Felony charges filed in local man's death

Lloyd Sutton dies from injuries after car slams into storefront

Tuesday night.

Witness statements in a report from the Anderson County Sheriff's Department said Holstine was driving a 1993 Buick LeSabre into the parking lot at the convenience store about 11 p.m. and began yelling from the window that he couldn't stop the vehicle. Kerr told officers he was able to get away from the approaching vehicle, but that it struck Sutton as it impacted the bench and the building behind it. The Buick was registered to Kristy Lynn Prevatte of Garnett, with whom Holstine had a relationship according to the woman's

Ambulance crew held at bay by dogs

County resident calls for ambulance, but his dogs fend off help

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

WESTPHALIA — An Anderson County ambulance crew on a medical call to Westphalia Thursday was repelled by dogs at the residence and had to leave without seeing the patient.

Communications traffic between ambulance personnel and dispatchers said the patient, a 59 year-old male who lived near Westphalia, was apparently not seriously injured after a fall which resulted in the ambulance call. Ambulance personnel said the man was conscious and mobile but that due to aggressive dogs they were not going to approach the scene.

First responders radioed for help in possibly finding a relative of the individual or someone else known to the animals who might help with them. Anderson County Ambulance Director Scott Harris was unavailable for comment late last week, but an ambulance crew member responding to the call said the crew was able to wrangle the most aggressive dog into a bathroom in the house to isolate it so they could treat the patient.

Various news reports show it's not uncommon for loose dogs to clash with first responders on-scene at an emergency, particularly when the incident takes place on the property the dog considers his "turf." The City of Garnett and other smaller towns in Anderson County have dog ordinances that require licensure and pickup of stray dogs when reported, which helps contain the problem to a degree. But the rural areas of Anderson County are subject to no such restrictions, meaning dogs are pretty much free to roam if their owners allow it.

"We really don't have the issue with that being in town," said Garnett City Police Chief Kurt King. "Most aggressive animals are reported pretty quick in city limits. Our policy if we do encounter that is that we do everything we can to prevent from using deadly force on them."

The dog training website www.cesarsway.com recommends tips on socializing a dog who is overprotective, such as not over-reacting emotionally to the dog's protective barking or growling, socializing the dog with other dogs and people who are calm, and exercise with the dog in a public environment while maintaining a calm and assertive presence.

Dogs like Travis Vermillion's Jessie use their instincts and training to work cattle like at Vermillion's ranch at Kincaid, but territorial instincts for some dogs make them a threat for responding emergency personnel.

Donors come through for LibertyFest with enough funds for 2018 nestegg

City employee rally saves event, funds exceed display costs

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — The public and taxpayers came through for the Garnett LibertyFest fireworks display last week, contributing over $5,600 in donations and establishing a fund to start working for next year's show.

Cost of this year's event was $4,800. It was taken over by Garnett city employees after its financial losses stressed the local Garnett Area Chamber of Commerce into giving up the project for 2017.

City commissioners kicked in $2,500 in transient guest tax funding and Anderson County Commissioners fronted the project $1,000. Sponsors and early contributors anteed up $2,400 in advance, and gate traffic the night of the event raised over $3,200, said city manager Joyce Martin.

Martin said the city put together a letter-writing campaign early on to request donations from local civic clubs.

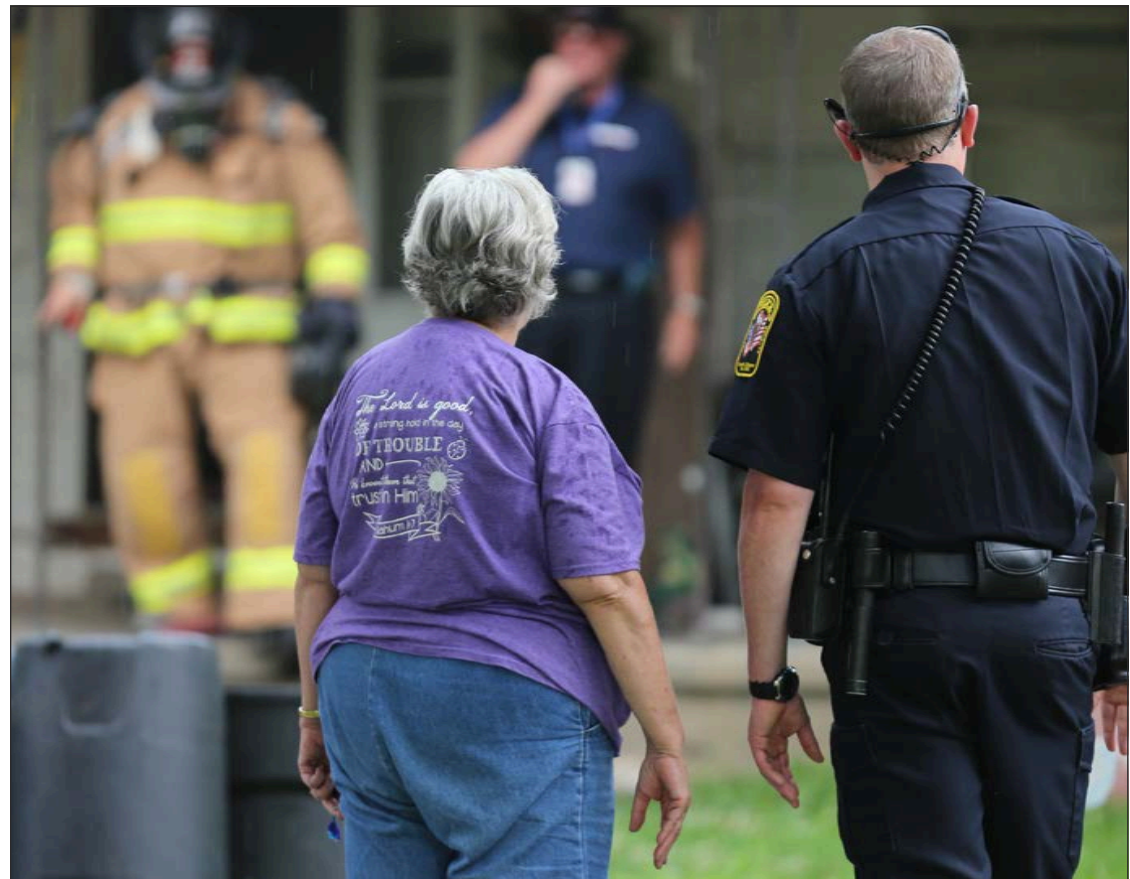

"The organizations really responded," Martin said. "I was completely overwhelmed because the chamber has had trouble meeting the expense of the event in the past. It was a great success as far as I was concerned."

Though many communities of various sizes put a stop to their fireworks displays a few years ago during the recession because of the cost, civic activists and economic development officials maintain the events generate local retail traffic for food and beverage sellers because of family gatherings generated when people get together to watch the displays.

That benefit is still hard to justify for some communities, which have seen the cost of liability insurance for their displays double in recent years. Some communities now require $5 million in insurance coverage whereas $1 million has been the standard in decades past.

In Lawrence, a group of downtown restaurant owners formally sponsored the city's July 4 celebration in Watson Park which culminated in a fireworks display by the Lawrence Jaycees. After funding problems, this year's event was handed off to the organization which runs the town's Busker Festivals and moved to Burcham Park. Last year the city cut back its event spending from over $19,000 to $5,000, and a GoFundMe page set up for the event raised only $240 of its $5,000 goal.

Debbie Ballagh, shown talking to Garnett police officer Robert Donovan, came home from work Friday morning to find her home at 721 W. 8th in Garnett filled with smoke. Firefighters were able to

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 7-11-2017 / DANE HICKS contain the source of the smoke and pump it out of the house. No estimate on damages or the cause was available.

Don't let ticks suck the fun out of your summer

Gnarley little bugs can be controlled with prevention and keeping grassy areas short

BY MELISSA HOBBS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

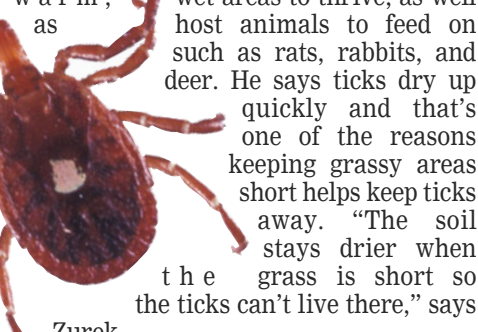

GARNETT — Summertime is the time for county fairs, baseball, and vacations — and locals who recreate and work outdoors are saying they're dealing with all kinds of little pesky critters — particularly ticks. While summertime is always the season for ticks, the warm, wet weather Anderson County has been experiencing makes a perfect environment for the little blood suckers.

According to Ludek Zurek, Professor of Entomology at Kansas State University, although it's nearly impossible to compare year to year what the tick population is, he says researchers gathered hundreds of ticks in a mere two hours while gathering them to study. He says tick populations vary from year to year, and even area to area. The distribution of ticks across the state is even changing, spreading to western Kansas where in previous years they weren't as common.

"Where there were a lot of ticks last week, there might not be any this week,"

Zurek says. He says ticks need warm, wet areas to thrive, as well as animals to feed on such as rats, rabbits, and deer. He says ticks dry up quickly and that's one of the reasons keeping grassy areas short helps keep ticks away. "The soil stays drier when the grass is short so the ticks can't live there," says

Zurek.

Several types of ticks are common in Kansas including the American Dog

Gettler led life of service

Fireman remembered for sense of humor, thoroughness

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Mike Norman of Garnett remembers Jerry Gettler calmly facing an arcing electric line in the Norman's driveway to get power back on at the family's house.

It was a big storm in 1974 and winds and falling tree limbs had knocked down an electric line into a puddle under the Norman's car.

"My mom was afraid it was going to catch the car on fire," Mike Norman said. "It was laying there arcing the whole time. City crews were all over the place so there wasn't any help right away. Jerry managed to stop it and

TICKS MAKE SUMMER ICKY...

Tick, Brown Dog Tick, Black Legged Tick (also known as the deer tick), and the most commonly found tick, the Lone Star Tick. Zurek explained that the Lone Star Tick is the most common type of tick routinely seen because all stages of them are able to feed on people, but luckily, they are the least likely to carry disease.

Most people think of Lyme Disease first when talking about tick borne illnesses, but there are several others that have been seen in Kansas, including two relatively new diseases. Ehrlichiosis, Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever, Southern Tick Associated Rash Illness (STARI), and Lyme Disease have been around for years, but more recently found are the Powassan and Bourbon viruses.

Symptoms of many of the illnesses include rash, neck stiffness, headache, nausea, weakness, muscle or joint pain or achiness, and fever. However, the good news is, according to Zurek, is that a tick must feed off of its host for 24 hours to transmit a disease.

He says the best measures to protect yourself from ticks is to keep your yard mowed short, use a good insect repellent, and check yourself well after spending time outdoors. Zurek also recommends showering before going to bed so it gives the tick less time to be attached. If you do find one attached, grasp as closely to the skin as possible with tweezers, pull upward with steady, even pressure and don't twist or jerk the tick until it is removed.

When logic has no home

Health care: When will either party realize that collectivization of payments for health care, either privately through health insurance companies or publicly through the government, isn't the answer and in fact has fueled the crisis of pricing in American healthcare?

There might possibly be enough money to pay the constantly rising costs of health care as an entitlement for the entirety of an expanding and aging population, but I wonder if we'd have to pawn the armed services, the U.S. Postal Service and the Washington Monument to pay for it?

Somehow we've managed to focus the issue on health insurance, and on who has access to it and who doesn't, when the issue really isn't health insurance at all: it's the pricing of health care that denies people access.

Health care isn't like the market for any other product, where supply and demand basically determine pricing. There's no competition - you don't shop around for your heart valve replacement. Prices escalate because some patients have someone else who pays their bill (insurance companies) and some people don't, and both pricing and payments have to attempt to cover the people who can't pay their own charges.

What Republicans and Democrats aren't telling you is that the path we're on never leads out of the wilderness - they can't tell you that because you wouldn't re-elect them. The truth is a bitter pill.

Back in the early 1990s reimbursement laws paid nearly if not 100% of home health care costs. As a result home health businesses popped up all over the place - every RN tired of the 6 p.m.-6 a.m. shift hired a CNA or two and opened up shop. When the reimbursement laws changed, nearly all those home health operations shut down.

Who could blame them? They were just following the money. This is the same reason a helicopter ambulance ride to a Kansas City-area hospital from a wreck scene in Anderson County costs $30,000, but you can fly all over Branson with one of those road-side chopper outfits for $79.

The solution isn't simple but it's quite apparent - make it illegal for providers to bill third party insurers. In effect, do away with health insurance, and base the argument on how to subsidize to the elderly and disabled - people who legitimately can't pay their medical bills - similar to Section 8 housing. Continuing the health insurance system as-is will only fuel higher costs and compound the problem of limited access.

Hemp: For the life of me, I don't understand why the Kansas Legislature won't fully overturn state laws outlawing industrial hemp and allow farmers and private investors to open up a whole new revenue and tax-producing industry in the state. In a time when the Kansas economy needs every possible economic option, leadership in the legislature still restrict hemp like it's full of uranium or something. Tons of other states have legalized it, promote growing it and sell the dickens out of it for all manner of uses. Kansas however wants to test it (it's been grown and made into fabrics and medicines for 10,000 years - the testing phase is pretty much proven) and have some pointy-headed professors at K-State give it the thumbs up first. Ludicrous.

Not My Voter: Why are election officials in various states so fired up against any effort to curtail illegal voting? Sure, no one really wants more federal interference in the state's business, but refusing to participate with information which is already public record and available to anyone who requests it makes us wonder what they're trying to hide.

Part of it is simply more Never Trump rhetoric, but the fact is politicians and lobby groups have been collecting and analyzing this data for decades. Why do you think you get so much junk mail during election seasons?

James O'Keefe's Project Veritas recorded secret video prior to the 2016 election of Democrat political operatives giving explicit detail about their actions to flood certain critical voting polls with illegal voters - two targets of that investigation lost their jobs as a result, and one worked for Hillary Clinton's campaign. Pew Center research from 2012 shows 2 million dead people still on U.S. voter rolls, and 3 million registered in multiple states. That's not evidence of outright voter fraud, but it certainly lays the groundwork. Think about that the next time a controversial bond issue comes up in your school district or municipality or a race tightens between two candidates. Every vote matters.

So the feds should offer a carrot - like a seat cushion to each of those valiant volunteers who work polling stations for their precincts every election.

It all just seems like common sense to me.

Record your comments on the topic of your choice at (785) 448-2500, press option 1. You do not need to leave your name. Comments will be published anonymously. Calls may be edited for publication or omitted.

About your article on skanks as you call them. You should be ashamed. Is slut shaming supposed to be beneficial for any young woman? Who are you as a middle-aged man to tell women what they can and can't do with their bodies? Is this the attempt of a failing newspaper to try to save readership? I am truly appalled at this and you have not heard the end of this sir.

I thought it was very inappropriate for the current city manager to make comments in the most recent issue of the Town Talk publication discouraging people from taking advantage of the Phone Forum in this paper. While she may not like the feature, she should not make statements in an official capacity in her column in a city-sponsored and published newsletter to make negative comments about a local business which pays taxes which in part pay her salary. I think the Phone Forum serves a very valuable and much needed purpose in a town this size, with its extensive good ole boy, old money and small town politics atmosphere which is so deeply entrenched. Take for one example the recent comments about a local police officer taking a local police car out of town. I certainly wouldn't want to be identified as the person who made those comments. I probably wouldn't have been able to drive my car through town with a low tire without getting a citation for an unsafe vehicle. That's how things have long worked in many small towns. Calling in the situation anonymously has at least brought the situation to light so it can be properly addressed with no fear of reprisal on the person who made the complaint. Even my own negative comments in this call about the city manager could very likely complicate things if I should ever need a building permit, zoning variance, etc., if my identity were known. Thank you.

Mr. Hicks, thank you for having the courage to print the editorial about kids sending each other these naked selfies and various other low behaviors. I'm so glad someone is willing to call these behaviors out for what they are - filth and detrimental to girls - instead of enabling all these little babies who can do no wrong. Thank you.

So our so-called county road supervisor wants the public to do his job driving around the county to check roads while he's sitting in air conditioned office earning a big fat paycheck in his million-dollar Taj Mahal he just had to have. He's the reason our taxes are going up, up and away. He things money grows on trees. It's way past time for a leadership change.

The Ronald Reagan we've all forgotten

Does anyone really know Ronald Reagan? In his new book "The Working Class Republican," a bracingly revisionist account of the 40th president, Henry Olsen answers "no." One of the most astute political analysts at work today and a fellow at the Ethics and Public Policy Center, Olsen argues that Reagan's politics bear the distinctive stamp of his origins as a New Deal Democrat. Olsen's interpretation of what he calls "Reagan's New Deal conservatism" is open to dispute. But he undoubtedly is correct that contemporary conservative politicians do Reagan - and themselves - a disservice by remembering him as an unremitting ideologue and tactical maximalist.

As late as 1980, Reagan had still been a Democrat longer than he had been a Republican. As he put it, characteristically, in his 1984 acceptance speech, "Did I leave the Democratic Party, or did the leadership of that party leave not just me but millions of patriotic Democrats who believed in the principles and philosophy of that platform?"

With an eye to these sorts of voters throughout his career and with a sensibility attuned to their concerns, Reagan didn't simply replicate the let-it-all-hang-out, high-octane conservatism of Barry Goldwater.

He never contested the idea that there should be a safety net. In his famous speech promoting Goldwater's candidacy in 1964, Reagan stipulated, "We're for a provision that

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

destitution should not follow unemployment by reason of old age, and to that end we have accepted Social Security as a step toward meeting the problem."

That said, Reagan was hardly a friend of the welfare state. His 1964 speech attacked farm programs, government planning, welfare, the size and power of bureaucracy, and regulations that "have cost us many of our constitutional safeguards."

He extolled the common man, "the forgotten American," and his innate dignity. In his first inaugural address, Reagan hailed the "men and women who raise our food, patrol our streets, man our mines and factories, teach our children, keep our homes, and heal us when we're sick - professionals, industrialists, shopkeepers, clerks, cabbies, and truck drivers."

He didn't support tax cuts for the rich so much as tax cuts for everyone, and didn't obsess over entrepreneurship.

He had a pragmatic cast. In his campaign for governor of California, he noted that "public officials are elected primarily for one purpose - to solve public problems." Hostile to taxes, he nevertheless raised them as governor of California in response to a budget crisis, and as president as part of a Social Security deal. A free-trader, he brushed back the Japanese on trade.

Reagan's tone and program, coupled with his generational talent as a politician, allowed him to unlock the working-class vote in his races for governor and president. "The Reagan Democrat" has been part of our political vocabulary ever since. It is telling how President Donald Trump - not having learned the purported lessons of Reagan - was able to go and get these voters in a way that Republican politicians bound by Reaganite truisms were not.

Reagan was a constitutional conservative, although an exceptionally gifted one who understood how to meet Americans where they live. In this important book, Henry Olsen reminds us how.

Parades faded with shrinking Kansas paychecks

Legislators who were planning how to get from one Independence Day parade to another in their districts last week probably had a pretty good time, as long as the parades were done before the constituents they tossed candy to along the parade routes figured out their paychecks have shrunk.

That happy waving was because it may be a week or so before the effect of the biggest tax increase in state history starts coming out of those voters' paychecks through higher withholding to pay their higher taxes for the current and next tax year.

Nope, nobody really said much about that during debates in the House or Senate or the debate preceding lawmakers' override of Gov. Sam Brownback's veto of the tax bill.

That rejection of the governor's economic development plan, which never seemed to work as he envisioned, saw 27 senators and 88 House members vote to enact the bill notwithstanding the governor's veto.

While it was an "us vs. Brownback" vote for most legislators who are now home and among us, those folks along the parade routes on the 4th of July won't have seen what happens to them with passage of the bill that will raise about $600 million a year in increased state revenues.

You didn't see a float in those Independence Day parades for those LLC owners and other non-wage income earners. Nope, they were saving up their money for the first state income tax bill they've paid in four years.

But also mission was a float for the rest of Kansans, who in the days after the parade are going to see their paychecks shrink as their tax rate increases trigger higher withholding from their payroll. Not much, mind you. Maybe $5 or $10 or a little more depending on just what you earn. But, the check that we've gotten used to will be smaller by the end of the month when employers have tallied up the increased withholding necessary for you to make your tax payment without having to sell your car.

If there's a benefit to that higher-withholding/smaller take-home-pay business, it is that the Department of Revenue has decided to make that change in withholding all at once. That means that the small increase in taxes on your income since Jan. 1 - which is that "retroactive" tax increase business you heard lawmakers wail against during the session -

STATE COMMENTARY

will likely be covered by withholding for the remainder of this tax year.

So that stutter-step partial income tax rate increase for the rest of this year likely will be covered by withholding at the level that will be needed for Tax Year 2018, when the new, higher permanent-until-changed-again rates click in on Jan. 1, 2018.

Yes, the LLCs got their due, but two-thirds of the new revenue for the state is from everyone else. Not much talk about that, was there?

So, while you're watching the parades, you might try to spot your Senate or House members marching. They'll probably be the ones looking over their shoulder as they try to keep up with the band. Depending on the political leanings of your town, those legislators (and at least House members who will be seeking re-election next year) might decide to not lead the parade, but maybe march behind the motorcycle club by which time interest will be waning.

Very practically, the tax increase was needed, especially with a new school finance bill and its increased costs waiting for Supreme Court consideration this month. But, you just gotta wonder whether some Kansans, relieved that the Legislature is out of session and our lifestyles not jeopardized by a mere majority of a quorum, are going to be surprised what happens to their paychecks...

KATP searches yielded two Native American roasting pits

12 June 2017
The annual KATP is winding down. Up at 6:45 am and it is already quite warm and windy here in Valley Falls. We completed dry screening today. So I will be assigned to wherever I'm needed the remainder of my time here.

The big excitement of the day was the exposure of two fired limestone-sandstone Native American roasting pits during excavation. Some charcoal and ash was found in the pits, but very few bones of any kind. What bones were found, were mostly from deer. No large bones were uncovered at all.

Scallorn arrowheads (points) and cord impressed pottery were the common finds in some units.

A group of us gathered at the "Elevator" for dinner this evening and just sat and visited as there was no evening program scheduled.

Today was another very "hot" day.

13 June 2017
Up at 6:00 am this morning. Very humid, but we do have a slight southerly breeze.

My job this morning was dismantling all seven shaker screens and loading them on the state equipment trailer.

DIGGING UP THE PAST

Henry Roeckers
Call (785) 448-6244 for local archeology information.

During excavation today, they found some beautiful scallorn points, a very nice stone knife and more deer and beaver bones. I spent my afternoon helping to move water screening bags of soil to a central location for pick-up by wheel barrow.

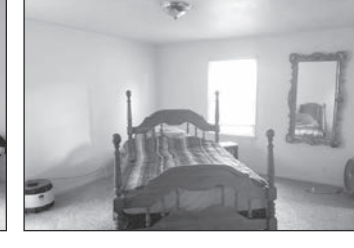

Again several of us met at the "Elevator" for dinner before going to the evening program, a Talk: "Captured!" Kansas Pioneer Women Held In Indian Captivity: given by Sandra Wiechert. Very, very interesting.

Well tomorrow will my last full work day at Valley Falls. I will be writing about the 2017 KATP wrap up and my trip home in my next column.

Four Garnett Area Businesses Receive State Recognition

GARNETT, KS- The Kansas Department of Commerce announced 19 Regional Business of Excellence Award winners and 44 Merit Award winners as a part of the 2017 Business Appreciation Month that took place in June. Kansas businesses are recognized for the contributions made to their communities and the state economy in one of four categories, including service, retail, manufacturing/distribution and hospital/non-profit.

"Business Appreciation Month gives the Commerce Department the opportunity to show its support, recognition and gratitude for the businesses who work hard to excel in the State of Kansas," said Kansas Commerce Secretary Antonio Soave.

A total of four (4) award winners were nominated by the City of Garnett and were presented their awards during the June 27th Garnett City Commission meeting. They are as follows:

Prairie Belle's Kitchen and Catering

Prairie Belle's Kitchen and Catering is a restaurant serving homemade specials and desserts each day. They serve a full sitting idle, and a community that had a craving for an exceptional restaurant, Prairie Belle's answered the call and came to our rescue. They have never received any awards or accolades of which they are very deserving of."

Prairie Belle's, located at 130 E. 5th Avenue is owned by Danelle McGhee and her mother-in-law Christy McGhee. They believe their partnership is a unique piece of information when accepting this nomination. When seeing this pair at work you know immediately what a great combo they make. Danelle and Christy work alongside their employees each day and perform the same tasks and duties as their employees, from washing dishes to cleaning bathrooms. They take pride in presenting a very clean restaurant with homemade, fresh food each day. They are very attentive when it comes to their display and degree of elegance with their catering.

Rockers Photography

Rockers Photography is a family owned, full service studio located at 32528 NE Norton Road in the Old Rock Schoolhouse at Scipio (rural Garnett). For 35 years they have served numerous generations in Anderson County and surrounding areas. Rockers Photography has remained a leading senior portrait studio in southeast Kansas. Their storybook weddings create priceless keepsakes for couples and their family and children's' portraiture. The Rockers team are seen frequently throughout the Garnett area photographing events and sports activities.

During the conception of starting their own business Ben and Katie Rockers acquired the use of an older school house for their business. The buildings purchased include a one room rock school building built in 1875 and attached building made of brick, built in 1912. The Rockers renovated each of these buildings rich in local history for the "local family" (Rockers family is quite large in this area), and the unincorporated community of Scipio in Anderson County. "It's been an honor to photograph as historians and portrait photographers the many families of generations, community and events. As a family-owned business, each of us believe that in giving of our skills and talents it will help to make our towns, cities and communities stronger, as well as our fellow local businesses." - Ben and Katie Rockers.

sphere is a very fitting place to set the mood for this.

Rockers is very involved in continued education through the Kansas Professional Photographers Association, attending its annual school, as well as Katie Rockers is an administrator for the school. Rockers Photography continue to be recognized by their peers, statewide and nationally.

Owner Ben is active in the community as an EMT qualified First Responder, volunteer firefighter for Greeley, and a member of the Optimist Club and Knights of Columbus. Doing business as Rockers Photography they support, market and advertise to promote organizations and events. Many times they provide full-color posters, graphic design work and photography to the Chamber Players Community Theatre, Greeley Smokeoff, the Anderson County Fair, Cornstock, and are very big supporters of WINGS (Women son or persons given accolades who captures the experiences; the moments in time you never get to relive again. Rockers Photography is a family business in more than one way. Their profession may be taking pictures, but what they do builds pride, develops a sense of belonging to a place. Some may say the value of photography due to everyone having a cell phone camera may have diminished. But we beg to differ with you when it comes to this iconic business in Anderson County. Rockers Photography continues to evolve. Their legacy as a business, family and as volunteers will forever leave a lasting impression on the City while enticing people from surrounding counties.

Each day you will see farm trucks, tractors, horse and buggies, as well as family cars parked in the large gravel parking lot. In the summertime it is the place to stop on the way to Garnett's Cedar Valley Reservoir. RV's and campers, boaters and ATV enthusiasts stop by Yoder's Country Store to stock up for their weekend adventure at our city lakes.

Those who enjoy the holidays and baking traditions love this store with its huge variety of baking and cooking supplies, from chocolate chips to flour, to spices and herbs packaged by weight in different sizes depending upon your desire.

On occasion, Garnett Tourism has made Yoder's Country Store a tour stop when bus tours come to town for its country charm and small town hospitality that many city folk just can't find. They were a 2017 nominee for Business of the Year during the Garnett Area Chamber of Commerce Annual Banquet.

"Yoder's Country Store fills a void; an experience, that is a precious commodity in our community", says City Manager Joyce Martin. "Until you can say you've eaten a Rooster (name of their biggest deli sandwich), you haven't lived."

get the power hooked back up to our house."

Gettler, a former U.S. Marine, restaurant and dry-wall business owner, boy scout leader, city codes inspector and fixture on the local fire department for decades, passed away July 5 at the age of 83.

He was remembered last week as a thorough leader with a bright sense of humor who was committed to people and those who served in various capacities with him. Norman, a former firefighter who grew up with Gettler as a boy scout leader, said any prank was fair game.

"You might go to sleep on a camp out and wake up to find your tent 30 feet away," Norman said. Under Gettler's direction, Norman said scouts plumbed and wired the old boy scout building in Lake Garnett Park and remodeled the basement of the Methodist Church, which hosted scout meetings.

"He wasn't just a good leader, he was a good educator, too," Norman said.

Gettler was perhaps most visible in his roll as fire chief and later codes inspector for the City of Garnett.

Anderson County Emergency Preparedness Director J.D. Mersman said he remembered Gettler's influence years ago when Mersman's father, also a volunteer fireman, used to take him to fire meetings.

"I remember Jerry and all the guys treating me like their own son," Mersman said. "That was my first exposure to the fire service and the family that comes with it. Jerry instilled that mentality of 'we laugh together, we cry together, but when the job needs done we do it'."

Former Anderson County Fire Chief Gary Benjamin said Gettler's dependability was a source of security to all the firemen he trained and who responded to emergencies with him, even in the days when local government struggled to fund equipment with nearly wholly local funds.

"Jerry had the attitude that no matter what we have, we're going and we're going to get the job done," Benjamin said. "I always felt like he had my back."

Gettler's funeral services were held Saturday in Garnett.

Sutton was taken to Anderson County Hospital and later transferred to a Kansas

QSI Provides Addition to Richmond Fair Show Arena

The excitement and satisfaction of having a big, new show arena at the Richmond Free Fair last year had barely subsided when fair board members realized they needed even more space for livestock. Again, here came Rob Pearce and QSI (Quality Structures, Inc.) to the rescue. QSI provided the materials and men to build a 20 X 60 ft. addition (usually called a lean-to) on the south side of the show arena it built last year, making room for carry-over animals and a much better arrangement and traffic pattern, said Doyle Sobba who headed the project. Richmond Free Fair now has space for at least 70 head of cattle, 60-70 head of sheep and goats, and 100 hogs, he said.

Doyle Sobba in front of the addition to the fair barn at Richmond. Sobba headed the 20x60 foot addition that was provided by QSI (Quality Structures, Inc.), which will allow much more room for livestock.

"This lean-to will allow the bigger calves and bottle calves to be separate and less congested, and helps keep younger kids away from older kids, which is good for safety reasons," said Sobba. QSI also built a 15 X 16 ft. much-needed covered announcer's box which is attached to one of the main barns and located just right for the show arena. It has lights and plenty of electrical plug-ins. Rob Pearce, president of QSI, said this about his company's contributions to the Richmond Fair: "QSI is grateful for the many blessings the Richmond, Garnett and Princeton areas have bestowed upon us. We are excited to be able to help with the donation of the addition and announcer's box this year." "A majority of our employees live in this area; many have children who participate in the local fairs and 4-H programs. It is our commitment to being family oriented that creates outcomes such as the structures we've donated to the Richmond Free Fair." "We look forward to many more years of being a productive corporate citizen within the community. Hope to see you at the fair," Pearce continued. After QSI completed the pole barn style addition, several volunteers spent a day building pens, panels and doing the finishing. That work day included Brian Ferguson, Ralph Ferguson, Mike Peters, Ed Anderson, Jeral and Vance Hahn, Darla and Evan Arnett, Doyle and Laurinda Sobba, Galen Wichman, Lester Wuertz, and Sarah Peters who is fair board president. On another workday, mesh tarps will be added to the bleachers. Doyle Sobba knows he can speak for others when he said,

"Many of the board members were 4-H members themselves or had kids who were in 4-H, and we know the value of 4-H, even through several generations. We want to provide the best opportunities we can for members to compete and succeed. With QSI's help, we have excellent livestock facilities now, and we're thankful for that." Fair board treasurer Cindi Dryden said, "Although my kids didn't have livestock as 4-H members, they had entries in several other projects and always had good experiences at the Richmond Fair. I'm glad I can help some." One former 4-H'er who is "giving back" is David Rossman of Performance Electric of Ottawa, who is doing the electrical work and providing much of it. The fair board, 4-H parents and members, and others in the community are more grateful than they can say to QSI, Performance Electric, and everyone who has helped in any way with improvements at the fair. The Richmond Fair now has two 30 X 100 ft. barns, a 60 X 80 Ft. barn, and a 40 X 24 ft. chicken and rabbit barn which has new wire all the way around this year. Funds to cover that wire and the new pens and panels are from last year's successful "Raise the Barn" event. Gone are the days of tents, tie-down stalls that were dangerous, and related problems.... and that's great! The fair facilities have developed over the years with the work and donations of many people. But the most recent additions are due mostly to the vision and planning of the Sobbas and huge donations by QSI. As Rob Pearce said, "See you at the fair!"

Appreciation Recognition

The Richmond Free Fair invites everyone to an Appreciation Ceremony at 6 pm Thursday, July 13th, at the show arena, to recognize Rob Pearce of QSI for donation of the addition to the fair's livestock facility; and to honor the late George Steinberger for his dedication to the fair, for greatly enhancing the horse show, adding Cowboy Olympics and related activities. Marge Steinberger will accept this appreciation for her late husband. This will be followed by a watermelon feed provided by TT&T, Cowboy Olympics which is open to everyone, and the music show Gravel Road Break Down near the Community Building.

Variety of displays at 13th Open Doors

The United Methodist Church, across the street from the Richmond Fair, will open its doors to Fellowship Hall for the 13th year, and it is expected the hall will be full of all kinds of interesting and educational displays. Hours are 4-8 p.m. each evening of the fair, July 13, 14 & 15.

Some of the collections and hobbies that will be shown include: Spirit Trail photos by Lynn Anderson, model airplanes by Roy Baker, quilts by Carol Reekie and Arlen Hall, Central Heights' Honor Flight, match books by Lorene Stockard, photography by Pamela Peters, World War I by the Richmond Museum, Native American art and objects by Charles Prue, model tractors by Marvin Gretencord, glass baskets by Sara and Kim Wood, wedding gifts by United Methodist Women and others, and displays by Ottawa Art Guild and the Carnegie Cultural Center.

"There will be additional displays," said Mary L. Hall who coordinates and oversees the event. There are usually about 25 tables/shelves, which pretty well fill the hall. There are no sales, no advertising, no judging--- just items for enjoyment and general learning.

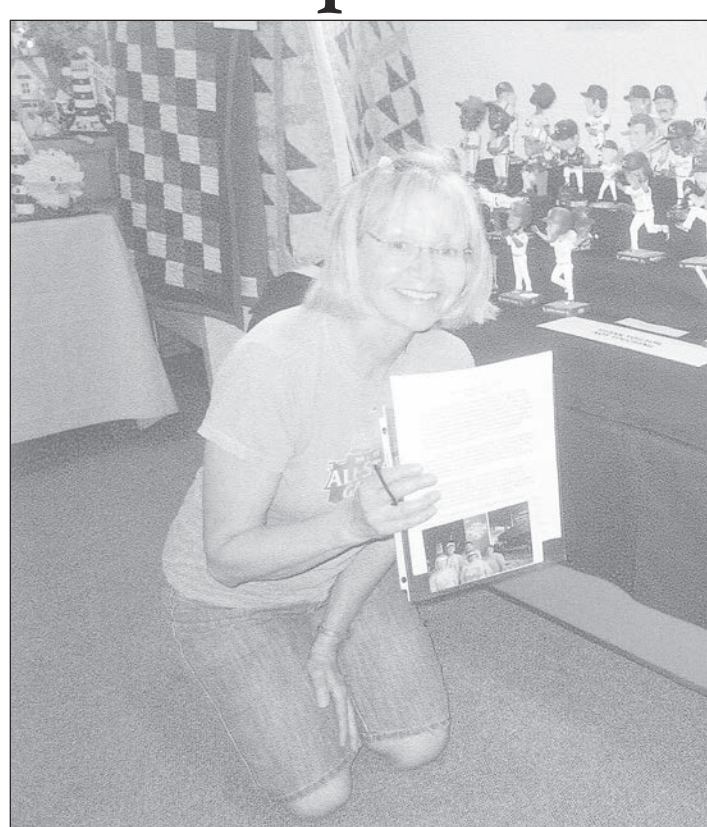

Call Hall at 835-6379 if you have something you'd like to have at this "show and tell." There's always room for another display or two, she said.

Come in, enjoy the air-conditioning, have a cool drink, rest at the 'book table' and enjoy displays while visiting with friends.

Notebooks of pictures of Open Doors, and a few albums from the Richmond Museum including Dorothy Lickteig's book "Richmond Gleanings" will be on the book table for you to see.

After you've visited the fair and museum on the south side of the street, cross over to the church and visit Open Doors from 4-8 p.m. each evening.

It's an almost sure thing you'll see some things you've never seen before!

 The Royals bobbleheads were a fun thing to see at last year's Open Doors at the United Methodist Church on fair evenings. They are collected and were shown by Dottie Lickteig of Overland Park.

There won't be a horse show this year

A big change in this year's Richmond Free Fair is that there will be NO horse show (competition), said board member Laurinda Sobba. The horse show had been organized for several years by the late George Steinberger who used his Homestead Ranch and was the reason the horse show was successful.

A page in this year's Richmond Free Fair book honors George, 1937-2017, and recognizes his many years of leadership and guidance with young people and their horses. In addition, he will be recognized at an Appreciation Time Thursday, July 13th, 6 p.m. at the new show arena addition. All are invited to show appreciation to George's memory and to Rob Pearce of QSI.

Especially honored as Fair Parade Marshals will be Arlen and Mary Hall who have been contributing to the fair in various ways for about 50 years. For 13 years, Mary has organized and supervised Open Doors at the United Methodist Church, a fun time to show hobbies and collections for enjoyment. Visitors can come in from 4-8 p.m., and relax as they see the 25 or more interesting displays. Arlen is always her top assistant. Much appreciation to Arlen and Mary!

In summarizing last year's fair, Sr. Loretta Roeckers said there were 794 entries by 189 exhibitors who came from six counties and five states. The counties in addition to Franklin and Anderson were Miami, Linn, Johnson and Reno. The states in addition to Kansas were Missouri, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Texas.

With great new livestock space and show arena, it is likely there will be more animals than in previous years.

A quilt reflecting a lifelong friendship will be on display at 'Open Doors'

A beautiful quilt with special meaning that reflects a friendship of 58 years of two California girls will be displayed at Open Doors at the United Methodist Church during the Richmond Free Fair.

That friendship began in kindergarten and lasted through high school, and despite a separation of 40 years before their reunion, has found its way to a Richmond area farm in an unusual but touching way. Donna (Ibison) Fernandez left her California home to move permanently to "the old home place" in rural Richmond in 2012 and before long her friend, Joanna Hansen of near Seattle, WA, came to visit to see the setting of so many things Donna had written to her over the years.

As girls, they were nearly inseparable look-alikes, about the same size, with glasses, ponytails and a common love for horses. When Jo moved away for a time, they corresponded by mail and continued to do so in the summers which Donna always spent on her grandparents' farm. (Her grandparents were Maud and Forest 'Frosty' Price who lived on Lane, now Cloud, Road.) "One summer, we really confused mail carrier Abe Severns by addressing our letters to and from Frank and Jesse James," said Donna. "At the time we were both quite smitten with the stars of the popular TV series The Legend of Jesse James." But...time moved on.

Following high school, the girls went in different directions. Jo went to UCLA and ultimately got a PhD in microbiology. Donna attended California State Polytechnic University and went on to earn a law degree.

They kept in contact but didn't get together for nearly 40 years when they visited each other at their respective homes in Washington state and Southern California.

In October 2011 they made good on a trip they had been scheming about for a long time. They met in Galway, Ireland, for eight days of horseback riding in the Connemara, followed by a couple of extra days sightseeing in Dublin.

By then, Jo had become a master quilter and always looked for fabrics and patterns when she traveled. She often made a quilt or wall-hanging to represent places she visited. She came across a book about certain women... women she'd heard about who reminded her of her friend Donna. The book is "She Came from Kansas" and features 12 women whose lives span 169 years, from Mary Ann Bikerdike, born in 1817, to Marmie Williams, who died in 1986.

Written by Sandy

Humphreys and Sue Horton, the subtitle is "A Sample Quilt Celebrating Remarkable Kansas Women."

Included in the dozen women are Carrie Nation, Amelia Earhart, Laura Ingalls Wilder and others. Each has her photograph and story, followed by a quilt block dedicated to her memory, with instructions of how to make each block.

So that's just what Jo did, she would make a quilt of patterns dedicated to "remarkable Kansas women" as a housewarming gift after Donna moved into her new house. In an accompanying note Jo wrote, "I saw this (book), thought of you, and couldn't resist."

It's a handsome king-size quilt using colors that Jo wrote "...say Kansas to me - golds, reds, and some greens."

A lasting friendship memorialized by a meaningful quilt for Donna's new Kansas home, where her heart has been since she was a child.

See this Kansas Women quilt and many other displays at Open Doors at the United Methodist Church, 4-8 pm, each evening of the Richmond Fair.

New sign, new display for Richmond museum

As fair-goers drive to Richmond, they will be greeted by an attractive new sign on the east side of highway 59 that points the way to the Richmond Community Museum. The Museum is grateful to Rob Pearce for allowing the Museum sign to be on his business property.

The sign says the Museum is open 1-4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday in June, July and August. And that is true. HOWEVER, the Museum will also be open 2-9 p.m. each day of the Richmond Fair. There is no admission charge. Come in, have a bottle of cold water, and relax for a while.

Dorothy Lickteig's book "Richmond Gleanings" will be on the table for browsing and there are 50 or so other albums and family histories that have much good reading. There are two thick notebooks about the Richmond Fair with lots of interesting news clippings. The special display is about World War I soldiers from the area and there is a notebook of interesting stories and information from that time.

Visitors include ones from about 10 different states since the Museum opened June 1st.. The most recent visitors were Mike Dietrich of Olathe and Gary Dietrich and children of Gold River, CA, who are grandsons of the late George and Marguerite Dietrich who had Dietrichs' General Store for many years. Both men have wonderful memories of visiting Richmond, they said.

Their maternal great-grandparents are the Rev. and Mrs. Willis McNeel. He was the last full-time pastor of the Associate Presbyterian Church at Berea. He served there for 11 years, until about 1919, said Museum historian Dennis Peters. That church building is now Fellowship Hall at the Greeley United Methodist Church.

Gary Dietrich gave the Museum the Bible used by Rev. McNeel while he was pastoring at Berea and after that. It will be displayed after it and another family Bible are encased in archival preservation boxes, and will be placed by Rev. McNeel's coat and book bag which the family donated some years ago.

The Richmond Community Museum is sincerely grateful to families who contribute to the Museum in this and other ways. What does your family have that would be best preserved at the Museum where many people could see and enjoy it?

The Museum is also open anytime on request. Just call one of the numbers on the window.

'Fat Toney's' BBQ opens in Garnett

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Toney Goucher has brought his decades of barbeque experience to Garnett to open "Fat Toney's Firehouse BBQ" at 101 N. Maple.

Goucher, a Kansas City native who now lives in Gardner, got his start in the business at the age of 14 working for a BBQ place in Stillwell mopping floors and making French fries, and eventually moved into operating the smokers. He later moved into a career as a cook around the area and worked as a disc jockey, but at 27 he decided to go to chef school at Johnson County Community College.

"At 27 I graduated and worked a few places, and at 28 I decided I was going into the barbeque business," he said. "It was a lot less trouble, a lot less standing over somebody else's stove."

Toney operated a number of food businesses including a deli shop and his first official BBQ operation near Smithville Lake, eventually moving to Eureka Springs, Ark., where his fare became a favorite of the Arkansas Razorbacks coaches and football players.

But it was a Garnett connection that brought him here.

"Ken Huggins who owns this building owns a service station in Gardner," he said. "I was working for Quest Diagnostics as a dispatcher, and I hated it. One day I was waiting for my car and Ken said 'aren't you the barbeque guy?'"

Huggins wanted Goucher to open a BBQ place in Gardner and tried to buy a building for the operation, but the deal fell through. Later, Huggins pitched the idea of opening one in Garnett, where he still owned the building where he formally operated Cars & Trucks, Etc.

"As soon as I hit the driveway I said 'that looks like a fire station,' hence the name 'Fat Toney's Firehouse Barbeque.'"

Fat Toney's is open seven days a week from 11 a.m.-9 p.m. The carry-out "eat it & beat it" number is (785) 504-4295.
