Highway tragedy takes lives of 3

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 6-26-2018 / VICKIE MOSS

Local emergency personnel work the scene of a three-car accident Tuesday north of Garnett that killed the occupants of two vehicles and injured a third.

Investigators unsure why car veered into oncoming lane

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW
GARNETT — A three-vehicle collision Tuesday evening north of Garnett cost the lives of three area residents and injured another.
As of last week investigators were still uncertain why 56 year-old Richmond resident Richard Money's 2010 Mustang convertible veered from the northbound lane into the path of a southbound 1999 Oldsmobile driven by Shawn L. Gill, 57 of Garnett. Gill and his passenger, 27 year-old Maxarthur Scott Jackson of Garnett, along with Money, died as a result of their injuries.

Gill and Jackson were both wearing their seatbelts at the time of the accident, a Kansas Highway Patrol accident report said.

A third vehicle headed southbound and driven by 68 year-old LeAnn Thacker of Garnett collided with the two crashed vehicles subsequent to their impact. Thacker received minor injuries and her passenger, 39 year-old Albert Eugene Thacker, also of Garnett, escaped injury.
The incident occurred about 5 p.m. approximately 1.3 miles north of Garnett on U.S. Highway 59.

Traffic fatalities have been on the increase in Kansas since 2016, when traffic deaths totaled 426 statewide for the year according to the Kansas Department of Transportation. The total jumped to 462 in an unofficial county in 2017, and was up 93 percent in the first few weeks of January 2018 compared to the same period for 2018.

Don't shoot your eye out

Fireworks are fun. Use some common sense so no one gets hurt.
Don't shoot them at anyone. Don't put your face or any other body parts for that matter over the muzzle-end of any firework when lighting it. Have access to water or a fire extinguisher in case you set something on fire. Shoot them in open, obstacle free areas to avoid collisions when running from a lit fuse. A battery-powered headlamp comes in handy when shooting fireworks in the dark.
Fireworks can only be sold in Garnett city limits between June 27 and July 5. Ones that make noise can only be fired on those same days between the hours of 8 a.m. and 10 p.m., with the exception of July 4, when they can be fired until midnight.
City code also prohibits shooting any firework at a building or at or under a vehicle, moving or stopped, or at fuel or explosives tanks, like anyone needed to tell you that.
The same fireworks that are outlawed in the State of Kansas are also outlawed in Garnett, including bottle rockets, M80s, and cherry bombs.

Drought, heat stress putting pressure on corn

County over 6 inches shy of rainfall as corn worries grow

BY MELISSA HOBBS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW
TOPEKA — With summer kicking in to full swing, area farmers have turned their focus to their crops. Wheat harvest has begun in some areas, corn is getting ready to pollinate, and beans are up and growing. But a big concern for most farmers is whether we'll have enough moisture to maintain the growth and harvest the way we need it to.

According to Kansas State Climatologist Mary Knapp Anderson County is currently in a moderate drought with precipitation being nearly two inches less than normal for the month. Normal for Anderson County in June is 2.83 inches and so far, the county has only seen 0.97 inches.

The year to date total for Anderson County looks even more grim. Normal annual precipitation for this time of year is 15.57 inches, but the year to date total is 9.06 inches, putting the county in a deficit of over six inches.

Ryan Schaub, Anderson County Extension Agent, says that luckily, we're in a stage with corn where moisture isn't as critical, but the crop is showing signs of heat stress. "During the middle of the day you'll see it kind of curl up," said Schaub. "But at night it unrolls which is good."

He says that moisture is critical for corn, but it will be even more critical around the 4th of July when it starts to pollinate. The crop will also need more moisture when the kernels start to fill out. Moisture has also taken a toll on the bean and wheat crops.

Schaub says some of the wheat is already getting harvested, but he hasn't had reports yet of how good it is going. "With as dry as it was when the heads were filling I can't think that it will be as good of a harvest as we would hope for," said Schaub.

The beans are popped up already in most fields, but they still have a long way to go according to Schaub. He says getting some moisture to help them fill out would be beneficial. The moisture isn't the only thing that has taken a toll on the crops. Schaub says the higher than normal temps aren't helping things either.

Knapp said that the temperatures for the area are 4.9 degrees warmer for the month of June, but overall for the year are one degree cooler than normal. The eight to 14 day outlook shows a continuation of the warmer than normal temperatures.

Second Saturdays events live on in "Industrial Bottoms"

Local retailers keep promotion alive at new refurbished location

BY MELISSA HOBBS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — What started out as a little store front on the corner of 6th and Oak Streets in Garnett is little by little developing into something that one Garnett family couldn't have ever imagined.

Jessica Whitham says the Industrial Bottoms project on the south end of Oak Street in Garnett is an evolving one, but one that she hopes to grow to give back to the community. She says she and her mother, Cheryl Hayes, starting hosting Second Saturday events around their ReFined ReCherished store front several years ago. It was a way to provide a place for all sorts of vendors to set up and a place for people to come and socialize with other people in the community. Other locations in Garnett joined in the event, which was initially coordinated by a committee of retailers and the chamber of commerce, but interest among other businesses faded after a while. Refined-Recherished kept carrying the banner, however. Whitham says it has been a lot of fun to watch their event grow in such a short time.

"It has been the most insane and unexpected experience," Whitham says of the Second Saturdays project and now the evolving Industrial Bottoms project.

She says the Industrial Bottoms project began when her family purchased the old Garnett Church Furnishings Factory that has been home to multiple businesses over the years. She says her family had been searching for a place to expand their plastics manufacturing plant, HayesBrand Molding, Inc., for quite some time. They had watched other properties in the area come and go and were just waiting for the right place and time to come together.

"Timing has been something our family has truly grown to appreciate," says Whitham. "It has been a steep mountain to climb at times, but when we reach the top we realize why the climb was worth the patience and heavy efforts to get there."

She says Gary Hayes,

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL

BY DAVID BILDERBACK

Why are so many of our church's a mile wide and an inch deep spiritually? This is a question that has bothered me for a long time and begs to be answered. I have written in my Bible the following quote without an author. "Most people aren't worried about going to heaven or hell just about being able to hack it on Monday morning." The breakup of the family and the removal of religion from government, education and business has led to removal of religion from the church. People that go to church hear a 20 or 30 minute sermon on Sunday and that may be it for a week. With only this how will the church produce disciples who then are equipped to go out into the world and make disciples of the people who we spoke of who aren't worried whether they are going to heaven or hell. In the book of Nehemiah we read how Nehemiah returned from exile in the citadel of Susa to Jerusalem which was in ruins. The people had lost their way and drifted away from the Book of the Law of Moses. Nehemiah had Ezra the scribe assemble all the people and stand on a high platform and read aloud from the Book of the Law to the people. Then Nehemiah did something to fix the mile wide, inch deep knowledge of the assembly. We read in Nehemiah 8:7-8; "The Levites "instructed the people in the Law while the people were standing there. They read from the Book of the Law of God, making it clear and giving meaning so that the people could understand what was being read." The church must understand that most people who come thru the door and sit in the pew do not understand the radical effect of the fall on man, nor do they know who Abraham was or God's covenant with him and on and on through the Bible. In order for the spiritual knowledge of someone to grow they must understand that salvation can only come thru Jesus Christ as well as the horrible consequences of sin and the certainty of hell if we don't receive Jesus as our personal Savior. If I might draw a comparison. Why is a cell phone important to people? Because they use it and it provides a benefit to them. Their pool of knowledge concerning that phone is deep. Yet many of those same people are completely unaware that their eternal destiny is at stake and their pool of knowledge concerning Jesus Christ is shallow or non-existent thus exposing them to God's judgment. If things are going to change we must renew our commitment to ministry on God's terms. The church must equip itself for discipleship.

Pointed questions justified in TGT and ecodevo analyses

Garnett City Manager Chris Weiner has an interesting way of looking at the city's Transient Guest Tax Fund, which pays for the marketing of local events in hopes of developing local tourism. Weiner thinks if we employ those funds, we should expect a payoff that helps regenerate them.

The TGT is an extra percentage tacked on to the bills at local motels and lodgings and directed into a fund reserved strictly for tourism marketing. The tax has become a favorite across the country in cities and towns, even those that have relatively few tourist amenities. If you've stayed virtually anywhere in a motel over the past 20 years, you've paid that tax or one like it as one of the myriad add-ons on your motel bill.

The idea is to have visitors to your town pay the costs of attracting more visitors to your town. The argument is, of course, that visitors will spend more money across the local business spectrum in your town while they're there, and it's a pretty savvy idea to have them fund their own attraction efforts.

In more than a decade since Garnett instituted its own TGT, the fund has gone from very little use and most people forgetting it was even there to the point now where nearly every organization with an event wants TGT funds to help advertise it. Now, the fund's in danger of being depleted and census numbers at Garnett motels are lagging.

Weiner's point is this: does advertising the BPW Square Fair put any bodies in beds at the two local motels to help regenerate those marketing funds? Do people attending the Greeley Smokeoff stay at Garnett motels? Does funding the Anderson County Fair result in people staying in those motels to recharge the TGT fund?

Those questions pry open a needed evaluation of Garnett and Anderson County's economic development efforts in general — one of which is tourism — in terms of what's paying off and what's not. Right now, the city and county have upped the ante in economic development — bumping the compensation package for a soon-to-be hired ecodevo director from $40,000 to $60,000 annually, but they haven't assessed the very limited successes the joint ACDA organization has had in job creation and tax base development, and whether there's a more effective way to do it.

REVIEW COMMENTARY

These types of analysis and hard questions have to be engaged even though it steps on toes and risks generating answers some people don't want to hear, because it's the only way the county's real economic issues can get solved. And they require some investigation of associated facts and data. It's notable, for instance, that county property taxes have increased by 234 percent since 1997 — a rate more than double the 114 percent increase in local property values over the same term. Without additions of industrial, manufacturing or other high-value commercial properties, our property tax base simply hasn't kept pace with public spending.

Regarding the TGT, the city's tourism committee needs to poll local motels to determine their primary markets and help expand them to regenerate tourism funds. A solid guess would be they make most of their revenues from work crews on various construction projects; Graham School for Cattlemen also is a steady bed filler, and a developing deer and turkey outfitting industry is bringing in hunters from all over the country. To recharge TGT funds, we should be looking at developing those aspects which have their own natural gravity.

If those questions bring a more direct and more effective result, we're all better off.

I don't know if it's me or if this is what the world has come to, but I went up to the swimming pool to get my grandchildren one day and I just noticed these older men there in their 40s, 50s, they just ogle these girls in their bathing suits or lack of bathing suits and they just keep looking at them. I'm just like, is that perverted? Just want to know.

I want someone to show me the oath that a federal judge takes before taking the bench and see if there's something in there about protecting the Constitution. As our country is being forced to undergo an invasion of our southern border, savvily led by the children of the invaders, it should be apparent to all Americans that the judge who ruled against the law that forces people to prove they are citizens before they can vote, should be tried for treason.

I go to Residential Living Center quite regularly as I have a family member living there. There are some departments that don't get the praise they deserve and the one department on my mind is housekeepers. A lot of people think because they don't have that certificate, they're nothing. To be honest with you they work hard to keep the place working nice and that's a very tough job. But I've noticed they still take time to sit down and visit or hold the hand of a resident. I want to tell you housekeepers what a wonderful job you do and to keep up the good work. Please give housekeepers a thank you and a pat on the back this week. It's well deserved.

Talk about city wide clean up and you have to say, 5th and Walnut. Once a park-like setting of flowers and well-kept lawn, then a weed patch that made the intersection dangerous to see oncoming traffic. Drive by, honk your horn if it looks better too. Let the new owners know you appreciate what they have done.

How will the Trump Effect play in Kansas elections?

Know what's going to make this year's elections for Kansas legislative races intriguing?

It'll be just who voters send to Topeka from the 13 districts where in 2016 voters checked Republican Donald Trump for president on the same ballot they voted for a Democrat to represent them in the Kansas House of Representatives.

Oh, and then there are the seven Republicans who were sent to Topeka from districts where Democrat Hillary Clinton was the winner of the presidential vote.

Here are the 13 Democrats in Trump-carried districts: Reps. Adam Lusker, Frontenac, Monica Murnan, Pittsburg, Cindy Neighbor, Shawnee, Tom Burroughs, Kansas City, Debbie Deere, Lansing, Jeff Pittman, Leavenworth, Tim Hodge, N. Newton, Ed Trimmer, Winfield, Tom Sawyer, Wichita, Brandon Whipple, Wichita, Steve Crum, Haysville, Patsy Terrell, Hutchinson (deceased), and Eber Phelps, Hays.

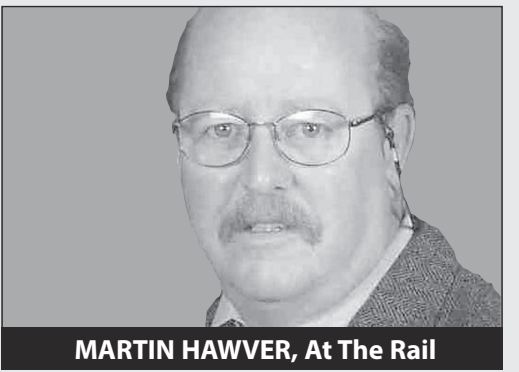

The Republicans in Clinton-carried districts: Tom Cox, Shawnee, Stephanie Clayton, Overland Park, Jan Kessinger, Overland Park, Linda Gallagher, Lenexa, Melissa Rooker, Fairway, Randy Powell, Olathe, and Tom Sloan, Lawrence.

These are the districts where...apparently...votes don't trickle down on party-line tickets.

We've had two years of Trump as president, and while there was party allegiance in most Kansas House districts, we Statehouse habitués wonder what happens this year when the Republican president's policies start trickling down on Kansas.

Remember two years ago when asked about their presidential preference, many Republicans said, "Donald who?" and then moved away from conversations to make sure they'd shut off their car in the parking lot.

STATE COMMENTARY

Nobody knew just where Trump would take the country, but for traditional Republican voters, it sounded a little risky.

And Democrats...once they learned Trump's stance on tax cuts, immigration, international trade and such...started branding everyone with an elephant (and no union bug) on their campaign signs as "Trump supporters."

Back in 2016, Trump won 91 Kansas House districts, Clinton 34. And in most of those districts, Clinton presidential voters voted for Democrats, Trump voters voted for Republicans for the House.

In his first two years, Trump has clearly divided his traditional Republican Party into conservatives and moderates—as they have been dividing themselves in the Kansas House for the past three or four election cycles.

Now, that division, which used to be "Gov. Sam Brownback" and "Non-Gov. Sam Brownback," appears to be moving to "Trump" and "Not-Trump" among Republican voters.

That's going to make the legislative elections interesting this summer and fall.

Governor? Oh, yes, we'll elect a new governor and there will be a new Secretary of State and Insurance Commissioner and see whether we'll keep or fire the Attorney General and State Treasurer...but that's the top of the ticket. Those candidates don't generally knock on your door unless they're out of gas.

Kansans know where the work gets done. It's the Legislature where your taxes, roads, social services, kids' education and general quality of life are determined. Not the top of the ballot, but at ground-level (third floor actually) in the Statehouse.

So?

We're going to see just what Kansans want in the way of representation in the state where they live. We're going to see how Republicans campaign on state issues, not national issues that may trickle down into everyday life in Kansas. Count on Democrats to campaign on local issues too, of course, but with the parting shot that Kansans probably need a representative to "protect" them from—or at least slow down—whatever Trump might do in his next tweet.

Or, maybe those cross-party elections were just the result of candidates getting to know their voters, knowing what's important to them, and working to make it happen.

That'd be nice...

Harvard sued for bias against Asian Americans

The Harvard University admissions process appears to be an ongoing microaggression against Asian-Americans.

A group called Students for Fair Admissions is suing the school for alleged racial discrimination and has filed documents in federal court making a persuasive case, based on data provided by the school.

Harvard denies it, but one of the imperatives of the affirmative action regime in college admissions is that schools never admit what they are doing.

The great and good at Harvard will insist that Asian-Americans all be called by their preferred pronouns, but they won't afford them equal treatment in the admissions process. They will upbraid anyone daring to ask an Asian-American where he is from, but will, in effect, hold his ethnic background against him.

And they will do it by relying on the stereotype of Asian-Americans as dull, unrelatable "model students."

According to the analysis of Duke University economist Peter Arcidiacono, an expert for the plaintiffs, an Asian-American applicant who is a male, is not economically disadvantaged and has, based on his other characteristics, a 25 percent chance of getting in would see his odds markedly increase if he belonged to another group. His chances of admission would be 36 percent if he were white; 77 percent if he were Hispanic; and 95 percent if he were black.

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

RICH LOWRY, King Features Syndicate

Why is this? Among Harvard applicants, Asian-Americans have the highest average SAT scores and the highest academic index, combining the SAT and high-school performance. Somehow, though, they manage the lowest admission rates.

They supposedly fall down on their personal ratings, which includes the question of whether the applicants have a "positive personality."

It just so happens that, per Harvard, otherwise high-achieving Asian-Americans are beset by chronically negative personalities. It's amazing that they somehow manage to do well in school and extensively participate in extracurricular activities despite their glum outlook and downbeat personas. Alumni interviewers who actually meet them tend to rate them highly. No matter.

The Center for Equal Opportunity report notes the contrast between Caltech, which doesn't have affirmative action, and Harvard, which does. At Caltech, Asian-Americans make up more than 40 percent of undergraduates, a proportion that has grown robustly since 2000. At Harvard, Asian-American representation is now at 22 percent.

A 2013 internal Harvard analysis, according to the lawsuit, said that Asian-Americans would make up 43 percent of admissions if academics alone were the factor.

If Harvard applied its own standards to Harvard, it would be appalled by how it's disadvantaging members of a minority group. It would encourage protests. It would refer itself for racial bias training. It would apologize and grovel and hope it all could be a teaching moment. But none of this will happen because it could lead to the admission of "too many Asians," the scenario that its admissions policies and related subterfuge are designed to prevent.

The lawsuit includes an exchange with a teacher at exclusive Stuyvesant High School in New York City who breaks down and cries when she's shown data on how much less likely her Asian students are to make it into Harvard. She's upset by the unfairness of it — would that Harvard felt the same way.

Howard Reiter gave the Communion Meditation on leading by example referencing Ephesians 6:1-11. These verses speak on children obeying their parents, and parents not provoking their children. Pastor Chase gave the sermon titled "Faith of our Fathers", reminding men that they are not alone, they have their Christian brothers to lean on. They should remain steadfast in their faith, be bold in the face of intolerance and their accusers, stand bold and courageous (Joshua 1:1-11), and stand up to guard their faith, their family and the family's faith.

her father and owner of HayesBrand Molding, Inc., has given his life to his family and shown them all the importance of work ethic, drive, passion, and commitment. She says that is what actually pushed them into developing in the Industrial Bottoms.

The building and property had been vacant for years and needed lots of work. She says they dug out the parking lot which had been covered with washed away dirt. They had to do roof work and other repairs on the remaining structure, which would become "Studio B" - the headquarters for enterprises to come and for Second Saturdays. The difference in the way the property looks is simply amazing. But Whitham says her family isn't doing the work for monetary reasons or to gain attention. They're doing it for the people and community that they love.

"We're just doing what we needed to do to get to the next step," said Whitham. "But what we really want our community to know is that there is this hope in our town that we see in them all. We just want to help show we can. My parents and I feel so blessed by the people of our community and it only seems right to us to pay forward all they do."

Whitham says there are still things that need to be done on the property including restroom facilities and running water, but they're working on them as time and funds allow. She says most of the work on the facility has been done by she and her father, but that work has come with a lot of help. She says her mom has held down the fort and kept the storefront open at the ReFined ReCherished store, and her husband has spent hours taking care of their children while she puts long hours into working with her dad.

The first Industrial Bottoms event was held this last April with live music entertainment and 25 vendors. They hope to expand the number of vendors at upcoming events this fall and get more entertainment for kids so the event can be a true family attraction.

"We would love to continue to see this grow for our vendors. It has been quite the adventure to say the least. Lots of hard work and time, but we have always loved a good project," said Whitham. "The Lord continues to provide just what we need when we need it; enough to get us through each step of the way. That's really how we continue to muster through each day. Our plan is His plan. And that's how the Industrial Bottoms came to play."

Upcoming events are scheduled for September 8th and October 13th, then again for April, May, and June next spring. She said there is space for plenty of vendors and they'd love to see more at events this fall. For more information contact Jessica or Cheryl at ReFined ReCherished at (785) 448-3490.

A state disciplinary administrator's deputy asked a hearing panel last week to censure Anderson County Attorney Fred Campbell for allowing area parents to view redacted photos of a teen beer and sex party in May 2007. The hearing, brought after a complaint was filed against the county attorney by Anderson County Counselor, James Campbell, was convened to determine if Fred Campbell's actions broke ethical rules binding lawyers' conduct.

An 18-year-old Greeley woman was seriously injured Thursday when the car she was driving was knocked into the path of an oncoming truck about 2 miles south of Garnett on U.S. Highway 59. Anderson County Sheriff David Vaughan said Marilyn Peine, 18, of Greeley, was severely injured when she slowed down in the southbound lane as a car ahead of her was turning into a private driveway. She was struck from behind by Charles Harris, 53, of Erie. The impact threw Peine's vehicle into the path of a northbound truck driven by Chris Bowen, 46 of Garnett. Peine was taken to ACH and transferred to St. Luke's Hospital where she was to undergo a neurosurgical procedure to attempt to repair possible damaged vertebrae.

Though patron concerns took up two hours, the USD 365 school board dealt with a possible name change for Garnett High School. The idea of a high school name change was presented to the board several months ago as a possible way to further unify district patrons. After consideration, a consensus agreement was made for further study. According to high school principal Darrell Kellerman, the majority of the students and faculty at the high school were not in favor of the change.

The body of Larry Briggs, who grew up near Richmond, was found in a barrel in the Marmaton River near Ft. Scott by a man fishing along the river last Wednesday. Briggs' body was bound in chains around the arms and thighs, then put head first into a steel drum.

The feet were covered with a sleeping bag and burlap was attached to the top of the drum. Examinations were unable to determine the exact date of death but estimate that he could have been dead for two weeks or more.

Notwithstanding the soft hands of the town men and the fact that they are not used to working in the hot sun, a goodly number of business men did their bit by going out to the harvest fields last week and shocking wheat and otherwise helping the farmers. Eight men went out and worked at the W.H. Manners farm and shocked 20 acres of wheat then came back to town. They charged nothing for their work. This is real patriotism.

2018 KATP chronicled

As many of you already know I drove out to Council Grove, Ks., where I participated in the 2018 KATP (Kansas Archaeological Training Program) June 1-17th.

For the next few weeks, I want to share with you a few notes from my daily journal of this adventure.

For this first column I will just tell you about my daily routine, etc. and then follow up with columns telling you about our finds and the special events that occurred.

My get-up time was 6:00 am, clean-up 6:15-6:30, breakfast, and reported to the field at 7:45 am. At 8:00 am was roll call and daily announcements, assignments etc., 10:00 am morning break for 10-15 minutes, lunch 12:00-1:00pm, roll call, assignments and any new announcements, 3:00 pm another short break, at 4:30 pm we started to close down and by 5:00 we were out of the field. Then it was time for showers, dinner (supper) and then attended evening scheduled programs or events. Bedtime, 10:00 pm.

1 June 2018
I left for Council Grove, Ks. at 4:00 pm., it was 93 degrees.

My starting mileage was 54,887.5 and 90.5 miles later I was at my destination.

My only delay was a 20 minute wait at the light on 59 Hwy., where they were black topping.

As I traveled along west of Osage City, Ks. I began to see field after field of hay being mowed or baled. Row crops are badly in need of rain.

Upon arrival, I went immediately to our headquarters and registered for the 2018 KATP.

Then I paid a visit to the DQ for supper before going to a scheduled meeting of designated crew supervisors and staff members.

At 8:30 pm I drove to the West Community Church where I would be camping for the next 16 nights. It is a beautiful building inside and out.

In the next few weeks I will be sharing my journal notes.

Time is money- don't waste it

Even the most dedicated bosses, managers and employees end up wasting time. If you're wasting time, you're not employing that time into generating sales for your business - so when you look at it that way you can see very well how wasting time costs you money.

Here are some tips to save time:

1) Avoid that person: He's the vendor who stops in to service your copier and chats too much. She's the customer who has a new grandbaby and a phone full of pictures to show you. He's the new guy you just hired who has too many stories, and they all start at the point the earth cooled. Do not allow these people to steal your day. You don't have to be rude, but get about your business. If you're the owner or manager the example you set in keeping conversations short will set the tone for others in your shop. Do not allow idle chat to burn your day.

2) If it can be done now, do it: Quick tasks should be handled now, before you have time to lose track of them and have to spend more time than they're worth in finishing them. That includes email replies, facing a gnarly-looking shelf, paying a bill. Don't let the easy things pile up.

3) Use your staff: If you have employees, make sure they understand they're expected to learn the job and do it with minimal oversight from you. A team of great employees can make amazing things happen, but you can't do your job if you must continually show someone on your payroll how to do his. If he can't learn or isn't making progress, let him go and find someone else.

4) Step by step: Forget "multitasking." Scientists say only about three percent of people can effectively multitask and get everything done right. Instead, break your goals down into steps - and write them down. Like your grocery list, there's something more directive about following instructions that are in writing, and you're more likely to actually follow the steps.

Finally, take charge of your day with a focus and constant reminders to make your time pay you.

The Four Winds Chapter of the NSDAR announces the American Flag Award for 2018

The Four Winds Chapter of the NSDAR has chosen Michelle and David Ratliff of rural Anderson County as the winners of the American Flag Award for proper use, correct display, and Patriotic Presentation of the Flag of the United States of America.

The Ratliff's have a truly picturesque presentation of the flag flying majestically in their front yard in rural Westphalia.

When you pass by their home and see the flag flying it makes you proud to be an American. Many people have driven by and commented about their stunning display.

Michelle had always wanted to have a flag displayed in the yard. So, one mother's day the family surprised her with the flag and pole, so her dream could come true.

As the pole was installed by her husband, she went to work on making the display one to enjoy. She had a water garden at one time and now she just has it landscaped with beautiful blooming plants and rocks. She still plans on making a water fall to add to the beauty of the spot one day in the future.

The family consists of David and Michelle and their five children, Morgan and her husband, Colton, grandson Wade, Cheyanne, Madison, Chase, and Maycee. The family grew up showing livestock and has won many awards.

We, the Four Winds Chapter of the NSDAR, want to thank the Ratliff's for displaying the flag of the United States in their yard and honor you as the 2018 U.S. Flag Award Recipients!
