W. 5th Ave. in Garnett, KS. Visit their website at www.TheChamberPlayers.org.
