Locals take sides on issue of arming teachers

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Both nationally and in Anderson County, Americans are debating President Trump's notion that armed teachers and school staff would mean safer students in the era of the school shooter.

"When we declare our schools to be gun free zones," the president told the Conservative Political Action Committee conference, weeks after the Valentine's Day shooting in Broward County, Fla., "it just puts our students in far more danger," Trump. He said arming teachers who know their students made for a defensive advantage.

"A teacher would have shot the hell out of him," Trump said.

The comments have generated arguments not just between the traditional anti and pro Trump camps, but also among people who view school safety anywhere along the continuum of more gun control to arming both teachers and multiple school guards.

Last week on our Facebook page, the Review asked for comments on the subject from our page followers. By a narrow margin as of Saturday (10 of 18 comments) most of the responses favored some kind of option to allow teachers to be armed, but others echoed a call for different solutions.

"Long-term culture must change to value life if we are ever to see an end to these horrific acts of violence," said former Garnett resident Dan Benjamin. "Short-term eliminating gun free zones and allowing access to firearms in schools will save lives. Certainly only those teachers and administrative personnel who are comfortable carrying and appropriately trained should take on this role."

Others weren't convinced. "Whoever thought this up obviously fails in the critical thinking area," said Marigene Purcell of Garnett.

Vickie Mersman said the idea of an unknown number of armed individuals on site at schools would be its own deterrent.

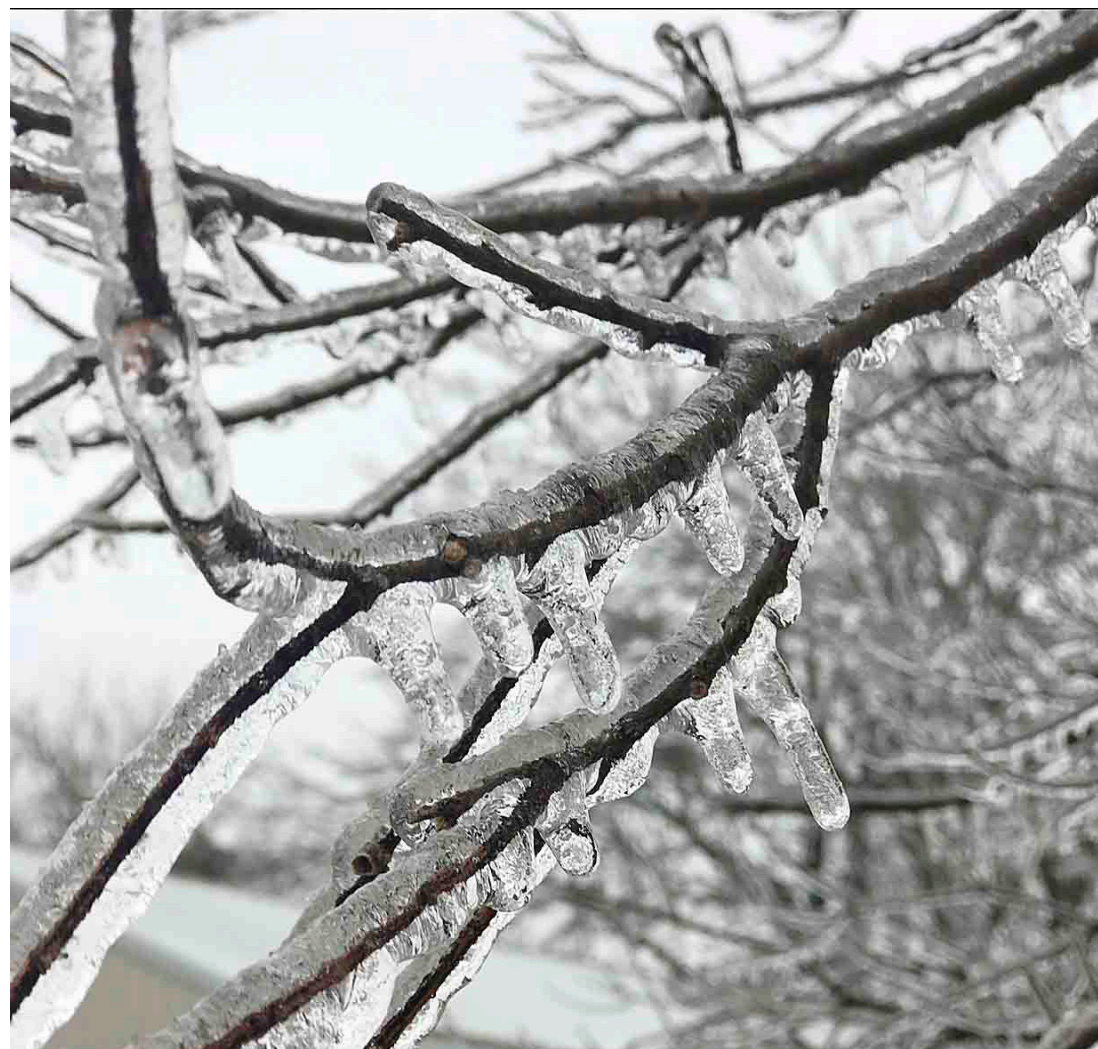

"Even if it were a select few of teachers that were carrying a gun no one would know which ones are and which ones aren't and it may stop them. Fear the unknown."

But others said more guns at school wasn't a plausible solution.

"It's absolutely ridiculous. Adding more guns to the equation is a mistake. Prevention is the key (access to mental health care, banning access to assault weapons)," said Jayme Waltz of Emporia.

Mark Padfield, a teacher in the Tonganoxie school district and Garnett High School graduate, said the option should be open.

Tuesday's ice storm made a crystal spectacle out of most outdoor objects and cancelled or delayed classes on Tuesday and Thursday. Warmer temperatures and lots of notice from the weatherman gave highway crews time to treat local thoroughfares and keep traffic issues to a minimum.

Alcohol suspected in car-train mishap

BY MELISSA HOBBS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

KINCAID – Authorities suspect alcohol was involved in a car-train collision near Kincaid which injured two Linn County men.

Shortly after midnight on February 17, deputies with the Anderson County Sheriff's Department reported to a train versus vehicle accident near Kincaid. Luckily for the men inside the truck, the escaped the accident with only minor injuries. Sheriff Vern Valentine reported that both had been taken to the hospital, but as of last Thursday had since returned home.

Conductors inside the Union Pacific train reported seeing the white Toyota pickup stopped on the track. They put the train into an emergency stop mode, but still struck the truck. After getting the train stopped, Conductor Glen Smith said he went to check on the passengers of the vehicle. He reported to the deputies that he could smell alcohol, and that he thought they were likely intoxicated.

"There seems to be alcohol involved," said Sheriff Valentine. "Both of them were tested for DUI."

The driver of the truck, Richard L. Glover, of Blue Mound, was tested on sight for alcohol and tested positive through both observation and breath testing. Test results for the passenger, Jacob A. Stanbrough, also of Blue Mound, weren't yet available.

The train crew showed police officers that the horn, headlight, and bell on the train were all in working order. The accident occurred near the intersections of 500 and Wabaunsee Roads. There were 136 cars in the train, and none had derailed from the track upon impact.

Hitting the road – with driver education

BY MELISSA HOBBS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

TOPEKA – The lack of driver's education programs in some area schools has parents upset, but luckily for students at USD 365, the program is still available. According to Superintendent Don Blome, Anderson County High School students can still take the program through an online program called Edmodo. The program allows students to complete the handbook and test portion of the curriculum during the spring semester.

Over the summer, the students then drive with a licensed instructor.

"Depending on the need, we have two to three licensed staff members for the driving portion," said Blome. The driver's education class at USD 365 costs students $150 and is only available to students in the district.

Having a licensed instructor is the problem that Crest USD 479 has run into. "The main reason we don't offer the class here is that we don't have a licensed driver's education instructor," said Crest Superintendent Chuck Mahon.

Luckily for Crest students, Kansas doesn't require a student to have a driver's education course to get a driver's license once the student reaches the age of 16. While there are advantages to getting a driver's education class, like discounts on your insurance rates up to ten percent, most states don't actually require the courses anymore.

Some local buildings are past saving, like the old Pennsylvania Hotel, which has a demolition order on it – but others and new home construction can take advantage of a property tax rebate if owners develop them.

City still wants county "on board" with wider rebate plan

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – City commissioners have once again approved a program that allows property owners who build or extensively renovate homes or businesses in Garnett to receive a rebate on the additional property tax those improvements generate – though county leaders have not joined them in expanding it.

The Neighborhood Revitalization Program allows people who build new homes or commercial buildings to be rebated 95 percent of their taxes for 5-8 years, and those who do extensive rehab on properties that ends up increasing their property taxes also get the rebate on additional taxes. The plan was initiated by the Garnett Area Chamber of Commerce in the early 1990s, and has to be approved each year by the authorizing taxing bodies – in this case the city, county and USD 365 – each of which agrees to the plan and the tax reduction.

The plan was initially set up to be available to certain designated "blighted" areas in Garnett, including the downtown, industrial park areas

Oklahoma and Kansas both require a driver's education class in order to get a restricted permit at the age of 15, but otherwise can wait and get a lesser restricted license at the age of 16 without the driver's education requirement. Oklahoma accepts parent taught driver's education for the requirement of driver's education. Missouri, on the other hand, doesn't require driver's education during any step of acquiring a driver's license.

"Short term, give us the option," Padfield said. "Train and certify as stringently as you wish. Let it be known that the option exists and the target is no longer soft, that alone is a deterrent even if there isn't a single teacher that opts in." He said there were deeper issues in solving the overall problem.

"Long term, secure the schools and fund us as we need. Connect to each other and put value on respect and civility again instead of the ego-centered model we have now." Padfield said he believed there were too many guns in the country to make a weapon ban work.

"The genie is out of the bottle on banning anything. Short of waving a magic wand, you aren't going to get the weapons back."

"If the teacher is properly trained and feels comfortable with such responsibility then my answer is yes," said former area resident Angela Howey of Topeka.

Les Thomas, a Garnett resident and retired instructor at Neosho County Community College, agreed the option should be available.

"Let each individual teacher decide," Thomas said. "Some are for being armed. Give them proper training and support. If they choose not to be armed, so be it. If my child's history teacher feels he or she can make school safe(er) then I support them. To those suggesting to arm teachers with an hour or two of training are being pretty ridiculous."

John Gooding of Garnett favored the idea, saying armed protection was a standard in many other areas.

"Let any adult that wants to be armed, be armed. The fact that two mass shootings have happened in non-gun free zones since 1950 should make this not debatable," he said. "We protect everything in our country with guns except children - money, politicians, airports, sporting events, government buildings, military bases. Its simple, protect the kids the way we protect everything else."

Katrina Tucker Winters, formerly of Welda, said keep the guns in the hands of the professionals.

"No," she said. "Schools should have armed trained security officers on sight to protect."

No legislation or executive order has yet been discussed in the U.S. Congress in relation to the latest shooting, though President Trump reiterated the concept in a tweet Saturday, saying the ultimate decision should be up to individual states.

There may be no way back!

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL

BY DAVID BILDERBACK

I wrote the following quote down but failed to record the author. With that said the statement is too accurate not to share so I shall proceed. "I (the author) have a high regard for the depravity of man. Without contest, the supreme sinfulness of sinners is the most disregarded reality the world over. The fall of man is quite possibly the most forgotten, under appreciated and misunderstood event in history. For this reason many in our day preach salvation but neglect sin; many talk about Christ but fail to talk about conviction; many offer testimonies about renewal but forget to mention repentance."
 There is a lot to unwrap here so I will begin by defining depravity. Depravity is a state of corruptness which means we have suffered the loss of a former soundness or virtue. We are not sinners because we sin; we sin because we are sinners. Since the fall human nature has been corrupt. We are born with a sin nature. Our acts of sin flow out of this corrupted nature. Think about it this way. If you have children did you have to teach them how to misbehave? No you didn't, nor did I. Misbehaving came quite naturally. At the fall Adam and Eve traded virtue for corruption. The bad thing about this is we as a society have embraced corruption. Through all sorts of media we have become convinced that we should just move forward with the rest of the world even if we are going the wrong way on an interstate highway. We overspend, over indulge, over react, you name it and we practice it. I was amazed to find out that Americans spend 30 billion dollars annually on bank overdraft charges. Why can't we get things straightened out? In my opinion we like our state of corruption. It fits well and we manage to hold some virtue as well. The problem with this is that every material thing is subject to decay or loss.

 Jesus addressed this issue in Matthew 6:19-21; when he says, "Do not lay up for yourselves treasures on earth, where moth and rust destroy and where thieves break in and steal, but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth or rust destroys and where thieves do not break in and steal. For where your treasure is there your heart will be also." Proverbs 14:12 is perfectly clear on this state of mind we maintain when the writer says, "There is a way that seems right to a man but its end is the way to death." Don't stay on this path just because it seems right or because that is what everyone else is doing. If you stay there too long there may be no way back.

better driver and may even waive some of your Kansas driver's license testing requirements.
 Driver's education is required if you are younger than 16 years old.
 You can start the Kansas GDL program by first obtaining a learner's permit and enrolling in a Driver's Ed course when you are at least 14 years old.
 For more information about getting your learner's permit, please visit our Drivers Permits in Kansas web page.
 Kansas driver's education courses are provided by public schools and professional driving schools.
 NOTE: At this time, the Kansas DMV does not accept online Driver's Ed. For more information on Driver's Ed please contact the Division of Vehicles: (785) 296-3671

 Once you shop around and choose a course, contact the provider for specific details on pricing and schedules.
Course Curriculum
 Regardless of which program you choose to complete your KS driver's education, you'll learn about:
 • Traffic laws and rules of the road.
 • Safe driving.
 • Operating a vehicle.
 • Driving safely in different conditions, including highway traffic and bad weather.
 Your Kansas Driver's Ed course will consist of both classroom sessions and behind-the-wheel training.
 The classroom and in-car training schedules and total hours may vary by program. Your course provider will be able to give you all the information.

 Once you complete your course, you will receive a completion certificate, which you can present to the Kansas DMV to satisfy your Driver's Ed requirements.
 If you present your Driver's Ed completion certificate when applying for your learner's permit, the Kansas DMV will waive the written test. However, you can choose to obtain your permit before completion of your driver education course, as long as you take and pass the written exam at the DMV.
 The behind-the-wheel training portion of your driver's education will count towards your supervised driving requirements if your driving instructor is at least 21 years old.

After Driver's Ed - Getting Your KS Driver's License
 If you're a young driver, completing Driver's Ed will put you one step closer to obtaining your first driver's license. After completing your course, you can apply for your KS restricted driver's license once you:
 • Have held your student learner's permit for at least 1 year.
 • Have logged at least 25 hours of supervised driving with a licensed driver.
 • Turn 15 years old.

Media gives NEA a pass on school violence

How odd that so much media criticism after the recent Florida school shooting has been focused against the National Rifle Association instead of the National Education Association.

After all, school shootings involve guns and schools.

But as instance after instance of school shootings have unfolded across the country over the past two decades and high-profile criticism and media attention constantly focused on the NRA for its support of constitutional gun rights, a review of media reports shows no limelight at all focused on the NEA for failing to make schools safer.

It's an irony that apparently escapes many journalists – if an association of 5 million members like the NRA bears responsibility for the violence committed by murderers with guns (none of whom have been NRA members, notably), then shouldn't an assessment be performed of the NEA, with its 3 million members, and its efforts to make school's safer?

But interestingly, a review last week of the posted information on the NEA's website shows no such instruction to staff and administration for ensuring safer schools – no outline for upgraded security measures or instruction to schools on their implementation; no video presentations on "Run, Hide, Fight, "; no insight as to identifying troubled students who might potentially turn violent and how to implement treatment.

There are no hiring guidelines for school guards or criteria for assessing their ability and willingness to engage a possible school shooter. No suggestion of evaluation for auto-locking doors or magnetic switches which lock down or sound alarms if large metal objects are brought close to them. No treatise on what it is about public schools that goes so terribly wrong for some students, and why those schools are so often the target of the deranged.

What the NEA's website does include is plenty of self-serving political aggrandizement. "Tell Betsy Devos It's Time To Resign" heralds one header on the slideshow of main backgrounds. "What Do Vouchers Have To Do With Protecting Bullied Students?" and "It's Time To Take Action: Students Lead Protest To Change Gun Laws."

It's worth mentioning, of course, that capitalizing each word in a sentence isn't proper grammar – but oddly a style adopted by an association of educators.

The larger point is that while school shooting news coverage attacks the NRA for pursuing its members' interests and assigns guilt based on the belief that owning firearms is a constitutional right, there is no similar expectation or attention paid to the organization which collects dues from teachers at each location where a school shooting has taken place. The NEA, in fact, at least from the content of its website, has offered no proposals for more secure schools whatsoever – yet its mainstay of membership is those very public schools whose safety it ignores.

While it offers nothing in the way of guidance or instruction for preventing or surviving a school shooting, the NEA has actively explored its own right to free expression and political activism by generously supporting Democratic political candidates. From 1989 through the 2014 election cycle, the NEA spent some $92 million on political donations, 97 percent of which was paid to Democrat candidates.

But throughout the post-Columbine era – shootings at Red Lake, Minn., the Amish school shooting in Nickel Mines, Penn., the Virginia Tech shooting Newtown, Conn., Umqua Community College – the NEA repeatedly committed none of its budget to develop school training programs for security or tactical survival in a live shooter situation, or devoted resources to studying why students go crazy and attack schools.

This, of course, is among the questions journalists in the media don't ask. But it seems sauce for the goose should, by rights, be sauce for the gander.

Since the emergency 911 enhanced locator system is apparently not working properly and caused the police and sheriff's department to kick in the wrong door of an innocent person's house, I wonder if we can get a refund of our 911 taxes we pay in? Usually when I'm paying for a product and it doesn't work properly, I kind of expect my money back.

In response to the missing ducks at the south lake, they might have fallen into one of the holes that border the roadway on the north side of the lake. The other day I had to stop and get a dog out of one of those holes, and it was a Great Dane. Does that give you any idea how deep the holes are? Thank you.

If ever I am lost and need guidance or reason or purpose in life, I can always count on Dane to remind me that ignorance is rampant in the county I live in and something needs to be done about it. Last week's editorial on teachers bearing arms solidifies my feelings.

Crest 479, what is happening down there? You have hired a sports nut as a superintendent and principal and you are getting what you asked for. Your administration and board are spending tens of thousands of dollars on a baseball program and money on a field that does not belong to the school. Is that legal? The girls' softball field at Kincaid has had nothing done to it. Do I see sexual discrimination there? Now a group has been formed to push for a new gym at Colony. Do any of those pushing for bond issues pay any taxes? Lordy, what has happened to education? What has Crest done to improve student readiness to go to college? Oh, that's right, all Crest students go to school on a sports scholarship. Ha.

Russia did nothing we didn't do to ourselves

If only Joe McCarthy had lived to see this moment, when it is suddenly in vogue to attribute large-scale events in American politics to the hand of Russia and to inveigh against domestic subversion.

Robert Mueller released an indictment of 13 Russians for crimes related to their social-media campaign to meddle in our internal affairs in the run-up to and aftermath of the 2016 election.

Mueller obviously isn't a McCarthyite, and can't be held responsible for the hysteria – and hopeful expectations of an impeachment-level event – that has built up around his work. His indictment is, as far as anyone can tell, rigorously factual. That's probably the point of it – to create a record of an episode that we should want to know as much about as possible and prevent from ever happening again.

The Russia campaign was a shockingly cynical violation of our sovereignty. President Donald Trump would do himself and the country a favor by frankly denouncing it. But the scale of the operation shouldn't be exaggerated. In the context of a hugely expensive, obsessively covered, impossibly dramatic presidential election, the Russian contribution on social media was piddling and often laughable.

The Russians wanted to boost Trump, but as a Facebook executive noted, most of their spending on Facebook ads came after the election. The larger goal was to sow discord, yet we had already primed ourselves for plenty of that.

Does anyone believe, absent Russian trolls on Twitter and Facebook, that we were headed to a placid election season involving an incendiary, mediagenic former reality TV star bent on blowing up the political establishment and a longtime pol who had stoked the enmity of Republicans for 30 years and was under FBI investigation?

If you read the Mueller indictment, you might think the Russians were everywhere, not only advertising on Facebook ("Trump is our only hope for a better future"; "Ohio Wants Hillary 4 Prison"), but organizing rallies around the country. But it's not clear these rallies even came off.

The Russians didn't do anything to us that we weren't doing to ourselves, although we were doing it on a much larger, more potent scale. The Russians are just aping the arguments we are already having with one other, and the sewerish level of much of the discussion on social media.

The New York Times ran a report the other day on Russian bots, in the immediate aftermath of the Parkland school shooting, posting on Twitter about gun control. It's hard to believe that this is going to rip apart the American body politic when many perfectly respectable, red-blooded Americans themselves advocate for gun control, and often in the immediate aftermath of shootings.

In a better world, Trump would be less defensive about the Russian investigation, and his opposition would be less obsessively invested in it (at least until such time that it produces a genuine bombshell).

We should seek to shut down Russian influence as much as possible, without losing perspective. We aren't divided because of Russia; we're divided because we have genuine, deeply held differences. The fault, to the extent there is one, isn't with the bots, but with ourselves.

"SOMETHING" is nothing without real proposals

The gun control debate is complex. It pits rights against duties. It pits individualism against communitarianism. It pits gun owners against anti-gun activists, and law-abiding citizens against one another. Most of all, it pits "common sense" against evidence.

The vast majority of gun control proponents keep talking about "common sense" gun control, as though Americans could simply blue-sky some ideas about curbing highly sporadic acts of violence and fix the problem immediately – and as though Americans were suffering from lack of will, rather than disagreement about method. That's simply not the case.

But there are things we can do. Let's begin with the easiest thing: We can insist that our law enforcement agencies actually enforce the law. The Parkland, Florida, shooting occurred because the FBI failed to do its job. Not once but twice, the FBI was warned about the shooter. And not once but twice, it ignored the warnings.

That isn't rare. We know that law enforcement screwed up in the South Carolina black church massacre; we know it screwed up in the Texas church massacre; we know it screwed up in San Bernardino. We know that, as of 2013, out of 48,321 cases against straw buyers – people who buy guns for others, including those who aren't legally allowed to buy them – just 44 had been prosecuted. We know that as of 2013, there were nearly 20,000 people in California alone who weren't legally allowed to own guns but owned them anyway. Giving the government more legal power to confiscate weaponry or prosecute those who are dangerous means nothing if the government blunders every available opportunity.

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

But we can do more. David French at National Review suggests an option: gun-violence restraining orders,

The biggest problem with the gun control debate has been its failure to boil down slogans to proposals.

or GRVOs. These would allow family members to apply for an order enabling the legal authorities to temporarily remove guns from those who are deemed to be a significant danger to themselves or others. Furthermore, we should ensure more transparency in the background-check system with regard to mental health records, and we should look to ease the regulations on involuntary commitment of the dangerously mentally ill.

We should also radically increase security in schools. I attended a Jewish high school that was regularly threatened with violence. Every student who attends that school is now checked in by security; the school has barriers on every side; armed security guards attend the campus. The same measures should be available at every public school. Complaints about the so-called school-to-prison pipeline created by the presence of law enforcement at schools seem to be overblown, according to the data – and, more importantly, it's the school's job to ensure the safety of students, not to protect students against their own criminal behavior.

These are simple measures that should be able to achieve broad agreement. But they probably won't, because it's too politically useful for the left to rail broadly about gun control. The biggest problem with the gun control debate has been its failure to boil down slogans to proposals. That problem won't be alleviated so long as the media insist on putting mourning teenagers on television with the chyron "DO SOMETHING." Something is nothing unless someone puts some actual proposals on the table.

Seeking assistance to identify object

Well folks, here I am again asking for your help in identifying this artifact that I found at my latest archaeological project on 15 February 2018.

My research thus far has brought me absolutely no results.

Right now all I know is that it is some type of locking device and made of solid brass.

As to what it was used for, I have no clue. I've looked it over several times with my high powered magnifying glass, trying to locate some writing or manufacturer's marking, but with no luck.

I discovered it somewhere between 6-9 inches deep in

If anyone can identify it, please give me a call or send me an e-mail. It really bothers me to find a artifact and then can't identify it or learn anything about its history. It seems at this old site, that's

Total committment

Pottawatomie County farmer/stockman Glenn Brunkow entered the Capital Plaza Hotel in Topeka with his hair askew and his demeanor a bit dampened. In less than 10 minutes Brunkow was slated to speak on international trade and its impact on Kansas.

He quickly walked into the Sunflower Ballroom, shrugged off his hectic morning on the farm and shifted into the advocacy-for-agriculture role. His eyes twinkled, he flashed his trademark Brunkow grin and headed for the stage to greet the other members of the Kansas Farm Bureau-sponsored panel on trade.

In his opening statement to the more than 80 Kansas Press Association (KPA) members gathered for their annual meeting, Brunkow told them, "Trade is the lifeblood of Kansas farmers and ranchers. Without trade, we're unable to market nearly half of the crops and livestock we produce."

Speaking of ag production, Brunkow farms with his father north of Wamego. The family operation consists of soybeans, corn, wheat, hay, a cow herd and a small flock of sheep.

The fifth-generation farmer/stockman crawled out of bed early that Friday morning, Feb. 9, before heading to the KPA meeting in Topeka. Brunkow had livestock to feed and his sheep were lambing. One of the ewes struggled to give birth and the stockman called his veterinarian to help.

As soon as the vet arrived, Brunkow laid out the situation facing the momma ewe. Committed to speaking on the trade panel, Brunkow left the vet with his father and daughter to help and headed east.

Talk about commitment... Brunkow firmly believes his farm organization is the most powerful voice for Kansas agriculture whether farmers and ranchers are lobbying elected officials in Topeka or Washington D.C., educating fourth graders on his family farm or addressing newspaper editors across Kansas about the importance of trade.

And while Brunkow headed to the KPA meeting, the situation back west on his farm had deteriorated. He learned the news in a phone call from his daughter a few minutes before he arrived in Topeka.

Fortunately, the first lamb out of the ewe lived. However, the second was lodged sideways and died during the birthing process. A third lamb died as well.

INSIGHT

JOHN SCHLAGECK, Kansas Farm Bureau

"I've never seen anything like it," Brunkow says. "I knew we were in trouble, but I never imagined there'd be three lambs. So, I never even thought about the prospect of losing two babies."

Loosing livestock of any kind represents one of the worst experiences that can occur on a farm or ranch. Like other stockmen, Brunkow looks at his stock every day he's on his family farm.

He checks on their health, food and water. The stockman also looks to see how they're progressing. Their condition.

"It's an emotional attachment you have when you raise cattle, hogs, sheep, whatever you have in your operation," Brunkow says. "These livestock live with you day in and day out. You've raised them from the first day they hit the ground until they're producing calves or lambs in your herd. It's a passion."

And it's constantly changing. Every day is a new day filled with challenges and successes. Still, Brunkow looks forward to these opportunities.

Like the rising sun, the Pottawatomie County stockman wakes up and looks forward to these opportunities. He's excited about his livestock. He knows they rely on him to care for them.

They're part of his life just like speaking on behalf of his vocation. Brunkow speaks to people about his crop and livestock operation because he's committed to doing so.

As a spokesperson, he's willing to do more, because it's who he is.

Law enforcement and some jail officials say some expenses are up and some are down since the county closed the vintage jail, relocated to a new sheriff's department, and started shipping prisoners to Allen County Jail. But when it all balances out, officials think the departments have actually saved a little money in the change. Sheriff Scot Brownrigg said his department still came in under budget at the closing of 2007, even with a new expense of $800 a month to rent the former Guest Home Estates facility. But the department has saved several thousand dollars over the months in supply expenses such as laundry soap, beverages, and other consumables that are no longer needed because the department doesn't house its own inmates. The department has also saved $60,000 in prisoner meals.

A company headquartered in Westphalia may be interested in bringing a 10,000 head hog operation to Anderson County, and county commissioners said that such a request would have to be considered under the special commercial use permit clause in the county's zoning regulations. County counselor James Campbell said there was no prohibition of such farms, but the acceptance of the operation would be subject to approval under the special commercial use zoning provisions.

Members of the Anderson County Hospital Board approved the $29,758 purchase of a new ambulance from Collins Ambulance Corporation of Hutchinson. The board had been considering the project for several months, but delayed in the decision making process until the new 1988 models were released. According to Hospital Administrator Ed Brown, other bids were received for $32,575, $34,681, and $32,995. The old ambulance was traded in at a value of $5,000, then repurchased for a price of $3,500 and will be kept for reserve purposes.

A fire on the roof of the Garnett Food Mart was discovered by firemen Tuesday evening as they returned from another fire call. The fire was extinguished within three to four minutes after firemen arrived at the store. Fire Chief Gene Friesen called the discovery of the fire almost a miracle. If it had not been controlled the fire would have spread rapidly on the store's tar paper roof and we would have had another big downtown fire, he said.

Last Friday afternoon, an oil tank at Centerville caught fire, by some means, which the Review has been unable to learn, and about 50,000 barrels of oil was destroyed, the loss amounting to over $100,000. The tank and oil belonged to Sinclair-Cudahy Company. A dense smoke arose, and was readily seen here and miles beyond. Some parties living northwest of Garnett, seeing the smoke, thought Garnett was afire, and telephoned in for particulars. In the evening, the flames could readily be seen a number of miles. It is thought by some that the oil was set afire, but nobody appears to be able to give any reason for it, so it must have been an accident.

AC boys hold on for victory over SFT

CARBONDALE - Santa Fe Trail (12-6) was facing a 51-36 deficit heading into the final period and nearly pulled off the huge come from behind win last Wednesday at home against the Anderson County Bulldog boys before falling 65-63.

SFT jumped out early and led 16-13 after the first quarter but the Bulldogs controlled the second and third quarter outscoring their opponent 22-15 in the second and 16-5 in the third quarter.

Facing a 51-36 deficit starting the fourth period, Santa Fe Trail nearly pulled off the miracle comeback before falling two points shy of the win. Both teams had major struggles from the free throw line.

AC connected on just 9-23, while SFT downed just 9-17.

Carson Powelson led the Bulldogs with 14 points.

Justin Rockers tacked on 12 and John Rundle 10 to round out the trio that scored in double figures on the evening.

Bulldog wrestlers compete at 4A State competition

SALINA - The Anderson County grapplers may not have had a ton of success at State, but that doesn't diminish the accomplishments they did make this season.

The Bulldogs sent a school record 6 wrestlers to State this year, with half of them winning at least one match over the weekend.

Ashton Miller (113) won his opening round match over Cassius Vanderpool of Bonner Springs (Dec 10-4).

Miller would drop his second match before winning against Kaiser Pelland from Pratt (Fall 2:53).

Miller's season would end in Consolation Round 3 with a loss to Chris Ray of Winfield.

Ryland Wright (120) would lose both his matches over the weekend. The first match was against Josh Patch from Andover Central (MD-13-3) and the second loss was to Jakob Snellings of Marysville High School (Fall 4:25).

Cole Denny (152) won a pair of matches. Denny opened up with a win over Bradan Slemph of Hugoton (Dec 7-4).

Denny would drop his second round match to Scott Radke of McPherson (Fall 5:23) before rebounding with a win over Brendan Ishimura from Frontenac (Dec 7-6). Denny's weekend would end against Ottawa High School's Jaren Parenti.

AC Wrestler Logan Allen (170) would drop both of his matches at State.

The first round was against Trai Warburton of Bonner Springs (Dec 11-4) and in round two, Allen lost to Luke Culbertson of Rose Hill (Fall 1:41).

Dominic Sutton (182) would also drop both of his matches. Garron Champoux of Marysville won by decision (6-0) in the opening round and Devon Duncan of Tonganoxie defeated Sutton by decision (5-1) in round two.

Dallas Higginbotham (220) rounds out the Bulldog wrestlers that competed over the weekend.

Higginbotham lost to Ethan Crubel in the opening round (Dec 1-0) before rebounding to defeat Sevren Hance of Pratt (Dec 3-0).

Higginbotham's season came to an end with a loss to Maximus Shannon of Arkansas City (Dec 1-0).

Lady Bulldogs score huge upset on the road

CARBONDALE - Santa Fe Trail entered the game Wednesday night boasting an 11-6 record, despite losing their previous two games, and the Anderson County Bulldogs entered the contest sporting a 5-13 record but it would be AC that would score the big upset, winning the game 50-43.

SFT dug themselves into an early hole, falling behind 18-13 after the first quarter but really stepped up defensively in the second period allowing the Bulldogs just 3 second quarter points to cut the deficit to 21-19 at halftime.

much like the first quarter as Anderson County wasn't about to relinquish their lead, outpacing SFT 17-12 in the period before matching their opponent in the fourth to finish out the win.

Gabby Spring scored all 6 of her points in the third to give AC a little bit of breathing room heading into the fourth.

In a win like this, there are always several key plays by numerous players.

Head coach Tommy Nichols said, "(Cali) Foltz played her best game of the season to date scoring 13 points."

"(Adri) Pedrow played solid defense and pitched in 11 (points)," Nichols added.

Overall Nichols was happy with the entire team defensively.

"Great team defense," Nichols said in reference to his squads hustle on the evening, picking up numerous blocks, tip balls and rebounding.

A few key moments Nichols made specific mention of were a charge that Lexee Feuerborn took at the end of the first half to keep the momentum on the Bulldogs side, a three-point basket in the fourth quarter by Emma Porter to stop a run by SFT and was happy with the poise Shylie Scheckel showed by keeping the team together when it appeared SFT was poised to make a run.

Foltz led all scorers with 13 points in the game.

and certain older residential sections - the idea being to encourage development in those areas. But in August 2016 the city expanded the program to include all of the city and got USD 365 to go along with the plan. County commissioners, however, refused to adopt the expansion.

"I'd like to see them on board," said mayor pro-tem Greg Gwin. "They approved Greeley, then turned right around and shot us down."

Commissioners at the time said they believed the focus should be as originally intended, with an emphasis on developing areas of need, rather than granting blanket rebates for home construction which might be in the city's more affluent areas."

City clerk Kristie Kinney said the program as been used very seldom due to a lack of applications among city residents or developers.

Fewer than a dozen new construction permits have been issued in Garnett in the past 10 years.

City manager Chris Weiner said the program was promoted through the zoning department and through the city's economic development division, but he believed it could be better marketed to hopefully entice more interest.

ACHS students art on display locally at Garnett Public Library and competing in local and statewide competitions

On display in the Community Gallery at the Garnett Public Library are pieces created by art students from ACHS.

The display will be at the library through the end of March, 2018.

The classes are taught by Robert Risch.

The Gallery is open from 10 a.m. each morning until 5 p.m. The evenings the library is open until 8 p.m., the art can be viewed upon request.

The Anderson County Art students will be involved in 2 upcoming competitions as well and currently have art on display at another competition.

In December, ACHS sent in 22 artworks to be judged at the Regional Scholastic Art contest. We had 9 of those artworks receive honors at the contest and are now on display at Mark Arts in Wichita until March 10th. Among those one artwork received a Gold Key (1st prize) and will go on to be judged at the National Scholastic Art contest.

ACHS will be attending an art competition on March 28th at Prairie View HS as well. We will take 10 art students to compete on various on site competitions, as well as bring 25 artworks to be judged at the show.

The Pioneer League art competition this year on April 25th will be hosted by ACHS.

All of the league schools will be in attendance and we will compete in various onsite competitions as well as have 2 judges come in to judge artworks which will be on display during the day.

That evening there will be an end of the end art show in the ACHS gym. Community members are welcome to come check out the artworks created by ACHS students. The display will open at 4:30 to the public.

At 6:00 the show will pause with the Academic Banquet beginning at that time. The show will reopen after the Academic Banquet for about 30 minutes as people leave.

Severe Weather Awareness Week March 5-9

Anderson County will be participating in the state-wide tornado drill at 10 a.m. on March 6th, all outdoor sirens in the county will be sounded.

A total of 60 tornadoes occurred in Kansas in 2017, which is near the long-term average (records beginning in 1950), but well below the more recent averages of the past 10 years.

Fortunately in 2017, there weren't any tornado related fatalities across the state of Kansas and just two injuries for the year.

May was the most active month with nearly half (29) of the tornadoes for the year.

Gas prices continue to drop, but spring increase expected

TOPEKA-Gas prices in Kansas followed a national trend this week, continuing their decline of the past couple of weeks. The average gas price across Kansas is now $2.37/gallon, which is two cents less than one week ago. Motorists in the Sunflower State and across the country, however, should not expect falling prices to continue. AAA will announce its quarterly gas price report later this week, with indicators pointing upward.

"Lower demand for gasoline over the second half of February has given us some relief at the pumps," said Shawn Steward, AAA Kansas spokesman. "Kansas still has the 13th lowest gas prices in the country, but it is looking like we may all need to prepare to pay more soon."

The 10 Kansas cities regularly highlighted by AAA Kansas (see chart below) showed a mixed bag this week, with seven cities experiencing lower gas prices. Lawrence remained flat, while Manhattan (+4 cents) and Pittsburg (+1) rose. Leading the price declines were Garden City (-8) and Emporia and Kansas City, Kan., which both fell four cents per gallon.

According to AAA Kansas, this week's Kansas gas price extremes are:

- HIGH: Kensington (Smith County) - $2.80
- LOW: Goddard (Sedgwick County) - $2.19

National Perspective

At $2.52, the national gas price average is the cheapest pump price seen this February. The national gas price average for the month of February is $2.56, which is 29-cents more expensive than the $2.28 average of February 2017. On the week, gas prices decreased 1 cent.

"Gas prices continue to trend cheaper for the majority of motorists as demand for consumer gasoline declines for a second week," said AAA Kansas' Steward. "Even with the small drop-off, demand continues to register above 9 million b/d, which is a four percent year-on-year increase, according to the Energy Information Administration's latest report."

While cheaper gas prices are welcomed by motorists, AAA does not expect the trend to continue.

Meeting on how to build a habitat for Monarch butterflies

The Frontier Extension District will be hosting a public meeting on Building a Habitat for Monarch Butterflies. This meeting will take place on March 8th, 2018 at Celebration Hall, West 17th St, Ottawa, KS located next to the fairgrounds, starting at 6:30pm.

Sarah Zukoff, an assistant professor from K-States Southwest Research and Extension Center located in Garden City, will be here to discuss Monarch behavior-migration, what plants do we plant to build our habitat, and how to keep pollinators around.

What's prettier than a million butterflies migrating south for the winter, or wondered about the impact they have on our landscapes? I'm sure that you have heard the horror stories about what will happen if butterflies just disappeared. Well those horror stories could become a reality if we don't do something, and yes everyone can help. You might be asking how can I help; I don't have hundreds or thousands of acres. While that may be true, small scale restoration efforts will be crucial to the success of the Monarch Butterfly. Yes, large scale habitats will be needed but we have to start somewhere. If you are interested in learning how you could make a difference come to Celebration Hall, in Ottawa, on March 8th at 6:30pm.

If you are in need of any special accommodations, please contact Ryan Schaub at 785.448.6826 or email at reschaub@ksu.edu.

Stocker Cattle Health Night rescheduled due to inclement weather

Frontier Extension District will be hosting a meeting on "Stocker Cattle Health," March 15th, running from 6:00-8:30 p.m. The meeting will be held at The Osage City Community Building, 517 South 1st Street, (on the Osage City Fairgrounds) in Osage City.

Thanks to the Kansas State Veterinary Diagnostic Laboratory, a free brisket sandwich meal will be provided to those in attendance and that have called in to RSVP.

Please contact the Extension Office at (785) 828-4438 to reserve your meal by March 13th.

Topics to be covered include: "Economics of Parasite Control in Stocker Calves," "Using Modified Live or Killed Vaccines, What to Do?" "Vaccine Handling, it May be More Important than You Thought," and "Wormers for Stocker Cattle." Dr. Gregg Hanzlicek, DVM, Kansas State Veterinary Diagnostic Laboratory and Jaymelynn Farney, KSU Extension Beef Systems Specialist will help us get a better understanding of these stocker health issues.

Immunization is probably the most important part of having a healthy beef cattle herd. However it is important to use vaccines as they are intended and when they should be given. Calves should get their first round of shots at branding time or at 2-3 months of age. Another round of shots should also be given 3-4 weeks prior to weaning. Remember a calf's health is additive, as you use a vaccination protocol you are improving the calf's health and adding value. Vaccines are not a magic potent in a bottle, we must handle cattle in a low stress method, handle the vaccines correctly, and reduce stressors like weaning, transportation, commingling, and weather changes near vaccination time to increase our success.

Please mark your calendars and plan to attend this educational evening. If you have questions or need more information about the meeting, please call Rod Schaub, Frontier District Agent, at (785) 828-4438.

Bluestem, Identification and Control; Fescue Seedhead Suppression and Using Cover Crops to Keep Cattle Grazing. Walt Fick, KSU Extension Range Specialist; Doug Shoup, KSU Extension Agronomist; and Jaymelynn Farney, KSU Extension Beef Systems Specialist will be our featured speakers.

BBB Study: Online Romance Scams costing millions

A study at www.us.bbb.org/romancescamstudy released by the Better Business Bureau (BBB) reveals an estimated 1 million Americans have been victimized in romance fraud scams with losses nearing $1 billion over the last three years. BBB warns those who use dating websites to be wary of scammers who prey on unsuspecting victims.

The study - "Online Romance Scams: A Better Business Bureau Study on How Scammers Use Impersonation, Blackmail and Trickery to Steal from Unsuspecting Daters" - says the scheme can take a number of months to play out as the scammer gains the victim's trust. The scammer eventually will ask for small amounts of money to feel out the victim. Victims often turn into unknowing accomplices of money laundering.

Among the report's key findings:

•There is no "typical" victim of romance fraud. They can be male or female, young or old, straight or gay. The common denominator is that they are seeking a loving relationship, and they believe they have found it.

•Scammers often portray themselves as U.S. military members. Military officials say they receive thousands of complaints yearly from scam victims around the world. Officials note military members will never need money for leave or health care.

•The majority of romance fraud has its home in West Africa, particularly Nigeria. There also are groups that operate in Russia and the Ukraine that employ online dating sites to defraud victims.

•At any one time, there may be 25,000 scammers online working with victims. A company that screens profiles for dating companies told BBB that 500,000 of the 3.5 million profiles it scans monthly are fake.

The report was prepared by C. Steven Baker, BBB International Investigations Specialist. Baker is the retired director of the Federal Trade Commission's Midwest Region.

In his role with BBB, Baker is working with an alliance of five BBB's, including the Omaha office, in analyzing and reporting on some of the most pervasive fraud issues that impact American consumers. This is his third study released through BBB. A September 2017 study on puppy scams and a December 2017 study on tech support scams he authored each was met with worldwide media coverage. BBB offers the following tips for daters to avoid being caught in a romance scam:

•Protect your identity and your wallet. Scammers prefer prepaid cards and money transfers. Never send money or any personal information to someone you've never met in person. Visiting with someone via a video call doesn't mean they're not a scammer. Also, be cautious to not reveal any personal information or do anything you might regret later when using video applications. Some scammers use software to record video calls and then use it to extort money from victims. Don't succumb to pleas of a financial crisis.

•Think before going from public to private. Be hesitant if the conversation moves from a monitored site like social media or a dating site to a more private form of communication like email or instant messaging. This strategy might be a way for the scammer to draw you in without other people interfering.

•Do your research. Pour over the profile image and description. If it sounds too good to be true, verify it. You can perform a reverse image search to see if the profile photo has been used on other websites. You can also copy a portion of their biography and search to see if it's been used on other sites. Scammers often use the same profile details and photos on multiple sites.

•Ask for details and get specific. Request other forms of identification, like a photo of them holding a piece of paper with their username on it. Ask specific questions about details in their profile. If they claim to be a military member, ask for their official military address as those all end in @mail.mil. Scammers likely will make excuses for why they can't provide you more information.

•Pay attention to communication. Be wary of bad grammar and misspelled words. No one is perfect, but if mistakes often are repeated, it may suggest they aren't from where they claim. Be on guard for use of pet names or discussions of marriage early in correspondence.

•Report it. If you feel like you've been victimized, report it to BBB's ScamTracker, the Federal Trade Commission and FBI.
