Allen County leads crime in 6-county region

KBI stats show local area one of the lowest crime rates in region

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – Anderson County ranked among the lowest in the 6-county area for crimes per 1,000 residents in 2016, according to data recently released by the Kansas Bureau of Investigation compiled from Kansas' 105 counties.

Overall however, the 2016 Kansas Crime Index Report showed an increase over the previous year of 4.2 percent statewide in violent crime such as murders, rapes, robberies and aggravated assault and battery. The increase came after an 11.2 percent increase in these types of crimes over crime in 2014.

Locally Anderson County ranked with 15.3 crimes per thousand population in 2016, and 1.6 violent crimes per 1,000. Those figures trailed slightly statistics recorded in Coffey and Linn counties. However, Colony's estimated population of 403 was not included in Anderson County's population estimated because the City of Colony did not submit crime stats for the study.

Allen County ranked highest in crime per 1000 residents of all six counties in the local comparison – even higher than Miami County which had nearly triple Allen's population. It also had a higher rate of violent crime at 4.4 per 1,000, with a total of 45 violent crimes reported there in 2016. Franklin County led its neighbors in violent crimes with 82 reported.

Anderson County Sheriff Vern Valentine said it was typical for larger population and more urban areas to experience more crime. He said one of the most important aspects in combatting crime was for all jurisdictions in an area to approach the job as a team.

"I believe when it comes to enforcing the Law a big part of being successful is when the county sheriff's office and local police departments work hand and hand together with one agenda, and that is finding out the truth and working to solve crimes," Valentine said. "I can say with confidence that all law enforcement personnel work as a team within Anderson County regardless of what agency they may be attached to."

Garnett Police Kurt King said local crimes predominant-

Septic issues thwart sales at some rural properties

Sellers reminded deal can't go through without septic system inspection

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – Septic system issues at two rural home sites recently is serving as a reminder to those who may be buying or selling rural property that septic system inspections need to be part of sale disclosures.

County sanitarian Don Lile recently told county commissioners he had inspected two rural homes listed for sale which he could not approve because the septic systems didn't comply with county regulations.

Lile said it isn't a frequent problem, but septic issues have to be dealt with and are up to the seller to disclose to potential buyers and to the county for pre-sale inspection. Lile said he planned to send a letter to area realtors to advise clients their septic tanks would have to be uncovered and opened for inspection before sales could proceed, but he said the county had recently purchased a cable camera which could be fed down clean-out spouts to inspect the tanks, making tank openings unnecessary.

Anderson County zoning officer Tom Young said old "tank and tube" septic systems, many of which simply ran a single drain pipe from the top of the tank to a nearby ditch, are slowly being replaced in the county by modern commercial systems that meet the county's zoning regulations. Septic systems are designed to allow solids to compost in the bottom of what is usually now an underground concrete or plastic tank, and then disperse the overflow water through a chamber or pipe system over a certain amount of ground depending on the number of bedrooms in the home.

The requirement for those systems in the rural areas is notable particularly in the cases of the sale of rural property and in home construction in the rural areas of Anderson County since the early 2000s. While less than 10 new construction permits have been issued in the City of Garnett since 2000, Anderson County

Debt-laden Calpine seeks buyer

Company that would have built wind farm here wants purchase deal

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

HOUSTON, Tx. – The debt-plagued Texas energy company that sought to place a wind farm in Anderson County last year has agreed to sell itself to a group led by a private equity firm for $5.6 billion.

The move sent Calpine's stock up 10% on Friday, after it was announced Energy Capital Partners would offer $15.25 per share in the sale.

Later Friday it was announced

the deal was under investigation by a shareholder rights law firm to determine if Calpine's board of directors breached their fiduciary duties in connection with the proposed sale of the company by ECP, along with a consortium of investors led by Access Industries and Canada Pension Plan Investment Board.

Calpine was set to enter the wind farm business almost two years ago with a proposed generation site that would place about 100 turbines over some 30,000 acres of eastern Anderson

Local retail sales see bump in July

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

TOPEKA – The City of Garnett posted an 11 percent gain in sales tax collections in the month of July compared to a year ago, leading the rates of increase among area cities and counties which have their own local sales tax.

The city's 1/2 percent added onto most every sale notched $19,216 for the month of July 2016 and $21,340 the same month in 2017 to begin the state's fiscal accounting year. Sales in Anderson County are also charged an additional 1.5 percent county sales tax and 6.5 percent tax that goes to the State of Kansas.

Kincaid, the only other city in Anderson County with its own sales tax, also saw an increase for July at 5.1 percent from $450.34 to 473.11.

Burlington's two percent tax yielded an increase of 5.3 percent from $68,772 to $72,427. Coffey County has no sales tax. Ottawa raised an additional 1/2 cent sales tax late in 2015 which took effect in July 2016 to bring the city's tax to 1.6%. Ottawa posted $302,899 in July 2017 collections. Sales in Ottawa are taxed at the highest rate in the 6-county area at 9.6 percent. Sales tax is sometimes looked at as an indicator of economic activity in a taxing jurisdiction, if the rate of taxation hasn't changed between comparison periods. But smaller towns with fewer taxable retail services can have their figures heavily swayed by big ticket sales like vehicles and furniture.

ly spring from a few roots.

"I would say the biggest thing the stats don't show is how many of the violent crimes are drug related, such as robberies, rape and murder along with the property crimes where drugs are the reason the crimes are committed," King said. "I would safely say 80 percent of the crime in Garnett is narcotics related, including both violent crimes and property crimes alike."

King said his past 12 years on the GPD have seen very few truly random crimes that weren't fueled directly or indirectly by some form of addiction.

"I would have to say the last case of random crimes were the home invasion cases back in early 2008, however all the suspects in that case were also known drug users."

The report said the incidence of murder continued to rise in 2016 statewide, with a total of 148 murders reported, up 12.1 percent over those in 2015. Of those, 14.3 percent involved multiple murders in a single incident. The Kansas murder rate in 2016 is as high as Kansas has seen since 2000, when 156 murders were reported. The highest murder rate recorded in the state was in 1993 with 188.

Graham County, located in western Kansas northwest of Hays with a population of 2,754, had the lowest crime rates in the state with only 10 crimes reported for 2016.

AG Derek Schmidt launches national effort to combat elder abuse

TOPEKA - (August 17, 2017) - The National Association of Attorneys General will focus on strengthening efforts nationwide to combat elder abuse, Kansas Attorney General and NAAG President Derek Schmidt announced today.

Schmidt, who was elected in June to a one-year term as NAAG president, said during his presidency he will focus on working with attorneys general around the country to help all states gather expertise and build capacity to fight elder abuse, neglect and exploitation. The members of the association are the 56 state, territorial and District of Columbia attorneys general.

"Elder abuse has been called the silent epidemic of our time," Schmidt said. "It is a crime that too often operates in the shadows. But the numbers are staggering, and as the population age 65 and older continues to grow, it is clear that we all need to do more to combat this serious problem."

Between 1900 and 2010, the number of Americans age 65 and older grew from fewer than 5 million to more than 40 million, according to the U.S. Census Bureau. Over the same time, the portion of the population in that age bracket rose from about 3 percent to more than 12 percent. By one estimate, only one in every 24 cases of elder abuse is detected or reported. Despite that underreporting, statistically one in every 10 Americans age 65 or older who lives at home will become a victim of abuse.

Schmidt's presidential initiative will be titled "Protecting America's Seniors: Attorneys General United Against Elder Abuse." It will culminate in a national summit on the subject that Schmidt will host in Manhattan, Kansas, on April 17-18, 2018.

To assist in guiding the year-long effort, Schmidt has appointed a bipartisan working group of four other state attorneys general: Mark Brnovich (R-Arizona), Chris Carr (R-Georgia), Peter Kilmartin (D-Rhode Island), and Ellen Rosenblum (D-Oregon). Each has led innovative efforts to combat elder abuse in his or her respective state.

"There is no partisan divide on the commitment of state attorneys general to protecting seniors and combating elder abuse in all its forms," Schmidt said. "I'm grateful for the commitment of my colleagues as we focus on this effort. Every state is different in its approach. My hope is that when this year is ended, we have identified some of the best ideas from around the country and made them readily available to adapt for other states."

In Kansas, Schmidt last year reorganized the Kansas attorney general's office to establish a new Fraud and Abuse Litigation Division that focuses, in part, on elder abuse. That division houses the statutory Abuse, Neglect and Exploitation Unit established by the Legislature and also the prosecution of financial crimes involving insurance or securities. By law, the Fraud and Abuse Litigation Division also coordinates closely with the consumer-protection and Medicaid fraud and abuse enforcement work in the attorney general's office.

AG Derek Schmidt asks Congress to reaffirm states' ability to fight online human trafficking

TOPEKA - (August 16, 2017) - Kansas Attorney General Derek Schmidt today joined in asking the U.S. Congress to reaffirm states' ability to use all of their traditional investigative and prosecutorial authority to combat human trafficking facilitated online.

In a letter to Congressional leaders, Schmidt, along with the attorneys general of 49 other states and territories, asked that the Communications Decency Act of 1996 (CDA) be amended to make clear that state, territorial, and local authorities retain their traditional jurisdiction to investigate and prosecute those who facilitate illicit acts, including human trafficking. In recent years, some judges have broadly interpreted the CDA to preempt state and local authority in this area.

At issue are websites, such as Backpage.com, that are known to facilitate and profit from illegal activities advertised through their site.

"Certain interpretations of the CDA have resulted in companies like Backpage.com remaining outside the reach of state and local law enforcement," the attorneys general wrote. "We do not believe that was Congress's intent in passing the CDA, and we do not believe that is Congress's intent now. It is both ironic and tragic that the CDA, which was intended to protect children from indecent material on the internet, is now used as a shield by those who profit from prostitution and crimes against children."

Schmidt and other attorneys general have repeatedly asked Backpage for information about its content review and screening policies and procedures. They have also previously asked Congress to amend the CDA in 2013.

County, until landowners in the required site area turned down lease deals to allow the turbines and infrastructure on their land. Opponents also won tougher zoning restrictions from county commissioners on the placement of those turbines. Others in the area, however, sought to lease their land to the company and favored the wind farm's development.

Days after the new zoning restrictions were approved, Calpine announced it was pulling the plug on the project because connection costs to existing electrical infrastructure would be too high.

Calpine's mainstay of power generation in its portfolio is gas-fueled electrical generating plants. Falling costs of natural gas and heavier competition has hammered many such plants and forced them to cut profits to stay competitive. Calpine and most of its competitors have seen earning shrink as a result, which has called into question how Calpine will pay back its $11.9 billion in loans.

Goodbye Mount Rushmore

In the modern squall that seeks to uncover, and if not, construct racism in every nook and corner of the nation and has most recently targeted statues and memorials of the Civil War era Confederacy, we must wonder how far the historical scourging will go and if Mount Rushmore will be next.

Yes, Mount Rushmore – the venerated mountainside in South Dakota – home to the granite visages of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Teddy Roosevelt and Abraham Lincoln – racists, bigots, slave holders and political lethargists in the view of modern fanatics whose political survival depends on the continuation of American racial strife.

It is, after all, the logical follow up to the tragedy in Charlottesville, Va., in which an alt-right nut job plowed his car into a group of fanatical counter protesters, who were protesting another group of fanatical marchers spoiling for a fight over the removal of a statue of Confederate general Robert E. Lee. Both sides showed up to thumb their noses at each other's free speech rights and try to get their pictures on the nightly news – little more. Even though a young woman was murdered and others injured by the driver of the car, the incident devolved into little more than the core of last week's 'here we go again' news cycle of attacks against President Donald Trump by the media and critics who charged he failed to take a strong enough stand against White Supremacists.

Our modern culture of perpetual victimhood will not abide simple historical context as an excuse for violations of the modern Social Justice Warrior code.

Apparently they missed the President's tweets condemning the hatefulness in the hours following the tragedy – pretty much like they've missed the one million new jobs created, record-setting stock market performance and voluntary reduction in illegal immigration into the country since he took office.

But the onslaught of the continuous race-baiting engaged in by American Leftists will find other targets, and it's fair to assume the biggest of them – taking up the northwest margin of the Black Elk Peak granite batholith in the Black Hills of South Dakota – will soon be on the list.

Our modern culture of perpetual victimhood will not abide simple historical context as an excuse for violations of the modern Social Justice Warrior code. The fact that Lincoln took a plodding two years from his election before shepherding passage of the Emancipation Proclamation undoubtedly doesn't sit well with the left who now no doubt judges him, and all historical figures, according to modern political conventions. George Washington? A slave owning Virginian who only happened to command the army that won the American Revolutionary War and then denied kingship to serve as the infant nation's first president. Thomas Jefferson? Another scurrilous slave owner whose intellect and writings merely led the nation through its own childbirth, authored the Declaration of Independence from tyrannous England, and as its third president commissioned exploration of the western United States. Roosevelt? A bigot and racist imperialist who, as Secretary of the Navy, goaded President McKinley into a racist war against Spain in Cuba, and who stole the valor of the all-black Buffalo Soldiers of the 10th Cavalry who did most of the fighting on San Juan Hill. Inconsequentially, he also built the National Park Service, busted trusts and opposed exploitative Wall Street tycoons – and he did it all as a Republican, no less.

None, regardless of the virtue of their other deeds, will find redemption when the People's Perpetual Victimhood movement besets their legacies. Al Sharpton – paragon of black victimhood – in fact is already calling for the federal defunding of the Jefferson Memorial in Washington, D.C. Why should we believe that will be the end?

Our country may have gone so awry with its own mealy-mouthed, indulgent self coddling that not even granite will stop our decay.

"Don't bring up your sons to detest the United States... Recollect that we form one country now. Abandon all these local animosities, and make your sons Americans." – Robert E. Lee, 1865

You know it's a damn shame you gotta carry a gun when you walk your dog. It looks like to me the city commission would consider putting the leash law back into effect. Thank you.

Three cheers for president Trump for taking a stand against the idiots and morons who want the Civil War statues removed. Let's not rewrite the Constitution just to appease this ethnic group that makes up 14 percent of the population.

I know for a fact that down on the building they talked about in the paper that's going to be demolished, my friend offered $5,000 for the building. He was going to refurbish it and put it on the National Historic Register, but they refused to let him do that. So get your facts straight. Thank you.

I would like to say thank you to all the nurses and doctors at the outpatient clinic. They're nice, they explain everything and they're thorough. They're just friendly and they don't care who you are. They're just as nice as they can be. Thank you.

Is the city still sending out weed notices? There's a lot of yards in town that's way over 10 inches and some of them haven't been mowed all summer. Thank you.

It is really odd timing to be just beginning the construction of the turning lane the same week that school begins. Wouldn't it have made more sense to have it completed before the start of school?

I saw they took down the Veteran banners around town. I really wish they would leave them up longer especially considering how much are paid for them. I hear comments all the time about how much everyone enjoys them. Why can't they stay up at least through Veteran's Day?

It's time to mothball Confederate monuments

Robert E. Lee wasn't a Nazi, and surely would have had no sympathy for the white supremacist goons who made his statue a rallying point in Charlottesville, Virginia. That doesn't change the fact that his statue is now associated with a campaign of racist violence against the picturesque town where Thomas Jefferson founded the University of Virginia. The statue of Lee was already slated for removal by the city, but the Battle of Charlottesville should be an inflection point in the broader debate over Confederate statuary.

The monuments should go. Some of them simply should be trashed; others transmitted to museums, battlefields and cemeteries. The heroism and losses of Confederate soldiers should be commemorated, but not in everyday public spaces where the monuments are flash-points in poisonous racial contention, with white nationalists often mustering in their defense.

Some discrimination is in order. There's no reason to honor Jefferson Davis, the blessedly incompetent president of the Confederacy. New Orleans just sent a statue of him to storage – good riddance. Baltimore has a statue of Chief Justice Roger Taney, the author of the monstrous Dred Scott decision that helped precipitate the war. A city commission has, rightly, recommended its destruction.

Robert E. Lee, on the other hand, is a more

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

RICH LOWRY, King Features Syndicate

complicated case. He was no great friend of slavery. After the war, he accepted defeat and did his part to promote national healing. Yet, faced with a momentous choice at the start of the war, he decided he was a Virginia patriot rather than an American nationalist.

"I look upon secession as anarchy," Lee said. "If I owned the 4 million slaves in the South I would sacrifice them all to the Union; but how can I draw my sword upon Virginia, my native state?" He betrayed the U.S. government and fought on the side devoted to preserving chattel slavery.

That is a grievous political sin, although he obviously wasn't the only one guilty of it.

The Civil War was an America conflict, with Americans on both sides. An honorable soldier, Lee is an apt symbol for the Confederate rank and file whose sacrifices in the war's charnel house shouldn't be flushed down the memory hole.

The Baltimore commission has called for moving a striking dual statue of Lee and Stonewall Jackson to the Chancellorsville, Va., battlefield. This would take a page from Gettysburg, where a statue of Lee overlooks the field where Gen. George Pickett undertook his doomed charge. If you can't honor Robert E. Lee there, you can't honor him anywhere. For some of the left, that's the right answer, but this unsparing attitude rejects the generosity of spirit of the two great heroes of the war, Abraham Lincoln and Ulysses S. Grant. Notably, Grant vehemently opposed trying Lee for treason.

Lee himself opposed building Confederate monuments in the immediate aftermath of the war. "I think it wiser," he said, "not to keep open the sores of war, but to follow the examples of those nations who endeavored to obliterate the marks of civil strife and to commit to oblivion the feelings it engendered." After Charlottesville, it's time to revisit his advice.

Tax increase, cutting expenses key to election cycle

We're into months of candidates and near-candidates and possible candidates shuffling around ahead of the June 1, 2018, filing deadline, formally naming campaign treasurers and starting campaigns.

It's going to be an unusually busy fall this year as the statewide officeholders decide whether to keep their jobs or seek higher offices, plus 125 Kansas House seats (and so far, just one Senate seat, that of May 1 sworn-in Sen. Richard Hilderbrand, R-Pittsburg) are up for grabs in the 2018 elections.

With all that political gamesmanship under way, there is a key date in the new calendars that will likely have a dramatic effect on those campaigns, and whether some Kansans decide to spend the summer mowing instead of campaigning: Friday, April 20, 2018.

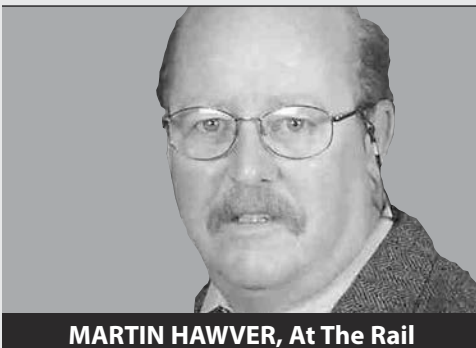

No, it's not the national marijuana day—that 4:20 celebration—it's also the date when the state's best economic experts, the Consensus Revenue Estimating Group, predict whether the state will have enough revenue on hand to finish out what will be the remaining two-plus months of this fiscal year and enough money to pay for expenditures budgeted for the coming fiscal year which starts July 1, 2018.

Not exactly what most Kansans consider the date that the earth either shakes or doesn't. But to a surprisingly large degree, it is an earth-mover.

Enough money? Everything is good. Not enough money? Then there must be, just before the primary election, cuts in spending on things that most Kansans want money spent on. Like social services, roads, law enforcement and corrections...you name it,

STATE COMMENTARY

someone out there wants it done with his or her tax money.

Or...there could be just-before the Legislature adjourns increases in taxes. That's not anything an incumbent wants to campaign about or read on his/her opponent's campaign cards, is it?

And that final estimate of revenues will be made just three days after what is likely to be the biggest influx of state income taxes in years. Key, remember, is that the massive income tax increases voted by this spring's Legislature became effective retroactively to Jan. 1, 2017, and Kansans have been essentially given until April 17, 2018, to pay those taxes without penalty.

That extra time before penalties kick in means that if you don't have adequate paycheck withholding you must come up with a big check for the state by April 17. Plus, folks who have LLCs or other businesses that for the past four years have been exempted from state income tax on "non-wage income" will be writing checks to the state on that date also. These last-minute payments essentially shake the state's ability to monitor monthly how revenues are coming in.

Practically, if you have to pay taxes above your withholding, or try to remember just where you pay those income taxes if you're coming off a four-year tax holiday, you aren't going to be paying this year's retroactive taxes early.

It's that time-value of money deal. If you can earn another month or two of interest on your non-wage income, you'll do it. That's just marginally smart business. You pay your bills on the deadline, not early.

So those April receipts? Three days after the no-penalty payment deadline, they get ground into that Consensus Revenue Estimate that essentially decides what the governor and Legislature do to balance the budget. And, of course, whether voters are going to be inconvenienced and probably recall just who inconvenienced them when they see the name on the ballot.

Right now, before we know how this year's taxincreases work out, there are a lot of issues for candidates to talk about.

Those issues might change on April 20, 2018.

Does anyone recall a year when the Maple trees did not seed? Also when no chiggers have been found (not as yet) however. Both of them have always been big pests for me. Who wants maple trees in their flower beds? And who wants chiggers that eat at you? I've never known a year without either, let alone both. Enjoy while I can!

Undeserving lacking noble blood and a tarnished reputation

There was a king who once ruled over a vast kingdom. Now the king had no queen

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL

By David Bilderback

for his kingdom. The king fell in love with a lady who he wanted to be queen but she was not of noble birth, therefore in that respect she could never become queen. There was only one alternative for the king if he wanted the lady to become his queen. He would have to choose her to be queen. The lady as I said had no noble blood and had a reputation that was not suited for nobility as well. In spite of all this the king said "I choose you to be queen." When the lady accepted the king's request there was a transaction that was completed. Whatever the king had, became the queen's and whatever the queen had, became the king's. The lady received the nobility she had lacked to become queen and the king received the lady as she was.

Even though the lady lacked the knowledge of nobility she was still queen with all the rights and privileges that went with that office because she had been chosen by the king. This story perfectly illustrates what the Christians relationship with God is like. God looks down on us and like the king chooses us to be his. We like the lady, undeserving, lacking noble blood and with a tarnished reputation have nothing to commend us to God. But when God chooses us, upon our acceptance a transaction is completed. We are clothed with the righteousness of Jesus Christ. It is a foreign or alien righteousness, we can do nothing to earn it just as the lady could not rise to nobility.

God sent Jesus Christ to the cross to redeem us from the depraved life we were living to a new life that we will ultimately live in the presence of the very King (God) himself. Just as the king in the story accepted the lady as she was, God accepts us with all of our faults. Just as the king in the story would not leave the queen without the proper support to learn the ways of nobility God does not leave us alone.

In John 14:16, Jesus addressing the disciples tells them, "And I will ask the Father, and he will give you another Counselor to be with you forever—the Spirit of Truth." Just as the queen in the story served a good and kind king you and I serve a good and kind king as well.

has issued nearly 200 in that 17-year period for nearby home sites outside the city limits.

Newly constructed homes for which a permit was issued would include new septic systems, but the sale of some existing homes can be another matter, Young said.

"We have the requirement that when there's a transition, we want to look at that system so people don't have a problem down the road," Young said. "We're trying to do the future homeowner a favor."

West Nile Virus confirmed to be found in Kansas horse

MANHATTAN, Kan. — The Kansas Department of Agriculture Division of Animal Health (KDA-DAH) was notified in August by the Kansas State Veterinary Diagnostic Laboratory that a horse in Reno County has tested positive for West Nile virus (WNV). The horse was euthanized due to the severity of the illness. This is the first reported equine case of WNV in Kansas in 2017. Horse owners are encouraged to vaccinate their horses to prevent the spread of WNV.

West Nile virus is the most common mosquito-borne disease in Kansas and in the United States. It causes severe neurological disease in horses. Birds and humans are also susceptible to the virus; other livestock and pet animals are not susceptible to WNV. Clinical signs in horses can include fever, incoordination, generalized weakness, drooping lips, teeth grinding and inability to rise. There is no specific treatment for WNV, but there are several effective vaccines available for use in horses.

Vaccines have proven to be a very effective prevention tool. Horses that have been vaccinated in past years will need an annual booster shot. Horse owners should also consult their private practicing veterinarian to determine an appropriate disease prevention plan for their horses.

In addition to vaccinations, horse owners also need to reduce the mosquito populations and their possible breeding areas.

For more information about WNV or other animal disease issues in Kansas, go to the KDA-DAH website at agriculture.ks.gov/AnimalHealth. If you have questions, please call KDA-DAH at 785-564-6601.

Missouri-Pacific depot in Garnett to be torn down - 40 years ago

10 years ago...

Anderson County officials are trying to verify a rumor that a woman who was shot in the face by her estranged boyfriend in December of last year is now living with the same man at his home in Welda, only weeks before he is set to be tried for attempting to murder her. Greg Warner, of Welda, allegedly turned a shotgun on Lena Hopkins when she was picking up some of her property from his residence. Hopkins was struck in the face with shotgun pellets.

20 years ago...

Three people were injured in a fiery automobile crash near Welda Thursday morning that rocketed debris more than 150 feet from the crash site. A Chevrolet Impala driven by Ronald Williams veered onto the shoulder, overcor-rected, and struck the left rear tire of a semi tractor-trailer driven by Melvin Sander. The vehicle then spun several times where it was hit by a Toyota driven by Elizabeth Beardsley. Williams and his passenger, Sherman LeJuene, were both ejected from the vehicle before it burst into flames.

30 years ago...

Construction of the family-type living home for Tri-Ko is nearly complete and should be finished by mid-September, according to a report from Director Jack Sturman. "We decided to build a new home due to the money it would take to maintain the older home. We were also needing to expand because only nine people could live there, as well as, a new home had to be built to fit the disabled person's specific needs as this one does."

40 years ago...

The 63-year-old Missouri-Pacific depot in Garnett is being razed. With the depot will go part of Garnett's history that extends back 100 years. The first depot was built in 1880, when the railroad first came to Garnett. That depot burned in 1912 and crews worked out of two boxcars until the new depot was built. In March 1914, a handsome new depot opened to the jubilation of the town. It was used by the railroad for 61 years and was turned into a storage area in March 1973 when the depot was closed.

100 years ago...

An explosion of natural gas at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Homrighouse Sunday afternoon caused the wreck of the house and a great deal of the furniture and other contents of the house. Mrs. Homrighouse, who was alone at the time, smelled gas, and she undertook to find the leak with a match. The result was a terrific explosion. The north side of the house was thrown out and lay on the ground. The doors and windows were scattered about. The lower floors were torn to pieces. Mrs. Homrighouse was thrown to the ceiling. Her clothes caught fire and she was seriously burned. She was taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elon Beck.

Locket found, looking for rightful owner

This tiny Locket is one of my latest backyard metal detecting finds.

It appears to be manufactured of bronze, however, it's really hard to tell. I know for a fact this little locket is over 35 years old.

What is really surprising to me is that it's little catch works perfectly, allowing it to be opened and closed.

The mystery is, was there ever a picture of someone carried in it? If so, who was it?

By the way there are two little initials inscribed on it, so if you can identify it and know the two initials. It's yours!

Just for reference,

Drought conditions welcomed settlers as they set up camp in Hyatt, which was intended to be the county seat of Anderson County

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 08-15-2017 / Photo Kansas State Historical Society

The Governor of New Mexico was registered as staying in the Garnett House on March 16, 1871. The Garnett House which yet stands at the corner of Walnut & Fourth Avenue in Garnett was more recently the offices of Drs. Robert & Mildred Julius Stevens. The New Mexico Governor William Frederick Milton Arny had been a resident of Anderson County as early as 1856.

With an appointment from Illinois to raise funds in 1856 to help settle Kansas as a free State, he came to see for himself what the territory was like. Early settlers here had quickly found drought conditions. Arny saw to 900,000 pounds of goods, sent from the New England Emigrant/Aid Company, being delivered for relief of the citizens that year.

This gent had been born in the District of Columbia in the year 1813. Graduating from Bethany College in Virginia, he became acquainted with Alexander Campbell. Arny met and became a friend of President Abraham Lincoln.

As President of the Hyatt Town Company, his name appears in records at the Anderson County Courthouse.

From "ANDREAS" HISTORY, page 1324 is found that Arny and Thaddeus Hyatt formed a colony in Lawrence in December of 1856, numbering 80 men that were just discharged from a territorial militia company. On December 18th, selected was the north half of the SE 1/4 and NE 1/4 of Section 10, Township 21, Range 19E. The claims were on Cedar and South Pottawatomie Creeks. Those settlers lived in tents all winter and then moved to their claims. While in camp they prepared timbers and built a hotel, store and a blacksmith shop on the Hyatt town site.

Henry Roeckers of Garnett, an archaeologist, has carefully searched Hyatt, which originally was hoped would be the Anderson County Seat of Government.

On Christmas Day in the year 1856, appointment was made of 15 trustees. Arny was one of them, who still then was a member of the Illinois State Board of Education. Those appointees sought help from the Federal Government to establish a University of Kansas in Lawrence. They were seeking not only a school including law & medicine, but mechanical, agricultural and normal subjects as well. This was to be a university modern in every way. Other trustees included ten Kansas residents; The New England Emigrant Aid Company treasurer, Amos A. Lawrence a wealthy merchant from Massachusetts, leading abolitionist, ex-governor William Slade from Vermont; Charles Robinson; Samuel C. Pomeroy and The Rev. Ephraim Nute of Lawrence.

Special display of signs and frames on exhibit at the Garnett Library

From now until the end of September, you will find a unique display of handcrafted wood signs and frames in the Community Gallery of the Garnett Public Library. They are brought to us through the talents and handiwork of Kellie Wight and her dad, Ron Mersman.

Kellie says working with wood has been her hobby for several years and her dad has been crafting frames all his life. Kellie opened a store in Garnett in 2004, specializing in floral and candy bouquets. She soon realized there was a market for her reclaimed, or as she says, rescued wood.

Especially popular were the old window frames to which Kellie gave new life with special quotes and decor. She was soon the recipient of many items destined for the landfill or burn pile. People just hated to see them thrown out.

After selling her shop in 2014 to stay home with her new son, Kellie continued with her hobby. She has a booth at Black Horse Trading Company north of Garnett and is gearing up for a big weekend at the Sugar Mound Craft Fair in Mound City in October.

Kellie and Ron hope you enjoy seeing their work as much as they enjoy making it. They want to thank all who take the time to view the gallery.

Lincoln Township meeting updates

The Lincoln Township Building was, at one time, the hub of our community. It was once the place to go on weekends for card games and for playing music. As society changed, so did the use of the building. The building has rarely been used for quite some time. In the last few years, the raccoons have been able to find a way through the foundation and have crawled up the walls to the drop-down ceiling. The uninvited guests, consequently, tore the ceiling down and have caused other damage to the building.

On August 6th, the Lincoln Township Board requested a meeting of the community to decide the fate of our community building. A crowd of 22 people met with the 3 board members. A discussion followed by Terry Jasper, Clerk of the Board.

The following are the three items discussed.

- Selling the building and lot together
- Selling the building and lot separately.
- Fixing up the building and keeping both the building and the lot. Several members offered donations in the way of materials, their time for helping with repairs, or checking on the building. A vote was taken to repair the building. It passed with a vote of 16-0.

Our community building will be saved!

Discussion followed about using the building for community carry-in dinners or card games once per month. The group decided to use the building for this purpose on the third Wednesday of each month once all of the repairs are completed.

Since August 6th, the board is happy to report that the ceiling has been repaired, new electrical wiring is in and the electricity has been turned back on. The inside of the building is beginning to look new again.

A very sincere, "Thank you" goes out to all who have worked so hard and to those who donated the materials to make this possible! Work will continue on the outside in the near future.

Workshop Scheduled for Beginning or Transitioning Organic Farmers in Hiawatha, Ks. August 30

Kansas Organic Producers (KOP) and the National Farmers Organization (NFO) are hosting a training workshop for beginning or transitioning organic farmers. The "FARMSTARTS" workshop will be held Wednesday, August 30, 2017, east of Hiawatha, KS, at the Klinefelter Barn Conference Center, 1724 230th St., Hiawatha, KS. Registration begins at 8:45 a.m. Program runs from 9 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. Lunch will be served on site. The workshop is free, but pre-registration is needed for a meal and materials count.

The workshop is open to anyone interested in learning more about transitioning or beginning organic farming. Beginning farmers can apply for a $200 expense stipend for taking time to attend. For purposes of this project, a beginning farmer is someone interested in entering organic farming or who has farmed fewer than 10 years. Beginning farmers can be young people just finishing school and starting their careers, or they might be older and beginning farming as a second career. Farmers with more than ten years in farming are also welcome, but are not eligible for the expense stipend.

To register online, go to <http://www.nfo.org/FARMSTARTS/index/html>. Or contact Ed Reznicek at above number.

New Program at the Garnett Public Library, "Remember When" Wednesdays

The Garnett Public Library is trying a new program idea. On the second Wednesday of each month at 10 a.m. in the Archer Room we will take a trip down memory lane. We are hoping to reach an audience that remembers a time when fun and entertainment didn't involve a great deal of electronics. Our first get together we'll be reminiscing about games that were played in the day. We might even try our hand at a game or two. Come join us. Refreshments will be served.

Modern farm families steeped in core values

Seems some people outside of agriculture routinely try to define the family farm. These same folks tend to question corporate farming whether family owned or not.

Let's look at a Kansas family farm. In our state, many are based on owner operation. This means the rights and responsibilities of ownership are vested in an entrepreneur who lives and works the farm for a living.

The second key to defining the family farming system would include independence. Independence implies financing from within its own resources using family labor, management and intellect to build equity and cash flow that will retire the mortgage, preferably in the lifetime of the owner.

Economic dispersion is the next important step in defining what a family farm should entail. Economic dispersion would include large numbers of efficient-sized farms operating with equal access to competitive markets worldwide.

No family farm would be complete without a family core. This family-centered operation must have a family who lives in harmony within the workplace. All family members share responsibilities and the children learn the vocation of their parents.

The ideal family farm would be commercially diversified. Production of diversified commodities would help reduce price risks and maximize the use of farm resources. In turn, this would provide greater self-sufficiency to produce crops and livestock.

One final attribute necessary in defining today's family farm would be the acceptance and use of innovative technology. This not only enhances farm labor, but also helps boost production.

Family farming carries with it a commitment to specific, independent values. These values become a part of the community and include conservation, frugality, responsibility, honesty, dignity in work, neighborliness, self-reliance and concern and care for future generations.

While it's rare indeed that one family farm may possess all of these attributes, together they have created a system of agriculture that has been a part of our rural culture since our state's beginning.

Today, detractors of this profession are making it increasingly difficult for this vital industry to progress and prosper. That's why it's more important than ever to share information about our skills and attributes with those unfamiliar with our calling.

John Schlageck is a leading commentator on agriculture and rural Kansas. Born and raised on a diversified farm in northwestern Kansas, his writing reflects a lifetime of experience, knowledge and passion.

U.S. Soybean Farmers See Demand-Building Investments

ST. LOUIS (August 18, 2017) - Demand drives profitability, and the checkoff aims to build soybean demand in both domestic and international markets. There are several areas of opportunity that offer an optimistic outlook for soybean demand. U.S. soybean farmers were able to see some of the domestic demand-building opportunities through the soy checkoff's 2017 See for Yourself (SFY) program from Aug. 7-11.

"Being able to see firsthand some of the ways my soybeans are used was a unique experience," said Nathan White, a Missouri soybean farmer and SFY participant. "The SFY program gave me an opportunity to meet some of my end users and witness all the different ways U.S. soy is being promoted right in my backyard."

Participants kicked off the program with the opportunity to tour a biodiesel facility, Mid-America Biofuels. Through investments from the soy checkoff, U.S. soybean farmers helped establish the biodiesel industry. Using more than 5.5 billion pounds of U.S. soybean oil in 2015, the biodiesel industry is a significant customer for U.S. soybean farmers and accounts for more than a quarter of all soybean oil used domestically. Biodiesel is an important investment for farmer-checkoff dollars because as the biodiesel industry advances, so do demand opportunities for U.S. soybean oil.

High oleic soybeans give the U.S. soy industry an opportunity to win back market share and increase demand from end users looking for an oil that performs under high-heat conditions. Participants were able to learn more about the checkoff's work with other industry organizations while touring a DuPont Pioneer facility. High oleic soybeans add to farmer profit opportunities by offering premium prices without a significant change to their production practices. The soy checkoff will continue to invest and build demand for high oleic soybeans because it fills a need for the No. 1 oil market - food.

The development of new soy-based products diversifies demand. Creating more end uses for soybeans will continue to build demand for U.S. soy and maximize profit opportunities for farmers. Participants saw this firsthand at the John Deere® assembly plant. John Deere® uses soy-based, sheet-molding compound for their HarvestForm™ tractor and combine. The soy checkoff continues to partner with private companies to produce soy-based products and ingredients, increasing demand of U.S. soy in non-food uses.

"The checkoff works around the world on behalf of U.S. soybean farmers, but we also do a lot domestically," said Jimmy Sneed, Mississippi soybean farmer and United Soybean Board's Audit & Evaluation Committee chair. "This year's program was an opportunity to have our participants see and understand the checkoff's domestic footprint and all that happens right in their own backyards. I think the farmers not only saw activities demonstrating how the checkoff works to develop profit opportunities for all U.S. soybean farmers right now, but they also learned how the checkoff is looking to the future to stay in front of the challenges and opportunities that lie ahead."

USB's 73 farmer-directors work on behalf of all U.S. soybean farmers to achieve maximum value for their soy checkoff investments. These volunteers invest and leverage checkoff funds in programs and partnerships to drive soybean innovation beyond the bushel and increase preference for U.S. soy. That preference is based on U.S. soybean meal and oil quality and the sustainability of U.S. soybean farmers. As stipulated in the federal Soybean Promotion, Research and Consumer Information Act, the USDA Agricultural Marketing Service has oversight responsibilities for USB and the soy checkoff.

Pieces & Patches Quilt Guild Minutes

The Pieces & Patches Quilt Guild was called to order by President Bonnie Deiter on July 13, 2017 at 9:30 a.m. at the Garnett Library. Roll call was answered by 27 members. The minutes of the May meeting were approved as corrected. 2 new quilt racks and "S" hooks were recently purchased. There are 2 openings left for the September retreat.

Committee Reports:
Program— Sandra Moffatt shared an article from the Anderson County Advocate entitled "Kansas Women Quilt at Open Door" and a quilt book, "She Came from Kansas." Sandra read a thank you note from Tony Munoz.

Charity Quilts— Joleata Kent delivered all of the charity quilts after the quilt show in May to Parkview Heights, Guest Home Estates, Residential Living Center at Anderson County Hospital, and the baby doctor's office. Joen Truhe donated two charity quilts. Hope Unlimited would like twin size quilts if possible. A thank you note was received from Parkview Heights.

Opportunity Quilt 2018—Judy Stuke reports that the quilt is at the quilters. Anderson County Fair - Terrie Gifford gave a report on the upcoming fair in Anderson County.

Block of the Month—Cynthia Fletcher showed Row 4 and handed out directions.

August Luncheon - The August meeting will be back at the Extension Annex. Those with last names starting A-H are to bring a salad, and K-W are to bring a dessert. Table service is provided. Bring school supplies to decorate the tables. These will be donated to local schools.

Audit Committee - Lynn Wawrzewski provided the financial records to the committee. Newsletter—Carolyn Crupper found her number written out in words in the May newsletter and got a fat quarter. The contest has ended.

Nominating Committee - The nominating committee presented a slate of officers: Joleata Kent, President; Jeannette Gadelman - Vice President; Lynn Wawrzewski - Treasurer; Connie Hatch - Secretary, Terrie Gifford - Newsletter Editor, and Bonnie Deiter - Historian. A motion was made by Judy Stuke to cease nominations and accept the nominations as a unanimous vote. Motion seconded by Ruth Theis. Motion was carried.

Secret Sisters - Several secret sisters received birthday gifts: Shirley Allen, Lynn Wawrzewski, Cynthia Fletcher and Jeannette Gadelman.

Future Programs - A slate of workshops and lecture choices was put before the guild. Members voted on which ones they wanted.

Show & Tell -The following items were shown: Jewell Eastman - a bargello necklace; Violet Holt - a 4th of July bag and hexagon potholders; Judy McArdle - a president's block; Marlene Walburn - hexagon potholders, a red, black and white quilt, and a "Quilt in a Day" braid quilt; Terrie Gifford - a president's block and a crayon apron; Joen Truhe - 2 charity quilts; Jackie Gardner - a pillow made with scraps from her bed quilt; Sandra Moffatt - several small projects; Phyllis Gordon - a table runner; Cynthia Fletcher - a president's block, and several small projects; Judy Stuke reported that she made her great-great nephew a quilt; Connie Hatch - a president's block; and Lynn Wawrzewski - a Christmas quilt made from Deb Tuckers Pop Stars pattern. Cynthia Fletcher won the show and tell prize.

There was a question if there would be a meeting in September since we have a quilt retreat that month, and Patricia Knoechel has retired. No decision was made.

The meeting was adjourned by Bonnie Deiter.

Not enough bidders AT YOUR RECENT AUCTION?

If you've recently heard about people being dissatisfied with the results of their auction or estate/farm sale, it may be because their auctioneer didn't put their advertisement in front of people who have money to spend. You want BUYERS at your auction... not GAWKERS!

The Anderson County Review has the LARGEST PAID CIRCULATION of any publication read in this area. People BUY the Review because they intend to READ it - not like junk mail - and they have the DISPOSABLE

INCOME to be the kind of audience you want at your auction. Add The Trading Post and total 29,000 readers along Hwy 59 from Lawrence to Anderson County.

Tell your auctioneer to put your ad in front of the bidders with the buying power to make your sale a huge success - advertise it in the Review!
