Man's death begins fatal chain of events

Three family members die hours apart in two separate incidents

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Friends and family are collecting donations to help with funeral expenses for a child and two adults after the apparent suicide of one of the adults set off a chain of deadly events last week.

Three family members died within about four hours Tuesday, May 3. Scottie Dale Thomas II, 19 of Garnett, died from an apparent self-inflicted gunshot Tuesday afternoon; hours later, a car wreck claimed the life of two of his cousins who were on their way to Garnett to meet with family members, according to various reports from friends, family and other media sources.

Family members said Thomas suffered from depression. Garnett Police Chief Kevin PeKarek said Thomas was found at a home in the 600 block of East Seventh Street at about 2:48 p.m., dead of an apparent rifle wound. Because it was an unattended death, police are continuing to investigate the incident until an autopsy report is concluded, but PeKarek said there was nothing suspicious about the incident and the fatal wound appeared to be self-inflicted.

A few hours later, Thomas' cousin, April Brown, 28 of Kansas City, Mo., was driving south on I-35 near Ottawa at about 6:30 p.m., en route to Garnett, when she lost control of the vehicle. The car crossed the median and was struck broadside by a vehicle driven by Courtney Houston, 28 of Wellsville. Brown and her 9-year-old son, Jeremiah "JJ" Persinger, died at the scene. A passenger in Brown's vehicle, James F. Whitfield, 46 of Kansas City, Mo., was taken to Overland Park Regional Medical Center with disabling injuries. Houston was taken to KU Med with injuries.

Connie Lorenz, Brown's mother and JJ's grandmother, told a Kansas City television station Brown had recently started to get her life back together after struggling with

Question on zoning rules likely kick off long battle over wind farm

New traditions come with 2016 graduations

ACHS ceremony set to take place at new stadium west of facility

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - A new tradition could begin this year at Anderson County High School, while graduating eighth grade students at Mont Ida Elementary School face a more uncertain, bittersweet future.

This weekend marks the first in a series of graduation commencement and promotion exercises for area schools.

At Anderson County High School, graduation is planned to take place at a new outdoor stadium just west of the school building, weather permitting, at 3 p.m. Sunday, May 15. In the event of rain, the ceremony will be moved into the ACHS gymnasium. The National Weather Service at Topeka predicts a 30 percent chance of showers Sunday.

The ceremony will mark a significant change from past years. For decades, graduation ceremonies have taken place at the historic stone stadium

Central Heights grads share kidney

Woman donates organ to fellow alumni after learning about her need

BY PAT VINING Special to THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

Cathy (Guy) Raymond, Central Heights Class of 1972, hoped to have a special birthday present for her husband, Collwell, and she was able to give him "the best present ever, a new life," for herself and therefore, for the two of them, thanks to a good friend, Mary Peters, CHHS Class of '75.

In a totally unexpected act of love, Peters donated a kidney to Raymond and "truly saved my life," Raymond said.

Raymond has known for about 20 years that she had polycystic kidney disease and it was continually worsening. She had been on dialysis since September but was not responding well and the disease was definitely gaining. She had been doing dialysis at home while she slept, but doctors told her it would not be long until she would need daily dialysis administered by medical staff in order to survive.

With many family responsibilities at home, Raymond was at low ebb and extremely concerned about the future and her loved ones.

What happened next is a situation both women called "God-inspired fate."

Raymond had a mini-reunion with four of her best friends since kindergarten, and Peters came along to visit with one of her best friends. As the seven women chatted and shared their lives, Peters overheard Raymond talking about her deteriorating health. Ideas began to buzz in Peters' mind.

"I've always known I wanted to be an organ donor, and I thought I might as well do it now as wait until after I'm gone, especially when I know about a critical need with someone I've known for years," was Peters' seemingly simple explanation.

Peters already had education and experience in the health field and being in excellent physical condition. Soon she started researching how she would qualify as a donor. After receiving favorable test results, her biggest job was to convince Raymond to let her make the donation if there was a match.

After accepting the idea that someone (Peters) would do this for her, Raymond still had to be convinced. She wanted to know that Peters would be totally healthy after giving up one of her kidneys.

"It took some talking, but Raymond finally agreed when the doctors told her there was a 90 percent success rate with a living donor if the two of us matched," explained Peters.

When further tests showed the two did match, they were thrilled. Both believe God had a part in connecting them and in their decision as well as the successful transplantation.

Raymond said she knew in the first few minutes after she woke up from surgery that "Mary had given me a new lease on life. I hadn't felt that good in years."

In what seems almost unbelievable to those not in the medical field, Peters returned to her home in Olathe on Thursday afternoon following the Tuesday surgery.

Raymond was released from Kansas University Medical Center Saturday, then she and her husband stayed close to the hospital for several days, but they were back at their home in Rose Hill, southeast of Wichita, on the eighth day after surgery.

Others in that close group of Richmond then Central Heights friends have stayed in touch with Raymond and Peters, offering prayers, visiting and helping in other ways.

That "best friends since kindergarten" bunch includes Barbara (Gretencord) Bogart of Olathe; Marjorie (Lyon)

Humphrey of Lee's Summit, Mo.; Debbie (Nilges) Catron of Iola; and Linda Peters who now lives at Carl Jct., Mo., but until recently was a specialized nurse working in Middle Eastern countries; along with Raymond, all from the Central Heights class of 1972.

On the day of their last gathering at Iola, Peters joined the group to visit a classmate, Becky Nilges, both class of 1975.

Another '75 classmate, Patty (Lickteig) Hettler, of Monument, Colo., came to stay a week with Peters while Peters is off work and recuperating, saying this is a good time for relaxed visiting.

Peters is a physical therapist who is employed by ARC Physical Therapy+ at Overland Park. She was off work for two weeks, then working part-time from home for a while, doing computer work since she is also a certified ergonomist.

Following school at Cloud County Community College, Peters earned a bachelor of science degree in physical therapy from the University of Kansas and later a master's degree in public health from St. Louis University. She's been a health professional since she finished school.

Raymond hasn't been able to be employed away from home for some years, but has a busy family that needs her.

Now, not long after the successful transplantation, the two are as happy as can be and both are feeling great, although Raymond will return to KU Med a couple of times for some procedures. However, she immediately could eat normally and food tastes good, which was a problem for some years before she received this great gift. All factors that rate general health were quickly improved for Raymond, which is a true miracle to her.

Both women have high praise for Kansas University Medical Center and everyone there who was "just fantastic about everything," said Raymond.

But Raymond gives her highest praise to Peters, saying, "She's my hero, a true angel. The doctors had told me I would last only so long on dialysis. Then, here comes Peters with so much confidence that this would work that she made me feel confident. We put it in God's hands, and look at us now, both of us!"

Yes, it certainly was the best birthday present Raymond could give her husband and herself, but one that first, Peters gave to Raymond.

And, what's that old saying, Old friends are the best friends?

Jail's refinancing plan to save $700K

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - An inactive public building commission is expected to reconvene later this month to approve the refinance of bonds for the Anderson County jail, a move that is expected to save the county more than $700,000 over the life of those bonds.

The group hasn't met in years and its chairman died in 2015, but remaining members likely will come back together in order to approve the refinance plan.

The Anderson County Public Building Commission (PBC) was formed about 10 years ago to force the construction of a new jail after a previous bond issue failed with county voters. Once appointed, a Public Building Commission essentially has sole authority to order construction of public buildings and exists in perpetuity. The nature of such commissions made the creation of Anderson County's PBC highly controversial in the mid-2000s.

The Anderson County Law Enforcement Center opened in 2009. Construction of the jail was financed by $5.5 million in bonds funded by property and sales taxes to be paid until August 2028. The plan was to use jail revenues to supplement bond payments, but PBC members were careful never to discuss possible revenues because they couldn't be counted on to definitely offset the required tax funds.

In March, county commissioners revealed plans to pay off some of the bonds using jail revenue, and refinance the remaining bonds. At the time, it was estimated the county could save as much as $1 million.

At a May 2 county commission meeting, a representative with the George K. Baum & Company investment banking firm in Kansas City, Mo., presented a more specific proposal that revealed the net savings will be about $733,000 after the firm's fees are paid.

Under the proposal, the county will use reserve funds from housing out-of-county prisoners to pay off about $315,000 in current bonds. The remaining bonds will be refinanced at a lower rate.

Because it was built under the PBC, the commission actually owns the facility and leases it to the county. That means the PBC will need to meet and sign off on the refinance plan. The county tentatively scheduled a meeting for May 25.

Although the PBC hasn't met in years and is without a chairman, members contacted for a previous Review article said they likely would be in favor of a plan that would save money.

Bond financing arrangements typically require the borrower to make payments for a specific number of years before the bonds are eligible to be paid off or refinanced. The county so far has used only the half-cent sales tax to make the bond payments, setting aside 60 percent of income from housing out-of-county prisoners in a special reserve fund. The amount of bond payments varies from year to year, but last year the county paid about $438,000 toward the bonds, including premium and interest.

This is the first year those bonds are eligible to be paid early.

DRAKE

Marilyn Wheeler Drake, age 85, left this earth for her heavenly home Friday, May 6, 2016 at Windsor House in Iola, Kansas.

Drake

She will always be known for her wonderful smile and serving heart.

Marilyn was born in Kansas City, Kansas, the third daughter of Claude and Alma (Brumfield) Wheeler. She grew up there graduating from Wyandotte High School in 1950.

She attended the Quindaro Christian Church where she met Larry. They were united in marriage at that same church on May 25, 1952. Marilyn has always been Larry's loving spouse, best friend, and known to him as "sweetheart"!

In 1953, Marilyn gave birth to her first child beginning her role as mother and loving it. Three more children were to follow. Marilyn took great pride in raising her four children and was a stay at home mom until her children were all in school. She then began using her administrative assistant/bookkeeping skills as she worked for: Robert Talkington Attorney Office, Kincaid Elevator and Iola Grain.

In 1970, grandchildren began to enter her world (12 total). In 1993, she retired to allow more time to make memories with them. Several have spent many nights, weekends, weeks, and in the summertime, months at Grandma's house. She was also blessed with 19 great grandchildren whom she dearly loved and adored.

Marilyn was a member of the Moran Christian Church, the American Legion, and the Wednesday Morning Breakfast Club. She enjoyed baking, reading, gardening, games, puzzles and flowers. She spent many hours doing embroidery work and made many baby blankets.

Marilyn is survived by her husband Larry; four children, Devona Herrin and husband Kenny of LaCygne, Danny Drake and wife Pam of Topeka, Denise Sweany and husband Jack of Manhattan, and Daryl Drake and wife Sandra of Moran; 12 grandchildren and 19 great grandchildren.

She is preceded in death by her parents Claude and Alma Wheeler; two sisters; Ermagene Nuesse and Deloris Griffiths.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30am, on Wednesday, May 11, 2016, at the Moran Christian Church with Pastor Jack Sweany officiating. Burial will follow in the Moran Cemetery in Moran, Kansas. Visitation will be held from 6:00 to 8:00 p.m., on Tuesday evening at the Feuerborn Family Funeral Service Chapel in Moran, Kansas.

Memorials can be made to the Moran Christian Church.

You may send your condolences to the family at www.feuerbornfuneral.com.

GRADUATION...

built by Civilian Conservation Corps workers in the 1930s at Lake Garnett Park.

The last class to graduate at the old rock stadium was the Class of 2014. It was not known at the time that 2014 would be the last class to graduate at the location. Last spring, the $1 million new stadium was under construction and the Class of 2015 expected it would have the final graduation at the old stadium, but rain forced an indoor ceremony. School administration later abandoned the old stadium by scheduling home football games at the new facility, but never made a public statement regarding it.

Another class that could see the end of an era is this year's Mont Ida eighth grade class. It's likely this will be the last year the current school building is used for the ceremony. The graduation ceremony is 7 p.m. Friday, May 13, at Mont Ida School.

USD 365 Board of Education members last month decided not to repair a broken boiler, citing the estimated $30,000 cost and costs of maintaining the 1920s-era building at a time of uncertainty over future state funding. The board hasn't officially closed Mont Ida Elementary School, and classes have continued at the building for the past several weeks as nicer weather moved into the area and the boiler was not needed as a heat source. But board members made it clear they believe the school's 19 total students can be served just as effectively at Westphalia, and would cease operations at the Mont Ida site. It appears Mont Ida students will be moved to the Westphalia Elementary School property, likely as a separate school sharing the same campus.

This year's eighth grade Mont Ida class consists of four students. All of Mont Ida's students this year come from the Amish faith. Typically Amish students do not attend school past the eighth grade, which means this graduation likely is the only such ceremony they'll attend.

Other graduation and promotion ceremonies include:

• Central Heights High School Class of 2016 will graduate at the Ike Cearfoss Gymnasium at 2 p.m. Saturday, May 14.

• Crest High School Class of 2016 will graduate at the high school gymnasium at 2 p.m. Saturday, May 21.

• Anderson County Junior High eighth grade promotion is 7 p.m. Monday, May 16, at the gymnasium.

• Westphalia Elementary School eighth grade graduation is 7 p.m. Tuesday, May 17.

• Crest Middle School eighth grade promotion is 7 p.m. Monday, May 23, at the gymnasium.

• Central Heights Middle School eighth grade promotion is 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 24.

personal issues. Lorenz said Brown may have been drinking when the crash occurred, and had promised that she wasn't going to drive.

Lorenz spoke to the news media about the need to increase awareness of the dangers of drinking and driving, as well as depression.

"You gotta' get help because you're not only hurting yourself, you're hurting all the other ones around you that are still here," Lorenz said to KCTV5 news reporters.

Several efforts are underway to help the family defray funeral expenses, including a Go Fund Me account. Friends also organized a benefit dinner Sunday, May 8, at Town Hall Center in Garnett.

Funeral services for Brown and Persinger are scheduled for Wednesday in Kansas City. An obituary for Thomas has not been released.

Avoid German wind power disaster

Kudos to Kansas Senator Pat Roberts for recently taking a stand against throwing more federal funds down the rat hole of wind power, and for trying to avoid in the U.S. the energy debacle that is bankrupting Germany.

Roberts' effort was in keeping with science, logic, common sense and economics – four factors that make no difference whatsoever in Washington when the environmental overlords, led by the EPA, team with wind industry lobbyists bent on pursuing this high-priced charade of flawed science.

Roberts voted no – and Senator Jerry Moran voted in favor – on a Senate amendment to restore $15 million in wind energy research funds previously stripped from a House energy and water appropriations bill. The amendment to restore the funds to total $95 million passed the Senate 54-42. Moran contends the money was going to be spent somewhere, and he wanted Kansas to get a piece – a noble but short-sighted gesture.

The vote proves American leadership is not yet fully educated – or simply doesn't want to be educated – to the financial disaster that lays in wait if the country continues to push the stone of wind energy uphill. One need look no further than Germany, where consumers are now plagued with some of the highest electric and tax rates to subsidize wind farms in all of Europe, to see the perilous future.

Germany, terrified of nuclear plant disasters and CO2 emissions, went “all-in” on wind power beginning 15 years ago with massive taxpayer subsidies to construct hundreds of wind farms across the German countryside. The $228 billion dollar investment was further backed with “feed in” tariffs – mandates that forced power providers to buy the power at higher-than-market prices – another pass through that eventually landed in customers' wallets. The unreliability of wind power, the Germans postulated, could be overcome and nuke and coal-generating facilities decommissioned, if they simply built enough wind farms. The trap was laid by bad policy, and as an editorial in the Wall Street Journal from last month points out, it sprung with a vengeance:

“The market distortions caused by overreliance on expensive but dependable power already have pushed German utilities to rely more on cheap and dirty coal-fired power plants to make up the shortfall when renewable sources can't meet demand,” the WSJ piece says. “It makes you wonder if there's any form of energy-price signal that governments won't ignore. Germany's 16-year-old Energiewende, or energy transformation, already has wrecked the country's energy market in its quest to wean the economy off fossil fuels and nuclear power. Traditional power plants, including those that burn cleaner gas, have been closing left and right while soaring electricity prices push industries overseas and bankrupt households. Job losses run to the tens of thousands.”

REVIEW COMMENTARY

“All of this—the job losses, the unreliable power supply, the astonishing amounts of spending that could top 1 trillion Euros over the coming decades, and the rising coal emissions to boot—amounts to one of the more monumental blunders of modern governance,” the Wall Street Journal's analysis reveals.

The disaster is already in its infancy in the U.S. Inspired by the EPA's guiding philosophy and claims by President Obama that climate change is the greatest threat to future generations, lucrative U.S. income tax credits lure rich oil and gas companies to invest in wind farms. The feds push states to force power companies to buy that wind power with the cost passed along to consumers (remember the reasoning given for KCPL's last rate increase?), and those wind farms pay not a nickel in local property taxes. The German disaster is budding on American soil.

The amendment vote lays out the percentage of the Senate, like Roberts, who get it. Perhaps the other 60 percent of uneducated congressional members – who publicly profess such desire for fiscal responsibility – should pay a month's worth of an average German's electricity bill?

The humbling tumbling

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

BOB FRANKEN, King Features Syndicate

It's gotta be tough for a candidate to quit, particularly when running to be president. Suddenly the humongous ego trip is over. Gone are the days when your very presence is an event, where even the wealthiest and most powerful act like groupies, and dotting aides are always fluttering and flattering.

Being dumped out of that gilded cocoon is brutal. Very quickly you're alone in the humbling real world, as all the lackeys start licking someone else's boots. These extinguished stars who are shoved off the stage but are still longing for that last sliver of spotlight barely hang on by endorsing someone else and playing a demeaning supporting role. Think Chris Christie.

Oh yeah, there might be a little principle involved, a policy agenda and all that, but what's most cruel is losing the addictive rush of adulation. That explains, partially at least, why Bernie Sanders hangs on by his fingernails, even though Hillary Clinton has rolled over him and has an almost clear path to the nomination. It helps one comprehend why Ted Cruz and John Kasich came up with their desperation deal to divvy up the remaining state primaries in order to try to stop Donald Trump. But all the Cruz-Kasich bargain really accomplished was to bring a lot of ridicule crashing down on them.

The Donald's juggernaut seems to be on crude control, meaning he'll most likely come to the convention with enough delegates to make all the feudal game-playing futile. What we'll witness then will be all the party poobahs pathetically sidling up to Trump to assure him he was really their favorite all along.

The Democrats are playing a slightly different version of the same game. First of all, let's face it -- Bernie Sanders is partially a creation of Hillary Clinton. Unfortunately, she's not a great candidate. Not only can she come across as having a sense of entitlement, but to many she appears inauthentic or outright dishonest. Furthermore, her coziness with the super-rich who are the villains in this year's political drama has created a massive opening for Sanders, who is definitely not cozy with them. His entire focus is on financial inequality.

But he's faltering. So he's responding by laying off a big chunk of his staff. Excuse me, but isn't that what the evil corporations do? Just saying.

Donald Trump, on the other side, is exploiting that same politics of resentment his way. The difference is that Trump's answer is bigotry, while Sanders' is socialism. Both have done very well, but unlike the Republicans, the Democratic establishment has prevailed. Their person, Hillary Clinton, will be the nominee. Sanders will certainly get a prominent speaking role at the convention, and then maybe he'll appear for her during the general-election runoff. But, in all probability, it's back to Senate oblivion for him again, tilting at windmills.

We're almost certainly left with Trump versus Clinton in the final race, a battle to determine who's less unpopular. It'll be a brutal campaign, tough on both of them. But it'll be even worse for those who started out but were forced out. In politics, there's no such thing as a nice try.

Anti-Trump protesters do his bidding

Donald Trump is lucky in his enemies.

Every time leftist protesters disrupt one of his events or stage a riot outside, he benefits. They aren't on the Trump payroll, but they might as well be. The protests are catnip to cable TV -- as if Trump needed any more free media attention -- and provide the perfect framing for Trump's message that only he has the strength to defy the forces of chaos and political correctness.

At California campaign stops last week, anti-Trump protesters blocked a freeway entrance, stomped on and tried to overturn a police car, threw rocks at passing vehicles and bloodied a Trump supporter. They tried to shut down the California GOP convention where Trump spoke (he had to enter the hotel through a back entrance). And some of them were waving Mexican flags. In other words, they could have been cast in a Trump reality show about his own campaign.

These kind of protests are quickly becoming accepted as part of the scenery, but they are a noxious breach of our political norms. There is never an excuse for violence, and attempting to shut down an event because you disagree with things that are being said there is speech suppression worthy of Brown University or Oberlin College.

The anti-Trump protests get media coverage, but not wall-to-wall outrage, since the left tends to get a free pass for its lawlessness (it is always presumed to be in the cause of truth and justice). Imagine if inflamed conservatives were constantly interrupting Bernie Sanders rallies and trying to obstruct his events. A thousand cable debates and op-eds would be devoted to dissecting the dangerous thuggery of the right.

Whatever you think of their tactics, the anti-Trump protesters are dancing to his tune. Trump is not a candidate of freedom, but of order. Every time he is seen as standing up to a mob, it enhances and cements his brand with his supporters. Especially when that mob is waving the flag of a foreign country. It allows him to pose as the protector of the community, as a champion of free speech, as a man too courageous to back down from telling truths that the other side doesn't want to hear.

Trump has gone out of his way to create a charged atmosphere around his candidacy. He has -- appallingly -- egged on his supporters to punch protesters, and threatened violence at the Republican convention if he doesn't get his way. His occasional pledges to become more presidential presumably involve toning down the belligerency, but it's not clear if he is really inclined to dial it back, and even if he is, all that has transpired over the past year won't be forgotten. He will continue to be a radioactive figure and draw protesters seeking to shut him down or, failing that, create an aura of discrediting chaos around his candidacy.

In 2008, then-candidate Barack Obama was dubbed “no-drama Obama.” Trump, so far, has been drama all the time. It will be a long, hot summer -- and fall.

Ugly choices ahead for Brownback, legislators

Well, this is the week, probably, that we find out whether the most dramatic, important bills of the 2016 legislative session are signed into law by Gov. Sam Brownback.

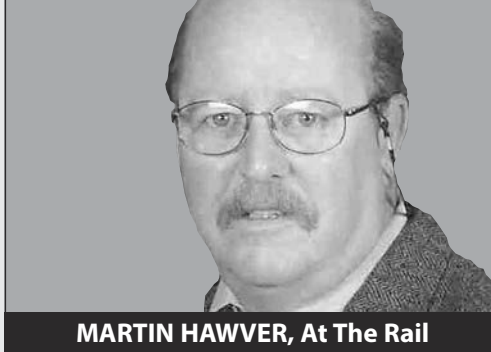

These are the bills that will impact how Kansans live and deal with each other, and, by the way, assemble a cash-short budget for a year in which the state is cash-short. Reasons for that shortage are, of course, the 2012 tax cuts the Legislature had little interest in reversing, even for those widely criticized LLCs, owner-operated businesses and, of course, farmers.

It is that shortage that is one reason, for example, lawmakers passed to the governor a bill that will shorten from 36 months to 24 months a key welfare measure, the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families program, which is a federally funded program that the state doesn't spend a dime on. It's essentially a few hundred dollars a month so that the poorest of Kansans can eat and live indoors and feed their children.

And, there's the step therapy program, estimated to save the state and its Medicaid (we call it KanCare here) contractors about $10 million a year. Basically, it's a stutter step, prescribing cheaper medications for the poor and those with largely psychological or behavioral illnesses, and not moving them to expensive prescriptions for at least 30 days (in case the less expensive work), saving the contractors hundreds of dollars per patient.

Don't forget the sale of the assets of the Kansas Bioscience Authority, probably $25 million worth, which will shut down one of the state's premiere and apparently successful efforts to assist high-tech and bioscience expansion in Kansas, a source of high-paying jobs and medical research that has focused development in Kansas, of all places, not somewhere you can see an ocean.

Oh, and the delay of at least a year repaying about $97 million in employer (that's the state) payments to the Kansas Public Employees Retirement System, on behalf of mostly educational system employees. The delay in repaying that borrowed money is supposed to bridge a revenue gap for which there is no apparent fix.

Sales tax revenues for the Kansas Department of Transportation? That's all over, and while the governor can single-handedly just not make $185 million in sales tax transfers to KDOT in the remainder of this fiscal year and next, that $185 million results in more than $553 million of projects (including federal and other funds) not being put out for bid.

It's a big week ahead, some ugly choices being made on behalf of Kansans, and the real problem—from just operating state government, but also politically for legislators who stand for re-election this fall—is that it doesn't appear that it will get better next year, and maybe the year after with a governor who opposes raising taxes on business.

Maybe the bills that the governor will consider signing this week would seem a little less dramatic if they fixed anything but the budget shortage.

If there were a plan—which probably should have been started last year or the year before—that was designed to “downsize” government, or make it more economical or streamlined, this week's bill signings would seem a little less discouraging.

But that didn't happen, and now legislators are going to stand for re-election with not much to show their potential voters. Oh, a few bills are worth touting. You don't have to brand sheep and goats anymore. You can finally get a way to sue a neighbor who flies drones over your backyard when you are sunbathing. A little something, but it's like prom night dinner when your date tells you to look at the chicken dishes and stay away from the steaks.

Just a little disappointing, or a lot disappointing...

We're wondering how legislators campaign on a session with those results.

This antique popcorn popper is at least 100 years old.

Antique popcorn popper harkens to long history

All of you know what this artifact is. Right! It is a Antique Primitive Popcorn Popper.

Kay and I neither one know how old it really is. All we do know it belonged to her grandmother, that in itself makes it 100 years old at the very least.

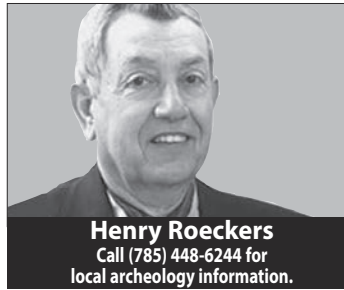

The art of popping corn is at least 5,000 years old, presented by the American Indians.

Popped corn was a native Indian dish and a novelty to the early explorers of the New World. Columbus and his men purchased popcorn necklaces from the natives in the West Indies, and in the 1500's, when Hernando Cortes invaded the territory that today in Mexico City, he discovered the Aztecs wearing amulets of stringed popcorn in religious ceremonies.

The word "popcorn" derives its name from the Middle English word "poppe" meaning "explosive sound".

The Indians developed three methods for popping high-moisture corn. They skewered an ear of corn on a stick and roasted it over a fire, gathering up the kernels that popped free of the cob and flames. Alternatively, the kernels were first scraped from the cob, then thrown directly into a low fire; again, those that jumped free were eaten. The third method was the most sophisticated. A shallow clay cooking vessel containing coarse sand was heated, and when the sand reached a high temperature, corn kernels were stirred in; cooking, they popped up to the surface of the sand and were eaten.

By 1947, 85% of the nations theaters were selling popcorn. Today, the average American consumes two to three pounds of popcorn per year.

Event to celebrate city's Patriotic Banners project

The City of Garnett will host a "Celebration of Service" honoring the 39 individuals that are represented through the Project: Garnett Remembers patriotic pole banner project. The celebration will be the opening ceremony for the project and commemorate the flying of these banners from May 25th, just prior to Memorial Day Weekend, through Independence Day, July 4th, in the City of Garnett. The banners will be displayed in the downtown area and then along Highway 59. Plans for this project are to continue on Highway 59 and east on Park Road toward the North Lake Park and Garnett Municipal Cemetery.

The public is invited to the "Celebration of Service" ceremony which will take place on the Anderson County Courthouse lawn on Wednesday, May 25 and will begin with music by the Garnett Area Community Band at 7 p.m. Representatives of the City of Garnett will speak.

The names of honorees of each banner will be read and recognized. Living honorees, and family and friends who have graciously sponsored the banners, along with members of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion Riders have been invited. The community is encouraged to attend this tribute to all men and women who have served or are currently serving our country.

The City of Garnett, through the Garnett Community Foundation, is still accepting banner sponsors through June 1 of this year. Pole banners sponsored from now until June 1 will be installed prior to Independence Day, July 4, 2016. Thereafter, the banners will be on display annually through Independence Day. Sponsorship of a banner through this project is tax deductible. For more information visit www.SimplyGarnett.com or please contact Garnett City Hall at 785.448.5496.

ZONING...

Tennessee Roads in Lincoln Township, should have been subject to the county zoning plan's requirements for the permit, which requires notification of immediate neighbors as well as a hearing by the zoning board and a final recommendation made to county commissioners. The tower is a test site conducting wind analysis and owned by Calpine Corporation, which hopes to locate some 100 wind turbine sites along a band stretching some 30,000 acres through eastern Anderson County.

Greenlee, an architect who lives just off Bush City Road, said he or his legal representatives plan to address the issue at an upcoming meeting of the county zoning board on May 16.

"One night it was just there," Greenlee said of the red strobe atop the 328-foot tower, which sets a little less than three miles south of his home. "A blinking red light that lights up the inside of my house."

Section 4-5 of the county's zoning regulations specify "no building or structure shall exceed the following height restrictions..." and then details limits on both residential, ag and non-ag structures, including personal radio and TV towers and antennae, of 100 feet. Other non-agricultural structures "such as water towers, rock crushers and telecommunications, radio, microwave and television towers, etc., shall be determined by the planning commission in consideration of a Special Use Permit."

But former county zoning director Tom Young told the Review the tower did not conform to structures regulated by local zoning codes, since it did not transmit, receive or relay an electronic signal. Young said the tower conformed to FAA regulations for illumination, etc., and that it was basically outside the venue of any local regulation.

Young is presently retired from the post of county planning and zoning director, though he is expected to resume the position this summer within the guidelines defined by the Kansas Public Employees Retirement System. County commissioners said they did not know whether Young would attend the May 16 meeting. County staff contacted yesterday by the Review could find no other language in the zoning code relating to towers or defining their function as a qualifier for being regulated.

County commissioners, approached by the Review at their Monday meeting, said they too agreed there was a question as to the tower's adherence to the zoning regs. Commissioners don't deal directly with zoning issues, but do make final consideration on recommendations from the planning commission.

"I think you're going the right direction on that," said commissioner Gene Highberger.

Chris Stanton, senior development associate with Calpine Corporation, said Young confirmed to the company that no special use permit was needed for the construction of the tower.

"As a matter of procedures we check with local permitting before we go ahead, obviously," Stanton told the Review. Stanton said Calpine was pursuing other projects elsewhere in Kansas and in Oklahoma, and that construction and permitting of the local tower was consistent with those other projects.

Zoning regulations are expected to play a key role in issues surrounding the development of the proposed local wind farm, as the construction of the 500 foot wind mills throughout the countryside is expected to involve a number of permits and zoning actions. The structures pay no local property taxes, but Calpine has pledged $500,000 annually in payment in lieu of taxes to Anderson County as an incentive to approve the project once proposed. The company has been contacting local landowners to propose lease agreements since last fall.

The May 16 zoning board meeting begins at 7 p.m. at the Anderson County Annex.

Hicks pole vaults into KU

BY BOBBY NIGHTGALE THE LAWRENCE JOURNAL-WORLD

LAWRENCE — When reigning 6A women's pole vault champ Callie Hicks entered high school, she never pictured herself as a pole vaulter. Until three years ago, the Free State High senior spent most of her time focusing on gymnastics.

After shin splits and leg pain hampered competitive gymnastics, a family friend mentioned vaulting and encouraged her to try it out.

Fast forward to Wednesday, when Hicks signed her letter of intent to vault at Kansas University. Along with Hicks, Free State had three runners celebrate signings. Tommy Jacobs and Ronald White signed to run at Allen Community College, and Tanner Hockenbury signed with Washburn University.

"This day was really awesome altogether," Hicks said. "It was great having friends and family here to watch me sign, finally. Just a really great day."

Hicks won a Class 6A state title last season by clearing 10 feet, 6 inches. Her personal record at Free State is 12-3, only six inches short of tying the school record, and she set her all-around PR of 12-6 at a street vault last summer in Lincoln, Neb. Her goal for the rest of the year is reaching 13-6.

Before choosing the Jayhawks, Hicks considered several schools across the Midwest, including Wichita State, Kansas State, Nebraska and UMKC.

"Honestly, three years ago, I never would've dreamed I would have even been a pole vaulter at all," Hicks said. "But I'd definitely say it's a great thing. I love it so much, and I'm really excited to see where I go."

The key for Hicks, who finished runner-up at the Kansas Relays earlier this season, was putting in extra work during the summer after her sophomore year. That's when she transformed from an elite gymnast doing pole vaulting to one of the top vaulters in the state.

Competing for the Firebirds in gymnastics, Hicks took fourth in 6A on the uneven bars and fifth on the vault last season. She helped lead Free State to a 6A state title in 2014, and placed 10th all-around.

"Summer is just a good time for (vaulting) because it's a really inconsistent sport, and it takes a lot of work to get it consistent," Hicks said. "Not having school or anything like that, I could spend more time working on it."

Pole vaulting may be an inconsistent sport, but Hicks has made it look easy this season. Outside of her runner-up finish in the Kansas Relays, she has won every meet. One of the bonuses of competing at the Relays and going up against some of her training partners was the opportunity to vault at her future home.

Hicks is from Greeley, 50 miles south of Lawrence, and attended Anderson County High School until her sophomore year. She said she chose KU for a number of reasons.

"I wanted to be close to home," she said. "Actually, three reasons: I love Lawrence, I love the vault program and the athletes and coaches at KU. I just think it's going to be the best thing ever."

Her parents are Barb and Dane Hicks of Greeley.

Local golfers compete at Ottawa

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

OTTAWA — The Central Heights Vikings and Anderson County Bulldogs traveled to Ottawa Monday to compete in the Ottawa Invitational golf meet and came away with a couple of top 10 finishes.

Matt Percy from Central Heights jumped out to a tie for the lead with Eric Pahls from Paola after the front nine with a 35. Pahls finished 2 strokes better on the back nine to win the Invitational with an overall score of 71.

Percy actually dropped to third with a total of 73. Percy was overtaken by Parker Olmstead from Ottawa who finished in second place on his home course.

Zach Miller, the Bulldogs top finisher in 10th place, shot a 39 on the front nine and 41 on the back nine to finish with an overall score of 80.

Quentin Sams from Anderson County shot a 90 overall to finish in 21st place to round out the day for the Bulldog golfers.

The Vikings had two other golfers outside of Percy. Kyle Powelson and Carson Powelson finished with an 88 and 95 respectively.

Vikings swept by Northern Heights

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

ALLEN — It was a rough night offensively in nearly every facet of the game as the Central Heights Vikings were outplayed in a doubleheader sweep at the hands of Northern Heights.

A lack of offense in the first game made things very difficult on starting pitcher Ethan Shields. Shields allowed 5 runs in 5 innings in the 8-1 loss, while striking out 6 batters in the game.

"He (Shields) struggled getting the ball down and that hurt him on a short field," head coach Jason Brown said.

Acknowledging the lack of offense as the Vikings picked up just two hits in the opener, Brown added "We did not give him any help offensively either!"

The late game was much of the same with the Vikings falling to Northern Heights 7-1.

Coach Brown feels his guys hit the ball better in the late game, but they just weren't finding holes.

Merrick Brown, Jacob Pryor, Cade Masingale, Colin Maloney and Jason Clissold all picked up a hit in the second game.

Pryors' hit was the only extra base hit in the doubleheader for the Vikings as he eventually came around to score the only run of the game.

Vikings softball splits doubleheader

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

ALLEN — On Tuesday the Vikings Softball team traveled to take on Northern Heights and let a promising start to the doubleheader, winning the first game, slip away in a blow-out loss in the late game.

Megan Davis led the way for Central Heights in the opener as the Vikings won 7-3. Davis picked up two hits and drove in four runs as well.

Davis also kept the Northern Heights hitters off balance most of the day. Davis pitched 7 solid innings allowing just 7 hits and 3 earned runs.

The offense provided plenty of support. Shelbi Hettinger, Tess Cotterand and Morgan Jilek all joined in on the action with two hits each.

The Vikings jumped up early in the late game and had a 1-0 lead after the top of the second inning following a 2-out error by Northern Heights.

The bottom half appeared to be a quick inning until the wheels fell off after getting the first two batters of the inning.

Four hits, two walks and an error led to a 6 run inning for Northern Heights and gave them a 6-1 advantage.

Just two innings later, Northern Heights was at it again.

Once again it was a combination of a struggling defense and pitchers struggling to find the strike zone.

Two more walks and two more errors led to runs before a three-run homerun scored the final runs of the inning to take a 12-2 lead, which would be the final tally.

ACHS baseball splits with Chargers

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — The Anderson County Bulldogs squared off with the Santa Fe Trail Chargers and earned a split after an opening pitching gem by Cole Deny was followed by a blowout in the late game.

Denny only allowed a seventh inning runner to score after pitching a shutout through the first six innings in game one. It brought to an end an 11 1/3 inning scoreless streak that dated back to his last start against Neodesha.

Offensively the Bulldogs were led by senior Jacob Rundle, who pounded out 2 hits to go along with 2 runs scored and a run batted in.

In the nightcap, Anderson County fell behind 3-0 after the first inning and that lead ballooned after an 8 run top of the third inning.

The Chargers tacked on 2 more in the 5th inning and finished off the Bulldogs with 6 runs in the top of the 6th as they cruised to an easy 19-4 win.

Make your window displays sell for you

Even though everyone raves about the increasing amount of shopping that's done online, it's still true that some 90 percent of retail purchases are made at a store. That means the old-school efforts - like window displays - still matter a bunch.

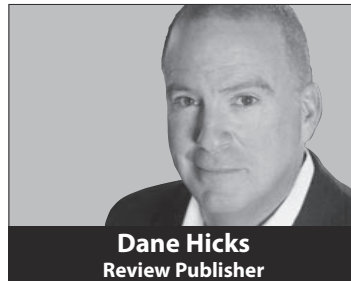

After all, if you're in business and if you have a window, it should be working to sell something for you. Here are a couple of ideas to make window displays work for you.

1) Stand outside your window with an index card or piece of paper roughly the proportionate dimension of your viewable window area. Sketch your idea to make it a plan you can work from. With color, think in terms of background, foreground and feature. Half your color use should be background; 10 percent should be feature, with the rest devoted to secondary items.

2) It's less busy and easier to focus on specific items in your display if you use a minimalist approach - so don't cram your display full of items. Use odd numbers - one or three or five - they deny symmetry and stand out to the viewer.

3) Don't forget about lighting and movement. Directional lights at the base of the display can be used to light the backgrounds even during daylight hours, and you can play with them to make the shadows give even more appeal. Be sure to have the display lit for night time viewing. Put an electric train in the display running in and out of your featured items and you'll pull even longer glances. You can find little electric motors to add movement, or even a small fan placed out of view and blowing a mannequin's hair or some streamers adds animation to an otherwise static display.

4) But the granddaddy of all tips - always, and I mean always put some kind of signage in your window with your phone number, website and email info - if you use a QR code, don't forget to put it in the window. Be easy to contact even in your window display. Cinderella should never dazzle the prince and not leave a slipper behind.

Your window displays can be powerful selling tools, so take a little time and treat them right.

Landmark National Bank among top community banks

MANHATTAN - Landmark National Bank was recently named to American Banker's "Top 200 Publicly Traded Community Banks and Thrifts." The annual ranking examines publicly traded banks and thrifts with less than $2 billion of assets, and is calculated using each institution's return on average equity across a three year period ending in 2015. Landmark was listed in a tie for number 75 in the listing of the top 200 institutions, with a return of 11.01% over the three years.

Additionally, Landmark was also recognized by Seifried & Brew LLC, a community bank risk investment firm, as a 2015 S&B 5 Gold Bar Institution. The ranking is based upon the risk and reward balance utilizing S&B's Total Risk/Return Composite Ranking. The rankings cover all banks in the United States between $10 million and $10 billion in assets. The total population of banks in this asset range is approximately 6,000. Landmark was ranked in a tie at number 299 on the S&B list.

"We are honored to be included both on American Banker's list of the Top 200 public community banks, as well as by the S&B Gold Bar designation," said Michael E. Scheopner, President and Chief Executive Officer. "Landmark National Bank had record results in 2015, due in large measure to our associates' dedication to consistently delivering extraordinary levels of service, while developing high-quality banking relationships and maintaining high credit quality standards."

Headquartered in Manhattan, Kansas, Landmark National Bank is a community banking organization dedicated to providing quality financial and banking services. Landmark National Bank has 29 locations in 23 communities across Kansas: Manhattan (2), Auburn, Dodge City (2), Fort Scott (2), Garden City, Great Bend (2), Hoisington, Iola, Junction City, Kincaid, LaCrosse, Lawrence (2), Lenexa, Louisburg, Mound City, Osage City, Osawatimie, Overland Park, Paola, Pittsburg, Topeka (2), Wamego, and Wellsville. # Jenkins files for re-election to U.S. House

TOPEKA - Congresswoman Lynn Jenkins (KS-02) released the following statement after filing for re-election to the United States House of Representatives and seek to represent the Kansas' 2nd Congressional District:

"I was born and raised in the 2nd Congressional District of Kansas and have been so honored to represent Eastern Kansans in Congress for the past seven years. I get a constant reminder everywhere I go that we value hard work, self-reliance, honesty and compassion. And it is these values that I take to Congress and do my best to promote and defend against the relentless attacks of President Obama, Nancy Pelosi and Washington insiders.

"In Congress, I have worked to rein in federal spending, stop President Obama from fulfilling his campaign promise to close the detention center at Guantanamo Bay, advance important mental health reforms and slow President Obama's excessive and harmful regulations, such as the Waters of the United States rule. Much more needs to be done.

"With your support, we can get our spending on the right fiscal track so that our kids will not be saddled with this extreme national debt. We can repeal Obamacare's penalizing mandates so that more Kansan's can have quality healthcare at an affordable cost. We can, finally, fix our broken tax code so that businesses can grow and create more jobs. And, we can continue to improve our national security to protect Kansans from radical Islamic terrorist organizations, such as ISIS."

2016 Veto Session ends shortest sessions in years

After time away from the Capitol, legislators reconvened for Veto Session April 26th. It was an intense schedule as leadership decided to adjourn before the next week. As a result, the 2016 session was one of the shortest sessions the legislature has seen in years; some say in 42 years.

The budget, Senate Bill (SB) 249, was the last bill passed. As with any budget bill there was good and bad. This bill was no different. Although the budget contained some much needed provisions, I could not support it as it increased spending. Revenues (taxes collected) have increased but haven't met estimates resulting in a $94 million shortfall of what was expected in Fiscal Year (FY) 2016 and an estimate of $135 million for FY 2017. Regardless, the facts are the tax receipts were up 4.9% and are on target to be up 2.7% this year, a $124 million increase. The problem is increased government spending. Another part of the equation that is not often told, is the decreased taxes collected as a result of falling commodity, oil, and gas prices. It has been reported that Oklahoma has a $1 billion shortfall in revenue estimates. In one year, Alaska missed estimates by 90% about $3 billion.

One piece of legislation that passed, Yes 38 to No 2, changes the way the Weights and Measures Department charges for lab services. Currently, the Kansas Department of Weights and Measures metrology lab service fees do not cover the cost of calibrating weights for businesses. Besides that, approximately 30% of the services performed are for out-of-state businesses and Kansas taxpayers are picking up the tab. This change was proposed over 5 years ago but not acted upon. The legislation needed change and so I voted for Conference Committee Report (CCR) 2490.

Another piece of legislation that I supported was the CCR 280 that makes several changes to property tax law, protecting the taxpayers rights of appeal. It will allow a property taxpayer to use receipts or other documentation to demonstrate agriculture use. The legislation authorizes the Department of Revenue's Director to remove an appraiser's name from the eligibility list for any of the following reasons: failing to meet continuing education requirements; pleading guilty or being convicted of certain crimes; having been the subject of a final civil judgment of fraud, misrepresentation; or deceit in appraising property. There were other changes too numerous to list in this summary. The bill passed the Senate 40-0.

It is an honor and a privilege to serve as your 12th District State Senator.

Who should you listen to?

I heard a Bible commentator relate a story about how he had presented the gospel message and after the message he was approached by a man who was very moved by the message. After some conversation the man said; "It's just not easy to change after living a lie for over 40 years." I believe this is the dilemma most of us have faced or will have to face at some point. The problem with living a sinful life and convincing ourselves it is acceptable is we are in fact lying to ourselves. This gets even more complicated the further we get involved in transgressing against God. It is not in our nature to desire the things of God. It is easy to enjoy the pleasures that the world places in front of us. The problem with pleasure offered in this way is it always comes with a consequence somewhere down the line. Seeking pleasure is only the symptom of a bigger problem.

Man wants to be autonomous, that is in charge of himself, not answerable to anyone, free. Seeking and finding pleasure satisfies this desire for a time. But one must continue to find new ways to pleasure one's self. That is why it is so difficult to separate ones self from a lifestyle that we have become comfortable with. Our adversary will tell us the following lies. You can't change what would everyone think? It's too late: you're too involved. Everyone else does this it is perfectly acceptable. And lastly you won't be happy.

In the end some people will never change, others will change because of some consequence that resulted from their actions. In John 8:31-32; Jesus speaking to the Jews says, "If you hold to my teaching you are really my disciples. Then you will know the truth and the truth will set you free." And in John 14:6 Jesus says, "I am the way, and the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me."

So now it comes down to who do you believe? That little voice in your ear encouraging you to stay the course and be free or the Son of the Living God? So here is something for you and I to think about when we lie down tonight. If you or I physically die while we are spiritually dead we will suffer eternal death. At that point there is no mention anywhere in God's word about us being able to change our eternal destination. I would recommend you read the story concerning Lazarus and the Rich Man in Luke 16:19-31 for confirmation.

Young joins KSU Student Alumni Board

MANHATTAN - Drew Young, Burlington, was among 13 Kansas State University students recently selected to serve on Student Alumni Board, a group of approximately 40 students who promote and serve the university and the K-State Alumni Association. Student Alumni Board works to enhance the K-State experience by creating a link between the K-State Alumni Association and past, present and future students.

Young is a sophomore in biological systems engineering and is the son of Doug and Teresa Young, and the grandson of Loretta and the late Duane Young, Westphalia, and Richard and Vera Singer, Garnett.

SAB members are responsible for planning and hosting several programs to recruit students to K-State, including the For Sophomores Only program for high school sophomores and the Just For Juniors program for high school juniors and their parents. Student Alumni Board members also coordinate and assist with Wildcats Forever Student Alumni Association, Grad Bash, the Distinguished Young Alumni Award, Junior Wildcats Club and other Alumni Association programs and events.

"This is a group of well-rounded, creative and engaged students who are passionate about their university," said Amanda Lee, Student Alumni Board adviser and assistant director of student programs for the association. "We look forward to working with them to promote and enhance the K-State experience."

Kart Enduro Races to return

The first of the two Kart Enduro Road Races is scheduled for May 14-15 at Lake Garnett.

As always, many racers from several states are entered for this karting event. Kart racing has been held on the Lake Road for 57 years and as in the past the North Lake Road will be closed to the local traffic from 8 a.m. - 5 p.m. on both dates.

The community is welcome to watch the races free of charge at the south end of the Lake Road, which is known as the Flat Iron Corner. If one wishes to enter the Pit Area a pass fee is required.

The Garnett Enduro Club invites the community to come out and view and support the racers. Local racer Bryan
