Farmers Market offers free food to kids, SNAP families

Children can get $2 while SNAP users can get an extra $5 to spend

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Children and qualified low-income families can get free food from the Garnett Farmers Market this week thanks to an anonymous local donor.

Those who attend the Garnett Farmers Market between 4:30 p.m. and 7 p.m.

Thursday, Aug. 11, could be eligible for free "Market Bucks" just for stopping by, organizers said. Children age 18 and younger will be given $2 each, and shoppers who use a SNAP card (the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, which provides assistance to eligible, low-income families) will receive an additional $5 each.

This week's giveaway was made possible by an anonymous Garnett resident who wants to make sure all residents have access to fresh, healthful food, said Rosanna Bauman, one of the market organizers. The donor is relatively new to the area and wanted to help children learn more about Farmers Markets and where their food comes from, Bauman said.

August is National Farmers Market Month.

"We are humbled. So many people wish the world were a better place, but so few are willing to put their money where their mouth is," Bauman said. "It encourages all us here at the market that even just one person doing small acts of kindness can brighten our community significantly."

In order to take advantage of the give-away, just show up, Bauman said. Any of the vendors will be able to instruct customers how to take advantage of the program. Those who use the SNAP card must spend at least $5 in order to receive an additional $5 in Market Bucks. The Market Bucks do not expire and can be spent during any Garnett Farmers Market event.

Heck advances to take on Gettler for clerk's job

Longtime incumbent has 1st general election challenger since 2004

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - A Garnett woman who works for the Franklin County Clerk's office will try for a job a little closer to home, as she takes on a longtime incumbent for the position of Anderson County Clerk.

Julie Heck easily won last week's Republican primary election against Jim Johnson, a former Anderson County Hospital CEO and former Anderson County commissioner. The vote was 436 for Heck and 162 for Johnson. About 16 percent of registered Anderson County voters cast ballots in the Aug. 2 primary.

Heck advanced to the Nov. 8 general election, where she'll take on longtime incumbent Phyllis Gettler, a Democrat from Garnett.

County school districts to raise taxes slightly

State, local questions make it difficult for area districts to set budget

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Taxpayers in both Anderson County school districts can expect modest tax increases next year, about 1.21 mills in USD 365 and 3.9 mills in USD 479. Meanwhile taxpayers in the Central Heights district in southern Franklin County will see a slight decrease of 1.29 mills.

Much uncertainty still surrounds the tax rates though, thanks to ongoing litigation over school finance at the state level and a pending appeal of the Garnett ethanol plant's appraisal in the first year it fully hit the tax rolls after a 10-year property tax abatement.

Legislators made a last-minute change to the school funding formula in late June, and are expected to revamp the complicated formula entirely next year. And if the ethanol plant is successful in its appeal, taxing entities could be forced to pay back the difference.

But despite the question marks surrounding those issues, school districts recently waded into their 2016-17 budget work, mostly trying to keep

MARKET...

The Garnett Farmers Market is one of the few small-town markets in the state that accepts SNAP cards, along with credit and debit cards.

"All the vendors are glad we can accept SNAP as a service to our neighbors who have a limited food budget," Bauman said. "Fresh-picked produce lasts longer, is often priced better than most chain stores and is more nutrient dense."

Vendors and items for sale at the local market can vary depending on the season. Current vendors sell such items as watermelons; elk meat; homemade ice cream, soaps and pillows; baked goods and fresh produce; sweet corn; jams; beef, pork, chicken and eggs.

The Farmers Market is open from 4:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. each Thursday along the Prairie Spirit Trail in downtown Garnett. The market typically lasts until about mid-October. The give-away program is expected to last only this week.

county transactions; chief budgeting official and is the county election officer.

Gettler first was elected clerk in 1992, and is serving her 23rd year in office. During that time, the laws and technology have changed the way clerks handle elections and other duties. Also during Gettler's tenure, the county obtained a series of grants allowed for physical upgrades to the courthouse building and grounds, and commissioners are weighing their options for a new HVAC system that would require moving some departments in order to maximize efficiency. The county as a whole has added taxpayer-financed buildings like a new county jail, new hospital and new county shop.

Heck is the first general election challenger Gettler has faced since 2004. Gettler ran unopposed in 2012, and fended off two Democratic primary challengers in 2008.

Heck has worked for the Franklin County Clerk's Department about three-and-a-half years. Before that, she worked for the Miami County Motor Vehicle Department in Paola and Kansas State Bank of Ottawa. She graduated from Ottawa High School and Emporia State University with a degree in business management. She lives in Garnett.

Kochs' money strategy shows Republicans divided over Trump

In a rather remarkable report from inside the camp of Wichita billionaires Charles and David Koch, the conservative industrialists revealed plans to sit out the presidential elections and spend upwards of $750 million to help elect conservatives to Congress.

Charles Koch revealed that decision before invited reporters, including the Associated Press, at a weekend gathering of about 400 supporters who'd pledged at least $100,000 a year to the Koch brothers' conservative causes.

It was the first time the Kochs had allowed reporters to cover such a gathering of the Freedom Partners, described as "a network of education, policy and political entities that aim to promote a smaller, less intrusive government." It was held in Colorado Springs at "a luxury hotel at the foot of the Rocky Mountains."

The strategy, however, may appeal to many Republicans who can't stomach Hillary Clinton and can't quite see the populist Donald Trump as a conservative Republican president.

The 80-year-old Koch did, however, reject claims he was considering backing the Democratic nominee, calling those reports "a blood libel."

Neither, apparently, did the third-party alternative, Libertarian Party candidate Gary Johnson, former governor of New Mexico, appeal to the big-spending Kochs and their allies. They see the future as bending the Republican party to their ear, much as they have in Kansas.

Charles Koch said Sunday his first priority is to "preserve the financial future and to eliminate corporate welfare."

The AP reported the libertarian-leaning Kochs have deep policy differences with Mr. Trump over immigration, trade, minimum wages and criminal justice reform. Trump warnings of growing crime in America and among immigrants ring hollow to the group, which cites government statistics showing that crime is down, not up.

For his part, the Republican nominee said he had rejected the brothers and their money and allies.

"Better for them to meet with the puppets of politics," he tweeted.

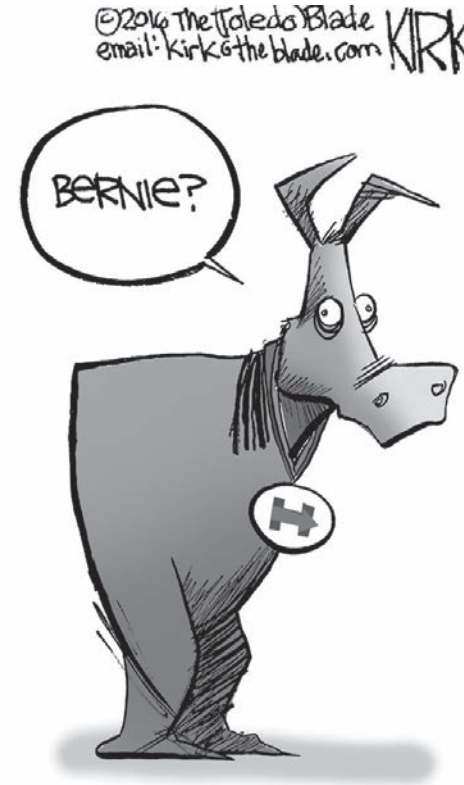

However, the weekend program featured at least three governors, four senators and four House members, including speaker Paul Ryan. Others included U.S. Rep. Mike Pompeo of Wichita and Rep. Mike Coffman of Colorado.

Republicans without the kind of money it takes to be invited to this weekend retreat face the same choices: support Trump, focus on Congress or vote for Gov. Johnson.

From here, the last two sound pretty good. The future of a GOP led by Mr. Trump seems increasingly to be a minority party populated mostly by angry people of European descent facing a world where minorities are the majority and minority conservatives will need a home.

To survive, the party needs to adhere more to the vision of Karl Rove and his allies, promoting free trade and open (if regulated) borders and open to all.

If Mr. Trump wins, who knows what will happen. If he loses, there's hope the party will return to some form of sanity four years hence.

The idea of prohibiting the trains from blowing the whistle coming through town is one of the sillier ideas I have heard from this commission. If a train should hit a car or a pedestrian and it has been prevented from blowing its whistle, the city would then be liable to the injured parties - the railroad and the person who got hit. This is crazy. This is an issue of safety. If they want to do something to prevent noise, they ought to prevent the concert on the hill and the demolition derby. They serve no useful purpose except raising money.

I just wanted to thank all the merchants that took part in the fair tent. I was very disappointed that more merchants chose not to participate. It's interesting the farm store in Iola always takes part by buying livestock at the livestock premium sale.

This election may be the last election as we Americans know it. If Hillary Clinton wins this election, there will be so many illegal people let into our country and they will be allowed to vote. There will be so many that we Americans will always be outvoted and there will be nothing we can do about it. No more Christmas, no more American flags, no morality. You can see how America has deteriorated in the last few years. Don't believe me? Read the book "Armageddon" written by a man who was around the Clintons for years. Donald Trump isn't perfect, but at least he wants America to survive.

Trump vs. the Khans: Be careful who you attack

Donald Trump got sound advice the other day. At a rally at Davenport, Iowa, he told the crowd that a prominent supporter had called and urged him not to sweat all the attacks at the Democratic National Convention.

"Don't hit down," the supporter urged, according to Trump. "You have one person to beat. It's Hillary Rodham Clinton." By Trump's account, he conceded the good sense of this, although he noted how he always prefers hitting back - "it makes me feel good."

If so, he must have enjoyed his weekend. He spent it attacking not just Khizr Khan, the Muslim father of a soldier killed in Iraq who spoke at the DNC, but his wife. In other words, roughly 48 hours after publicly sharing the advice he had gotten not to punch down, Trump delivered a flurry of downward blows the likes of which we haven't seen from a presidential candidate in memory.

The old political and media rule is unsailable. When you are the bigger, more famous figure, you only draw more attention to a less prominent critic by engaging. If people hadn't heard, or heard about, Khan's short speech against Trump at the DNC before, they probably have now.

In its unadorned righteous indignation, the Khan DNC speech was a stinging rebuke of Trump - Khan suggested the Republican candidate hasn't read the Constitution, nor ever sacrificed anything for the country - and the mogul duly acted stung.

His first swipe was at Khan's wife, Ghazala, for standing silently at her husband's side during the speech (perhaps, Trump implied, she was forbidden from speaking as a woman?). In subsequently trying to tamp down the controversy, Trump stoked it further by saying Khizr Khan had "no right" to criticize him as he had and complaining about his viciousness.

The Trump response predictably fueled an all-out media blitz by the Khans. It validated one of the main lines of criticism of Trump at the DNC -- that he is so thin-skinned, he can't be entrusted with the awesome powers of the presidency. And his religiously fraught slap at Khan's wife and his rhetorical manhandling of a family who had sacrificed so much for the country reinforced the sense that he refuses to honor basic political norms.

It's not that grief validates a particular point of view, or someone who has suffered a terrible loss should be above criticism. But the grieving mother or father deserves an extra measure of respect. This isn't just Politics 101, but Decency 101. It is one thing to beat Ted Cruz and his family about the head and shoulders -- he's just another pol -- but something else entirely to do it to the parents of an exemplary young man who sacrificed his life protecting others in Iraq.

Trump believes, from his decades in the public eye in the media capital of the world, that it always pays to be on the attack. This isn't true anymore. The question no longer is whether he can garner headlines, but whether he can demonstrate his suitability to becoming commander in chief. The only one he's hurt by his assault on the Khans is himself.

U.S. Postal Service needs political help

I got the mail today. A couple of bills. A greeting card. Some catalogs. A newspaper. One package that my wife grabbed right away. (Wonder what that was?)

Lately, it occurs to me how completely I take for granted that I will get the mail tomorrow.

I've had my share of gripes about the mail. As president of the National Newspaper Association, I have fielded our community newspaper members' postal concerns all year. The mail is slower than it used to be. The U.S. Postal Service slowed it down by a day, at least, because of financial problems. Newspaper subscribers are unhappy because too often their papers are arriving late. Some local businesses have had problems with cash flow because of late mail.

Still, I get the mail every day but Sunday. Bet you do, too.

If you follow the news, you know the U.S. Postal Service is in trouble. Because so many people and businesses use the internet, there isn't as much mail to deliver. But we still expect the mail to come. At my newspaper, we look for it on Saturdays, too, because weekend mail is extremely important in small towns. (Congress considered ending Saturday mail, but thankfully it has dropped that idea for now.)

Beneath the surface, however, we see seismic, economy-rattling changes ahead unless Congress can pass legislation to lower the Postal Service's cost of doing business. It carries more than $50 billion of debt on its balance sheet. Fortunately, there are bills by Reps. Jason Chaffetz, R-UT, and Elijah Cummings, D-MD, and several other House

GUEST COMMENTARY

members, and by Sens. Tom Carper, D-DE, Claire McCaskill, D-MO, Mark Warner, D-VA, Roy Blunt, R-MO, Jerry Moran, R-KS, and Susan Collins, R-ME, that would do the job. Passing these bills is easier said than done. You may have noticed Congress is having a hard time these days getting anything passed.

This is what the bills have to fix.

A 2006 law imposed a requirement to put advance funding into a federal retirement health plan for postal workers. Other agencies don't do advance funding. They are on a pay-as-you-go system. That requirement began to cripple USPS within a year or two after its passage. What the 2006 law didn't do was relieve USPS of also contributing to Medicare for the same workers, which many do not use. So there are two plans for many workers, when only one is used. USPS has to double-pay, which is another way of saying you double-pay every time you buy stamps—for a total of about $29 billion now paid into the Federal Treasury. The Chaffetz-Cummings and Carper bills would end the double-payment. Retirees would go onto Medicare like the rest of us do, and the other plan would provide supplemental coverage. The Postal Service would be relieved of the debt it is carrying from the 2006 law because the funding will be complete.

Sounds so reasonable, right? Why hasn't it passed? Because Uncle Sam likes keeping half of that double payment. Somehow, some think tanks inside the Beltway (and I say "think" with my tongue in cheek) believe by ending the double payment, USPS would be getting a bailout. But it isn't a bailout. This is stopping your postage money from being unfairly collected and relieving a financial burden USPS did not deserve if Medicare was used as intended.

Saving this money may not mean much to you at a few pennies a pop, but to businesses, it is big money that could be used to create jobs instead of lining the federal treasury. Did you know that the mail is responsible for 7.5 million jobs and $1.2 trillion in the U.S. economy?

Mail is important. But it has to be reliable and on time. Unless this legislation gets through, mail will get slower and eventually, we won't be able to take it for granted.

If you get a chance this summer, e-mail your members of Congress a note asking them to pass these bills. Or better yet, send a letter by mail. Bet Congress takes that mail for granted every day, too.

In the country the distance from the road to your fence is called the easement. It's there so the utilities and county can have access to maintain and work on utilities, telephone, power, water, county road department and so on. You have to pay taxes on it but you don't control it. I want to say that I appreciate the property owners who mow and maintain their strip of land between the road and their fences because it makes the area so much neater and cleaner, even though you can't put so much as a political yard sign on that easement legally. Thank you for making our rural areas look clean.

Well, I just read the paper, and now we gotta worry about a train whistle? Leave the train whistles alone. They're wonderful and they also saved lots of lives years and years ago. Garnett, I think we got more to worry about than the train whistles. Keep'em. Do something else. Thank you.

I'm glad that we do have a carnival out here now for the kids to ride the rides, but do not play the games or listen to the carnies when they try to draw you in. It's a scam, all they want to do is take your money and there should be a limit to it. But those Optimists sure make a great burger and the Lions Club too. Great job, guys!

Where are you at on your journey to a changed heart?

In John chapter 18:28-40; Jesus has been arrested and is taken to Pilate to be questioned concerning criminal charges of trying to overthrow the Roman government. Pilate asks Jesus if he is the king of the Jews. Jesus answers as follows: "My kingdom is not of this world. If it were my servants would fight to prevent my arrest by the Jews. But now my kingdom is from another place."

Jesus was not the "king of the Jews", in the sense that he was going to lead a rebellion against the Roman government, but he was the king in the messianic sense. He would not establish his kingdom by force. The way we understand kingdoms or governments is that they are established and enforced by law with violations judged and punished accordingly to a legal system. The problems arise from the interpretation of the legal system by men. Judges make interpretations and rulings that determine if the system becomes more liberal or conservative.

Due to our human nature we want what is best for ourselves. Just like Isaiah the prophet stated in Isaiah 53:6, "All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned-everyone-to his own way; and the LORD has laid on him (Jesus) the iniquity of us all." We are told in Luke 16:15 by Jesus, "You (Pharisees) are those who justify yourselves before men, but God knows your hearts."

God knows your heart and mine. It is for this fatal condition that God sent Jesus, the sinless lamb of God, to die in our place, whose hearts from birth are inclined toward sin, so we could be reconciled to God. In Matthew 19:16-22; Jesus is confronted by a rich young man who asks what he must do to inherit eternal life. Jesus restates the commandments to the young man who confirms his obedience to them. Wanting to justify himself he asks Jesus. "What do I still lack?" Jesus knowing the man's heart tells him, "If you would be perfect, go sell what you possess and give to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; and come, follow me." We are told the young man went away sorrowful. Jesus did not tell the young man this was a requirement for eternal life initially but it became one because Jesus knew the young man's heart was bent toward his wealth not toward God. Wealth in this instance was not the sin but the love of wealth.

In order for the young man to enter the kingdom Jesus was referring to required a change of heart. He was unable to accept that. Truthfully you and I need to ask ourselves where we are at on our journey toward a changed heart?

Garnett Library to discuss 'Blackout'

The Garnett Public Library will hold their book discussion on Wednesday, August 24th at 7 p.m. in the Archer Room at the library. They are held on the fourth Wednesday of each month. This month's book is "Blackout" by David Rosenfelt. Leading our discussion will be Paulabeth Henderson.

New Jersey state police officer Doug Brock has been after infamous criminal Nicholas Bennett for years. When Bennett kills someone close to Doug, however, Doug's investigation—and his life—start spiraling out of control. He's placed on indefinite suspension from the police force and breaks things off with his fiancée, but he can't let the case go, and he continues an off-the-books investigation on his own. When Doug's former partner on the force, Nate Alvarez, receives a call from Doug saying he's discovered something big, something terrifying, something they need to call in the FBI to handle, Nate is furious that Doug has still been working the case.

But when the call ends abruptly, and shortly afterward Doug is found in a hotel room, shot and in critical condition, Nate's anger turns to fear. When Doug finally awakens from his coma, however, he has no memory of the case, or even the last several years of his life. But the pull of what he might have discovered is too strong, and he finds himself immersed in the desperate search for truth once again, regardless of the danger.

Once again David Rosenfelt has written a propulsive and compelling thriller that will rivet readers from the first page to the last. The books are available for checkout at the library. Notification is posted in case of cancellation.

Chamber Players to present 'The Savannah Sipping Society'

The Chamber Players kick off their 26th Season with a brand new comedy by the masters of southern humor, Jessie Jones, Nicholas Hope & Jamie Wooten. "The Savannah Sipping Society" is directed by Dennis Richards and runs August 18-21 & 25-28 at Garnett's award-winning dinner theatre.

Richards

ACA Catering of Edgerton, KS will serve a menu of Buttermilk Roast Chicken, Green Salad, Roasted Red Potatoes & Carrots and Buttermilk Biscuits. Tickets are $24 for adults and $20 for K-12 students. Season tickets are available for $88 and include all four dinner theatre shows in the season. Gift certificates are also available for $24 each. "The Savannah Sipping Society" is the story of four unique Southern women, all needing to escape the sameness of their day-to-day routines, who are drawn together by fate and an impromptu happy hour and who decide it's high time to reclaim the enthusiasm for life they've lost through the years.

Randa (Tracy Conard, Ottawa), a perfectionist and workaholic, is struggling to cope with a surprise career derailment that, unfortunately, reveals that she has no life and no idea how to get one. Dot (Lori Barcus, Garnett), still reeling from her husband's recent demise and the loss of their plans for an idyllic retirement, faces the unsettling prospect of starting a new life from scratch—and all alone. Earthy and boisterous Marlafaye (Melissa Story, Ottawa), a good ol' Texas gal, has blasted into Savannah in the wake of losing her tom-cattin' husband to a twenty-three-year-old dental hygienist. The strength of her desire to establish a new life is equaled only by her desire to wreak a righteous revenge on her ex. Also new to town, Jinx (Cindy McCullough, Ottawa), a spunky ball of fire, offers her services as a much-needed life coach for these women.

Together, they discover lasting friendships and a renewed determination to live in the moment—and most importantly, realize it's never too late to make new old friends.

The season continues with another brand new play by local playwright Gary Ray Stapp. "The Gift: 7 Pounds, 3 Ounces" is another blockbuster by the local icon. His most recent play, "Leona, Love Thy Neighbor, Too" debuted in March by selling out 800 tickets before they became available to the general public. "The Gift..." runs December 1-4 & 8-11, 2016.

Neil Simon's latest comedy, "Rose and Walsh" will usher in 2017. It's the story of two aging writers who explore the limits of love in their golden years and are challenged by the realities of aging. It runs March 2-5 & 9-12, 2017.

"The Foreigner" is playwright Larry Shue's follow-up to "The Nerd", the company's Best Show award winner in 2014. An outrageous comedy about strangers in the deep south, "The Foreigner" runs June 1-4 & 8-11, 2017.

Call or text the theatre at 785-304-1683 or email ChamberPlayersGarnett@gmail.com for reservations.

Rockers competes in Marucci World Series

Brady Rockers, a student at Anderson County High School, recently competed in the first-ever, Marucci World Series in Houston, TX. Brady is a member of Natural Baseball Academy (NBA), in Olathe, KS and plays in the 17U division as a catcher.

The NBA 17U team traveled to Houston on July 19th and participated in a Home Run Derby and Fastest Man contest the first night. July 21-22 NBA won their first three games against teams from Nevada, Washington and New Jersey, putting them into the semi-finals. In the semi-final game on Saturday, NBA competed against Marucci Elite—a team from Louisiana, but ended up losing the game and taking third place in the tournament out of sixteen teams. Marucci Elite went on to win the championship. A heat index of 104-110 degrees further tested the players, coaches, umpires and fans, with at least two people collapsing from heat exhaustion.

The trip was a great experience as the NBA players faced some of the top teams and highly recruited players from around the country.

Rockers will be a senior this fall at ACHS.

Richmond Museum closes by Labor Day

For an enjoyable week-end afternoon, drive up to the Richmond Community Museum, which will be open Saturday and Sunday, 1-4 p.m. through September 4. This will end the Museum's regular open schedule for the season although hosts will open any time on request. There is no admission charge; donations are greatly appreciated.

The Museum is small, but full of more than 1,000 artifacts, almost all from the Richmond community, and countless albums and notebooks of pictures, stories, histories...all great memories for many.

There have been visitors from about 30 Kansas cities and towns as well as from 13 other states, and even from New Guinea so far this year. The Richmond High School Alumni Banquet, Richmond Free Fair, the Museum's annual meeting, the Nilges-Bennett Family Reunion, and visits from Central Heights school classes were the Museum's busiest days.

A great new archival piece, recently researched by Dennis Peters, is a late 1879 photo of Richmond, believed to be the earliest picture available. The view is going west on Central Avenue, or coming down commonly-called cemetery hill. The picture includes the original schoolhouse built in 1871 in the southwest corner of town, the First Presbyterian Church which was completed in November 1879 and may have been the reason the photo was taken at this time. This was the first church in town. The congregation disbanded in 1925 and the building was sold to the Methodist Episcopal Church, named The Annex, and used until the current United Methodist Church was completed in 1962.

The photo also shows the original depot which was west of the railroad tracks. It was destroyed by a fire and rebuilt east of the tracks in 1901. Other buildings such as a large hay barn with a hay press are included.

Come to the Museum to see this interesting picture with full explanation, thousands of other archival materials, artifacts from Fairview School which was the original school just west of W. Scipio School, and many other items. The school artifacts were excavated by Henry Roeckers and given to the Museum by Leland Kueser.

You're invited to 'like' the Museum on Facebook for even more stories about the Richmond community.

Hey, that smells like a great deal

Several years ago there was a T.J. Cinnamons franchise at the shopping mall in Columbia, Mo. They used to pump that fanatically delicious aroma of baking cinnamon rolls out into the mall, and you could watch shoppers' faces light up when they passed by.

Then there was the butcher shop I endured in the Russian city of Serpukov back in the early 1990s. It smelled like somebody ran over Boris Yeltsin's favorite opossum the month before and hid it in one of the building's ventilation shafts. I breathed through my mouth and didn't buy anything.

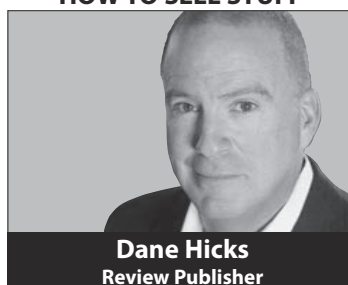

Though the science seems to differ on just how much aroma can impact purchasing, one thing is for certain: aroma does impact mood, and mood impacts purchasing.

What also seems to be understood is this: If you're a business trying to enhance your buying atmosphere with a scent and you get it wrong, you'll probably do more damage than if you had no scent at all, i.e. my Russian meat market story.

Researchers seem to agree scent matters, and the more simple the better. Complex smells that aren't easily identifiable may still be pleasant but seem less effective in eliciting positive emotion, possibly because your brain has to work harder at figuring them out. A study at a home décor store in Switzerland showed customers spent on average 38 percent more when the store was infused with a simple orange scent than when a more complex mix of orange, basil and green tea was used - average sales were less, in fact, than no scent at all when the latter was used.

A study by Nike showed adding scent to their stores increased "intent to purchase" by 80 percent. A pina colada aroma in a British toy store allegedly attracted parents to linger in the store longer.

Researchers in Belgium noted that the scent of chocolate seemed to have a more pronounced effect on women, who tended to browse longer - particularly in categories like romance novels and cooking/recipe books. The chocolate aroma seemed to have less effect in other book categories. Convenience stores have seen increased sales of coffee when that aroma was enhanced in the store.

Fragrances that "fit" appear to put our brains on a faster track toward making a buying decision. A steakhouse should smell like charcoaled beef, not lilacs; an outdoor store would probably see better customer response with a rich smell like pine or cedar; a swim shop should go with an ocean scent over pumpkin pie.

So the jury seems to conclude that scent, just like the other senses, plays a part in warming or cooling a prospective customer. Done right, it can help you sell more stuff.

Brownback: August is Farmers' Market Month

TOPEKA - In recognition of the important role farmers' markets play in Kansas communities, Governor Sam Brownback proclaimed August as Farmers' Market Month in Kansas.

In both urban centers and rural communities, farmers' markets give consumers access to fresh, locally grown produce and serve as an important link between food producers and consumers of Kansas products. Farmers' markets also keep money in Kansas communities, which helps make small businesses stronger and positively contributes to local economies.

The number of farmers' markets in Kansas has grown from 26 in 1987 to more than 70 registered farmers' markets in 2016. They are a vibrant part of many Kansas communities, and contribute to the health, well-being and quality of life for many Kansans.

"We are excited about the growth and expansion of farmers' markets across the state," said Julie Roller, agriculture marketing specialist at the Kansas Department of Agriculture. "Farmers' markets serve as a great way for producers to connect with consumers and sell their products locally."

Farmers' markets in Kansas can register with the Kansas Department of Agriculture as part of the state's agricultural trademark program, From the Land of Kansas. This central registration became possible in 2013 following the passage of Senate Bill 120, legislation designed to protect farmers' markets and their managers from potential legal liability, thus opening doors for additional markets throughout the state. As a result of this state support, registered markets now have access to free marketing, outreach and advocacy efforts.

KDA supports farmers' markets through a variety of services and programs, including the Kansas Farmers' Market Toolkit, the Savor the Season campaign and by hosting state and regional farmers' market workshops. KDA also provides information about food safety regulations and best practices to farmers' markets across the state. KDA and From the Land of Kansas strive to serve Kansas farmers, ranchers, agribusinesses and consumers by expanding agricultural markets and providing support and assistance to help Kansas businesses grow.

Please note the Garnett Farmers' Market was one of the ten preselected markets to receive the Kansas Farmers'

Market Toolkit out of a total of 20 awards. The toolkit includes signage, flags, tents, hand-washing stations, sampling supplies, recipe cards and other items to promote the market and enrich the consumer experience. The Garnett Farmers' Market is held each Thursday evening from 4:30 to 7:00 p.m. on Main Street, between 4th and 5th Avenues. The Garnett Farmers' Market Season ends October 6th.

Methodist church offers Crosby Lane concert

Saturday, August 13, 6:00 p.m., Crosby Lane will be in concert at First United Methodist Church. Crosby Lane is named for one of the most prolific hymn writers of all time - Fanny Crosby. Her inspiring and beautiful lyrics have touched generations of believers. With over 8500 hymns, Fanny expresses heavenly purpose and earthly joy! Crosby Lane is all about the music that has moved - and still moves - generations to worship the Lord!

Crosby Lane is comprised of former Country music artist, Tonja Rose; multi-Dove Award writer/arranger and long-time worship leader, John Lemonis; and his wife, multi-instrumentalist, Michaela Lemonis. The trio shares a mutual passion for the ministry side of hymns. Knowing the history of this music, they knew these great works of art, pieces of our faith, and timeless messages had to be shared.

Crosby Lane concerts and conferences are packed with enthusiastic, organic arrangements of hymn classics. The audience will be singing along at times and listening intently at other times with hearts wide-open. Mixed with testimony and the stories behind the songs, the fast-paced entertainment value is high; however, more importantly, it is a most unique worship experience.

An offering will be received to support the group's ministry.

Crosby Lane.

KATP school comes to an end

The 2016 KATP Training School comes to an end. 15 June 2016

Another great day for finding lots of artifacts in almost every grid, in the screens and with metal detectors. Again lots of Buttons, Beads, several Wagon and Stage parts, Hoe, (2) Pie Tins, very nice old Bottle, a small Horseshoe made of Milk Glass (Neat) and the normal glass and dish-ware shards.

This evening I attended a Tour of the 1851 KAW Methodist Indian Mission. A surprise guest appeared (Sharon Haun) portrayed Eliza Huffaker who once lived at the Mission. She was great with her storytelling. 16 June 2016

My last day in the field and what a day it was! These are some of the artifacts I personally found while screening this morning. (6) old Fashioned Straight Pins, (3) glass Buttons, Iron Button, Brass Civil War Button, Pistol Percussion Cap, (3) Musket Percussion Caps, Clay Marble, Glass Bottle Stopper, (6) Round Beads, (4) tiny Pony or Seed Beads and one very unusual Bead.

Afternoon finds by our crew were: Long Beads, Pony Beads, Bone Buttons, Black Ivory Button, Steel Buttons, Straight Pins, Rim Fire Cartridges, (2) Handmade Dominos and a pair of Benjamin Franklin style reading Glasses (still in very nice condition).

This evening was the Overview of our entire project at Council Grove. Our fried chicken dinner was terrific. This event was held in the Council Grove National Guard Armory and there were 80 of us in attendance. It was announced that there were 134 Volunteers at this year's KATP, volunteering 5,300 man hours in the field and lab. It was a very successful KATP. There were also 350 visitors who took tours given every day at the working site and the lab.

Well time has arrived to say our Good-byes once again. Tomorrow we begin our journeys home. 17 June 2016

I left Council Grove at 5:45am, stopped at McDonald's in Ottawa for a quick cup of coffee and a sandwich. While on the road I saw field after field of new mowen hay. Oh it smells so good. I also saw two deer and five flocks of wild turkeys.

Arrived Home 8:15am (92.3) miles

I hope some of you enjoyed my adventure in Archaeology as much as I did.

DISTRICTS...

their expenses similar to last year as much as possible. Other than increases in capital outlay and special education, there were few areas that saw dramatic differences in expenses between last year and this year at all three districts.

Districts typically set their capital outlay budgets much higher than they expect to actually use, in order to cover unexpected problems like a faulty HVAC system or add to facilities. Once the budget is approved, the district will not be able to increase the amount of money it can collect from taxpayers, but that doesn't mean it actually will spend that much money.

As a result, it appears USD 365 in the northern part of Anderson County will increase its tax rate by 1.21 mills, up to 53.539 for the 2016-17 school year compared to 52.329 last year. That is expected to raise about $3.99 million, up from $3.58 million last year. The district's total expenses are expected to increase to $17.8 million, up from $17 million last year.

However, those estimated expenses include about $1.59 million in capital outlay, a total amount which Superintendent Don Blome said likely won't be needed. Last year, the district budgeted a similar amount but spent only $319,285. Blome said the district's only significant possible project next year would be to change the entrance at Anderson County Jr./Sr. High School, which is estimated to cost between $300,000 and $400,000.

In the end, Blome said he expects the actual 2016-17 budget will be similar to this past year's, barring unforeseen circumstances. He said what appears to be increases in spending reflects high estimates, but actual spending likely will look about the same as last year.

The school board will have a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 11, to discuss and formally approve the budget.

USD 479, the Crest district in southern Anderson County, will raise its total tax rate by 3.943 mills, up to 38.088 for 2016-17, up from 34.595 last year. That will raise about $606,636, up from $581,025 last year. The district's total expenses for the coming school year were estimated at about $5.1 million, up from $3.8 million last year.

The district estimated spending as much as $1.077 million in capital outlay; last year, it didn't actually spend anything out of the capital outlay budget.

The Crest school board's public hearing is set for 7 p.m. Monday, Aug. 15.

In USD 288, the Central Heights district in southern Franklin County, the total mill rate will decrease about 1.29 mills, down to 53.099 for 2016-17 from 54.389 last year. The tax will raise about $1.32 million, slightly more than last year's $1.31 million. The district's total expenses are expected to be about $10.079 million, down from $10.425 million last year.

The district estimated spending as much as $488,756 in capital outlay; last year, it actually spent $132,456.

The Central Heights school board will meet at 7 p.m. Monday, Aug. 22, for a public hearing and to formally approve the budget.

Kansas lawmakers in late June passed a short-term fix to the financial formula to satisfy a court threat to close schools July 1. The plan redistributes money from wealthier districts and adds about $38 million to poorer districts, in an attempt to make the education funding system fairer to poor districts.

As a result, it appears USD 365 and Crest USD 479 lost some state funding. The Central Heights district 288 in the southern part of Franklin County got more money, mostly because they had added 4 mills to their Local Option Budget last year.

Anderson County districts also have to contend with the uncertainty surrounding the East Kansas Agri-Energy's valuation appeal. Because this is the first time the entire ethanol plant property will be assessed to pay property taxes, the appropriate method used to value the plant has been disputed. Anderson County Appraiser Steve Markham initially set a value on the plant at $32.2 million, split between real estate and personal property, while EKAE argued the more appropriate value was around $7 million. Markham later revised the value to around $22.8 million. The matter will ultimately be decided by the Board of Tax Appeals.

If the plant's assessed value results in a lower tax rate, taxing entities like county and city governments and school boards could have to pay back money. Some have discussed setting up a special fund to hold the ethanol plant's tax money, just in case.

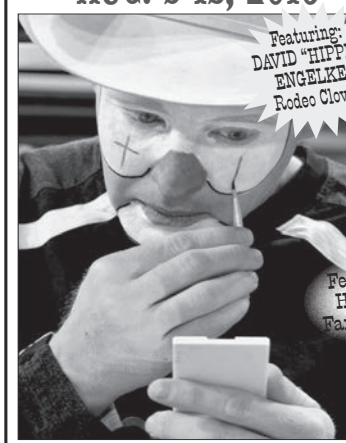

The ethanol plant valuation doesn't affect most Central Heights taxpayers. Their assessed valuation grew slightly, but remained relatively stable compared to last year.
