Ex-jailer sentenced to five years for sex acts with inmates

Laiter will serve sentences concurrently after judge makes ruling

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — The former Anderson County Jailer accused of sexual misconduct with prisoners under his care was sentenced to 64 months in state prison in district court yesterday.

Lex Laiter pled to two felony charges of unlawful voluntary sexual relations in connection with the culmination of a Kansas Bureau of Investigation probe into his dealings with inmates while he was a jailer between February 2013 and December 2016.

The court ruled both sentences would be served consecutively. In addition to the 64 month sentence, Laiter will have to register as a sex offender for 25 years.

The case was delayed earlier this year when Laiter's attorney, Craig Cole, asked the court for a competency examination of his client to be sure Laiter was cognizant of the charges against him and could adequately participate in his own defense.

Laiter pled guilty to the charges April 9 after the court found him competent in mid-March.

Laiter

Laiter was arrested at his home last November by KBI agents after interviews they conducted with former county jail inmates yielded statements from four women and one man that they had consensual sex with Laiter either at the jail or later after their release.

The initial complaint listed 13 charges including felonies against Laiter, who was fired by sheriff Vern Valentine in December 2016 for trafficking

Colony rocked by 8th grader's apparent suicide on Sunday

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

COLONY — The community was grieving tragedy on Monday and trying to come to terms with the apparent suicide of a 14 year-old Crest 8th grader the day before Monday night's planned 8th grade graduation ceremony.

A press release from The Anderson County Sheriff's Department said officers were called to the Colony Cemetery Sunday morning shortly before 10 a.m., where they discovered the body of a 14 year-old local girl. The release said there was no suspicion of foul play and that the incident had been noted as an unattended death. The release said the investigation into the incident was ongoing.

Facebook messages to family members and to the girl's own Facebook page relayed messages of comfort from numerous local residents and others from outside the area.

Crest's High School graduation was held at 2 p.m. Saturday afternoon. Superintendent Chuck Mahon said yesterday morning the planned 8th grade graduation ceremony would go forward Monday night as planned. Mahon said teachers and staff saw no indicators in the student's behavior that gave any clues to her apparent actions.

Grief counselors were working with students at the school Monday.

Sheriff's report: Jail revenues solid

Medical cost savings continues to be a win, Valentine says

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Heading into its 9th year of operation, Anderson County Jail revenues came in at nearly $339,000 in 2017, according to an annual report released by Anderson County Sheriff Vern Valentine last week.

Valentine said prisoner housing from outside jails which rent beds at ACJ totaled about $316,000, with fees for reports and summons deliveries, civil process and accident reports totaling about $8,200. Vehicle inspections brought in another $14,800.

Valentine said jail medical services cost the county $52,650 in 2017, a continued reduction in costs since medical bills skyrocketed at the jail from 2012-2014. Valentine contracted with an Illinois-based med services provider beginning in 2015.

"In-house medical services was a win-win for taxpayers," Valentine said. The contract followed consecutive years of medical service bills in 2012 and 2013 that topped $105,000 and $71,000, when the jail paid for prisoner medical services on a straight fee for service basis.

Jail revenues are paid into the county's general fund and are not used to retire bond debt on the jail, which opened in 2009. Jail bonds are paid by a special ½ cent sales tax voters approved for the jail's initial construction. The jail opened amid concerns that a new jail facility at the New Century Airport would con-

Learn to be a cop

Garnett policeman's history with Boy Scout program may help with GPD staffing problem

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — A Garnett police officer is developing a program that might help the department overcome an ongoing problem filling vacant patrol positions.

Officer Dan Frazier told city commissioners a Boy Scouts of America program called the Explorer program offered a framework to bring young people between the ages of 16 and 20 into the world of law enforcement, shadowing officers on calls, riding along on patrols, and learning the general ins and outs of police work.

"They come in and work with us on a volunteer basis," Frazier said. "They get a uniform, they ride along with us. They're an extra eye and ear," Frazier said. The Exploring program has been a staple of the Boy Scouts for decades, but is one of the best kept secrets of the organization. Scouting Magazine's website detailed the specifics of the Explorer program and its focus on 12 fields that give young people an immersion in those careers, including law enforcement. Frazier said he took part in an Explorer course in law enforcement when he was a teenager in El Dorado.

"I'm trying to implement what I did as a youth," Frazier said. "We're modifying it to our department's size and what we can handle."

The idea is a "grow your own" plan: develop a program that lets young people in their formative career period experience what being a police officer in a small town is like, and maybe eventually you can recruit them to your force. It's a possible solution to a problem the GPD has been dealing with for most of the past year. Chief Kurt

Democrats or Republicans in Anderson County who want to become involved in their local political parties can file to run for their party's county committee. Each party is represented by a committee man and a committee woman from each voting precinct who make up their respective county committees. These "grassroots" political organizers help support their parties and their candidates in local, state and national elections, and also make appointments in cases where same-party county officials leave a vacancy in an office. There's no charge to file for a position, and filer's names will be on the primary election ballot in August. Filings must be made in the Anderson County Clerk's office by June 1.

storage, with Jones' office pledged to pick up $5,225 of the $10,623 total. "I use this fund to help law enforcement with training and equipment, donations to charitable organizations, and to make big ticket purchases for my office so I won't have to use taxpayer money assigned to my budget," Jones said last week. He said by utilizing those diversion funds he'd been able to keep his office budget flat for his six years in office with the exception of cost of living increases in payroll.

King said the old body cams were replaced because they were no longer supported by the manufacturer. He said he was able to sell the old ones to the Norton County Sheriff's office and further reduce the GPD's portion of the cost of the replacements.

KU sports' grim reality

GUEST COMMENTARY

SCOTT STANFORD - Lawrence Journal World

It is concerning that expenses for athletic programs at the University of Kansas are increasing at a pace that is significantly faster than revenues.

The finances may explain why KU hasn't walked away from a $191 million contract with Adidas, despite the fact that an FBI indictment alleges that an Adidas executive "victimized" KU by paying the families of two top basketball players more than $100,000 total to get those players to commit to Kansas. The financial reports indicate KU may need that Adidas money more than ever.

In 2006, KU had 17 cents in debt and long-term leases for every $1 in assets it owned. In 2017, that number had grown to 52 cents in debt/leases for every $1 worth of assets

From 2006 to 2017, revenues for the nonprofit corporation Kansas Athletics Inc. increased by 68 percent. But during the same period, expenses increased an alarming 93 percent. This trend appears to be worsening. From 2016 to 2017, revenues increased by just 1.2 percent while expenses rose more than 7 percent.

According to an annual audit, KU Athletics lost $1.4 million in 2017.

Athletic Director Sheahon Zenger said he believes "strongly in the overall health of Kansas Athletics." But he also noted that KU is under considerable pressure to keep up with the Joneses, particularly its brethren in the Big 12.

"This is the rate at which Power 5 schools are growing their athletic departments," Zenger said. "My job is to be mindful and to be competitive. But I'd be lying if I said it doesn't tear at your gut at times. It really does."

In fiscal year 2006, Kansas Athletics received $7.1 million in revenue from the Big 12 Conference and the NCAA, according to its annual audit. In fiscal year 2017, conference and NCAA revenue had grown to $32.3 million. Despite all the new money, donors had to kick in $19 million to cover operating expenses in 2017.

And then there is the debt. In 2006, KU had 17 cents in debt and long-term leases for every $1 in assets it owned. In 2017, that number had grown to 52 cents in debt/leases for every $1 worth of assets. And now the university wants to raise $350 million for facility improvements, most notably the thorough renovation of Memorial Stadium.

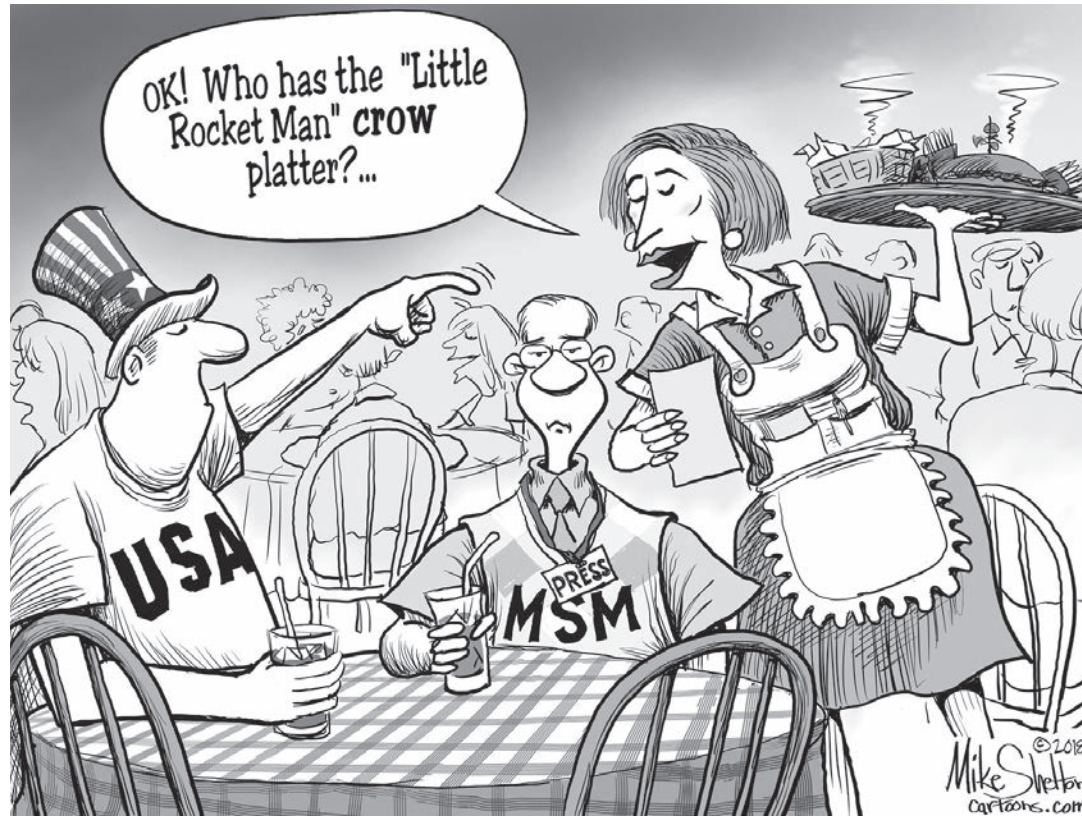

KU leaders dismiss the financial audits as painting a picture that is not entirely accurate. They point to other financial statements, most notably those produced for the NCAA, that show positive cash flow.

But a few things are clear. First, football is incredibly important to the financial health of college athletic departments. If football isn't pulling its weight, it's hard to balance the bottom line. And KU's moribund football program isn't pulling its weight. Coach David Beaty, 3-33 in three seasons, must start producing wins or KU has to make a change.

Second, KU has to evaluate its spending on athletic administration. Any other organization facing similar fiscal challenges would consider restructuring personnel to ensure profitability.

And finally, and perhaps most importantly, it is clear from the increasing reliance on donors to fund operations that KU has maximized what it can generate from fans without improving performance, especially in football.

KU Athletics' expenses are increasing, and its debt may soon increase. Football attendance and ticket sales are declining. How much longer are the big money donors KU Athletics is counting on going to keep putting money into an increasingly bad investment?

Did you know that in the UK they don't allow Adderall? Now, what's different is that in the United States we allow teachers and other staff members to tell us our kids need it, and then we think we have to go get it. I wonder what they do differently than we do?

I have been watching all the activities that go on out at our county hospital and all the services they provide and how much employment there is there with the doctors and nurses and everybody else, and it just makes me wonder where are all the people who were so convinced the new hospital wasn't going to make it and we wouldn't be able to afford it and all that voted 'no' on the vote for the hospital. It sure seems to be doing well for all the negative that was said before the election. Also I wonder how many of the 'no' voters have gone to the hospital since it opened to have their life saved? Just idle thoughts. Thank you.

I don't know if we need a law to enforce this or not or if we can just get some people who own downtown buildings in Garnett to use some common sense, but the backs of a lot of those downtown buildings just look terrible. Paint and plaster falling off of them, old phone poles broken off and not even there for any reason, weeds and brush. Nowadays you've got so many buildings missing that you can see right through across the alley to the back side of the block and see just how bad it looks. Something really needs to be done about the state of things in Garnett.

Hi, I just wanted to call the Phone Forum and say how much my kids and my family enjoyed the air fair at the Garnett Airport on Saturday. My kids got their first ride in a small plane and they haven't stopped talking about it. Thanks to everyone who put this on.

Probing obstruction when no one's been obstructed

Rod Rosenstein is doing a star turn as principled defender of the law, but he's performed abysmally as deputy attorney general, and President Donald Trump would be fully justified in firing him.

The leaked questions that special counsel Robert Mueller wants to ask Trump in a prospective deposition are, if accurate, a sign that Mueller has spun out of control on Rosenstein's watch.

The questions (drafted by Trump's legal team after consultations with Mueller's investigators) suggest a free-floating investigation of the president's motives, undertaken by a subordinate of the president. This is unlike any special counsel investigation we've ever seen and represents a significant distortion of our system.

Per the questions, Mueller wants to know how Trump reacted to news stories in The Washington Post. What he thought of FBI Director James Comey during the transition. How he feels about his attorney general. These questions grow out of an obstruction-of-justice probe centered, as far as we can tell, on Trump's exercise of the legitimate powers of the presidency.

What makes Mueller different is that his predecessors were given the mission of investigating specific alleged crimes. As my National Review colleague Andrew McCarthy has repeatedly pointed out, Rod Rosenstein mentioned no crimes in his initial order to Mueller, a violation of the special counsel regulations.

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

RICH LOWRY, King Features Syndicate

This amorphous, wide-ranging guidance appears to have allowed Mueller to effortlessly slide from an amorphous, wide-ranging investigation into Russian meddling into an amorphous, wide-ranging investigation into obstruction of justice. (Rosenstein followed up later with a more specific memo to Mueller.) Now, judging by the leaked questions, obstruction is the lion's share of Mueller's work. Absent smoking guns that we aren't aware of (always possible), this is bizarre and disproportionate.

We now have an extensive obstruction investigation carried out by investigators who haven't been obstructed. There's been an intense focus, for instance, on Trump's Oval Office discussion with then-FBI Director Comey about going easy on Michael Flynn.

But as Andy McCarthy also notes, no one went easy on Flynn, who pled guilty to lying to the FBI.

Regardless, current Justice Department guidance says the president can't be indicted. If Mueller takes heed, he is limited to indicting underlings and writing reports on his findings, with Congress the most important consumer.

This means Mueller is, in effect, the lead investigative counsel for a prospective House impeachment committee. It's an important position, just not one that should be housed within the executive branch. Rod Rosenstein is ultimately responsible for the state of this investigation. On the merits, he should be fired and replaced by someone willing to exercise proper oversight of the special counsel.

A more practical lever would be to push for Rosenstein to recuse himself. As a party to the firing of James Comey, he shouldn't be overseeing a probe in which he's a witness. To this point, the White House posture toward the Mueller investigation has been to cooperate and hope it goes away, when a root-and-branch legal and constitutional challenge to Mueller's work is now what's called for.

Surely, Mueller will want to ask questions about such an effort, too -- because he's the unbounded investigatory ombudsman of the Trump era.

Red meat of school finance case this week

The incredibly complicated task of adequately and equitably financing public schools in Kansas will heat up this week and next. Probably a couple weeks after that, we'll find out whether the Legislature has met the Kansas Supreme Court order to provide adequate and equitable financing of schools.

Last week, remember, it was the 50-page assertions by the state and by the four school districts suing the state for more funding for schools. Long read, and only the school districts had charts in their filing with the high court.

This week, we get the real red meat of the case. It is both the state and the plaintiffs swinging specifically at just what the other side believes make them a winner and why.

Is $525 million in new money over the next five years enough? That's what the state has appropriated, and somewhat embarrassingly, it's less than a $200,000-plus consultant hired by lawmakers proposed, which might lead to the closure of public K-12 schools next fall.

The state says that it is increasing funding and that it is doing it at a measured pace so that it is used to make kids smarter. Dump that money into schools all at once, and districts won't have planned how to use it best, so that its results show up on test scores and increases in learning skills, not just fancy football fields and new cheerleader uniforms.

The plaintiffs? Well, they're basically saying that school districts know what they need to do for students, that they can use a flood of money that they want productively. Schoolteachers need raises and new programs that will make sure all students learn to their maximum abilities. School districts know how to use new money, they just don't have it.

But the next two weeks are going to be the keys for all the legislative scraps over school funding vs. tax cuts vs. everything else that the state does in keeping Kansas cared for.

This week, each side of the case says why the other side's defense is flawed. Each is limited to 25 pages of arguments, and those will be the close-up statements that will likely define the scrap that will be presented to the court on May 22.

Those oral arguments—which usually bring some legislators to the Supreme Court chambers to watch—are where the justices get their first chance to question the lawyers for both sides. It's also the first chance that the public gets to weigh the questions, the issues that the justices have with the new school finance law.

It's where most of the observers will get an idea of whether the Legislature has fixed school finance to the court's satisfaction, or whether lawmakers have missed the key elements that the court is looking for in a constitutional K-12 finance law.

We might learn at those oral argument just which way the court eventually will go with its decision. It'll be watching for smiles, grimaces, the phrasing of questions for the lawyers and the occasional nods that justices try to suppress but which now and again may give an indication of which way they tilt.

The decision, probably in early June? It's going to determine whether the Legislature needs a special session to fix the formula and make sure schools open this fall or whether the court continues to monitor the case into the future, making lawmakers work toward that constitutionality test every year.

And, there are steps short of "complicity" that the court can take to boost school finance. Those are probably what lawmakers are most interested in. Just what, short of closing schools, might the court order...

10 years ago: Damage from paintball blasts around town does $1,000 in damages

10 years ago...

City and county fixtures have been the target already this spring of paintball vandals, and local officials are hoping to curtail the mischief that has already done damage to facilities estimated at $1,000. According to Joyce Martin, City Manager, several security lights and signs at Cedar Valley Reservoir have been struck by blasts of paintball guns. The side of the community building at Lake Garnett Park was hit a few weeks ago, and decorative globe lights have also been broken from paintball shots.

An Anderson County District Court judge ruled that the release of the names of three Garnett 13-year-olds accused in the destruction of artifacts at the county historical museum would not be detrimental to the youngsters involved. Juvenile court charges were filed against the boys in connection with the incident. The teens and their parents attended the hearing, along with their defense attorneys, who argued that public opinion would be adverse for the 13-year-olds if their names were released.

The area has been plagued in recent days by a series of burglaries and an attempted break-in. An attempt to enter Neal's Pharmacy through the roof was discovered Monday morning when water from the night's rain came through the store ceiling. Tape players were taken from the motor homes and merchandise and cash were taken from the restaurant.

The Highway Inn in Richmond was reported to the Franklin County Sheriff's Office where change was stolen and a door was broken.

Schools and others who are collecting waste paper to sell for the benefit of the Red Cross may do more harm than good by their efforts unless they take special precautions to prevent fires. Waste paper is a very dangerous fire hazard, and it should never be collected or stored in a school building nor in the congested down town district in any kind of building. If it is to be stored at all, a building should be secured that is located in some isolated locations and special precaution should be taken to prevent fire.

Old glove brings back memories of childhood

This is a picture of just any old baseball and glove, but they are mine as a young boy.

They were bought for me in 1949 (age 11). That makes them 69 years old. As you can see by looking at this picture they were definitely put to good use. Oh what memories they bring back to me.

In the mid 1950's I actually played on the Garnett American Legion team. Yes, I did and it was during our 4th or 5th practice, that I broke the tip of my middle finger on my left hand (it's still crooked yet today) as I never had it set.

So you guessed it my career as a American Legion ball player didn't last very long.

I didn't play baseball again, until I joined the U.S. Navy in 1956.

This is when I experienced my 2nd misfortune. I was playing as catcher for my squadron team and once again it was during practice that I threw my right shoulder out of place making a throw to second base. Have any of you ever had cordi-zone shots between your shoulder blade? This time my entire baseball career was over. Oh, well I didn't want to be a professional baseball player anyway.

Neosho County Community College Welding Program Students Place High at State Competition Recently eight concurrently enrolled high school students from Neosho County Community College welding school locations competed in the Kansas SkillsUSA Welding contest held in Hutchinson, Kansas. A field of 24 competitors were given drawings and a set of welding procedure specifications. All drawings, welding symbols, and welding terms conformed to the latest edition of the American Welding Society standards. Through a series of stations, contestants are tested on various aspects of welding: laying out a plate and using oxy-acetylene equipment to cut several holes that are checked for accuracy and quality; gas metal arc welding (GMAW) on steel making welds in various positions using short circuiting transfers; flux cored arc welding (FCAW) using a shielding gas, making welds in various positions and, using a combination machine capable of providing the correct welding current for shielded metal arc (SMAW) and gas tungsten arc welding (GTAW). Competitors complete the steel projects and a stainless steel project in various positions using a variety of filler metals. Placing 1st was Jordan Myers, an Erie High School student, who represented the NCCC - Chanute program. Placing 3rd was John Austin Louk, a Crest High School student (Colony, KS), who represented the NCCC-LaHarpe Program. For more information on the welding program and other locations please contact Amy Smith at 620-432-0406 or email asmith@neosho.edu. ## PSRT group meets and spruces up the depot

Prior to the May 9, 2018 Prairie Spirit Rail Trail meeting twenty-four members spruced up around the depot and planted flowers.

President Denise Weber welcomed all members.

Past President Skip Landis was presented a gift for his work as President the past two years.

Glenna Murray reported she had been at the April 21, 2018 5K Color Splat Run. She had passed out PSRT membership brochures.

National Trail Days is June

2, 2018 and members are meeting at 7:00 pm at the Community building for the community breakfast. Afterwards they will paint the Garnett signs at the north and south lakes.

Glenna and Kent Murray invited members to a social at their country home on July 13, 2018. Members are to bring a covered dish and their lawn chairs. It will start with a 6 pm social and then dinner at 7:00 pm.

Anyone interested in joining the trail group is welcomed to become a member.

Build trust with your own Welcome Piece

When I was a kid in the '70s I used to see the television commercials for Welcome Wagon. I'm not suggesting anybody go back to the ski jump bouffant hairdos (unless that's just how you roll), but the idea of having your business' own welcome piece for new and existing customers is a great way to help you sell stuff.

The Welcome Wagon concept was clever. Companies would pay to have their coupons, free samples and other promotional offers in a special collection which was delivered to the doors of new residents by a neighborhood lady who would help transplants with info about schools, contact information and various neighborhood info as well as the company premiums. It was wildly successful in its day until two-income households meant fewer housewives were home during the day to answer the door for the visit.

But you can still use the Welcome Wagon theme to familiarize new and old customers alike with your business and your offerings, and all it takes is a little homework and a sheet of paper printed on your home printer or at your local print shop. Make a sheet with all your contact information (address, phone, email and website/Facebook page and even Twitter and other social media addresses if you have them) and then just talk a little about your business. What problems do you solve for your customers (include testimonials and examples of problems solved)? What items do you carry in-store? What special order connections do you have that can be accessed in short delivery time? What services do you offer? What are some creative ways to use your products or services that might not be top-of-mind? Lay it all out in bullet points, brief and to the point. If you don't fancy yourself a writer or a graphic layout person, ask for help from your networking contacts and offer a trade of some sort.

Include a photo of yourself or your staff and give a little biographical info. What's your background and experience? What are some frequently asked questions you field? All of this helps new customers get to know you and reminds existing customers about your options.

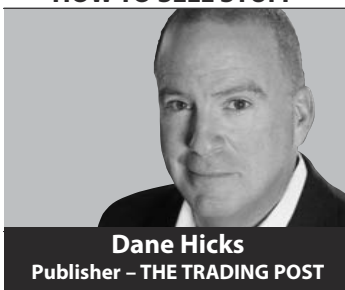

Keep a stack of copies on your counter and make it a point to hand them out when customers stop in, and use them as sack stuffers or drop them in other product packaging or shipping. Make sure a pdf file is available on your website and a link included on your Facebook page. You can even offer a free sample of some kind on a first visit.

A Welcome Piece is a simple way to gain and build customer confidence and acquaintance, and making a better connection with customers will help you sell stuff!

County attorney's donation helps with costs for new body cameras for local cops

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - City police officers will be the beneficiaries of new body cam equipment and tasers, with a portion of the funding coming from DUI and other court diversion fees from the Anderson County Attorney's Office.

Garnett Police Chief Kurt King told city commissioners in a written report last week nearly half the equipment had been paid for by a donation from Anderson County Attorney Brandon Jones, who has jurisdiction over the county's diversion fund - money paid by those charged with certain crimes in district court in exchange for sentencing on less severe charges. The funds accrue in various amounts each year depending on the applicable actions in local court.

King said 55 percent of the $10,388 cost of the tasers would hopefully be paid by a United States Department of Agriculture grant the department has applied for. The body cameras totaled $6,192 and $4,431 for related cloud data

“Click It Or Ticket” enforcement

TOPEKA – Kansas ranks towards the bottom one-third in seat belt usage among all 50 states. State and local law enforcement are working to improve this ranking by stepping up enforcement to crack down on motorists who aren't wearing their seat belts as part of the Click it. Or ticket. seat belt enforcement campaign.

More than 150 law enforcement agencies across Kansas will be taking a no-excuses approach to seat belt enforcement as part of the national campaign that runs from May 21 through June 3, concurrent with one of the busiest travel and holiday weekends of the year.

“The Click it. Or ticket. cam-campaign is about saving lives. We would be grateful if every occupant we observed was wearing their seat belt” said Ben Gardner, Kansas Highway Patrol Technical Trooper. “Our increased enforcement around Memorial Day serves as a reminder that wearing a seat belt is the easiest thing you can do to save your life.”

In 2017, nearly half of the 359 deaths from crashes in Kansas were not buckled. Young adults are dying at disproportionate rates because they are not wearing their seat belts in Kansas. In Kansas, 56 percent of 18-to-34-year old occupants killed in crashes were not wearing their seat belts in 2017. Male pick-up truck drivers between the ages of 21-34, and drivers in rural areas are among the top unrestrained fatalities.

“Seat belts save lives every day. But they only save lives when they are used and there are still many people in Kansas who don't buckle up,” said Chris Bortz, KDOT Traffic Safety Program Manager. “Our goal is 100 percent compliance. It doesn't matter where you go, drivers need to buckle up for every ride, every time because a deadly crash can happen to anyone.”

In 2017, Kansas seat belt usage was 82 percent, below the national average of 90.1 percent, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. From 2014 to 2016, seat belts saved nearly 41,500 lives across the country.

King reported to commissioners recently his department was presently short two police officers, and prospects for hiring have been challenging.

Frazier said the program requires participants to have completed the 10th grade and they must be able to pass a criminal background investigation and driving check, and also must maintain a “C” average in school. They can't have any arrests or convictions and must reside in Anderson County.

As a part of the program, those enrolled learn about accident investigation and the criminal investigation process, criminal laws and crime prevention, domestic violence, DNA and evidence collection, DUI check lanes, firearms safety, First Aid and general police procedures, among others.

Frazier said he hopes for 4-5 enrollees in the program initially. Anyone interested can pick up an application from Garnett City Hall or from the Anderson County High School office during regular school hours. Questions can be directed at officer Frazier at (785) 448-1641.

Patriotic banner program kicks off with May 24 event

GARNETT – The public is invited to a special event on Thursday, May 24, 2018 at 7:00 p.m. on the Anderson County Courthouse lawn, as the City of Garnett will host the Third Annual Garnett Remembers Celebration of Service

The fourth phase of the project concluded at the end of April with 194 honorees on 187 banners.

Ceremony. Please bring lawn chairs. In the event of inclement weather, the celebration will take place in the auditorium of the Anderson County Jr.-Sr. High School.

This is a very special event that honors the individuals represented through the Project: Garnett Remembers, a patriotic pole banner project started in 2016. The fourth phase of the project concluded at the end of April with 194 honorees on 187 banners. This project has brought together residents and extended family members from across the United States to recognize the selfless sacrifices of these individuals whose faces adorn each banner.

Military men and women who have served the United States Air Force, Army, Army National Guard, Coast Guard, Marines and Navy with ties to Garnett and Anderson County are represented on these banners that will proudly fly from prior to Memorial Day weekend through Independence Day (July 4) and perhaps until the end of July.

Scheduled to perform at the Celebration of Service are the following: Garnett Area Community Band accompanied by members of the Anderson County High School Band, the Heartland Fly Girls, patriotic music provided by Everett Cox, appearance from the American Legion Riders, and Presentation of Colors by the Jeffery S. Mersman VFW Post 6397 and American Legion Post 48. All 194 men and women will be recognized during this service by name in this special ceremony led by the Garnett City Commission. Special United States flags on display will be provided courtesy of the American Legion, American Legion Auxiliary, Garnett Fire Department and volunteers.

The May 24th Celebration of Service is hosted by the City of Garnett. Banner honorees, their family, friends and the community is invited to attend and show support for those who serve and protect our freedom. City, County and State dignitaries have been invited.

The Garnett Remembers patriotic banner project is made possible through the Garnett Community Foundation and city staff, with great emphasis on the work performed by the Garnett Electric Department.

The nuisance of tumble weeds

Part cultural icon and part invasive nuisance, tumbleweeds have an intriguing and tangled history. You know, tumbleweeds -- those twisted balls of dead foliage rolling across the open range and roads.

If you're driving any distance this spring, you'll see them rolling across the highways. Traveling on Highway 24 last weekend I nailed a two-footer while bumping a few others out of my path.

Tumbleweeds first gained notoriety when the Sons of the Pioneers romanticized them in song back in the late '30s. I remember seeing my first ones in the early '50s. In the early spring, summer and fall when winds howled across roads in my native Sheridan County, tumbleweeds raced across the flatland. Incidentally, I recall singing along with the Pioneers and I still remember the song well.

This plant is as much a symbol of the old Wild West as Wyatt Earp, cattle rustlers, the coyote and the rattlesnake. The image of the lonely rider and the ghostly shape of the tumbleweed bounding in silence across the endless plains has inspired a certain misty-eyed nostalgia even in folks who have never journeyed west of tobacco in the facility.

Among various incidents recounted in the inmate statements to the KBI was the alleged pregnancy of one woman after her stay at the Anderson County Jail, caused after several interactions with Laiter. The woman said she eventually had an abortion after her release from jail, and that Laiter helped pay for the Kansas City – except to travel through our state to ski in Colorado.

In truth, this weed is a blasted nuisance. Even its Latin name (Salsola pestifer) identifies it as a menace.

The tumbleweed is also known as the Russian thistle. This plant was brought to the continent in the 1870s as a contaminant in shipments of flax seed imported to western Canada. By the turn of the century, the weed had a foothold from coast to coast.

The tumbleweed can survive and grow almost anywhere. It remains one of the hardiest plants in the United States. Unfortunately, no one has found a good use for this thorny weed.

The tumbleweed can cause problems for farmers and ranchers. This nuisance weed clogs irrigation ditches, catches and accumulates litter, disrupts traffic, causes fires, poses a health threat to some livestock and even breaks down fences on windy days.

In Kansas and other western states, thousands of man hours are spent each year clearing tumbleweeds from irrigation ditches and railroad tracks. In the spring the weeds are fought with herbicides and in the fall the dried plants are sometimes burned.

Fighting tumbleweeds is a constant battle. Nearly every breezy day they bound across the prairie and every spring they sprout by the millions.

Although tumbleweeds have been in this country for nearly 150 years, no one has found a reason to cultivate this plant. One thing is certain; this nuisance weed is here to stay unless our plant scientists can find a use or method to eradicate the tumbling, tumbling tumbleweed.

So why not romanticize 'em?

Fairbanks admitted to Phi Kappa Phi honor society

BATON ROUGE, LA – Alaina Fairbanks of Garnett, Kansas, was recently initiated into The Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi, the nation's oldest and most selective all-discipline collegiate honor society. Fairbanks was initiated at Emporia State University.

Fairbanks is among approximately 30,000 students, faculty, professional staff and alumni to be initiated into Phi Kappa Phi each year. Membership is by invitation only and requires nomination and approval by a chapter. Only the top 10 percent of seniors and 7.5 percent of juniors are eligible for membership. Graduate students in the top 10 percent of the number of candidates for graduate degrees may also qualify, as do faculty, professional staff and alumni who have achieved scholarly distinction.

Phi Kappa Phi was founded in 1897 under the leadership of Marcus L. Urann who had a desire to create a different kind of honor society: one that recognized excellence in all academic disciplines. Today, the Society has chapters on more than 300 campuses in the United States and the Philippines. Its mission is “To recognize and promote academic excellence in all fields of higher education and to engage the community of scholars in service to others.”

Fairbanks

Since its founding, 1.5 million members have been initiated into Phi Kappa Phi. Some of the organization's notable members include former President Jimmy Carter, NASA astronaut Wendy Lawrence, novelist John Grisham and YouTube co-founder Chad Hurley. Each biennium, Phi Kappa Phi awards $1.4 million to qualifying students and members through graduate fellowships, undergraduate study abroad grants, member and chapter awards, and grants for local, national and international literacy initiatives. May you always find your arm slot,

May your change-up find the strike zone,

May your blooper find a hole,

Let all your dreams hit down the line,

Stay just inside the pole.

May the wind blow out when you're at bat,

This is my wish for you,

And if you're ever in a jam,

I hope that you turn two.

A right relationship with God

In Matthew 7:7, Jesus told his disciples; "Ask, and it shall be given you, seek and ye shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto you." Dr. James Boice, in his work "Promises to Live By", asks two questions concerning this text. "But for what shall we ask and how do we know what is God's will for us?"

Dr. Boice presents three scriptural texts to point us in the right direction. James 1:5, "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, who gives generously to all without finding fault, and it will be given to him." So if you go to God as a believer in the Lord Jesus Christ and ask for wisdom, you can be sure you are praying in God's will and that your prayer will be answered. Wisdom is defined as the power of true and right discernment and the conformity to the course of action dictated by such discernment. This discernment can only be revealed to us by God.

As followers of Jesus Christ we need to ask for wisdom to present the claims of Jesus Christ intelligently and with success, to distinguish good from evil, right from wrong. This may sound like I am stating the obvious but in our society today good and evil and right and wrong are not as clear as they once were.

The second text Dr. Boice presents is Philippians 4:6-7, "Be anxious for nothing but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known to God. And the peace of God, which passes all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus." God clearly says it is possible to have peace during life's calamities and he promises to impart it to us if we lay our request before him. I do not believe we can attain this peace if we wait and ask God in the middle of a trial. Peace from God comes over time as we build a relationship and learn to trust God to provide our needs.

The third text Dr. Boice presents is Philippians 4:8, "Finally, brothers, whatever is right, whatever is pure, whatever is lovely, whatever is admirable--if anything is excellent or praiseworthy-- think about such things." This text simply states we are to pursue the best things life has to offer. We must just be sure to get our understanding of the will of God from scripture. Our daily prayer life should consist of asking God for wisdom and peace during our trials and guidance to pursue the best things life has to offer. If we develop this type of prayer life we will enjoy a right relationship with God and receive the blessings he has for us. God has stored up for all his children untold blessings waiting to be tapped into through a right relationship with his Son Jesus Christ.

Kansas may see a spike in price at the gas pumps due to Iran sanctions

TOPEKA, Kan. – May 8, 2018 – Motorists in Kansas, as well as drivers across the United States, could see higher prices at the gas pumps due in large part to the re-imposition of economic sanctions on Iran, warns AAA Kansas. By summer, Americans could see the national average price of a gallon of regular unleaded gasoline ranging from $2.80 to $3.00. The summer driving season is only 20 days away, and it runs along the bookend summer holiday weekends, from Memorial Day to Labor Day.

Today's average gas price in Kansas is $2.58, up 12 cents in the past month. One year ago, gas cost $2.18/gallon on average across the Sunflower State.

Motorists are already seeing much higher gas prices. Currently at $2.81, today's national average is the highest since 2014. Consumers abhor $3 gasoline, but not as much as they used to do.

"Though anticipated, today's White House decision brings a wide variety of global and domestic impacts," said Shawn Steward, AAA Kansas spokesman. "In the United States, one of the largest potential impacts could be increased crude oil prices due to reinstated sanctions on Iran. In turn, this could lead to increased gas prices later this summer."

However, most motorists might not see any immediate impacts at the gas station. It can take weeks, sometimes months, for the market increase to translate over to retail prices. The retail increase will be dependent on how expensive crude oil price goes and the duration at which crude sells at the higher price point in the market.

On one hand, if in the end crude oil remains at $68-$70/ a barrel (bbl.), prices will not be that much more expensive this summer than they are now.

On the other hand, if crude sells for $70+/bbl. for an extended amount of time, the national average could hit $3/gallon this summer.

Spending more on gasoline concerns consumers because it reduces savings and spending for everything else we need, notes AAA Kansas.

There are practices and behaviors drivers can undertake to increase gas mileage and, thus, save money on fuel, AAA Kansas says:

- Accelerate gradually. Avoid jackrabbit starts.

- Anticipate your stops. When approaching a red light, let your foot off the gas as early as possible.

- In summer, drive during cooler parts of the day. Cooler, denser air can boost power and mileage.

- Avoid long warm-ups in the morning. They're unnecessary and waste fuel.

- Use air conditioning. Today's air conditioners create less drag on the engine than driving with the windows open.

- Maintain recommended tire pressure. Low pressure reduces fuel economy and can damage tires.

- Keep the air filter clean. Clogged filters reduce fuel economy and increase exhaust emissions.

- Drive the speed limit.

The city of Colony receives Waste Tire Grant

The City of Colony is the recipient of a 50/50 Waste Tire Grant through the Kansas Department of Health and Environment.

Champion Tire collects waste tires and recycles them into new items such as playground cover, picnic tables and benches. Colony City will be purchasing 8 new picnic tables for use at the shelter house/ball field and the park at City Hall.

The KDHE Waste Tire Grant will pay for 50% of the purchase price.
