Traffic counters hold the key in the analysis that determines local investment and safety

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

TOPEKA – Those cables stretched across U.S. 169 Highway last week connected to those little electronic boxes may end up determining millions of dollars in investment in the local area, the rise or fall of private business fortunes, and whether repair and maintenance projects happen right away or wait for weeks or months.

Traffic counters aren't uncommon and most of us run over them without much more than a thought, but the data they collect has both a direct and indirect impact on people and economics everywhere you see them.

"That's data that's used in a lot of our road planning," said Priscilla Peterson, media contact for the Kansas Department of Transportation, Region 4, within which Anderson County is located. "But it's all publicly available on our website, so it's available for any number of private uses as well.

Those private applications might include the location of a truck stop or a fast food or other franchise that requires a great deal of traffic to sustain itself – not to mention millions of dollars in high-way spending that circulates through contractors and the local businesses they spend money with when on location for a job.

The counters are placed in various locations to gauge the amount of traffic flowing across any set point along a thoroughfare, and then analyzed to see the difference between data from that point and data from other points before or after that one.

When combined, the numbers paint a picture for the region that reveals where people drive the most along state highways, and what types of vehicles make up that traffic. It also determines the growth in traffic volume along certain routes, showing clearly how much lifestyle aspects like work commutes affect the traffic volumes in various areas within a region.

"The counters register standard passenger traffic and then they also register heavier vehicles, which are almost always semis," she said. All that data – and its proximity to collection points around towns and highway merges, goes into the number crunching that becomes state highway planning, she said.

The counts are collected in 24 hour periods and then averaged over the collection period to yield average daily measurements. One of the most striking revelations is the amount of truck traffic traveling local highways.

A review of the 2016 maps shows the county's most highly trafficked segment of road – from the junction of U.S. 169 and U.S. 59 (locally referred to as the Five Mile Junction) north to the split of those two highways at the roundabout totaled 5,010 vehicles on an average day in 2016. Some 1,410, or 28 percent were heavy vehicles.

USD 365 to hire security officer

Board members vote to staff single officer to cover
 district facilities

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – School board members in USD 365 voted unanimously Thursday night to hire armed security for district facilities, although they're not sure yet if that will come through a contractor or by starting the district's own police agency in-house.

The vote came after an April meeting discussion of school security in the wake of a February shooting at a Florida high school that killed 17 teachers and students and injured another 17. Board members at the time commented that they were leaning more and more toward armed security and wanted the administration to pursue that option.

The district had a resource officer at Anderson County Junior-Senior High School through the Anderson County Sheriff's Office during a three-year grant period from 2009-2012, when former Anderson County Sheriff Scot Brownrigg applied for and received a federal grant to pay for the officer's staffing. That grant expired in 2012, and the department attempted for a time to split a county deputy's time between SRO and road patrol duties, but that plan eventually was abandoned.

Superintendent Don Blome told the board the costs of staffing the officer would be formidable.

"This will cost the district a good sum of money," Blome told the board in written background comments in the meeting's agenda, noting start up costs for equipment, uniforms and salary. "After that, the main cost should be training and compensation."

Board member Dwight Nelson said estimates pegged the possible costs of staffing the district's own officer at about 1 mill per year in additional budget funding – about $80,000.

The initial discussion would contract an officer from a local law enforcement agency like the Garnett Police Department or ACSO, but both those agencies have had problems recruiting officers in recent months – at one time recently the GPD had two patrol vacancies, according to chief Kurt King.

King said Monday GPD would have to hire an officer specifically for that duty and estimated that cost at about $60,000 annually. Anderson County Sheriff Vern Valentine said his agency would be unable to contract the service due to his shortage of personnel.

Blome said the most likely option would be for the district to develop its own in-house security agency, hiring and equipping security personnel wholly on its own. Blome told board members he thought the district would have insurance to operate its security department through the law enforcement endorsement on its present insurance policy.

The district has five attendance centers, ACHS, Garnett Elementary Center and the Alternative School in Garnett and one elementary school each in Greeley and Westphalia. Blome said discussions had centered on only one officer being hired who

'Shopping mystery' revealed in county's statistics

TOPEKA – It's an Anderson County shopping mystery. For some reason, customers in Anderson County seem to have done an inordinate amount of shopping out of state the past couple of spring seasons – enough to show a surge in use tax collections in May of the past two years in comparison to the previous months of each year.

Use taxes in Kansas are taxes remitted from out-of-state businesses after buyers purchase goods from outside Kansas which will be used, stored or consumed in the state, and upon which no in-state sales tax was paid.

Examples would include furniture, auto parts and other retail sales through major online retailers like Amazon, but not vehicles – whose

Knowing the growth in total traffic and heavier trucks along those routes provides an indicator for KDOT engineers and other planners to determine speed limits, anticipated service time of sections of roads and estimates of eventual breakdown, which in turn help determine costs to replace or maintain, Peterson said.

fireworks for most cities can run in the tens of thousands of dollars. From inception the local fireworks have been paid entirely through public donations.

The Chamber of Commerce voted to let go of Libertyfest as one of their anchor events in recent years to better pursue business-related activities that benefit Chamber members. To keep Libertyfest on the calendar, city employees and community champions are volunteering to step up to help with the event.

"Like other special events, Libertyfest brings people into Garnett for a day or perhaps a 3-day weekend and with it their enjoyment of visiting Garnett restaurants, retail and convenience stores," Wettstein said. "Libertyfest can be a shot in the arm during the Independence holiday weekend that without it we could see a substantial loss in business revenues and city sales tax as locals and visitors alike seek recreational opportunities surrounding an Independence Day holiday celebration elsewhere."

In 2015, Garnett's Libertyfest was ranked No. 8 as one of "14 Epic Fireworks Shows in Kansas that Will Blow You Away" by Only In Your State (www.onlyinyourstate.com/kansas/kansas-fireworks/).

Advanced donations can be made by businesses, organizations, churches, families and individuals.

are on the increase, statistics gathered over the past 25 years show the trend has been lessening in recent years, according to sources quoted in a USA Today article published in February. Since 1990 there have been 23 school shootings in which two or more people were killed. Over that period about 10 students per year on average lost their lives in school shootings compared to about 100 per year who died either walking or riding their bikes to school.

Blome said board members anticipated being able to staff the officer in time for the coming school year.

Department of Revenue said there no anomalies or additional payments included in May numbers. Figures for other nearby counties - Allen County, for instance - showed more consistent collections with nothing odd about the month of May.

"I'm wondering that myself," Anderson County Treasurer Dena McDaniel said of the May bonus figures. "There have to be detailed reports they (KDOR) would have that show those payments."

A call to additional KDOR staff for an explanation of the figures was not returned by presstime Monday.

Scheckel

Anna Belle was known for her energy and compassion for others. She met her husband while working at the Greeley Coop and later worked alongside him at the family owned Western Auto Store. While working and raising five children, she also gave generously of her time to her parish, organizing dinners, making her famous cinnamon rolls, and later raising funds through couponing for the parish school. Anna Belle took care of her mother and her mother-in-law in their later years. She was an organic gardener long before such practices were popular. She canned enormous quantities of fruits and vegetables each summer while always having an open door for visitors and family. Many have commented that her home was like Grand Central Station with a pot of coffee always brewing and home baked goods on the table. Anna Belle and Laverne loved to travel, taking the family on many vacations over the years. As a couple, they enjoyed taking trips with a variety of extended family members.

Anna Belle deeply enjoyed this life, laughing easily and listening deeply to those she loved. She made other people feel at home with her kindness and easy manner. Ultimately, it was her deep faith that motivated and sustained her. Her children and grandchildren grieve her passing and will greatly miss her. The family would like to thank her many caregivers for their dedication.

She is survived by her husband of 63 years, Lavern Scheckel and five children, Gene Scheckel (Lela) of Owasso, OK; Cindy Molini (William) of Excelsior Springs, MO; Roger Scheckel of Topeka, KS; John Scheckel (Cathy) of Princeton, KS; and Mary Lou Scheckel of Garnett, KS. She is survived by eight grandchildren: Marisa, Melanie, Sarah, Caleb, Benjamin, Britta, Jenna and Regan. She is also survived by two sisters, Mildred Martin, Kansas City, MO; Thelma Emerson, Longwood, FL; and many nieces and nephews. Anna Belle was preceded in death by her sister, Margie Samson.

Mass of Christian Burial will be held at 10:00 a.m., on Thursday, June 14, 2018, at Holy Angels Catholic Church in Garnett, Kansas. Burial will follow in St. Boniface Cemetery, Scipio. Rosary and visitation will be held from 6:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m., on Wednesday evening at Holy Angels Church.

Memorial contributions can be made to Holy Angels Catholic Church and/or Crossroads Hospice.

What could the chief of the EPA want with a visit to Garnett?

It's hard to imagine, with his short tenure as administrator of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency under fire for malfeasance by Republicans and Democrats alike, what Scott Pruitt wanted in Garnett at a special meeting with East Kansas Agri Energy this morning.

We have to imagine it's not about ethanol or schmoozing the farm vote at all – we think he must be heading for the lunch special at The Trade Winds after the meeting.

Why else would the Administrator of the EPA – the Big Cheese, the Top Brass, The Big Kahuna – want to tour an ethanol plant in Eastern Kansas and meet with its principals and investors, when he's spent a good portion of the last year acting against his boss (President Trump)'s directives and shooting holes in the law that supports the ethanol industry and the farmers who play such a core role in it?

Pruitt's been under fire almost since he first mashed his bare toes into the deep pile of the EPA's head office carpet. The former Oklahoma Attorney General, jointed at the hip with his state's oil industry, was one of a flurry of picks when President Trump's surprise election pressed him into finding cabinet members ASAP. Pruitt, who Iowa Senator Joni Ernst once referred to as being "as swampy as you can get" washed in through the drainage ditches of political favor to the detriment of taxpayers, Midwestern farmers and the Trump Administration itself.

Allegations against Pruitt of largesse on the taxpayer dime are Tudor-esque; that he had a $43,000 sound proof phone booth built for his office in order to have private phone calls; that he plugged some $105,000 into first-class airfares because some of the rabble in coach were once rude to him; that his 20-person security detail (c'mon, you're the EPA guy, not one of the Getty children) burns millions; that a Washington lobbyist buddy got him a sweetheart deal on an expensive DC condo; that he's cozied up to industry big-wigs he's supposed to be regulating – and that he even hurried EPA office staff off to buy him a discounted mattress from the Trump International Hotel. That list, unfortunately, goes on.

But his biggest sin – and the one that will probably be his undoing – is his back door attacks against farmers and the Renewable Fuel Standard. The RFS is the portion of the 2005 law that requires oil refineries to blend ethanol into their gasoline. Pruitt's friends in the oil business aren't fond of ethanol, so to a handful of them the EPA chief has been handing out "hardship waivers" exempting them from the blending requirements – which means they save money by not having to buy ethanol and mix it into their gasoline like other refiners do.

If the cronyism and fiscal abuse in his office isn't enough, it's Pruitt's stance against ethanol – contrary to the federal law he's supposed to be administering as head of the EPA – that has him in the crosshairs of influential Republicans who want to keep the Midwest farm vote for the president in 2020. For that, Pruitt's recent shenanigans in alienating the farm vote just won't do.

Our bet is Pruitt's new affinity for agriculture states and ethanol plants has to do with trying to save his skin – or at least an attempt to assuage farmers' fears and remind them that President Trump is, despite the actions of his EPA head, still behind them. Maybe, after more than a year torpedoing the ethanol industry, Pruitt's Come-to-Jesus with ethanol at EKAE this Tuesday can make everything all right.

Then again, maybe not. Either way, the flight from KCI to DC is a little more than two hours – long enough for a nap after Trade Winds chicken & noodles. Pruitt may need those extra carbs when he gets home – to pack up his office.

One important lesson I learned in life, and I hope this will help others. There's two sides to every story and unless you hear both of them you really should not have an opinion.

What is it with you inbred Republican morons like Rich Lowry? You gotta be kidding. Fake news? That's getting really old. Everything's fake news when you don't agree with it. Rich Lowry's so full of himself. This paper is nothing but a Republican paper that spews hate just like the Trump Administration. You gotta quit your fake news about Obama and Hillary BS. Everybody's tired of it and the country's tired of it and we're gonna get rid of you guys.

Yes, please offer Mr. Hicks an apology. C'mon, you can do it. If viewed in its entirety without omissions, in truth, President Trump did call MS 13 illegal immigrants – the operative word here being "illegal." Oh, and by the way, did you not realize on the hierarchy of primate intelligence, that the orangutan ranks second only to human. I understand no everyone believes humans are primates, if that's the case, orangutans come in first place in the smarts department. #winning. Sorry, Mr. Faker.

Yes, to the person who suffers from OOS – Orangutan Obsessive Syndrome – au contraire: red, orange and often yellow are beautiful colors, vibrant sunny and full of hope. Especially energy. Kind of reminiscent of fire and fury, not tired, weak and stationary in nature. I love these colors. PS – are you by any chance bald?

ACH auxiliary is a new term to me. Are they the hospital volunteers? Are there no males? What does HAK stand for?

It's time to revisit the house west of Garnett Elementary. Have you noticed the junk in the front yard is growing in? But let's address the back yard. Rotting large round bales; rotting stacks of loose hay and straw and rotting stacks of small square bales with rats running from pile to pile, and rusting machinery that never moves. Think what the people living around there think.

Kooky Roseanne no spokesman for Trumpers

Valerie Jarrett, the former Obama aide targeted by Roseanne Barr, says the comedienne's train wreck should be a "teaching moment." And so it should -- about the poisonous kookery of Roseanne Barr.

Given the political freight piled atop the hit revival of her TV program, it was inevitable that Barr's spectacular Twitter flameout would be interpreted as a portentous statement on Donald Trump's America.

Chris Hayes of MSNBC says that her "problem turned out to be that she far too authentically represented the actual worldview of a significant chunk of the Trump base." Activist Michaela Angela Davis said on CNN that Trump had enabled Barr -- a common theme on the left -- and then went all the way: Asked point-blank if all Trump voters are racist, she said, "Yes."

Nothing so perfectly encapsulates the dynamic of the Trump era than a TV show that was supposed to be a sympathetic portrayal of Trump supporters by liberal America leading -- once again -- to the ritualistic denunciation of Trump supporters by liberal America.

Barr is not a typical Trump voter just because she played one on TV. She shares much more in common with a celebrity culture that never lacks for its share of nut jobs and toxic personalities, especially among comics. Her wild ramblings don't tell us anything about what Trump voters think, about the state of race relations in America, or about working-class culture. Her crackpot views are all her own.

Roseanne was a kook long before President Trump showed up. She maintained that Sept. 11 was "an inside Bush job." She used to call Israel a "Nazi state" and denounce "warmongering American rabbis," before turning around and calling Hillary Clinton "anti-Semitic" and Huma Abedin "a filthy Nazi whore."

Her subsequent explanations for her heinous Valerie Jarrett tweet should make it clear -- she thought Jarrett was a Saudi, or a maybe a Jewish Persian -- that this is fundamentally a story about an unhinged person advertising her lunacy on social media.

Of course, Trump gave his critics reason to associate him with Barr by calling her to congratulate her on her show and eagerly trumpeting its success. Trump's boosterism was typical of him -- it's all about the ratings -- but also reflects an endemic weakness of the right. We have low regard for pop culture, but crave its validation. If it must come via a program that is a 1990s throwback reliant on a ticking time bomb of a star, so be it.

The genesis of the "Roseanne" revival was innocent and laudable enough. The president of Disney-ABC Television Group explained the show's inception after the 2016 election: "We looked at each other and said, 'There's a lot about the country we need to learn a lot more about, here on the coasts.'"

He was right. The appetite for the show, which partook of none of the toxicity of Roseanne's real-life personality, speaks of the hunger for more programming about Red America. Surely, there must be other vehicles for that -- assuming Hollywood doesn't internalize the critique of Roseanne Barr as a characteristic Trump voter.

Higher taxes filling Kansas' coffers with new revenue

Recently while most news media were watching to see who is filing for whatever state office, the Kansas Department of Revenue released a near-shocking report on receipts into the State General Fund (SGF)—the checking account for state government.

That little-read document shows that last year's income tax increase is working to put the state back into budget balance. And that builds on the previous year's sales tax increase that is finally kicking in and making state government more economically stable than Kansans have seen in the past seven years (yes, you can go ahead and call it the Gov. Sam Brownback/now-Gov. Jeff Colyer era).

What was the report? It was May revenues from all sources, and it showed that in May, the state received $542.9 million in taxes, $101 million more than predicted, and a dramatic $92.5 million of that unexpected cash was from personal income taxes.

Last year, recall, and who doesn't, there was that massive income tax increase, retroactive to Jan. 1, 2017, six months before lawmakers overrode Brownback's veto of the measure designed to raise $1.2 billion over two years.

It was that measure that eliminated the income tax exemption for so-called "non-wage income" (often LLC or self-employment income) that some 330,000 Kansans had enjoyed for four years.

Well, there's one month—June—remaining in this fiscal year, and the income tax increase appears in the first 11 months of its life to have raised individual income tax receipts by about $1.077 billion. That's not the $1.2 billion estimate, but there's a month left, and, well, the tax law has been in effect long enough for some to have probably found a kink or two in it that can be exploited to save a few bucks.

So, what's the good news...that the tax increase has apparently worked in boosting state revenues?

It's early yet, but it appears that the state may, probably not in the upcoming fiscal year but at least the year starting

July 1, 2019, have enough money to finance a new highway plan, and, probably under court order, increase the funding for public schools.

That revenue report—strange what sorts of behavior you can track when different taxes are split out by specific levy—also shows, for example, that Kansans probably spent a fair amount of time on the porch smoking. Yep, in May Kansans paid $11.9 million in taxes ($1.29 a pack) on cigarettes, about $2 million or 19 percent more than predicted. Now that's more money for the state, but you gotta figure that long-term, Kansans would be better off if they hadn't smoked more than predicted in May. Best nuance from the Revenue Department's report on cigarettes probably was that Kansans smoked less this May than they did last May...

Another of those nuances from the report was that Kansans increasingly like to buy stuff over the Internet or in other states to bring home. While sales tax revenues in May were a sizable $189 million, about what was expected, Kansans spent more on "compensating use" taxes. Those are essentially sales taxes paid on purchases out of state, or over the Internet, where just a portion of those purchases by Kansans carried the state's sales tax. The news there? While it's nice that some of those out-of-state and Internet taxes were collected (about $32.3 million in May and $372 million since last July), it's still revenue that didn't go through Kansas merchants' cash registers, which keeps stores open and increases retail sales jobs.

So, Kansas is apparently moving back toward a budget that won't call for year-after-year cuts in spending. Or...lawmakers might start the tax-cut era again...

Christian Church

June 3 Sunday Service Larry Wittmer gave the Communion Meditation on following GPS: "God's Salvation Plan". When we follow our own GPS, we fail by worshiping money, ourselves, addictions, etc. When we follow God's Salvation Plan, we receive epic grace. Bruce Symes gave the sermon on "Repentance", referencing Psalm 51 and 32. We must recognize that we are all sinners, and any sin committed is against God. It is important to ask for forgiveness from those we have sinned against, but we must ALWAYS confess to God. If we do not confess our sins to the Lord and repent (turn away from) of those sins, we cannot be forgiven. Confession is good for the soul, but it must come from the soul as well.

111th Colony/Crest Alumni

The 111th Colony-Crest Alumni was held May 26 at the Colony-Crest Gymnasium. Marie Plinsky, President, welcomed the group. Arvin Clemans gave the invocation. A dinner of brisket and ham, potatoes, salads, rolls, and desserts was served by Two Sisters from Kincaid. Two Sisters is owned by Renda Hammond and Cindy Rhodes, both Crest graduates.

Following the delicious dinner, Marie Plinsky welcomed the group again and Mary Scovill led the Pledge of Allegiance. The Pledge was followed by the singing of "God Bless America" led by the South Wind Band which was also the entertainment. The group, made up of Michael Miller, Lita Miller, and Scott Baker, entertained the group with several more songs.

Marie Plinsky introduced the 2018 scholarship winners of the Earl R. Clemans Jr. Scholarships, Makayla Jones, daughter of Stacy and Gerald Jones, and Austin Hendrix, son of Michelle and the late Scott Hendrix. Arvin Clemans presented the scholarship winners with their checks for $500 each. Marie Plinsky also introduced the alumni who have passed away since the 2017 alumni. They included George Hoffman, Rose Beckmon Samson, Doug Luedke, Marie Chatterton Short, Weldon Goodell, Terry Ellis, Ralph Bunnell, Marie

Martin Goodspeed, Randal Ellis, Kenneth Reiter, Jim Powell, Cecil Smoot, Howdy Bill Osborn, and Pauline Kelly Alexander.

Marie Plinsky, President, introduced this year's officers: Mary Beckmon Scovill, vice president; Arvin Clemans, treasurer; Calvin Wells, secretary. Calvin wasn't able to attend and asked to step down as secretary due to his wife's health, so Melissa Hobbs was introduced as the new secretary for the upcoming year. Officers for the 2018-19 year will be Marie Plinsky, President; Mary Beckmon Scovill, vice president; Melissa Hobbs, secretary; and Arvin Clemans as treasurer. All approved the new officers.

Arvin Clemans recognized the classes in attendance. The oldest alumni present was Ruby Davis, class of 1933, and the youngest class present was 1997 represented by Stacy Jones. The oldest class couple was Lloyd and Lavara Stever who have been married for 56 years.

Special memorial donations towards the scholarship fund for the 2017 year included Lloyd and Lavara Stever, Arvin and Kathy Clemans, Ronald and Shirley Hill Bell, Bob Ward, Patsey Ellis Baker, and Richard Dickson. Jars were placed around to collect additional donations, collecting $26. An account has also been opened at GSSB Bank in Colony to accept donations for those who were unable to attend the meeting. The 50/50 drawing collected $108 and the winner of the drawing was Duane McGraw who donated his winnings back to the scholarship fund.

Arvin Clemans discussed the Colony school was opened in 1907 and the last class to graduate from Colony was the class of 1967. The classes that have graduated since have all been Crest graduates. The Colony class members have been keeping the alumni active and out of the 60 people in attendance at this year's alumni, only 14 of them were Crest graduates. We will work harder to get more Crest graduates involved in the alumni as the Colony graduates are getting older.

Marie Plinsky thanked everyone for coming. Melissa Hobbs, secretary

Little League

The first Colony Pigtail games were held at the Colony ballpark May 31. The first one was opened with a moment of silence in memory of Marissa Lansdown and will continue to do so for the remainder of the season. At each game she exhibited hard work and dedication to the sport.

A Memorial Service was held Monday, May 28 at the High Point Cowboy Church, Colony followed by inurnment in the Colony Cemetery.

Word has been received of the sudden death of Duane Holloway, 1978 Crest graduate.

Be there - in high traffic areas

Koch Arena on the campus of Wichita State University may be one of the best-sponsored college athletic venues in the country, even down to the steps in the seating areas. It's an idea small businesses can use in our own localities to help us sell stuff.

Some savvy marketing person at WSU is really working overtime. Besides advertisers' banners and logos on the scoreboard and area signage and bathroom stalls and all the standard places you'd expect to see commercial sponsors (who pay to be in those places for a whole year or more in view of the legions of Shockers basketball fans, concert goers etc.), the arena even sold a national beverage company (no, I'm not naming them, because they haven't paid me a nickel!) for the fronts of the steps.

It's extremely noticeable - the bright vinyl logo really shined against the gray front of the concrete steps. With this venue the same as any other indoor or outdoor stadium, the steps to your seat are steep enough you're looking into the steps ahead of you at eye level only a few feet away, so the company could have even placed a message as the steps progressed upward, like those old highway message signs on the TV show Hee Haw.

No doubt the fee was a big one for that national company, but small businesses that are savvy marketers can do the same thing with their local high school or city sports complexes or other high traffic areas after cutting a similar and no-doubt downsized deal with administrators (high school organizations are always looking for fund raisers, after all).

The key is traffic, and in that vein, what about other high traffic stores in your community like grocers or lumberyards or hardware stores? What would it be worth to have your selling message or your logo painted on the asphalt of one or more of the parking stalls, or maybe a sleeve on the handle of the grocery cart? If you agreed to co-promote that business at your own location with similar signage, an in-store display or an email tagline or their logo on your parking lot, everybody could win.

Watch the places where lots of people go, and use your imagination to visualize your company there and getting noticed.

100 years ago: Ladies in Anderson County realize the need for a restroom in Garnett

10 years ago...

City commissioners voted 2-1 last week on a unanimous recommendation from the Garnett Planning and Zoning Commission to start enforcing a long-standing ordinance limiting the use of temporary signs by local businesses. Mayor Greg Gwin cast the sole vote opposing the consensus. Commissioner Mike Norman, who attended the meeting via speakerphone from a Lincoln, Neb., hospital and who himself owns one of the signs in question for his local Dairy Queen franchise, made the motion to support the planning and zoning board's recommendation.

20 years ago...

A Garnett man was bound over for trial this week on charges that he allegedly helped another inmate at the Anderson County Jail keep possession of drug paraphernalia at the jail last year. Timothy Fagg, 35, will face two felony charges and a misdemeanor relating to the incident after he was bound over from a preliminary hearing in Anderson County District Court on Tuesday.

30 years ago...

Construction of Colony's $180,000 sewage lagoon system is slated to begin July 4th. Members of the city council learned of the development from project engineer Jack Kramer of Topeka here at the regular meeting Wednesday night. The city has been working almost two years to get the project started, but several delays in acquisition of funding and weather problems slowed construction.

40 years ago...

Two break-ins took place over the weekend, Police Chief Kellerman reports and both are being investigated. It was discovered Monday morning that the Medical Center had been broken into by prying open the back door. A small amount of drugs were taken and a little cash was taken from each of the offices in the building. Two CB radios were taken Saturday from trucks at the Garnett Truck and Tractor Company.

100 years ago...

Last fall, the ladies of the county, who for some time, had realized the need of a restroom in Garnett, called a meeting to see what could be done in regard to the matter. An organization was formed and active work begun on raising funds for decorating and furnishing a room in the courthouse known as the farmers' room. It was first planned for this fund to be raised by townships. Surrounding towns with restrooms find that they are greatly appreciated by the general public.

Upon graduation its time to make sure you understand your insurance needs

Congratulations, high school and college graduates! You are entering a new life stage, and these are exciting times for you. You will likely need to make some important insurance-related decisions soon. By better understanding insurance policies and your needs at this stage, you can get the most out of the money you spend on insurance.

You have grown up seeing clever insurance commercials featuring crafty tag lines on television and social media. But how much do you really know about insurance and the coverage you need now that you have graduated? One website dedicated to unbiased insurance information for consumers is InsureU.org, hosted by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners. Another is www.ksinsurance.org, our website of the Kansas Insurance Department (KID).

The following is a list of questions and suggestions for you to contemplate as you talk to an insurance professional about your specific needs.

1. Renters insurance can protect your personal property against damage or loss and also protect you in case someone is injured while in your residence. If you plan to rent an apartment or other residence, do you need renters insurance? Remember, your landlord's insurance does not cover your personal property.

2. You might be sharing your apartment or house with roommates. In this case, you likely need an individual policy that covers you and your possessions if something should happen. Speaking of your items, have you taken an inventory of your personal property recently? NAIC has a smartphone application for that, and KID has an online inventory booklet you can download.

3. As you sort through job prospects, do not make the salary your only consideration. Health insurance is perhaps the most important job-related benefit. Study the health plans prospective employers provide and make inquiries about your options and the out-of-pocket costs. Weigh this against the cost of remaining on a parent's plan. Current law allows you to stay on your parent's health plan until you turn 26.

4. Will you be purchasing a vehicle soon? Remember to factor in the cost of auto insurance. If the vehicle was a graduation gift, or you are jumping off your parents' auto insurance policy, it is time for you to discuss your coverage with an agent.

5. If you drive an older vehicle that is paid off, you might consider dropping collision or comprehensive coverage as a way to cut expenses. Talk to your insurance professional about the cost of those coverages versus the value of your vehicle.

6. In most states, the law requires you to maintain auto liability insurance to cover losses caused by your negligence, and sometimes you are required to carry personal injury protection coverage. To avoid penalties, pay your premiums on time and do not let your coverage lapse. Have you filed a claim recently? Ask your insurance professional about accident forgiveness, which may lower your rates.

7. There are differing opinions about the importance of purchasing life insurance unless you support individuals whose livelihood is dependent upon your income. As a young single, you should make choices based on your finances, health and other circumstances. Consider consulting a financial or insurance professional to learn more.

These prudent steps, as well as asking the right questions of your insurance professional or our department Consumer Assistance Representatives, can help you control your insurance costs. Check out the InsureU site for the young singles and young families section, then, if you have more questions, use our chat feature on the www.ksinsurance.org site to conduct a conversation with one of our representatives.

Latest find is an unusual belt buckle

As I've said many, many times, when a person's digging around early home sites, you never know what you might dig up next.

DIGGING UP THE PAST

This is a picture of one of my most recent finds at the site where I've been working at for some time now.

What is it, you ask?

It happens to be a rather ornate Victorian style ladies belt buckle. How do I know it is a belt buckle? When I recovered it from approximately 14" in the ground, it still had a short section of leather belt thru it, however, after immediately hitting the open air, it crumbled to pieces.

If only an artifact such as this could talk. Just to know how long ago it was worn and by whom, would make the history research of this site so much easier.

Is it well with your soul?

There is an old hymn that I am fond of entitled "It is Well With My Soul." Once in awhile something will happen that will bring it to mind. The first verse captures my mind and goes as follows.

"When peace like a river attendth my way,

When sorrows like sea billows roll;

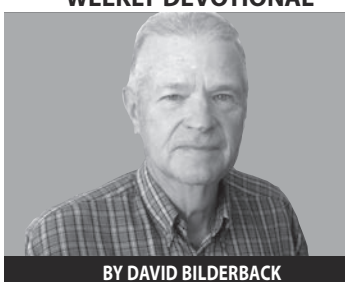

Whatever my lot, thou has taught me to say,

It is well, it is well with my soul"

I think of this hymn when I read how Elisha the prophet restored the son of the Shunammite woman to life. We read in 2 Kings 4:8-37 that Elisha went to Shunem and he met a woman who invited him to stay for a meal. The woman and her husband opened their home to Elisha and his servant Gehazi. They made a small room for the two of them on the roof and fixed it so that Elisha and his servant could stay the night. Elisha wanted to repay the woman so he asked his servant what could be done for her? Gehazi replied she had no son and her husband was old. Elisha called her and as she stood in the doorway he told her, "About this time next year you will hold a son in your arms."

All this came to pass as the prophet had said and the boy grew. One day the boy fell gravely ill and as she held him he died. She laid the boy on the bed of the man of God then shut the door and went out. She then left and went to the man of God at Mount Carmel. Elisha saw her coming in the distance and sent his servant who asked her, "Is it well with you? Is it well with your husband? Is it well with your child?" When the woman told Elisha of the boy he returned with her where he found the boy dead. He went in and shut the door and began praying to the Lord.

He then stretched himself out across the boy and the boy's body grew warm. The prophet did this again. The boy sneezed and opened his eyes.

Is it well with my soul is a question all of us must answer. If you are a follower of Jesus Christ you can feel secure in that. If not then Jesus offers an invitation in Matthew 11:28, "Come to me, all you who are weak and heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you and learn from me, for I am gentle and humble in heart, and you will find rest for your souls." The late Dr. R. C. Sproul made this statement, "We are secure, not because we hold tightly to Jesus, but because he holds tightly to us." Jesus Christ is truly the only secure thing you and I have.
