No wind farm; company abandons plans

Cost to connect to electric grid too much for Texas company

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW
 GARNETT - After 16 controversial months of debate, a plan to build a wind farm in Anderson County has fizzled. Officials with a Texas energy company announced last week they're giving up on plans to build a wind farm in Anderson County because it would cost too much to connect the wind farm to the electric transmission grid. Calpine, a Houston-based energy company, last week notified landowners who had signed leases for the project that the company was terminating the leases for the proposed Southfork Wind Project. Calpine's action ends nearly a year and a half of policy wrangling that saw the county develop new regulations on wind farm development. The county changed its zoning rules to limit the distance a wind farm could be built from residential and other types of property, effectively prohibiting wind farms in some of the more populous rural areas of Anderson County while leaving the option open in lesser settled areas.

Just days after those zoning regulations were adopted, Calpine learned the costs to connect the project to the electric grid would be "prohibitively expensive," Calpine representative Chris Stanton said in an email to county commissioners Friday, April 28. "Our project would be highly disadvantaged if it were to compete on such terms with rival wind development projects across Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma. Although this infrastructure constraint may change over the next decade, as area utilities invest in upgrading their systems, we cannot say for certain when, if ever, such improvements will occur," Stanton's email read. Stanton did not return a phone call from The Review for comment, and his email to commissioners did not include details about the costs. But Anderson County

Commissioner Les McGhee said Stanton had called him Wednesday, April 26, and said it would cost about $80 million to connect the project to the electric transmission grid. Calpine first approached Anderson County commissioners and landowners in late 2015 about their plans to build about 100 turbines as part of a 200 MW wind farm on a ridge that roughly parallels U.S. 169. Floods claim 3 vehicles; no one hurt

2 cars submerged at reservoir, another at low-water crossing but all occupants escaped

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW
 GARNETT - Three vehicles ended up underwater during heavy rains and flooding over the weekend, but all occupants were able reach safety without injuries. Heavy rains dumped more than 3 inches of rain over Anderson County between Friday, April 28, and Monday morning, May 1. The rain led to localized flooding in Anderson County, with more severe flooding throughout much of southeast Kansas and parts of Oklahoma, Arkansas and Missouri. Meanwhile, the storm system was responsible for blizzard conditions in southwest Kansas, and deadly tornadoes in Texas. A total of 3.03 inches of rain fell between Friday and Monday morning at the Garnett Industrial Airport, the official weather monitoring station for the county. That amount was added to 3.76 inches of rain that fell between April 1 and Friday morning, April 28, for a monthly total of 6.79 inches. That's well above the monthly average for April, 3.98 inches. Most of Anderson County saw few issues with flooding, although most creeks and rivers were up to or out of their banks. Most low-water crossings were flooded, which made it difficult for drivers to navigate through the county, Anderson County Fire Chief Mick Brinkmeyer said. A truck became stranded in a low-water crossing at about 5:20 a.m. Sunday at Kiowa and 2030 roads when a driver attempted to cross. The driver abandoned the truck and escaped to safety. Fire and emergency response crews arrived and were able to tow the truck out of the water. Crews included Anderson County EMS, Anderson County Sheriff's Department, and

New Garnett city manager to start July 17

Girard official tapped to lead Garnett with 2-year, $85K contract

BY VICKIE MOSS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW
 GARNETT - Girard city administrator Chris Weiner agreed last week to a two-year, $85,000 per year contract to serve as Garnett's next city manager. Weiner signed a contract with the city last week and plans to start work in Garnett July 17, after his current contract with Girard expires. Weiner said he is looking forward to coming to Garnett and getting to know city staff and people in the community. He said he plans to have an "open door policy," and was encouraged that about 30 people attended a meet-and-greet session when he interviewed for the position March 29. "I was glad to see that kind of community response," Weiner said. "And the fact that Garnett has so many advisory boards is tremendous. It shows a strong sense of volunteerism and community engagement. Garnett really shows a lot of strength in that people are willing to step up, and I'm looking forward to working with those people." Weiner is familiar with southeast Kansas, having spent his early years growing up in Iola and Chanute before his family moved to the Topeka area. He graduated from high school at St. Mary's and then received a degree in public administration from the University of Kansas, with minors in economics and sociology. He returned to Iola to work for the non-profit group Thrive Allen County as a grant writer and development coordinator in the early days of that organization. He spent two years in Cherryvale as assistant city manager and city clerk before taking on the administrator job at Girard two years ago. He also has served on various boards, including the Sunflower Rails to Trails Conservancy and Iola's planning commission. His wife, Brittany Weiner, currently works as a general manager at a restaurant. They

ANDERSON COUNTY BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS APRIL 17

Chairman Jerry Howarter called the meeting of the Anderson County Commission to order at 9:00 A.M. on April 17, 2017 at the County Commission room. Attendance: Jerry Howarter, present; David Pracht, present; Leslie Mcghee, present. The Pledge of Allegiance was recited. Minutes from the previous meeting were approved as presented.

Road and Bridge

Lester Welsh, Road Supervisor, met with the Commission. He presented a road permit for Paul Stephens with RWD #5 to put in a water line 1/4 west on Norton Rd on 600 Rd. Commissioner Howarter signed the permit to approve. Lester hasn't received any more bids for the courthouse roof repair and will wait another week to present to the commissioners.

Appraiser

Steve Markham, Appraiser, met with the Commission. He gave an update on the open tax appeals filed with the county. The preliminary hearing at The Board of Tax Appeals has been set for the taxes on the ethanol plant for July 17th, 2017.

County Clerk

Julie Heck, County Clerk, met with the commission. She presented a change to the County Civil Leave Policy in The Employee Handbook. The addition would be that Firefighters who are County employees will be paid salary and benefits when assisting state fires. Commissioner Pracht moved and Commissioner Mcghee seconded to amend The Civil Leave Policy in the handbook. All voted yes. She also inquired about the landline phone at the community building. It is rarely used and costs the County approximately $45 per month. Since most people carry cell phone now the Commissioners believe we don't need to provide a phone at the building. Commissioner Pracht moved and Commissioner Mcghee seconded to remove the phone from the community building. All voted yes.

Solid Waste

Scott Garrett, Solid Waste Supervisor, met with the Commission. The Commissioners inquired about guidelines for dumping waste at the landfill and what is accepted. Scott and the Commissioners addressed an issue with The City of Garnett. Scott let them know that he had never refused to let them dump, just that they needed to separate what they want to dump. He also mentioned that the tires needed to be stacked. The Commissioners requested from Scott a list of guidelines and Landfill rules of what is acceptable to dump. He will write up a memo to give to the Commission. Scott will contact Vernon Yoder, Noxious Weed Supervisor, to start eradicating the weeds at the Landfill.

Fair Board

Jess Rockers, Fair Board President, met with the Commission. He let the Commissioners know their request for Transient Guest Tax Funds of $2,500 for the carnival was denied. The Board has received this money in previous years. They will be trying to find other ways to help raise money for the carnival. The County Road Department has leftover millings from projects that they are selling to the public. The Fair Board is purchasing some millings to put around the rodeo arena to help with the weed issue.

Veteran's Memorial

Kristie Kinney, Historical Society Member, met with the Commission. She gave an update on the progress of the Veteran's Memorial. There were approximately 5,000 names that needed to be verified and the committee only has about 500 left. They have been using multiple resources to verify names. Once the names are verified, the committee will decide on how the Memorial will be designed.

Emergency Management

J.D. Mersman, Emergency Management Director, met with the Commission. He let the Commission know that he will be applying for a grant from the USDA that will help pay for a portion of the radio upgrades and to put a tower near Westphalia. He also inquired about cell service at the Community Building. He would like to fund getting a cell phone booster to allow calls while in the building. The Commissioners agreed that it would be beneficial due to his emergency duties. Commissioner Mcghee moved and Commissioner Pracht seconded to purchase a cell phone booster from TFM Communications to be paid out of the Emergency Management Fund. All voted yes.

Fireworks

Discussion was held on the annual fireworks display. The City of Garnett would like for the County to donate $1,000 towards the display. Commissioner Pracht moved and Commissioner Mcghee seconded to donate $1,000 to the City Of Garnett to be used for the fireworks display as long as the County's donation is used for the current and future fireworks shows. fire and rescue crews from Anderson County, Garnett, Colony, Harris, Greeley and Welda. Flooded low-water crossings in the area made it difficult to reach the spot, Brinkmeyer said. A few hours later, at about 9:18 a.m. Sunday, fire and rescue crews responded to a report of two vehicles submerged at the Cedar Valley Reservoir west of Garnett. The vehicles were at the southwest camping area at the reservoir when they somehow became submerged, but the drivers were able to walk to safety. Brinkmeyer said crews could not safely reach the vehicles to tow them out, but they likely will be removed when the water recedes. Response crews included Garnett police, EMS and fire departments from Anderson County, Garnett and Harris. The amount of rainfall in April is a significant overcompensation for a distinct lack of rain earlier this year. Just 1.01 inches of rain fell in January, nothing in February, and 0.95 inches in March, according to the state's Weather Data Library at K-State Research and Extension. Between January and March, the county was 3.77 inches shy of normal. Now, the county is slightly less than an inch from normal, receiving 8.75 inches of rain between January and April compared to the typical 9.71 inches that normally falls at this point of the year.

MESSAGE...

"Right away, you just desperately want to do something to help, but in reality there's not a lot you can do," Brantee Johnson, owner of LimeLight Marketing, said "We had an opportunity to share Brittney's message, and we felt like that was our responsibility and our role and what Brittney would want." LimeLight is a small company with just seven employees; Feuerborn was the third employee to join the team. Her loss devastated the company and fellow employees, Johnson said. No one was surprised when Feuerborn left those three words on the message board at the company, Johnson said. But because it was Easter weekend, Johnson said it would have been just as easy for Feuerborn to write "Happy Easter" or something else. "She's given us all a challenge with that message of loving your life," Johnson said. Local distribution is being organized by Margie Highberger. Call or text her at (785) 448-7914 for more information. Feuerborn, the daughter of Cliff and Karen Feuerborn, graduated from Anderson County High School in 2012. She earned a degree in graphic design from Pittsburg State University. She returned to her hometown of Greeley for the Easter holiday. At some point while riding ATVs with friends near a creek near Lane, she was injured when the four-wheeler wrecked at about 9:21 p.m. Saturday, April 15. A representative from the Franklin County Sheriff's Department said officers would conduct a death investigation related to the accident, but few details were available. After the accident, Feuerborn was taken to Greeley to make it easier for the ambulance to find her. She was taken to Overland Park Regional Medical Center, where she died April 23. An obituary is published on this page.

County that effectively would prohibit all wind farm development in the county. County commissioners and zoning board members eventually decided on a compromise, with changes to the zoning regulations that would place more restrictions on where windmill turbines could be built but would still allow some sort of development in less populated areas of the county. Developers still would need a special use permit in order to build a project; no wind farm development proposal has ever gotten that far in Anderson County. Although this latest development in the wind farm saga appears to mark the end of Calpine's plans, it's possible another company could pursue wind farm development in Anderson County. A similar project has been proposed for Allen County, and Anderson County commissioners said another energy company approached them about four months ago to seek information on wind farm development. That company did not pursue action after that initial query, commissioners said. Commissioner McGhee said he believes Calpine or other wind farm developers may have received a more friendly welcome in Anderson County "if they had to play by the same rules the rest of us play by," such as paying property taxes. He said government subsidies and tax breaks make such projects a losing proposition for counties, and he believes those projects should be subject to the same type of taxation as other utility projects. "They don't bring that much to the table, as far as I'm concerned," McGhee said.

Garnett will give Weiner a chance to learn more about full-service utility operations, as the cities he previously worked for offered fewer utility services. While he has experience running a city with its own electric utility and golf course, he will need to learn more about gas utilities, trash service and airport. "I enjoy the challenge. I like to learn, and I really enjoyed my experience here (in Weiner said he plans to take time to get to know city staff and residents, particularly to develop trust with department leaders. "I want to learn from them and then really dig in and get some good things accomplished," he said. "I'm very open. I'm very energetic. Defend free speech, even Coulter's

Look, I'm the guy who once called her a "viperous harridan," OK?

That was 11 years ago in this space. I described her as such after she savaged four widows whose husbands died in the Sept. 11 attacks, denouncing them as "witches" and "broads" who were "enjoying their husbands' deaths."

So I don't need to be convinced Ann Coulter is a bad person. But for as much as readers with whom I have been sparring on Twitter the last few days might wish otherwise, her character is not the issue here.

"Here" meaning last week's standoff between the abrasive conservative pundit and the University of California, Berkeley. As you may know, Coulter was invited to speak on the famously liberal campus, but UCB first restricted the time of day she could do so, then tried to convince her to switch to a day when classes are suspended as students study for finals. When Coulter refused, the school canceled the event.

Berkeley, you should know, has been the site of recent political street fighting. A February riot orchestrated by about 100 black-clad punks caused $100,000 in damage and succeeded in preventing an appearance by right-wing provocateur Milo Yiannopoulos. UCB said there was a credible threat of a repeat performance if Coulter spoke.

She had vowed to show up anyhow and appear, if need be, in Sproul Plaza, an open public concourse that was, not incidentally, the 1964 birthplace of the free-speech movement. Wednesday, under pressure from UCB, the two conservative groups that were sponsoring her visit rescinded the invitation, and Coulter said she would not come.

Many of my more liberal Twitter followers, loathe to support Coulter on, well, anything, have resisted — sometimes with desperately creative logic — the notion that this is an issue of free speech. Here are some of their arguments and my answers:

Them: The First Amendment applies only to government censorship.

Me: You're right. And UCB is a public institution, supported by taxpayer money, which makes this a government issue.

Them: She's milking this for publicity.

Me: Maybe. So what?

Them: She doesn't care about free speech.

GUEST EDITORIAL

LEONARD PITTS JR., Miami Herald

She's getting paid.

Me: I get paid when I speak, too. Again, so what?

Them: UCB never actually said she couldn't speak.

Me: The courts have held that you may not "unduly burden" the right of free speech, i.e., impose special requirements upon a controversial speaker. That's why the city of Miami lost in federal court in 2003 after it billed a promoter for the cost of extra security required to bring a band loathed by some in the Cuban exile community to the Miami Arena.

Here's the bottom line: I don't care whether it's Castro's favorite band playing in downtown Miami or a viperous harridan speaking at Berkeley. It wouldn't matter if it were Louis Farrakhan at Ole Miss or Bernie Sanders at the High School of Economics and Finance just off Wall Street. The right to free expression is either secured for all or it's guaranteed to none.

So here is what should offend you even more than Coulter, particularly if you live in a place like Berkeley, with its 121,000 people and 170 police officers. A bunch of thugs just established that you can bully a public institution in a relatively small town into disinviting a controversial speaker. Which of our other freedoms will they come after next?

Coulter called Wednesday "a sad day for free speech." This next sentence will cause physical pain for some of you to read, but you need to just the same:

Ann Coulter was right.

It was embarrassing to have a free band at the smokeoff and have nobody there to listen to them. I guess you have to have an Easter Egg hunt or something like that in Garnett if you want anybody to show up at an event.

It has been a cold nasty spring for our baseball and softball players and our golfers and track athletes and their parents who've been coming to their competitions. I just wanted to acknowledge you and thank you for your competitive spirit despite all this adverse weather. Thanks to all.

I have a suggestion to all my neighbors who think when the gravel roads are muddy because of all the rain like we've just had that they think they still have to drive 80 mph down those muddy roads. Do you not understand that the faster you hit those puddles the deeper and wider you make them? Do you not understand that the faster you hit that soft gravel the more of it you throw off into the ditch where it can't be brought back onto the road and then the road boys have to haul more in. And who knows when that will be? Use your heads people and don't drive so hard down these roads when they're soft. All you're doing is tearing them up worse and making them more expensive for our tax dollars to fix. Thank you.

Hi. Do I have to send my alignment bill to the city because of that pothole on the south end of Cleveland? Please fix it. Thank you.

A Trump victory on the border

Donald Trump's saber rattling may or may not deter Kim Jong Un, but it's had an effect south of the border.

In the first few months of this year, illegal border crossings have dropped precipitously. It is an early proof of concept that yes, it is possible to secure the border and a victory, even if a provisional and incomplete one, for President Trump's enforcement agenda.

Once you stripped away the impossibilities from Trump's rhetoric on immigration during the campaign -- there wasn't going to be a wall along the entire border paid for by Mexico, nor were there going to be mass deportations and a Muslim ban -- the core of his message was a commitment to crack down on illegal border crossings.

This is happening. It has been reported in the press, but it almost never makes it into the conversation about his first 100 days.

If Trump had promised to almost immediately reduce illegal border crossings from Mexico to a 17-year low, it would have been dismissed as bombast. But here we are. On the border, there is cause to be at least encouraged by all the winning.

According to the Department of Homeland Security, there were 17,000 arrests at the border in March, the lowest figure since 2000, and down significantly from the nearly 60,000 arrests in December. The message has been received that President Trump is, to coin a phrase, a bad hombre. His tough rhetoric alone would be enough to make would-be migrants think twice. But the administration also has tightened up on enforcement; both immigration arrests and so-called detainees -- requests to local law enforcement to turn over to the feds illegal immigrants in jail -- have increased.

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

Enhanced enforcement, real and perceived, is clearly affecting the decision-making of would-be migrants. The fees charged by so-called coyotes to bring people across the border have risen, reflecting the higher risk. A jump from, say, $3,500 to $8,000 represents an enormous new expense for a mother in Honduras, especially if her chances of staying in the United States are diminishing.

Some caveats. First, the Trump administration will have to continue to strengthen enforcement. Otherwise, illegal immigration will bounce back to its normal trend. The experience after the 1986 amnesty confirms this. The law was supposed to include tougher enforcement, and this expectation initially suppressed immigrant flows. When it became clear that it was all talk, illegal immigration continued as before.

Second, visa overstays are a large and perhaps growing contributor to illegal immigration. This deserves as much attention as the border.

Finally, the administration will have to resist the urge to declare victory and go home. The moderates in the White House may be tempted to soften Trump's image via a grand bargain on immigration, arguing that it's "mission accomplished" on enforcement and time to pivot to a large-scale amnesty.

Despite the hostile press coverage, what Trump has done so far on immigration is hardly radical and basically represents a return to the pre-Barack Obama status quo, when the federal government didn't openly flout its own laws. For now, it has gotten results.

Get ready to expect guns at state hospitals

Ever get right to the door of the state hospital room of your suicidal, or maybe criminally insane, distant cousin and start thinking "do I really want my concealed-carry pistol now?"

Not often? That's probably a good thing, but starting July 1, at the 32 buildings on campuses of the state's four hospitals, you may not have to worry about that.

What's this about? A largely forgotten portion of the state's concealed-carry law which on July 1 will prevent anyone in authority at the state hospitals from making sure that there aren't any guns in the buildings.

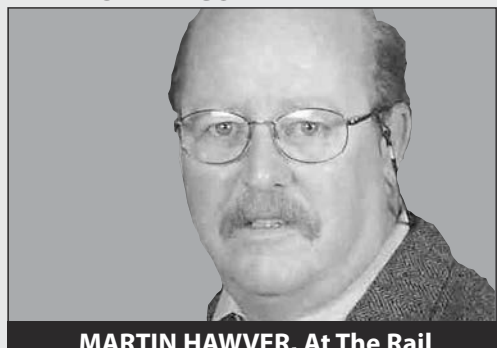

The original concealed-carry law passed several years ago had a provision that carrying guns at state hospitals, private hospitals, and on university campuses could be prohibited until July 1 of this year by merely posting a sign.

On July 1, those signs become just a decorative nuisance. The folks who run those hospitals and colleges won't be able to prohibit concealed-carry by the general public unless there are guards and metal detectors and those electronic wands to make sure that nobody not specifically authorized to carry a gun can enter one of those buildings.

The key is that unless a hospital or school can make sure nobody has a weapon, well, everyone can have a weapon. Probably not a good idea at hospitals where there are mentally ill patients, or probably even at public colleges where, well, there are college kids.

Gov. Sam Brownback appears to have last week recalled that provision in state law, and in a budget amendment handed to the Senate Ways and Means and House Appropriations committees, he asked for $12 million for the upcoming fiscal year and $12 million the next year before he leaves office to get the guards and metal detectors and such needed to meet the nobody carries guns or everyone can carry guns provisions of state law.

STATE COMMENTARY

Seems a little late to remember that provision, and while state universities and private hospitals have been working with little result most of the legislative session to win exemption from the lifting of the ban on concealed-carry, the wrap-up session starting this week is the first time there's been a realization of the effect of that provision.

For the four state hospitals—Larned and Osawatomie state hospitals, the Kansas Neurological Institute and Parsons State Hospital and Training Center—Brownback asked lawmakers to appropriate that $12 million a year for the remainder of his term. Probably a little late, we'd guess, with the July deadline approaching and the Kansas Department for Aging and Disability Services which runs the hospitals saying it will take maybe nine or 10 months from the day it gets the check to meet the gun screening requirements.

One fix is simple. Just remove the language from state law that requires gun-search equipment and personnel to prohibit folks from carrying guns into those hospitals—and maybe because it would just take a few more lines of type, college campuses?

This is going to be interesting for Legislature-watches. Do lawmakers continue the now signs-only no-concealed-carry ban, which gun lobbyists oppose? Or do they pony up the money for the security measures and hope that nothing bad happens until the state hospitals get their security measures in place?

Yes, it seems a little late to be considering which way to go and money for state hospitals is tight. And...of course, do workers at those state hospitals decide to get licensed to carry concealed weapons and decide they'd rather take those security door guard jobs estimated to pay $65,000 a year rather than lesser-paying jobs mopping floors and providing health-care services and feeding those hospital patients?

All of a sudden, this gun business hits lawmakers where they look first—at the budget.

See how this comes out...

Viking bats cold in losses to Osage City

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

OSAGE CITY - Despite a pair of losses last week to Osage City (13-3), the Vikings softball team has to feel like they can hang with one of the better teams on their schedule.

Osage City packed away the opener 3-1 but was helped out by a struggling Viking defense. Megan Davis pitched well for the Vikings, but walks along with the defense struggling behind her led to 3 runs of which just one was earned.

Offensively it was a struggle throughout for the Vikings. Davis drove in Shelbi Hettinger, via sacrifice, for the only run.

It was much of the same in the second game, this time Osage City won 6-1.

OC was limited to just 4 hits on the afternoon, but took advantage of 4 Viking errors. Davis allowed just 2 hits in 4 innings without walking a batter, but despite those numbers allowed 5 runs because of the aforementioned shaky defense.

The lone bright spot offensively for Central Heights was Hannah Savage, who went 3-3 and drove in the Vikings only run as well.

Louisburg dominated Bulldogs in doubleheader

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - The Anderson County Bulldogs struggled mightily in two losses to Louisburg at home on Thursday, 12-5 in the early game and 17-5 in the second game.

Despite the lopsided scores, both contests were decided in the final two innings of each game.

The Bulldogs faced a 5-0 deficit after three innings in the opener before rallying to score one run in the fourth inning and 4 more runs in the fifth to knot the game up at 5.

Louisburg answered quickly in their half of the sixth inning by blowing the game open with 5 runs and tacking on two more in the seventh to close out the victory.

Dalton Duke led Anderson County with 2 hits as he was the only hitter picking up more than one hit in the game.

Mason Louk accounted for the most runs as he was 1-4 with 2 RBI's and scored a run.

Austin Ewert started the game on the mound and struggled with his control, walking 6 batters in 4 1/2 innings. Ewert allowed 5 runs, 4 of them earned runs, and 7 hits.

The back end of the doubleheader saw Louisburg pull away late once again.

With the score tied 3-3 after the third inning, Louisburg pounded out 7 runs in both the fourth and fifth innings to pull away for the 17-5 win.

Louk and Lamb led the way offensively both picking up a pair of hits in the late game.

Freshman Porter Richards ran out of gas in the fourth after pitching solidly for the first three innings.

Richards allowed 10 earned runs in 3 1/2 innings, allowing 7 hits and walking 4.

Viking bats come alive in sweep of Neodesha

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

NEODESHA - The Vikings controlled both games of a baseball doubleheader on the road at Neodesha last week, scoring 30 runs in the two game sweep.

In the opener, Central Heights led 5-0 after just two innings and tacked on 6 more runs in the third to open up an 11-0 lead en route to an 11-1 win. Ethan Shields made easy work of the Neodesha bats. Shields recorded all 9 outs by strikeout before exiting with a commanding lead.

"We pulled him to be able to use him again later if needed or even again on Thursday," head coach Jason Brown said. "Some players would be selfish and worry about their stats, but Ethan never blinked an eye and knew it was what was best for the team."

Shields shined offensively as well going 3-4 with 3 RBIs and one run scored.

Seth Burroughs chipped in getting 2 hits, scoring once, driving in a run and stealing a base.

In the back end of the doubleheader, the Vikings scored in every inning cruising to an easy 19-1 victory.

Shields went 5-6, scoring three times and driving in three more behind two doubles. Kyle Brotherton and Burroughs each picked up 3 hits to help lead the Vikings in the lopsided affair.

Burroughs started the game and went 6 innings, allowing 5 hits and 1 earned run for the win.

Boy Scouts and Scouters of Troop 126 had the opportunity to expand their horizons recently with spring break trips to Wichita and the Cumberland Gap.

A contingent of Troop 126 scouts enjoyed day hiking through the Tanganyika Wildlife Park, an interactive zoo near Wichita. The park offers 10 animal encounters and is the only place in the US with interactive ring-tail lemur, Indian rhino and pygmy hippo exhibits. The scouts also enjoyed interacting with various bird species. After a picnic lunch, the group toured the Museum of World Treasures in the restored Farm & Art Market building located in Old Town Wichita. Scouts viewed various galleries and exhibits including ancient dinosaur fossils, Egyptian mummies and military artifacts from world wars. After a busy day of learning, the scouts enjoyed an overnight stay in a motel with swimming, games and fellowship.

A Troop 126 backpacking crew traveled over spring break to visit the Lincoln Birthplace National Historic Park and backpack a fifty mile section of the Ridge Trail. The five day four night trail trek allowed scouts to experience the beauty of Cumberland Gap National Historic Park which borders Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia through the Cumberland Mountain Range. Scouts worked in conjunction with National Park Service Rangers to perform service work on trail maintenance and conservation measures. Rangers also educated the scouts about the historic significance of various points on the trail. Scouts completing this trek earned the 50 Miler Award and the Historic Trails Award. They were also awarded the National Parks Scouting Service Award for their stewardship efforts.

Nathan Gwin and Bryar Wight enjoy a chilly tour of the Tanganyika Wildlife Park.

American Legion Auxiliary votes to send 2 to Girls State

The ladies of the Garnett American Legion Auxiliary met at the VFW post on April 10th, 2017 and will continue to meet the second Monday of every month.

After a simple meal of soups, sandwiches and desserts the meeting was called to order by President Loydene West.

Chaplain Donna Flamez led us in prayer followed by roll call taken by Secretary Cathy Hoke and answered by 8. After the Pledge of Allegiance and preamble were recited. Cathy read the minutes from our previous meeting held on March 13th, 2017. Treasurer's report was given by Charlotte Grimes. Both were approved as read and entered into record. Membership chairman Loydene West reported that out of the six letters sent requesting dues be paid, one more had paid. Cathy reported 2 letters were returned undeliverable leaving 3 to still collect.

Loydene and Cathy attended the 2nd district convention in Shawnee and shared their experience with other members present. The department ALA convention is scheduled for May 19, 20 & 21st in Topeka. Officers Loydene (President), Charlotte (Treasurer) and Cathy (Secretary) plan to attend. Three delegates were elected in case the officers are not able to attend. They are Wilma McIntosh, Chelsey D'Albini, and Dorothy Lickteig.

Girls State is coming up June 4th thru 9th. We voted to send 2 girls at our March meeting. This is a great opportunity for the girls to learn all aspects of how our government works, preparing them for a possible political career. For any position at any of the local, state or federal levels. Chairman Donna Flamez is to meet with the ACJSH school counselor to get input on offering this opportunity to interested Junior girls. Our deadline is May 15th to get two names submitted.

ALA scholarship Charman Lisa Modlin brought 9 applications in for us to read. We had previously voted to give out 2/500 dollar scholarships this year. After reading these applications and some deliberating we chose 1 girl and 1 boy. Our 2 recipients will be announced at the May 3rd annual presentation of scholarships at ACJSHS. The funds for these scholarships came from our bake sale proceeds, we appreciate everyone who helped raise these funds. We would also like to thank all the students who took time to apply.

Our members do a lot of volunteer work like mission trips, church functions, hospital, museum, An. Co. Vet, Rail Trail, Legion bingo concessions and schools. We have a log book where volunteers hours are logged every monthly meeting and they are quickly adding up.

It was voted to put off election of officers till May to try and find enough members to fill all officer positions. A prayer was given by Donna and the meeting was adjourned at 8:50 p.m. Our next meeting will be held May 8th, 2017 at the VFW post. Meal will be at 6:30p.m. followed by the meeting at 7p.m.

What's your big pitch?

There's a national sandwich franchise that stakes its whole marketing message on a single benefit it wants to convey. Don't do it the way they do, but do it sort of like they do.

The big push through their national TV and radio advertising is that they can get you a sandwich so fast it's practically there before you order it. Why, their delivery is so fast they can even beat the fire department to your house if you order a sandwich at the same time you call 911.

It's a witty and somewhat memorable ad campaign, but I'm not sure if getting your sandwich delivered at near the speed of light is the most important thing to their customers. I've eaten at their franchise restaurants on a dine-in basis and frankly, I wasn't that impressed with their product – it wouldn't really matter how fast they got it to me – it just wasn't that good.

What they've done is to take a relatively parity product – a sandwich is pretty much a sandwich, just like a gallon of gas here is a gallon of gas there – and come up with what they believe is a dominant benefit that makes them more competitive – speed of delivery. Presuming customers are so hungry they can eat the upholstery off the furniture when they order a sandwich, this franchise can get a sandwich to them and satisfy their hunger faster than anyone else. Even if the actual sandwich is, well, meh.....

Yet the concept they're working on is sound, and it's one that can help all of us in small business define our sales and marketing efforts.

In my opinion they missed the mark – I'm not sure delivery speed is the most important thing the customer wants when ordering a sandwich. What is the most important thing? You have to listen to what your customers, and those of your competitors, say.

A great and cheap way to get this customer input is to haunt the online review sites and blog discussions about the product or service your business offers. Customers participating on those online discussions have no reason not to be honest – they're usually anonymous after all – so what you get there are their honest responses. Look for issues and problems that are repeated among the customers who buy your product or service, and you find what to them is a dominant benefit – and a dominant value if you can communicate that point and make good on the promise to provide it.

Maybe the sandwich customer really wants fluffier bread, or tastier meats, a cheaper deal or fresher veggies on his sandwich more so than speed. You don't know unless you listen to him.

Once you have that information regarding your own products or services, you know how to promote yourself.

Local K-State student competes in MBA event

MANHATTAN — A team of Kansas State University Master of Business Administration students, including a Garnett student, took second place at the recent 11th annual Big 12 MBA Case Competition at Baylor University's Hankamer School of Business.

The second-place finish marks the second year in a row that Kansas State University has taken home second-place honors from the competition.

The university's MBA team was comprised of Adam Sobba, Garnett; Drew Hertel, Hays; Blair Kocher, Manhattan; and Adam Zerr, Wakefield. As part of its second-place finish, the team was awarded a cash prize of $3,000, while Hertel also received the Best Q&A Award and a $250 cash prize.

"It was an extremely challenging but rewarding experience," Kocher said. "The case required us to utilize every aspect of our business education to come up with an innovative solution to a complex problem."

The competition challenges MBA students from around the Big 12 with a real-world problem from a local company. Students had 24 hours to research, analyze and recommend a course of action. Each four-member team had 15 minutes to present its analysis and recommendations to judges, followed by a 15-minute Q&A session.

The team was coached by Sabine Turnley and David Lehman, instructors of marketing, and was advised by Chwen Sheu, associate dean for academic programs, and Lynn Waugh, graduate program coordinator.

"Participating in a competition of this caliber allows our MBA students to showcase what they have learned at K-State," Turnley said. "Their outstanding performance this weekend reflects very positively on the quality of the students and teachers we have within our college."

The 2018 Big 12 MBA Case Competition will be hosted by Kansas State University.

Keep these diabetes health tips in mind

An important part of managing your diabetes is testing your blood sugars regularly at home. Depending on your healthcare provider, you may be testing your blood sugar levels one to four times a day. You want to test your blood sugars in the morning before eating or drinking and 1 to 2 hours after a meal. Keep a log of your blood sugars to show to your doctor or pharmacist so they can better manage your therapy. Having your A1c level tested is also an vital marker to help providers determine and adjust your treatment. A1c levels show your average blood sugars for the past 3 months. This blood test is done at your healthcare clinic and should be done at least 2 times per year.

TARGET GLUCOSE LEVELS:

Before meals: 70-130 mg/dL
1 to 2 hours after a meal: < 180 mg/dL
A1c: < 7 %

These target goals have been set by American Diabetes Association. Providers may have different goals that are patient specific.

Diabetic Foot Care

People with diabetes may lose sensation and feeling in their feet. It is important to take care of them to eliminate possible infections that could lead to amputations. Checking your feet daily is the best way to avoid this. Look for cuts, blisters, sores, or redness

If you can't see your feet, have someone check them for you or use a mirror.

Keep your toenails trimmed by cutting them straight across.

Examine your shoes daily to make sure there isn't anything in your shoes that could poke you (rocks, nails, etc)

Wash your feet daily by using warm water and drying them well. Then apply a moisturizing lotion to your feet, but avoid putting it between your toes.

Foot care may need to be done with your primary care provider if a patient is dealing with complications.

Contact AuBurn Pharmacy for details on getting fitted for diabetic shoes! Medicare may cover one pair of diabetic shoes and insoles per year if certain criteria is met.

Living a Healthy Lifestyle

Sleep hygiene is a good first step to being a healthier person. Keeping a regular sleep schedule is key, and getting 8 hours of sleep is recommended.

AVOID:

Taking daytime naps

HEALTH NOTES

CARLEE BAUMAN, AuBurn Pharmacy Intern

Alcohol, caffeine, or large quantities of liquids before bed
Bright lights during the night

Changing your eating habits is the most important aspect of managing your diabetes. Making the right lifestyle changes will help you feel more energetic and improve your quality of life. Some general tips when starting a healthy diet is to focus on small, gradual changes and making realistic goals. Try to avoid processed foods, skipping meals, and drinking your calories. Keeping healthy snacks on hand and preparing meals ahead of time is a good way to maintain a healthy diet.

Physical activity is also important and increases endorphins that can reduce anxiety or depression and help increase your self-esteem. Your goal should be to exercise 5 days each week for at least 30 minutes per day, whether it is going to the gym or just going for a walk. Staying active can help you lose weight, build lean muscle, decrease abdominal fat, and decrease your risk of stroke and heart attack.

Complications of Diabetes

1. Nephropathy – kidney disease or damage

a. Most common cause is diabetes and high blood pressure

b. Best therapy is managing these diseases

2. Vascular Disease – poor circulation which can lead to coronary stress and cause stroke

a. People with diabetes are 2-4x more likely to have a heart attack or stroke

3. Neuropathy – numbness and tingling in your legs and arms which could progress to total loss of feeling in your extremities.

a. Causes nerve pain in 60-70% of diabetic patients

4. High Blood Pressure

5. High Cholesterol

6. Retinopathy – can cause blindness

a. Once a year eye exam is highly recommended in diabetic patients.

The good news after recent weeks' moisture is Anderson County is no longer considered to be in a drought by the National Weather Service, the bad news is the county still isn't doing as well as most of us would have hoped. Last year ended with Anderson County nearly 13 inches below normal precipitation. Although January and February were both nearly an inch over normal moisture levels, March was 1.80 inches below normal. Even though April ended with water standing in low-lying areas of the county, we're still 1.77 inches under the normal 3.55 inches of rainfall we normally get in April.

A Garnett couple has invented a product they hope will lead to a family business in the near future Don White and his wife, Siobhan, of Burns Dental Lab in Garnett, after canoing with their family every summer for the past 30 years or so, designed a cup holder to fit over the edge of canoes and johnboats. They call it the "Can-panion."

After more than a year of local rumor and speculation, Duckwall-ALCO Stores, Inc., formally announced on Tuesday its intention to construct a 22,000 square foot discount store on land it purchased north of the Sherwood Inn on U.S. 59 in Garnett. The announcement came on the heels of Tuesday's purchase of the land by the company, on which ALCO had held options for several months prior to the final closing. Local economic development officials had been working with company management for more than a year to find a suitable site and to rectify minor problems with the land once found.

Seventh Street Road from Garnett to Westphalia was placed in line by county commissioners for some major maintenance, including a $170,000 chip and seal project. Commissioners approved the resurfacing work for the road, as well as a plan to widen portions of the road west of Cedar Creek Bridge due to problems with clearance of farm machinery when trying to accommodate other traffic.

Local people responding to a published survey administered and tabulated by the Garnett Newspapers favored instruction abstinence, venereal diseases, menstruation, and the effects of drugs and alcohol on sex drive and inhibitions as part of an organized sex education program in area schools. The survey was the result of efforts by Crest USD 479 to evaluate public opinion toward the district's development of a sex ed program. Superintendent Carl Otto said he and the school board hoped to use information from the survey, as well as personal input from citizens at two public meetings to design a program on sex ed.

Parkside Place, the new low-income apartment project in east Garnett, has received applications to fill two-thirds of the 32-unit complex, which is scheduled to open later this month.

The congregate meal program in Garnett, which just last week was out of a home, has found a new base of operations at the National Guard Armory in Garnett.

Last week the Garnett City Commission authorized City Manager Mike McDowell to draw up specifications for the construction that will be done at the swimming pool this summer. In response to queries as to why the new third baseball diamond at the north lake is being constructed before the pool renovations are done, as last month's bond issue authorized work for both, McDowell said there are several reasons. One was the fact that the diamond is being built as a regular capital improvement from funds budgeted in 1977. Second, the work on the diamond is such that it can be done by city employees. Work on the pool will go out to several different contractors. Finally, the bond issue authorized only the installation of the lights, no construction on the diamond itself.

All that is left to do is repent

There is one key word that runs through the preaching of John the Baptist, Jesus and Peter. That word is repentance. In Matthew 3:1-2, we read concerning John the Baptist, "In those days John the Baptist came preaching in the Desert of Judea saying, 'Repent for the kingdom of heaven is near.'" In Matthew 4:17 we read how Jesus begins his preaching ministry in Galilee with the same familiar statement. "From that time on Jesus began to preach, 'Repent for the kingdom of heaven is near.'" In Acts chapter 2 we read that on the day of Pentecost, which was an annual feast which occurred during harvest, the Holy Spirit came from heaven and filled the house where the twelve were sitting. In response to this indwelling of the Spirit Peter addresses the crowd and after his address the people fall under conviction and ask Peter and the other apostles, "Brothers what shall we do?" Peter replies, "Repent and be baptized, every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ for the forgiveness of your sins, and you will receive the gift of the Holy Spirit."

The common thread through all three ministries hinges on the command to repent. That makes the word repent seem to be very important and worthy of some discussion. A good starting place would be to define the biblical term repentance. A good definition of repentance would be, a change of mind, or a feeling of remorse or regret for past conduct. True repentance is a godly sorrow for sin, an act of turning around and going in the opposite direction.

Jesus offers up two scriptures to illustrate the point. In Luke 13:3, 5 he says, "Unless you repent you will all likewise perish." In Luke 15:10, Jesus says, "There is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner who repents." These two verses illustrate the negative and the positive side of repentance. It is important to understand that one turns away from sin by repentance and turns to faith which is a turning toward God in accepting Jesus Christ as your personal Savior.

The result of the acceptance of Jesus as our personal Savior is salvation which Jesus attained for us by his death and resurrection. Only true repentance can lead to a fundamental change in a person's relationship to God. That is what Jesus was referring to when he said in John 14:6; "I am the way and the truth and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me."

Now we have discussed repentance all that is left is for you and I to repent.

Powelson gets $500 KFB scholarship

Manhattan - Each year, the Kansas Farm Bureau (KFB) Foundation for Agriculture awards scholarships to college students studying in fields that benefit agriculture and rural Kansas. Thirty-six recipients have received $21,500 in scholarships for the 2017-18 school year.

Caleb Powelson from Anderson County, who is attending Allen Community College, will receive a $500 scholarship. To be eligible, students are attending a Kansas college with a Kansas Farm Bureau Collegiate chapter. Students must be a Farm Bureau Collegiate member.

Over the past decade, the foundation has awarded more than $275,000 in scholarships.

"Developing leaders for tomorrow requires an investment in today's youth," says KFB Foundations Director Harry A. Watts.

After break, get ready to talk about taxes

The 2017 session ended the first week in April and Veto session will begin May 1st, resulting in a 3-week break. It is an opportunity to listen to different perspectives in the district and I appreciate hearing your comments. Some people understand there will most likely be a tax increase because most legislators want to grow government with increased spending. The State must pay obligations but it is hard for taxpayers to understand why government continues to grow when they are struggling to make ends meet. Another concern is that some legislators are trying to pass a retroactive tax increase, starting January 1, 2017 instead of January 1, 2018.

Like many other states, Kansas was hit hard by the 2013 drop in oil prices, the decline in agriculture prices, and some of the aviation sector continues to perform poorly. According to a report put out by the Kansas Department of Revenue (KDR), the rest of the Kansas economy grew, beating the national average. The KDR report also stated new income to Kansas from first time filers was over $1.13 billion, of which $899.47 was considered as taxable income to Kansas. The sectors performing poorly are unrelated to the 2012 Kansas tax cuts, but for some reason, that message has not been made clear.

KANSAS LEGISLATURE

During session, the Senate debated Senate Bill 214, which passed out of the Senate Tax Committee. Some people refer to it as a 'flat-tax'. However, it is not a flat-tax but a single tax bracket. The bill collapses the current two-tiered tax bracket to one tier. It still allowed deductions and itemizing, which a flat tax would not. There were some positive aspects of SB 214. It more than doubled standard deductions, equaling the federal standard deduction. For example, single increased from $3,000 to $6,300; married filing jointly increased from $6,500 to $12,600. The increase eliminated the need for the current 0% income tax bracket - single making $5,000 or less, married making $12,500 or less. It also allowed for 100% of medical deductions. This was the first tax bill this session to address the issue that current law does not allow for medical deductions. SB 214 would also simplify the tax code. With all the positives, there were many reasons Senators did not support the bill. For some, the almost $300 million a year tax increase was too little, for others it was too high of a tax increase, others didn't like that it was retroactive, others didn't like the single tax bracket (they want 3 or more), but for some it was just because the Governor supported the idea. Another reason, and one of the reasons I did not support the bill, was the April taxes had not been collected. The April number is important to understand the State's finances. The bill died with 3 Yes and 37 No Votes.

It is an honor and a privilege to serve as your 12th District State Senator. To contact me, call my office at (785) 296-6838; telephone: (913) 898-2366, or email: Caryn.Tyson@senate.ks.gov
