2 ACHS grads die in unrelated, tragic incidents

Feuerborn dies after ATV wreck near Lane; Gibson dies after jumping off bridge

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

Two Anderson County High School graduates from the Classes of 2011 and 2012 died after unrelated, tragic incidents recently.

Brittney Feuerborn, age 23, of Pittsburg, died this past weekend from injuries she reportedly received in an ATV crash a week earlier.

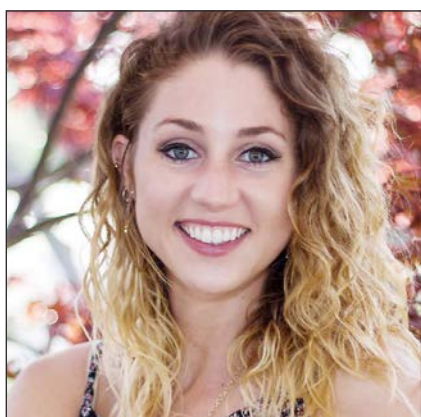

The body of Tyler Gibson, age 23, of Topeka, was recovered from the Kansas River northwest of Topeka April 17, nearly two weeks after Gibson disappeared after reportedly jumping off a bridge to elude law enforcement following a car chase.

Brittney Feuerborn

Few details were available about Feuerborn's death, with most information coming from various social media sites. A representative from the Franklin County Sheriff's Department said a press release about the incident was in the works, but was not available as of the Review's press deadline yesterday. A family member told The Review the accident took place Saturday, April 15, on private property and Feuerborn was taken to Overland Park Regional Medical Center.

There were reports the accident occurred at a popular ATV "party spot" known as the "Lane Dump Road" near Lane in southeastern Franklin County, with as many as 30 others present, but The Review could not confirm those reports.

A memorial service for Gibson is planned for 1 p.m. Sunday, April 30, at the Feuerborn Family Funeral Service Chapel in Garnett.

Gibson's body was found April 17 at Belvue, after a nearly two week search by land, boat and air by family, friends and law enforcement. His body was recovered from the Kansas River about a mile east of a bridge between the towns of Paxico and Belvue in Pottawatomie County, northwest of Topeka.

According to an article from the Topeka Capital Journal, the incident that apparently led to Gibson's death began with stolen cars and two car chases April 5. A Kansas Highway Patrol trooper located a Honda west of Topeka that had been reported stolen earlier that day in Wamego. The trooper maneuvered between the Honda and a black Pontiac that was following it. The Honda took off and law enforcement pursued it at high speeds on gravel roads until it pulled

Girard official appears to be next Garnett city manager

Official announcement pending upon final contract detail, but Girard reports Weiner's resignation there

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GIRARD - Garnett officials reportedly were finalizing details Monday for a contract with Girard City Administrator Chris Weiner to serve as Garnett's next city manager.

Garnett City Attorney Terry Solander, who has been negotiating with Weiner since around March 29, said Monday afternoon a contract had not yet been signed, but Weiner had agreed to terms to serve as Garnett's next city manager.

Solander said he needed to answer a question about an insurance matter, but expected the contract to be signed once that last detail was resolved. Until the contract was signed, Solander said, he could not discuss matters such as compensation.

Eugene Grimes and Susan Sander take advantage of pleasant weather Sunday, April 23, to try their luck fishing at Lake Garnett. They weren't having much luck when this photo was taken. The weather throughout last week was often rainy and stormy, leading to a lot of activity at the lake when Sunday turned out dry, warm and sunny. So far this month, 3.46 inches of rain have fallen at the Garnett Industrial Airport, the official weather monitoring station in Anderson County. About 1.34 inches of that amount fell in the past 10 days. High temperatures reached 80 degrees on April 15, 16 and 20; lowest temperature was 31 on April 7.

City employees launch plan to save July 4th fireworks show

LibertyFest appeared doomed, but city staff start plans for 2017 event

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - City of Garnett staff members plan to revive an annual Independence Day fireworks display that, just a few months ago, looked unlikely to take place.

The Garnett Chamber of Commerce announced earlier this year it would not serve as the host organization for a 2017 LibertyFest fireworks display because the event doesn't pay for itself. The city's tourism board then offered to provide financial support of up to $2,500 in the form of a grant from the city's transient guest tax fund, but no local organization stepped up to take on the project even with the extra incentive.

Without a sponsoring organization, the demise of the annual fireworks show appeared imminent. A pyrotechnic company that provides the show needed to confirm whether Garnett would be included on the schedule or if the company should fill the spot.

Garnett City Manager Joyce Martin said city staff members typically help with the event anyway, so she asked if they were willing to take over as a sponsor. The employees agreed, and scheduled an event for Saturday, July 1, with a rain date of July 2.

It typically costs around $5,000 to provide the show. The city received an estimate of $4,800 for 2017, but that doesn't include any advertising or other promotional costs. The Chamber previously collected donations to offset the costs; those donations typically fell about $1,500 short and the city made up the difference.

"It seemed sad that we might not have a fireworks display," Martin said. "So many people come from out of town to see our display. Even if we just took one year off, they might not come back."

Many details remain to be worked out, and Martin said the city plans to issue a press release at a later date.

Martin asked city commissioners at an April 11 meeting if they were willing to approve the grant from the transient guest tax (TGT) fund, which comes from an additional tax on people who rent rooms at local hotels, motels and bed and breakfast events. Commissioners said they were in support of such a use, but wanted city staff to follow the typical application process for TGT grants.

In recent years, the city increased the tax so it would col-

Kansas' dirty little secret

Let's be honest for a minute. Nobody ever drank 3.2 beer because they wanted to. And the idea that historically, you couldn't buy a bag of chips in a liquor store, was ridiculous.

In fact, most of the time anybody who bought 3.2 beer did it because they forgot or never knew there was a difference between 5 percent alcohol "liquor store beer" and 3.2 "grocery store beer." Since Kansas squeezed beer drinkers for lucrative taxes either way, nobody in state government ever cared as long as the governor got his cut.

That's the revelation of Kansas' dirty little secret ever since the end of Prohibition: The State of Kansas, in order to ease its conscience and stay on the good side of the Baptist Women's League, wanted to make it as hard and shameful as humanly possible for you to drink—private clubs, no happy hours, no Sunday sales, no liquor store advertising—the works.

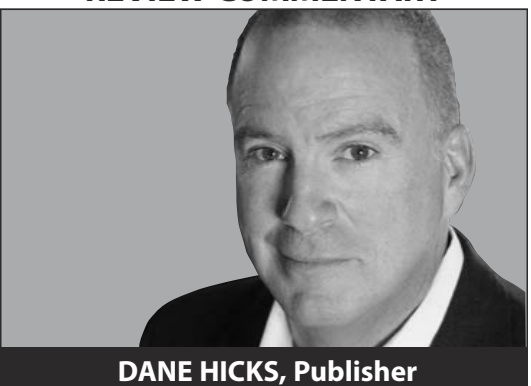

As long as you kept drinking and kept paying those excise taxes to the state, that is. Since the end of Prohibition in 1933, the State of Kansas has enjoyed the best morals money could buy.

The recent move by the Kansas Legislature to rescind the law that kept grocery stores and convenience stores from selling 5.0 beer, and which also kept liquor stores from selling so much as a bottle opener or a bag of Bugles, may not seem like a lot to the general public. But it's a seismic shift in the marketplace for c-stores and liquor stores, and it's a wormhole that threatens to bring Kansas liquor laws kicking and screaming into the new millennium.

Change has come slowly since "demon drink" was lambasted nearly weekly in local newspapers as the root of all evil and Carrie Nation sensationalized the prohibition movement with acts of property destruction against bars and taverns to draw publicity to her cause. Lawmakers responded by crippling a bona fide, tax paying industry in the state with the most restrictive compilation of liquor laws of any state save Utah - and it's only been in recent years that a sense of fairness - and a desire for more tax revenue - has dawned on state legislators.

It is hard to tell just how much the Kansas economy has suffered over the past century due to this black-balling of the spirits industry. By the 1870s, German immigrants to Kansas and Missouri had developed extensive wineries and had transformed the region into the largest wine producing area of the country at the time. Had conservative religious mindsets and Prohibition not been allowed to torpedo it, the homegrown wines and beer industry would have developed into a major economic factor here much as it did in Napa Valley.

REVIEW COMMENTARY

DANE HICKS, Publisher

It took until 2005 for archaic advertising restrictions to be lifted from the Kansas liquor stores, and only a handful of years prior to that came authorization of Liquor By The Drink to allow bars to serve customers who weren't members.

As you recall, though Anderson County never had a reputation for tea-totaling, it took a ballot petition by two local restaurant owners more than two decades ago to do away with the local club law that required a private club membership to drink liquor at a restaurant which served it. Liquor By The Drink was approved in Kansas, with county option, long before voters in Anderson County got a chance to consider it, since county commissioners here refused to place the measure on the ballot themselves. County voters overwhelmingly approved when it came down to an actual vote, and the rest is history.

At issue now is the competitive impact between c-stores and liquor stores with no more artificial market protection for either - liquor stores will be able to sell food and cigarettes, c-stores and grocery stores can sell "hard" beer. Missouri, albeit with twice the population of Kansas, seems to have found a balance - with c-stores and grocery stores even selling liquor and spirits. Still, liquor stores in Missouri thrive - and the state reaps the taxes.

The same thing will happen in Kansas - we're just way late in getting there.

Most older folks like to park their vehicle at the depot and walk south to 13th Street. It's the safest length on the rail trail. But there is only one bench between the depot and 13th Street and it's almost to 13th. A lot of older folks can't make it that far without resting. It sure would be nice to have a bench halfway between those. Thank you.

To the person complaining about people smoking outside at their businesses, get over yourself. You know, we're really sick of hearing people like you complain about everything. This is outside, you don't own all the air, you don't even own this property. We can't even smoke inside any more.

I feel I would be remiss in not mentioning this and saying something positive in the Phone Forum about our local paper. I for one really appreciate The Anderson County Review's general good quality and accuracy in your paper and the way it's put together. Your pictures are excellent, and when you take pictures of someone you actually go to the trouble of putting their names underneath - should be basic journalism I think but not everyone does it. I appreciate that your headlines match the story underneath them - again not always done at every paper everywhere. I appreciate that when there's an important happening you actually have a story on it in your paper. I appreciate the number of stories and the different kinds we get and that all your stories aren't from somewhere else. I do wish you would have the crossword puzzle on a regular basis. Again, thank you for your good paper.

The lilacs growing in the landscaping on the north side of Donna Harris Park in downtown Garnett are an absolute delight. I smelled them over by the post office today, it was an absolute delight. Smells just like Springtime. Thank you to the city for planting them and to whoever takes care of them.

I agree with the caller who complained about people smoking out in front of local businesses. It's really bad public relations. Most people have wised up nowadays and don't smoke, and they nor their kids need to be coming in or out of the front of a business and inhaling that sickening cigarette smoke. Come on local businesses, it's a place of business, not a pool hall.

lect more money that could be used as grants for special events. For example, the city uses $2,500 in TGT funds to support a carnival at the Anderson County Fair. The Anderson County Commission also pledges an equal amount to support the carnival.

Using that model, city staff asked Anderson County commissioners to support the fireworks show. Martin said the county agreed to pledge $1,000 for the show, but requested if donations exceeded the costs, the extra money would go toward the next year's show. City employees had hoped they could pass on any additional money to help a local organization or cause, hopeful that people would be motivated to donate more money if they knew it would benefit others.

No, Trump is not a neocon

With U.S. missiles flying in Syria, the "mother of all bombs" exploding in Afghanistan and an aircraft carrier strike group heading toward North Korea, has there been a revolution in President Donald Trump's foreign policy?

His most fervent supporters shouldn't get overly exercised, and his interventionist critics shouldn't get too excited. What has been on offer so far is broadly consistent with the Jacksonian worldview that is the core of Trump's posture toward the world.

Trump's views are obviously inchoate. He has an attitude rather than a doctrine, and upon leaving office, he surely won't, like Richard Nixon, write a series of books on international affairs.

What we have learned since he took office is that Trump is not an isolationist. At times, he's sounded like one. His "America First" slogan (inadvertently) harkened back to the movement to keep us out of World War II. His outlandish questioning of the NATO alliance, an anchor of the West, created the sense that he might be willing to overturn the foundations of the post-World War II order.

This hasn't come to pass. It's not possible to be a truly isolationist president in the 21st century. And such an approach would undercut the most consistent element of Trump's approach - namely strength.

His set piece foreign-policy speeches

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

RICH LOWRY, King Features Syndicate

during the campaign were clear on this. "The world is most peaceful and most prosperous when America is strongest," he said last April at the Center for the National Interest. Trump said repeatedly on the campaign trail that he would take the war to ISIS and build up our defenses, in direct contradiction to isolationism.

Now, there is no doubt that the Syrian strike is a notable departure for Trump, and he defended it in unapologetically humanitarian terms. But it's entirely possible that the strike will only have the narrow purpose of re-establishing a red line against the use of chemical weapons in Syria and reasserting American credibility. That is particularly important in the context of the brewing showdown with North Korea.

The Tomahawks in Syria and saber rattling at North Korea have Trump's critics on the right and the left claiming he's becoming a neoconservative -- a term of abuse that is most poorly understood by the people most inclined to use it. All neocons may be hawks, but not all hawks are neocons, who are distinctive in their idealism and robust interventionism.

We haven't heard paeans to democracy from Trump, or clarion calls for human rights. He hasn't seriously embraced regime change anywhere (even if his foreign-policy officials say Bashar Assad has to go). He shows no sign of a willingness to make a major commitment of U.S. ground troops abroad.

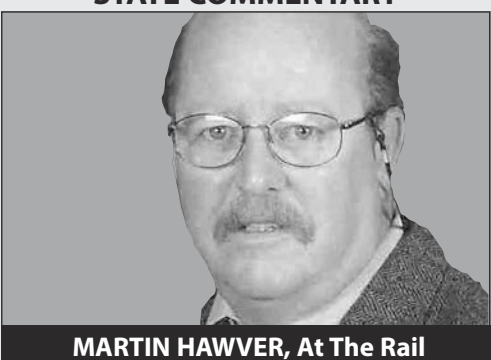

Trump is a particular kind of hawk. The Jacksonian school is inclined toward realism and reluctant to use force, except when a national interest is clearly at stake. As historian Walter Russell Mead writes: "Jacksonians believe that international life is and will remain both violent and anarchic. The United States must be vigilant, strongly armed. Our diplomacy must be cunning, forceful, and no more scrupulous than any other country's."

This tradition isn't isolationist or neoconservative, and neither is Trump.

Money woes could revive tax increase bill

STATE COMMENTARY

MARTIN HAWVER, At The Rail

Legislature hasn't passed a tax bill that will add even a dime to the State General Fund.

So, we have the final numbers, or at least the latest final numbers, and what does it look like for the state of Kansas and the Legislature and you folks who elected all of them?

Remember Gov. Sam Brownback's now largely forgotten budget offering, with its big spending cuts and no new taxes—except for you smokers and drinkers? Suddenly, that proposal which was roundly rejected by the House and Senate pencils out like a worker for the next two years except for that school finance component that is relatively small change from a $6 billion State General Fund. But, it appears that it is virtually off the table for largely political reasons, including preserving the four-year-old Kansas income tax exemption for non-wage income of LLCs.

Which brings Kansans to tax increases—netting that LLC money and increases in income tax. The flat rate proposal which purportedly had the quiet support of the governor didn't go anywhere before Spring Break, and it reportedly hasn't picked up much steam during the break.

So, it looks like that tax increase bill that came within three Senate votes of passage by overriding the governor's veto has picked up a little support, and might well be the focus of the wrapup session. It actually picks up a little steam because of those puny revenue increases predicted by the CRE which can be used to offer some little breaks—maybe a percent off the sales tax on groceries.

It's not hard to gin up a twin bill to the three-bracket measure that was vetoed so lawmakers can at least pass it under standard 63 House votes, 21 Senate votes basics, and then when it is undoubtedly vetoed again, find the three Senate votes for the override.

Ever think we'd elect a Legislature where two or three votes to support a veto by the governor essentially set the policy and the future of the state?

Maybe there ought to have been an asterisk next to their names on the ballot last November...

ACH Auxiliary serves hospital, community, county

"Volunteering is the ultimate exercise in democracy. You vote in elections once a year, but when you volunteer, you vote every day about the kind of community you want to live in." - author unknown. (Borrowed with permission from the Sunflower Auxilian, February 2017)

Thousands of churches, businesses, charities and organizations across the United States thrive and owe their success, in part, to the tens of thousands of people who volunteer their time and talents. To honor these tireless workers, the week of April 23-29 has been set aside as National Volunteer Week to recognize those men and women who strive to make their communities better places in which to live by committing to be the very best volunteer they can be.

Locally, one such group is the Anderson County Hospital Auxiliary, founded on March 23, 1969, by June Cooper and the late Sandra Powers Doty. They, along with a group of other women, saw a need for volunteers at the then newly built hospital.

They called themselves the Pink Ladies and wore pink jackets. While no longer known as Pink Ladies, the Auxiliary's purpose has steadfastly remained the same: "...to render service to Anderson County Hospital and its patients, and to assist Anderson County Hospital in promoting the health of the community."

Early on, the Pink Ladies were responsible for a variety of duties including mail and flower delivery, escorting visitors to patient rooms, making tray favors, and fundraisers for special projects at the hospital.

Current auxiliary projects include: manning the Information and Hospitality Desks, patient transport/escort, outpatient escort services, weekly Bingo and Card Bingo games for Residential Living Center residents, annual Hospital Employee Appreciation events, sewing Pillow Pals for children brought to the Emergency Room, assisting with the Family Health Festival, providing two scholarships to Anderson County high school seniors pursuing a career in the medical field and one scholarship for an ACH employee wishing to continue her/his education, annual Doctor Appreciation Day, Hospital Week and Nursing Home Week recognitions, and providing funds to purchase equipment for departments at the hospital. They also provided homemade cookies and water for the Healing for Health Walk event for several years.

Monies to purchase that equipment and provide the scholarships come from several fundraisers held throughout the year including: Mountain Man Nuts, Fruits, and Candy sales, jewelry sales, blanket and bedding sales, book sales, baked goods sales held the day before Thanksgiving and Good Friday before Easter, and the sale of bierocks prior to Super Bowl. Dates for these fundraisers will be published in the newspapers, with the first one having been the book sale on March 28 in the lobby of the hospital.

The ACH Auxiliary holds bimonthly meetings on the first Monday of the odd-numbered months beginning in January. Each of these meetings include an informative program and a business meeting. Members also occasionally get together outside the hospital for lun-

The ACH Auxiliary will observe National Volunteer Week by being the hospital's guests at its annual Volunteer Appreciation Luncheon on May 1.

In 2016, Auxilians logged 6,157 volunteer hours at ACH. Monetarily, that amounts to more than $61,000 worth of volunteer time.

On the state level, in 2016 there were 7,551 members in 59 hospital auxiliaries, as well as 90 individual associate members who are hospital CEOs, directors of volunteer services, local auxiliary members, and other auxiliary friends, according to statistics from the Hospital Auxiliaries of Kansas (HAK).

Every year, hospital auxiliaries contribute 700,000 hours and $1.5 million to Kansas hospitals, as well as more than $180,000 for health career scholarships. Anyone wishing to become a valued member of the Anderson County Hospital Auxiliary and be a volunteer extraordinaire is encouraged to contact any member or Karen Gillespie, ACH Director of Human Resources/Director of Volunteer Services, at 785-204-8004. Come join the fun and serve your hospital, community and county at the same time.

Greeley school celebrates spring

Students and teachers at Greeley Elementary have had a very busy spring. They've been learning about many forms of art and music, science, writing, agriculture and horticulture- all of which came together in the school's first Fine Arts Night on Tuesday, April 18, 2017.

The day began with a preview and breakfast for USD 365 board members and Superintendent Blome. In addition to seeing student projects, board members also saw the Growing Tower of vegetables and the six little chicks that hatched over the past few weeks. That evening, students displayed their works which were available for purchase in a silent auction. Items displayed included pottery, drawings, paintings, ceramics, and crafts.

Fifth and sixth graders also had their own version of a wax museum as they dressed as, and spoke about, an important person in their life.

The Greeley PTO had 12 themed baskets for sale in a silent auction, and the evening was capped off with the K-6 Spring Program, directed by Mr. Jeff Russell.

Morton inducted into honor society

BATON ROUGE, LA -- Jordan Morton of Colony, Kansas, was recently initiated into The Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi, the nation's oldest and most selective all-discipline collegiate honor society. Morton was initiated at Pittsburg State University.

Morton is among approximately 30,000 students, faculty, professional staff and alumni to be initiated into Phi Kappa Phi each year. Membership is by invitation only and requires nomination and approval by a chapter. Only the top 10 percent of seniors and 7.5 percent of juniors are eligible for membership. Graduate students in the top 10 percent of the number of candidates for graduate degrees may also qualify, as do faculty, professional staff and alumni who have achieved scholarly distinction.

Phi Kappa Phi was founded in 1897 under the leadership of Marcus L. Urann who had a desire to create a different kind of honor society: one that recognized excellence in all academic disciplines. Today, the Society has chapters on more than 300 campuses in the United States and the Philippines. Its mission is "To recognize and promote academic excellence in all fields of higher education and to engage the community of scholars in service to others."

This sign will not fail!

I have long hung on to bits and pieces of sage advice, that is advise from someone with wisdom. Today as I pen this article is Easter and I always remember my Grandmother Bilderback on Easter. She had a profound influence on my life. Her time on this earth, just short of 100 years was a life well spent. Many things that she told me will be treasured only by me but once in awhile she would give me a tidbit of information that I have shared. She always told me if it rains on Easter Sunday it will rain for six Sundays in a row. Well I've seen this happen more often than not. We shall see what happens this year.

Another old friend who stuck by me through the rough times of the 1980's told me one day as we stood looking at some ground. You see that crowd hole that's a sign of a wet year when they do not cover it up. If it is covered up that is a sign of a dry year, however all signs fail. All signs do fail. We live in an imperfect world that is prone to failure.

In Isaiah 7:14, Isaiah having received word from God tells king Ahaz concerning a threatened attack on Jerusalem that it will not happen. The king of Aram and the king of Israel have formed an alliance and are set to lay siege to Jerusalem. If they do Jerusalem will fall. God offers a sign to Ahaz that will happen far into the future to prove Jerusalem will not fall and that sign was the birth of the Savior. Ahaz is told. "The virgin will give birth to a son and will call him Immanuel."

Easter is the time we celebrate the fact that this sign did not fail. The empty tomb

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL

By David Bilderback

is proof of this. The Apostle Peter warns us that scoffers will make light of this saying, "where is this coming he (Isaiah) promised? Ever since our fathers died, everything goes on as it has since the beginning of creation." For the scoffer this will always be true for they do not have eyes to see or ears to hear. If God has spoken to you this Easter season do not close your eyes or cover your ears.

Again in 2nd Peter 3:9, the apostle issues a warning. "The Lord is not slow in keeping his promise, as some understand slowness, he is patient with you, not wanting anyone to perish, but everyone to come to repentance." The statement seems to imply that some will perish. In Acts 1 we read of Jesus ascending to heaven and as the apostles watch two men dressed in white appear beside them and say. "Why do you stand looking into the sky? This same Jesus, who has been taken from you into heaven, will come back in the same way you have seen him go into heaven." Jesus said in John 14:3 "And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come back, and take you to be with me that you also may be where I am." Another Easter has passed and we move ever closer to the climatic return of Christ. This sign will not fail. Will we be ready?

over; the driver was arrested on suspicion of fleeing and eluding, possession of stolen property, possession of methamphetamine and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Meanwhile, the black Pontiac followed the pursuit and initiated a second high-speed police chase when the Honda pulled over. The Pontiac also had been reported stolen. That second police chase ended when the Pontiac rammed into a Pottawatomie County Sheriff's vehicle on the Belvue River Bridge. The driver got out of the car and jumped off the bridge.

Family members later said they believed the driver was Gibson, and joined law enforcement in the search. The river apparently was swollen from recent rains, full of floating debris and estimated at 42 degrees.

Gibson graduated from Anderson County High School in 2011.

He was the son of Mickey Gibson and Angela Pickering. His grandfather, Larry Gibson, lives in Westphalia but most of the family now live elsewhere. An obituary is on page 3A.

GES Jump Rope For Heart Results

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 4-25-2017 / Photos Submitted

Results from the Garnett Elementary School Jump Rope For Heart have been announced. GES physical education teacher Mackayla Martin, in back, is shown with, from left, Emily Sobba, who raised $1,225; Alexis Overstreet, who raised $839; Shelby Sprague, who raised $680; and, Mackenzie Poverlein who raised $501.

These are some of the students who raised $50 or more (earning a T-shirt) in GES's Jump Rope for Heart event. The school raised $17,006.20 for the American Heart Association.

Pictured in the photos above and below are most of the 80 kids that earned the Pizza Party. Those who raised $100 or more in donations allowed them to come and join Mackayla Martin and many others in the gym for fun, friendship, and food. These students raised more than $11,500 of the $17,006 the school sent to the American Heart association.

The news first was announced on social media by Hometown Girard, a newspaper in Girard, at around noon Monday, April 24. The post said, "Weiner had said he would sign a three-year $70,000 per year contract with Girard at the next council meeting, but afterward Garnett made a counter-offer Weiner said he couldn't refuse." An April 21 edition of the newspaper had featured an article about Weiner accepting the new contract with Girard.

The announcement appeared to catch Garnett officials by surprise. Solander said he was still in the process of notifying key players when contacted by The Review and did not know when a formal announcement would be made, but "the cat's out of the bag now."

Commissioner Greg Gwin said via email at 1:46 p.m. Monday he had not yet learned that Weiner had accepted the job, and would make an announcement after he could confirm the news. The Review went to press soon after Gwin's emailed response.

Weiner's contract with Girard expires in July, and he was expected to leave at that time, the Hometown Girard post said. It was not yet known when he would take over duties in Garnett.

The next city manager will succeed Joyce Martin, who has worked for the City of Garnett for 50 years and has served as city manager since 2007. Martin said previously she was willing to stay with the city until a replacement could be hired, and possibly stay for some time after that to help with the transition. Martin said Monday she was not involved in the search for the city manager and is waiting for direction from commissioners to determine when her departure might occur.

Celebrate Community Bank Week

April 24-29

Week celebrates impact of Kansas banks

TOPEKA — Across the state of Kansas, community banks represent a key role in maintaining local economies. They provide loans for business growth, for new equipment that adds jobs and for the goals of individuals and families. They know the details of their communities and maintain tight-knit connections to their customers due to their relationship-based philosophies. This far-reaching impact of community banks across the state of Kansas is recognized and celebrated during Community Bank Week, April 24-29.

To highlight and recognize Kansas community banks, Community Bankers Association of Kansas (CBA) hosts Community Bank Week during the last week of April. During the week, CBA invites and encourages members to invite bank customers to special events and to showcase what each bank values about their local Kansas communities.

In preparation for the week, CBA establishes a theme and a packet of materials for each bank to tailor to their own Community Bank Week celebrations. Many community banks across Kansas will participate in activities such as in-bank contests for children, community tailgates, school events and local media promotions. Many community banks mark the week by highlighting financial education programs, including incentives to start savings accounts with children and offering financial literacy resources for all ages.

"Community banks foster tremendous loyalty from their customers because they really get to know their needs," says Shawn Mitchell, President/CEO, CBA of Kansas. "They are flexible enough to take into consideration a list of unique factors as they allocate services like loans, and at the same time, they may not see as many large risk factors as bigger banks. This contributes to the economic impact community banks make in Kansas."

Mitchell says the theme for 2017 Community Bank Week — "Your Roadmap to Success" — reflects the way community banks are right where their customers need them at every point in their life or business journey.

"Community banks will remain even more viable into the future because they come alongside their customers with guidance and resources at a personal level. They demonstrate a creative, flexible model of delivering banking products, and this can be tailored to each situation," says Mitchell. "CBA is the only state trade association dedicated exclusively to serving the interests of Kansas community banks, and we're proud to offer ideas and activities to celebrate this special week."

Past CBA Community Bank Week activities have included partnerships with local charities or activities to promote economic development initiatives.
