Painting, repair project returns

260 teens, staff arrive next week to fix, paint homes around county

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - The GAPP is back. Starting Sunday, about 260 teenagers and adult staff members will gather in Garnett to begin a weeklong project to paint houses and build or replace porches and wheelchair ramps as part of the Garnett Area Paint Project. This year's event will improve more than 60 homes in six communities in Anderson County. A similar event took place in July 2013.

GAPP is sponsored by the Garnett Area Ministerial Alliance, the City of Garnett and Anderson County Commissioners, and made possible by numerous volunteers and donations from local businesses. It is co-sponsored by Group Workcamps, one of several missions operated by the Group Cares Foundation.

Mayor, county scrap over funds for roads

Garnett part of county too, Gwin argues, but money not available

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - County commissioners and Garnett Mayor Greg Gwin scrapped over county assistance to Garnett's hard-surface roads last week, and the county made it clear no immediate assistance would be forthcoming to Garnett until other county projects were served.

However, the meeting may have resulted in a future participation arrangement that puts some city street repair back onto the county's task list.

The roads issue between Garnett and Anderson County goes back to the early 2000s, when county workers did some maintenance on the city's hard-surface streets, primarily through oiling and chip sealing them - even chip sealing downtown streets on the county square at one time. As with other cities in the county the municipality paid for the materials and the county provided labor and machinery. But city officials apparently weren't

County to consider employee pay raises

Current pay scale doesn't reward longtime county employees, could change

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Concerns about limited opportunities for county employees to earn higher wages and a state law that will limit property tax increases next year are pushing county commissioners to revamp their salary plan within the next month or so.

Commissioners feel the county's current scale for salary increases is inadequate, Chairman Jerry Howarter said

Tractor pull offers record purse, kicks off county fair

Fair takes place Aug 2-6; annual tractor pull is first event as some changes ahead for county event

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Anderson County Fair organizers are offering a record purse for this Saturday's tractor pull event, hoping the kick-off for this year's fair builds some momentum for the midway carnival and other events beginning the fair's full run the first week in August.

Fair board chairman Jess Rockers told the Review this week there would be a couple of changes to the fair this year, most notably a $5,000 contract fee increase - to a total of $30,000 - as a guarantee to the carnival company to run a carnival at the 2016 fair. That fact makes it all the more important that locals help promote and support this year's carnival, Rockers said.

"It's costing us more," Rockers said of the Aug. 2-Aug. 6 event. "So we need people to plan to attend and to talk the carnival up among their friends, their family and their social media contacts."

Single tickets will be sold for $1 this year, although carnival rides will cost multiple tickets. Rockers said all-night wristbands will still be available for $15 in advance and $20 the week of the fair. Advance wristbands

Commission questioned how he came up with letting Calpine build the test tower without a permit. He did not know that the tower was going to be as tall as it was and since it was not transmitting frequencies he did not feel it needed a permit. Commission stated they would like two weeks to make a decision of whether they will have Tom come back to work.

Jail Refinance

Tyler Ellsworth, Kutak Rock and David Arterberry, George K. Baum, LLC met with the commission. David gave the commission a copy of the bond statement for their review. At the present time it looks like the savings on the bond refinance could be around one million dollars. Since we will not finish the refinance until July 18th it could be more or less depending on what the market does in the next few weeks. David requested the commission set a figure on the minimum savings they would agree to. Commissioner Highberger moved to approve Resolution 2016.0627:1 ratifying and confirming the appointments and successive terms of certain board members of the Public Building Commission, authorizing preparation of a preliminary official statement in connection with the offering for sale of lease revenue refunding bonds of the Anderson County Building Commission and conditioning the issuance of such bonds on certain minimum net savings. Commissioner McGhee seconded. Approved 3-0. Commissioner Highberger moved to recess into executive session for an additional five minutes with Mick Brinkmeyer, Commissioner McGhee seconded. Approved 3-0.

Salary Committee/Department Head Meeting

The salary committee and department heads along with the County Counselor James Campbell met with the commission. Discussion was held on the appeal by the ethanol plant on their valuation. It was discussed as to whether PVD can give us some guidance on whether to omit or include their valuation in the county valuation. Rodney Burns, Auditor advised the department heads to not make any cuts this year as next year the budgets cannot raise more than the CPI without a mail ballot election. Rodney explained what departments are exempt from the CPI rule. Rodney explained the new rules coming down from the federal government concerning salaried department heads who make under $47,460. The county has the option to either increase their salaries by December 1 to at least $47,460 or put them back to hourly and pay over time when required. Discussion was held on the request of the sheriff to raise the range of his deputies by $2.50. It was the feeling of the salary committee that if we raised the deputies we need to look at increasing all the ranges. Commission advised the salary committee to come up with a recommendation for increasing all ranges and present a cost for this and for increasing the elected officials in two weeks.

Zoning

Commissioner McGhee moved to pay Michelle Miller, Deputy Zoning Director an additional $300 for each month that she has covered for the zoning director. A total of $600 will be paid. Commissioner Highberger seconded. Approved 3-0.

Delinquent Tax Law

Phyllis Gettler, County Clerk met with the commission. She reported that on July 1 there is a new law that if someone has a claim against the county and they have delinquent real estate taxes the county can pay the claim toward the delinquency. Dena McDaniel, Treasurer is concerned that if a county employee owes back taxes their pay checks could be taken towards the delinquency. She has talked to the county counselor who feels claims is not defined and he will prepare a resolution that exempts employee paychecks.

Sheriff

more than 60 various home repair projects. The majority of the projects involve painting the exterior of 35 homes. Others include replacing steps, replacing or building five porches and another five wheelchair ramps, and other projects.

The campers will stay at Anderson County Jr./Sr. High School. From Monday to Friday, at 7 p.m. each day, they'll have an evening worship service. The public is invited to attend. The campers also will donate school supplies to elementary schools in Anderson County.

"Our greatest success is community engagement as we are seeking to involve as many community, church and youth groups as possible," GAPP organizers Scott Rogers and Pastor Chris Goetz of the First Christian Church in Garnett said.

During the 2013 event, about 360 youth completed eight handicapped ramps and painted about 40 homes in seven Anderson County communities. The campers provided more than 12,000 hours of community service, worth about $130,000 in volunteer labor, Goetz reported after the event.

During the previous GAPP event in 2013, Group Workcamps attendees and staff voted their Garnett experience one of the best in areas of community engagement. Campers said they appreciated the way people in the community took time to speak with them or provide snacks. At one point, the Garnett Fire Department brought out a truck and turned on a hose to cool campers during sweltering temperatures.

Opportunities to cool off could be important for this year's camp as well. Preliminary long-range weather forecasts predict next week will be very warm and dry, with temperatures at times reaching the upper 90s and lows only in the 70s.

Local organizers are still accepting monetary donations to pay for paint and building material. Donations can be made to the Garnett Community Foundation, designated for GAPP. For more information or to donate, contact Scott Rogers at (785) 448-6500.

could not add additional projects without bumping others down the schedule.

Gwin said the county had neglected Garnett's streets for a decade. He said the city generated more than $460,000 for the county road department's budget from property owners in the City of Garnett, alluding to the point that Garnett's portion of the road budget was being spent everywhere but Garnett.

"I don't know that there's any other part of the county where you could do nothing for 10 years and not have it come to a head," Gwin said. "Garnett's part of the county too. We're just asking for our fair share."

District II Commissioner Jerry Howarter said that the city's portion of the road budget had indeed been earmarked for other projects elsewhere in the county because there was no communication that Garnett wanted to renew its arrangement.

Gwin suggested that with the county's schedule full, the road department could contract with a third party paving company to handle the work in Garnett. District III Commissioner Gene Highberger said if the city wanted a third party contractor it should hire one, but that the county's funds for the coming work season were already obligated.

After further discussion the parties resolved that the city would communicate its present road needs to the county road department for inclusion on its project list, with the understanding that no Garnett jobs would be moved forward on the list to be approached this work season.

A terrible week for law and justice

They say when you lose and you feel beaten, it's important to remember how it feels to win. When you're vanquished and in despair, sometimes it's the only thing that gives you hope.

Last week, justice lost big in the United States. We started out by watching the FBI let a public official off the hook who lied to the country, mishandled Top Secret information and destroyed government information that you and I are entitled to by law as citizens of the United States. If you've ever gotten so much as a parking ticket before, you got a more severe penalty.

What's worse: There's a good chance she, her history and her character will be elected your next president.

Then, despite case after case where we've seen the wrong way to be detained in a police stop, two more men – both black, both armed – opt to proceed with precisely the wrong method to stay alive.

One in Baton Rouge forced an altercation with cops and was criminally in possession of a gun the police said he was trying to pull as they grappled with him; another in Minnesota allegedly had a concealed carry permit for the weapon he had in his lap during a traffic stop (yes, in his lap during a traffic stop – huh?). Minnesota shields the names of CCW permit holders, so we may never know if he actually had that permit. The man's girlfriend and the cop, and the woman's four-year old daughter in the back seat, were the only witnesses. The woman smoked a joint in a rambling, narcissistic Facebook video with the boyfriend beside her – and the child in the backseat – during a July 4 fireworks display days before, so her testimony will be impugned. We may never know what really happened and if the cop over-reacted. But the boyfriend is dead.

If they were white or any other color, would they still be alive? If they were white or any other color, would they have treated the police differently, or been treated differently by police?

There was barely time to debate those questions – yet again – before Micah

REVIEW COMMENTARY

DANE HICKS, Publisher

Johnson took a vantage position on a peaceful Black Lives Matter demonstration in Dallas and started shooting at white people – mostly white cops, killing five police officers and wounding numerous others.

The police at the protest, no doubt clueless about the shooter's motives or choice of target at the outset, moved to protect the protestors as they scattered. Notable irony.

Whether a politically obsessed presidential candidate or a black man convinced the cops are trigger happy bullies, it's clear the law is of little concern in certain segments of our country. When laws aren't enforced, as in Hillary Clinton's case, it makes things worse; when attempts to enforce law end in someone's death, it makes things worse.

Police who deal with black-on-black violence day in and day out are no doubt on edge – and rightfully so – because they've seen the byproduct that doesn't make the viral videos. It's a culture of thuggery that whispers in every cop's mind that he may not come home tonight, but it doesn't make every black man guilty. Newt Gingrich said regular white folks have no idea what it's like to be black in America, and he's spot on.

"Right" people have to keep doing right; they have to keep talking about doing right and calling out those who don't. There are still more right people than wrong people, and if we do that, justice and law will see better days.

I read the article in the Review about the companies who subcontracted to work on the Waverly Wind Farm not getting paid and filing liens against the contractor and the wind farm. I wonder if anyone who is going to do business with the wind farm in Anderson County has thought what happens if the company goes out of business? What if congress does away with those tax credits and all of a sudden nobody wants those wind farms? No company is going to operate them and lose money on them. Would they just leave those things standing there unmaintained and eventually falling down? Never mind how bad they would look anyway, think about how bad they would look 500 feet tall and half fallen down? Would the farmer have to pay to have them demolished? I think I'd be asking that. Thank you.

Hello, I have a little problem here with why the illegal "no gun" sign is still on city hall? In order for it to remain there, there is supposed to be an armed guard at the door. It appears they must be exempt from the state law. How arrogant.

I went to several sites also. That wind farm company is not losing money or people dumping their stock right and left. That's an out and out lie. Matter of fact in the first quarter they had a profit of $36 million, or up $36 million. You guys that's trying to stop this quit your lying, get over it. You're not gonna stop it. You got the druggist with his millions to help you but it ain't gonna help. You can't lie about something because people do look at stuff. You can look anything up if that's what you want to believe but they're not losing money or investors, you guys are crazy.

About the veterans banners hanging around town, I just wanted to say I think it was a great idea and it's nice to honor these people who served our country and I applaud whoever came up with the idea. The problem is this: the banners themselves are too small and the type is too small to be noticeable much less readable from street level. You might be able to fix this problem by lowering them on the poles by a few feet, but if they are re-ordered or if more are procured in the future, we should get a bigger size. Thanks for doing this wonderful project.

About the school losing money in state aid, well guess what, why don't you go build another million dollar track, go buy another fancy bus, go waste some more money and then sit around on your butts and complain at how broke you are. You guys are the most incompetent people I've ever seen to run a school district. You're just as bad as this so-called Republican governor. Spend all your money on (deleted) and then worry because you don't have any money. How stupid can you be?

It'd be nice if the city street department would get off their (deleted) and spray the grass and weeds on the one-way sidewalk. It looks like (delted).

Is it about time for the city manager to retire? I'm just saying.

According to Obama and Mrs. Clinton and other Democrats, Micah Johnson the murderer of the Dallas cops does not represent all blacks or Black Lives Matter, but he does represent all gun owners. Funny how their logic, or lack thereof, works.

Do you think city councils, mayors, governors, congressmen, the president and law enforcement would kick back and watch Tea Party, Libertarian, Christian or any conservative movement block roads, vandalize, riot, assault, rape and murder in the name of civil rights? Do you think white celebrities would be worshipped for spewing racial hatred and encouraging violence like nearly every black actor, singer and athlete has done? Do you think the media would justify all this racial hatred, violence and bigotry from Germans or Swedes or Irish or Asians or light skinned races?

Why are some of the bathrooms at the north lake, right next to a ball field and picnic area, locked during daylight hours? How convenient is that?

Consider the dangerous implications of wind farms

"Fey" is a Scottish word describing the delirium that can precede disaster. I try to guard against it whenever I encounter something that seems too good to be true and when I read Bill Witlock's recent letter promoting the Calpine Corporation's wind farm in eastern Anderson County, I felt a response should be offered.

In Mr. Witlock's letter, he maintains Calpine's 200 MW project will create a long-term, stable stream of revenue for our county coffers, local businesses will prosper, workers and landowners will all benefit. Furthermore, he assures us that the wind turbines will not disrupt our traditional farming, ranching or hunting and claims the lofty structures are "safe, reliable and quiet". The only drawback they do concede however is "changes to the landscape east of Garnett". There is so much more to all this than a future sea of towering beacons promising economic salvation and a change in our landscape.

Before we blindly embrace these promises, we should pause to address some Economic, Legal and Cultural concerns.

Economic and Legal Concerns

Wind power is the most heavily-subsidized sector of the power industry. Currently the Federal Government has offered significant tax credits for the development of wind farms if constructed prior to the year 2020. In so doing the Federal incentive program has created a frantic rush for the construction of these new projects and Calpine warns that if we hesitate, Anderson County will miss out on the economic boom.

Perhaps we will but here are some additional thoughts. One should know that the wind mill has a life span of approximately 20-25 years and as technology advances, the wind mill becomes a completely obsolete object that will need to be removed and the earth restored to its original state. That part is inevitable. In the meantime, one can prudently expect property values for those 20 years to decrease significantly and Anderson County's attraction to those individuals and families looking for a quiet, beautiful community to live, raise their kids in and retire in, has now dissipated and recovery could take a very long time.

In addition, we cannot ignore the long term negative environmental and social impact a Wind Farm will have on our lives. (for the rest of our lives). If the industry aggressively expands as is currently forecasted and the price supports and tax credits expire, the market will suffer and perhaps collapse as other industries have.

This was certainly the scenario in 2001 when the natural gas market experienced overexpansion, wild price fluctuations and the failure of deregulation. This was also the case in 2005 when the Calpine Corporation itself filed their financial report with the Securities and Exchange

LETTERS

Commission. The report included $4.5 billion in noncash write-offs for natural gas plants and projects that had plummeted in value. They filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection in 2006, and the restructuring plan included shedding existing and planned power plants as well as slashing its workforce.

Who assumes the current risk? I haven't read the proposed lease, but my questions are relevant and sincere: Is the agreement signed by the Calpine Corporation or by a Limited Liability Company specific to this project? Are the county tax obligations and the landowner lease payments secured or unsecured? Do the leases include a performance removal bond for the turbines if the project fails, or when they are obsolete in 20-25 years?

The economic reality is that this is a Business Deal. It is a Business Deal that appears to be designed to benefit Calpine in terms of a speculative investment and certainly not designed as a sure thing, especially for the residents of Anderson County. The "Deal" promises many things that are attractive to some people, but the risks appear to be historically enormous and poised to repeat themselves.

Cultural Concerns

Throughout the Midwest, communities with wind power projects not only report significant property devaluations, both for the project sites and the surrounding landowners, but also a change in their culture. The noise and the physical footprint of the turbines do in fact disturb and disrupt ranching and farming as well as the widespread disbursement of wildlife. Statistics show that turbine noise can be so irritating and disruptive that residents will seek out medical attention to ease their symptoms. The loud aerodynamic sounds created by the large turning blades create pressure fluctuations resulting in severe headaches, anxiety, irritability, sleep disturbance and memory loss. One example is the Shindelcker family from Mason County, Michigan who were neighbors to a wind project and suffered these adverse health effects for years. After their home was transformed from a refuge to a prison, they tried unsuccessfully for years to sell their property without experiencing a significant financial loss.

Anderson County is also part of the North American Central Flyway for migratory birds. It is part of the historic Flint Hills and some of the last remaining stretches of native, tall grass prairie in the United States. This place is an essential part of our rural culture. We take pride in being careful stewards of these natural resources, and wind "farms" are incompatible with this charge and our love for our land. Hosting a utility-scale wind turbine is not farming or ranching; it is the operation of a commercial utility factory on agriculture and ranching land. It will forever change the relationship we have for this land and our community. These projects will also diminish, fragment and degrade the natural, economic and cultural environment of our rural communities and do not bring the prosperity required to overlook or compensate for these sacrifices and permanent losses.

On a final note, I believe we are by our nature and upbringing, more informed and more resilient than the Calpine Corporation currently imagines. It is no secret that Anderson County struggles, as do all rural communities, with economic challenges. In the past, large casinos, packing plants and other large corporations have made similar promises of easy financial relief and many such projects have failed and many such projects have been rejected by the citizens of those communities because their way of life is too valuable and too rare.

Even without the help of a large corporation, Anderson County has managed to build new Schools, new Health Facilities, added to our Library and many other community projects of real value. These are difficult things to do given our circumstances but sometimes it really is OK not to be the richest or to get something handed to us on a silver platter. We absolutely know our community struggles financially and we absolutely know our children leave the community for a better opportunity outside our reach and that's OK. We want the best for our children and we know they never forget who they are and where they come from.

We take great pride in working this land, nurturing its long term possibilities and we believe something as beautiful and as sacred as our land and culture is absolutely worth standing up for when we believe it is being threatened. It is being threatened now by bad economics, high risk and a major change in our culture. Our instincts are to push back when something sounds too good to be true and do our part in protecting its real value for this generation and all those that will follow.

Hopefully, prudent minds who understand the real value of our land and have a deeper, more comprehensive vision for this community will prevail. The people of Anderson County deserve something really great, something real and permanent that will enhance our lives and culture not destroy it.

Finds begin at training work site

2 June 2016
The 41st Annual Kansas Archaeological Training Field School is officially underway. This morning from 8:00 until 10:00am everyone had to attend Orientation. At 10:15 I reported to the site, the Last Chance Store, which was only three blocks from our Headquarters the Council Grove Jr.-Sr. High School.

DIGGING UP THE PAST

Henry Roeckers
Call (785) 448-6244 for local archeology information.

From 10:30 until 12:00, we set up work grids, screens, tents, water containers, buckets, record files and digging equipment. After lunch we continued preparations for excavations to begin. I was assigned to a grid with a student from Washburn University Shelby Beltz, until the metal detector team gets organized.

As grids were opened the following artifacts were found: door lock escutcheon, buttons, square nails, broken dishware, lots of glass shards (clear, brown, amber, blue, green and ruby red).

This evening I attended a super performance of Music of the 1800's by Derrick Doty. He played lots of old songs on his violin and banjo.

3 June 2016

The Metal Detector Team was established consisting of four metal detector operators, three flaggers/diggers, two recorders, one photographer, a Crew leader and a Team Captain. Our first assignment was to detect the grounds surrounding the store. We flagged hundreds of targets (indicating metal artifacts) and dug all those which were outside the marked grid areas.

A number of artifacts were found today either by excavating in the grids or metal detector targets. Found: iron stake, wagon bolts, nuts, washers, very large square nails, dish and glass shards, mother-of-Pearl buttons, etc.

Tonight I attended a talk entitled "How Like A Farce: Councils At The Kanza (KAW) Indian Agency, 1866-1871, by Ron Parks at the Allegawaho Heritage Memorial Park.

This morning our team was responsible for digging all their own targets. I personally found a 1866 Shield Nickel, a small pair of scissors handle, 3-tine iron fork and several very large hand wrought square nails.

After lunch the metal detector team moved over to the KAW Indian Mission site. Our Crew Leader was Tricia Waggoner the Kansas Hwy Archaeologist. We first layed out lines, so that each metal detector operator had their own lane to search. At the completion of your lane, you went back and dug all the targets that were not iron and then we dug one out of every three iron targets. I found a harness snap hook, harness buckle, a rein guide, wagon parts, bolts, nuts and washers.

At 7:30 I attended a wonderful Talk: Overview of the Santa Fe Trail by Leo Oliva.

Garnett BPW discusses its membership drive

The Garnett BPW met on June 21st, 2016 in the Garnett Library, Archer Room. President Helen Norman called the meeting to order. Guest Julie Heck, was introduced. Julie is running for Anderson County Clerk. The program for the evening was discussion and planning for a membership drive. How do we invite new members? What information should Garnett BPW provide to encourage women who are interested in joining BPW? Currently, Garnett BPW meetings are held on the 3rd Tuesday of each month at 5:30 p.m. and visitors are welcome to attend.

BPW members discussed some upcoming activities, such as Installation of Officers at the July meeting, hosting a Holiday Boutique on December 6th at the Kirk House, and instituting the Audit committee. President Helen Norman shared a scholarship letter from Janay Blome, ACHS Counselor, thanking organizations for their contributions in support of ACHS seniors. Members present reviewed the proposed by-laws and voted to add the President-elect office position to the proposed by-laws.

Upcoming event includes the Legislative Forum which will be held on September 15th, 2016 at the Anderson County High School. BPW collaborates with Garnett Rotary Club and Farm Bureau organizations to host this event for the community.

Please join us at our next meeting on July 19th, at the Archer Room of the Garnett Library. State BPW President, Christina Rush, is invited and will speak about BPW at the state level. The meal starts at 5:30 p.m. (cost $7) and the meeting starts at 6 p.m.

1996: U.S. 59 road work will force several detours

July 11, 2006

Four adults arrested on meth manufacturing charges in February, which led to the relocation of six children from the residence, will likely see reduced charges. The incident arose after a traffic stop for driving without a license led officers to search a home on Spruce Street. Particulars in the case make it a target of two higher court opinions, and those will remove critical evidence and penalty application from the prosecution's effort.

ACHS students are cutting out the middle man in the printing of their 2006 school yearbooks, opting to use new school equipment to produce the entire yearbook project in the school's computer lab. The class was able to print the entire publication in full color and they can print as many or as few as they need without the worry of being stuck with too many expensive, unsold books.

July 8, 1996

Anderson County's unemployment rate hit what state officials believe to be a record low in May, registering less than 4 percent of the local labor force as out of work. The news is the pinnacle to date for a gradually improving jobs picture in Anderson County and the region. Anderson County's unemployment rate ranked at 3.9 percent in May. The figure posted the county's strongest jobs picture since 1978.

For most of this summer, the Richmond-Ottawa section of U.S. 59 will be a maze of reduced speed limits, orange clad highway workers, one-lane roads and heavy machinery. For drivers from Anderson County and elsewhere headed north and for others headed south from Ottawa, the driving will be tense and tedious. But oh, how nice it will be when it's done. The first detour will move traffic underneath the old highway viaduct at the Franklin/Anderson county line, under which the Prairie Spirit Rail Trail now passes on the abandoned Santa Fe railroad line. The project will entail the dismantling of the bridge and construction of a tunnel which will allow the trail to pass under the new highway. The bridge has been a longtime hazard on the road, the scene of several accidents and at least one fatality in recent years.

July 14, 1986

The average wheat yield per acre was about up to its normal standard this year. There was only about 10 percent of the normal acreage harvested, about 50 percent of the wheat originally planted was torn up because it turned out so bad. The average yield for Anderson County was about 30 bushels per acre, but with a percentage range of 10 to 50 bushels per acre on different fields.

High liability insurance and a general lack of support have all but killed an attempt by Garnett's Helping Hands organization to sponsor a youth center in the city. A survey of Garnett High School students in May reported a high degree of positive response to the youth center and initial support was good, but the effort lacked carry-through support from the public. The other major obstacle was coverage under a liability insurance policy that would have cost between $3,000 and $4,000.

According to U.S. Army officials, Garnett and several other eastern Kansas towns are included on one of two possible routes for a train carrying chemical weapons to two separate U.S. disposal sites. The plan involving Kansas sets a destination to a disposal site in Utah. The other plans include railroad transport of the weapons to another site not involving Kansas as well as an on-site disposal alternative. The on-site disposal of the weapons is the alternative favored by the Army.

Garnett businesses receive Kansas Department of Commerce Awards

The Kansas Department of Commerce announced 26 Regional Business of Excellence Award winners and 63 Merit Award winners as a part of the 2016 Business Appreciation Month that took place in June. Kansas businesses are recognized for the contribution made to their communities and the state economy.

"Business Appreciation Month gives the Commerce Department the opportunity to show its support, recognition and gratitude for the businesses who work hard to excel in the state of Kansas," said Kansas Commerce Secretary Antonio Soave. "The 89 businesses that have been selected as winners of the 2016 Business Appreciation Month represent the dedication of Kansas workers, the resounding infrastructure that these businesses are built on and the level of support created by the state of Kansas, for every type of business."

Two Garnett businesses were selected among the 26 regional winners.

• Guest Home Estates VII, owned by the Lightning Creek Investment Group, received the Regional Business of Excellence Award representing the Hospital/Non-Profit category. Guest Homes Estates is a 30-bed facility, constructed in 2007, that provides 24-hour medical care, housekeeping and laundry services, 3 home cooked meals daily and snack service.

"Guest Home Estates in Garnett stays constantly full occupancy with a waiting list. This is due to the reputation of being a place that is considered 'just like home.' We see how staff and residents interact and are amazed at the relationships and quality of care."

"Guest Home Estates provides an essential quality of life element that Garnett is very grateful for and they do it with style, dignity and grace. They invested in our community years ago, but the care they give provides priceless value to many," said City Manager Joyce Martin.

pizza franchise inside.

In 2012 the local Simple Simons restaurant faced closure. Sandra took a leap of faith and purchased the franchise and moved it to her station and added a drive-up component as well as delivery service.

"Sandra and Terry are prime examples of home grown entrepreneurship at its best, right here in Garnett, Kansas!", said City Manager Joyce Martin upon nominating them for the Business Appreciation Awards.

• Maloan's was nominated by the City of Garnett and received the Merit Award. Maloan's is a full service restaurant and bar. Maloan's is praised for its fresh cut steaks, including its famous prime rib and made from scratch entrees.

Maloan's was created in an 1883 building that was in great disrepair and could have been destined for demolition sometime in its future. It was brought back to life with all new windows, roof, electrical and plumbing, and installation of heating and cooling.

The City of Garnett applauds Kevin Maloan on the incredible investment he has made in saving this unique cornerstone building on our town square and continuing his quest to preserve it. He has weathered the economic storms and continues to see a vision of what Garnett has been and what it can be. When nominating Maloan's, City Manager Joyce Martin said, "His talents could have taken him away from Garnett but he hasn't lost sight or faith in being a part of his community. We thank him and his staff by honoring Maloan's Bar and Grille with this nomination."

• Patriots Bank was nominated by the City of Garnett and also received a Merit Award. Patriots Bank is a family owned and operated business with 6 locations. While the bank has grown and added locations, it remains a community bank, with hometown people you know, serving Anderson, Franklin and Johnson counties.

In 2014 they started offering the W.I.N.G.S. debit card. By customers using this special (pink in color) debit card a percentage of all purchases and ATM withdrawals go to the local W.I.N.G.S. organization. W.I.N.G.S was co-founded by one of Patriots Bank's employees to help raise money for Anderson residents going through cancer treatments, in addition, they have also raised money to get a digital mammogram machine at the Anderson County Hospital.

"The Patriots Bank is a mainstay; a lifeline in the Garnett community. They are great supporters of the community, the schools and local charities. They provide more than financial assistance. They help build and cultivate economic vision in our community with their sound, conservative financial expertise. Garnett is fortunate to be the home of Patriots Bank and want to share our appreciation by nominating them for this award", said City Manager Joyce Martin.

• The Kansas Property Place also received the honor of being awarded a 2016 Merit Award by the Kansas Department of Commerce. The Kansas Property Place is a real estate agency owned by Beth Mersman, Broker, and consists of a total of 5 professionals located in Garnett that take pride in guiding clients, both sellers and buyers, through the real estate transaction process with care and attention. The company has clients in Anderson County and surrounding area. Website: www.kspropertyplace.com

"Beth Mersman and her professional staff at the Kansas Property Place are often the front line, first impression people get when they inquire into our community. They take that role very seriously. They understand their role in economic development and leadership, and in being a good citizen and active volunteer. Giving back and paying it forward. The City of Garnett wishes to recognize these qualities make that of someone deserving appreciation through this award nomination", said City Manager Joyce Martin.

'The time has come for me to pay for yesterday when I was young'

The song "Yesterday when I was Young," sung by Roy Clark, recalls the life of one who went to great length to please himself. The artist sings, I ran so fast that time and youth at last ran out, I never stopped to think what life was all about, and every conversation I can now recall, concerned itself with me and nothing else at all.

If there was ever a fleeting thing it is youth. Our youth is marked by impatience and immaturity, which leads to decisions that are made based on our desires at the time. Giving very little thought as the song says to what life is all about.

So if life is not about me as the song writer says what is it about? In the Book of Ecclesiastes 1:12; King Solomon states, "Vanity of vanities, all is vanity." Here Solomon summarizes the meaning of the book and the point the song writer makes as well, that all achievements are empty and disappointing when pursued as an ends in themselves. Many passages in Ecclesiastes appear to be as pessimistic and depressing as this statement because they point out the folly of pursuing selfish goals. King Solomon shows how wisdom, pleasure, hard work, popularity, wealth and fame fail to bring lasting satisfaction. True satisfaction comes from serving God and

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL

By David Bilderback

following his will for our lives. The Book of Ecclesiastes ends on a triumphant note. "Fear God and keep his commandments, for this is the whole duty of man."

The song writer laments the fact that his youth ran out and when that happened all the pleasure, popularity, wealth and fame were gone and what he thought would bring lasting pleasure faded into regret. Life is to be enjoyed. In Ecclesiastes 3:12-13 we read, "I know that there is nothing better for men than to be happy and do good while they live. That everyone may eat and drink, and find satisfaction in all his toil—that is the gift of God". This concept is missing in the words of the song. The song writer speaks of a life lived to please self. There is not enough money, pleasure or fame that one can acquire that can replace God in your or my life. If that is what you pursue you may well lament with the song writer. "The time has come for me to pay for yesterday when I was young."

Richmond Library continues Summer Reading fun, events

It's Summer Reading Time and what has been going on at the Richmond Public Library?

The library's patrons have made toilet paper tube race cars, Bird feeders from recycled pop bottles, had a 50 state flag scavenger hunt and made catapult paper airplanes. And that's the first week.

Then they made pool noodle shooters, the scavenger hunt kids got to have a party. Week three they made Olympic shooters [straw shooters] that they shot through pool rings. They stained glassware, and don't forget about Friday Foods the new food club for the adults. They also had ice cream sodas for everyone on June 30, and Minecraft craft for the teens on July 1.

Below, kids make pool noodle shooters.

Youth at the Richmond Library race toilet paper tube cars, above, and send catapult paper air planes into the air, below.

Community band to perform on Thursdays

Come hear The Garnett Area Community Band on the Courthouse Square Northside on Thursdays, July 14 and July 21 at 7:00 p.m. Together with the traditional John Philip Sousa Marches and Patriotic Songs, the Band will swing to a Glenn Miller Orchestra piece, "Pennsylvania 6-5000." If you would like to dance, "Swing-A-Roo Polka," will bring smiles to everyone. Bring your lawn chairs and support the Band. The Band, directed by John Bechen, is striving to make this a Summer Tradition in Garnett.

In case of inclement weather for an outdoor concert this summer, the First United Methodist Church, 205 S. Oak Street, Garnett, will be the alternate site for the scheduled concert. If it is raining or the Band is not on the Square, please come to the Church. The Band appreciates the availability of this location.

For the good times, see you on the Courthouse Square, the next two Thursday evenings.

Please call Beth McCord (785) 448-3795 for additional information.

Finesse your client over dinner

HOW TO SELL STUFF

Dane Hicks
Review Publisher

Napoleon said an army travels on its stomach. I apply this to business with the thinking that a business lunch or dinner can be a fantastic way of establishing or cementing a relationship with a potential or present client. If done correctly it can go a long way toward helping you sell stuff.

Intuit's QuickBooks website gives these important pointers:

Schedule: Schedule the dinner or lunch at a time that's convenient to the client. Make sure that you're available and can be there without interruptions. Don't ask a client to lunch and then talk on the phone or text the entire time, and worse yet, avoid cancelling at all costs.

Pay up front: Don't allow the clumsiness of the check hitting the table. Arrive early and tell the waiter/waitress you're providing your credit card in advance and they're welcome to add their tip and run the tab when completed. Of course, you make sure to set the meeting at a restaurant where you know the staff and know what to expect from them - as well as the kitchen.

Get there early: Don't take a chance of arriving late for your own invitation. Fifteen minutes is a good rule of thumb.

Small talk: Let your guest set the pace for conversation. Don't just jump right into business talk - small talk until the meal is done unless your guest wants to cut to the chase. Small talk is no big deal, because you have already researched your invitee and you know some of his interests, hobbies, sports, other company projects and activities, etc.

Follow his/her pace: Intuit says: "Remember, this dinner is all about what makes your customer feel relaxed and comfortable. Measure how quickly you eat by his or her example. (You want to avoid sitting before an empty plate while your guest is still eating or continuing to eat after your guest has finished.)"

Booze or no?: A cocktail or glass of wine can be a relaxing influence, but don't let it get out of hand. The rule is two drinks at the most, and only after you offer the option to your client. If he declines, so should you.

Follow up: Follow up the next day with an email addressing business issues that came up or offering to answer any other questions. Do this regardless of the outcome of the meeting.

With a little effort a business lunch/dinner can be very fruitful and fun, and another weapon in your "how to sell stuff" arsenal.

State's Consumer Assistance Division provides time-saving insurance features

Staff members of the Consumer Assistance Division (CAD) at the Kansas Insurance Department have provided assistance to Kansans for decades. Throughout the years, their work has evolved from listening to callers over the phone and answering written requests to today's current work with online chat services and electronic submissions.

CAD representatives always work to quickly provide information and assistance to insurance policyholders and the general public. To enhance this, the department began assisting Kansans in September 2015 in locating life insurance and annuity benefits they may be owed.

The Life Insurance Policy and Annuity Search function on our website is available by submitting an online request form to our department. Kansans who believe they are beneficiaries, an executor or legal representative of a deceased person can request our assistance in finding insurance money that may be owed

INSURANCE MATTERS

to them.

With the request submitted on an electronic form that is available on our website, www.ksinsurance.org (under the "Featured Pages" section on our homepage), CAD representatives will then send a request to all Kansas-licensed life insurance companies to search their records. If a policy or contract is found with the requested insurance information, the company will respond directly to the requestor to begin the claims process.

We are pleased that we can provide this service. It has eliminated multiple searches by consumers, because the department can act as a clearinghouse for those requests.

Although this service may benefit those who didn't know about a person's policy, it is wise for policyholders to always let beneficiaries know of a policy's existence. That can have a great significance for everyone over the course of a lifetime.

The live chat feature on our website, which began in May 2016, gives consumers and insurance agents another way to gather insurance information easily.

The chat feature attracted approximately 400 visits from consumers and agents during its first 45 days of existence. It allows Kansas insurance consumers to privately seek live assistance through our web portal. The feature is staffed from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday by both life & health and property/casualty representatives, on a rotating basis.

The chat box, which is located at the bottom left of the our website home page, www.ksinsurance.org, allows an online user to type in some basic information, such as whether the question is of a general, consumer or agent nature. Then you can begin a live, typed chat with a department representative.

Insurance agents are also encouraged to use the chat feature. Agent questions are forwarded to a representative of the Producer/Agency Licensing and Market Regulation Division for answers.

For both the life insurance locator service and the online chat feature, the Kansas Insurance Department is making the best possible use of technology to provide information to Kansas insurance policyholders and potential insurance benefactors. With insurance such a complicated — but necessary — part of our lives, having answers quickly and knowledgeably in these areas just make good sense.

If you find you need additional information, contact our Consumer Assistance Hotline at 1-800-432-2484.

Every farmer knows: Land is sacred

Almost every farmer or rancher has said this in one way or another, "My life begins with the land."

Look at it any way you want but this bedrock principle remains as it has for generations. Land ownership is the key to our business of agriculture.

Farmers are proud of the crops they grow and the land they work. Ranchers love their grasslands and the cattle that graze upon them.

From the time our first ancestors dropped seeds into the ground — to today's ag producers, who use global positioning satellite — they were, and are, linked to the land. It's who they are and defines the vocation they have chosen.

Many Kansas farmers and ranchers have raised their families, crops and livestock on ground that has been in their families for generations and for some more than 100 years. When producers farm land that long it becomes part of them. It is their way of life. Something they do each and every day. A vocation that occupies their time and mind always.

INSIGHT

JOHN SCHLAGECK, Kansas Farm Bureau

The land is something they cherish and love. Seeing it bring life to the seeds they sow is an experience farmers anticipate each year. They look forward to cultivating the crop and protecting it from insects that would cut yields and rob grain from people who depend on this precious food source.

Farmers also anticipate the coming of each year's harvest when they gather the fruits of another year's labor. Not only do this nation's farmers produce great quantities of grain but they also take pride in producing a top-quality product — one of the finest and healthiest in the world.

The fondest wish of most farmers is to pass their land on to their children. They work for years, and often a lifetime, to leave a legacy of good land stewardship.

Most farmers learn about conservation and respect for their land from their parents. They continually seek new and better ways to work their soil to ensure they are able to pass it on to succeeding generations.

One farmer friend once told me, "If I thought for one minute I was ruining my land, I'd give up farming."

Land is the lifeblood of a farmer or rancher whether it helps them produce grain or livestock. Producers have a deep-seated feeling of honor to be the owner and caretaker of land that has been in their families for generations. They understand that one day they will pass from this earth but the land will remain. They strive to leave the land in a little better condition.

These stewards of the soil realize their ancestors came to this country and settled with the belief it was the land of opportunity for them and future generations. They hope their children will see this investment in the land the same way and leave the farm in better condition for their children.

Land is sacred for the farmers and ranchers in Kansas who tend the soil and care for their livestock. They take this stewardship seriously. They've devoted their lives to safeguarding their farms and families while providing us with the safest, most wholesome food in the world.

John Schlageck is a leading commentator on agriculture and rural Kansas. Born and raised on a diversified farm in northwestern Kansas, his writing reflects a lifetime of experience, knowledge and passion.

'But Mom and Grandma always canned this way...'

"My grandma and my mom always canned this way"; are the nine most disliked words in my vocabulary! The world of 2016 is a different world when compared to the 30's - 40's - and 50's. Technology has advanced, medical knowledge has advanced, research has advanced, the entire world has advanced, and yet home canners believe they can process food safely the way their grandmothers did in the 1930's.

It isn't grandma's world anymore. In 2015, at a church dinner, 21 people were put into the hospital, another 10 coming into the hospital showing symptoms of botulism poisoning, and 1 death. The cause? Improperly home canned potatoes that were used to make a potato salad. The home canner responsible did not know how to process the low acid potatoes properly, she didn't know anything about botulism; she just continued to can like mom and grandma always did. She now has to live with this fact: 1 death and 31 people hospitalized, all from her church.

In today's world there are all kinds of immunodeficiency disorders (the immune system's ability to fight infectious disease is compromised or entirely absent) and autoimmune diseases (your immune system attacks healthy cells) that weaken our bodies, making it difficult to survive food borne illnesses. It's hard to recognize these individuals; they look healthy and normal! Cancer survivors continue to increase in numbers as well as those individuals who have survived some type of heart surgery. Their bodies are weak in terms of fighting off a food borne illness. It's not grandma's world anymore.

Green beans are ready to pressure can; and I have only tested 3 canning gauges this summer; does that mean home canners have had someone else check their canning gauges for accuracy? That would be a first step toward food safety. I tested a gauge once, after a woman canned 45 quarts of green beans. Her gauge was not reading correctly, all those 45 quarts had not been properly processed at 240-250 degrees F. Do you suppose the woman tossed out those 45 quarts of green beans that have a high risk of causing food borne illness? My guess is NO.

What is your elevation? If you are using a canning recipe that has no elevation charts; it's an old recipe and you need to toss it. All research based canning recipes use elevations for hot water bath or pressure canning.

Anderson county's elevation for home canning is 1500 feet above sea level. Franklin county's elevation is mostly 1000 feet above sea level with a small part in the south half at 1500 feet above sea level. Osage county's elevation is mostly 1500 feet above sea level with a very small part on the east side at 1000 feet above sea level. How can you decide your sea level in Kansas? Check the Frontier Extension District web page: <http://www.frontierdistrict.k-state.edu/>; select Health and Nutrition; and finally choose Food Preservation. ALL of K-State Research & Extension publications on home canning and more are located there.

Hot and Raw pack green beans (Italian, Wax, and Snap) are processed as follows: Dial gauge with elevation at 0 - 2001 feet above sea level should process pints at 11 pounds pressure for 20 minutes, and quarts at 11 pressure pounds for 25 minutes. At elevations of 2,001 - 4,000 feet above sea level, pints should be processed at 12 pounds pressure and 20 minutes; and 12 pounds pressure and 25 minutes should be used for quarts.

Green Beans processed with weighted gauges in the 0-1000 feet above sea level should use 10 pounds pressure and process pints at 20 minutes and quarts at 25 minutes. Above 1,000 feet above sea level using a weighted gauge should use 15 pounds pressure with processing times for pints 20 minutes, and quarts 25 minutes.

I am always asked for directions on using the hot water bath canner for preserving green beans. It is not safe. A hot water bath is 212 degrees F at sea level, it never gets hotter. This temperature kills most bacteria, mold, and yeasts that can be found in the air in our homes or outside in the garden. Botulism spores are not destroyed until the temperature 240-250 degrees F is reached. The only way to do that at home safely is the pressure canner at 11 pounds or 12 pounds using a dial gauge; and 10 pounds to 15 pounds using a weighted gauge.
