Sentence confirmed in hit-and-run death

Wilson to serve 4 years
for role as driver in June incident that killed Yoder

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - The man who fled the scene of a hit-and-run west of Garnett last June will spend 49 months in state prison.

Jason Wilson pled guilty in late October to a charge of failing to stop at an accident resulting in death. His formal sentencing in Anderson County District Court was a follow up to that October plea.

Wilson was driving the vehicle that struck 22 year-old Clay Yoder as Yoder was apparently walking from Garnett to his home in Mont Ida around 2 a.m. June 11 on 1650 Road after an evening socializing at a local restaurant and bar. Yoder's mother found her son's body a few hours later while searching for him after he did not show up at home.

The owner of the car and a passenger at the time of the incident, 27 year-old Ashley Hobbs was also charged and on September 25th pled guilty to obstructing apprehension or prosecution and was sentenced to 10 months in state prison, but that sentence was suspended in lieu of 18 months probation with a condition of 30 days to be served in the Anderson County Jail.

Law officers found automotive debris at the scene which could be identified through serial numbers and later traced those car parts to damage on Hobbs' vehicle. Hobbs' detention for questioning and later Wilson's arrest was chronicled in near real-time by locals participating in a discussion on The Anderson County Review's Facebook page in a post announcing the search for the suspect vehicle.

Office move is on for county appraiser staff

Relocation will eventually move clerk's office when county treasurer expands

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - County commissioners approved nearly $10,000 in expenses to move the county appraiser's office staff into vacant space in the county annex building in downtown Garnett, a move that county appraiser Steve Markham says will take place Monday, Dec. 18.

"We're expecting the move to be completed by Monday afternoon," Markham said Friday. "Once we have access to our computers and phones, we can start taking care of people."

Commissioners approved expenses from separate companies for the transport of appraiser's office equipment, files, computer and data collection from the 1902-era first floor northwest courthouse offices across Oak Street to the county annex building, which was constructed in 1998. Expenses included $2,185 for NexTech, $3,100 for Coleman American Movers and $3,500 for Advantage Computers.

The annex offices with the exception of the county commission meeting room have been basically vacant since the county planning and zoning offices moved to new space constructed in the new road department building on West Seventh Street in Garnett. The move makes the present appraiser's office available for use by the county clerk's office when the county

Faulty info may mean cost savings on water plant

Raw water sources
don't require as much treatment as estimates

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - City officials believe an engineering study which estimated the cost of a proposed new water plant used faulty water treatment data in its assessment of the city's water needs, and may be a means to cut away at the proposal's $13 million price tag.

The topic of the cost of the plant and the proposed doubling of city water rates to pay for its construction has been a topic since the plan was introduced in October. The plan would replace the city's present water treatment plant in Crystal Lake Park with a new plant with slightly higher capacity. Officials have said the city's present plant, portions of it dating to 1915, is in critical condition and its failure would place Garnett in the position of having to haul water while a new plant is constructed, at astronomical costs.

City manager Chris Weiner told commissioners a recent meeting with the project's engineering firm including himself, water plant director Ken Amaya and commissioner Jody Cole had not yielded many cost saving options, but that a letter reviewing the plan received by the Kansas Rural Water Association a few days following that meeting shed new light on the possible options.

Mayor Gordon Blackie reviewed the letter from KRWA, whom the city had asked to assess the project for a second opinion. One of the main points of the letter, Blackie said, was that East Kansas Agri Energy, the city's biggest water customer at some 30-40 percent of the plant capacity, didn't really need treated water for its production process. EKAE pays the city about $40,000 a month for its water service, and also receives effluent treated sewer water for part of its processes at no charge.

"We need to have a good design, which to me this letter questions," Blackie said.

Weiner said the KRWA letter also proceeded under the faulty assumption that the city still used Lake Garnett as a water source. In addition, Weiner said data used by the engineering firm used water treatment data from the past five years, when during a portion of that time the city had to draw water from Crystal Lake due to pump breakdowns from its Cedar Creek pumping stations which send water directly from Cedar

County offices to get new "panic" buttons

GARNETT - Offices in the Anderson County Courthouse will get updated "panic buttons" under a new plan approved by county commissioners in recent weeks.

The duress alarm system, which provides buttons at some staffer desks and the district court offices that send an automated message to the county's emergency dispatch center, were originally installed in 2004 at a cost of $8,300.

County emergency preparedness director J.D. Mersman told county commissioners the $15,000 upgrade would replace the existing system buttons and add the county annex building offices as well as the newly constructed road and bridge department offices on West Seventh Street.

Security cameras were also added to areas of district court and its associated offices in 2008, after the Fourth Judicial District and the Kansas Emergency Management Department conducted vulnerability studies of court offices in Anderson, Franklin, Osage and Coffey counties.

Creek to the plant. That data, Weiner said, assumed higher levels of treatment on a regular basis and hence increased costs. Weiner said revising the plant design to account for delivery of raw water from Cedar Creek could substantially revise the costs.

"It completely changes the dynamic of the quality of water that we are having to treat," Weiner said. "We are at the point of which there I think we have some avenues to pursue that might be able to reduce some of that cost." He said that wasn't a certainty, but that with the corrected data there were options to explore.

Commissioner Cole said plant specifications from the engineering firm seemed to show an additional settling basin would be required to treat the higher turbidity water. She estimated a savings of $550,000 to $750,000 savings if that extra capacity wasn't needed.

"I think there's a lot more work to do to get that figured out," Cole said.

Weiner had initially proposed a doubling of city water rates in order to fund bond financing for the new plant's construction, but that plan came with concerns not just for residential customers but also prime customer issues such as the EKAE plant and local Rural Water Districts which receive volume discounts.

treasurer's staff expands into the present clerk's quarters. County clerk Julie Heck said no plan has yet been finalized for that move.

Rearranging some of the office locations in the courthouse is part of a space study conducted by an engineering firm in 2015, as county officials prepared for a major renovation project that would install a new elevator in the century-old structure and install central heat and air conditioning. A renovation is also in the planning stages for the district court offices and courtroom.

questions in this year's promotion as to why some area retailers aren't participating in the promotion and why receipts from those retailers don't qualify to earn tickets in the drawings. Anderson County Review sales manager Stacey Dennison said the promotion has operated similarly for more than 15 years, and that participation is always at the option of local sponsors.

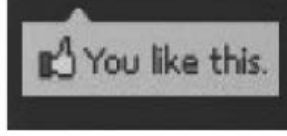

"We always contact any sponsor who's participated in the past to see if they want to be involved again," Dennison said, "and we email all of our other advertisers and clients in advance to let them know the Christmas Giveaway promotion is coming up. We've never raised the price since it began, so the cost for the advertising package is the same today as it was 15 years ago," she said. "In the end, it's always the sponsor's choice."

The same as in the promotion's earlier weeks, ticket numbers will be published in the final contest edition on December 19 in the sponsor advertising spread. All tickets distributed during the promotion are eligible to be drawn, so anyone can win regardless of the number of tickets they've acquired.

The $1,000 grand prize, as well as all weekly prizes are payable in script that can only be spent at participating sponsor stores. The winner will be announced in the following week's newspaper.

The email appears to be from Amazon and looks legitimate. It has the official Amazon logo at the top and uses its brand colors.

"When it comes to e-commerce, Amazon.com is one of the most trusted and established brands (and a BBB Accredited Business). That's why scammers love to impersonate it," explained BBB President and CEO Jim Hegarty.

BBB recently received an email from "Amazon" stating, "Someone from Dayton, Ohio has tried to reset your passwords, and if you have not requested these codes, call this number: 1-800-801-5811." A code was provided, and BBB was asked to give that code with its email address for verification when calling.

"The scammer is trying to make you respond and get you to reset your Amazon password so they can use it to purchase things using your Amazon account," stated Hegarty. "These kinds of scams tend to go around this time of year because there's so much communication in the marketplace, and scammers are betting on the fact that you're going to reply to it and believe it's true."

Another scam using the Amazon name also comes in the form of an email. You receive a seemingly legitimate email from "Amazon" saying they couldn't confirm the address you have on file and asks you to verify your account information by clicking a link. Don't do it! This message is fake and just an attempt to gain access to your personal information. The link does not lead to Amazon.com, but rather to a third-party website that could be carrying malware.

Often forgotten

Think of farmers and ranchers and this old, often forgotten tribute comes to mind. It fits farmers like seed in the soil or ranchers like a new-born calf takes to its mother's udder.

I've often heard friends, neighbors and family - my dad for one - quote bits and pieces of it. I've heard others refer to it at meetings, in church, at a sale barn, funerals and many other places where rural people live, work and congregate. It exemplifies the farm and ranch vocation. It goes something like this.

A man's greatest possession is his dignity and no calling bestows this more abundantly than farming. Hard work and honest sweat are the building blocks of a person's character.

Farming and ranching, despite its hardships and disappointments, is the most honest and honorable way a man/woman can spend days on this earth. The vocation of agriculture nurtures the close family ties that make life rich in ways money can't buy.

Children who are raised on a farm or ranch earn values that last a lifetime that can be learned no other way. Farming and ranching provides education for life and no other occupation teaches so much about birth, growth and maturity in such a variety of ways.

Without question, many of the best things in life are free - the splendor of a sunrise, the rapture of wide open spaces, the exhilarating sight of the landscape greening each spring - true happiness comes from watching crops ripen in the field, watching children grow tall in the sun, seeing your whole family feel the pride that springs from their shared experience living, working and harvesting from the land. Farmers and ranchers believe that through their shared vocation they are giving more to the world than they are taking from it - an honor and privilege that does not come to all men or women. Agricultural producers believe their lives will be measured ultimately by what they have done for their fellow men/women and by this standard, fear no judgment. They believe when they grow old and sum up their days, they will stand tall and feel pride in the life they've lived. Farmers and ranchers believe in their vocation because it makes all this possible. John Schlageck is a leading commentator on agriculture and rural Kansas.

When sharks bite themselves

The year-long feeding frenzy which has occupied the U.S. mainstream press corps since the election of Donald Trump is showing signs of self-inflicted injury.

Discussions about Trump Derangement Syndrome as they relate to the mainstream media are always ironically tempered by history. It was, after all, the incessant coverage of Trump during the Republican candidate debates early on which made Trump president. Other Republican candidates complained that they couldn't get their message out because the press coverage all focused on Trump — effectively allowing Trump to “suck all the air out of the room.”

So indeed, the unconventional presidency that is so signature Donald Trump is partly of the press's own making.

Because of that, it's hard to tell if the recently amped-up and erroneous mainstream coverage is deliberate, or, if in their crazy haste to find something with which to destroy the president, members of the press are simply tripping up and leaving “I”s undotted and “t”s uncrossed. What is certain is that the impact recently has been heavier on the press itself than on the President.

The most recent foibles are the most telling. Veteran newsman Brian Ross was suspended last week when it became public his report from days before that Trump asked Michael Flinn to contact the Russians during the presidential campaign actually took place after Trump won the election — when it would make sense for a president to start laying groundwork contacts with foreign countries. In rushing to get Trump's head in the impeachment noose, Ross, with 40 years in the business, muffed the shot like an overzealous sophomore.

Then comes a tweet from Washington Post reporter Dave Weigel with a picture of a half-empty event center in Pensacola where Trump gave a speech, after Trump said the place was full to the rafters. Weigel's picture was hours before Trump arrived to a packed house — a clear attempt to disparage and lie about the President.

The issue is one of expectations. We know all presidents lie — maybe not because they intend to — but it happens. When Barack Obama said “if you like your doctor, you can keep your doctor,” it wasn't true, anyway you slice it. A portion of the public is going to love him regardless, and a portion of the public is going to believe he lied on purpose.

But when the press lies — even when it makes a legitimate mistake — there's a different dynamic. We have a higher expectation from the press, and rightfully so. Even with the polarization of the mainstream media toward the liberal agenda and the conservative press defending its own supporters — to be caught in a lie is a deal breaker with the public.

With so many avenues of information even omissions become suspect. Such was the call in the latter days of Obama's presidency when mainstream media heralded his “high” approval ratings. But the Gallup organization released aggregate average approval ratings as well, which showed Obama at just over 47 percent for the length of his presidency. When taken over all those presidential terms, Obama ranked 4th from the bottom of all presidents dating back to John F. Kennedy — even lower than Richard Nixon. Mainstream media never reported that data, although it was relative to the context of an assessment of Obama's popularity.

Under normal circumstances the public might be assuaged by suspensions and firings of rogue reporters and apologies from networks. But the continuing era of crazy in left-dominated institutions like the press and the entertainment industry give no expectation of such accountable comfort.

A gentleman who was sitting across the way from us bought our dinner and we did not know it until the waiter came over later and told us the man bought our dinner. There are still good people on this earth.

I think it's great that we have a new business building on the highway in Garnett. It sure beats seeing them close. But I think new buildings or ones that get rezoned for different use ought to have to put in an asphalt or concrete driveway and curbs instead of gravel. It would make our business area out there look a whole lot better. City fathers, you ought to think about that. Thank you!

The Garnett Senior Center gets high praise. But the outstanding events are the Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners they provide for all the Garnett community. These officers and volunteers take time from their families to provide these activities. I think we should all remember the Senior Center at Christmas. We will all be seniors in the future. 100 percent of our tips stay with the Garnett Senior Center. We should all support the senior center on our Christmas list. 128 5th Street, Garnett, Ks., Thank you.

That sounds like quite a deal when the city's got a new Internet provider and they charge them $3 for every utility pole they connect to. I wonder how many poles that an underground fiberoptic cable really connects to. Thank you.

If you didn't go to the Christmas Parade in Garnett you missed one of the best in years. Only fault was too many long gaps. You also missed a very entertaining city band concert Sunday, Dec. 10. Thank you Mr. Russell and band members.

At the meat of Trump's presidency — a presidency

The president of the United States wakes up some mornings seemingly determined to convince as many people as possible that he's unsuited to high office. Fortunately for him, he has a Twitter account allowing him to act on this impulse immediately and without any filter.

Trump recently retweeted three videos from an apparatchik of an extremist party in Britain purporting to show acts of violence by Muslims. One of them is reportedly a fake.

He followed up with a tweet calling for the firing of “Morning Joe” host Joe Scarborough on the basis of a noxious conspiracy theory. (A woman with a heart condition died in Scarborough's district office when he was a congressman. Ever since, a kooky fringe has accused him of murder.)

It's difficult to exaggerate how mind-blowing these tweets are.

If a friend on Facebook shared the fake Muslim video, you'd hesitate to credit any of his opinions going forward, let alone bestow on him the biggest megaphone on planet Earth.

If a candidate for town council called for an investigation of Scarborough for allegedly murdering one of his interns, you'd doubt his fitness to decide whether to approve a zoning permit, let alone to wield the world's most fearsome nuclear arsenal.

Yet Trump's presidency operates on a largely separate track than his Twitter feed and his other off-script interjections and pronouncements. His domestic policy is so conventional that it could have been cooked up by Paul Ryan and Mitch McConnell — and, in fact, it was. He's pursued a largely status quo foreign policy, except more cautious than Barack Obama's and, especially, George W. Bush's.

Amid the miasma of manufactured controversies, Trump's presidency is, as Mark Twain is supposed to have said of Wagner's music, “better than it sounds.” If you got news only of Trump's official acts and knew nothing of his ongoing commentary, you'd think a rigorously rules-bound president occupied the White House.

The defining feature of Trump's judicial nominees is a firm commitment to interpreting the Constitution and the laws as written. On the legislative front, Trump is getting closer to his first major victory, in pursuit of the stereotypical Republican policy goal of deficit-financed tax cuts.

In the real world, the economy is growing at a nice clip, and the stock market is humming along, showing no signs that it believes that the republic is about to be destroyed by a “Mad King.”

None of this is to suggest that Trump's governing and his tweets are entirely distinguishable. Some of the tweets have had consequences, and, if nothing else, they are a dismaying window into his state of mind.

But the tweets don't constitute the sum total of the administration. It's possible that Trump sees Twitter — and his other provocations — as a way to stir the pot, entertain himself, stoke his base, flog his enemies and vent his frustrations separate and distinct from decisions of government, undertaken under the influence of, by and large, impressive, well-meaning advisers.

Trump's presidency is much better than his Twitter feed. Although he stands ready and willing to convince you otherwise, 280 characters at a time.

Tax cut foes rely on Kansas 'tall tale'

When House Republicans unveiled their plan for tax reform this month, Democrats offered a curious response. Rather than give their own proposal, they held a mock hearing—a show trial, really—on Kansas' 2012 tax cuts. Democrats see my state as proof that supply-side economics doesn't work and that the GOP's national tax reform will lead to budget cuts and enormous deficits.

But the comparison is less a cautionary tale than a tall tale. I was Kansas' state treasurer from 2011-17, and no one watched the dollars flowing in and out more closely than I did. Consider a few facts:

First, the 2012 tax cuts came during the same year that federal stimulus funds ended. That alone resulted in a 12.5% drop in revenue. In the spring of 2010, then-Gov. Mark Parkinson, a Democrat, had worked with the Legislature to pass a 2011 budget that included $527.6 million in stimulus funds. Democrats knew this money was temporary but behaved as if it were permanent. The effect was to exaggerate the “lost revenue” from the tax cut.

Second, the shortfall was made worse because state lawmakers rejected the “pay-fors” proposed by Republican Gov. Sam Brownback. The governor's original tax plan would have closed many loopholes. But the Legislature wanted to keep the tax credits and deductions and left them in the final bill. Such carve-outs should be viewed as spending through the tax code, as Martin Feldstein, a top adviser to President Reagan, has argued on these pages.

Third, the Legislature then continued to increase spending by 3% a year. Between the 2010 and 2018 budget years, during this era of supposedly devastating cuts caused by right-wing tax policy, lawmakers raised expenditures from $5.3 billion to $6.6 billion.

COMMENTARY

RON ESTES, Ks. Congressman, 4th Dist

Democrats who deride the Kansas “experiment” conveniently ignore how spending contributed to the fiscal problem.

Fourth, after 2012 Kansas faced economic headwinds that decreased revenue. As commodity prices sank, the average net farm income in Kansas collapsed, from $159,352 in 2012 to $4,568 in 2015. Aviation companies—Kansas is home to Spirit AeroSystems, Cessna and Bombardier Learjet—struggled in the economic downturn caused by the Great Recession. Meanwhile, plunging oil and gas prices hurt drillers in central and western Kansas. For the state treasury, this was a perfect storm.

The truth is that Kansas' tax cuts simply aren't comparable with the GOP's pro-growth national plan because they aren't structured the same way. The Kansas bill did nothing for large corporations. Instead it focused on reducing taxes for small businesses and LLCs (i.e., pass-throughs). As a result, Kansas created record numbers of small businesses. But critics say the lower rate increased tax avoidance by providing an incentive to push money into pass-throughs.

The House GOP plan doesn't have this problem because it would lower tax rates proportionally on both small businesses (to 25%) and corporations (to 20%). This would also bring America's corporate tax in line with the rest of the world. Today's high corporate rate of 35% is undoubtedly holding back growth. Cutting the rate to boost the economy is a core feature of the GOP's national proposal, but that wasn't a part of the Kansas plan.

So why do Democrats keep bringing up Kansas? Because the truth gets in the way of their efforts to kill tax reform. The last time Washington enacted a serious plan like the House proposal was under President Reagan, and it ushered in one of the largest booms in the nation's history. Economic growth averaged 3.5% from 1981-88. Republicans want to replicate that success for all Americans. The House estimates that under its plan the typical family of four earning $59,000 would save about $1,182 a year on their tax bill.

In obsessing about Kansas, Democrats ignore the obvious economic lessons from the other 49 states. Federal data clearly show that Americans are leaving high-tax states like Connecticut and moving to low-tax ones like Texas. These are the comparisons that are truly relevant.

In a September CNN poll, 68% of Americans said the tax code needs either a “complete overhaul” or “major changes.” Republicans would be wise to take heed and press ahead. Democrats, with their Kansas show trial, have demonstrated that they are more interested in phony comparisons than in offering real solutions.

Bulldog Logan Allen gets a neck adjustment from Jared Huebner of Labette County during a matchup in the 170-pound division Saturday at the Anderson County tournament. The grapplers stalemated each other until Allen won the match by pin.

Offensive woes plague Lady Lancers

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

HUMBOLDT - The Lady Lancers offensive struggles led to losing the first two games of the Humboldt tournament last week before eeking out a win on Friday over Uniontown. Through the first three quarters on Tuesday night to open the tournament against Erie, the Lady Lancers were limited to just 8 points as Erie rolled to a 50-8 lead heading into the fourth quarter of their 56-15 opening round win over Crest. Camryn Strickler and Jewel Armstrong each had 4 points and 7 rebounds, Aubree Holloran added 4 points and 9 rebounds, and Regan Godderz added 3 points and 6 rebounds on the evening.

It was much of the same on Thursday night for Crest on the offensive end. Crest scored just 10 points through 3 quarters and saw themselves facing a 30-10 deficit on their way to a 37-19 loss to Humboldt. Holloran led the way with 6 points and 9 rebounds on the night. On Friday in the final game of the tournament for both teams, Crest faced an equally struggling offensive team as the Lancers won the game against Uniontown 23-17. Crest led 9-7 after the first quarter. In what has to be a rarity in basketball, neither team was able to muster any points in the second quarter to make the half-time score still 9-7 as the Lancers held a slight advantage. The struggle continued after intermission with the two teams combining for just 5 points as the Lancers added slightly to their lead to head into the fourth with the score 12-9. Both teams nearly scored as many points in the fourth quarter as they had scored in the first three combined. Crest notched 11 points and Uniontown kept pace with 8 of their own. Strickler and Godderz each scored 9 points to lead the way. Strickler also pulled down 8 rebounds in the win.

Crest boys drop 2 of 3 in tourney

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

HUMBOLDT - The Crest Lancers opened the Humboldt tournament last week with a narrow win over Erie on Tuesday before having a much rougher time against Humboldt on Thursday and Uniontown on Friday. Crest and Erie played a back and forth thriller in the opening game for both teams with Crest having the slight advantage in the first and second quarters to open up a 26-21 halftime advantage. Erie battled their way back in the third quarter to cut the deficit to just 33-32 heading into the fourth before the Lancers were able to just barely hold on in a 44-42 victory. Hayden Hermreck led the way for Crest with 20 points and Jacob Holloran was the only other Lancer in double figures with 12. "I wouldn't say it was a great game, but it wasn't terrible considering the time of year. I felt like our effort was much better tonight, and seemed to be more in sync with each other on the offensive end. Early in the first half we got out to a decent lead and Erie clawed right back in it. We got another lead in the second half and, once again, Erie came right back at us. We got a couple of big buckets down the stretch and were able to make just enough free throws to escape with a win," head coach Travis Hermreck stated following the victory. Thursday night, the host Humboldt squad imposed their will early on in the game and never let up as they cruised to a 49-29 win. Humboldt led 13-4 after the first and stretched out to 25-11 at intermission en route to the victory. Holloran led the way offensively for the Lancers with 14 points and Hermreck added 11. The Humboldt defense limited the Lancers to 27% field goal shooting on the night, including 27% (3-16) from 3-point land and also forced a whopping 29 turnovers compared to just 3 assists for the game. "We were 1 for 12 from the field in 1st quarter with 10 turnovers, 4 of 23 with 16 turnovers at the half. We didn't take care of the ball, and we couldn't finish shots. We got some good looks, just couldn't convert," said Hermreck. Hermreck added, "Humboldt has to take some of the credit for our offensive woes. We finally caved to the frustration in the 3rd quarter and quit defending. I was hoping that we would be able to mentally get through the tough stuff and keep clawing and fighting. Hopefully this was a learning experience for all of us, and if in that position again can remain competitive." It's still early in the season and the Lancers will obviously learn from a defeat like this one. "It is a long season. This game won't define us as a team, we will get through it," Hermreck stated. To close out the tourney, the Lancers dropped a 46-35 decision to Uniontown. The offense continued to struggle, especially early, in a 48-37 loss to close out the tournament on Friday. Crest scored just 2 first quarter points before bouncing back to knot the score at 17 heading into halftime. Uniontown would seize control with a 16-9 third quarter advantage in the third en route to a 31-20 second half advantage. Hermreck and Holloran, once again, paced the way for the Lancers with 18 and 14 points respectively. Despite the struggle, Coach Hermreck remains optimistic about his team's ability to get things turned around. "Tonight was another frustrating night. Everything seemed like a struggle at both ends of the floor. We were able to pinpoint some causes of our offensive woes, both in execution and in shot selection. We will get to work in practice on Monday and start getting straightened out. It is still early, so while there is a sense of urgency, I am confident that we will get squared away and start competing like we should be," Hermreck stated.

BALDWIN - The Anderson County Bulldogs dropped 3 lopsided games in the annual Bulldog/Wildcat Classic in Baldwin last week. Baldwin jumped out to a 25-3 lead after the first period and 39-7 halftime advantage on their way to an easy 68-17 victory in AC's opener. Spring led the way for the Lady Bulldogs with 6 points, Pedrow chipped in with 4, all from the charity stripe. Anderson County only connected on three field goals for the entire game, garnering 11 of their points from the charity stripe. It was much of the same on Tuesday night although this time it was Burlington that jumped out early, 12-2 after the first and 29-7 at intermission. Burlington would cruise to a 58-25 victory with Pedrow leading the way offensively for the Bulldogs with 9 points. On Friday, Louisburg methodically controlled the game knocking off Anderson County 54-32. Louisburg outscored the Lady Bulldogs 34-18 in the first half and 20-14 in the second half.

Scheckel led the Bulldogs with 8 points and Pedrow chipped in with 7.

Richmond artist has work on display at the library

On display in the community gallery of the Garnett Public Library is a collection of works by artist Mary L. Hall. Mary, a resident of Richmond, KS, is an artist who paints in watercolor, pen and ink, and oil.

Many of her works are of historical buildings in watercolor. Her great love is florals of which her huge flower garden is her inspiration. These arrangements of flowers and field flowers never have to be watered or weeded and can be enjoyed everyday.

Pet portraits are special as their owners love having their pets painted to bring out their behavior. Mary has painted many gifts of Pet Portraits.

Italy and France are painted from research and workshops from her brother David's travel to these countries.

Kansas is an inspiration for her paintings of the Flint Hills, livestock, buildings, and many beautiful fields of flowers.

Mary hopes you will enjoy seeing her portraits as much as she has enjoyed painting them.

They will be on display during the months of December and January. A price list is available. Please don't forget to sign her guestbook.

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 12-12-17 / Photo Submitted

Various items were discovered while searching a site for a family to possibly locate some family historical artifacts. Included in the find was an early kitchen knife, a couple of large square nails, an old button and a China doll head among other items.

The quest to discover some family historical artifacts

Well the snake and tick crawling and biting season is about over for this year, but for me it's now the deer hunting season.

It keeps me out in the open, away from any trees brush or tall grass.

Fortunately for me I have a perfect project that I can work on any-time of the year.

Yesterday was my very first day to spend time at this site. A family is very anxious for me to find some family historical artifacts dating from the mid 1800's to the early 1900's. Yesterday I set out to do just that.

The following are my finds: an early kitchen knife with lead or pewter bolsters. It either had a wooden or bone handle.

I also found 2 large square nails, drinking glass shard, decorated dishware shard, a brass Burlington overall button, little China dolls head, 2 bottle glass shards, 2 shards window pane glass, 6 small white ware shards, iron harness buckle and two modern bolts.

I considered the day as a success.

Bulldogs drop 2 out of 3

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

BALDWIN - The Anderson County Bulldogs salvaged a 1-2 finish after winning their game Friday over Louisburg 56-54 in the Bulldog/Wildcat Classic Tournament last week in Baldwin.

In the opening round game on Monday, Baldwin used a strong 1st and 4th quarter to pull away for a solid 87-65 victory over Anderson County. In those two quarters combined, Baldwin outscored the Bulldogs 50-28.

Kass Allnut led the way offensively with 17 points. John Rundle tacked on 12 points.

Tuesday saw the Bulldogs jump out to an early 16-9 lead over Burlington after the first quarter before having disastrous 2nd and 3rd quarters, which saw Burlington outscore ACHS 45-25.

The Bulldogs weren't able to recover as they dropped the game 71-59.

Allnut and Rundle again led the way offensively with 18 and 12 points respectively.

To close out the tournament, Anderson County had a nice come from behind win over Louisburg, 56-54. They trailed 35-30 at intermission and 41-38 heading into the fourth quarter before pulling out the win.

Allnut led the way for Anderson County with 13 points.

10 years ago...

Skateboarders who use the Garnett Skate Park in Lake Garnett Park will soon get to test their skills on "The Pyramid," a $14,650 piece of equipment which will be paid for by the City of Garnett and the local skateboard organization. The Kansas Department of Health and Environment is in search of a man who apparently started a solid waste dump on land north of Harris, after county commissioners granted him a permit for a kennel operation there. Anderson County Engineer Hub Caspar said state authorities were notified several weeks ago that land owned by Vincent Briggs contained a large refuse pile. A neighbor had complained about the mess, and after subsequent investigation, KDHE authorities determined the location was indeed

An unoccupied car jumped the curb and crashed through the window of the Richart Hotel in a freak accident Friday morning. According to the police, Irene Day of Garnett left her car and went to keep a doctor's appointment. While she was at the doctor's office, the car moved forward from its parking space on Oak Street and smashed into the hotel window. Damage to the hotel was estimated at $700, and to the car at $200. Kansas City Star racks standing in front of the hotel, and owned by Harold Hahn, were destroyed, placed at a value of $150.

100 years ago...

Everything which decreases the sum total of a man's sleep increases the sum total of a man's capabilities. There is no reason why men should go to bed at all, and the man of the future will spend far less time in bed than the man of the present does, just as the man of the present spends far less time in bed than the man of the past did. The man who sleeps too much suffers from it in many ways and gains nothing from it. The average man who sleeps seven or eight hours daily is continually oppressed by lassitude. Nothing in the world is more dangerous to the efficiency of humanity than too much sleep.
