THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 3-7-2017 / Dane Hicks

Law enforcement officials work the scene of a semi-trailer wreck on U.S. 169 between Garnett and Greeley Wednesday morning, March 1. The semi blocked both lanes of traffic, causing officials to reroute vehicles most of the day until the roadway could be cleared. The driver did not appear to be injured and no other vehicles were involved. He was hauling heavy rolls of plastic sheeting.

City fires police chief

Few details offered
after chief's departure
Friday afternoon

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Police Chief Kevin Pekarek apparently was fired Friday, March 3.

Few details were available Monday, but Garnett City Manager Joyce Martin confirmed Pekarek's employment was terminated Friday afternoon. She said it was a personnel matter and she could not comment.

Martin expects to meet with police officers Friday, March 10, and likely will appoint an interim police chief. The senior officer at the department, Kurt King, currently is attending training and won't be available until then, Martin said.

Pekarek began working for the city as police chief in May of 2011.

Pekarek's departure leaves

the department with two vacancies. A patrol position has been vacant since around September 2016, and the city has been unable to attract qualified candidates. In the past, both Martin and Pekarek have bemoaned the difficulties of finding qualified candidates for local police vacancies.

Martin said she is not sure why the city has such trouble hiring police officers, but she believes the current national and political climate regarding law enforcement could be a contributing factor.

City manager interviews to begin

Top 5 candidates will have Skype interviews with commissioners

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - City commissioners are expected to interview city manager candidates this week.

Commissioners expect to conduct interviews Thursday, March 9, with their top five candidates using Skype, an online program that allows people to make voice and video calls via computer.

But first, commissioners will have a special meeting at 5 p.m.

Wednesday at City Hall to discuss interview questions. The public is welcome to attend, although the interviews will be closed at the commission's discretion, and the identities of the candidates kept secret.

They'll meet again at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, March 9, at the USD 365 Board of Education office because City Hall will be in use. The Thursday meeting will be conducted as a secret, executive session to discuss personnel. Commissioners will conduct the Skype interviews at that time.

Later, commissioners will narrow their choices to two or three candidates and will schedule final, formal interviews at a later date.

A total of 35 candidates applied for the city manager position, Commissioner Jody Cole said. Most have a bachelor's and a master's degree and experience in economic development, she said. They have between five to 20 years in management experience. Commissioners considered five applicants "highly qualified."

"Overall, I am very excited about the number of resumes we received and the applicants' qualifications," Cole said. "So far The League of Municipalities has been true to their word. They are great to work with and they are work-

Principal to retire

Kellstadt to retire
after 44 years in district effective end of year

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Longtime educator and high school principal Kenny Kellstadt has announced his retirement at the end of the school year.

Kellstadt has worked for the district for 44 years. He began conducting a work study program that helped students connect with local employers. Later, he taught social science classes. He continued teaching and advising the work study program until 1994, when he moved into administration. He served as assistant principal from 1994 until the spring of 2007, and also taught classes during that time. He became principal at Anderson County Junior/Senior High School in 2007.

Kellstadt said a variety of factors contributed to his decision to retire this year. The district is moving to a new accreditation program, and he thought it would be best if a

Banners removed after near-wreck

Busy intersection cluttered by signs, banners to promote variety of community events

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Signs and banners used to publicize community events may have nearly caused a wreck recently, city staff reported. Such banners were removed, and city officials are considering alternatives such as an electronic sign that can be used for events.

Officials with the Kansas Department of Transportation asked city staff for help removing banners and signs from an intersection at U.S. 59/Maple Street and K-31/Park Road. Civic organizations and other groups often displayed signs of various shapes and sizes on property near Country Mart and AuBurn Pharmacy to promote community events, such as dinners, barbecue contests and the annual Cornstock music concert.

At times, the area becomes cluttered with a variety of signs competing for space near the intersection.

Garnett City Manager Joyce Martin told commissioners during their regular meeting Tuesday, February 28, that someone reported a near-miss of a wreck because vision was obstructed by the signs. As a result, all banners have now been removed. Martin and commissioners discussed alternatives to notify passers-by of community events.

A suggestion was offered to allow banners along the median on Fourth Avenue between U.S. 59 and downtown Garnett. But commissioners and Martin said they were reluctant to clutter the median, which historically has been known as "The Great White Way" for its street lights and the stately old Victorian homes that line both sides of the street.

"I hate to see a dozen of those banners go up and down that median," Martin said.

Instead, city staff will research the possibility of adding an electronic billboard somewhere along the highway, possibly near Fourth Avenue. The billboard could be used by civic organizations to let people know about various events. Commissioner Greg Gwin suggested an electronic sign could be used as "community bulletin board."

Possible mumps case reported at school

Illness not confirmed but mumps cases were reported across state

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - USD 365 school officials last week warned parents of a possible mumps case at Anderson County Junior Senior High School.

The disease has not been confirmed. The individual who was suspected of possibly having mumps is an adult, not a student, according to a news release issued by the school district.

Mumps is a viral infection. Symptoms start with fever, headache, muscle aches, tiredness, and loss of appetite, followed by swollen salivary glands. It generally can be prevented with immunizations given between ages 12 months to 15 months, and again between ages 4 and 6.

The recent incident is the second recent report of a possible mumps case in Anderson County, but the first report was found to be negative, according to Samantha Mason, RN at the Southeast Kansas Multi-County Health Departments - Anderson County Office in Garnett. It generally takes about five days for the state to determine if the illness is actually mumps, she said. Typically, the state issues a notice if mumps is confirmed.

The state has confirmed at least 17 cases of mumps in Kansas as of Feb. 22. KDHE said at that time there were seven cases in Crawford County, four cases in Douglas County, three in Riley County and three in Thomas County.

Between January 1 to January 28, 2017, the Center for Disease Control (CDC) reported mumps infection in 27 states in 495 people across the U.S. From year to year, mumps cases can range from roughly a couple hundred to a couple thousand. For example in 2016, there were 5,311 cases reported to CDC, and in 2012, there were 229.

Before the U.S. mumps vaccination program started in 1967, about 186,000 cases were reported each year, but the actual number of cases was likely much higher due to underreporting, according to a report from the CDC. Since the pre-vaccine era, there has been a more than 99% decrease in mumps cases in the United States.

A report from KDHE shows that about 91 percent of Anderson County kindergartners were immunized for measles, mumps and rubella (MMR) on the first day of school for the 2014-2015 school year. That's higher than the state average of 88 percent. Immunization rates for other childhood diseases ranged between 88 percent to 96 percent in Anderson County, and between 82 percent to 97 percent statewide.

Mason encouraged anyone who was not vaccinated for mumps or other diseases to seek such vaccinations.

If you are showing symptoms of mumps or other illnesses, keep yourself isolated to avoid spreading the disease, Mason said.

ing hard to help us find a qualified and experienced city manager."

Commissioners said during a meeting last week they would not identify applicants without permission, in order to protect the privacy of the candidates.

There is no law in Kansas which requires those interviews to be secret, though government agencies often interpret the law to extend to interviewees under employee privacy provisions in the Kansas Open Meetings Act. The next city manager will succeed Joyce Martin, who is retiring after 50 years working for the City of Garnett. Most of her career was spent as city clerk, and she was hired as city manager in 2007.

Including Martin, just two people have led the city for the past 40 years or so. Rick Doran served as city manager from 1978 to 2007.

Cops block farmers' hemp bonanza

A curious spotlight is turning on the Kansas Peace Officers Association and the Kansas Sheriff's Association in their opposition to legalizing industrial hemp in Kansas.

What is being illuminated is an embarrassing question: Why is it cops in a couple dozen states and numerous other countries which have legalized hemp for agricultural use can tell it from its cousin marijuana, but apparently Kansas law officers can't?

That seems to be the big rub in Kansas law enforcement's opposition to House Bill 2182, which would legalize industrial hemp and allow it to be cropped by Kansas farmers during a time when farmers need all the help they can get due to low commodity prices. Police and sheriff's associations in Kansas seem resolute in their opposition: that they cannot tell spindly-looking hemp from stouter marijuana plants, and that they apparently cannot learn the difference.

Background: Industrial hemp is defined by having only 0.3 percent or less THC – the drug in pot that gets you stoned – compared to marijuana plants that contain concentrations of some 18%-30% of the drug. You could smoke a bale of industrial hemp and never want a single Dorito.

Identifying hemp doesn't seem so complicated to cops in non-Sunflower State jurisdictions. The National Conference on State Legislatures notes hemp is grown for its thinner, more fibrous stalk and its seeds. "The plant is cultivated to grow taller, denser and with a single stalk. Marijuana, grown for the budding flowers, tends to be grown shorter, bushier and well-spaced."

But state law offers are resolute. Kansas farmers remain locked out of a market other states are developing, aiming to feed an estimated $600 million to $2 billion annual U.S. market for hemp products – most of which is now being provided to the American market by Canadian growers and processors.

See, you can buy hemp-based snacks, clothes, hemp oil dietary goods, beauty products, paper, textiles and construction materials to your heart's content in Kansas or anywhere else in the country – and lots of people do – they're as legal as a Snickers bar and a 7Up. But until 2014 it was illegal to grow or process hemp in the U.S. For decades all those U.S. purchases funded growers overseas.

The 2014 Farm Bill legalized research and commercial use in states that approved it. So far, 16 states have approved commercial growing and 20 have approved pilot and research programs aimed at eventually giving their farmers the advantage of a new cash crop. Kansas could have harvested its first hemp crop ever this very year – except the same law officers' organizations last year shot down enabling legislation by spooking distracted legislators with the hemp-ID worry.

REVIEW COMMENTARY

Not only does growing the product hold promise of more revenues for Kansas farmers, but processing facilities that turn the plant stems into fiber and which extract oil from the seeds also offer economic benefit through jobs and local tax base development. They could be constructed and operated by local commercial developers or by farmers' cooperatives that would then direct those revenues back into their own communities via sales and dividends. Farmers' fields as well as processing facilities can be easily inspected by authorities and fees charged to license them.

And if farmers and local businesses benefit, so do cops. More jobs and legitimate money in a market typically means less street crime; a richer tax base means less resistance to funding public services like police and sheriff's offices. Kansas as a whole respect and honor the abilities and duties performed by their law enforcement – all you have to do is look at various support efforts and blue lights on people's porches in the state. No one wants to legalize hemp to give cops a harder time.

What this spotlight on the cops shows is that their opposition to hemp most likely isn't really based in some concern about identifying the plants. It's most likely based in group-think fostered by a professional culture that has been anti-marijuana since the 1930s. In cops' minds, hemp is pot, regardless of the science that proves otherwise.

That's unfortunate, because it places those we trust to protect and serve in the position of hurting Kansas farmers and thwarting jobs in the communities they call home.

Parents and visitors, beware of going to Crest School. The Crest school has a big lice problem. High school, middle school and elementary students have lice and even teachers are getting it. The school administrators are not doing what they need to do to take care of this lice problem. Parents, if you have students going to this school, you need to speak up. Need to spend more time fixing this health problem than on starting baseball/softball. The Crest superintendent and principal and the school board need to be held accountable for letting this lice problem get out of hand. The Crest School Board needs to get a backbone and get rid of this guy. A long time ago this superintendent would not have been here long.

I have a pet peeve. Did you ever drive into another town and see gravel driveways on the main drag emptying into the streets and leave chalk and dust all over the pavement? Not very often do you see that, and when you do see it it's always in less than desirable small towns. Unfortunately, our own nice little town of Garnett has the same thing out on the highway main street. It makes our town look junky and cheap. Let's put in new curb and gutters on the main drag and tell the businesses out there they have five years to pave their parking lots and driveways, and if they do it in the next two years the taxpayers will pay half, the next two years a quarter and so on. I'd gladly pay a little more in taxes a couple of years to clean this mess up and make it look like we care about it. Thank you.

This (deleted) store, it's a joke. Better do something before it goes out of business.

Glad the county commissioners finally took a stand and made tougher windmill laws. Hard to imagine some of our neighbors we've known all our lives would sell out us and our beautiful scenic county for the almighty buck.

To the Trump haters: As I recall your hero Hillary only got a couple hundred votes in Anderson County compared to several thousand for Trump. Do you feel lonely?

Wind farm fight isn't over

To the editor, I wanted to thank the Anderson County Commissioners and the members of the planning and zoning board for acting responsibly to protect landowners from the visual blight and property devaluation of the Calpine wind farm which has been under consideration in Anderson County this past year.

However, just because the new zoning laws will mean more restrictions on siting wind turbines and constructing them in Anderson County does not mean we are out of the woods.

Even as you read this, Calpine's people are sitting down with their county map and plotting out their strategy based on the new restrictions and figuring out who they have in their pocket and who they might still be able to sway into leasing to them, and who will not. Sadly as we have seen, most landowners have not bothered to actually read those leases they signed or to have their lawyer review it – they'll never know until it's too late just how bad a deal they signed if Calpine still gets this project up and running. Just ask those in Waverly who are now regretting what they allowed to happen.

I will say that I have been very disappointed to see some people who have lived in Anderson County all their lives, those who have grown up here and who should appreciate the natural beauty of our county more than anyone and want to protect and defend it, how quick they have been willing to throw it all away just for the sake of a little more money. And then there are the absentee landowners who never even see their land here and don't care one way or the other what happens to Anderson County. While I don't want to see years of grudges between neighbors and friends play out over this, I am proud to have counted myself among those on the other side.

It is up to each of us who have opposed this thing from the beginning and all the others who have come on board as we got more and more educated on the subject to stand firm and continue to oppose any wind farm anyplace in Anderson County. At the last meeting our voices were joined by others from the southern and southwestern reaches of our county who now fear they might be next in line to have their skylines destroyed and their property values decimated by wind farms. We have to continue to oppose these things wherever they are in Anderson County.

Stay organized, stay informed and stay vigilant.

Yes, deconstruct the Administrative State

Steve Bannon blew a dog whistle for constitutional conservatives when he spoke of "deconstructing the administrative state" at the Conservative Political Action Conference.

Although not everyone got the reference. Trump haters interpreted the line as an incendiary call to decimate the federal government, when "the administrative state" was a more specific reference to a federal bureaucracy that operates free of the normal checks of democratic accountability.

The administrative state has been called "the fourth branch" of government. It involves an alphabet soup of executive agencies that wield legislative, executive and judicial powers and thus run outside of and counter to our constitutional system. The agencies write "rules" that are laws in all but name, then enforce them and adjudicate violations.

Boston University law professor Gary Lawson describes how this works in the case of, for instance, the Federal Trade Commission:

"The Commission promulgates substantive rules of conduct. The Commission then considers whether to authorize investigations into whether the Commission's rules have been violated. If the Commission authorizes an investigation, the investigation is conducted by the Commission, which reports its findings to the Commission. If the Commission thinks that the Commission's findings warrant an enforcement action, the Commission issues a complaint. The Commission's complaint that a Commission rule has been violated is then prosecuted by the Commission and adjudicated by the Commission."

Welcome to government by commission. James Madison called such an undifferentiated accumulation of powers, which the Constitution is meant to avoid, "the very definition of tyranny."

The administrative state is the friend of anyone hoping to aggrandize government. President Barack Obama would have been hobbled without it. He used the Environmental Protection Agency and the Federal Communications Commission to institute sweeping new regulatory regimes on carbon emissions and the internet. He imposed his preferred social policies on schools and universities through "dear colleague" letters issued by middling bureaucrats. The administrative state was exactly what he needed -- a way to govern without Congress.

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

A hostility to the administrative state isn't necessarily a natural for Trump, who isn't a limited-government conservative or a constitutional purist. Yet he campaigned against regulation, he scorns the elite, and federal bureaucrats have already made clear their desire to frustrate his plans. Dethroning the administrative state fits into a populist program to restore power to the people through their elected representatives.

It is chiefly Congress that needs to reassert itself. It has delegated its legislative powers over the decades, and needs to pull them back. As Adam White writes in an essay for City Journal, it should pass the REINS Act to require congressional approval for major new regulations. It should revisit laws like the Clean Air Act and the Communications Act of 1934 that give regulators too much leeway. It should limit the deference that courts give to administrative agencies.

None of this is the stuff of fire and brimstone, rather the mundane work of slowly lurching the wheels of the federal government back onto a constitutional track. Something as entrenched as the administrative state won't be "deconstructed" in one presidential term, or two. If it can be dialed back, though, it will be a significant victory for old-fashioned representative government.

Keep your eye on school funding mill levy

The Kansas Supreme Court has finally issued its opinion on adequacy of financing public schools, and while the justices didn't put a pricetag on what it will cost, already the low-ball estimates are about $535 million and the big estimates are in the $700 million-and-up range.

Now, that's got nothing to do with the state budget deficit of about $270 million to finish out this fiscal year on June 30 with at least a couple bucks in the bank, which hasn't been dealt with yet. Starting July 1, the state is going to need another $500 million or so for the Fiscal Year 2018 budget just to keep its doors open.

It also has little to do with tax plans—mostly income tax rate increases, or reimposing taxes on non-wage income of LLCs and the like just to keep government in business for the next couple years.

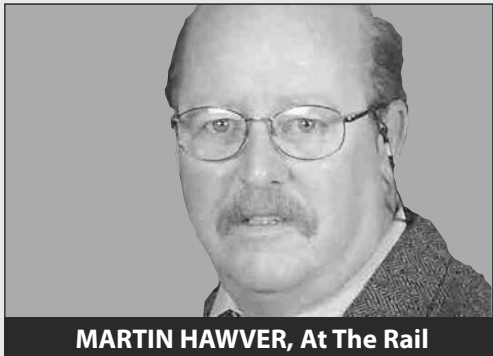

Now, it's a whole different deal. That's where the decision—framed in terms of adequate spending on K-12 public schools to enable all Kansas students to grow up with good skills that will make them ready for further study or job training and eventually to living somewhere beside their parents' basements—demands more spending of money we don't have yet.

That's where the remainder of this session might get interesting, and we're going to see how well lawmakers frame their decisions.

Hmmm... There are two parts of this job handed to the Legislature.

One job is to come up with a new school finance formula to do what the Supreme Court wants done and then to have someone figure out what it would cost. Lots of room for guessing there, and while legislators can write a plan, somehow the court is going to have to figure out whether that plan will actually improve the outcome of schools in the state.

STATE COMMENTARY

Not sure how the court determines that the plan is what it wants but the justices will figure it out somehow. The next job for lawmakers is to pay for that plan while struggling to finance the rest of state government.

The court decision apparently opens the door to property taxes which generally are used for local government and school funding—not general state government expenditures.

The current statewide mill levy for K-12 education is 20 mills. That's $20 per $1,000 of valuation of property. And, that 20-mill levy to the state for use for K-12 education started back in 1998, so most folks are familiar with it.

Now, that's just the K-12 levy for the state which is returned to school districts. Local school boards levy their own property taxes within the districts, and those vary widely depending on the valuation of property, of local option budgets, bonds for new schools and probably some other stuff.

But, that 20-mill levy...we've nearly forgotten about it because it comes on the same bill from the county with whatever taxes every other local unit of government has authority to levy. That 20-mill levy is usually a small fraction of your total tax bill.

Well, nothing is certain yet, but you might keep an eye on that little 20-mill levy because it's a relatively easy way to raise money for schools and it just goes on that property tax bill. We're relatively certain that lawmakers can pass a law to make sure that any increase in that tax isn't printed in red, or maybe larger type, or with arrows pointing to it.

Oh, and back when the 20-mill levy was authorized in 1998? It was a tax cut, from 27 mills the year before, and a couple years of 35 mills. Anyone remember those property tax cuts on behalf of public education?

So...while legislators try to fix the current budget shortfall for this fiscal year and pile on taxes to balance the budget for the next couple years, let's remember that property taxes are likely to be part of the mix for meeting increased spending to support public schools.

We'll see how that goes...

It was all Waverly in the second half.

They outscored Crest 42-18 to end the Lancer season.

The only Crest player in double figures was Hayden

Crest's Callie McGhee slips a Hartford defender on a drive to the basket in Thursday's 1A substate tournament opener. Crest fell to Hartford in the opener 18-35.

Hartford frustrates Lady Lancers' offense

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

WAVERLY – After a promising first quarter for the Crest Lady Lancers (5-15), Hartford seized control and pulled out an impressive 35-18 win in 1A DII substate opener. Hosts Waverly later mugged Hartford in the championship 61-30 to earn their spot at this weekend's state tournament in Dodge City.

The Lancers and Hartford played tight early on as Crest held a slight 6-5 lead after the first quarter. Hartford scored 17 points in the second to open up a 10-point lead at halftime. It was the Hartford defense that was just too much for Crest to make a second half run, limiting the Lancers to just 6 points in the entire second half.

Amanda Golden led the way with 9 points on the night for Crest.

It was a week about flips, switches

The happenings of this week are a good picture of why the title of my newsletter is The Playground. We have seen procedural flips, switches, pulls, and faints. Conservatives in the minority, liberals in the majority; there is no way to identify either except with voting history. Representatives are being overloaded and twisted up on spur-of-the-moment questions of rules, Medicaid expansion, expost facto tax increases, teacher tenure, and just who is in charge at the Statehouse? At the moment of this writing, we are in our seats on "final action" to override the Governor's veto of the retroactive tax plan. It just passed 85-40. I voted "no." It is strange how our legislature will allow itself to be manipulated by our Judicial branch's opinion, yet will so easily vote against the opinion of our Executive branch. Later the Kansas Senate upheld the Governor's veto by just 3 votes 24-16, after which one representative joked, "We're gonna be here until July."

This week is "Turnaround" so we have been on the floor this whole week. All committee action ceases at the end of Thursday, and the bills passed out of committees are either ready for floor debate or destined to be overlooked below the line. The bills that receive a majority vote will be passed over to the Senate and they will do the same to the House. The legislature breaks until March 6th at that point, and the only bills that have any possibility to move forward are those remaining in "blessed committees." This gives the Revisors and Research time to prepare the bills that will be transferred from one chamber to the other. Then the process begins anew. House committees will be assigned Senate bills for hearings.

Through a manipulation of the rules, the Medicaid expansion discussion was forced up as an amendment to HB2044. It is still extraordinarily expensive to the state and unsustainable even with huge tax increases, yet it could possibly provide a good number of jobs for the Kansas economy. Hospitals closing will still happen either way, and timing is an issue given that we have no idea what is going to happen at the Federal level. One representative asked the rhetorical question, "If you gave me $1, and I gave you $9 in return wouldn't you take that deal?" The question she should have been asking is, "If we promise 170,000 Kansans free healthcare and then lose the funds to support it, who's on the hook for that promise?" The House overwhelmingly voted to pass with a vote of 81-44. I voted

"no." This is a poor excuse for a stimulus and timing is very bad. There is still no such thing as free federal funds.

The statewide efficiency conducted by Alvarez and Marsal recommended the State of Kansas revise its budget process to include performance based budgeting (PBB). The budget committees have worked hard to reduce spending and PBB has the potential to aid those budget committees in further reducing unnecessary spending.

Under PBB performance differs by focusing on results rather than money spent. The basic principle of PBB is accountability, not merely on compliance with law and previous funding decisions. Performance based budgeting encourages lawmakers to reconsider priorities and grants agencies the flexibility to make decisions that are not easily permissible under traditional budgeting systems. In 2016 the Kansas Legislature passed HB 2739 which directs the Secretary of Administration, in consultation with the Division of the Budget, the Office of Revisor of Statutes, and the Kansas Legislative Research Department, to develop a revised budget process and timeline. Our budget committees will be reporting on agency updates on implementation of the A&M study after the turnaround break.

Tyson responds to tax bill vote

The message some are sending out is "we want a massive tax increase now!" when they demanded support of Substitute for House Bill (Sub HB) 2178. The bill would have been the largest tax increase ever, even more than the sales tax increase in 2015 (which I did not support). This huge half-billion per year tax increase would have been retroactive, starting 1/1/2017. You might not think that is a big deal as we are only in the second month of the year; however, it could take two to four months to implement. You would have to decide whether to increase your withholding to handle the increase for the entire year, or owe a lump sum at the end of the year. This tax increase passed both chambers but was vetoed by the governor. His veto was upheld in the Senate.

Sub HB 2178 was bad policy. I voted against this massive tax increase and to sustain the veto. Some legislators didn't know the amount of tax increase or that the bill was retroactive; they just knew that it was a tax increase and it would "stop Brownback's 2012 tax policy". As legislators, our job is to govern. Understanding the policy that we are voting on is critical. It appears that too many people are putting political soundbites before sound policy.

The last week before the halfway point of session, both chambers raced to pass legislation to the other chamber. This is not a good way to conduct business. To make it worse, Tuesday the Majority Leader told senators they would have six more bills to debate on a day they had already been working 17 bills. This would give us less than two hours to prepare for debate and request any amendments. I strongly requested that leadership reconsider this reckless schedule so that we could be more diligent in working the bills. The expedited process is not a good way to conduct the State's business.

One such example is Senate Bill (SB) 154. The bill seemed fine but after reading it, I found that the only way to file a complaint with the Kansas Department of Aging and Disability (KDADS) would be via KDADS 'hotline'. You could not write a letter, email, or submit a complaint in any other manner. Why should there be a law requiring you complain via a phone call to a hotline? There were 38 Yes votes and 2 No votes. I voted No.

Another bill that needed work but also passed the chamber is SB 144. It would prohibit the use of hand-held wireless devices in construction and school zones. Distracted driving is already against the law. If we try to list every type of distraction, we are bound to miss something. I voted No. The bill passed the Senate on a vote of 21 Yes and 17 No.

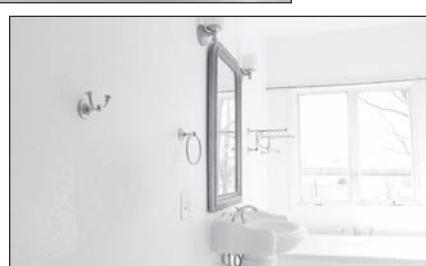

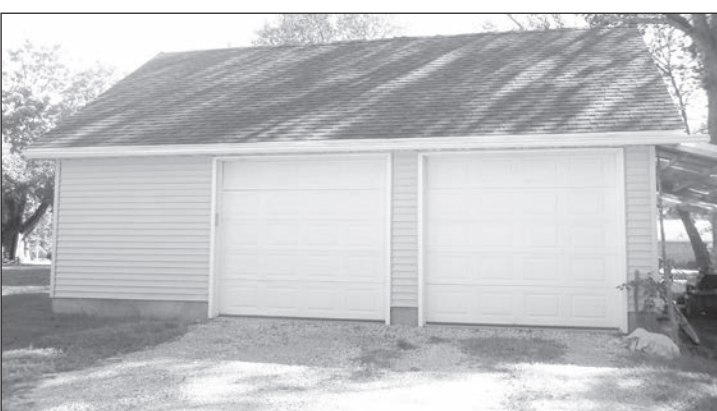

It is an honor and a privilege to serve as your 12th District State Senator. To contact me, call my office at (785) 296-6838; telephone: (913) 898-2366, or email: Caryn.Tyson@senate.ks.gov

Lancer girls can't keep pace in loss

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

COLONY – The Crest girls got off to a fast start but just couldn't keep up with the quicker Madison team as they fell 56-42 last Tuesday.

The Lancers jumped out to a 13-11 lead following the first 8 minutes, but Madison turned up the defensive pressure in the second and controlled the period to go up 22-17 at halftime.

"We came out fired up and running great," head coach Elaine Tastove stated.

The all or nothing press of Madison was tough to penetrate, but did lead to many fast break opportunities for the Lancers as well.

"Their press got to us," Tastove added. "We struggled to get the ball across but every time we did we had a wide open layup."

Following intermission, the Lancers just didn't solve the Madison press consistently enough. Madison continued to add to their lead gradually throughout the final two quarters to finish out the victory.

Tastove was proud of the aggressiveness on the boards and feels despite the loss her girls showed lots of great moments.

"I just felt we made mistakes at key moments and it all happened in the back court," Tastove said as the Lancers gave up too many easy baskets.

Miranda Golden led the way with 19 points and Laurel Godderz was also in double figures with 11 on the night.

Other players scoring were Callie McGhee with 6 points, Jewel Armstrong and Cassie Bowen each had 2 points and Regan Godderz and Makayla Jones each chipped in with one point on the night.

Lyndon downs Viking girls

LYNDON – Lyndon (6-14) really picked up the defensive intensity after falling behind early en route to an easy 35-25 win over the Central Heights Viking girls (7-13) last Tuesday.

Things were looking good early on for Central Heights. They dominated on the defensive end taking advantage of a struggling Lyndon offense, limiting them to just 2 points in the first quarter, while tacking on 9 themselves. Lyndon turned things around in the second period erasing their early deficit to take a 13-10 lead at the break. Both teams more than doubled their first half output in the third quarter. Lyndon continued to pile it on with a 17-11 advantage for the period to head into the final quarter up 30-21.

Shelbi Hettinger was the only Viking in double figures with 11 points, including 6-8 from the free throw line on the night.

Box Score
 Central Heights 9 1 11 4 - 25
 Lyndon 2 11 17 5 - 35
 Central Heights – Hettinger 11, Brown 5, Burson 3, Cotter 2, Davis 2, Clancy 2

ACHS Senior Night ends on sour note

GARNETT – It wasn't the Senior Night the Anderson County Bulldog seniors were hoping for as the struggles offensively were too much to overcome in a 39-21 defeat to Burlington last Thursday night.

The Bulldogs mustered 6 points in the first half after just two in the opening period.

Despite the struggles, Anderson County was still within striking distance entering the fourth quarter trailing 24-17.

It was all Burlington, though, in the final period. The Bulldogs managed just 4 points as Burlington pulled away for the victory.

Alexis Feuerborn scored 7 points to lead Anderson County.

Bulldogs no match for Burlington

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

PARSONS - The top-seeded Burlington Wildcats (16-5) erased any hope for the Anderson County Bulldogs (6-15) early on, cruising to a 73-41 victory in the opening round of the 4A DII substate tournament at Parsons Thursday.

Burlington topped Parsons 71-66 on Saturday to represent 4A DII at the state tournament in Emporia this weekend.

Anderson County dug themselves into an early 23-4 deficit following the first quarter and weren't ever able to recover.

Burlington added to their lead the first three quarters giving them a commanding 64-31 lead heading into the fourth.

Trevor Johnston led Anderson County with 19 points and Justin Rockers added 12 points.

A trio of players hit double figures for the Burlington Wildcats. Brogan Nordstedt led all scorers with 20 and Togan (sp?) Hess and Garrison Fielder both scored 17 on the night.

Burlington knocked off Parsons High School 70-66 in the ensuing round to be crowned Sub-State Champions and stamp their ticket to the state tournament next week.

Lady Bulldogs lose substate opener

BY KEVIN GAINES

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

PARSONS - The Anderson County Lady Bulldogs (7-14) season came to an end at the hands of the Iola Fillies (13-8) last Friday 40-29 in the 4A DII Sub-State tournament.

The Burlington Wildcats would eventually topple the local competitors to emerge as substate champions 44-39 over Iola, and head to the state tournament in Emporia this weekend.

It was a virtual replay of the Garnett/Iola matcup a few weeks ago. The teams battled back and forth throughout the first half and went into intermission tied at 15 apiece. But the second half saw the second-seeded Fillies impose their will on both ends as they outscored Anderson County 14-3 during the pivotal eight minutes third period. The Lady Bulldogs just didn't have the firepower in the fourth to mount a serious comeback. Both teams netted 11 points in the period to close out the contest.

Box Score
Anderson County 8 7 3 11 - 29
Iola - 9 6 14 11 - 40
Anderson County - Lickteig 11, Feuerborn 7, Lybarger 4, Ratliff 3, Schmit 2, Fritz 2

"I also started thinking maybe it's time to do something different," he said. "I'll probably still be involved with the school off and on."

He has been fortunate to work with "a lot of good people, good boards and good superintendents" through the years, he said.

"It's been a great experience," Kellstadt said. "I still say we have some of the best kids in the world."

The USD 365 Board of Education accepted Kellstadt's retirement notice during their regular meeting Thursday, March 2.

ACHS to present 'Mutually Assured Destruction' play

Anderson County High School Drama Department presents their spring play, Mutually Assured Destruction, by Don Zolidis, on Friday and Saturday, March 10 & 11.

A century's worth of sibling squabbles is boiled down into ten vignettes in this era-hopping tribute to family. Each short play explores a distinct facet of brother and sisterhood, from fights over who caused mom and dad to split (1985 - I'm Pretty Sure This Is Your Fault) to daring escape plots that only two sisters could pull off (1922 - Very Very Cold Feet). No matter the decade, the audience is guaranteed to see themselves in these ten distinct shorts about the undeniable bond between siblings through the ages.

"I had every intention of casting this play with six people and doubling or tripling their parts. However, when auditions were over, I was overwhelmed with the talent that I saw. In the end, twenty five students received parts," says Vicki Markham, ACHS drama instructor. "A few of the plays have been double cast, so Friday night's performance will be cast differently than Saturday's."

Students involved include Eddie Gruver, Jasmine White, Owen Lutz, Hayden Hermann, Grace Urquhart, Katelyn Phelps, Adam Kropf, Becky Kropf, Matt Dieker, Kate Dieker, Jenna Schmit, Shylie Scheckel, Lilee Feuerborn, Miranda Akes, Samantha Nickell, Nate Gainer, Cameron Betts, Austin Wickwire, Virgil Wight, Nick

Lybarger, Lilly Spring, Lizzy Comfort, Adrianna Pedrow, Averi Wilson and Sammy Jo Walter. The play is directed by Vicki Markham and Waltham Farren.

Mutually Assured Destruction will run Friday, March 10, and Saturday, March 11, 7:00 pm at the AHS auditorium. The cost is $4 adults and $3 students. This is a guaranteed night of laughs and some tender moments. Come out for a night of family fun!

Penni Hansen of Topeka plays Rose Steiner and Gary Stapp of Garnett plays Walsh McLaren during a Sunday matinee performance of Neil Simon's "Rose and Walsh" by the Chamber Players March 5 at Garnett's Thelma Moore Community Playhouse. The play is directed by Tom Emerson Jr., who also is part of the cast along with Karen Katzer. Additional performances are scheduled March 9-12.

Brownrigg, other young stockmen meet in Topeka

(TOPEKA) - Colby Brownrigg of Welda was among a group of 20 young ranchers from across the state who met in Topeka February 13-14 for the first installment of the 2017 Kansas Livestock Association Young Stockmen's Academy (YSA).

Merck Animal Health is again partnering with the association to host these members for an in-depth look into KLA and the beef industry. A series of four seminars will be held throughout the year in various locations in Kansas.

During this session, attendees learned about the array of member services provided by KLA, heard about the importance of being an advocate for the livestock industry, saw KLA lobbyists in action at the state Capitol and took part in the KLA Legislative Meeting. As part of an interactive training session led by KLA staff, White City rancher and beef advocate Debbie Lyons-Blythe and WIBW-Topeka farm broadcasters Kelly Lenz and Greg Akagi, the group was given an overview of various media outlets available to help tell the beef production story. Lyons-Blythe shared how she has implemented advocacy into her daily routine through the use of her blog, "Kids, Cows and Grass". For hands-on training, they participated in a social media activity and mock radio talk show. In addition, YSA members attended a Senate Agriculture and Natural Resources Committee meeting at the Capitol and participated in a financial planning seminar conducted by K-Coe Isom.

Members of the 2017 YSA class are Kaid Baumann, Kensington; Heath Bergkamp, Arlington; Colby Brownrigg, Welda; Joseph Hubbard, Houston Lake, MO; Blake Jones, Waverly; Kayla Josefiak, Burdett; Cassie Kniebel, White City; Luke Knight, Lyons; Katelyn Meiwes, Moran; Dustin Nattier, Newton; Klay O'Brien, Hepler; Garrett Ochs, Jetmore; Derek Puthoff, Kinsley; Jake Renner, Kingman; Russell Rezac, Emmett; Kayla Sandoval, Ashland; Kashly Schweer, Ellsworth; Sarah Struthers, Milton; Tony Winkler, Ulysses; and Dustin Wootten, Oskaloosa.

The second session for the YSA class will be held in May. Members will have the opportunity to learn more about the agribusiness and retail beef industries. More information about YSA can be found at www.kla.org.

KLA is a trade organization representing the business interests of members at both the state and federal levels. Voluntary dues dollars paid by producers are used for programs that benefit KLA members in the areas of legislative representation, regulatory assistance, legal troubleshooting, communications and the advancement of youth.

Walk Kansas program runs March 19-May 13

For many in Kansas, participating in Walk Kansas - a K-State Research and Extension health challenge - signals spring. This year the Walk Kansas program will run from March 19th through May 13th.

During the eight-week program, teams of four to six people, one serving as the captain, work toward a common goal - typically to walk at least 150 minutes per person per week, which collectively is enough to walk 423 miles. Though the team does not actually walk across Kansas, 423 miles is the equivalent of the distance across the state.

The program is geared toward addressing crucial issues in our state. Less than half of Kansas adults meet the minimum recommendations for physical activity (150 minutes a week of moderate exercise) and only 19 percent eat enough fruits and vegetables. According to the Partnership to Fight Chronic Disease, if Americans were to stop smoking, exercise regularly and eat well, they could prevent up to 80 percent of heart disease and stroke, 80 percent of type 2 diabetes, and 40 percent of cancers.

Even though individuals report their weekly activity as part of a team, it doesn't mean they must walk together as a team, although some teams do. Teammates, however, are encouraged to connect and support each other. Individuals report their activity online or to their team captain each week. It is common for a family, a group of friends, or co-workers to register as a team. Additionally, with the help of technology, some teams are made up of people in different communities or from different parts of the country.

The cost to participate is $8.00 per person, which helps to cover program materials, including a weekly newsletter with nutrition and health tips and recipes. Walk Kansas t-shirts can also be purchased for an additional cost.

Information about the program and how to register a team online is available on the Walk Kansas website at www.walkkansas.org. Teams can also sign up for the program by contacting the Frontier Extension District office in Garnett (785.448.6826), Ottawa (785.229.3520), or Lyndon (785.828.4438) to complete a paper registration packet.

Where does your allegiance lie?

There are two statements in the Bible, one made by Satan and the other one by God that are in direct conflict. In Genesis 3:1, Satan enters into a conversation with Eve and questions the command God had given to Adam in the Garden of Eden. The command to Adam was as follows: "You are free to eat from any tree in the garden; but you must not eat from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, for when you eat of it you will surely die." (Genesis 2:16-17) Satan then takes the command and twists it just enough to cause Eve to begin her own interpretation. He (Satan) effectively changes the command when he asks Eve, "Did God really say, You must not eat from any tree in the garden?" Satan changes the focus from one tree in the garden to all the trees. He loves to make the situation more difficult than it really is. Satan then gives Eve his own interpretation of why God made this command. "For God knows that when you eat of it your eyes will be opened, and you will be like God, knowing good and evil."

God as the creator put one tree off limits to man yet he did not limit the free will of man to eat of this tree if he was prepared to suffer the consequences. Adam and Eve bought into Satan's lie. They exercised a free will that was driven by Satan and he drove them off the road into a fatal accident.

I said there were two statements in the opening sentence that were in conflict. The first was a lie by Satan. The second is a promise from God. In Hebrews 13:5b; God says, "Never will I leave you, never will I forsake you." God's promises are not for private application. Whatever he has said to one saint he has said to all. All may come and drink at God's well, all may come and eat at his table. The light of God is more than enough to drive away the darkness of yesterday and the gloom of tomorrow if we rush to his light instead of seeking darkness and the lies of Satan. Only God can make promises, his promises are free for the taking.

There is a clear path to God. In John 14:6, Jesus points the way when he says; "I am the way and the truth and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me." You and I can have a personal relationship with Jesus or with Satan, our allegiance will be with one or the other. If we choose Jesus God will "never leave us or forsake us." If we choose Satan God will have no choice but to forsake us and we will suffer eternal consequences.

Surprise them: Be a disruptive influence

Occasionally you should do something in your business to make people say, "hey, did you see..."

This is one of the prime precepts of Guerilla Marketing – the idea of doing effective, attention-getting advertising without paying much or anything for it. And the mindset you develop by doing it is the prime driver of how to sell stuff.

Three simple, cheap ideas that I stole from creativeguerillamarketing.com:

Have a fake protest: People become alerted and respond to things that are out of the ordinary. If you saw a bunch of people marching, chanting and carrying placards outside a local business – it would get your attention, right? Get some of your employees (or family members if you're a mom & pop operation) to stage a protest outside your office for an hour or so some morning – just make sure it stretches over the lunch hour when there's generally a little more traffic. What do you protest? Let's say you own a flower shop – your protest might be against bad lilies. You can show anybody that stops by what good lilies are and what they smell like. Protest the problems that your business solves!

2) String coupons on your trees or frontage: Again going for the visual disruption caused by the out-of-the ordinary – you can use the tree branches or tie a piece of fishing line between the nearest utility pole and your business and string coupons on it (just make sure it's above head-high, so you don't clothesline anyone). They'll flutter in the breeze and create an attention getter, and people can tear one off and keep it to use. You'll make the sale prompted by the coupon, and you'll stick out in your customers' minds.

HOW TO SELL STUFF

Dane Hicks
Review Publisher

3) Posterize the place: With today's desktop publishing software on just about everybody's computer, you can create cool posters (or better yet, find an art student at your local high school, university or community college) in 11x17 size. Just take the PDF file of the art to a local print shop that has a color copier, and they'll print them usually for $1 or less- you'll probably need no more than 20. Stick them en masse to your building, your neighbors building (with permission) or vacant structures. Don't leave them up more than a week, however, because they lose their visual spice after people are exposed to them a few times.

The net of it is: Think visual disruption, and you'll get attention.

Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Fund found that 64 officers were killed in fire-arms-related incidents in 2016 compared to 41 in 2015 - a 56 percent increase. Of the 64 fire-arm-related deaths last year, 21 were ambush-style attacks. Firearm-related officer deaths last year were the highest recorded since 2011, when the number was 73.

"I think everybody can agree it's a pretty scary situation right now," Martin said.

2007: Skaters raise money for new park

February 27, 2007

Once scoffed at by some members of the community as a rag-tag bunch of kids lurking city streets and sidewalks on their skateboards, the Garnett Skate Park Committee has surprised city commissioners by raising some $1,100 toward their total goal of $5,000 to develop a local skateboard facility.

March 3, 1997

Both supporters and opponents of the Prairie Spirit Trail came away from Kansas Senate committee meetings last week with a little bit of what they wanted, after a compromise was reached regarding recent rail legislation. The bills passed the Senate. Amended legislation makes portion of the Prairie Spirit a state park and sets up a watchdog task force to help ensure the rights of adjacent property owners.

weeks. The two sides agreed to provisions which would lower the annual ambulance service fee to $108,000 and place the responsibility of purchase of ambulance vehicles on the shoulders of the county.

February 26, 1987

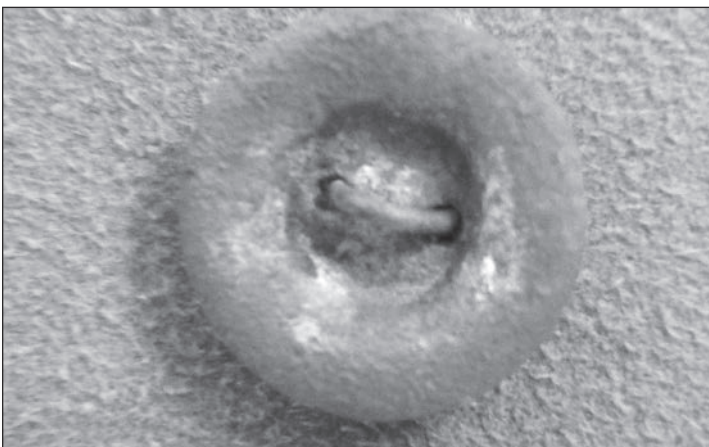

Approximately 25 to 30 concerned citizens armed with petition signatures and questions met with the Anderson County Commissioners on Monday to discuss the rumored sale of the Anderson County Ambulance Service to a Linn Count-based private firm. The commissioners told residents that the selling of the ambulance service had been discussed, but there had been no negotiations with the Linn County service.

City officials discussed Tuesday night the upcoming expiration of the city's natural gas contract with Williams Natural Gas Company, and the possible options available concerning city gas service.

February 28, 1977

A bill sponsored by Rep. James Cubit, R-Garnett, that would allow municipalities, counties, rural water district and other units to form joint entities for the purpose of regulating water projects resoundingly passed its first test Friday in the Kansas House. The bill is of vital interest to Garnett and Anderson County as it would allow the bodies involved in the construction of a new reservoir to be built near Garnett to form management body that would free any one group of liability in the project.

This metallic 'Wire Tower' button is unique. Little is known about the button, which was manufactured in Boston between the 1880s and 1920s.

Check out this 'Wire Tower' button

By now most of you readers of my columns, know my love of finding "Old Buttons." Just recently I dug yet another rather unique one. It is a metallic "Wire Tower" button.

I researched this button for several hours, and I was only able to discover a very small amount of historical information about it. I did find out it was manufactured by the A.J. Tower Company of Boston, Massachusetts in the 1880's through the 1920's. It was made for and primarily used on early "Rain Slickers."

In 1895 buckles for Artic overshoes, heavy grade shoes, belt fasteners for lacing belts onto pulleys were manufactured by A.J. Tower Boston Rubber Shoe Company.

In 1915 A.J. Tower Company manufactured "Rain Slickers" themselves at the United Shirt

Colony
How Colony Came To Be: An eminence known as High Divide, dividing the waters of the Arkansas and Missouri rivers, stood a rail station on the highest point in elevation on the railroad between Kansas City and the Gulf of Mexico. It was named Divide and a town was platted with the probate judge of Anderson County on August 2, 1870. Owing to the difficulty in securing water, few improvements were made at this town site for nearly two years. A store was built in 1871, a corner building on the south of Broad Street, but was of short duration as little was heard of it the next year when the colony arrived.

It was back in Ohio and Indiana four men were making plans to organize a colony to bring to the Kansas territory where they expected to found a town. In March 1872 the new settlers began to arrive and by the middle of May about one hundred people had come to the vicinity of Divide. After the arrival of the colonists a town company was formed and an election held. The name of the station and site was changed to Colony after this settlement of colonists.

Colony in 2000 and 2010
Colony is a city in Anderson County, Kansas. As of the 2010 census, the city population was 408. According to the United States Census Bureau, the city has a total area of 0.5 square miles, all of it land. As of the census of 2000, there were 397 people, 160 households, and 120 families residing in the city. The population density was 794.7 people per square mile. There were 186 housing units at an average density of 372.3 per square mile. The racial makeup of the city was 94.96 percent White, 0.25 percent African American, 0.76 percent Native American, 0.25 percent Asian, and 3.78 percent from two or more races. Hispanic or Latino of any race were 2.02 percent of the population.

It will be interesting to learn more in 2020.

Jump Rope for Heart sets GES record

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 3-7-2017 / Photo Submitted

Above, Garnett Elementary School had its Jump Rope for Heart event Feb. 23 and 24. At right, Peyton Markham with kindergarten buddy Camden Bettinger and Jack Crane with his kindergarten buddy Cambree Miller try out Chinese jump rope skills. Everett Cox graciously donated his time and talent to play music for us again. Almost $17,000 was raised in 2017, which was the largest donation ever from GES or the former Garnett Elementary Center.
