THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 7-26-2016 / Stacey Dennison

Firefighters work the scene of a house fire north of Garnett on U.S. 59 Wednesday afternoon, July 20. The home is owned by Stacy and Shelly Sills.

Fire destroys rural home

Couple focuses on what can be salvaged as they plan to rebuild at site

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - After the devastating loss of most of a Garnett family's possessions to a house fire last week, Shelly Sills is considering not what was lost but instead what was saved.

That includes three of her grandchildren, ages 6, 4 and a newborn, who on most every other day would have been playing at her house. Yet, when fire broke out sometime around 4 p.m. Wednesday, July 20, the children instead were in Missouri with their father.

"We were very fortunate they weren't there, because usually they would have been," she said.

She's also grateful for the survival of the couple's two dogs, which also would have been inside the house under normal circumstances, especially because it was a very hot day. But one of the dogs had recently been bitten by a snake, and Shelly Sills insisted the dogs come outside Wednesday while she mowed the yard so she could keep an eye on the recovering animal.

Family photos somehow survived, something that is especially comforting, Sills said. The dresser her husband, Stacy Sills, has owned since he was 12-years old was the only surviving dresser, although it suffered some smoke damage. A few other pieces of furniture had been treated with fire-resistant material and may be salvaged.

Heck, Johnson to face off in primary

Republicans decide as clerk's race is only local primary contest

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Local Republicans will make their choice in the only contested local primary race - for Anderson County Clerk - next week. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. during the Aug. 2 primary election, with a temporary polling place set up for some voters.

Republicans Jim Johnson, a former county commissioner and hospital administrator, and Julie Heck, who works for the Franklin County Clerk's Office, will battle it out to decide who will challenge incumbent Anderson County Clerk Phyllis Gettler, a Democrat, in the Nov. 8 election. Each candidate offers a summary of his/her accomplishments on page 6A of this publication.

A change in the polling location for some voters was announced recently. Because of the Anderson County Fair, voters will be unable to use the county's community building at the fairgrounds. The community building is the typical polling place for voters in Garnett Precincts 1 and 2, and for voters in Jackson and Monroe townships. Instead, primary election voters will cast their ballots at the Garnett Elementary School.

The change applies only to

Schools to enroll for 2016-17 year

Online enrollment encouraged in 365, 288; Crest stays traditional

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

Long enrollment lines are becoming a thing of the past for many area parents with school-aged children. That's because some districts are shifting to online enrollment, relying on the convenience of technology to make for a simplified, less time-consuming process.

USD 365 in northern Anderson County and Central Heights USD 288 in southern Franklin County both offer and encourage online enrollment, although traditional enrollment events are available in both districts. Crest USD 479 in southern Anderson County will have standard enrollment August 17-19.

Youth group members talk about camp's impact

Service work teaches faith, good works as some campers return

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Service work can get addicting.

Eric Scott of Apple Valley, Minn., has attended about a dozen Christian mission work camps like the one that came to Garnett last week to paint houses, repair porches and build wheelchair ramps. He was a staff member at the 2013 Garnett Area Paint Project, and when he heard Garnett planned to offer a second camp in 2016, Scott convinced his church's youth group to return with him.

"In between (the activities) we're building amazing relationships," Scott said. "There's a reason I keep coming back."

About 15 members of the youth group from Spirit of Life Presbyterian Church in Apple Valley, Minn., including Scott and Pastor Rob Smith, joined more than 200 other teenagers and adult volunteers last week for the GAPP event. They were part of Group Workcamps, a Loveland, Colo.-based Christian mission program that offers a variety of camps and mission projects throughout the world. The Apple Valley church has participated in similar youth missions since 2004.

While in Anderson County, the campers painted houses and worked on construction projects during days that saw temperatures soar into the upper-90s. The teams took on about 60 different projects in six communities, providing about 10,000 hours of community service. Campers came from 10 states and 14 youth groups.

But it wasn't all about work. The campers also bought school supplies to donate to both Anderson County school districts, USDs 365 and 479. They took advantage of opportunities to have fun and cool off. They organized a variety show to entertain and display their talents.

And they gathered to pray and worship.

For first-time camper Joshua Cornormia, age 11, the experience taught important skills like the value of hard work and how to accomplish both individual and group goals. But, most importantly, he said, the camp offered lessons about God's love and the value of doing good works in His name.

"As we're painting, we learn more about each other and our strengths and how we can get closer to God," he said. "In our lives, we take things for granted."

Smith, the church pastor, said he has seen over the years how the camps help members of the youth group develop leadership skills. Many of them have gone on to faith-based careers. Many of the relationships formed at camp continue into college and beyond, he said.

Campers were separated in groups of about six, intentionally pairing people from different cities and states. They started the week not knowing anyone on their team, and had to learn to communicate and work together. The experience built character and teamwork, and the youth became bonded by their shared experience and their faith, Smith said.

"I've seen socially diverse kids become close and geographically diverse kids become close. And they want to come back," he said. "Jesus said to serve and not to be served. This is an opportunity not just to talk about service and being closer to God but to live it."

The Garnett project was the second camp for Odoza Amadasun, another member of the Apple Valley church's youth group. When she was younger, her older sister attended a mission trip and Amadasun was eager for the day she could take her own trip. She attended her first camp in another state last summer.

"It was so amazing. I had to go again," she said.

Like Amadasun, most people who attend the camps want to take another, Scott said.

"This is a real 'mountaintop experience,'" Scott said. "Our children and leaders will come back home and build off the things they learned this week."

Amadasun said the experience was everything she had hoped it would be. She was assigned to a group that painted playground equipment at a community park in Westphalia, which was a little different than the experience of most of her fellow campers.

Most projects were based at an individual home, giving campers an opportunity to get to know the homeowner and see first-hand how their work impacts a person or family. But Amadasun said it was special to know that an entire community would benefit from her efforts. And she still got the personal experience, as she met with a Westphalia mother who came to the park and talked about how her child enjoyed playing there, and how much it meant to see it improved.

The camp experience taught Amadasun how to open herself to others and trust without fear of being judged, she said.

Improving someone else's home or community is similar to the powerful changes that God can provide in your life, she said.

"I think how we're torn up but God comes and fixes us, just like we're doing."

the primary; voters will return to the community building for the Nov. 8 general election.

The clerk's race is the only local contest on the ballot for either party, Republican or Democrat. But even when expanded to a state level, voters in neither party will have many decisions to make during the primary election.

Democrats, in fact, have only one contested race at the federal level, and none at the state or local level. Dems will decide who they want to run for the U.S. Senate seat currently held by Jerry Moran; Democratic choices are Monique Singh of Kansas City or Patrick Wiesner of Lawrence.

Republicans, meanwhile, will decide if they want to keep Moran, of Hays, or pick challenger DJ Hays of Osawatomie.

Republicans in the southeastern part of the county will choose between three candidates for the state's 4th District House of Representatives, a position held by Marty Read, who is not running for re-election. Candidates for the post include Arlyn Briggs of Kincaid, Trevor Jacobs of Fort Scott and Rick James of LaCygne. Whoever wins the primary likely will win the seat, as there is no Democrat running for the seat.

Advance voting remains open until noon Monday, Aug. 1.

Much of the house's two-year-old roof survived, and the Sillses plan to reuse it when they build a new home at the property. Any pieces of outside siding that can be salvaged also will be recycled for use as they rebuild.

"I'm not materialistic, but I am sentimental," Shelly Sills said.

She was mowing the yard sometime after 4 p.m. Wednesday afternoon at the home at 29560 N. U.S. 59 north of Garnett when she saw smoke rolling from the back side of the house. Sills estimated she had been mowing for up to one hour, so she isn't sure exactly when the fire started. An investigation revealed the cause was faulty wiring in the kitchen, she said.

Sills had left her cell phone inside to charge so she had no way to call for help. Her husband was at work. She hurried to the side of the highway to attempt to flag down a passing motorist, but most people drove past her. She said six vehicles went by before someone stopped.

The house and nearly all of its contents were destroyed by the fire. The property is covered by insurance.

Between community donations that came immediately after the fire and help from family members, the Sillses are not in need of further donations, Shelly Sills said.

"I'd rather any help go to people who need it more than we do," she said.

Treat Thug Culture like ISIS, Al Qaeda

It should be clear by now, with race-related police ambushes in two American cities in recent weeks and the killing of other officers including two in Kansas City, Kan., since May, that "Thug Culture" has defined itself as a bona fide enemy of the United States similar to ISIS or Al Qaeda.

As such, it's time for the U.S. Government intelligence gathering apparatus and military forces to approach it as such. Before that can happen, of course, some future presidential administration is going to have to sum the courage to call Thug Culture out for the enemy to U.S. interests that it really is.

That of course will happen before January 20, 2017, the day President Barack Obama leaves office. Despite the threat to U.S. security that it represents, this president is unlikely ever to recognize it due to his social and racial proclivities.

Black men are involved in homicide at a rate 10 times that of Whites and Hispanics combined

But a national security risk it indeed is, and for this reason: With what appears now to be an organized and ideologically conjoined effort to ambush the police personnel of American cities, Thug Culture threatens to destroy the very basis of American law enforcement itself. No law enforcement essentially equals no law. No law equals chaos and anarchy and the ready demise of our nation.

Imagine for a moment, if you will, American cities, towns, highways and byways where police will no longer serve for fear of being attacked and ambushed. Who wants a job that makes oneself an open target for assassination in what effectively is a guerilla campaign against cops who not only have to wonder who's trying to kill them, but who also have to be constantly mindful of the civil rights of their attackers and the attackers' sympathizers?

Clearly, Thug Culture has to be confronted with all our national resources before it ever gets to that point.

The prudent course is to assign military intelligence efforts against Thug Culture targets and identify leaders and other assets, possible actors and communications, then move against those individuals with the precision and tactics of urban military units.

The social determinants that spawn the culture have to be recognized and dealt with as well.

REVIEW COMMENTARY

DANE HICKS, Publisher

Though Thug Culture is not racially based, race indeed plays heavily into its presence and conduct. This fact needs to be openly addressed by black leadership like Jesse Jackson, Al Sharpton and President Obama, not dodged in a shell game of political correctness which we can no longer afford.

The racial impact on Thug Culture is defined in hard statistics. Young black men are disproportionately involved in crime. Black men are involved in homicide at a rate 10 times that of Whites and Hispanics combined, primarily against victims of their own race. Purported civil rights organizations like Black Lives Matter refuse to confront this cultural fact, preferring instead to focus blame for Black oppression on Whites and the White-dominated court system. Among black newborns, 73 percent are born out of wedlock, continuing a cycle of social and economic anemia and poverty. Young blacks, especially boys, grow up resentful, unsupervised and without paternal structure, and then are subjected to an entertainment industry in music and movies that promotes "gansta" culture which is anti-police, pro-drug use, pro-criminal, and abusive to women.

Social change to these maladies can only be affected within the culture itself, but black leaders refuse to enjoin this fight. Indeed, since the election of the country's first black president, Thug Culture appears more emboldened in its assault against police and the rule of law than at any time since the 1960s.

Bereft of adequate leadership to confront these social ills, Thug Culture shows no signs of abating and has morphed into active engagement in its assault on law and order. It is as much a threat to national security as any foreign aggressor, and should be dealt with as such.

I wish all the Don Quixotes that spend all their efforts tilting at wind mills would move their signs to their side of the property and clear the right-of-way, so it doesn't block the view of oncoming traffic, when you're making a turn especially.

I read the county commissioners are rushing to increase salaries this year so as to beat the new state law which will set a lid on property tax increases starting in 2017. The county is talking about a 33 percent increase in salary ranges. First, a large number of citizens in this county live on fixed incomes, and we know their recent increases have been zero. Second, rushing to beat the 2017 law doesn't sound quite right dealing with taxpayers money. Some might even consider it as outright wrong.

After reading last week's article on wind mills and bringing in more industry to our community similar to our windmill project, I agree with this article and am changing my mind about windmills. I think we should add some turkey farms to the south of town, some hog farms to the west of town and a trash burning power plant to the north. How great that would be. But first, let's start with the wind mills. Good thinking. Thank you for thinking about

Anderson County's future.

Okay, so it's hot outside, all the kids want to go to the pool. The pool's been really busy here the last week or so with all this hot weather. Parents, or babysitters or big brothers and big sisters, whoever is responsible for bringing or sending the kids to the pool, please, make sure that they go to the bathroom before they come in the pool. Let's just say we've had some foreign objects in the pool lately that force us to close the pool and then none of the kids get to swim. So let's please get the children vacated before we bring them to the pool. Thank you.

Yeah, what's up with the county not mowing the right-of-ways anymore in the country? Some of them there weeds are taller than a tractor. Get with it county.

Trump has Wallace's populist savvy

George Wallace knew how to handle the hecklers who routinely disrupted his events. "These are the folks," he declared at a rally in 1968, "that people like us are sick and tired of. You've been getting a good lesson in what we've been talking about. They talk about free speech but won't allow it to others."

Wallace knew the protesters were priceless to him in stoking passions and drawing media attention. "They on our payroll," he joked.

George Wallace had unsurpassed skills as a popular agitator, but even he would have to admire how Donald Trump parlayed a canceled Chicago event where supporters and protesters shoved and punched one another into wall-to-wall media coverage and an advertisement for his alleged stalwartness against the forces of anarchy.

Trump bears a striking resemblance to Wallace, another entertaining, anti-establishment bomb-thrower who became -- to the shock of respectable people -- a kind of tribune of the American working class. He is a voice of rough-hewn populism that hasn't had such potent expression since the Alabama governor ran for president, finding more support than anyone thought possible. (Stephan Leshner's biography, "George Wallace: American Populist," is the source for much of what follows.)

Like Trump, Wallace was hated by his own party's establishment, and widely discredited by political observers until his strength in 1968 as a third-party candidate became undeniable.

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

RICH LOWRY, King Features Syndicate

He talked tough. He warned protesters getting in the way of his car that it would be "the last car they ever blocked."

He was anti-intellectual. He lambasted "pointy-headed professors who can't even park a bicycle straight."

He hated the media (while soaking up coverage). Journalists were "sissy-britches intellectual morons."

He relished the idea of cracking down on speech he disliked. He promised "to seek indictment against any college professor who calls for a communist victory [in Vietnam]."

He was light on policy. He didn't produce a platform until three weeks before the election in 1968, and it was full of meaningless platitudes.

He had no principled opposition to government, and in fact, touted programs he found congenial.

He had no hesitation in making absurdly paranoid accusations, claiming Richard Nixon was manipulating public opinion in 1968 through his control of pollsters.

Like Trump, Wallace didn't run a highly organized political operation -- he lived off the land of his own native political talent and the fervent support of his fans. He relied on what one journalist called -- in a formulation that could apply equally well to Trump -- his "uncanny and total and undistracted instincts for the primitive dynamics of the American democratic system."

Wallace was a hideous racist who appealed to racists, but also crystallized a deeper anger and discontent with a country that had gone soft and wasn't winning anymore. He obviously wasn't a statesman, but a demagogue who exploited these popular passions and made them more base. The same is true of Trump.

Yet Wallace never came close to capturing a major party's nomination and arriving at the doorstep of the presidency. With Donald Trump leading in the Republican contest, the real-estate mogul would probably have not just George Wallace's respect, but his envy.

Justice cannot be achieved by violence

To be sure, there is still a struggle to be had for justice in this country. The violent events of the past couple of weeks have, in addition to tearing open our old wounds, forced us to confront the issue of institutional racism in the context of a purportedly post-racial America. Brutal images of black men dying in the custody of police have become inescapable. Likewise, images of murdered police officers haunt our waking days. Sadly, it seems that violence has become the story; savage imagery our only means to communicate. We are encouraged, often subconsciously, to pick a side rather than engage in a meaningful discussion about context.

Indeed, it is far easier to frame our current issues as an us versus them problem than it is to take the time to analyze their root causes. It is much more uncomplicated to simply say that black people are criminals and white police officers are racists than to examine the effects of social and economic isolation in the inner-cities. Moreover, it is more convenient to assume that our institutions, including our criminal justice system, are immune from racism because there is a black president now sitting in office.

STATE COMMENTARY

Although we have made great progress as a society, racial justice has yet to be achieved. Racially driven poverty, joblessness and extreme segregation persevere despite years of incremental improvements. The problems that we face today with regards to racial relations are not entirely different than the ones that we faced at the height of the civil rights movement in the 1960s.

Justice, of course, cannot be achieved by acts of violence. Martin Luther King Jr more eloquently made this point in his Nobel lecture, entitled The Quest for Peace and Justice, on November 11, 1964: "Violence as a way of achieving racial justice is both impractical and immoral. I am not unmindful of the fact that violence often brings about momentary results. Nations have frequently won their independence in battle. But in spite of temporary victories, violence never brings permanent peace."

This line out of King's lecture is as poignant today as it was when he delivered it over 50 years ago. As such, we would be wise to heed his proposition and disavow all forms of violence as a means of achieving racial justice. Moving forward we must refrain from picking a side and instead come together to solve the problems that we face.

God said He will never forsake us

Psalm 118:1 says, "Give thanks to the LORD, for he is good; his loves endures forever." In the book of Amos chapter 8 God shows Amos a vision of a basket of ripe fruit. Amos was a shepherd-prophet of the Old Testament who denounced the people of the northern kingdom of Israel for their idol worship; graft and corruption and oppression of the poor. The basket of fruit depicted the forth coming judgment of the northern kingdom. God had watched the idol worship and the abuse and oppression of the poor of Israel by the wealthy. In 8:2c God tells Amos, "The time is ripe for my people Israel; I

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL

By David Bilderback

will spare them no longer." Ultimately in 722 B. C. Assyria would take the northern kingdom into captivity. Assyria was a brutal nation and the northern kingdom would suffer greatly. But God is a good God. In Amos 9:11-12, God makes this statement concerning Israel's restoration. "In that day I (God) will restore David's fallen tent. I will repair its broken pieces, restore its ruins, and build it as it use to be, so that they (Israel) may possess the remnant of Edom and all the nations that bear my name, declares the LORD, who will do these things." God is telling Amos that the people of Israel would be restored to their special place in God's service after their season of judgment had come to an end.

Whenever God used a prophet to predict judgment on his people he would always provide the hope of a glorious future. This ultimately would sustain the people through the judgment. Each of us has our own basket of ripe fruit as well. God will abide with us for awhile. He will be patient with us. He will protect us from ourselves to a point. However at some point he will spare us no longer as was the case for the northern kingdom.

God told Joshua in Joshua 1:56; "As I was with Moses, so will I be with you; I will never leave you or forsake you." If we forsake God we can expect his judgment, but we can also know that he will restore a relationship with us if we seek him. God never forsakes us. By our actions we forsake God.

Pizza Hut partners with Kansas Food Bank to help fight childhood hunger

Pizza Hut recently teamed up with the Kansas Food Bank's Food-4-Kid's Program to help chronically hungry children.

Every Friday during the school year, the Kansas Food Bank provides backpacks of food for children who don't get enough to eat at home on the weekends. From July 25th through August 7th, participating Pizza Hut restaurants across Kansas including the one in Garnett will ask customers to donate $1, $3, and $5 to become a "Child Hunger Hero" and help fill backpacks for these children for the 2016-2017 school year.

If a child does not get enough food outside of school he or she is considered food insecure. In Kansas, one in five children experiences hunger. For children who participate in the program come notable differences: grades improve, behavioral problems diminish, attendance at school is better - truancy dissolves, students are ready and prepared to learn on Monday mornings and overall attitude towards school improves immensely.

Currently, the Food-4-Kid's Backpack Program is serving over 6,300 kids across Kansas alone. In Garnett there are 45 children served by the program.

Pizza Hut managers from across the state visited the Kansas Food Bank in Wichita and got firsthand experience packing the backpacks.

Each backpack contains food the kids can just open and eat. For example, there may be peanut butter, pudding cups, fruit cups, cereal, beef jerky, raisins, milk and a juice box in the backpack. Each food bag costs roughly $5.00 to make and lasts the child for the weekend.

If you would like to help chronically hungry children, go to your local Pizza Hut to donate from July 25th through August 7th and become a Child Hunger Hero!

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 7-26-2016 / Photo Submitted

Better productivity equals better sales

Okay, this is supposed to be a column about tips and ideas for generating sales in your small business, hence the ultra-creative name "How To Sell Stuff" which I labored all of about 4 minutes to come up with.

So I assume if you're reading this, you're someone who has an interest in selling either through your own small business or a side business in addition to your regular job. Regardless, you know by now that your productivity in sales depends on a lot of factors, the most important being you. "Your" general productivity, then, is directly tied to generating sales. Be more productive and you'll generate more sales. See where I'm going with this?

Here are some ideas on giving your productivity a boost. Pick at least one and discipline yourself to use it this week:

1) Protect your "Zone": Everybody has that time of the day when they do their best concentrative thinking - that hour or couple of hours where you seem to be more creative, your concentration is better and ideas seem to pop into your head easier. It's different for everyone, but it's usually in the morning before the day wears you down. This is your "zone," and you need to protect it from distractions - clingy co-workers, email, social media, etc. Giving yourself "zone" time produces new products, new services, new business endeavors and other new ideas that turn into sales - arguably the most important part of your day.

2) See your "virtual day": Make a practice out of visualizing your day the night before, from the mundane tasks like what you're going to have for breakfast, what you'll wear, what route to take to work, etc., as well as tasks that are more substantive like meetings, sales calls, etc. Having already walked the path in your mind relieves the delay and dithering over small decisions that can distract you when the new day arrives. The more things you've already thought through, the less you have to think about now and the more thought you can commit to being productive.

3 Make a "3 list." Either the night before or at breakfast, set a calendar alarm on your phone with your 3 List - the three things you really want to get done today. Set two alarms in the morning spread apart by a few hours and the same in the afternoon. The idea is to keep you on course with reminders.

4) Limit social media: If you're posting a new product description or photo on your Twitter or Instagram Account, that's one thing - looking at your friends' new puppy pictures on Facebook is another. I have no idea what the latest statistics are on lost work-day productivity due to social media, but anecdotal evidence tells me it's staggering. If you have to have a social media fix during the day, do it just after lunch or at some other low-energy time and limit yourself to no more than 5 minutes.

Being more productive means getting more done, and if you're in business or sales, it means selling more stuff!

Numerous discoveries made during seminar

8 June 2016

I woke up to a few brief showers in the area this morning. As I got ready to leave for our site, two deer walked across the school yard about 50 yards from my truck. Some of the more note worthy artifacts found today were: 1920-Nickel, 1944-Penny, a very old Window Glass Cutter/Set, Large Whiskey Bottle with its cork intact, Tobacco Tax Tag, Porcelain Doll's Leg, .36 Caliber Round Ball and lots of dishware shards reading Made in England.

Tonight was Collector's Night and it was great, as twelve local residents brought in their personal artifact collections for us to view. These collections were both historic and pre-historic artifacts.

9 June 2016

Today was quite windy and there were a few dust devils in the area. Our finds today: 1920-Nickel, 1942-Penny, Crystal Decanter Top, Mule shoe, .36 Caliber Round Ball, Fancy Ladies Pretty Pin with stones, 1851-3 Cent Piece, Horse shoe, Keystone Brass Plate dated 1901-1910, Beads, Buttons, Washers, Nuts, and very large wood Screws.

Tonight I attended the Portrayal of Kitty Hays by Kitty Frank, held in the original Seth Hays Home.

10 June 2016

Another successful day both metal detecting and excavating. A few of today's finds are: Pair of old oval eye glasses, lots of tiny beads (all colors), R/R spikes, Large Stone Cutting Chisel, Wagon or Stage Hub, Large Spike, Harmonica Reeds, 1907-Penny and a very early Canning Jar Lid.

Tonight I attended the Talk: Introduction to the Tallgrass National Prairie Preserve near Strong City, Ks. by Jeffrey

Rundell. Very interesting.

11 June 2016

There are lots of rabbits, red and grey squirrels in Council Grove, just like in Garnett. Last night we were told that there are only about 70 prairie chickens left in Kansas.

Today's finds consisted of: 1950- Silver Half Dollar, 6-Pennies (20's-30's-40's), several Buttons, Button Hook, some beautiful dishware shards, 2- Oklahoma Tokens, Slate Pencils, complete Heavily Decorated Door Lock Assembly and a Decorator Door Hinge.

There was no program tonight, so it's a free evening.

To be Cont'd

Anderson County Clerk candidate qualifications: In their own words

JIM JOHNSON

My name is Jim Johnson and I am a candidate for the office of Anderson County Clerk. I live with my wife Norma on 55 acres in Lincoln Township where we have a small cow-calf operation. This past March we celebrated 50 years of marriage. We have been blessed with three children and four grandchildren.

Johnson

I am a member of Garnett Rotary, The Friends of the Library Board and I attend the First Christian Church. I enjoy horseback riding and Norma and I play duplicate bridge.

I retired in 2008 after a 41-year career as a hospital chief executive officer. The first 20 years of my career I was employed by various urban hospitals. In 1988 my life took a turn for the better when I became the CEO at Anderson County Hospital. In 1998 I became the CEO at Hedrick Medical Center in Chillicothe, Mo. I guided both institutions to become members of the Saint Luke's Health System. I enjoyed rural health-care and I enjoy living in rural Kansas.

In 2010 I was elected to a four year term as District I county commissioner. I am familiar with the workings of county government. The clerk's office has responsibility for budget preparation, accounts payable, human resources and elections.

The county clerk is responsible for preparing the annual operation budget that is presented to the county commissioners for their approval. Being a former commissioner, I am familiar with what data the commissioners need and want to help them do their jobs.

The county clerk maintains the human resources records for all county employees and the clerk is also the chief election officer of the county.

I think I am qualified to be your next county clerk. I have a bachelor's degree in business administration with a major in personnel. I have managed hospital budgets in excess of $30 million annually. I believe I will be an effective county clerk. I can work with the other department heads, elected and non-elected, to create a smooth functioning county government.

I think it's also time for a change. The incumbent has been in the position for nearly 24 years.

I think it is time for a fresh set of eyes to look at the operation of the clerk's office. If elected I promise to operate a professional, taxpayer-friendly clerk's office. Your support and vote on August 2 will be appreciated.

JULIE HECK

Julie Heck is a graduate of Ottawa High School and Emporia State University with a Bachelor's Degree in Business Management. Upon graduation Julie went to work at the Kansas State Bank of Ottawa where she received hands on experience in the fundamentals of finance and customer service.

Julie has also worked for the Miami County Motor Vehicle Department in Paola, learning a variety of county functions. "I really enjoyed gaining knowledge as every department works together. I didn't just learn my position in the Motor Vehicles Department but also understanding valuable aspects of the Treasurer's and Clerk's offices", says Julie.

The opportunity came to Julie about 3 and a half years ago to transfer to Franklin County and work in the Clerk's Office. Her time there has been an eye opening experience where she has been able to work cooperatively with the Treasurer and Register of Deeds departments, prepare budgets for smaller entities in the county, balance the county checkbook monthly, maintain voter registrations, prepare and execute large and small city, school, primary and general elections. She has also received valuable insight and resources, and formed collaborative relationships with fellow county clerks from across the state while attending the annual Kansas County Clerks Association conferences.

Why Anderson County?

"Anderson County is my home. So I want to work for the people of this county. They are my family and friends. As technology advances and as state laws constantly change the way the Clerk's office operates, it is vitally important that the person in the position of Anderson County Clerk possess the clerical skills and a fiscal mindset that is best for both the public and for the employees of the county," Julie replies. "I look forward to transcribing the minutes of the Anderson County Commission meetings and working with department heads to make a productive working environment for all county workers." When talking about things she would like to accomplish Julie says supporting local is one thing. "When possible, I would like to see purchases of goods and services inside Anderson County, with the businesses that pay property taxes here."

She has served as a Board of Director for Big Brothers Big Sisters of Anderson and Franklin Counties. She enjoys reading, softball, anything outdoors, and supporting youth activities.

"I look forward to serving the people of Anderson County to the best of my ability. I feel there is a lot of potential for Anderson County to be a forward looking county of progress. When elected I will always work toward that which could better serve our residents."

Kansas Attorney General holds meeting on human trafficking

TOPEKA - Kansas Attorney General Derek Schmidt last week met with Mexican legal authorities to continue discussing cooperative efforts to combat human trafficking, drug trafficking and other criminal conduct that crosses the international border and affects states like Kansas.

Schmidt and attorneys general from several other states participated in a binational exchange in Idaho with Mexican state attorneys general. The participants also included Mexico's federal attorney general, Arely Gomez Gonzalez. The meeting was a follow up to an exchange last fall in Mexico City, which Schmidt also attended.

"These ongoing discussions build relationships and share information that strengthens the rule of law on both sides of the border," Schmidt said. "By working together to combat criminal enterprises in Mexico before their effects cross the border, we promote public safety in Kansas."

The exchange, formally known as the Conference of Western Attorneys General (CWAG) Alliance Partnership Binational State Attorney General Exchange, is coordinated with the U.S. State Department. The trainings it sponsors for Mexican legal authorities are one effort to support Mexico's transition from its old inquisitorial criminal justice system toward a new adversarial court system that more like that of the United States.

Extension Master Gardener training offered for Frontier Extension District

Are you interested in becoming an Extension Master Gardener? The Master Gardener program is a volunteer program in which K-State Research and Extension exchanges classroom training for volunteer time. Training consists of 48 hours of instruction in all aspects of horticulture. Instructors include state specialists from Kansas State University, local extension agents and local experts in specific subject matter. Training days are Tuesdays, August 23 - October 18 from 5:30 P.M. to 8:30 P.M. and Saturdays, September 17 and October 15 from 9:00 A.M. to 4:00 P.M. A fee of $125 per participant is required for course materials payable to the Frontier Extension District. Trainings will be held at the Douglas County Extension Office, 2110 Harper Street in Lawrence and carpooling can be coordinated, if desired. After training is completed, volunteers donate 40 hours of educational service in their community. Service activities will be coordinated by Shannon Blocker, Frontier Extension District Horticulture Agent. Volunteer programs include educational days, demonstration gardens, diagnostic clinics, 4-H youth horticultural activities, hotline question and answer sessions, school outreach, speaker's bureaus and special events. Application forms are available at the Frontier District Extension Offices in Garnett, Ottawa and Lyndon or online at <http://www.frontierdistrict.k-state.edu/lawn-garden/master-gardeners/index.html>. Completed applications should be submitted on or prior to the deadline of Friday, August 12, 2016. Applicants will be selected based on ability to attend all class sessions, commitment to satisfying a minimum of 40 volunteer hours, interest in Master Gardener program involvement, and training space availability. All applicants must participate in an informational interview prior to being accepted into the class.

Three area students attend Boys State

Three area students were among more than 480 young men from across the State of Kansas, all of whom will enter their senior year of high school this fall, who participated in the 2016 session of the American Legion Boys State of Kansas Leadership Academy. The event, in its 79th year, was held June 5-10 at Kansas State University in Manhattan for the 25th consecutive year.

- Area attendees included:
- Cameron Hampton, Central Heights High School, Bradley County Commissioner
  - Colton McCarty, Central Heights High School, Department of Human Services Member
  - Adam Kropf, Anderson County High School,

Department of Agriculture Member

The ALBSKLA provides a relevant, interactive, problem-solving experience in leadership and teamwork that develops self-identity, promotes mutual respect and instills civic responsibility. Boys State is a "learning by doing" political exercise that simulates elections, political parties and government at the state, county and local levels, providing opportunities to lead under pressure, showcasing character and working effectively within a team. It's also an opportunity to gain pride and respect for government and the price paid by members of the military to preserve democracy.

Moran Locker wants you to compare processing prices and save on costs. Your hand-raised livestock is cut to your specifications to fit your needs, double-wrapped (the best way and most freezer stable way) and frozen. Locally owned and operated, we are a home-owned business with the experience of four generations of meat processing and butchering. Keeping our prices as low as possible for over 25 years. Slaughter fees are still only $35 per head for average size beef and hogs. With the economic slump you need to know where to go for the highest quality processing and slaughtering at the lowest prices. That's Moran Locker, where you actually get the quality processing you expect at the lowest price you deserve.

At the Lions Club July 13 meeting Blaine King, a Seekers Not Slackers 4-H Club member displayed a sign 4-H club members had made. He (pictured with Lions Club president H. Al Richardson) asked permission to hang it on the Lions Club "Welcome to Colony" sign on U.S. Highway 169. The sign has been installed and looks great!
