City talks tonight on 5-member commission

Meeting agenda to include followup talks to Nov. 13 discussions on advisory vote

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - City commissioners in Garnett will discuss the outcome of an advisory election at tonight's city meeting - one that showed city voters want to add two additional members to the city's governing body.

The item was not part of the city's November 13 meeting agenda, but it was brought up for preliminary discussion by commissioner Greg Gwin. Gwin clearly leaned in the direction of following the outcome of the public vote, but expressed hesitation on structuring the transition. He said adding the two new posts as well as one of the sitting commissioner seats to next year's ballot could result in a radical change in the city's governmental makeup.

"That in itself is concerning," Gwin said.

Still, Gwin said the majority of the voting public in Garnett had called for the change, and said he thought city leaders would be remiss in not listening to that collective voice.

City electors voted 537-483 during the November 6 balloting in favor of the change, the referendum for which had been suggested by newly-elected commissioner Brigitte Brecheisen-Huss and was placed on the November ballot as an advisory vote. Huss was not present for the discussion at the Nov. 13 meeting.

Based on city commissioners' present payroll of $450 per month for commissioners and $500 monthly for the mayor, estimates show adding the two new positions would add some $10,000 per year to the city's budget. While some civic analysts say adding more elected positions improves the level of representation for the public, particularly among "marginalized" constituencies, others say larger governing bodies tend to spend more public dollars to appease smaller segments of the citizenry. Additionally, many city commission elections with the present three-member arrangement end up with incumbents running unopposed. It is believed the city has operated under a three-member rule since it was initially chartered in the mid 1850s.

City attorney Terry Solander said the commissioner was under no obligation to view the vote as a determinant, and that commissioners could still decide the parameters of any such transition, or to make no transition at all.

"I don't think anyone in all honesty could call it a mandate either way," Solander said.

Mayor Jody Cole questioned how a transition like this could be undertaken.

Initial structuring options discussed could include electing two new commissioners at the next election, or appointing two new members after approving an ordinance to that effect. Terms could then be staggered with more seats open in certain election years, as the Anderson County Commission operates, or staggering term length with those who receive the most votes in open balloting awarded longer terms in office as some other five-member commissions operate.

City manager Chris Weiner told commissioners he tended to agree that a public referendum like this should

Sparser wheat, but program requirements, deadlines still in place

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Anderson County farmers may not be planting much winter wheat again this year, but USDA agents are reminding them to report those acres no matter how few.

Doug Peine with USDA in Iola said local farmers should remember that filing an accurate acreage report for all crops and land uses will prevent the loss of benefits for a variety of Farm Service Agency (FSA) programs.

Last year Anderson County farmers planted only about 4,400 acres in wheat, following national trends for a reduction in U.S. wheat planting. Last year's wheat totaled some $221,000 bushel for Anderson County, or about 52 bushel per acre, according to a USDA report.

Peine said all small grains such as wheat and rye that were planted this fall for 2019 harvest, grazing, and for cover only must be reported by December 17, 2018, in order to qualify for FSA benefits.

Prevented planting must be reported no later than 15 days after the final planting date for the applicable crop. November 15, 2018, was the final planting date for 2019 wheat in Anderson County. As a result, prevented planting acreage must be reported to FSA by November 30, 2018, if farmers want this reflected on their acreage report without any late-filed fee being assessed.

Pint-sized adventurer changes lives

BUSH CITY - A local Kansas National guardsman's long-coated Chihuahua has already played a pivotal role in his life, and their adventures are continuing.

"Sampson" has travelled with Cecil Elliott II all over the United States, saving him from a rock slide on one hiking trip and introducing him to his fiance on another.

"We have been to 40 of the lower 48 states," Elliott said, "only missing out on the extreme northeast states. We have been on portions of the Appalachian Trail in North Carolina and have been on most of the Pacific Crest Trail out on the West Coast."

"We've hiked mountains and explored trails all over the west coast,"

Elliott grew up in the Bush City area. His "bro-mance" with Sampson began while Elliott was going to school at Emporia State University.

down and they were getting rid of all their dogs," Elliott said. "I wasn't out to get a certain breed, I just knew a smaller dog would be a good fit for me living in an apartment and going to college."

He said he'd heard about Chihuahuas being temperamental and was put off by the idea at first, but meeting Sampson changed his mind.

"I picked Sampson up and just couldn't put him down," Elliott said.

Elliott's love of hiking meant Sampson tagged along and picked up the lifestyle as well. The relationship came to a critical point once when the two were descending a trail on Brian Head Peak in Utah.

"He was walking ahead of me and stopped short in the path and looked up," Elliott remembers. "It was just as a refrigerator-sized rock broke free and slid down right ahead of us." Elliott said the incident came without warning, and without notice from the dog the dislodged rock could have easily killed him.

But perhaps Sampson's most spectacular feat was introducing Elliott to his bride-to-be.

"We were sitting in a park in Cedar City Utah," Elliott recalls. "He isn't afraid of strangers but he usually hangs pretty close to me especially in a public setting."

But this time Elliott said Sampson left his side and walked up to a young woman in the park to introduce himself. It was out of the ordinary, Elliott recalls.

"So, I went up to collect him and profess my apologies to her," he said.

"She wasn't upset and was impressed by how relaxed and well mannered he was," Elliott said. "We struck up a conversation, and it's been a wonderful two-and-a-half years."

Sampson's big spirit in a little package makes the family up for what ever adventure comes next, Elliott said.

When dealing with insurance, be sure agent is licensed locally

During the past four years, the number of insurance agents living in Kansas has grown by nearly 1,000. As of last month, the total stood at more than 23,700. Together with the out-of-state agents who are licensed to sell insurance in the state, Kansas have more than 139,000 licensed agents to help them with their insurance needs.

We at the Kansas Insurance Department are tasked with making sure that all the agents who assist Kansans are qualified. By Kansas Statute, the agents must satisfy numerous requirements to hold a license to sell here.

In order for a person to get a "resident" agent license the first time, he or she must meet the following:

- Be at least 18 years old.
- Be fingerprinted. This means the Kansas Bureau of Investigation, in association with the FBI, will do a national criminal background check. The fingerprinting requirement went into effect earlier this year after the Kansas Legislature passed legislation approving it.
- Submit a uniform application provided by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, including the $90 application fee.
- Provide evidence of registration to sell securities, if applicable.
- Pass the appropriate license examination.

Many of the same requirements are needed if a person is applying for a "non-resident" agent license, meaning he or she continues to live out of state but can sell in Kansas.

Resident agents, meanwhile, are required to take continuing education courses every two years to continue holding their state license.

With a background check, our Producers Division can make a determination that the person has answered the application honestly when it comes to any previous criminal activity. The honesty involved in filling out the application is crucial to the person's status as a viable agent who can assist clients fairly and handle their premium money prudently.

Unfortunately, we have to handle instances where a person's application and his/her background check do not mesh. Extra time and effort goes into determining what the discrepancy is, and whether the person is qualified to hold a Kansas license. That, unfortunately, takes up an inordinate amount of time for our staff. But determining who can sell insurance in our state is just part of the work our insurance department does on behalf of Kansas consumers.

To find out if a person is a Kansas licensed agent, we have a section on our website that will assist you: <https://www.ksinsurance.org/department/company-search.php>. You can search by agent, by agency, by insurance company, or by city. You can also talk to one of our Consumer Assistance Representatives by calling 800-432-2484, or you can "chat" with them by going to the home page of our website.

intended to. As a result, they won't get a reminder call and it will be up to them to remember to make a timely report, Peine said.

"If you are in town, swing by the office and get your wheat reported before the deadlines previously noted," he said.

Contact the Anderson County FSA Office at 111 N. Maple, Garnett, KS or call 785-448-3128 for more information about acreage reporting requirements.

What should the church look like today?

What should the 21st century church look like? In Acts 2:42-43 we read a description of the early church. "They (the church) devoted themselves to the apostles teaching and to fellowship, to the breaking of bread and to prayer. Everyone was filled with awe, and many wonders and miraculous signs were done by the apostles." The early church was passionate and that passion was directed toward God. Passion can only arise out of belief. Some of these early believers had witnessed the resurrection of Christ and sat under the teaching of the apostles. Certainly passion would have ran deep within their ranks. Here we stand some 2000 years later, what means does the church use today to revive the passion we so desperately lack? While we may not have the resurrection or the apostles teaching we do have the same pattern that the early church followed, fellowship, the ordinances and prayer.

The thing that separates the early church from the church of today is they believed that the sole end of man was to glorify God and to enjoy him forever. This can only be accomplished through what is referred to as the ordinary means of grace. The church today should be doing expository preaching, that is teaching and studying the scriptures, praying and performing two ordinances, baptism and communion. If we as a church are performing additional requirements beyond this or avoiding one of these requirements we are allowing a man centered worship service. This usually results from our inability to glorify God with our lives not ourselves. If there is an avoidance of expository preaching or the substitution of additional requirements or burdens this may indicate that false doctrine or motives are being preached.

As far as the requirements for prayer Paul makes it very clear in Philippians 4:4 the importance of prayer. "Do not be anxious about anything, but in everything by prayer and petition with thanksgiving present your requests to God."

In 1st Corinthians 10:16 the apostle Paul is saying that when Christians partake of the cup and the bread they are participating in the benefits of Christ's death and resurrection life. It is through these benefits that we receive the assurance of the forgiveness of sins.

In short the church of today should resemble very closely the early church. Nothing has changed or ever will to compromise the word of God.

GARNETT PUBLISHING, INC 112 W. SIXTH AVE., GARNETT (785) 448-3121

Will adding two new commissioners expand Garnett's property tax base?

Garnett City Commissioners should approach the recent voter-advised initiative of adding two new members to the governing body with a single litmus test – how does it help expand the city's property tax base?

The present three members of the commission should feel under no rush to make any decision on the non-binding 537-483 advisory vote outcome until they've carefully weighed its pros and cons. There are few pros and many cons.

If adding two commission seats doesn't approach what should be the city's primary goal – expanding the city tax base by recruiting companies, adding jobs, developing housing and other assets to the local economy and lowering the property tax burden for all of us – then the obvious question is 'why do it at all?'

As commissioners discussed at their Nov. 13 meeting, this is not a decision nor an action which should be entered into lightly, because it could very well radically affect the direction and the pace of city business from here on out. It's worth adding that once you add two commissioners there's no going back – no expansion of government ever decides later to trim its own size.

The added cost to pay two more commissioners – estimated at some $10,000 annually – is no small measure. The city presently sits in a position where it's been cannibalizing its surplus utility funds for years in order to minimize increases in city property taxes. Ten thousand dollars, in city budget terms, is not a large sum – but it is still $100,000 in a decade. After listening to the recent budget hearings and to city manager Chris Weiner's ideas for stabilizing city utility revenues, it's clear cost increases matter and the running challenge of increasing the city's tax base is paramount.

Another point worth considering: Where's the beef? What issue has left vast segments of the citizenry unfairly unrepresented? What simmering controversy leaves city residents yearning for more and better airing of their views? The city's police force isn't running amok; there's no rank and inappropriate nepotism; no sweetheart contracts awarded nefariously. City meetings aren't filled with hoards of folks joined in some major controversy. Nothing seems to be on the public radar that hints at unfair conduct on the part of commissioners – nothing that two more paid office holders might solve. So the question begs an answer: What is to be gained?

REVIEW COMMENTARY

Meanwhile the possible negatives are a worry. More voices on the commission might provide more representation and more ideas; they might also provide a soapbox for those with limited agendas and for "bomb throwers" anxious only to disrupt and foster animosity. Others might simply be of no real value to city business, lending neither education nor expertise nor other talents, simply sitting in a chair at meetings and drawing a paycheck.

The final analysis is that lacking some shining and defined benefit, city voters made a poor decision in voting for this change. If not in pursuit of the Holy Grail of development and tax base expansion, there's simply no good reason to undertake it.

City commissioners should take no action on this change for now, and instead conduct a series of public meetings with a single agenda item: to allow city residents who favor the change to explain why they feel it's a good idea.

Otherwise a 54 margin vote – a little more than half the state fire marshal's defined occupancy of The Trade Winds restaurant in Garnett – is no reason to make such a pit-fall-ridden change.

Tip: Don't get divorced in December

Nobody likes to rush in a divorce, but frequently things happen that may make a couple want to get it done more quickly than usual.

This year, the reason may be taxes for some couples. Since 1942, the person paying alimony got to take payments off of their income and the person receiving it had to declare alimony as income. This all will change with any divorce finalized on or after Jan. 1, 2019. After this date, neither party's income will be adjusted for paying or receiving alimony.

Lawyers are expecting December to be a busy month for divorces due to the change. Any case settled before the end of the year will continue to follow the old rule.

But that is not as important as taking your time to make sure everything about the divorce is properly handled.

"The few dollars somebody may or may not save on their tax bill is not a reason to rush a divorce proceeding," says Pegotty Cooper, co-founder of Divorce Coaching Inc., (www.certifieddivorcecoach.com), which both provides divorce coaching and trains divorce coaches. "Frequently, in complicated divorces, issues surface halfway through the proceeding that will take time to investigate."

Cooper, a co-author of Taking the High Road in Divorce – Simple Strategies for Creating a Healthy Divorce, said it is in the best interest of both parties to focus on the divorce and make sure everything is done properly instead of trying to meet artificially induced deadlines.

Cooper offers the following tips for those about to enter divorce proceedings:

- Don't forget who the decision makers are. The decision maker in the proceeding is not the judge or your attorney – it is you. More than 90 percent of cases never make it to trial, so don't think the judge necessarily will set all the issues straight.
- "My way or the highway" is the wrong attitude. Taking this attitude will be more costly, emotionally draining and time-consuming than you realize. The only one that will benefit is your attorney, who will rack up legal bills fighting tooth and nail for everything instead of negotiating.
- Don't throw in the towel. You may want to quit early in the divorce proceedings just to get it over with. This may result in forgetting about important things that you wanted to be resolved.

Will new plan remember forgotten KDOT projects?

Sometime later this week, we'll see just what the Joint Legislative Transportation Vision Task Force comes up with for a new 10-year Kansas highway plan.

And, maybe we'll also find out what happened to those 21 delayed modernization and expansion projects for the state's highway system that were believed to be good ideas 10 years ago in the now near-expiration T-WORKS 10-year highway program that legislators and administrators touted a decade ago.

Yes, we'll find out this week when that "vision task force" puts together most of a new highway and transportation plan that it will present to the Legislature sometime in January.

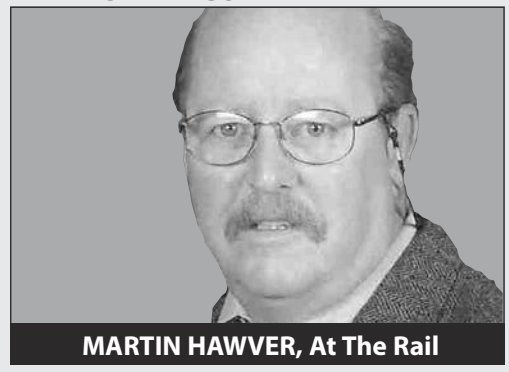

Remember that the near-ended T-WORKS plan was presented as a way to not only make the state's roads better, more convenient and safer, but as a demonstration that representatives and senators had genuine clout in the Legislature by getting road projects in their districts, or near their districts, that their constituents would like.

Nothing quite like standing next to the governor, the local Chamber of Commerce officials, mayors, county commissioners and others when that ribbon was cut to make driving easier and safer for your local voters. Not quite like crowning a beauty queen, but politically, close.

That old T-WORKS is nearly over, and of course nobody's forgotten those promised and then not delivered road projects.

Reason, of course, was that the now mostly repealed Gov. Sam Brownback tax cut program reduced state revenues so sharply that the state had to withhold more than a billion dollars in funds for those projects from the Kansas Department of Transportation. The governor and his allies called it "sweeps" of those highway funds, we're supposing because "sweeping" sounds so much better than robbery.

STATE COMMENTARY

The delayed projects include about 96 miles of modernization, ranging from wider and safer shoulders to flattening out hills and straightening curves so you can not only see where you are going, but so you can see the vehicles coming from the other direction. Safety stuff. Oh, and about 35 miles are road expansions, including four-lane expressway construction, making intersections safer and adding frontage roads so there are fewer cars slowing ahead of you as they pull off to get to a quick stop or hamburger stand or such.

Those delayed projects? Pretty evenly split between western and eastern Kansas, either side of US-81, which is the east/west dividing line of the state.

This time around, besides catching up, or not catching up on the projects that weren't done, we're going to see just where new money is planned to be spent in the upcoming decade.

And that's where the issue comes down to legislators' clout on the House and Senate floors. House members in their first year of a new term: What a good time to show that their constituents elected someone with genuine muscle? And Senate members who will be on the ballot about the time that the new highway program is to start, they'll be measured by constituents on what they were able to bring to their home districts. Whether it's four lanes or upgraded two lanes, or maybe just an off-ramp near the city center. Lots of options here.

But the key is that everyone wants better roads, faster roads, smoother roads, and they want everyone else in the state to pay for them...somehow.

Could be a motor fuel tax, could be provisions that prohibit that "sweeping" of funds from KDOT if the economy goes south, or it could be a battle between lowering the sales tax on groceries or getting that new or at least smoother road.

We'll get a hint of how this may come out by week's end.

Democrats need someone like Joe Biden

Joe Biden is a gaffe-prone 75-year-old Washington veteran -- who is exactly what Democrats need.

The suburbs have turned against Republicans, but Donald Trump's working-class base is still with him in a geographic and demographic stand-off that will -- absent a game-changer -- define the 2020 election.

The play for Democrats should be obvious: Make a serious appeal to Trump's voters, take back the Blue Wall states of Wisconsin, Michigan and Pennsylvania, and win the presidency. In other words, go with Joe Biden or someone like him with a Midwestern or working-class sensibility (newly re-elected Sens. Sherrod Brown of Ohio and Amy Klobuchar of Minnesota come to mind).

His gruff manner, Catholic faith, Irish ethnic background, union-friendly politics and upbringing in Delaware via Pennsylvania make him as close as the contemporary national Democratic Party gets to a working-class match for the Great Lakes states that Trump stole from it in 2016.

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

RICH LOWRY, King Features Syndicate

From this juncture, those states again look absolutely crucial. If the rest of the electoral map stays the same, Democrats need to win all three of Wisconsin, Michigan and Pennsylvania to take back the White House. Even if they pick off 2016 red states Arizona and Georgia, they still need Michigan or Pennsylvania to get over 270.

Conversely, it's hard to see where Trump goes and wins new territory to make up for the loss of Wisconsin, Michigan and Pennsylvania. Trump didn't win those three states by much, by about 80,000 votes collectively. More than anything, he depended on running against a Democratic candidate who was unacceptable to working-class whites. Right now, it looks like he needs a repeat performance by the Democrats, and he may well get one.

The Democrats don't usually do old and familiar, at least not when they win. The last three Democratic presidents, Jimmy Carter, Bill Clinton and Barack Obama, were fresh-faced newcomers on the national scene.

And then, there are the party's new obsessions. Class has been trumped by race and gender, and as a white male Biden is 0-2. Inequality is now less of a motivator than intersectionality, economic privilege less of a concern than white privilege. This was a stumbling block for the class-obsessed Bernie Sanders last time, and would surely hamper Biden and Sherrod Brown in today's even more fevered context.

The Democrats are not set up to go with, in the derisive phrase, stale, pale and male. Perhaps they can find another Barack Obama-type candidate who lights up the base while having just enough draw for working-class whites. There also is more than one way to win back the Blue Wall -- higher black turnout could make the difference.

But there's a good chance that Democrats will get consumed by the hot-house dynamic of their nominating process, and select someone who, like those defeated progressive darlings of the midterms -- Beto O'Rourke, Stacey Abrams and Andrew Gillum -- is better suited to going down in a blaze of glory rather than winning over an increment of Trump voters.

If so, Joe Biden will be one of the few people in American history who could have won two straight presidential elections -- in theory.

Tips for transferring between colleges

As the fall semester winds down, many college students may be thinking about transferring to another school. Some students may be finishing one degree and want to get a higher one. Others find the school they chose isn't the best fit for them, or perhaps family circumstances changed.

KHEAA offers these tips for making sure your transfer goes smoothly.

You should talk with the financial aid office at your current school to make sure you don't owe anything or to find out if you get a refund. Also talk with the financial aid office at your new school to make sure you've done everything you need to get financial aid when you transfer.

Also, contact the registrar's office at your new school to find out which credits and grades you earned at your current school will transfer.

If you have more questions about transferring, each college should have a contact person who can answer them.

KHEAA is a public, non-profit agency established in 1966 to improve students' access to college. It provides information about financial aid and financial literacy at no cost to students and parents. KHEAA also helps colleges manage their student loan default rates and verify information submitted on the FAFSA. For more information about those services, visit www.kheaa.com.

Board members for USD 365 made the decision during this month's meeting to look further into the possibility of hiring a part-time or full-time resource officer for the district after a string of recent incidents raised security concerns at the high school. Superintendent Don Blome says an officer from the Anderson County Sheriff's Department currently visits ACJSHS on occasion just to visit with the students and see what's going on. A resource officer, if hired, would typically just be around the school in the event that an emergency type incident occurred.

against a local man in connection with a pipe bomb detonation near Irving Elementary School on November 13. According to Anderson County Attorney Craig Cole, charges were filed against a 32 year-old Garnett man in connection with the incident. The device was apparently detonated around 7:30 p.m. on Sunday. According to police, the explosion injured the suspect with shrapnel and broke windows out of a home nearby. No injuries other were reported.

The most desirable horse is the one that performs the work efficiently and economically, and sells at the greatest profit. Under average conditions this horse will combine size, substance, style, step, and quality. Nothing adds more to the value of a big horse than style, action, and quality. A big horse without these three things is a very undesirable, unsatisfactory, and expensive form of motive power, either on the farm or in the city. Each year sees less demand for inferior horses, both large and small, and corresponding increase in the value of high-class horses.

A battle with Gout makes archeaology difficult

GOUT! What the heck does gout have to with archeaology anyway?

First let me explain what gout really is and then I will tell you how it effects me.

Gout is an acute, recurrent disease characterized by very painful inflammation of the joints, chiefly in the feet and hands, by an excess of Uric Acid in the blood.

Gout accounts for at least 5 percent of all cases of arthritis. However, it is uncommon in women, the male-female ratio is 20-1.

so happened to attack my joints of my left hand index finger.

Since this picture was taken, I under went surgery on 8 Nov. 2018 and presently am in the 4-6 weeks healing process. This doesn't mean I'm over gout forever and I have no idea, when, where or what joint it just might attack next.

Don't forget to report wheat acres

Area farmers and ranchers should remember that filing an accurate acreage report for all crops and land uses will prevent the loss of benefits for a variety of Farm Service Agency (FSA) programs.

All small grains such as wheat and rye that was planted this fall for 2019 harvest, grazing, and for cover only must be reported by December 17, 2018. Prevented planting must be reported no later than 15 days after the final planting date for the applicable crop. November 15, 2018, is the final planting date for 2019 wheat in Anderson County. As a result, prevented planting acreage must be reported to FSA by November 30, 2018, if you want this reflected on your acreage report without any late-filed fee being assessed.

Failure to timely report your acres will result in a late-filed penalty of at least $46.00 per farm. Please remember ARC and PLC Programs require you to timely report acres. All cropland on the farm must be reported for you to remain eligible for price support loans or loan deficiency payments. Unlike the spring crop reporting deadline, the office staff has no way of knowing if you decided to plant wheat or intended to. As a result, you will not get a reminder call and it will be up to you to remember to the timely report. If you are in town, swing by the office and get your wheat reported before the deadlines previously noted.

Contact the Anderson County FSA Office at 111 N. Maple, Garnett, KS or call 785-448-3128 for more information about acreage reporting requirements.

Let Google Maps help you sell stuff

Google Maps has pretty much become the standard digital navigation tool for smart phone users, and if you haven't taken advantage of the free business listing Google offers you may be missing a great opportunity to sell stuff.

Start by sitting down at your computer or your smart phone and search your business name on Google Maps. If you've been around a while, you'll probably show up in the search because Google's been mining data from all kinds of other sources for years. If you're a newly launched operation you may not be there yet.

If you've used Google Maps, you know as maps appear they sometimes show business listings along a certain route you might take. The system also allows you to search up segments of maps and find certain business providers within those geographic locations. It's great for the kid who wants a mint latte but wants to check prices among various local options, but none of it works for you if your company isn't there.

If you find yourself in the GM search, click your listing and edit the information so that it's current and complete. The system will ask to verify the info with you by mail or phone, but you can go ahead and follow the instructions and add descriptions, products, hours of operation, photos, etc., to flesh out your listing and make it more usable by potential customers. When you get your verification, go back to your listing and enter the PIN code to confirm everything.

HOW TO SELL STUFF

Dane Hicks
Publisher - THE TRADING POST

If your business isn't listed, follow the menu instructions to add a missing business. You'll have to set up a Google My Business Account, which takes about 30 seconds. The verification process is the same.

Once your listing is live it gives people the chance to find you and navigate to you according to the Google Maps parameters.

Your company may not be techy, but you need to have a digital presence on Google Maps the same way you need presence and reminders for existing customers who don't need GM to find you. Google Maps is just one more way to help you sell stuff, and it's free.

Protect and enhance our land

There's an old saying that goes something like this: Sometimes you must look back on where you've been to know where you're going. Being an ardent student of history, I believe it definitely has its place in our society today.

Whenever I take a road trip across Kansas or some other destination across our great land, I often stop along the way to read historical markers. They include details about battles, pestilence and devastation as well as discovery, success and progress.

When Mom and Dad were alive, we sometimes visited cemeteries in rural Kansas and Missouri to pay homage to relatives and friends. Below the headstones rested the remains of men in our family who spent their lives planting and harvesting behind sweating teams of horses, butchering hogs on bitterly cold days and teaching new sons about the soil.

Also, down there were the remains of women who collected eggs, washed clothes by hand, cooked skillet full of fried chicken and managed to raise and nurture a family under sometimes nearly impossible conditions.

They are the ones who weave the fabric that serves as the yardstick for our new and dynamic future. What happened with these early pioneers has a direct bearing on our present successes and failures.

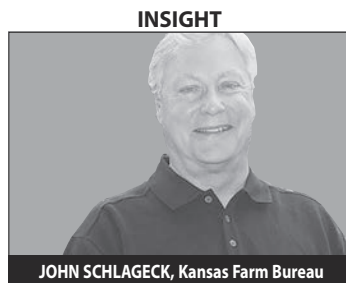

One such winning story revolves around the strides agriculture and its people have made in the interests of conservation. Not everything that has happened in conservation can be limited to the last 20 or 30 years. Many of the innovations in conservation began taking shape in the years after the Dirty '30s, nearly 90 years ago.

Thousands of shelterbelts were planted in Kansas and other Great Plains states. After years of droughts and rain finally began falling again, ponds dotted the landscape holding this precious resource. Landowners learned to make the water walk and not run, conserving this water for livestock and sometimes for thirsty crops.

Terraces snaked their way across thousands of miles of farmland holding soil and water in place where it belonged. Soil stopping strip cropping created patterns and reduced wind erosion.

Slowly but surely conservation measures continued to slow the soil erosion gorilla that had stomped across the High Plains leaving in its wake gullies the size of automobiles, drifts of soil as high as fence posts, withered lifeless wheat and corn and starving livestock on barren pastures.

Yes, with knowledge, education, patience, understanding and hard work and Mother Nature's ability to heal herself, the rich, fertile land recovered. Throughout this renaissance of the land, farmers and ranchers learned that stewardship of the soil, water and other resources is in the best interest of us all.

JOHN SCHLAGECK, Kansas Farm Bureau

Without question, agriculture has yet to receive credit for what it has done to protect and to enhance the landscape and for its willingness to change and improve the few mistakes it has made.

It is important for all of us to understand what has happened in the past so we can place present events and future needs in their proper perspectives. To avoid doing so will blind us to involvement and participation in much larger efforts extending throughout a long span of time.

Incidentally, a new, modern twist may be nothing more than an old theme or something coming around after having gone around. After all, human history is comprised of human ideas. And incidentally, nearly all ideas are timeless, just waiting to be dusted off, reshaped and used again.

John Schlageck is a leading commentator on agriculture and rural Kansas.

Born and raised on a diversified farm in northwestern Kansas, his writing reflects a lifetime of experience, knowledge and passion.

Christian

Larry Wittmer gave the Communion Meditation Sunday, Nov. 18, about God's promise that we'll come directly into the presence of God, and that there is no condemnation in Jesus. Our iniquities divide us from God, but Jesus tells us that he is the Way, the Truth, and the Life, and through him, we can know the fullness of God's glory! (ref: Romans 8, Isaiah 52, and John 14) Pastor Chase Riebel gave the sermon on "Preparing to Give Thanks". We must know the source of where our thanks is due, and that God is a great King above all gods, God holds ALL in his hands, and he watches over us. We must consciously, joyfully and BOLDLY give Him thanks. On this earth, we will endure many trials, but in all things, we should still give him thanks. (ref: Psalm 95:1-8, Luke 17:11-19, 1 Peter 1:6-9, Philippians 4:6-9, 1 Thessalonians 5:16-18). To hear the sermon in its entirety, go to www.colonychristianchurch.org.

Thanksgiving!

Cowboy

Pastor Leo Ramsey opened the service Sunday, Nov. 18 at High Point Cowboy Church with a request for prayer that was received via the live internet feed and was posted after hearing of his personal healing testimony. He welcomed everyone present and watching, followed by a time of worship led by Cindy Beckmon and the praise band.

Continuing to expand on Jesus as The Word, Apostle Jon Petty read from I Peter 1:22-2:3. God's Word does not change; Jesus made everyone righteous so we can walk and talk like Him.

The church will be having an all-church holiday dinner following the service on Sunday, December 9; more details to be announced.

UMC

Christmas Parade

It is around the corner-Saturday, Dec.1- the 14th Annual Colony Christmas Parade. They encourage all church groups, businesses, organizations, school groups, families and individuals to participate regardless of the size of the parade entry. Large floats, mini-floats decorated bikes, mowers, 4-wheelers, farm tractors, machinery etc. would make excellent entries. Dressing up for a walking entry is great. The parade will be routed from the former Colony Grain on to Broad St. and continue east to Maple Street (Methodist Church corner).

Anderson County Fire and rescue to bolster fire prevention efforts with FM Global Grant GARNETT, Kan.— Anderson County Fire and Rescue has received a US $1,400 fire prevention grant from FM Global, one of the world's largest commercial property insurers.

FM Global representatives presented the award to JD Mersman, Director of Emergency Management for Anderson County. The award will be used to assist with prefire planning to efficiently collect and track data related to local community buildings. The information will help the fire service respond in an emergency situation.

Because fire continues to be the leading cause of property damage worldwide, during the past 40 years FM Global has contributed millions of dollars in fire prevention grants to fire service organizations around the globe. Locally, the company has awarded grants to a number of Kansas-based organizations.

"At FM Global, we strongly believe the majority of property damage is preventable, not inevitable," said Michael Spaziani, assistant vice president - manager of the fire prevention grant program.

"Far too often, inadequate budgets prevent those organizations working to prevent fire from being as proactive as they would like to be. With additional financial support, grant recipients are actively helping to improve property risk in the communities they serve."

Through its Fire Prevention Grant Program, FM Global awards grants to fire departments—as well as national, state, regional, local and community organizations worldwide—that best demonstrate a need for funding, where dollars can have the most demonstrable impact on preventing fire, or mitigating the damage it can quickly cause.

To learn more about FM Global's Fire Prevention Grant Program and other resources for the fire service, please visit www.fmglobal.com/fireservice.

Established nearly 200 years ago, FM Global is a mutual insurance company whose capital, scientific research capability and engineering expertise are solely dedicated to property risk management and the resilience of its client-owners. These owners, who share the belief that the majority of property loss is preventable, represent many of the world's largest organizations, including one of every three Fortune 500 companies. They work with FM Global to better understand the hazards that can impact their business continuity in order to make cost-effective risk management decisions, combining property loss prevention with insurance protection.
