Fund set up for man who lost arm in farm mishap

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – A financial assistance effort has been initiated for a local farmer who lost a portion of his left arm in a combine accident Oct. 28 as he was harvesting soybeans northwest of Garnett.

Leslie Keim, 43, had pulled his combine into the driveway near his shop building to oil its drive chain when his coat apparently was snagged by the running machine and his arm pulled into its works, according to family friend Devon Yoder. The accident severed his left arm below the elbow, and he received a laceration near his right shoulder which Yoder said may have been caused by Keim's clothing as part of it was torn from his body. The accident occurred on Keim's property about 8 miles northwest of Garnett off Kansas Highway 31.

Yoder said Saturday Keim had been released from a Kansas City-area hospital and that doctors believed his left elbow was relatively uninjured and would be functional. He said family and neighbors finished Keim's bean harvest and planted his wheat crop for him.

Officials, parents address shooter threat at ACHS

Police say threat was exaggerated by rumor, parents say fear justified

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – Garnett police say the threats of a school shooting that kept some Anderson County High School kids home from classes on Wednesday were nothing more than an inappropriate joke run amok in the student rumor mill. But nerve-racked parents say they're concerned they didn't get enough information to be convinced of their kids' safety.

School officials circulated an electronic message to some parents after school on October 25 that a student "may have made a statement to other students that could/was perceived as a threat." The message went on to say the incident was being taken "very seriously" and had been investigated by school administration, and that disciplinary action would be taken. It also assured parents the situation was being handled "thoroughly and efficiently" and that officials believed the campus to be safe and secure.

School officials did not reply to emails from the Review last week asking for more details.

Garnett Police Chief Kurt King confirmed the department was notified regarding the incident, which he said involved a student threatening to bring a gun to school and asserting the individual planned to instigate a school shooting.

King said the department's investigation determined the threats were made as a joke, but the comments were exacerbated by other students at school and interpreted as a legitimate threat. A family member of

Local dispatch now geared for 911 texts

ACSO launches service for cases when voice calls don't work

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – "Call if you can, text if you can't," is the message the Anderson County Sheriff's Department is trying to get across to local residents in announcing that local emergency dispatchers can now receive texted 911 calls.

To text 911, just punch in 911 in the phone number field of your phone's texting application, where you would normally place a saved contact or a phone number you're texting to. The ACSO, which runs local emergency dispatch for police, fire, weather and medical responders, unveiled the new service in a press release Nov. 1.

The release said the service is available with cell phone plans from AT&T, Sprint, T-Mobile, Verizon Wireless, US Cellular and other cell phone plans. Text-To-911 might not be available outside of Anderson County. If a text is sent in those areas, a message will be returned informing the texter to make a voice call.

The service fills a need in events in which callers are unable to make a voice call or where voice calls might threaten their safety. Examples are in cases involving deaf or hard-of-hearing callers, a caller who can't speak due to a medical or other condition or emergency situations what would put the caller at risk such as abductions, domestic violence or

Promise realized on corn, bean harvest

Great crop year yields corn at 150 bushel per acre in some locations

BY MELISSA HOBBS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

COLONY – The optimism that many local farmers held for this year's corn and soybean harvest appears to be coming to fruition, with corn yields as high as 150 bushel per acre and soybeans as high as 65 in this fall's harvest.

Ample rains in most parts of Anderson County led to fears too much moisture might cause problems for this year's crop. Some 30,000 acres of land are planted to corn and roughly 75,000 acres planted to soybeans each year in Anderson County making harvest a busy time of year for area farmers and the elevators that buy, store, resell and ship those crops.

"I'd say we're about 95 percent done with beans and about 98 percent done with corn," said Jim Mechnig, manager at Valley R Agri Service. Mechnig says that this year's harvest has been pretty good for around here for both corn and soybeans.

The average production for corn in most of Anderson county is approximately 80-100 bushels per acre according to Anderson County Research & Extension Agent Ryan Schaub, with most harvests coming in at the mid 80s level. Soybeans tend to average in the mid 40s per acre.

"It's been a
good year."

Agent

"Corn has hit as high as 150 bushels per acre and beans as high as 65 bushels per acre," said Schaub. "It's been a really, really good year. We've had a lot of good moisture and that has helped a lot."

That moisture seems to have missed some of the southern and western areas of Anderson county though, according to Schaub. "In the south and west there seems to be a bit of a drop off," he said. "Those areas are getting around 80-85 bushels per acre for corn and 30-40 bushels per acre for beans, but that's still average."

Mechnig says at Valley R he's seen and heard farmers talk about 45-50 bushels an acre for beans, and around 120-125 bushels per acre for corn. Average prices for beans has been getting close to $9.00 per bushel with the most recent reports showing $8.92 per bushel. Reports show that corn is selling for $3.03 per bushel on average.

Schaub says this year has been really, really good for most areas of Anderson County.

Double team

Health insurance may be one way city, county can combine to save $

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – Garnett and Anderson County commissioners last week discussed the possibility of grouping local public employees under one umbrella to try to bring down the ever-increasing costs of health insurance.

The topic was broached by Garnett City Manager Chris Weiner during an Oct. 30 meeting of the governmental commissions for both Anderson County and Garnett and other key officials and personnel. The joint meetings are held periodically to give county and city of Garnett officials a chance to coordinate on issues and projects of mutual concern.

Health insurance as part of employee benefit packages has been a particular issue for city and county governments for more than a decade, with both jurisdictions seeing sharp increases in various years. Anderson County just weeks ago opened a health care savings account and made the savings plan optional for employees who wanted to take advantage of it, after the latest round of health carrier plan premium hikes.

The discussion was a breakout from a broader topic Weiner introduced, which proposed broadening the occasional city/county meetings to include school districts and other taxing entities to bring in more players in local decision making and also network with additional possible resources. Weiner said the group could explore a direct healthcare alliance with Anderson County Hospital, for instance, as a means to benefit both the hospital and local public employees.

"Maybe there are ways that we can all work together," Weiner said. "You know – how can we keep costs down for all of us?"

First District Anderson County Commissioner Les McGhee said commissioners had previously figured the premium for one of the county's health plan offerings came out to about $6 per hour cost on an employee's pay period. The discussion centered around the possibility of getting lower health insurance rates if the city, county and possibly school district could group their employees into a single plan.

VA Launches Program Aimed at Providing Veterans More Options in Claims Disagreements

The Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) recently announced that it will launch the Rapid Appeals Modernization Program, or "RAMP," with the goal of providing Veterans with the earliest possible resolution of their disagreement with VA's decision on their benefit claims.

RAMP will provide expanded opportunities for Veterans to enter the new, more efficient claims review process outlined in the Veterans Appeals Improvement and Modernization Act of 2017, which was signed into law by President Donald J. Trump on Aug. 23.

"At its core, VA's mission is to provide Veterans with the highest quality of service," said VA Secretary Dr. David J. Shulkin. "The new process under the RAMP initiative reflects major steps in not only VA's effort of continuous improvement, but also in providing greater choice for Veterans and their families."

VA began its 18-month implementation of the new process immediately after the bill became law.

By February 2019, all requests for review of VA decisions will be processed under the new, multi-lane process. VA's legacy appeals process was slow and complex. The new law streamlines the process and includes safeguards ensuring claimants receive the earliest effective date possible for their claims.

Participation in RAMP is voluntary; however, Veterans in Garnett, and several donation receptacles have been set up in various locations in the county.

Farmers and ranchers and their families are particularly at risk for work-related accidents because many live at the same places they work. Information from Kansas State University's Biological and Agricultural Engineering department said seven Kansans died in farm-related accidents in 2014, and some 700 farmers and ranchers die each year in work-related accidents nationwide. Another 120,000 ag workers suffer disabling injuries from work-related accidents, and an estimated 104 children are killed annually in farm accidents nationwide.

Sources say tractor rollovers cause the most farm fatalities.

City commissioners Greg Gwin said there might be times an arrangement like that would be good or bad for either the city or county participants, but that both entities would have to agree in advance to stick with the plan for the benefits in the long haul.

The county has about 85 employees, with around 50 on the city's benefit plan.

can expect to receive a review of VA's initial decision on their claim faster in RAMP than in the legacy appeals process. The initiative allows participants to have their decisions reviewed in the Higher-Level or Supplemental Claim review lanes outlined in the law.

The reviewer can overturn previous decisions based on a difference of opinion, or return it for correction. Participants who select the Supplemental Claim Lane may submit new evidence and may receive VA's assistance in developing evidence in support of their claim.

Veterans who disagree with the decisions they receive in RAMP can appeal to the Board of Veterans' Appeals in the new process and have their appeal decided by the Board when the new law becomes effective in February 2019. Veterans who participate in RAMP will not be able to return to the legacy appeals process.

VA encourages eligible Veterans with pending appeals to participate in RAMP and the benefits of the new review process. VA will begin sending eligible Veterans an invitation to participate in early November and continue the program until February 2019.

VA will continue working with Congress, Veterans Service Organizations and other Veteran advocates to implement the new appeals process over the next several months as VA continues to make bold, positive change on behalf of Veterans, their families and survivors.

What will it take for us to find the faith required?

In Mark 5:21-43; we read the account of Jesus interacting with two individuals. One directly, who had made a request of him and one who merely wanted to touch his garment for healing.

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL

BY DAVID BILDERBACK

As he went on his way a woman who had suffered from uncontrolled bleeding for twelve years joined the large crowd. Since she could find no help and continued to get worse she had sought Jesus out and thought, "If I just touch his clothes I will be healed."

crowding against him he had felt power go out from his body. The woman had hoped to just get out of the crowd and return to her home but when Jesus stopped and asked this question the woman returned and fell at Jesus' feet and trembling with fear told him the whole truth.

There is much to learn from this text but for the purpose of this article I would like to focus on the woman. People were crowding around Jesus anticipating another miracle with the little girl and no doubt many were touching him yet he felt nothing specific from his encounter with them. So what made the woman different? The woman had suffered a great deal and had spent all she had, yet instead of getting better she had gotten worse. She had lost her faith in the ability of the doctors or her resources to heal her. She emptied herself of everything except the faith that Jesus could heal her.

When Jesus is involved we are never required to do anything except place our faith in him. If we fail to place our faith in Jesus we are just part of the crowd really going nowhere. Spurgeon wrote, "Only faith can bring us to see Jesus. Make this your prayer. Lord, open my eyes that I may see my Savior present with me. To those who seek him he is kind; but to those who find him he is dear beyond expression."

Kansas gas prices jump last week

TOPEKA, Kan. - Nov. 6, 2017 - The average gasoline price in Kansas rose seven cents per gallon this week to $2.40, according to AAA Kansas.

Kansas (see chart below), seven have higher gas prices this week, two (Hays and Manhattan) are slightly lower, and Pittsburg remained the same.

more than any other region in the country. This week, Illinois ($2.78), Indiana ($2.72), Michigan ($2.71) and Ohio ($2.64), all land on the top 15 states with the most expensive gas in the country.

The price volatility is attributed to the continued regional trend of gasoline inventory declines. With 45.5 million bbl, the region has seen levels drop for six straight weeks.

"October has seen strong demand numbers across the country and here in Kansas, likely, in part, due to consumers taking advantage of the relatively nice and warm weather rather than spending time indoors," said Shawn Steward AAA Kansas spokesman.

According to AAA Kansas, this week's Kansas gas price extremes are the highest in Howard (Elk County) at $2.70 at the lowest in Waverly (Coffey County) at $2.21.

AAA Kansas reports that Kansas has the 14th lowest state gas price average in the United States this week. However, that price is 21 percent higher than one year ago, when the statewide average was $1.99.

On the week and similar to last week, the region continues to see gas prices increase

Garnett needs to throw a party

Garnett City Manager Chris Weiner struck on a grand idea last week when he proposed the idea of uniting with county government and with the local school district to meet occasionally to investigate problems and opportunities of mutual consequence, but his suggestion doesn't go quite far enough.

It needs to be a bigger party. It's a plan that only sounds unique because it's been so long since the idea was broached here. But 28 years ago the city, county and school district – along with local businesses, churches and civic groups – came together to coordinate for civic improvement that really worked.

At least, for a while. Business and government veterans in Garnett will remember the CITYMARK conference in Garnett back in 1989. It featured Howard McHenry, a car dealer-turned community development activist from Harrisonville, Mo., along with Bill Grigsby – “The Voice of the Kansas City Chiefs” from another era; and Del Morgano, an industrial plant locator from Chicago. Together, they were a three-man ‘Come To Jesus’ team, swooping into small towns that wanted to rise above what they were and preserve what they had left. CITYMARK delivered a Sermon On The Mount that every struggling town needs to hear from someone from the outside – not tainted by local prejudices and offering criticism in the realm of constructive planning.

Their approach was pretty simple: 1) Give an outsider's perspective on the town's appearance, because appearance reveals what level of pride communities have and also is a primary selling point to new residents or businesses, good or bad; 2) identify the best leaders in the town as selected by the rest of those attending the conference, and 3) come up with a short list of projects needed immediately on which the town can focus to win some quick, motivational success.

The plan worked. Garnett business and government leaders worked in tandem to clean up eyesore properties and formed a four-man “sales team” which became our lead recruiters for new industries and business interests. The private committee members elected by the broader conference became the decision makers for the community's overall development effort, utilizing network connections to civic groups, churches, Boy Scout troops – you name it – to make positive things happen.

How did it all go south?

Money was always an issue, and as the committee found itself begging for funds from government, the city and county wanted more and more authority. Pretty soon membership and vacancy appointments to the committee started being made not with effective leadership in mind, but instead with the idea of “representing” certain communities or interests. We fell to the idea of hiring a series of executive directors because the volunteers became less and less effective and motivated – which meant we lost the drive and initiative we got from a corps of people with true skin in the game. From there, things pretty much fizzled.

Happily in its absence some new efforts sprang up, like the effort that built the EKAE ethanol plant, the Cornstock Festival and more recently the Lake Garnett Grand Prix Revival. But we've been hard pressed to create significant jobs, and we've lost more than we've gained in that 28 year period as local companies have failed or moved. Now, more than half our county's workforce commutes outside the county for employment.

It's time we used Weiner's idea and convened a major community meeting of local leadership in government, schools and the private sector with an eye toward a hard-ball assessment of our community's successes and failures, as well as a tick list of projects to be approached by an extra-governmental effort.

It worked once, it can work again. It's time to throw the party.

PHONE FORUM NOTE: Due to computer issue the Phone Forum will not appear this week. An alternate recording device has been installed and is presently operating until the old system can be repaired.

‘Perfect People’ complain too much

Dear citizens of Garnett,

We just celebrated the 500th anniversary of the Reformation of Protestant churches. Martin Luther nailed his 95 Theses to the church door as a way to publish it to the common man. I guess I'll do something similar with my Theses versus hiding behind a phone as some in our community like to do.

Aren't we blessed? We have God living amongst us. Actually, it would appear there are four to six gods. After all, they are perfect thus, they must be a god. They keep their lawns meticulously manicured at 1 1/8 inches. They catch every single leaf before it hits the ground. Since they are always on the move, they must be very slender and fit. They are out welcoming our city crew, who collect our garbage, with a “thank you” and a warm cup of coffee. You see, they are waiting for them to arrive so they can immediately remove their dumpster as it can't sit on the curb. They are perfect people! I, on the other hand, a poor lowly sinner, am not. For shame!

Thankfully, I know there is only true God. And yes, He lives amongst us. Yes, He judges us. But, He does not need your help in judging your neighbors. After all we first need to take the plank out of our own eye in order to see clearly (Matthew 7:1-6).

I want it known those perfect people, in our community, do not represent me. I would personally like to apologize for the rudeness of those who constantly call into the Phone Forum always complaining about their neighbors and it is just not dropped. If those perfect people truly believe city zoning regulations are not being enforced, they need to have the guts to talk first with their neighbor and/or contact the appropriate department.

And finally, since these perfect people seem to have so much time on their hands, driving around our neighborhoods looking for infractions, may I suggest you use your time and finances more beneficially and volunteer to improve upon our community. There are several organizations that always need volunteers. Help be a part of the solution for making our community a better place to live versus always being critical.

Thank you,

Sally Crane

Letter to the editor

Like it or not, Trump is GOP mainstream

The showdown between President Donald Trump and Sen. Jeff Flake turned out to be no contest. It wasn't Trump who was out of the GOP mainstream, but Flake.

The Arizona senator supported Gang of Eight-style immigration reform, when immigration restriction is becoming a litmus-test issue in the party. He is a Goldwaterite, libertarian-inflected conservative, when the market for libertarianism within the party is limited and diminishing by the day.

He is frankly anti-Trump, when Trump owns the party. Many Republican voters are fully aware of the president's flaws, but they don't want to hear about them constantly from Republican officeholders.

Flake's criticisms of the president were honest, sincere and principled. If he's not a finalist for a Profile in Courage Award, the John F. Kennedy Library Foundation is falling down on the job.

They also were malpractice. The most likely outcome was to make it more difficult to defeat the Trumpite insurgent Kelli Ward in a primary next year, which one would have thought was a paramount political goal.

Worse, Flake apparently rendered himself unelectable. Perhaps he considered speaking out more important than serving, a personal choice that no one can gainsay. But if the party isn't going to be overrun by Trump sycophants, it will need working politicians who are willing and able to better navigate these waters.

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

RICH LOWRY, King Features Syndicate

There are a few, more sensible approaches in the Senate.

There's the Ben Sasse model -- speak your mind without fear or favor, knowing that you aren't facing a tough primary in a matter of months and, if you decide to run again, it won't be until 2020, when the mood might have shifted.

There's the Mitch McConnell model -- hold your cards as close to the vest as possible and try to keep things from running completely off the rails so the party's congressional majorities aren't destroyed.

There's the Lindsey Graham model -- criticize Trump when he's wrong and never abuse yourself in his defense, but develop a relationship with the president to maximize your sway.

But it's a mistake to assume that Trump will somehow magically evaporate, leaving everything in the party as it was before he showed up. At this point, a Trump failure will take down the party, too, and may deepen and intensify the Republican civil war rather than end it.

It's also a mistake to treat the Trump phenomenon as a fluke from which Republicans need learn no lessons. Establishment Republicans seem to believe Trump's rise says more about the inadequacies of their voters than about the inadequacies of their own, shopworn politics.

The great advantage Trump has in Republican politics is that he's a Republican president, and partisanship is an awesome political force. So is the cult of personality that inheres in the presidency, augmented by Trump's celebrity. He has the right enemies, and his culture-war fights coupled with his traditional GOP legislative agenda offer something for everyone in the party, from the populists to the Chamber of Commerce.

All of this means that, until further notice, he occupies the commanding heights of the GOP. Full-frontal assaults may be bold and brave, but they will likely be ineffectual, if not wholly counterproductive.

Brownback exit puts spotlight focus on Colyer

Chances are considered good that mostly along party lines, Gov. Sam Brownback will be confirmed as President Donald Trump's Ambassador for International Religious Freedom, resign his office and Lt. Gov. for seven years Jeff Colyer will ascend to the governorship.

When that will happen, after the Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved on an 11-10 party-line vote last week forwarding Brownback's nomination to the full Senate, isn't known. Could be this week, could be later. Brownback could be part of a long list of appointments bulked together to save time so his former colleagues in the Senate can get an early lunch.

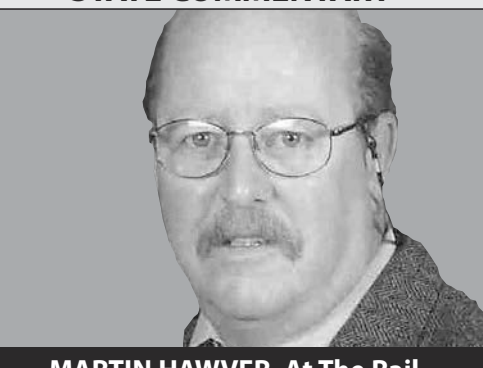

But whenever it is, we know that Brownback will officially resign as governor—and the face of Kansas government will change.

Whenever Brownback is officially off the state payroll—we're doubting that he will keep the governorship through the end of a pay period—at 11 a.m. some day in the future, Colyer officially will be sworn-in as governor in Hays, his hometown.

That's always good, because he's a local boy who honors his home town and the water he grew up drinking. Oh, and it's also a big official event that will take place in western Kansas, where the now-Johnson County plastic surgeon can get photos snapped during the ceremony. Never hurts to bring the press to Hays, does it?

And, should GOP gubernatorial candidate and Secretary of State Kris Kobach decide to perform the swearing-in, it's probably better for Colyer to be in the same photo as Kobach somewhere out west, where maybe fewer people statewide will see it.

STATE COMMENTARY

Then, we know that at 4 p.m., whenever that day comes, there's going to an inaugural ceremony, probably a speech, and Colyer's first time to address most of the state and its government in Topeka. It'll be a not-quite inaugural festival like when a new governor takes office after an election victory, but a good chance for legions of Statehouse regulars to be present—and be seen to be present—and maybe sponsor some related social events.

Look for that to be the chance for Colyer to at least loosely describe what he wants to do with the state that he will run for at least another year, depending on how he does in the GOP gubernatorial primary, and if successful there, maybe the next four years.

Remember, as lieutenant governor, his major job has been to support his boss, the governor, whether it requires biting his tongue or not.

First issue, of course, will be who becomes Colyer's lieutenant governor. That's been quiet, but he may choose a short-termer who will get a fairly minimal state paycheck for a year, or it could be his chance to unveil the “Colyer-XXXX” ticket for governor next year. He'd be the first candidate to announce a team...and we'll see how he characterizes his new hire.

After a lieutenant governor is on board, we'll see whether Cabinet secretaries keep their jobs or “move on to other opportunities,” which sounds so much better on a resume than being fired.

And we'll see Colyer's vision—look at KanCare and its operation—become more prominent as it is presented by state officials.

Move into Cedar Crest, the governor's mansion? Maybe, if Brownback has collected all his stuff and left it in move-in condition, but it might just be a weekday sleeping convenience for Colyer who commutes to Topeka.

Lots of things are likely to change at 11 a.m. in Hays and 4 p.m. in Topeka some day in the next few weeks. We're not sure it'll be earth-shaking enough that you'll spill your drink, but it could...

What is the history behind an opisometer?

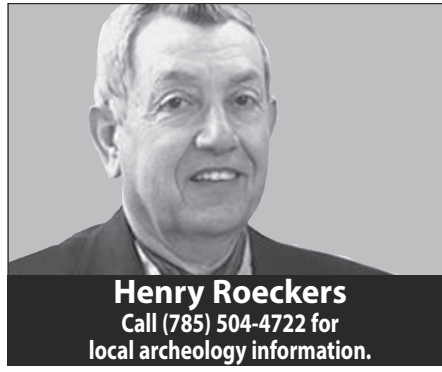

I'm wondering if any of you own or have used one these very special instruments?

This one was owned and used by my late father-in-law T.W. Roberts. It is called "Kozy Kool" and was manufactured by the Pan American Sales Company.

This instrument is known as an opisometer, also called curvimeter or map measurer. A simple opisometer consists of a toothed wheel of known circumference. The wheel is placed in contact with the line to be measured and run along its length. By counting the number of teeth passing a certain mark, the length of the line can be ascertained.

This instrument is most commonly used to measure lengths of roads, rivers, and other line features on maps.

Opisometers designed for this purpose provide scales reading the measured distance in kilometers and miles. This instrument was first patented in 1873 by the English Engineer Edward Russel Morris.

20 years ago: Western Auto to close to make way for Country Mart

10 years ago...

Crest school officials were notified last Monday morning that a middle school student was diagnosed with a confirmed case of the antibiotic resistant Methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus Aureus (MRSA) skin infection. MRSA has been in the news lately because of the closing of a Kansas City-area elementary school due to an outbreak there, and its resistance to antibiotics. The student who tested positive is under the care of doctors and has been released to return to school, but Crest administrators are taking steps to prevent the spread of the potentially deadly infection.

Garnett's Western Auto store will close early next year to make way for the new Country Mart grocery store, the store's owner said last week. Dave Branton, owner of the Western Auto affiliate store near the grocer's future location, said he plans to close his store by the end of January 1998 to make way for Country Mart's construction. The Kansas Bureau of Investigation has completed an investigation conducted at the request of Terry Solander, county attorney, into allegations made by Vickie Carey, an employee of the Anderson County Sheriff/Police Dispatcher, that Police Chief Lawrence Kellerman demonstrated certain acts of misconduct towards her at the jail. The investigation did not reveal sufficient evidence on which to file any charges against Kellerman.

At the present time, water is the most important thing to be considered by the people of Garnett. While we are not out of water entirely, it is getting low, and the conservation of water is a great deal more important than the conservation of food. It will probably be necessary soon to cut off the water for all purposes except for protection against fire. This is a matter that comes up nearly every year, and now it is more important than ever before.

Kansas Traffic Deaths Up Drastically in 2017

According to the Kansas Department of Transportation, 384 people had been killed on Kansas roadways as of Oct. 23, 2017.

This is a 20.7 percent increase compared with Jan. 1, 2016 through Oct. 17, 2016. The 384 traffic fatalities so far this year matches the 384 for the entire year of 2014 and exceeds the totals from 2013 (350) and 2015 (354).

In 2016, 429 people died in Kansas traffic crashes. No single factor is responsible for the increased fatality rates, but excessive speed, driving while texting/distracted, failure to wear seat belts and drunk/drugged driving all play a role.

the student at the center of the investigation told the Review, via a Facebook message, officers reviewed his electronic devices as part of the investigation.

"While there is no law in place for telling an inappropriate joke, there is school policy regarding student conduct," King said. "The student who told the joke was dealt with accordingly as per school policy."

Emails from the Review to principal Matt Self and assistant principal Marshall Nienstedt inquiring what disciplinary action was taken went unanswered as of press-time yesterday.

King said on Wednesday, Nov. 1, the local PD was made aware of more threats of a school shooting at the Anderson County Jr/Sr High School. King said that investigation as well yielded no evidence of any threats to the school.

"This 'threat' was tracked to one particular student who played a part in the first rumor starting," King said. He said the investigation by the department and by school administration led to the conclusion the threats began as a fictitious story exacerbated through the local rumor mill.

"Even though there was no evidence of any validated threat to the school, officers from the Garnett Police Department and deputies of the Anderson County Sheriff Office were at the school throughout the school day on Wednesday," King said.

While at the school Wednesday, King said it was reported to administration that another student, not associated with either prior threat, was making gestures of having a gun on him. Through that investigation, the student stated he was "messing around" when he made a pump-action motion and placing a pencil in his hand as if it were a gun barrel and saying "bang" while pointing it at another student's head. That student was dealt with according to school policy, King said.

"Throughout the investigations, it has been determined no legitimate threat was ever made to any student of the school, but rather inappropriate jokes were developed into threats through rumors," King said. He said the safety of students is paramount both to local law officers and to the school district.

Though the reality of the actual investigation yielded little substance, the lack of details conveyed directly to students and parents built on fears founded by national events in recent decades of school shootings. Many parents commenting both privately and in public comments to a query for information the Review posted on its Facebook page said they were still scared and confused.

"My child did not go to school yesterday and she came home early last week because of the threat," said one student's mother. "There absolutely needs to be more done in regards to the safety of the kids. I can't explain the feeling you get when your child messes you they don't feel safe because they heard someone had a gun and plans to shoot up the school."

Kim Gabauer commented in the Review's FB discussion information was too slow in coming to parents.

"The letter from the school was dated the 25 of October. Today is the 2 of November. Why are we just hearing about it? I would think if this really happened the school would be on lock down and parents notified. We would have heard about it before now, seven days later. Better plan needs to be put together for situations like this," she said.

Holiday Homes Tour readies for the season

The Friends of the Garnett Public Library will host their annual Holiday Homes Tour on Sunday, December 3, 2017.

This year there will be a few changes to the tour.

The tour will begin at the library with entertainment and refreshments from 12:00 to 1:00. Then we will journey to Scipio to attend services at St. Boniface Catholic Church. After the service, Father has invited us to stroll through the priory to enjoy the Christmas decor.

Waiting outside the church will be three small buses for those who don't wish to drive to all the houses. Maps will be available at the library to attendees who wish to drive. St. Boniface Catholic Church, 32292 NE Norton Rd,

Garnett, is the featured church with a theme of "People Look East."

The homeowners who have graciously consented to let us tour their homes are:

Michelle and Bernie Rockers, 33038 NE Norton, Garnett, who will present "The Colors of Christmas." Stacy and John Crane, 3805 Allen Rd, Greeley, who will present "Believe."

Cheryl and George Miller, 33398 NE 2400 Rd., Greeley, presenting "The Christmas Story Told By Figurines."

Tickets will be available for purchase at the library. Advance tickets are $8 and will be $10 the day of the event.

City of Garnett Seeks Advisory Committee Members to Serve the Airport and Art Collection

The Governing Body of the City of Garnett invites you to think about contributing your knowledge and skill by serving on one of Garnett's advisory boards or committees. Volunteers serving in this capacity meet monthly or as needed. The City of Garnett strives to assure equality of opportunity, full-participation, independent living and economic self-sufficiency for all of its citizens regardless of race, sex, color, age, national origin, ancestry or disability. In order to gain input from diverse citizen perspectives, we encourage interested persons to make application at City Hall, 131 W. Fifth Avenue, or download the Statement of Interest to Serve available at wwwSimplyGarnett.com.

Openings exist for positions on the following advisory committees:

Garnett Industrial Airport Advisory Committee

This board meets the second Friday of each month at 1:00 p.m., or as needed, and consists of six (6) members serving two (2) year terms. The airport manager, who takes care of the airport on a daily basis attends the monthly meetings. This board is currently working on the final stages of an airport master plan which includes an industrial park area and upgrades to airport facilities. The person filling the current vacancy for this position can be a resident or non-resident of Garnett.

Walker Art Committee

This board meets the third Thursday of each month at 4:00 p.m., or as needed. There are seven (7) members who serve three (3) year terms. They are directly responsible for overseeing the preservation of the renowned Walker Art Collection that is housed in the Walker Art Gallery located inside the Garnett Public Library. Additionally, they are responsible for choosing the exhibits that are displayed in the West Wing Art Gallery located at the library. This committee also awards an annual scholarship to a graduating high school senior.

Persons interested in the positions as described are welcome to contact City Manager Christopher Weiner at Garnett City Hall, 785.448.5496, with any questions they might have or to submit their application for consideration. Names of applicants will be provided to the Governing Body for consideration at the Tuesday, November 28th City Commission meeting.

ACHS musical Nov. 10 & 11 - 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee

The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee is a hilarious tale of middle-school-aged overachievers, their hopes, their dreams, and their angst as they compete for a slot in the National Spelling Bee. Overseen by adults still stuck in adolescence themselves, they sing their stories, utilize unique spelling techniques and learn that losing doesn't necessarily make you a loser. It also teaches us to not judge; we have no idea what others are going through.

"This has truly been a fun production to do," said Director Vicki Markham, "and we hope to fill the auditorium both nights." "The songs are catchy and fun to sing," adds Gessica Tastove, Musical Director.

Freshman Carly Hicks makes her ACHS debut as the long-time spelling bee hostess and former champion, Rona Lisa Peretti.

Nate Gainer plays Chip Tolentino, a champion of the Twenty-Fourth Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee hoping to defend his title.

Aaron Kubacka plays Mitch Mahoney, the "Official Comfort Counselor." Although he has sung onstage many times, this is his first time acting.

to vindicate himself after his early elimination the previous year. As a Freshman, Hermann is new to the ACHS Stage.

Senior Owen Lutz returns to the stage as frustrated Vice Principal Douglas Panch.

Playing the ultimate over-achiever Marcy Park, Bethany Powls returns to the stage for her last musical production.

Jenna Schmit, playing Olive Ostrovsky, the quiet only child with the absent father, makes her return to stage.

Hayden Hermann plays Leaf Coneybear, a very interesting child who just can't seem to sit still.

April Powls debuts on the ACHS stage as the child of a pushy parent. She is a Freshman.

Other characters include Carl Dad (Garrett Bures), Dan Dad (Zach Barnes), Leaf's Mom and Dad (Averi Wilson, Blake Hess), Marigold (Paige Rupp), Olive's Mom and Dad (Torey Rogers, Blake Hess) and Jesus Christ (Michah Leblanc). Carmen Powls is back as the production's accompanist.

Performances held on Friday, November 10, and Saturday, November 11, at the Anderson County High School Auditorium. The musical starts at 7:00 p.m. and costs are $5 for adults and $4 for students. Come out for an evening of fun and enjoyment!

Historical Society hosted by Borntrager family

The Anderson County Historical Society met at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Borntrager on November 2, 2017 at 6:00 p.m. President Kristie Kinney led the Lord's Prayer, followed by a bountiful dinner prepared by the Borntrager family. It was enjoyed by 55 members and guests.

Dorothy Lickteig gave an informational and humorous review of her recently published book about the history of Richmond, Kansas was opened for settlement in 1854, following passage of The Kansas - Nebraska Act. Dorothy descends from John Wolken, who staked a claim in 1855 in the area that would become Scipio. He was the father of the first white child born in Anderson County and gave the land for the first Scipio church in 1857.

In December 1869, a new townsite is named Richmond, after early day Franklin County settler, John C. Richmond. The tracks of the LL&G railroad were being laid into the area from Ottawa. Area settlers sold timber to the railroad and used their horse teams and wagons with the construction. John Wolken's sawmill cut lumber for the project. The trains arrived in January 1870, and construction of track continued into Garnett.

Richmond boomed, and by 1885 it boasted of 3 hotels, 10 general stores, a blacksmith, 2 drug stores, a grocery, a millinery and hardware, furniture store, provision and feed store, 2 meat markets, a harness and shoe store, lumberyard, barber, tin shop, 2 express offices, a new school, 3 churches, 2 doctors, 2 livery stables, bank, bakery, race track, steam mill-paint shop, newspaper, brick factory, molasses mill, creamery, cheese factory, marble shop, and a canning factory. By 1904 the population was 500. A new rural high school was built in 1921. It remained the community educational center until closing in 1964. After the building was converted to a factory, it burned in the 1970's. From its earliest days, community residents socialized at picnics, fairs, races, and dances. The Davis Sisler ranch, pond, and grove, at the northwest edge of town hosted many celebrations. The Pottawatomie Dry Branch was a popular picnic site. Richmond Community Band, led by John Roeckers, performed at community events for many years. Dorothy shared humorous stories about early day settlers experiences. Anyone interested in purchasing one of the Richmond history books may contact Dorothy Lickteig at Greeley.

Monthly dinner meetings and museum hours will resume in May 2018. The society welcomes all residents interested in the preservation of Anderson County history.

Students at Westphalia School walked around the gym each morning from Sept. 18 to Oct. 30 to raise money for the Hurricane Victims in Florida & Texas. Each day a different class would walk from 7:45 to 8:00. In order to walk they would have to drop a coin(s) in a bucket each lap. The students raised $1,210.00. They are hoping to

Hyatt Club meets

Shirley Benjamin and Ruth McDonald hosted the Hyatt Club meeting on Saturday, September 23rd at the Archer Room of the Garnett Public Library. Eleven members and one guest were present and answered roll call telling about their past summer activities.

Mystery gifts guessed were a sewing kit, which was won by Rose Marie Miller and popcorn guessed by Hilda Lankard. Rose Dennison won a gift card to Garnett Flowers and Gifts and the lucky winner of the other hostess gift, a copper loaf pan was Sondra's guest, Evelyn Gillogly.

Receiving birthday gifts were Joella Phares and Rosemary Miller. Dorothy Miller received a fall gift from her mystery pal.

The October 25th meeting was hosted by Sherry Benjamin at Mr. D's in Garnett for an evening meal. Ordering from the menu, the ten women present enjoyed the delicious food and an evening of visiting and fun.

Sherry gave each member a miniature box of chocolates. Sondra Grieshaber was the recipient of the numbered box and won the hostess gift, a beautiful chrysanthemum. After passing around the mystery gift, Janis Hightower finally guessed its contents, a box of hot chocolate mix.

The following received October birthday gifts: Shirley Benjamin received measuring cups and a gift certificate to the local Chinese restaurant. Janis Hightower received a hot pot, tea and a fall-themed stained glass picture. Diane Hastert also received birthday gifts.

The December meeting date was discussed. It was decided to have it the first Sunday in December as in years past.

Rose Marie Miller will host the meeting and Christmas party at the social room of the Brethren Church in Garnett. Details will be discussed at the November meeting.

The November meeting will be held at the home of Mary Ann Umbarger, rural Garnett on November 14. Phyllis Callahan will be the co-hostess for the noon potluck.
