Wanted man seeks shelter, police after days hiding in cold

Last of 3 suspects hid at convenience store lot, suffered frostbite

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - A homeless man, barefoot and suffering from frostbite, and wanted on suspicion of fleeing from law enforcement after a camper theft days earlier, apparently walked into a local convenience store early Friday morning straight into the warm, welcoming arms of the law.

Donnie Hill, 46, whose last known address was in Arizona, was the last of three people arrested last week after a series of thefts throughout the region Tuesday, Jan. 19. The incident provoked unease among Garnett residents between late

Tuesday night and early Friday, as law enforcement sent out public warnings that Hill, who was thought to be armed and dangerous, was on the loose.

Hill and another man, David Edward Coon, 43, Tulsa, Okla., apparently fled when police stopped a camper on Fifth Avenue in Garnett, a few blocks from where it had been reported stolen on Eighth Avenue and just minutes after the call came in at 11:57 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 19, according to reports from the Garnett Police and Anderson County Sheriff's departments. ## Sheriff explains Code Red confusion; apologizes

Missing info in alert left out risk potential from at-large suspects

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - When area residents who signed up for the Code Red Alert Program received a message at 1:15 a.m. Wednesday, Jan. 20, they may have been surprised by the subject matter: Two men fled during a traffic stop in Garnett.

Law enforcement sent out the alert to warn people to lock their homes and vehicles.

But because of miscommunication within the alert, people may not have realized the potential danger officers intended to convey.

One of the suspects was on federal probation for being a felon in possession of a firearm, and Garnett police and the Anderson County Sheriff's Department thought he could be armed and dangerous. When he was arrested Friday, police found a weapon in the trailer where he was believed to have hid out (see related story).

Some people who received the Code Red alert also were confused because they signed up expecting to receive alerts Cadon and Lane Reynolds tackled the snowy sidewalks and driveways in their neighborhood Saturday, Jan. 23, just for fun, shoveling as much snow as they could find into a sled so they could pile it up and play with it. The area received a little more than an inch of snow between Tuesday and Saturday, significantly less than the up-to-3-feet of snow that fell in the northern United States this past weekend. Few problems were reported locally because of the snow.

Icy mixture messes with motorists

Emergency response crews maxed after slippery weather hits Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 19

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - While residents in the eastern United States continue to dig out from a massive snow storm this past weekend, Anderson County motorists battled an icy mess from a winter storm that started Tuesday, Jan. 19.

Emergency response crews started getting calls of slideoff and wrecks at about 12:30 p.m. Tuesday, according to the Anderson County Sheriff's Department and emergency dispatch. That's when a mixture of rain, ice and snow began to fall, quickly turning streets, roads and highways into sheets of ice.

As law enforcement and rescue crews responded to a report of a wreck southwest of Colony, they witnessed another wreck in front of them. There also were reports of semi-trailers that started to fishtail and stopped on the highway, blocking traffic. At times, there were not enough crews to respond to all the calls and at least one woman reportedly managed to drive herself to the hospital after an accident.

Most of the worst problems were reported in the southern parts of the county.

Although the icy mixture created a potentially dangerous travel situation, weather data measurements show just how little moisture it takes to cause trouble in freezing conditions. At the county's official weather data station at the Garnett Industrial Airport, only a trace of snow measuring 0.02 inches of moisture was recorded. Of course,

Can emergency crews find your home?

Check to see if your house numbers meet criteria, need replaced

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - In an emergency, every second counts. And emergency responders say they don't want to waste those precious seconds trying to find your house.

A simple checklist and guidelines can help make sure police, fire, ambulance and other rescue workers can find your home in an emergency, JD Mersman, Anderson County Emergency Management Director, said.

"In an emergency, police, fire and rescue workers depend on house numbers to find you as quickly as possible," Mersman said. "Finding your home - especially at night - can be challenging if address numbers are unreadable, hidden, unlighted or have missing numbers and may delay emergency responders from getting to you as quickly as possible.

Unmarked or incorrectly marked homes and businesses can put lives and property at risk when it comes to an emergency, he said.

"Incorrect information can be as detrimental to our response as no information at all. Having clearly visible and correct numbers on structures helps assure our responders arrive in a timely manner, day or night," Mersman said.

WANTED...

Lynn Bronsert, 46, Tulsa OK, stayed with the vehicle when police pulled it over, and she was arrested.

Coon was arrested in Lawrence Wednesday, driving a stolen Anderson County Public Works truck, which was stolen late Tuesday or early Wednesday morning.

But Hill apparently stayed in the area and made his way to Sandra's Quick Stop, just south of Garnett at the junction of U.S. 59 and U.S. 169, Garnett Police Lt. Kurt King said. At a parking lot there, the trio apparently had stashed a box trailer that had been reported stolen from Chanute earlier that day. The trailer was full of stolen property, including an ATV stolen from Allen County.

It appears Hill hid out in the trailer until cold temperatures made it unbearable, King said.

Temperatures plummeted to a low of 3 degrees on Tuesday night and never rose above freezing during the time Hill apparently hid. A storm dropped just a little over an inch of snow in the Garnett area between Tuesday and Friday. During that time, temperatures reached their warmest point, 28 degrees, on Wednesday.

At about 2:30 a.m. Friday morning, Jan. 22, Hill reportedly walked into Sandra's Quick Stop, barefoot, and headed straight for the bathroom. A Garnett police officer was in the convenience store at the time, King said. Hill approached the officer and said something to the effect of "you're looking for me," King said.

"I think he was ready to give up," King said.

Hill was taken to Anderson County Hospital for treatment of frostbite, and transferred to St. Luke's Hospital in the Kansas City area before being transferred to the Anderson County Jail.

Authorities believed Hill could have been armed and dangerous; he was on federal probation for being a felon in possession of a firearm, King said. Because of a possible threat to public safety, law enforcement sent out a Code Red Alert at 1:15 a.m. Wednesday, Jan. 20. Some people were confused and alarmed by the alert, King and Anderson County County Sheriff Vern Valentine said (see related story). The alert was sent to encourage people to lock their homes and vehicles in case the men sought shelter at a local residence, King and Valentine said.

When officers searched the box trailer, they recovered a weapon, King said, but didn't say what kind of weapon.

Hill, Bronsert and Coon remain in jail without bond on various charges related to the thefts and drug possession.

In addition to the public Code Red Alert, police also kept the public informed throughout the week via the department's new Facebook page. The page became active in late December 2015. King said no information posted via Facebook developed into any leads in the case, but it allowed the police to let people know what was happening and about the potential danger. The post was shared 696 times.

In a press release Friday, Valentine thanked the citizen in Garnett who reported the camper theft. According to Valentine, a neighbor "thought it was strange that someone was hooking up to a camper in his or her neighborhood in the middle of the night so they called the Sheriff's Office. Because of this, suspects were stopped before they got out of the city limits. ..."

"This is the kind of help we need. If you notice something not within the norms happening in your neighborhood, call and we will come and check it out," Valentine said. "As a result of everyone working together, these suspects ... got caught and several people are going to get back what they worked so hard to pay for."

Law enforcement have worked to involve the community more in policing efforts the past few years, Valentine said, as well as to improve cooperation between departments. Those efforts are starting to pay off, he said.

"We are solving more cases and getting more stolen property back to the owners than ever before, and that is a direct result of everyone working together," Valentine said.

In addition to the police and sheriff's departments, the Kansas Highway Patrol contributed to the search with a K-9 dog unit.

"It does not matter if the risk is from bad weather or bad people," Valentine said.

Valentine said he wanted to clarify information about the Code Red Alert Program, and apologized for the confusion surrounding last week's message.

The alert came at 1:15 a.m. Wednesday and began with information about police looking for suspects believed to have stolen a camper, and two of the people in the vehicle fled.

"We sent this out so citizens would keep their doors shut for safety reasons. Unfortunately, all of the details intended to go out did not get put out over Code Red and I apologize," Valentine said.

The Code Red Alert Program is a voluntary alert system that sends electronic messages via a phone call, text or email when the public may be in immediate risk. The system identifies persons who have signed up for the service who are in the path of a tornado, severe thunderstorm, or flooding. The system uses National Weather Service alerts received electronically, selects the appropriate subscribers, and delivers the warnings. Those who are signed up will be notified by the local emergency response team in the event of emergency situations or critical community alerts. Examples include: evacuation notices, bio-terrorism alerts, boil water notices, and missing child reports. You can sign up by calling the Emergency Management Office at (785) 448-6797 or online at <http://andersoncountyks.org/emergency-management.html>. Sign up takes only a few minutes.

"I hope everyone who is currently signed up will stay signed up, and more will sign up for the program," Valentine said.

ground of contrasting color?

- If your house is hidden from the street, are your numbers attached to a visible fence, mailbox or gate?
- Is your mobile home identified with your house number?
- If you live on a corner, does your house number face the street named in your address?
- If you answered "no" to any of those questions, Mersman recommends the following guidelines:
  - Numbers must be visible from the street. Existing residential home numbering can be 3 1/2 inches high, however new residential homes must be at least 5 inches high and if you replace existing numbers they must be at least 5 inches high.
  - Numbers should be placed on a contrasting background, with a reflective coating on the numbers for easy visibility at night.
  - Repair or replace aging address number placards, especially on mailboxes that are a distance from the front of the residence.

- Prune any bushes, tree limbs or other growth that has covered your house numbers.

- Numbers should be placed on or beside the front door. If your door is not easily seen from the street, put the numbers on a post, fence or tree at the driveway entrance so they can be clearly seen from the street. In addition to numbers on the front door of your house, if you have a rural-style mailbox, reflective and contrasting numbers should be placed on both sides of the box so they can be seen by an emergency vehicle approaching from either direction.

Between Tuesday and Saturday, more snow fell across the county as the storm system pushed east. The heaviest snow fell between Thursday and Friday, dropping 1.3 inches of snow at the Garnett Airport. That amount translates to just 0.07 inches of moisture.

Temperatures also fell to a low of 1 degrees Monday, Jan. 18, and 3 degrees on Tuesday. The weather warmed slightly the rest of the week but still didn't reach above freezing

Trump, the antidote for socialism?

If you, like lots of other people in both the Republican and Democrat parties this election season, are confounded at the rise and continued buoyancy of Donald Trump in his bid for the Republican nomination for president, maybe you need look no further than Iowa to understand.

The Baron of Bombast somehow has it nailed. He is what he is, makes no bones about it, and he electrifies a segment of the country – both inside and outside his party. What exactly it is he stands for, not many can tell you – few Trump haters or lovers have even read his ever-developing platform. It is the attitude that enamors us, and that attitude is now – after nearly eight years watching America become the world's Melba toast – being brought into focus by survey results from the Hawkeye state.

A recent Des Moines Register poll showed that 43 percent of Democrats in Iowa – the largest of any segment response – identify as “socialist.”

Holy cow. How did this happen? And in Iowa of all places?

To paraphrase the definition, a socialist believes in the government owning the means of production – factories, mines, software companies, etc. – and redistributing revenues to the population according to its own whims. In effect in socialist countries (except for the burgeoning black markets they always beget) there essentially is no private industry, and the outcome is predictable. I'm reminded of the story of the Soviet glove factory sewing the fingers of order after order of gloves together in order to meet a government production quota. Socialism chokes off the incentive of profit and independent wealth; gilds initiative and fosters poverty by killing any reason to be creative in one's labors.

Maybe it's my Reagan-era upbringing, but I just don't believe Iowans believe that – even Democrats. Maybe New Yorkers or Californians, but not Iowans.

But the problem is that after eight years of President Obama straining to broaden government's footprint in our lives in everything from Obamacare to an expanded IRS to threats of gun control to EPA mandates (remember: climate change is the biggest evil we face), the federal government has segmented the country

REVIEW COMMENTARY

into two groups: those who want to rely on the government for more, and those who are terrified by that thought.

Trumpers – and a lot of people who don't like him but still fall short of Iowa's confused 43 percent – are in the latter group. Hence, the new rise of The Donald, middle finger brazenly raised at those inside government and out who want to choke America with anti-capitalism... and Rosie O'Donnell, too.

In its February edition, TIME writer Joe Klein defends the Iowa socialists as those who believe in some shade of socialism; like Europeans, they don't mind having private ownership of the means of production, they just want the government to have it securely haltered, along with a premium list of freebies from the government paid for by somebody else – as long as there is somebody else.

It forces the question if the respondents in Iowa even knew what socialism really is? Visions of Jay Leno's famous “Jaywalking” segments come to mind. The question is pervasive among Democrats now, and even party hot shots like Debbie Wasserman Schultz, Chuck Shumer and Hillary Clinton seem to bobble the answer. They're clearly afraid of offending real socialists and keeping them from casting Democrat votes come November.

However this brand of socialism comes to define itself, it's clear Trump is not it, and many more who don't embrace him still embrace that sentiment. Sorry Iowa Democrats. Whatever flavor of socialism you're talking about, we don't want it.

I agree with the person who called last week about all the landowners and the windmills, but I think they should group up together for another reason than to get a better deal from the company. I think they should organize to get the county planning and zoning commission to re-write their rules not to allow wind farms in Anderson County. If that doesn't work they should band together for a class action lawsuit against the company and the county for lowering their property values and their neighbors' property values and for ruining the scenery of one of the prettiest ridges in Eastern Kansas. Thank you.

I have to question why the city thinks we need more camping places at the North Lake, and why we want to foul up the west side with a campground over there? If you start parking campers over there that's all you'll see from the lake road over on the west side and even from the highway over to the west of (deleted)'s house, it'll look like a trailer court and block the view of the lake because it's so close to the road. It's not like there's all that space and a hillside like there is on the east side. I am not in favor of this plan.

To the person who complained about the word “Amish” to describe the Mont Ida school, think about this. Why do we keep a country school with 20 kids in this day and age? Just suggest closing it and see how long it takes to hear the word “Amish.”

Go ahead you stupid Republicans. Nominate Trump and you might as well hand Hillary Clinton the keys to the White House.

Yeah, I can't believe Martin the so-called city manager, wants to put those stupid, ugly camping areas at the lake. When they have road races up there those campers will be right up by the road and they'll get free admission. I just think it's stupid and ugly. That means somebody else can move their trailer in and do the mowing and get free utilities all summer long. It's a bad idea. I thought this lake was for recreation not for making money all the time. The ones they have are never full all the time anyway. Up north they never use those anyway, why build two more? Just plain stupid.

Cool, took me 15 minutes to go through every one of your numbers and not one of them is for school closings. Thank you, you guys have a great day and I hope you get this figured out very soon.

The Great Humiliation, courtesy of Iran and Obama

The Obama administration was right when it insisted that the capture and release of 10 American sailors by Iran showed the benefits of a cooperative relationship with Tehran.

The crux of the arrangement is simple: The Iranians agree to humiliate us (and pursue their long war against the United States and their hegemonic ambitions in the Middle East), and we agree not to care. It is, as Secretary of State John Kerry says, diplomacy at its best.

What Vice President Joe Biden called “standard nautical practice” involved the Iranians making our sailors get on their knees on their captured boats, eliciting an apology from the commander, and photographing and videotaping all of it to broadcast for propaganda purposes -- in clear violation of international law.

This obviously wasn't another Carter-era Iranian hostage crisis (it wasn't even a hostage crisis), but it was another national humiliation to add to a sour public mood that President Barack Obama doesn't get, let alone understand his own role in creating.

His State of the Union address was devoted to a pep talk for the country that did more to demonstrate that he is out of touch -- an occupational hazard for late-second-term presidents -- than that anyone is wrong to feel pessimistic.

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

RICH LOWRY, King Features Syndicate

Yes, the economy has had a long recovery, but it has been slow and weak and, by some measures, hasn't been felt in much of the country. Yes, we are the most powerful nation on Earth, but our adversaries, from Vladimir Putin to ISIS to Iran, have been gaining and are eager to demonstrate our toothlessness -- in the case of ISIS, with spectacular acts of evil.

The president's version of world events in the State of the Union was particularly wan. He touted the marginal gains against ISIS without coming to grips with the catastrophes that made its rise possible; he boasted of the Iran nuclear deal, with nary a hint that the pact hasn't moderated Iranian behavior as hoped; and he spoke as though “partnering with local forces and leading international efforts” in Syria is an effective response to that country's hellish meltdown.

True to form, in what was supposed to be a visionary speech, Obama continually took ill-disguised shots at his potential Republican successors, Donald Trump foremost among them. He scolded the 2016 GOP field for its fear, cheap sound bites and pandering.

There is all of that, of course -- it is a primary campaign, after all -- but there also is a deeper disgust with the direction of our country and the failures of its institutions, and a yearning for something better.

The president has actively sought America's diminishment abroad. For him, this is a shrewd play that avoids costly entanglements and makes us stronger. But there is no doubt that we are less respected and feared around the world. The public feels it, and doesn't like it. Many Americans, as a certain presidential candidate puts it, want to win again.

They look at the photographs and videos of those American sailors, and it feels like a punch in the gut. The Obama administration looks at them and says to the Iranians, thank you very much.

Recent high court decisions highlight judge selection

If ever there was a week when the predictability of car payments by members of the Kansas Supreme Court and the Kansas Court of Appeals was in jeopardy, it was last week.

Our Supreme Court was slapped 8-1 by the U.S. Supreme Court over its ruling that either overturned or at least delayed the death sentences meted out to the infamous Carr Brothers of 2000 Wichita massacre fame. The Kansas Court wanted more work done on the sentencing of the murderers, the U.S. Supreme Court overruled the state court.

And Friday, which was the 43rd anniversary of the U.S. Supreme Court's Roe v. Wade decision that made the choice to have an abortion a constitutionally protected right, the local Court of Appeals couldn't decide whether last session's “dismemberment” abortion law is constitutional.

There were technical arguments about due process rights and such, but the decision, or non-decision tie, means that the prohibition of that specific abortion procedure remains on hold while the case is likely appealed to the Kansas Supreme Court.

Whether you are a fan of the death penalty or not, and whether you favor prohibiting a specific second-trimester abortion procedure or not, you'll probably get the chance to read some campaign flyers and see some Internet postings about the competence or at least philosophical bent of both courts.

Count on opponents of the death penalty to be quiet, while death penalty/Wichita residents who were terrorized by that Carr Brothers case repeat the campaign they used in 2014 to target Supreme Court justices who didn't allow the brothers to be put to death.

And, count on abortion-rights supporters to be quiet while opponents of abortion target Court of Appeals members who voted to maintain the Shawnee County District Court decision that prohibits enforcement of outlawing the abortion procedure passed by the Legislature and signed by the governor last spring.

STATE COMMENTARY

The point of opponents of those decisions: That the state needs a new way to select those Appeals Court and Supreme Court jurists.

Supporters of the decisions say they want to keep by their view the impartial, by-the-constitution court to make important legal decisions.

Gov. Sam Brownback in his State of the State speech this month said that he'd like judges to stand for election, or at least that the governor gets to select Supreme Court justices with confirmation by the Kansas Senate, without them being vetted by a lawyer-heavy Supreme Court Nominating Commission.

Either would probably yield high court judges who think along the same philosophical lines as the governor who appoints them. Brownback has gotten his way, to a point, and now he gets to --and got to--appoint a member to the Kansas Court of Appeals without the nominating commission vetting, and the Senate confirmed his appointment. He liked it.

But judges don't come and go with the governor, and while Brownback is living with high court justices appointed by governors more liberal than he is, you have to wonder what happens if a more philosophically moderate governor would like inheriting a far more conservative court than he/she would like?

It's probably the broad background and understanding of the law that is important for a judge, not philosophical leanings or beliefs to shape opinions.

But governors are elected for their philosophical leanings and beliefs, and they would like to see those beliefs outlive their terms in office. That's how they are.

So, do a couple decisions mean toss the judges you don't agree with on specific issues? Practically, you can make pretty good arguments either way or move to a state where the history of court decisions is how you like them.

This is likely to be the year that we see the most heated campaigns for retention/non-retention of judges—oh, and maybe legislation to either directly elect or give the governor single-handed authority to name judges without those background checks the nominating commission performs.

At some point, voters patient enough to get to the bottom of the ballot where the retention votes are cast get to decide. We'll see what their ruling is.

Viking boys make surprise run, lose championship game

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

PLEASANTON - Very few people could have expected the Vikings to reach the championship game in the Pleasanton Mid-Season Tournament, but that is exactly what they did before losing to top-seeded Humboldt 63-55 in overtime.

What makes the run remarkable is that Central Heights was the sixth seed and was just (1-7) entering the tournament. They faced third seeded Heritage Christian (2-4) in the opening round and prevailed easily 41-22.

Things were looking bleak early on. Heritage Christian jumped out to an early 11-5 lead. The Vikings quickly erased the deficit in the second and never looked back. CHHS outscored Heritage Christian 17-6 in the period to take a 23-18 lead into halftime, then clamped off HC and limited them to just five second half points to take the win.

The Vikings rode the momentum into their second round game against #2 seed Uniontown (7-3). Playing a solid first half but trailing 25-21 at intermission.

Coming out of the locker room it appeared the Vikings made all the right adjustments again. Central Heights outscored Uniontown 11-7 in the third quarter to tie it up at 32 with one quarter remaining and then muscled out the 41-34 win by again enveloping the opposing offense.

The Vikes played tug-of-war in the championship with Humboldt to a 50-all tie. Humboldt caught fire in the overtime session and pulled away, scoring 13 points and limiting the Vikings to 5 to win title 63-55.

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 1-26-2016 / Dane Hicks

Defense was key in Friday's Anderson County victory over Bishop Ward in the Baldwin Tournament, and AC #4 Mason Skiles maintained pressure on BW players throughout to help AC to the 55-39 win. Baldwin edged AC in the opener 66-64, and AC lost the final matchup to Wellsville 54-49 to earn an eventual 6th place out of 8 contestants.

AC boys finish 6th at Baldwin Invitational

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

BALDWIN - The Anderson County boys lost two games in the Baldwin Invitational after leading both late in the game, dropping them to a lackluster 6th place finish.

In the opening round, the Bulldogs squared off with the host team Baldwin and lost 66-64. Baldwin held the slight advantage at the end of the first period, 17-15. But AC caught fire and snapped up a 40-28 lead by the end of the half. Baldwin controlled the third period 20-12 and cut the lead to 52-48 heading into the final period. Baldwin kept up the pressure and ended with a two point advantage.

The Bulldogs met up with Bishop Ward in the second round and came away with a scrappy 55-39 victory. AC trailed 25-23 at halftime, but tightened up defensively in the third period to outdistance Ward 15-6 in the third and 15-10 in the last period for the win.

AC hoped to avenge a 51-47 loss to Wellsville just days earlier when they met the Eagles again in the final tournament matchup, but the Eagles sputtered to an early 10-9 lead before being blitzed by the Bulldogs in the second period 17-5, which put Wellsville in a 27-15 hole at intermission.

The evenly paced third period took an abrupt turn in the fourth when Wellsville caught fire and the Bulldogs struggled offensively. The Eagles scored 19 points in the fourth period while limiting the Bulldogs to just 5 to pull off the stunning come from behind victory.

Tyson reports on start of legislative session

And so it begins, the 2016 legislative session. During the first week of session there were talks about budget, committee meetings, and land purchases.

On Wednesday, the Kansas Director of Budget presented the Governor's proposed budget amendments. Taxes collected (often referred to as revenues) for December fell short of estimates - again. The Governor's proposed amendments did not account for the December revenue shortfall of approximately $14 million. Senators on the Ways & Means Committee requested that the Budget Director go back and make changes so that the proposed budget changes are based on actual revenue numbers and recent trends, not estimates that were proven wrong. It is disparaging when estimates have been consistently too high for the past three years. It is past time to change the method being used to estimate state revenues. The lower oil and gas prices, coupled with declining agriculture commodity prices will continue to impact state revenues and estimates.

KANSAS LEGISLATURE
By CARYN TYSON,
Kansas Senate

Most committees had meetings last week. One of the presentations in the Senate Ways & Means was by the company who did an efficiency study for the state. The company had 105 recommendations that they said would save the state around $2 billion over the next five years, which would amount to $200 to $300 million per fiscal year. Who knows how workable these are but I will look at the recommendations in detail over the next couple of weeks. We have a spending disease in government and I'm working on finding a cure, or at least a treatment.

Our state Constitution allows for bills that did not die in an odd-numbered year to be considered during the next regular session in an even-numbered year. The reason I bring this up is because SB 178, the bill that would be a massive property tax increase on agriculture land, is still in the Senate Tax Committee. This is one of the many issues that I will be fighting this session.

Kansas Department of Wildlife and Parks reported they made a land purchase while the legislature was not in session. The land purchased was 157 acres in Cloud County for $716,000. Why is the Kansas government purchasing this land? Right now there are more questions than answers. Government seems to always carry a big spending hammer. I'm reminded of an old saying,

"if you walk around with a hammer, everything starts to look like a nail."

In November the Governor issued an Executive Order (EO) halting the relocation of Syrian Refugees to our state. He recently expanded that EO to strengthen the language to protect the safety and security of Kansans, "until an adequate vetting process is in place..." In today's environment we must take responsible actions to protect our citizens. Kansans are compassionate caring people and have a history of helping those in need. However, we cannot allow terrorists to take advantage of our compassion.

Please contact me with any questions or comments via phone 785.296.6838; email Caryn.Tyson@senate.ks.gov; or by mail, at Kansas State Capitol, 300 SW 10th St., Topeka, KS 66612.

It is an honor and a privilege to serve as your 12th District State Senator.

Creative thinking saves food, money but be careful

I am constantly amazed at American ingenuity! Recently while I was preparing to give a Boy Scout Webelos nutrition program for our local troop, the discussion of cooking eggs in plastic bags came up.

Using a plastic bag to cook eggs and assorted vegetables in boiling water really sounds like a great plan. However consumers, be aware that not all bags are created equal. A very popular national brand zip lock plastic bag easily available at grocery stores and discount stores; are not designed or approved to withstand the extreme heat of boiling. The company's consumer service states "our plastic bags are not designed or approved to withstand the extreme heat of boiling; therefore, using our bags to make any recipe that requires the bag to be boiled is not recommended. The spokesperson continued, "Our plastic bags can be used with confidence when label directions are followed. All our containers and microwaveable bags meet the safety requirements of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) for temperatures associated with defrosting and reheating food in microwave ovens, as well as room, refrigerator, and freezer temperatures."

Whoever thought that companies put directions for use of plastic bags? There are companies that make plastic bags that can be boiled; those bags are not purchased at local discount stores and grocery stores and they cost more. The boilable plastic bags are not made from the same plastic formula as the easy to find storage plastic bags.

When reading the directions of a popular plastic wrap film, the directions state: "to prevent wrap from melting food high in fat (like bacon) or sugar (like pastries) should not come into contact with food in the microwave. When microwaving turn back the corner of our plastic wrap to vent excess steam. Best when used on clean dry surfaces".

American's are also thrifty! Another case of using a butter tubs over and over again also fits. The joke is about butter tubs, cottage cheese cartons, and yogurt containers being re-used for food storage. The joke was that a homeowner had to open all the butter tubs in their refrigerator, while cleaning their refrigerator, to determine what the food was and if it was still safe to eat.

Butter tubs and food cartons are called one trip containers. That means the manufacturer did not mean for consumers to reuse and reuse their containers. There is a popular joke about a cook cleaning out their refrigerator chocked full of butter tubs. We can laugh because it is a common practice but not a good one. A popular margarine/butter tub manufacturer answered my question about reusing their butter tubs. Consumer affairs said "the tub packaging for our margarine is designed for refrigerator storage of our product only. This packaging is not designed for reuse, freezing, microwave heating".

Some last minute thoughts on packaging never use thin plastic storage bags, brown paper or plastic grocery bags, newspapers, or aluminum foil in the microwave oven. Only use cookware that is specially manufactured for use in the microwave oven. Glass, ceramic containers, and all plastics should be labeled for microwave oven use.

Plastic storage containers such as margarine tubs, take-out containers, whipped topping bowls, and other one-time use containers should not be used in microwave ovens. These containers can warp or melt, possibly causing harmful chemicals to migrate into the food.

There are so many different types of stores that sell low cost container sets with snap on lids for food storage. Invest in a set for your home!

Don't forget about FSA Livestock Programs

Area livestock producers need to remember the livestock programs that were included in the 2014 Farm Bill that are administered by the Farm Service Agency (FSA). With spring calving season approaching and potential for extreme adverse weather conditions, don't forget about the Livestock Indemnity Program.

The Livestock Indemnity Program (LIP) provides benefits on a calendar year basis to livestock producers who suffered livestock deaths in excess of normal mortality caused by adverse weather. Adverse weather events include tornadoes, floods, lightning, wildfires, blizzards, extreme heat, and extreme cold.

To be eligible for LIP, a livestock producer must have legally owned the livestock on the date of death and the livestock must be maintained for commercial use as part of a farming operation. Applicants must provide adequate documentation to prove the eligible deaths occurred as a direct result of the adverse weather event.

A notice of loss must be filed within 30 calendar days after the death is apparent. When the application for payment is filed, producers must provide an acceptable proof of death. The death records must provide sufficient data to identify the quantity, kind, type, and weight range of the livestock. Proof of death records need to be verifiable. This may include veterinary records, private insurance documents, or rendering truck receipts. If verifiable records cannot be obtained then reliable records such as photos that contain an automated printed date on them or contemporaneous producer records. If neither verifiable nor reliable records are available then a disinterested third party who witnessed the death may complete an FSA form explaining specific details about how they had knowledge of the animal deaths. Proof of death documents can be maintained by the livestock producer for non-weather related deaths so normal mortality is not reduced from the LIP payment.

If verifiable proof of death records are not used as noted above, the livestock owner must also provide verifiable beginning and ending inventory records. If you suffer livestock deaths due to adverse weather, please contact your local FSA office as soon as the loss is apparent to receive additional details on filing a notice of loss and provide an acceptable proof of death. The Anderson County FSA Office is located at 111 N. Maple, Garnett, KS and can be reached by phone at 785-448-3128 ext. 2.

How to survive the off-season

If your business is seasonal and has punctuated periods of strong sales followed by slack times, surviving the off season when cash is no longer flowing with the same gusto is no doubt a point of constant concern.

Aside from the issue of sales during slow times, the best defense against seasonal downturn is an established budget. That doesn't mean glancing at your check book from time to time or analyzing your gut feel for present expenses; it means having an actual written document that reflects your anticipated expenses and revenues, broken out to weeks or months for close monitoring, and using it as a roadmap. If you've been in business a few years you have records of your own to refer to; if you're new, insist on a year's worth of data broken month-to-month from your predecessor or a similar mentor in another market. If you're wondering what a budget is, go to sba.gov and query it. But I digress...

Breaching slow times basically comes down to two ideas; 1) pursue ancillary options aimed at different niches, maybe related or maybe unrelated to your core mission but aimed at generating cash, and 2) spending the time on lower-intensity and lower-cost marketing efforts designed to make you top of mind when the season comes back around.

1) Look for ways that your core business can appeal to niches off-season. Slow times in the restaurant business for example can be used to focus on low-carb or low-fat offerings for the ever-burgeoning weight loss market, or maybe promote delivery; some shops or eateries in tourist areas re-price their inventory after the season ends to make their goods more attractive to local customers who don't want to pay tourist season prices - and there's nothing wrong with making those adjustments; Landscaping companies can do snow removal and sell de-icing products in the winter; don't forget to be "locale savvy" - when the season is warming or cooling where you are, it's the opposite on the opposite side of the globe from you - your custom wool sweaters might have a July market in Australia.

2) Whether or not you find cash sale possibilities in your off season, don't neglect to maintain your presence with customers. Develop your following to your website, Facebook Page or blog by continuing to develop content of interest to your followers. Email or print newsletters (don't overdo it with the email) should never be neglected, especially in off-season. And don't forget crazy, unexpected promotions. If yours is a warm-weather season, host a Polar Plunge in the winter with sponsored participants and give the money to a local charity; you can also employ your email lists and contacts to solicit some customer reviews or endorsements to use in all your marketing.

Basically, keep both seasons in mind no matter which one you're in. Planning and executing for both will help you sell stuff!

Farmer directs donation to St. Rose Catholic school

Garnett - St. Rose Phillipine Dueschne Catholic School has received a $2,500 donation from America's Farmers Grow Communities, sponsored by the Monsanto Fund and directed by local farmer Rod Wittman of Anderson County. This donation will help improve the science and technology instruction for our students. St. Rose receives no tax dollars for the operation of our school. The entire budget is dependent on parent tuition and gifts from our community. With this donation, we will be able to purchase new science programs and provide training in the use of recently purchased Chrome Book computers. These two areas will help prepare our students for success at the next level. Rod Wittman said that he nominated St. Rose School for the America's Farmers Grow Communities donation because he and his children had benefited greatly from their Catholic School education, and he wanted to make sure that our school would continue to serve the children of Anderson County. The staff and families of St. Rose would like to thank Rod and his family for nominating our school and Monsanto for this generous gift. It is very much appreciated and will make a difference in the lives of all our students.

For six years, America's Farmers Grow Communities has collaborated with farmers to donate over $22 million to more than 8,000 community organizations across rural America. Winning farmers will direct donations to nonprofits to help fight rural hunger, purchase life saving fire and EMS equipment, support ag youth leadership programs, buy much needed classroom resources, and so much more.

America's Farmers Grow Communities partners with farmers to support local non-profit causes that positively impact farming communities across rural America. Grow Communities is one program in the America's Farmers community outreach effort, sponsored by the Monsanto Fund. Other programs include America's Farmers Grow Ag Leaders, which encourages rural youth to remain in agriculture and provides $1,500 college scholarships to high school and college students pursuing ag-related degrees and America's Farmers Grow Rural Education, which works with farmers to nominate rural school districts to compete for $10,000 and $25,000 math and science grants. ## Have you come to grips with the real state of affairs?

St. Augustine of Hippo, an early Christian theologian made the following quote. "You have made us for yourself oh God and our hearts are restless until they find their rest in you." We live in a restless world. A world in which the last person most people are looking for is God. In Romans 3:10-11, the Apostle Paul says, "As it is written: There is no one righteous, not even one; there is no one who understands no one who seeks God."

Many people have no relationship with God at all, others are willing to invite God in as long as he stays in the guest bedroom and others only ban him from a room or two. The story of the prodigal son is an interesting study. The boy requests his inheritance from the father and packs everything he owns and leaves for a far country never intending to return. Things go well for him there and he makes many friends. His fortunes begin to change however when he runs out of money and a famine begins in the land.

I read he was hungry but no one gave him anything so he hired himself out to a farmer to feed pigs. We read the boy finally came to his senses and said, "How many of my fathers hired men have food to spare, and here I am starving to death. I will set out and go back to my father and say to him: 'Father I have sinned against heaven and against you. I am no longer worthy to be called your son; make me like one of your hired men. So he got up and went back to his father."

The prodigal found out that sins ability to interest a person and satisfy a person very quickly runs out. Most people whether they want to admit it or not realize what they are doing or involved in is contrary to God, however they lack the ability to get up and get out of their own pig pen. They just continually try to shore up the situation.

McCloud the Scottish theologian explains the prodigal this way. "The prodigal went back to his father not because he was tormented by a guilty conscience but because he was driven by the hope of mercy." You see until you confess to the Father that you have sinned against him, (God) and against heaven all you will ever have is a guilty conscience. You can't get any relief from it because you are afraid of the consequences of changing your life. The story says the prodigal came to his senses. He was gripped with the real state of affairs. Have you done that? If not do you have any rest in your heart?

Advertisements for "Omega Oil" couldn't protect it from FDA

Isn't this a nifty little bottle. It's an "Omega Oil It's Green" bottle, embossed in a leaf, aqua in color, 5 3/4" tall and manufactured by the Omega Chemical Company, New York.

I would like to share two different advertisements printed and circulated about this product in 1900-1901.

Historical Remedies For All Your General Health, Rheumatism and All Other Aches and Pains.

"1900- Omega Oil It's Green- The thing that gives Omega Oil it's sparkling green color is a rare Swiss herb that possesses amazing power in over coming pain. The reason why other liniments are not green is because they do not contain this herb. For the same reason they are not so good as Omega Oil -- not nearly so good. Besides this herb, Omega Oil contains four other ingredients, each of which has a particular purpose. One reduces swellings. One is specifically for rheumatism. One acts upon your nerves. One is for inflammation and soreness. You can readily see how good this combination must be for: Sore Feet, Weak Backs, Lame Shoulders, Stiff Joints, Tired Arms and Legs, Pains in the Side and Everywhere Else. Used as a rub-down by athletes, bicycle riders and others. It freshens up the whole body, hardens the muscles, gives great endurance and removes soreness. There is nothing "Just As Good" and beware of imitations."

"1901-Old People- Omega Oil, if old people will rub their arms, legs and backs every night with this oil, it will do them a world of good. The oil loosens stiff joints, softens the skin, relaxes the muscles and starts the blood flowing more freely. It actually drives out most of the aches and pains of Old Age."

The miraculous little green herb in the making of Omega Oil was possibly henbane, but fortunately it was used in very small quantities - the main ingredients were chloroform, oil of wintergreen and mineral oil. Omega Oil got on the wrong side of the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) in 1942, when it was judged mishandled because of the exaggerated claims, but this didn't kill off the product and it is still available in some countries today.

This is an "Omega Oil It's Green" bottle manufactured by the Omega Chemical Company, New York.

2006: Teens get sign duty after theft

January 24, 2006

It may be a long time before Anderson County finds out if it will ever be able to take advantage of taxes the State of Kansas says Missouri Gas Energy owes on natural gas it stores underground fields in Ozark and Welda townships.

Two Anderson County teens will spend a day with county road crews putting up road signs after they were caught stealing a sign earlier this month. The teens meet with Anderson County Commissioners to apologize for the theft and to ask for community service as punishment for their crime instead of being prosecuted in district court.

The first building ever built in Richmond will soon become the Richmond Community Museum. The Putnam Building, known to many as the old lumber yard building, was built in 1889 and was used as a bank for several years. Although it sat empty and unused for years, the newly formed Richmond Community Museum Association purchased the building in August 2005 for $15,000 with plans to turn it into a historical museum. Volunteers have been working on the project.

long-discussed forensic audit was begun of the Anderson County Hospital by the Anderson County Commission, county officials still have not received a report from the accounting clerk conducting the investigation.

USD 365 Board of Education on Thursday will discuss the option of modifications to Irving Primary Center in Garnett in order to use the building's upper floor for classroom space. The Kansas Fire Marshal's office has given a tentative OK to the district to use the upper floor of the building for classroom space, provided a sprinkler system is installed there.

January 27, 1986

The Open House at the Garnett Public Library Friday provided a wonderful ending to an eight-month campaign to raise $10,000 for the children's area of the library. About 200 children and adults viewed the new furnishing and materials. New items will continue to be stocked as 1986 progresses.

January 27, 1916

As a matter of record the review makes mention of a particular storm last Thursday night. It was a real summer rain storm. A large amount of water fell accompanied by lighting a d thunder tall equal to an intense electric storm of the summer time. Owing to the snow and sleet on the ground the water ran off as it fell and all the streams were swollen until the lowlands were covered with water. It was a greater flood than is seen during an ordinary summer.

Harry Milligan is a real sure enough farmer. He likes farm work likes it so well that he is rarely in town. He comes in frequently to spend the night with his parents but he is out early in the morning at work on the farm. Harry is no retested in modern farm machinery so he went to Kansas City to attend the implement dealers convention. He expected to remain two or three days but came back after only one day. He said he that he saw all he went to see so he came back when he saw it. Besides he wanted to get back to the farm.

Storm Spotter class offered

Anderson County Emergency Management in conjunction with the National Weather Service in Topeka, Kansas will be hosting the annual storm spotter class at 7 p.m. Thursday, February 18, at the Community Building located in the North Lake Park in Garnett.

Every year, the National Weather Service in Topeka presents spotter talks which are open to the general public. Presentations are typically around 90 minutes long, and are given by a meteorologist from our office. Spotter training will focus on storm structure and accurate identification of important cloud features associated with supercell and squall line thunderstorms.

"While attending a talk we provide you with our contact information. We encourage everyone to call the NWS once you are safe to pass along critical information about any severe weather you experienced. We may also call you at your home and ask you about ongoing weather in your area or after the severe weather has passed to inquire about possible damage or hail size," according to the NWS-Topeka.

Contact the Anderson County Emergency Management office at 785-448-6797 with any questions.

Viking girls finish 3rd at Pleasanton Tourney

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

PLEASANTON - The Central Heights girls' entered the Pleasanton Mid-Season Tourney as the 7th seed with a (2-6) record, but won 2 of 3 games which was good for a third place finish.

In the first round of the tournament on Thursday night, Central Heights knocked off second seeded Pleasanton (5-3), 36-34 when the Vikes turned on the steam in the second period to chip away at the Blujays with a single point advantage in both the third and fourth periods.

"We started the game very flat, but I was impressed with our grit and toughness that allowed us to come back and win tonight," head coach Scott Lane said.

Lane was especially happy with the teams' effort in the come from behind win.

"I thought our guard play was outstanding tonight and our posts played harder than they have all year," Lane said.

In the second round Friday night, the Vikings squared off with first seeded Oswego (6-3) and fell 37-27 after a slow start offensively by the Vikings led to a generally sluggish performance for the night. Lane said the slow start set CHHS at an early disadvantage, and the Vikes just couldn't penetrate Oswego's formidable defense.

"I was proud of the way the girls never gave up. I thought we played hard in the second half and gave ourselves a chance," Lane said despite the early deficit.

The loss dropped the Vikings to the third place game against Heritage Christian (4-4), whose guards attacked the rim early and often to jump out to an early 12-5 advantage. CHHS switched to a zone defense to push HC shooters to the outside, where they were cold and only mustered a free throw in the second quarter. The Vikings put up 9 in the period and held a slim 14-13 lead at the half. It was Heritage Christian making some adjustments at intermission and put up 16 points in the quarter to gain the advantage heading into the final quarter 29-26. The Vikings wanted this game more as they powered past Heritage Christian late to put them on top when the buzzer sounded, 38-36.

Around Town

Visiting Morris Luedke at Windsor Place recently have been Arlyn Briggs, Lone Elm; Pastor Steve Bubna, Stanley Luedke, Colony, Clint and Jody Holston, Bonner Springs. Morris has recently had two illnesses with a chest virus that has been going around. Mark has had it two times also, followed by your correspondent. Morris has so much enjoyed all those that have visited him, sent letters, cards, and gifts.

Hospice is with him every morning except the weekends (they work with Windsor staff) and Mark or I most usually are with him daily.

Recent visitors of Allene Luedke were Clint and Jody Holston, Bonner Springs and Darlene Olson, Greeley. Darlene is a Colony High School classmate of Morris' and brought him a lovely crocheted lap cover which we delivered to Morris. Not many people anymore that do wonderful things like this. Darlene said it was the 65th lap cover she had crocheted. In her spare time, she does this for people. She makes her own design and it is lovely! Darlene is a sister of our neighbor, Thelma Culler.

Seth and Angie Black and children have moved to 702 Maple, a home they recently purchased. They will be selling their home on Oak at a later date.

Sympathy is expressed to Lance Ramsey and family at the loss of his mother, Mary Ramsey, 75. She passed away Jan. 12 at her home in Pittsburg. Memorial services were held at the Feuerborn Family funeral Chapel in Colony. Inurnment scheduled Jan. 24 in Logan, West Virginia, where she was born and raised.

Chronicling local history for more than 150 years.

Founded in 1865 as The Garnett Plaindealer, the Review continues today as the oldest surviving business in Anderson County.

In 2009 parent company Garnett Publishing, Inc., and owners Dane and Barbara Hicks purchased

The Trading Post, a free shopper circulated in the Lawrence area and founded in 1977 by Phil and Joy Hunsinger.

Besides print publications, Garnett Publishing, Inc., also launched Garnett's first website in 1995 and today continues its electronic news presence with the Review's breaking news Facebook page.

The company remains one of the area's premier printers, having won numerous awards for graphic design and offering a full range of business and personal printing in four color and black and white.

Wolken Tire was purchased by Jack & Patty Rundle in August of 1994. They have 3 children ages 18, 16 and 12. We love the community and look forward to many more years serving Anderson County.

August 2016 will be Jack's 22nd Anniversary with Wolken Tire.

Most all of 2015 we dedicated to the renovation of the outside and inside of our building at 601 S. Oak. Our showroom no longer looks like "A Dusty Ol' Tire Shop". We have exposed the beautiful rock, the maple flooring from upstairs now covers one wall, there are new windows, etc. You'll enjoy your visit.

There were two hardware stores on the south side of the Garnett Square, Meyers Hardware & Hutchison Hardware. Ralph Meyers bought out Hutchison Hardware and combined the two into Meyers Hardware.

In the 1960's Ray Miles bought out Ralph Meyers and in 1974 Earl & Martha Miller bought the business from Ray Miles.

Earl and Martha built Miller ACE Hardware in its current location in 1978. Mike and Amy Blaufuss, the current owners, bought the business in 2009 and renamed it Miller Hardware.

They now offer Stihl Power Equipment and Gates Hydraulic Assemblies.
