Local family gets second dose of misery

Yoder's uncle dies
after truck crash on way to family benefit

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GREELEY — A Welda man passed away at a Kansas City-area hospital Monday morning after a highway crash that occurred as he was headed to a fundraiser for a family member recently killed in a hit-and-run incident.

A family member said Troy McDaniel, 51 of Welda, passed away shortly before 8 a.m. Monday of injuries he sustained in Wednesday's accident. He had been sedated and on a ventilator since the wreck in an attempt to stabilize his breathing.

McDaniel lost control of the pickup he was driving southbound about two miles north of Greeley around 5:15 p.m. Wednesday as he was headed home from work in Olathe on U.S. 169. McDaniel was enroute to a fundraiser at Garnett Pizza Hut for the family of his nephew, Clay Yoder, when his vehicle left the road, then re-entered the roadway and overturned into both lanes of traffic. McDaniel is the brother of Rebecca Yoder, whose son Clay Yoder was killed in a hit-and-run incident west of Garnett on June 11.

McDaniel's daughter, Shanda Lee, said her father was not wearing a seatbelt and was ejected from the vehicle in the accident. He was initially unconscious, but was quickly attended to by two nurses also enroute along the highway and by another motorist who took turns performing CPR. They were able to restart his breathing and give first aid to a head wound he sustained until ambulance staff and emergency responders arrived. He was taken by helicopter ambulance to Overland Park Regional Medical Center. She said on Friday her father had no health

Discovery of vehicle parts key to investigation

Affidavit reveals more about evidence in fatality hit-and-run

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Anderson County Sheriff's Office investigators identified parts numbers from vehicle debris found at the scene of a June 11 hit-and-run fatality accident, and then matched those broken parts to a chance sighting of a suspect vehicle in Garnett the following day.

That evidence forms the basis of the county's case against 36 year-old Jason Wilson and Ashley Hobbs, 22, both of Garnett, in the hit-and-run death of 22 year-old Clay Yoder of Mont Ida. The information was detailed in probable cause affidavits for their arrests obtained by The Anderson County Review last week.

Hobbs faces charges of obstructing apprehension or prosecution, giving false information and allowing the operation of a vehicle without insurance. Wilson, alleged to be the driver of the vehicle when the incident occurred, faces similar charges of obstruction and giving false information and also for failing to stop at a fatality accident.

The affidavit, submitted by Anderson County Undersheriff Wes McClain, said he and Lieutenant Todd Turner of the Garnett Police Department encountered a 2004 Bonneville parked at Garnett Subway the day following the incident which matched the description from the debris identification. Officers arrived and questioned Hobbs, the owner of the vehicle, who gave permission for officers to inspect the vehicle.

The affidavit said McClain later retrieved pieces of the debris and matched its broken pieces to damaged portions of the car's passenger side fender well.

Members of the public witnessed the apprehension of both Wilson and Hobbs in real time on social media, as people at and near the restaurant posted updates of what they saw as they occurred. Wilson himself even posted in a discussion on the Review's Facebook page as the investigation played out, defending Hobbs and asserting that damage on the hood of the vehicle, discussed in the Facebook posts, had been there ever since she purchased the car. Those Facebook discussions may have led Wilson

Troy McDaniel of Welda was fatally injured Wednesday when his southbound pickup overturned in the middle of U.S. 169 north of Greeley, McDaniel, whose nephew Clay Yoder was killed in a hit-and-run June 11, was on his way to a family fundraiser at Garnett Pizza Hut when the accident occurred. A family member confirmed McDaniel passed away Monday morning.

Avoid the shame — donate to Saturday's LibertyFest

Fireworks display gets reprieve, but only if watchers donate

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Employees of the City of Garnett and a handful of sponsors are hoping their last-ditch effort to save the LibertyFest Fireworks Display at Lake Garnett this coming Saturday doesn't blow up — and they'll know by who appreciates it enough to make donations.

The $5,000 event was handed off by the Garnett Area Chamber of Commerce this year because of its financial losses in previous years which the organization could no longer sustain. City employees who agreed to host this year's event have enlisted more sponsors and organized local organization labor to receive donations at the gate of the event, but the proof will be in the dollars.

"It's one of those things I think people take for granted," said Garnett City Manager Joyce Martin. "But if people don't help with the costs, eventually it will cease to be."

The event was rekindled in the late 1980s by the Garnett Jaycees, and taken over by the local Chamber when the Jaycees went defunct. An ongoing problem encountered by all the organizers in later years is lack of donations from the public. Though donation stations are typically set up at the gate to Lake Garnett Park, scores of area residents pull up at distant parking lots and backyards to watch the show, but never donate any money.

Major contributors this year include Garnett Lions Club, Rotary International of Garnett, The Anderson County Review, Garnett Knights of Columbus, Southland Cruisers, Lake Garnett Sporting Club and American Legion Post 48, but those sponsors' contributions are still some $4,000 from paying for the event.

Freewill donations will be accepted at park entrances by City of Garnett employees, including the fire department, city hall staff and utility/public works departments who are volunteering their time to help with this community event for your enjoyment. The proceeds of the donations will help pay for the fireworks.

Other events will take place during the day leading up to the fireworks about 9:30 p.m. The schedule for Libertyfest is as follows:

Saturday, July 1
• 6:00 p.m. - Barbecue Dinner, east side of lake: Smoked pulled pork sandwiches, chips, drinks ($4 sandwich only, $6 dinner combo), hosted by Life Assembly of God Church.

- 6:00 p.m. - Kids games (free), east side of lake, hosted by Life Assembly of God.
- 6:00 p.m.- Music by local favorite deejay, Everett Cox. Everett will take requests and play patriotic music during the fireworks.
- 8:00 p.m. - Garnett Area Community Band Outdoor Concert, east side of lake (soccer field). Enjoy your favorite patriotic songs.
- 9:30 p.m. - Libertyfest fireworks display over the lake at sunset (time approximate).

Make plans to bring family and friends for an evening of fun. Lawn chairs are encouraged. Enjoy a picnic, games such as GaGa Ball, music and the fireworks.

Classroom hunt for Ash Borer comes up empty- so far

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Sometime's failure is a good thing. Especially when you're looking for evidence of the Emerald Ash Borer.

The tiny green beetle burrows into ash trees to lay its eggs and its offspring eventually kill the tree. The bug was discovered in Detroit in 2002 and has laid waste to Ash tree populations in the northern Midwest amid efforts to stop its progress south. Todd Mildfelt's students at East Central Kansas Academy in Garnett (formerly Irving Primary Center) have been trying to find them since last September — and happily coming up empty.

The borer spread to Kansas in 2012 and so far has been found in Douglas, Jefferson, Johnson, Shawnee, Doniphan, Leavenworth and Wyandotte counties, according to the Kansas Department of Agriculture. Counties where the borer have been discovered are considered "under quarantine," which restricts movement of ash trees, lumber, firewood and other products that could spread the problem. Infected trees are destroyed to help contain the pest.

"We didn't find any in our trap last fall," Mildfelt told the Review last week. The class researched the parasite problem and even learned how to identify Ash trees from other trees. They assembled a special cone-shaped trap with a scent lure and set up a pulley system on a tree near the school building. Then they waited.

Nothing. "We do plan to try it again this fall," Mildfelt said. "Probably start the lure earlier though maybe - even the end of August."

Mildfelt said Anderson County will probably get a "heads-up" from neighboring counties before the beetle is sited here.

"They did set some traps in Franklin County but didn't turn up anything," he said. "I would guess nothing will show up in Anderson County until they are found in either Franklin or Miami, but that's just a guess."

The importance of being skanky

One of the bitter ironies of feminist culture involves its love/hate relationship with being skanky. And our daughters, even in small towns in Kansas, are paying the price.

On one hand the message to teen girls and young women is “be skanky, be empowered,” and on the other is “don’t allow men to objectify you.” It’s a bipolar theme at best, and regardless, comes at a cost to be borne by those who choose to be loose.

That’s not to say that there aren’t consequences for boys and young men who play their role in skank culture – think Anthony Weiner – and those consequences are completely justified. It’s a 50/50 deal, certainly – but there are unique impacts on women in the eyes of culture and society that make their repercussions different. That may not be fair, but it is the way it is.

You can blame it on a host of factors – the third generation of the sexual revolution; the Internet and Social Media; a liquid-brained popular culture whose celebrities compete with every Tweet cycle for king and queen of skankdom in their effort to sell us something; and of course... the Russians.

The elephant in the room is one – you’re already wondering why – I haven’t mentioned. Parents. I was saving that one. I’ll go it even one better... I’ll lay so much more of the blame at the feet of dads.

After all, who believes the dad who finds out his teenage daughter has been sending naked pictures of her body parts to boys is really shocked about it? Are you telling me there were no signs in advance? Really? Not since the Titanic hit the iceberg has a guy been more asleep at the wheel.

C’mon, Dad. Maybe you’re trying to prove you’re a ‘hip’ dad or maybe you’re just not paying attention, or maybe you are paying attention but you just don’t have the belly for the fight sure to ensue with your daughter over skanky friends, skanky fashion, makeup, tattoos and behavior. If you’re a parent of a tween or teen and don’t occasionally commandeer your kid’s phone for an inspection, you’re an idiot. For dads, particularly dads of daughters, you are occasionally justified to be suspicious, to be outraged, and to make it known.

I hope I’m wrong, but I have a dismal feeling that skanky is an epidemic. If your kid is between the ages of 12 and 17, he or she knows someone – and probably more than one – who has sent or received intimate photos to or from the opposite sex. It’s undignified and stupid for boys, but it is maniacally lame-brained for girls.

REVIEW COMMENTARY

DANE HICKS, Publisher

That’s because girls in particular will continue to pay the social consequences of that poor judgment, even without the Internet. These are the modern-day notches in the virtual bedposts – these photo collections held by some boys of all the girls they’ve been able to convince to send slutty selfies. And once it’s in bits and bytes, particularly once it’s on the Internet, it never goes away. So girls (and boys) live with that fact long after the crush has ended or the bet has been won.

And you never know when or where it might pop up in the future. And girls, here’s some truth: No matter how much he pleads, it isn’t “love.” Think about it – he’s asking for a picture of your nether regions? Excuse me? Ask yourself this... why do you think there are so many unmarried baby mommas out there, trying to raise a kid on their own and usually still living with and leaning on mom and dad for the help they provide, while Prince Charming is still single and out there living the good life? Wise up, for Pete’s sake.

It is a hard world for kids in this age of want and ego and deceit and digital treachery. Girls, don’t build a land mine out of false affection and then jump on it.

If you’re a parent of a tween or teen and don’t occasionally commandeer your kid’s phone for an inspection, you’re an idiot.

I have never called the Phone Forum before, but for the person that thinks alcohol and drug addiction is not a disease, you need to get a freaking life. I do have family and close friends that are alcoholics and trust me, there is nothing worse than an addiction. It is a disease, you freaking idiot.

I live on Seventh Street. I had two semis flying down the street today. Last week I had three semis fly down the street. Sixth Street is the truck route. I wish the police would check that out.

Mr. Hicks I read with interest your article recently about the increase in property taxes that’s been happening all while those businesses and farmers weren’t paying income taxes under Brownback. You said the county taxes were up 32 percent, but what I would really like to know and what you didn’t say in the article is where all that money has gone? Thank you.

To the person in the Phone Forum who said addiction is a choice and not a disease, you really need to look into the science of the issue and not rely on pre-conceived erroneous judgments. Genetics play a role in addiction and even in the immunity to addiction, and also environment plays into the incidence of addiction as well. Please do some research and get a basic understanding of the science involved and then you can be a helpful educator. Thank you.

Distasteful maybe, but hate speech is Free Speech

With the left feverishly attempting to squash unwelcome speech on college campuses, with the president of the United States musing about tightening libel laws, with prominent liberals asserting that so-called hate speech is not protected by the First Amendment, free speech in America at least has one reliable friend – the Supreme Court of the United States.

In a firm 8-0 decision, the court slapped down the Patent and Trademark Office for denying federal trademark registration to a band named “The Slants,” a derogatory term for Asian-Americans. As it happens, The Slants is an Asian-American band that seeks to “reclaim” and “take ownership” of anti-Asian stereotypes (it has released albums called “The Yellow Album” and “Slanted Eyes, Slanted Hearts”). This didn’t matter to the trademark office any more than it presumably would to the dean of students at the average liberal-arts college.

The litigation hinged on a provision of federal trademark law referred to as the “disparagement clause.” This clause forbids registration for any trademark “which may disparage ... persons, living or dead, institutions, beliefs, or national symbols, or bring them into contempt or disrepute.” Taken literally, this provision would forbid the disparagement of the KKK, an institution; or Benito Mussolini, a person who is dead; or Vladimir Putin, a person who is living.

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

RICH LOWRY, King Features Syndicate

The trademark office interprets the clause with all the wisdom you’d expect of a federal bureaucracy. As its manual puts it, an examiner determines whether or not the mark would be found disparaging by a “substantial composite, although not necessarily a majority, of the referenced group.” So, merely a plurality of the offended will do, and common sense is no defense.

This is classic safe-space reasoning -- the harm that would allegedly befall some portion of a group from encountering an offending trademark should trump the free-speech rights of the likes of “The Slants.” The court utterly rejected this posture, deeming it inimical to a free society and untenable under the U.S. Constitution.

In a passage that should be pasted into the student handbook of every college and read aloud by progressives who have convinced themselves that hate speech is not free speech, the court held, “Speech that demeans on the basis of race, ethnicity, gender, religion, age, disability, or any other similar ground is hateful; but the proudest boast of our free speech jurisprudence is that we protect the freedom to express ‘the thought that we hate.’”

As the court’s concurring opinion noted, basing the trademark prohibition on the presumed reactions of an offended group doesn’t help -- “a speech burden based on audience reactions is simply government hostility and intervention in a different guise.”

The disparagement clause was the wedge that activists were trying to use to force the Washington Redskins to change the NFL team’s name (the team has been fighting the cancellation of its trademark in court). And every effort by the speech police to spread their operations from college campuses to the wider society must be resisted.

In this case, they came for a self-described “Chinatown Dance Rock” band with a cheeky name, and the Supreme Court said, Sorry, not in America.

– Rich Lowry is editor of the National Review.

Income tax increase: Back to the bad old days

With passage of what’s being called the state’s biggest tax increase ever this month, the Kansas Legislature put an end to Gov. Sam Brownback’s grand experiment and ended any chance Kansas might have had to curb ever-increasing state spending.

While the tax increase, counted at $1.2 billion over two years, may or may not be the largest ever, it’s more than big enough to put a dent in Kansans’ wallets. And while legislators claim they had a mandate to restore the old tax system, we’ll see how that plays out two and four years from now when the current crop has to run for re-election.

You can expect those who voted to pass the increase, then to override the governor’s veto may be targeted by right-wing groups that will issue mounds of post cards decrying the increase. House and Senate members alike will have to live with their votes.

In the end, the Legislature – trying to expand school spending to satisfy the Supreme Court and suit-happy schools – passed as large a package as has had come to the floor all year. Many claim they had a mandate to go back to the old system, but in politics, believing you have a mandate can be foolish.

Many races could have gone either way, and voters are fickle. We’ll see how that mandate story plays out.

Where did things go wrong in Topeka?

GUEST COMMENTARY

STEVE HAYNES, Haynes Publishing Co.

Two things stand out, really three:

First, when the governor signed a tax-cut bill five years ago that contained more cuts than he proposed but none of the “revenue enhancements” (tax increases such as eliminating deductions) that might have made the cuts work. Later, moderates in the Senate claim they’d been double crossed by the governor, who they claim said he’d get a better bill out of the House in conference committee, but instead signed the wide-open version.

Second, the governor and his allies waged all-out war that fall against Senate moderates he and his backers saw as standing in their way. It’s hard to imagine a bigger mistake, believing that their muscle could prevail over the opposition.

The move succeeded; the moderates were driven from office. But that only created more enemies for the Brownback bunch. Purges never look good; they only create long, bitter memories. And come back to haunt the perpetrators.

Then, exempting owners of “pass-through” businesses, including limited liability companies, subchapter S corporations and partnerships, from all taxation except on the owners’ wages may have been, in marketing terms, the biggest mistake, though the governor defended this provision as necessary to encourage the growth of small business.

Some similar scheme, with limits on tax-free status and provision for paying some tax, might have succeeded. The governor’s plan seemed designed to fail, and it was easy for the opposition to make it most unpopular.

The state likely will head back to the bad old days, when state spending increased well ahead of inflation year after year and “budget cuts” meant cutting back proposed increases, not reduced spending.

That’s not likley what Kansans want, any more than excusing business owners from income taxes. But vital services will get the money they need, and state business will continue apace.

And the next election cycle should be interesting.

1997 - Plans to build a Country Mart announced

10 years ago...
Working under a contract through a grant for the new wireless 911 system, the Anderson County Engineers office has sent out 329 letters to officially change some county residents addresses. County commissioners made the decision over a year ago when an ambulance went to an incorrect address because of the confusion of how the roads were named at that time. Although the change is being made to improve the response time of EMS personnel, some people aren't happy about the change, and some have even said they won't do it.

The head of a Gardner based grocery store chain announced last week plans to construct a 40,000 square foot Country Mart grocery store in Garnett on U.S. Highway 59. The Garnett project will include construction and site development costing some $3 million and employing 100 full and part-time employees. Ground breaking is set for sometime this fall with an opening date planned in the spring of 1998.

According to a report recently compiled by the Federal Reserve Bank, Kansas farmers could be seeing the decline of farmland value start to stabilize if government subsidy programs remain at the current levels. According to the report the main factor affecting land values, the government price supports, have stabilized so the falling farmland values should also stabilize. Prices could go lower, however, if the subsidies the farmers receive for products is lowered.

A day at the KATP

Here it is 2:05pm, 7 June 2017 and I am leaving for Valley Falls, Ks., to attend the 24th annual KATP (Kansas Archaeological Training Program). After traveling 97.1 miles, I arrived in Valley Falls at 4:10pm. It was a beautiful drive, the fields of corn and soybeans look wonderful and are ahead of the crops in Anderson County. The closer to Valley Falls I got, I started seeing lots of hay being mowed and baled. After arriving in Valley Falls, I called Kay to let her know of my safe arrival. Then I took a tour of the town, signed in at the KAA Laboratory which was set-up in the Valley Falls Jr.-Sr. High School and picked me out a good parking/camping spot in one of the schools parking lots. By this time I was getting hungry, so I paid a visit to Simple Simons Pizza House, where I had a wonderful buffet dinner. Tonight was local collectors night from 7-9pm. There were lots of tables set up and displays of all kinds of collections and artifacts brought in by people mainly from the surrounding area. It's now 10:09pm, off to bed for my first night in my truck/camper shell.

Thursday 8 June and up at 6:00am to a beautiful cool-crisp morning. After clean-up and breakfast, I attended the one hour Orientation Class held in the high school given by State Public Archaeologist Virginia Wulfkuhle. Note: Everyone attending this field training school must attend this Orientation presentation before they can go to work in the field or the laboratory.

At 9:30 I left for the field site, traveling only 1.8 miles from Valley Falls along the Delaware River. I reported upon arrival to the Principal Investigator Dr. Brad Logan of Kansas State University, Project Co-ordinator Melanie Naden from the Wichita area and Field Supervisor Nancy Arendt from Colby, Ks. I was immediately placed in charge of the field Dry Screening and was assigned five trainee screeners. Before we began screening, I was briefed by Nancy Arendt on this year's screening procedures and safety precautions.

During screening today several flakes from stone tool making and pottery shards were found. The rest of my day went like this: 10:00 Break (Donuts), 12:00 Lunch Hour, 3:00 Break (Watermelon), 5:00 out of the field, shower time and several of us went to eat at the Bar-Grill called the Elevator. Wow! Was the hamburgers, home-fries and side salads ever delicious. From 7:30-9:30 pm was a Talk: Held in the Valley Falls High School. Mr. Bob Blasing was the speaker. His talk was entitled, How Early Great Plains Tribes Used Seasonal Travel to Obtain Resources (All about edible plants, seeds and roots and how to prepare them). It was very interesting and educational.

To be Cont'd -

Pet a truck and story walk

Law Enforcement to crack down on speeding

Beginning July 21st thru July 23rd, the Anderson County Sheriff's Office will join other Law Enforcement agencies in Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska, Arkansas, Missouri and Oklahoma to stop what has become an epidemic that often has fatal consequences, "speeding" on our streets and highways.

In an effort to change this trend, law enforcement across the six-state area will be extra vigilant when patrolling around city, rural, state and federal highways. As speed increases, the severity of crashes increases, leading to a rise in fatalities and/or serious injuries. Officers are educating drivers and passengers regarding the importance of slowing down, using restraints and not driving while impaired.

There should be no surprises when it comes to this enforcement effort. Officers will issue citations to any individual who refuses to obey traffic laws, whether it is for speeding, texting, driving while impaired or failing to buckle up.

Sheriff Valentine says, "Even one death is unacceptable. Please slow down, put the phone away or turn it off and always buckle up."

What your heart longs for

Before God made man upon the earth he first prepared for him a world of useful and pleasant things for his use and delight. In the Genesis account of creation these are merely listed as things. They were made for man's use, but they were meant to always be external to the man. Deep in the heart of man God made a place for himself and nothing else

5:13-14. What has resulted from this is a people who are restless, uncomfortable. God made us in his image how can we ever be content as long as we do not bear that image?

Among the sayings of the church father's none is better known than Augustine's, "Thou hast formed us for thyself, and our hearts are restless till they find rest in thee." The great Apostle Paul had mastered this, he tells the Philippians in 4:11-13; "I am not saying this because I am in need, for I have learned to be content whatever the circumstance. I know what it is to have plenty. I have learned the secret of being content in any and every situation, whether well fed or hungry, whether living in plenty or in want. I can do everything through him who gives me strength." Our salvation is not in possessions. Our salvation lies in a person, Jesus Christ. All the clutter in our lives only creates restlessness and confusion. This does not allow for any rest or peace. Jesus says in Matthew 11:28; "Come to me, all you who are weary and burdened and I will give you rest." To be honest isn't that what your heart longs for?

was to fill that void. God put man into the Garden of Eden to work and to care for it and God communed with man.

Our problems began when God was forced out of his central place and things were allowed to enter. Instead of serving God man began to think of himself and the words my and mine. These words are rooted deep in the shrine that God had designed for himself and things have become necessary to us, a development never intended by God. God's gifts now take the place of God, and the whole course of nature is upset by this turn of events. None of us can avoid this because it is our natural inclination. We constantly enter the wide gate and take the broad road which Jesus says leads to destruction in Matthew to show up at the restaurant, where McClain's narrative says he was taken into custody. The affidavit said Yoder and his father, Ray Yoder, had been at a local bar and restaurant earlier the night of June 10 and that Clay declined to ride home with his father when it came time to leave, preferring to walk to a nearby party he had learned of.

According to the document, Clay's mother, Becky Yoder, last spoke to him about 2:08 a.m. Sunday morning by cell phone, when she told him she wanted to come get him and bring him home. Clay insisted on walking the rest of the way home, Mrs. Yoder told officers, but she and her nephew went out to find him anyway. After covering several possible routes he might take to get home, Mrs. Yoder told officers she discovered his body around 4:17 a.m. at the south side of 1650 Road about four miles from Garnett.

McClain's affidavit said officers discovered the car parts, one near the body and another about 201 feet north of that location in the road ditch. Kansas Highway Patrol investigators mapped the scene, determining the point of impact to have likely been near the center of the roadway just west of where the body was found. Injuries were consistent with being run over by a low-profile vehicle, the affidavit said.

Wilson was set to appear in court with his counsel at 9:30 a.m. today; Hobbs first appearance with legal representation is 9:30 a.m. July 11.

Memorial Plaques to Replace Santa Fe Depot Walking Tile Project

About 15 to 20 years ago, the Friends of the Prairie Spirit Rail Trail sold memorial tiles through the Santa Fe Depot Walking Tile Project. Tiles could be purchased to be placed outside on the west side of Garnett's depot, the trailhead for the Prairie Spirit Rail Trail State Park.

Anderson Community band to perform

The Anderson Area Community Band, under the direction of John Bechen, invites you to come on down to the Anderson County Courthouse Square, Northside, to a Summer Band Concert at 7:00 p.m. on Thursday, July 13.

On Thursday, July 20, at 7:00 p.m. the Band will perform its final outdoor concert for this summer at the Anderson County Courthouse Square, Northside.

Please bring your lawn chairs to enjoy the music, our lovely downtown, and to visit with friends and neighbors. The band will also be performing Patriotic Songs at the Liberty Fest at 8:00 p.m. on Saturday, July 1, at North Lake, and riding on a float in the Anderson County Fair Parade on Tuesday, July 25, at 7:00 p.m.

er for improvements along the trail. Proceeds from the tiles provided bicycle racks, benches, picnic shelters, tables and trash containers.

The tiles were engraved with special messages or names of businesses, organizations or family names.

Unfortunately, over the years the area of the tile placement has deteriorated due to the weather, vandalism and other factors. Several tiles are broken or cracked. Some are missing and many are loose.

The Friends of the Prairie Spirit Rail Trail after much consideration have determined that it is too costly to try to maintain the tiles outdoors and prevent further deterioration of the area.

The Friends group has therefore decided to place memorial plaques inside the depot with individual plates that contain the original inscription that was on the tile, minus any logo, at no cost to the original donor.

Once the needed information has been gathered from the tiles, a few rows of tiles will be taken up at a time and an attempt will be made to contact the original donors. The donors will be given an opportunity to claim the tile if it is not broken or missing.

The Friends of the Prairie Spirit Rail Trail are saddened by this plan but feel we have exhausted all other options.

There will be a limited number of extra plates available for purchase for anyone wishing to make a donation to the Friends of the Prairie Spirit Rail Trail and have their information included on the memorial plaques.

If you have any questions regarding this decision or have interest in making a donation to this project and have an inscription on the memorial plaques, please contact Friends of the Prairie Spirit Rail Trail through Ruth Theis at 785-448-3639.

Duplicate bridge was played

Lee said Friday her father suffered extensive injuries and had been placed on a ventilator and sedated in an effort to help stabilize him. She said the pressure on the family, considering Clay Yoder's recent death and the circumstances surrounding it, had been substantial. "Everyone is still coping with the recent death of Clay, and for this to happen... it's just one thing after another," Lee said.

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 06-17-2017 / Photo Submitted
Gary & Karen True receiving the American Flag Award for proper use and display of the American Flag.

American Flag Award Winner Announced

The Four Winds Chapter of the NSDAR has chosen Gary and Karen True of rural Coffey County as the winners of the American Flag Award for proper use, correct display, and Patriotic Presentation of the Flag of the United States of America. The True's have a picturesque presentation of the flag flying majestically in their front yard that catches the eye of many people who drive by their beautiful rural setting with landscapes of flower beds, ponds, water gardens, and vegetable gardens. Many people have been heard to say that their yard is so beautiful that they love to slow down and gaze at all of the features that make a setting pleasing to one's eye.

Gary & Karen were married on April 23, 1966. Gary was the son of Gertrude and Henry True of rural Aliceville. Karen was born to Mildred & Joe Highberger of Westphalia. They raised three sons Jeff True, Leroy; Mike True, Wichita; and Chris True of Pilot Point, TX. They have seven grandchildren.

They have flown their flag since the year 2000. On a trip to Branson they purchased their flag pole and their first flag at the Ozark Flag Company. The family had all worked together on the water garden and that is the spot they chose to erect the flag pole in their yard.

Karen's father had served in W.W. II and flew the flag for many years. He was proud of his service and that of the men and women he served with. He flew the flag in their honor. Karen and Gary thought that was a great thing to do and wanted to carry on the tradition.

After 9-11-01 you saw a lot of flags and patriotism was high. Now you see flags flown on Memorial Day, Flag Day, and maybe the Fourth of July. But Gary and Karen flew the flag each day as a way of showing their love for their country and thankfulness for all the blessings that God has bestowed on America.

The True's were presented a certificate from the chapter and one from NSDAR. Thanks for proudly displaying the Flag of the United States to others in the rural community of Westphalia. We, the Four Winds Chapter of the NSDAR, are proud to honor you this year as our recipient of the 2017 U.S. Flag Award.
