Calpine takes 'wait and see' approach on local wind farm

Company keeps eye on winds, politics as it shifts focus elsewhere

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

OKLAHOMA CITY - After months of silence, a representative of a Texas energy firm that at one time wanted to build a wind farm in Anderson County says the company plans to renew its local leases and will continue to study local weather, wildlife and political developments.

The company, though, has turned its attention to more promising ventures elsewhere, said Nathan Vajdos, a representative with Calpine Corporation, in a letter to local leaseholders and The Review. "In 2016, we saw greater demand for wind energy from customers in Oklahoma and Texas than in Kansas and Missouri, which drove our shift in focus to those markets," Vajdos said.

In late 2015, Calpine proposed development of a 100-turbine wind farm that would add about 200 MW of power to the electrical grid. But a group of local landowners quickly organized an opposition group to stop the project. Vandalism on both sides escalated to destruction of a 300-foot weather monitoring tower, with damage estimated at more than $250,000, in what the local sheriff's office deemed domestic terrorism in May 2016. Soon after that

Zoning committee submits its own wind farm restrictions

Plan to ban all wind development denied; residences protected

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - A request to block all wind farm development in Anderson County was denied by the county's planning and zoning commission last week, but the commission instead offered an alternative proposal that would prohibit windmills from being built in populated rural areas.

The planning commission rejected a request from Dane Hicks of rural Greeley, a member of the Landowners Against Windmills group. Hicks wanted the county to adopt zoning regulations similar to those in Wabaunsee County which would have offered a blanket prohibition against development of wind farms in the county. More than 80 people attended a November planning and zoning meeting to discuss

All boys and girls 9 to 14 years old are eligible to participate and will compete in their respective age divisions. Local jobless rate stays low

Anderson County has one of lowest jobless rates compared to area

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

TOPEKA - Anderson County again posted one of the lowest unemployment rates in December compared to its neighbors, continuing a trend from recent months that shows area jobless rates slightly higher than a year ago.

The jobless rate in Anderson County in December 2016 was 4.0 percent, according to statistics released Friday, Jan. 20, by the Kansas Department of Labor. Of the surrounding counties, only Franklin (3.9) and Miami (3.8) fared better. Anderson County's unemployment was the same as those two counties in November (3.7) and October (4.0); those three counties had lower unemployment rates compared to most counties in the region, and were consistent with the state's overall unemployment rate.

Other surrounding counties - Allen, Coffey and Linn - posted unemployment rates higher by at least one percentage point or more, from 5.2 percent to 6.8 percent, in December.

Typically, jobless rates are lower in counties closer to a metropolitan area like Kansas City, Lawrence or Topeka. Geographically, Anderson County is farther from those metropolitan areas than Franklin or Miami counties, but closer than Allen, Coffey and Linn counties. Low gasoline fuel prices tend to encourage longer commutes, which could explain why Anderson Countians are finding more job opportunities.

There were 166 people in Anderson County without jobs in December out of a civilian labor force of 4,136 for a rate of 4.0 percent. That's just a little higher than November's 3.7 percent, but lower than the previous year, when unemployment was 4.3 percent in December 2015.

Statewide, the December seasonally adjusted unemployment rate was 4.2 percent. This was down from 4.3 percent in November and up from 4.0 percent in December 2015. Since last month, Kansas private sector jobs decreased by 1,100. The largest private sector overthe regulations in what was called record turnout for a zoning committee meeting. People who opposed wind farms outnumbered supporters by about 10 to 1.

A significantly smaller crowd of between 25 to 30 people attended the Monday, Jan. 23, meeting to hear the committee's decision. Everyone in the crowd appeared to oppose wind farm development.

The zoning committee members appeared reluctant to infringe on the rights of property owners by restricting all future wind farm development. They also seemed concerned about a potential lawsuit if they changed the rules while a Texas energy company, Calpine Corporation, is investigating the feasibility of building a wind farm in Anderson County. Calpine first proposed the project in late 2015, has signed leases with some landowners and is monitoring weather conditions.

But the committee proposed restrictions that still could block wind farm development in areas of the county targeted by Calpine. Those restrictions would prohibit construction of windmill turbines within a half mile of a residence or commercial structure and 1.5 times the height of a wind tower from a boundary line.

Calpine proposed building about 100 turbines along a ridge between Greeley and Kincaid that roughly parallels U.S. 169. The site was targeted for wind farm development because it is believed winds increase as they rise over the ridge, a Calpine representative said previously.

Landowners complained during the November planning and zoning committee meeting that the area was one of the most densely populated rural areas of the county.

Hicks said most houses in the area are located within a half mile of each other. It would be difficult to find places in that area to build a turbine, he said.

Other areas of the county, such as the southwest quadrant of the county, are much less dense when it comes to residential population.

Currently, zoning regulations require a special use permit for each turbine and allow neighbors to weigh in on the pros and cons before such a permit is approved. The planning commission's new proposal would not affect that process, though it would most likely approach the entire wind farm as a single permit.

The committee's recommendation was forwarded to the Anderson County Commission. Commissioners were expected to consider the issue at their next meeting Monday, Jan. 30.

incident, Calpine officials went silent and some speculated they may have abandoned the project. Last week's letter was the first public communication from the company in at least six months.

Vajdos said the company intends to maintain some sort of presence in the county.

"We will continue to pay the development rent on the anniversary of the lease's effective date, in accordance with the lease. Absent further impediments to wind development, we currently intend to renew all signed leases," he said.

Changes in federal, state and local regulations potentially could hamper wind farm development.

Locally, the Anderson County planning and zoning committee considered a zoning change that essentially would curtail development of any wind farms. The planning commission last week decided not to recommend those strict zoning changes, but agreed instead to recommend to county commissioners an amendment that would prohibit construction of wind turbines within a half mile of a residence or commercial building, and within 1.5 times the height of the turbine from a property boundary line.

Anderson County's current zoning regulations require energy companies to obtain a special use permit for each turbine and gives neighbors an opportunity to weigh in on the proposal, which Vajdos said "already sets a uniquely high bar for development through a provision in the zoning code that allows 20 percent of neighbors to object to a zoning change." Planning commissioners have said that process would likely be rolled into a single permit application and hearing.

"It would be unfortunate to see the county close off the option of wind power entirely for future generations and to deny landowners the ability to harvest a profitable crop," Vajdos said in last week's letter. "Both supporters and opponents of wind should have confidence that these existing rules set a robust process for the community to weigh the pros and cons of each new proposed investment that comes your way."

The recent election and inauguration of President Donald Trump also brings uncertainty to the future of wind farm development across the nation. Trump has criticized wind power in the past. His pick to lead the Energy Department, former Texas Gov. Rick Perry, is an oil promoter but also oversaw a huge expansion in wind-energy while governor.

Energy companies spiked development of wind farms in recent years due to lucrative tax credits and subsidies from the federal government, but a federal wind credit is expected to be phased out by 2019.

Kansas and Missouri utilities such as Westar and KCP&L will be watching federal and state legislative actions as they weigh the value of wind farm developments.

Meanwhile, Calpine will continue to monitor the wind in Anderson County using ground-based monitoring equipment, Vajdos said.

"So far the results look very promising, and we remain convinced by the original business plan that brought us to Anderson County: That in the long-term — in the absence of new local regulations limiting wind farm development — the combination of a good wind and proximity to Kansas City should generate sufficient revenue to support construction of a wind farm in the county."

Vajdos encouraged wind farm supporters to get involved, especially at the local level.

"As a resident of the community, your voice counts in a way that ours never can. If you feel strongly that the county should not enact new regulations to inhibit wind development, please attend the next Planning Commission meeting or contact your county commissioners," he said.

Trump vows to give Washington back to the people

The inaugural address of Donald John Trump, 45th President of The United States, delivered January 20, 2017.

Trump

Chief Justice Roberts, President Carter, President Clinton, President Bush, President Obama, fellow Americans, and people of the world: thank you.

We, the citizens of America, are now joined in a great national effort to rebuild our country and restore its promise for all of our people. Together we will determine the course of America and the world for many, many years to come. We will face challenges. We will confront hardships, but we will get the job done.

Every four years we gather on these steps to carry out the orderly and peaceful transfer of power, and we are grateful to President Obama and First Lady Michelle Obama for their gracious aid throughout this transition. They have been magnificent. Thank you.

Today's ceremony, however, has very special meaning. Because today we are not merely transferring power from one administration to another or from one party to another, but we are transferring power from Washington, D.C. and giving it back to you, the people.

For too long, a small group in our nation's capital has reaped the rewards of government while the people have borne the cost. Washington flourished, but the people did not share in its wealth.

Politicians prospered, but the jobs left and the factories closed. The establishment protected itself but not the citizens of our country. Their victories have not been your victories. Their triumphs have not been your triumphs, and while they celebrated in our nation's capital, there was little to celebrate for struggling families all across our land.

That all changes starting right here and right now, because this moment is your moment. It belongs to you. It belongs to everyone gathered here today and everyone watching all across America. This is your day, this is your celebration, and this, the United States of America, is your country.

What truly matters is not which party controls our government, but whether our government is controlled by the people. Jan. 20, 2017, will be remembered as the day the people became the rulers of this nation again.

The forgotten men and women of our country will be forgotten no longer. Everyone is listening to you now. You came by the tens of millions to become part of an historic movement, the likes of which the world has never seen before. At the center of this movement is a crucial conviction that a nation exists to serve its citizens.

Americans want great schools for their children, safe neighborhoods for their families and good jobs for themselves. These are just and reasonable demands of righteous people and a righteous public, but for too many of our citizens, a different reality exists.

Mothers and children trapped in poverty in our inner cities, rusted-out factories scattered like tombstones across the landscape of our nation. An education system flush with cash but which leaves our young and beautiful students deprived of all knowledge. And the crime and the gangs and the drugs that have stolen too many lives and robbed our country of so much unrealized potential.

We are one nation, and their pain is our pain. Their dreams are our dreams, and their success will be our success. We share one heart, one home, and one glorious destiny. The oath of office I take today is an oath of allegiance to all Americans.

For many decades we've enriched foreign industry at the expense of American industry, subsidized the armies of other countries while allowing for the very sad depletion of our military.

We've defended other nations' borders while refusing to defend our own and spent trillions and trillions of dollars overseas while America's infrastructure has fallen into disrepair and decay. We've made other countries rich while the wealth, strength and confidence of our country has dissipated over the horizon.

One by one, the factories shuttered and left our shores with not even a thought about the millions and millions of American workers that were left behind. The wealth of our middle class has been ripped from their homes and then redistributed all across the world. But that is the past and now we are looking only to the future.

We assembled here today are issuing a new decree to be heard in every city, in every foreign capital and in every hall of power. From this day forward, a new vision will govern our land. From this day forward, it's going to be only America first. America first.

Every decision on trade, on taxes, on immigration, on foreign affairs will be made to benefit American workers and American families. We must protect our borders from the ravages of other countries making our products, stealing our companies and destroying our jobs. Protection will lead to great prosperity and strength.

I will fight for you with every breath in my body, and I will never, ever let you down. America will start winning again. Winning like never before. We will bring back our jobs. We will bring back our borders. We will bring back our wealth. And we will bring back our dreams.

We will build new roads and highways and bridges and airports and tunnels and railroads all across our wonderful nation. We will get our people off of welfare and back to work rebuilding our country with American hands and American labor.

We will follow two simple rules: Buy American and hire American. We will seek friendship and good will with the nations of the world, but we do so with the understanding that sue solidarity. When America is united, America is totally unstoppable. There should be no fear. We are protected, and we will always be protected. We will be protected by the great men and women of our military and law enforcement and most importantly, we will be protected by God.

Finally, we must think big remember that old wisdom our soldiers will never forget, that whether we are black or brown or white, we all bleed the same red blood of patriots.

We all enjoy the same glorious freedoms, and we all salute the same great American flag. And whether a child is born in the urban sprawl of Detroit or the wind-swept plains of it is the right of all nations to put their own interests first.

We do not seek to impose our way of life on anyone, but rather to let it shine as an example. We will shine for everyone to follow. We will reinforce old alliances and form new ones and unite the civilized world against radical Islamic terrorism, which we will eradicate completely from the face of the earth.

At the bedrock of our politics will be a total allegiance to the United States of America, and through our loyalty to our country, we will rediscover our loyalty to each other. When you open your heart to patriotism, there is no room for prejudice. The Bible tells us how good and pleasant it is when God's people live together in unity.

We must speak our minds openly, debate our disagreements honestly, but always pur-and dream even bigger. In America, we understand that a nation is only living as long as it is striving.

We will no longer accept politicians who are all talk and no action constantly complaining but never doing anything about it. The time for empty talk is over. Now arrives the hour of action. Do not allow anyone to tell you that it cannot be done. No challenge can match the heart and fight and spirit of America. We will not fail. Our country will thrive and prosper again.

We stand at the birth of a new millennium ready to unlock the mysteries of space, to free the earth from the miseries of disease and to harness the energies, industries and technologies of tomorrow. A new national pride will stir ourselves, lift our sights and heal our divisions. It's time to Nebraska, they look up at the same night sky. They fill their heart with the same dreams, and they are infused with the breath of life by the same almighty creator.

So to all Americans in every city near and far, small and large, from mountain to mountain, from ocean to ocean, hear these words. You will never be ignored again. Your voice, your hopes and your dreams will define our American destiny. And your courage and goodness and love will forever guide us along the way.

Together we will make America strong again. We will make America wealthy again. We will make America proud again. We will make America safe again. And, yes, together, we will make America great again. Thank you. God bless you and God bless America! Thank you. God bless America.

Education budget committee needs to pull against the leash

"I wouldn't have a dog that doesn't pull at the leash."

That was dad decades ago, but the concept that a dog is curious, eager to reach out, to pull against restraints, well, that shows the dog has heart.

And, just days into the 2017 Kansas legislative session, there's at least one dog that is willing to pull against the budget leash held by Gov. Sam Brownback.

That pup? The newly created House Committee on K-12 Education Budget.

Last week, the panel decided that it doesn't want the governor to pull $85 million from the Kansas Public Employees Retirement System that is owed by the state on behalf of schoolteachers and other school workers. Actually, it includes the governor's non-payment proposal for other state employees, but the teachers and general government workers are in the same pension pool, so the panel voted to preserve all the pension cuts.

That's pulling against the leash. It's nearly a quarter of the savings needed to balance the state budget in the current fiscal year, and because at some point those employees are going to retire, the state is going to have to come up with their pension money anyway.

The K-12 Education panel's decision is a long way from enactment, but it was the first real, printed out on paper objection to the governor's budget plan. It is unlikely that the KPERS provision will sail through the next level of consideration, the House Appropriations Committee, but it is a clear message to the governor that at least one panel of legislators isn't interested in his plan to just delay and eliminate payments to finish his term without having to raise taxes.

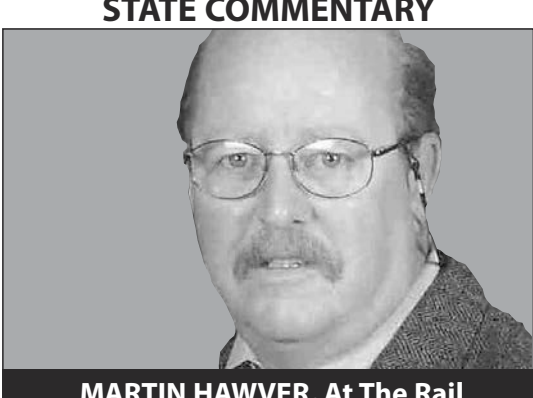

That action is probably going to make this week interesting, because that KPERS plan of the governor is so technical that most Kansans would never know that it happened...which is exactly what Brownback wants to happen.

The governor's plan, recall, doesn't raise anyone's taxes, doesn't really inconvenience anyone, but takes spare cash out of state agency funds, delays or cancels payments to agencies and cashes out long-term revenue streams to get to July 1, 2017, with at least a little cash in the bank.

So where do things go from here?

Most likely budget cuts, actual reductions in state spending through June 30, which won't be pretty but which won't have out-year consequences that future legislatures are going to have to wrangle with.

STATE COMMENTARY

And, of course, the biggest appropriation that the state makes is to K-12 education, so a single-digit cut there would solve most of this fiscal year's projected deficit, but at a major political cost to many legislators...unless they can clearly make it a one-time, never again deal and convince Kansans that they are serious.

Oh, that cut might also mean that school districts across the state would have to pull money out of their dozens of narrow purpose funds, money they are hanging onto just in case something like an across-the-board state aid reduction actually happens. That spare money in school district budgets is referred to by some conservatives as hoarding.

Plainly, there is no simple solution to the budget deficit, and until it is fixed, there's little pressing reason to start hashing out the biennial budget that covers the next two fiscal years which are the last two years of the Brownback administration.

The budget issue comes down to one key: Whether Kansas voters will realize the depth of the deficit and take a break from blaming previous Brownback-dominated sessions when taxes were sharply cut or eliminated and allow their senators and representatives to fix the short-term problem before they attack the long-term problem.

Pulling against the leash, well, that's a start...

I read your front page story. Trumped up. So funny, I laughed really hard. A., no one really cares around this town, and two, people say to give him a chance like they did Obama, accuse him of not being an American and want to see his birth certificate. I'm not giving him any respect. He's nothing but a proven con-man and liar. And you people that are celebrating it? Sad, very sad.

Them people that were killed in the fire; one, it's nobody's business what you do in the privacy of your home; two, alcohol did not start that fire, that was not the reason. She was in bed. That's no one's business, and you're trying to say it's everybody's business what you do in your home, sorry, I disagree. The other person was not drinking, he ended up losing his life trying to save her. You think you have the right to snoop your nose in everybody else's business. You don't. Thank you.

I was going to call the Phone Forum to complain about coaching of some of our local high school basketball teams. Having thought it through though, I decided to praise some of our excellent coaches instead. First, Mike Sibley, the freshman girls coach at ACHS has done a great job with his team this year. They play hard for him and he has taught them how to play the game. Secondly Trevor Smith at Westphalia has also done a great job. I saw his boys team beat a much taller and well-coached team the other night. His team, like Mike's, plays hard and is always improving. I have enjoyed watching these teams play this year. They don't always win, but you always see a great effort. Thanks.

I hope the new codes officer will see the eyesores along West Fourth. Yards are filled with trash, looks like a dump site. There's disabled cars parked two-to-six deep, it looks like a junkyard. A wonderful place to create the wild kingdom, cats have given birth to several litters of kittens in the old cars. They in turn run wild in the neighborhood. I certainly hope the new codes officer will see these problem areas and do something about it. If not, what good is a codes officer?

What would the Founding Fathers of our country have thought? A grown woman going to a march in the nation's capital dressed as a vagina? Really? This isn't about women's rights. What rights do these women not have that they're protesting for? What rights have they lost since the election? Someone please tell me. All this is about is continuing to have the taxpayers pay for Planned Parenthood to kill their babies. What a noble cause. Thank you.

1997: Fair ends carnival, plans activity booths

January 23, 2007
A decade after it galvanized supporters and stirred opponents in the area, the final leg of the Prairie Spirit trail is expected to be completed sometime this summer.

The Country Diner in Colony will soon be following in the footsteps of bigger towns like Lawrence and Overland Park when it comes to smoking. They will no longer allow it starting in March.

January 27, 1997
The Anderson County Fair Association hopes local organizations will get involved in the annual fair this year by coming up with activity booths for a midway plan designed to replace the traditional carnival, which board members decided to do away with at a meeting last week.

Anderson County Commissioner Gene Highberger made a gesture back toward his November 1996 election campaign Monday, when he agreed to vote for a 2 percent county employee pay increase on the condition that it not apply to the salaries of county commissioners.

County hospital officials are investigating allegations made by the son of a former patient the hospital treated his father in an undignified fashion during an overnight stay at Anderson County Hospital.

Low volume of patients and higher expenses in 1996 brought the Anderson County Hospital a $2,000 loss last year on total revenues of just over $6 million.

Frustration mounted but tempers remained calm Monday night as the first of two public meetings was held to determine the fate of Greeley Grade and Mont Ida schools, both the subject of a USD 365 closeout plan set up in an effort to cut district expenses.

About 60 concerned patrons met at the Mont Ida School Wednesday night to discuss with USD 365 board members the resolution concerning the closing of the school.

January 31, 1977
Good news came from Topeka for USD 365 in the form of acceptance of part of the district's appeal of the state's suspension of over $100,000 in district funds. The State Board of Tax Appeals agreed to authorize the district to increase its operating expenses in the amount of $86,943, some 82 percent of the funds suspended.

Wednesday evening at the Colony City Council meeting, a unanimous decision was reached by the councilmen to go ahead with the hook-up to Rural Water District No. 5 in agreement with the standards set by the Iola City Commissioners in an emergency contract drawn up Tuesday.

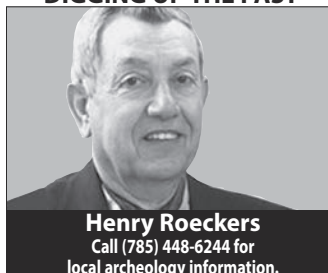

Large mill grinding stone discovered nearly 15 years ago

In recent days I have been asked, "Weren't you involved in finding the large mill grinding stone in Linn County?", "Whatever became of it?", "Where is it now?"

Here are my answers to those questions. Yes, I did help find and expose that very old mill stone almost 15 years ago (Oct. 20, 2002). As to where it is, I have not a clue. I do know that on the day it was discovered, there was talk about moving it up to higher ground, away from the stream nearby. Whether that ever actually happened or not, I have no idea.

Let me share a few pictures of this discovery.

Viking women finish 7th in League

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

EMPORIA – The Lady Central Heights Vikings finished 7th in league in large part to a disappointing second round defeat to Osage City who previously was winless in league play.

The Vikings squared off against West Franklin in the opening round and lost 41-24 – revenge for CHHS' 35-41 victory over WF just a week before.

The Vikings were flat offensively and West Franklin notched a comfortable 13-point lead at intermission. It wasn't until the fourth quarter that the Vikings showed much life in the game. The Lady Vikings nearly doubled the output of the first 3 quarters, but their 15 points in the period was just too little too late to pull off a comeback.

Jasmine Clancy led the way for the Vikings with 9 points, followed closely behind by Tess Cotter with 8.

In round two, the Vikings squared off against Osage City for the third time this season already. Osage City won the first game, which was not considered a league game, 26-32. Three days later the Vikings avenged the loss with a 38-37 win in Osage City.

The rubber match saw the Vikings get off to another sluggish start trailing 32-9 at intermission. CHHS would try to rally but entered the fourth quarter still trailing by 20. They were able to get the deficit under double digits, losing 51-42.

Shelbi Hettinger and Abby Brown both notched 11 points in the loss. Hettinger was a perfect 6-6 from the line for the evening.

The two losses dropped the Vikings into the 7th place game against Lyndon, where they put together their best first half of the tournament on the way to a 41-34 closeout win.

The Vikings outscored Lyndon each of the first three quarters to take a solid 28-19 win heading into the fourth period.

Hettinger led the way with 14 points and Olivia Stockard tacked on 11.

Undefeated and fourth ranked Council Grove won the league title with an impressive 48-31 win over Chase County.

Bulldogs finish 1-2 at Baldwin

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

BALDWIN – The AC boys salvaged a 7th place finish with a win over Bishop Ward in the final game of the Baldwin Invitational Tournament.

In the opening round game last Tuesday, Augusta and the AC boys battled with Augusta coming out on top 64-46.

After trailing just 14-12 after the first, the wheels fell off in the second quarter for the Bulldogs as they were outscored 20-4 during the period for a 34-16 halftime score.

Augusta continued their dominance coming out of intermission, winning the third period easily to push the advantage to 51-26 on their way to the win.

Leading scorers for Anderson County was Trevor Johnston and Denver Welsh who each scored 12.

After falling behind early in the followup game with Baldwin, Anderson County fought back to take a 23-21 lead at intermission.

A sluggish third quarter proved too much to overcome for Anderson County. Baldwin scored 21 points in the period to take a 43-36 heading to his fourth quarter.

Anderson County would try to battle back but their efforts would fall short. Baldwin hung on for a hard fought 62-58 victory.

Johnston again led the way on the offensive end with 15 points. Kass Allnutt chipped in 12 points of his own.

On Saturday, Anderson County finally was able to pick up a much needed victory by coming from behind late to down Bishop Ward 50-47.

AC started off well leading 12-8 after the first quarter and held that 4 point lead at half-time before being dominated 18-10 in the third quarter to make the deficit 42-38 heading into the final period.

The Bulldogs rallied for 12 points in the final quarter while limiting Bishop Ward to just 5 points to pull out the victory.

Again it was Johnston who led the way offensively with 25 points on the evening.

AC's first opponent, Augusta, ended up going the distance and winning the championship 62-56 over Bonner Springs.

Vikings winless in League tourney

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

EMPORIA – The Central Heights Viking boys' inaugural Flint Hills basketball tournament last week ended in disappointing fashion with 3 lopsided defeats.

The Vikings entered the tournament seeded 8th and opened the tournament last Tuesday against top seeded Council Grove (6-0). Council Grove dominated the first quarter, cruising out to a commanding 33-5 advantage after the first 8 minutes of play. Council Grove eased up on the throttle in the second to score just 6 points, making the halftime score 39-14. Following the break, Council Grove again controlled the pace with 19 points while only allowing the Vikings 2 points for the period on their way to an easy 66-24 victory.

Cameron Hampton scored 8 points in the opener to lead Central Heights.

hope following the first quarter as the Vikings trailed 14-8 heading into the second period. But the lead was stretched out to 15 at halftime, 29-14 before Lyndon put the game away with a huge third quarter, nearly doubling their first half production with a 28-6 advantage coming out of the locker room.

A trio of CHHS players, Ethan Shields, Caleb Meyer and Bryce Sommer, all tallied 5 points in the loss.

In the 7th place game on Saturday, the Vikings came up short after a promising start against West Franklin, 50-37.

The Vikings started much better leading 11-8 after the first quarter, but West Franklin battled back for a slim 22-21 lead at halftime.

As was the pattern throughout the tournament, the Vikings struggled in the third quarter being outscored 19-6. West Franklin would ride that momentum to the victory as the Vikings weren't able to muster a fourth quarter comeback.

Wyatt Thompson knocked down a pair of three-pointers on his way to 13 points to lead the Vikings.

Mission Valley erased a 10-point fourth quarter deficit as they rallied to knock off Council Grove in the Flint Hills Championship game, 48-47.

There will be no need for the sun or moon!

In Revelation 21 the Apostle John is caught up in the Spirit and is shown a vision of the New Jerusalem. He refers to it as the new heaven and the new earth. One of the characteristics of the new city is worthy of some thought. In Revelation 21:13, we read; "The city does not need the sun or the moon to shine on it for the glory of God gives it light, and the Lamb, (Jesus) is its lamp." In Genesis 1:16, concerning creation we are told, "God made two great lights - the greater light to govern the day and the lesser light to govern the night." Now the sun is 92.96 million miles from the earth yet we cannot look at it for any extended time without damaging our eyes. This should give us some appreciation of the power and transcendence of God. If we cannot look upon his creation how will we ever be able to look upon God the creator.

The sun is under God's control and the purpose of it is to regulate the days and the seasons. On at least two occasions God interrupted the sun's regular course for his purposes. The sun stood still for Joshua at Gibeon (Jos. 10:13), and it went backwards for Hezekiah when he prayed for an extension of his life. (Isa. 38:8) God also has the power to darken the sun. The prophet Joel predicted he would do that on the day of the Lord. (Joel 2:31) Three of the gospel writers, Mark, Matthew and Luke tell us that the sun grew dark at the crucifixion. At the end of the world God will extinguish the sun.

The sun rises and sets and we never give it a thought. Yet everyday it moves closer to being extinguished much like we do. In Matthew 17 we read of the transfiguration of Jesus. "There he was transfigured before them. His face shown like the sun and his clothes became as white as the light." (Mat. 17:2) Here we are shown a glimpse of the glory that Jesus left behind when he took on his human nature. God speaks in verse 5, "This is my Son, whom I love; with him I am well pleased. Listen to him!"

This is one of the few times God speaks in the New Testament. I ask the question earlier how will we ever look upon God? The Apostle Paul provides us some insight when he says; "Now we see but a poor reflection as in a mirror; then we shall see face to face. Now I know in part; then I shall know fully as I am fully known." (1st Cor. 13:12) If you listen to God you will see him on that great and glorious day if you don't listen you won't. Begin a relationship with Jesus Christ today.

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

LIBERAL, MO – The Crest Lancer boys salvaged a 7th place finish in tournament play losing their first two games before closing out with a victory over Golden City.

The Lancers drew a tough opening round match up against eventual champion Galena and fell in lopsided fashion 75-34 to the 10th ranked, undefeated 3A opponent.

The Galena offense was firing on all cylinders scoring 25 points in the first period and tacking on 32 more in the second, while limiting the Lancers to just two points, to open up a commanding 57-18 lead at half-time.

Hayden Hermreck led the Lancers with 11 points, but was just 3-15 from the field on the evening.

Galena shot a remarkable 72% (26-36) from inside the three-point line for the game. Their high-pressure defense also forced 29 turnovers by the Lancers, which led to many easy opportunities.

The following night, the Lancers were much more competitive in a 60-52 defeat to NE-Arma.

Crest trailed by 3 after the first period but went behind a strong second quarter they went into halftime with a 27-25 lead.

NE-Arma controlled the fourth quarter, outpacing the Lancers 17-11 to close out the win.

Hermreck again led the Lancers with 18 points and Nate Berry added 15 on the evening. Caleb Stephens had 9 points and pulled down 10 rebounds.

Turnovers were again the Achilles heel. The Lancers turned the ball over 26 more times, which makes it very difficult to win close games.

In the 7th place game Friday night, the Lancers faced Golden City from Missouri and came out victorious behind a strong fourth quarter, 58-55.

The game was back and fourth throughout and heading into the fourth, Golden City held a slim 48-46 lead.

Despite struggling with their free throws, just 1-11 for the game, the Lancers were able to hold on for the win by limiting Golden City to just 7 points in the final quarter.

For the third time in three games, Hermreck led the Lancers with 26 points.

In the Championship game, Galena beat St. Mary's-Colgan 57-50 Saturday night.

Lancers girls compete in Tony Dubray Classic

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

LIBERAL, MO – Despite losing two out of three games, head coach Elaine Tastove was still proud of the effort her Crest girls team showed in the Tony Dubray Classic over the weekend.

The opening game was against Lockwood on Tuesday, who cruised to a 60-26 victory.

Their intense pressure was just too much for the short handed Lancers, who were without their biggest inside presence and one of their leading scorers in senior Miranda Golden. Golden was out throughout the tournament due to surgery.

"I am proud of these girls," Tastove stated despite the loss. "Tonight's game was probably the most pressure we have encountered this season."

"Nothing was falling for us and they are a great team," Tastove said.

Callie McGhee was the Lancers leading scorer with 10 points.

The intense defensive pressure continued the following night in a 48-20 defeat to Galena. The Lancers were held scoreless in the first quarter and trailed 24-4 at intermission.

"We struggled offensively," Tastove stated. "They pressured us all four quarters and we just couldn't find our rhythm."

In the Lancers final game of the tournament on Friday, they finished 7th place with a 48-28 win over Golden City.

The Lancers stepped up their defensive effort limiting Golden City to just two points in the first quarter and just four in the third period.

Laurel Godderz led the Lancers in the final two games of the tournament with 10 points against Galena and then 18 more in the win over Golden City. Bowen also was in double figures with 13 points on the evening.

"The girls did great. They were aggressive with the ball and just really played well as a team," Tastove said.

The girls' tournament was won by Colgan with a 34-31 victory over Bronaugh.

Chapter Y of PEO club meets with 18 members

Chapter Y of PEO met on Monday, January 16, in the home of Bonnie Deiter. Eighteen members were present.

During the business meeting, new member, Elaine Dunbar, received her pin.

Following our business meeting, Chapter Y enjoyed a Social. Michelle Miller passed around a bowl of questions. Each member drew a question to answer. Some of the questions were personal like "Do you color your hair?" Others were about PEO like "What is a social event that we have not done?"

Each member brought a favorite mug and shared why it was special. We shared laughs and learned more about each other. The program committee, Michelle Miller, Pam Covault, Bonnie Deiter, and Ruth Lee Hastert served hot chocolate and hot tea for our mugs. There was a hot cocoa bar, a delicious chocolate dessert, and fruit also.

Cowboy Church

Those attending High Point Cowboy Church on Jan. 25, despite the continued threat of a winter ice storm, were greeted with a warm welcome and the word of God.

Following a time of praise led by Eldon Wright, Pastor Jon Petty spoke to the group about "God's heart for you", reading scripture from Ephesians 3:8-12. The people of "the church" are to demonstrate the love and power of God to others here on earth. The enemy will endeavor to keep us from our purpose through religion, distractions, lack of bible study, poor teaching and by trusting in our own experience over what the word of God says. Believe what John 14:12 says and be Jesus on earth.

UMC

No church service Jan. 25 due to ice.

UMW

United Methodist Women did not meet in January. Their challenge for the month is "Fill the Pantry". They also challenged the Community Church Missionary with "Soup Bowl for Super Bowl". The next meeting is scheduled for Feb. 2.

Crest Supt. Message

We are nearing the end of yet another calendar year. It is a great time to reflect on the past twelve months. In our school district we have had another class graduate, another group of freshmen start high school, and several new preschoolers start their education. Each group actually has ended one part of their lives and began another one. Last spring's seniors are starting their adult lives; some in school, some working, and some not sure what they are going to do with their future. Our freshmen are transitioning from middle school and realizing that high school comes with greater expectations and responsibilities. Then there are our little

Amateur radio club meets in Iola

The Iola Amateur Club held their regular meeting on January 12, at Iola City Hall. Present were 10 members and 2 guests.

Kim Romig reported the club received the bonus check from Best Choice labels.

Jared Sigler reported four Boy Scouts received their merit badges.

Upcoming ham activities

• Winter field days. Several have decided to participate in it. February 4 at LaCygne Community Building, 204 Commercial Street, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

There being no further business the meeting adjourned. A testing session was held. Jared Sigler passed the extra amateur exam. Congratulations Jared.

The next meeting will be February 9, 2017 and will be held at Iola City Hall at 7 p.m.

Kim Romig

first timers in preschool who have such a zest for life and being at school it is contagious. These little guys are starting a 13 year adventure that will hopefully be full of learning, new experiences, and most importantly an educational experience that will help each of them develop their path in life. After thinking about those three groups, I realize that each year is a transition for everyone. As we start 2017 I hope that we (Crest) continue to build on the great things we accomplished the last year and make 2017 the best year in memory. For me personally, I am going to try to do this through reflection and a plan to be the best person I can be day in day out. I believe if everyone does that, it's going to be a great year. Superintendent Chuck Mahon
