Filing deadline June 3 for upcoming city, school board races

Gwin undecided whether to seek another term

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – Longtime Garnett City Commissioner Greg Gwin says he hasn't yet decided if he'll file to retain his city post as the June 3 deadline approaches.

Gwin told the Review last week he was taking the matter under consideration.

"At some point in time I think there's something to be said for new blood," he said. "I just haven't decided yet."

Gwin was first elected to the post in 2007 and is finishing his fourth term.

So far no other candidates have signed on to run for the city post, according to Anderson County Clerk Julie Heck.

The upcoming noon June 3 deadline affects city council and mayor filings in Greeley, Colony, Kincaid and Westphalia and Lone Elm, as well as school board position filings in Garnett USD 365, Crest USD 479 and Central Heights 288.

For the Garnett post, candidates have to be a registered voter and reside in the City of Garnett and pay a $20 filing fee when filing at the county clerk's office in the Anderson County Courthouse.

The Garnett City Commission meets the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month at 6 p.m. Additionally, special meetings, as well as joint city/county meetings, are held throughout the year at times and dates to be determined. City commissioners are required to attend all meetings as necessary to carry out the business of the city. The current salary for serving as a Garnett City Commissioner is $450 per month. The mayor receives $500 per month.

Elections will be held on Tuesday, November 5, 2019. The individual winning the election will assume duties on the Garnett City Commission as of January 1, 2020.

Weather: 6 in 10

Nearly 6 inches of rain falls in first 10 days of May as cool, wet prediction plays out

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – The first 10 days of May coughed up nearly 6 inches of rainfall and cooler than normal temperatures, as the wetter, cooler spring forecast by state weather watchers plays out across the Eastern Kansas region.

Garnett Municipal Airport Manager Gary Ecclefield said Friday rainfall totals from May 1-9 had totaled 5.97 inches, raining seven of the first nine days of the month. April rainfall at the airport was measured at 5.32 inches, with the county's average coming in at 3.9.

That adds up to some 16 inches of precipitation since January 1. Anderson County typically gets about 41 inches of rainfall on average in a year.

Forecasters predicted a cooler and wetter spring back in late February after a wetter pattern established itself throughout the region over the winter.

April actually brought a break in the colder-than-normal trend that dominated the winter. State-wide average temperature for the month was 55 degrees, about a point and a half warmer than

New county appraiser takes seat

GARNETT – Anderson County's newly-hired county appraiser brings a construction background to the position and a rural southeast Kansas upbringing.

County commissioners signed a one-year, $68,500 contract with Adam Wilson late last month. Wilson will replace interim county appraiser Gary Stapp who has been covering the office since the January firing of Steve Markham from the full time post. Stapp will continue to train with Wilson through the end of May, Wilson said.

Wilson, who was raised near Sedan, formerly operated Wilson & Son Construction with his father until the housing market crash nearly a decade ago. He then trained as an appraiser and worked 8 years in appraisal offices in Montgomery County and later Lyon County.

"I'm a public servant," Wilson said, noting his mission is to see that property valuations were in keeping with state laws and local markets.

Married with three children, Wilson said he and his family recently built a home in Cherryvale and he has no immediate plans to relocate to the local area, and will instead continue the hour and-a-half commute for the near future.

Can't spark for electric cars

Locals follow trend of drivers slow to warm to new driving style

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – Local residents debating or ignoring the prospect of ever owning an electric car are a lot like the rest of the country, according to a recent study released by AAA on drivers' perceptions of electric cars.

Basically, Americans have been slow to warm to electric cars – but the AAA study shows that might be because Americans just don't know a lot about them even after more than a decade having them commercially available. Still, the thought percolates among area car buyers on occasion.

"I'd actually love to have electric car especially the way gas prices fluctuate," said Donna Moore of Richmond. "Plus we live in Richmond and most of our travel is to Garnett & Ottawa, it would actually be perfect for us since we usually stay close to home."

Today, more than 200,000 electric cars can be found on roads across the country as almost every manufacturer sells them, said Greg Brannon, AAA's director of Automotive Engineering and Industry Relations. But, like other new vehicle technologies, Americans don't have the full story and that could be causing the gap between interest and action.

According to a Fall 2018 Kansas Joint Legislative Transportation Vision Task Force report, 1,556 of the 1.5 million vehicles registered in the State of Kansas were electric. There are currently 185 electric vehicle charging stations in the state, including 777 charging outlets, according to the U.S. Department of Energy's Alternative Fuels Data Center.

Justin Beckman with Beckman Motors in Garnett said his company has seen very little interest in electric cars from its customer base.

"We don't hear much discussion from our customers about electric vehicles or plug-in hybrids," Beckman said.

We can't control the wind but we can adjust our sails

On a calendar at home is the following statement, "We can't control the wind but we can adjust the sails." In John 3:8, Jesus tells Nicodemus, "The wind blows wherever it pleases. You hear its sound, but you cannot tell where it comes from or where it is going."

The winds of adversity often blow through our lives and just like it says in the statement above, "we can't control them." Life is full of times when we have to walk into a stiff wind and we often feel as helpless as a ship tossed by the sea. In Acts 27:13-15, Luke tells of Paul's trip to Rome by ship. "When a gentle south wind began to blow they thought they had obtained what they wanted; so they weighed anchor and sailed along the shore of Crete. Before very long a wind of hurricane force, called a northeaster swept down from the island. The ship was caught by the storm and could not head into the wind, so we gave way to it and were driven along."

I have always found that life is full enough of wind storms without me causing them myself. Storms like the loss of a job, a sudden reversal of finances, the loss of a parent, child or spouse. When these storms hit us like a cold January wind what do we do? This is when we have to adjust the sails. Now I wouldn't make a very good sailor because I don't know the first thing about adjusting a sail. I would need an experienced seaman to help me learn. I also need an experienced problem solver to help me deal with the storms of life. For situations like I mentioned above I have found the best source of help is my creator and sustainer, Almighty

BY DAVID BILDERBACK

God. I have found it is safe to put all your trust in God. Many times we are like the pilot and owner of the ship that Paul started out to Rome on. "When a gentle south wind began to blow they thought they had obtained what they wanted." They ignored the more important and less apparent sign. The time that they were sailing was, "after the Fast" or late in the year. We read in Acts 27:41, "But the ship struck a sandbar and ran aground. The bow stuck fast and would not move, and the stern was broken to pieces by the pounding of the surf."

We can and do make shipwreck of our lives by excluding God. However many people seem to do quite well excluding God from their life because God is patient with them. But John the Baptist warns the Pharisees and the Sadducee; "The axe is already at the root of the trees, and every tree that does not produce good fruit will be cut down and thrown into the fire." When you read that it kind of makes you want to adjust your sails.

Colony Christian Church news

Darren McGhee gave the Communion Meditation on "Moms". Luke 2:41-51 talks about how when Jesus was 12, he stayed behind in Jerusalem and it took Mary and Joseph three days to find him.

Imagine how frantic Mary was. Mother's were made to be firm and loving, strict and kind. The Lord chose Mary to be Jesus' mother, to guide and direct Him. God chose your mother too. So love her, even when you do't agree with her. Pastor Chase Riebel gave the sermon on the Believe series virtue #7, Kindness/Goodness. Deuteronomy 5:16 says to honor your father and mother and you will live a long, full life. Ephesians 6:1-3 says to obey your parents and things will go well for you. When Moses' mother placed him in the basket in the Nile to hide him, she made a good decision. Pharaoh's daughter showed kindness when she raised him as her own son. Kindness is an intentional decision. God put our mother, and other women, in our lives, so we can learn this goodness and kindness from them.

Money doesn't make results in Kansas education finance

REVIEW COMMENTARY

DANE HICKS, Publisher

Kansas school funding have nearly doubled the rate of inflation, our kids' performance on the National Assessment of Educational Progress has been flat. The more fuel we've poured into the machine, the more we've stayed the same.

What? How can that be?

If we were driving a car, we'd swear there's a disconnect between the foot pedal and the engine. In fact, we'd limp that lemon right into the mechanic's shop to find out what the problem is.

But the "starving the children" line constantly pitched by the KNEA and other education system lobbyists during this near decade-long lawsuit in the state has been swallowed hook, line and sinker by most of the public - if we want results, we've been taught to believe, we just have to dump in more money.

Looking out at those freshly-minted Kansas high school graduates it's hard to believe our state education system gurgles with mediocrity the more we pump money into it. Thankfully many of them will push themselves on to great lives of career and citizenship, but for the student body as a whole, we continue our 20 year-old performance rates at modern day prices.

As we look forward to the next school year the question lingers: How long will Kansas ignore the fact that more money isn't changing student outcomes?

When you push on the gas pedal, you expect to go. When you push harder, you expect to go faster. It's a rule we've gotten used to ever since Henry Ford changed our lives, and it's a rule we expect to translate into the realm of Kansas school finance and student performance as well.

But as we wrap up another high school graduation season, we see it still isn't happening in Kansas education. The Kansas Supreme Court keeps stomping on the accelerator, but our schools aren't responding.

The topic defines itself this time of year in particular, with high school graduations now done or finishing up and students, teachers and administrators ready for a few weeks of R&R before rallying for a another school year next fall. In the whole school finance discussion in Kansas, no one likes to bring up the issue of performance because the news generally isn't good - but no one wants to hammer the schools because we all know teachers and administrators who work hard and put up with a lot to try to educate kids. Still, if we press on the gas and we don't go, we have to wonder what the problem is.

A couple weeks ago Governor Kelly, who unabashedly wants to be known as "the education governor," signed a "bipartisan" bill adding another $90 million through 2022-23 to the state's school finance plan. That was foisted upon tax payers by the latest of six mandates from the Kansas Supreme Court in the never-ending lawsuit from four Kansas school districts to force more money into Kansas schools. The ink was barely dry on the Governor's signature before lawyers for those districts said the real number should have been more like $360 million, and even members of the supreme court have started to ask 'is this ever going to end?'

So Kansas now funds K-12 at $4 billion a year - that's $1 billion more than it did for the 2013-14 school year. Since 2000, overall spending on K-12 education has increased over 75 percent. We've put the pedal to the metal.

But over that time period when hikes in

I think the police did a wonderful job with that standoff. What I did not appreciate was all the social media going on. There was all kinds of talk about what was going on, all kinds of things I don't know how students can interact with if they're not supposed to have cell phones at school. I think social media needs to butt out when the police are trying to take care of things.

I was interested in the article on the first impressions of Garnett. I see so many houses in Garnett that need torn down, big cracks in the street and places where the sidewalk is all grown over in grass or all fallen apart. So many houses are so far past fixing and the vacant lot would look nicer. Weren't we supposed to have a tax sale some time ago to get some of these properties into hands of people who will do something with them or tear them down? Downtown buildings too. I'd like to see people take more pride in our nice little town.

Do you have to send your kid to preschool for them to go to kindergarten? I'm hearing that you have to, which means we have to pay for it. If I could get a straight answer from somebody in the Phone Forum please give it to me.

Yoohoo, city workers: I know you've been busy, but once again I'll ask that you fill in the trench by the rec center. With all the rain it's filled up with water and people are fishing in it.

Kelly's tax cut veto may be gift to legislators

STATE COMMENTARY

owners? Even for the diehard off-roaders it's probably not going to cost any legislators seeking reelection a vote.

That's a gift for all but that handful of legislators who cast a vote for their ATV-riding constituents can proudly tell their ATV-issue voters (who generally crossed those highways anyway but can do it legally now) that they fought for them. Not much of a fight; 110 House members and 39 Senate members voted for the bill.

Now, that's nice, but what if the governor, as expected, vetoes the half-price tax cut bill that lawmakers sent her after she vetoed the jumbo tax-cut bill which sent most of that cut to corporations which do business in foreign countries?

Well, it means that those tax-cutting legislators get another chance to vote for tax cuts in an election year when it's going to be recalled and a major campaign issue while most voters will remember the fight and can congratulate that tax-cut Statehouse crowd at the polling place.

A veto this year on the bill sets up the best campaign issue legislators can wish for next session.

And while a tax cut is political candy, the real fight is again going to be how next year's state tax-cut effort (or, for conservatives, returning the state tax increases that the federal government's tax cuts, that they liked, caused) will be targeted.

It can be either an income tax cut for low-income Kansans or a reduction in the state's sales tax on groceries or a gift for upper middle-income Kansas taxpayers. But probably not a big a major reduction for those corporations with substantial overseas earnings which saw their state tax bills rise while their federal tax bills shrank.

Those corporations don't vote, their employees do. So, whose name do you put on the tax-cut gift card? Probably voters. It'll cost candidates some contributions from corporations, but not votes. The political decision next year comes down to whether a candidate's constituents want food sales taxes or income taxes cut, or some sharing of the revenue shortfall that the state will see from either choice.

Governors don't generally hold photo-ops when they sign a veto report, but there's always the chance that the tax-cut champions might want to stand behind her at her desk, rending their garments as she signs the veto message that sets them up for an election year trophy with next session's tax cut effort.

Dems need more Mueller "not exonerating" time

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

RICH LOWRY, King Features Syndicate

Special Counsel."

On obstruction, Mueller reached no such decision, and he didn't write a confidential report, either - his report was clearly meant for public consumption. Besides that, he's a stickler for the rules.

Worse, as Trump's special counsel Emmet Flood set out in an excoriating letter, by stipulating that the evidence prevented him "from conclusively determining that no criminal conduct occurred," Mueller stood the presumption of innocence on its head.

By Mueller's standard, the prosecutor doesn't have to prove guilt - the target has to prove innocence. And if the target doesn't, he will be disparaged in a long-form quasi-indictment spelling out why he's not exonerated.

If anyone not named Donald J. Trump were subjected to this new prosecutorial standard, it would occasion widespread comment and - one hopes - consternation.

Now, Congress wants Mueller to compound the offense by speaking publicly. It doesn't want facts from him. They are already in the report. It wants opinions and sound bites, especially any embarrassing to the president. Congress wants him to spend a couple of high-profile hours further "not exonerating" the president.

If Mueller had a proper understanding of his role, he would decline the congressional invitation. But the fact is that Mueller and Congress have a symbiotic relationship. For two years, Mueller was acting as, in effect, the lead counsel for an impeachment inquiry - bizarrely housed within the executive branch - while Congress wants to use his moral authority as a crutch at a time when it is vulnerable to charges of partisan overreaching. This, too, is not supposed to be how the moral works. But we are long beyond anyone caring. For a swath of the political world and much of the media, all that matters is that Mueller "not exonerate" Trump, and the more, the better, in whatever format or forum.

- Rich Lowry is editor of the National Review

The last thing the world needs is more of Robert Mueller's commentary, but Congress is determined to have him hold forth at a public hearing.

It's not as though we don't already have the special counsel's version of events. He mustered enormous investigate resources and took two years to write a 400-page report that is available to the public and presumably carefully written (although not necessarily carefully thought through).

That should be enough for Mueller to stand on, and enough for Congress to make a decision to impeach or not impeach, or otherwise dispose of the matter as it sees fit.

Instead, Mueller is going to be asked to expand on his already-expansive report that not only blew through Justice Department regulations, but inverted the long-standing burden of proof in the Anglo-American legal tradition.

As a prosecutor, Mueller's job - his sole job, really - was to decide whether or not the defendant was guilty of a crime. He declined to do this, choosing instead to write a nearly 200-page volume on obstruction cataloging what he found in the course of not making the only decision he was supposed to make.

The relevant regulations say that at the conclusion of the special counsel's work he or she "shall provide the Attorney General with a confidential report explaining the prosecution or declination decisions reached by the

What is a Wiper Worm?

I would almost bet that when you looked at this picture, you said, I know what that old artifact is. It's a drill or an auger of some kind.

Well, that is exactly what I thought too until I started researching it and found out it is actually an old "Worm/Wiper".

What was it used for? It was used to remove a fouled mini ball, paper wadding or other debris from your rifle bore.

They were used extensively during the Civil War.

As a matter of fact, I found this artifact at the homesite of an early Kansas Militiaman.

No other implements should be used in taking arms apart or setting them up. In the inspection of arms, officers should attend to the qualities essential to service, rather than to a bright polish on the exterior of the arms. Along with qualifying to participate in the Kansas State 1A basketball tournament earlier this spring, Crest athletics now has one more achievement to be proud of - a sportsmanship award presented by the Kansas State High School Activities Association. KSHSAA defines sportsmanship as those qualities of behavior which are characterized by generosity and genuine concern for others.

Oklahoma law officers hope the results of an autopsy will lend more clues to a possible murder suicide last week that involved a former Greeley, Kansas, couple. Officers say Calton "Cal" Davis apparently shot and killed his wife Geraldine Davis during a domestic incident and then brought her body to the cemetery about 20 miles north of Vinita, Okla. He then left the scene, but later returned armed with a handgun. Officers attempted to negotiate with him for about an hour before he killed himself with a self-

Garnett Police Chief Lawrence Kellerman reported a break-in and an attempted break-in at two area businesses over the weekend. Apparently sometime over the weekend a person pried the screen off a window housing the Shop-Rite grocery store and broke the glass window. No items were missing and the cost to replace the screen and window was $50. Someone also made a robbery attempt at Sherwood Inn and Kings Lounge. Someone tried to kick in the door, but their attempts failed.

City Clerk Joyce Martin indicated that a number of people had called this week asking about the rates for the swimming pool this summer. Martin noted that there has been an increase in prices charged. The new rates are 60 cents a day for children, $1 per day for adults, $12 for season tickets for one child, and $22 for a family of three and $2 for each additional child.

Most all of the chasers after the end of the rainbow live in Kansas, and they are typical of the mythical hunters of the bag of gold. No matter how dry and hot the summer, no matter how short the corn crop, no matter if the yield of hay is short, no matter what the conditions, these loyal Kansans bob up serenely at the end of the unfavorable summer as happy and contented as though nature had bestowed upon them her choicest blessings.

Etiquette for the Modern World

By Jackie Mundt, Pratt County farmer and rancher

I have never been able to bring myself to wear jeans to church. It might seem antiquated but putting on a nice dress before heading to Sunday service makes me feel like my grandmother is smiling down on me. I understand God does not care what you wear, and "Sunday Best" is no longer in fashion. This choice of wardrobe is my own way of showing respect and humility to God and His church.

As our culture evolves, so do the rules of what is acceptable, proper etiquette. Many rules of how to be proper or polite were cemented during previous generations. They are no longer expected or required.

However, good manners will never be completely forgotten. Etiquette continues to have a place in the modern world. It is just no longer expected. What were once rules have become a choice we make, a way to show respect, deference, humility, kindness and any number of other positive regards.

When I reflect on my choice to conform to proper etiquette, it is part of my character, my brand and my style. Etiquette is not a set of rules that leave me in a constant state of fear of making a mistake. I see it as a set of reminders to be kind, not to make a scene and try to make others feel comfortable.

The Collegiate Farm Bureau Chapter at our local community college has a tradition of hosting an etiquette dinner at the start of finals week for sophomores graduating from the agriculture department. I serve as the hostess for the evening's three-course, narrated meal. During the meal, I share the rules of etiquette - how to recognize the proper fork, eat a dinner roll properly, when it is appropriate to put your elbows on the table, and to pass the salt and pepper together because they are "married."

None of these are vital rules but they all have a purpose. They make the meal move smoothly, help participants feel more comfortable or keep the focus on good conversation. Understanding the guidelines helps turn situations that are often met with trepidation or unease into a fun and enjoyable events.

Etiquette is not meant to be a scoreboard to track who is breaking the rules. It is a way to conduct yourself, so people enjoy your company. We all can benefit from that reminder.

If you find yourself lamenting a rule of etiquette that seems to have been dismissed as a relic, ask yourself: Do you miss it because it was drilled into your head that it is proper behavior or is it something that brings value to your actions?

If there is value in the practice, be a trendsetter. Take pride in the knowledge you are living by a standard that is slightly more than what is expected. People will always notice when you are kinder than you need to be, more respectful than is deserved and humbler than you should be.

Good manners and proper etiquette will never go out of style. Don't worry about what is proper or what other people are doing. Make the conscious choice to do what is kind, gracious or respectful to the world around you and you can be confident you have nailed etiquette in the modern world.

"Insight" is a weekly column published by Kansas Farm Bureau, the state's largest farm organization whose mission is to strengthen agriculture and the lives of Kansans through advocacy, education and service.

Lady Bulldogs skid reaches 3 games

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

BURLINGTON - It has been a season of streaks for the Anderson County Bulldogs softball team this year and the 3 game losing streak, after a double header sweep to undefeated Burlington, to end the regular season put an abrupt halt to 10 game winning streak.

On Monday, May 6th, the Bulldogs lost the opening game of a double header 2-1 and the second game was 13-3.

In the opener, the Bulldogs matched the undefeated Burlington squad pitch for pitch.

Anderson County struck first with a run in the top of the fifth inning as Ashley Lickteig opened the inning with a homerun.

Burlington quickly answered with a run in the bottom half of the inning.

Starting pitcher Alison Brown allowed a leadoff single and walked the ensuing batter to put runners on first and second with no one out.

Brown would strike out the next two batters and record the third out on a pop up but a wild pitch during the sequence would score a run to knot the score 1-1.

It would remain that way until the bottom of the seventh.

After two groundouts to open the inning, Brown would walk the next batter.

After the Burlington runner stole second they would follow that up with a single and an error to score the winning run with 2 outs.

Both teams only picked up 4 hits in the game. For the Bulldogs, K. Disbrow led the way with 2 hits and Cali Foltz and Lickteig each had one.

Brown pitched 6 2/3 innings, allowed 4 hits, 1 earned run and struck out 9 hitters.

The second game would start out as a pitcher's duel, once again, until the wheels fell off in the 4th and 5th innings.

Burlington took the lead early with one run in the bottom of the second, the Bulldogs answered with 3 runs in the top half of the fourth.

With one out, Lickteig and Holli Miller singled before Brown doubled to score the first run.

After a groundout for the second out of the inning, Lickteig hit a line drive that the Burlington third baseman booted to score 2 runs to put Anderson County up 3-1.

Burlington scored 4 runs in the fourth to jump on top 5-3 and with the help of 4 Anderson County errors they erupted for 8 runs in the bottom of the fifth with only one out to end the game via the run rule.

Bulldogs baseball 2-hits Santa Fe Trail, win easily

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

CARBONDALE - The Anderson County baseball team closed out the regular season with an impressive 8-0 win on the road against Santa Fe Trail on Monday, May 6th.

The win marked the 10th straight by the Bulldogs following a 2-5 start to the season.

AC scored 2 runs in the 2nd, 3rd and 5th innings and a single run in both the 6th and 7th.

Anderson County manufactured their first run by a lead-off single by Porter Richards. Logan Allen would come in and run. Allen would advance to second on a passed ball and tag to third base on a fly out to center field.

Allen would score on an infield single to shortstop to put the Bulldogs up 1-0. The second run of the inning would score via a walk and an error by the shortstop.

The third inning started out with a ground out and fly out for Anderson County before Richards picked up his second hit of the game with a triple to center.

A double by Bo Dilliner would score a run and then a single by Damone Kueser would score Dilliner. A pair of walks would load the bases but the threat came to an end on a three pitch strikeout by Tyler Denny.

It was Santa Fe Trail once again hurting themselves in the 5th inning which led to a pair of runs for AC.

SFT would hit Dilliner leading off the inning followed by a walk to Kueser.

After Kyle Edgecomb struck out, D. Kellerman walked to load the bases.

Dilliner would steal home to put AC up 5-0 and then Tyler

Denny would reach on a bunt single to the pitcher, scoring the sixth run of the game.

The Bulldogs scored in the sixth on a Dilliner double and in the seventh on a single by Austin Adams.

Anderson County recorded 11 hits in the game, led by Kueser with 3 hits and Dilliner and Richards with 2 each.

Dilliner and Kueser also led the way with 2 runs driven in each.

D. Kellerman didn't record a hit in the game but did reach base all 4 times on the afternoon via walk.

Richards started the game and went 5 innings, allowing just 2 hits, walked 4 batters and struck out 6.

Justin Stifter pitched the 6th and 7th innings. He didn't allow a hit and struck out 3 batters.

Ms. Burris' Greeley preschool class had a very special day on Wednesday, May 8th. Each student invited an important lady in their life, whether it was their mom, grandmother, aunt, or friend. The preschool classroom was transformed into a beautiful tea room, complete with table linens and china tea cups with saucers. Soft, classical music played in the background as the children enjoyed tea and cookies with the very important woman in their life. Good manners and good behavior had been practiced and the children sipped carefully from the delicate tea cups. Above - The afternoon preschool class at Greeley sit with their moms, grandmothers and aunts at the Ladies Tea. ## Sort of the same, but completely different

You want to stick out, but in a good way. And you want to convey that difference to your customers as part of your sales strategy to help you sell stuff.

Think back for a second... "Seven herbs and spices;" "Crisp and clean and no caffeine;" "Takes a licking and keeps on ticking." Kentucky Fried Chicken, 7-Up and Timex watches all found a way to illustrate what made them different from their competitors, and then ran with it in their advertising to a point that those slogans became part of our culture. When the whole idea of "fried" food took a 180 degree turn into a negative in our culture, Kentucky Fried Chicken even rebranded itself into "KFC."

So you need to consider two things: 1) what is it that sets your business apart in your customers eyes, or what is it that you want to set you apart in your customers eyes, and; 2) How are you getting that point across to your customers?

The more commodity-based your product or service is, the more important your "differentiator". And keep this in mind - it's not always up to you to determine what your differentiator is - this one you need to know from your customer's point of view. Ask them. Do a survey or conduct an informal focus group of some of your customers over lunch. It'll be fun and very educational.

Are you always the cheapest? Are you always the fastest? Do you have magical knowledge that's a value-added plus for your customers? Are you always on time? Are you the biggest? Are you small enough to offer super-personal service? Are you open later, earlier, on the weekends?

For instance let's say you have a lawn & landscaping service. What makes you different than the kid dragging his dad's lawn mower down the street to mow neighborhood lawns? Are you cheaper than he is? Probably not. Are you

HOW TO SELL STUFF

Dane Hicks
 Publisher - THE TRADING POST

more dependable? Probably. Do you have knowledge he doesn't have about when and what to seed lawns? Probably. Do you offer other services like gutter cleaning? Do you schedule your customers for service regularly so they don't have to remember to call you? When considering your "differentiators," which is the most important to your customers? More importantly... how does that difference benefit your customers?

Your answer should become the theme of your sales efforts. Make it simple, easy to understand, and repeat, repeat, repeat!

"Takes a licking and keeps on ticking" told customers in a short, snappy phrase that Timex watches were tough and reliable. The difference that sets your business apart should come across the same way.

Build it into your "elevator speech" - that minute-long sheel you've memorized about your business; use it on your website, on your business cards, in your social media, in your radio, newspaper or television advertising; on your signage, your bumper stickers, your billboards, the poster the county fair association is doing for you because you're going to be a demo-derby sponsor this summer.

Be different, know why your customers love you for it, and drive it home.

average. April ranked as the 48th warmest on record, a stark contrast from last year which was the coldest April on record.

State weather officials at the Kansas Weather Data Library said the normal gradient of wet in the east versus dry in the west was amplified. State-wide average precipitation for April was 2.3 inches, 87 percent of normal. However, all three western divisions reported less than half of normal for the period. Root zone soil moisture conditions continued wet across eastern Kansas.

The warmer conditions in April resulted in repaid development in wheat, but the crop is still about two weeks behind its normal state, K-State researchers say. Analysts say some 41 percent of the state's corn crop had been planted as of May 5, with the greatest progress in central and Southeast Kansas.

"I credit our success to four things; hard work, our communities, our clients and most importantly the great team of people we have working for us." Not only have they succeeded, but the company has also grown from a one location startup in Burlington, KS to opening a second office in Emporia and a third office, which is the result of the acquisition late last year of C.D. Schulte Insurance Agency, in Garnett, KS. "We continue to look at opportunities for growth. Many things go into our decision-making on acquisitions. First and foremost, the community is of the utmost importance. We also need to know that the staff subscribes to the client-forward way we do business," maintains Payne. "If those things are in place, then we move on to see if the financials make sense."

can think of one serious discussion I've had with a customer about purchasing one. This was a couple years ago, and he ended up purchasing a Chevy Cruze. Other than this customer, I've heard very few people even talk about them around here."

"As soon as we reach the next generation of battery technology enabling greater range and faster charging times electric cars will make more sense," said former Garnett resident Dan Benjamin. "Prices are starting to come down and should make them much more competitive with internal combustion engine vehicles."

ant to understand charging options available at home to ensure consumers can take full advantage of electric vehicle technology with the least inconvenience. Benjamin said he'd rather skip the early electric technology and get right to the real space age stuff. "What I really want is a flying car," Benjamin said. "Come on man, it's the 21st century!"

Beckman said though the local dealership can sell new electrics or hybrids, they're not authorized to order from the factory without the dealership making a significant investment in training and service equipment to become proficient in the product line. With such little local interest, he said, the company has held off on that pursuit.

Although most Americans don't believe electric vehicles will be on the road in masses in the next 10 years, AAA did find that 40 million Americans say they would be likely to consider an electric vehicle for their next car purchase, with Millennials leading the pack. Concern for the environment and lower long-term costs remain the leading reasons to go green (74 percent and 56 percent respectively). Previous objections to buying electric with regard to price and range anxiety continue to ease and have trended downward significantly:

• Concern that there are not enough places to charge - down 11 percent from 2017
 • Concern about running out of charge when driving - down 11 percent from 2017
 • Higher cost of battery repair or replacement - down 8 percent from 2017
 • Higher purchase price - down 6 percent from 2017

"Well electric cars aren't any better for the environment," Gooding said. "Lithium mines are far more disastrous than the 0.002% of the atmospheric CO2 that's been added by humans." AAA's annual survey that tracks opinions regarding electric and hybrid vehicles found that while consumer interest remains steady, Americans may not have a solid understanding of electric vehicle performance, which may be giving consumers pause when it comes to considering electric for their next purchase. For instance, electric vehicles, unlike those running on gas, do better in stop-and-go traffic because the car can recapture energy to charge the battery when decelerating. However, AAA's survey found that a majority of Americans (59 percent) were unsure of whether electric vehicles have better range when driving at high-speeds or in stop and go traffic. This demonstrates that many consumers are not sure what to expect from an electric vehicle in two of the most common driving scenarios.

"These vehicles are a big part of the future of transportation since self-driving cars, when they do arrive, will likely be electric," continued Brannon. "The difference, of course, is that electric vehicles are already here and with the advancements in style and range that have been made over the last few years, they have become an even more viable option for many Americans." Consumers interested in electric vehicles, but still unsure should research and learn as much as possible about these types of cars. AAA also recommends drivers visit a dealership, test drive an electric vehicle and ask as many questions as possible of the dealer and other electric vehicle owners. It is also important

Community Action Network celebrates 55 years of service

This year (2019) marks the 55th years since the Community Action Network was established to help American families and communities overcome obstacles to poverty. Over 1000 agencies across the country are working every day to create opportunities, and transform lives of their neighbors making communities stronger and helping families across the US thrive. This year, ECKAN, a proud member of the Community Action Network, will also commemorate 53 years of service helping families throughout our 9 county service area. Each May, during Community Action Month, we reflect on the impact ECKAN and our network has had on families. Last year alone, we served 5,839 people in our service area, and over 156 million across the country with immediately needed services such as shelter and food, and also long-term solutions like education and job placement. Community Action Agencies serve 99% of all American counties with life-changing services to help families achieve financial stability. All agencies are locally controlled and represented by the private, public, and low-income sectors of the community. We are proud of our community participation in the development and oversight of our programs. Their engagement helps us to be more effective in our approach by determining what services are needed. To celebrate the continued success of Community Action and raise awareness throughout our services area we will host a number of activities in the counties we serve. ECKAN is a member of the National Community Action Partnership and the Community Action Network, which was born out of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964. Richard Jackson, ECKAN CEO

Kansans safely dispose of nearly 7 tons of unused medicines

Kansans safely disposed of nearly seven tons of unused and unwanted medicines during National Drug Take-Back Day, Kansas Attorney General Derek Schmidt said today. Kansas law enforcement officers collected 13,638 pounds of medicines at 116 locations throughout the state during the event, according to a report from the federal Drug Enforcement Administration. "Safe storage and proper disposal are the keys to preventing the accidental or intentional misuse of prescription medications," Schmidt said. "Kansans continue to recognize the importance of safely disposing of their unused medicines during these semi-annual Drug Take-Back events. I appreciate the leadership of the DEA and local law enforcement agencies in providing this service for Kansans." Kansans have safely destroyed a total of 176,796 pounds of medications in the 17 collection days that have been held since 2010. Law enforcement agencies turn the drugs they collect over to the DEA, which safely destroys the medications. Unused prescriptions can be turned in year-round at many local law enforcement locations as well as a limited number of other locations. Kansans should contact their local sheriff's office or police department for more information.

Click it or Ticket Campaign Starts May 20 with border to border kickoff event

The U.S. Department of Transportation's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration's (NHTSA) Region 7 state highway safety offices are joining law enforcement nationwide for a Border to Border (B2B) Click it or Ticket kickoff event starting Monday, May 20. The campaign seeks to increase seat belt use by coordinating highly visible seat belt law enforcement in the region's states of Iowa, Arkansas, Kansas, Missouri, and Nebraska.

This year's campaign, running May 20 - June 2, will include nighttime enforcement. According to NHTSA data, in 2017, more than 10,000 people lost their lives in crashes where they were not wearing a seat belt, with over half killed at night. Law enforcement will be taking a no-excuses approach to seat belt law enforcement, writing citations day and night.

"The Border to Border component of the Click It or Ticket campaign is important because it raises awareness about seat belt safety during the time when seat belts are least used - at night," said Susan DeCourcy, NHTSA Region 7 Administrator. "With an increased number of cars flooding the streets due to the Memorial Day holiday, it's imperative we get the word out about the importance of seat belt safety."

The campaign is targeted to all drivers, but especially the hard-to-reach males ages 18-34 who research shows are far less likely to wear seat belts. Of the males killed in crashes in 2017, more than half (51%) were unrestrained. For females killed in crashes, 39 percent were not buckled up.

Click It or Ticket is a multi-pronged campaign that combines on street enforcement with a national media buy campaign that airs across TV, radio, internet, and social media to convey the message that officers are out enforcing seat belt laws. Thousands of Americans are alive today thanks to strong state laws, the Click it or Ticket enforcement and paid media effort, and the year-round "Buckle Up America" campaigns.

NHTSA has been working with the States on Click It or Ticket since 2003. Since that time, national seat belt use has increased from 79 percent to 89.6 percent.

For more information on the Click It or Ticket mobilization, please visit www.nhtsa.gov/ciot.

Dairy Margin Coverage Program's March payment rates released

USDA's Farm Service Agency (FSA) announced this week that the March 2019 income over feed cost margin was $8.85 per hundredweight (cwt.), triggering the third payment for dairy producers who purchase the appropriate level of coverage under the new Dairy Margin Coverage (DMC) program.

DMC, which replaces the Margin Protection Program for Dairy (MPP-Dairy), offers protection to dairy producers when the difference between the all milk price and the average feed cost (the margin) falls below a certain dollar amount selected by the producer.

"I encourage all dairy operations to sign up for DMC when we begin accepting applications in June," said FSA Administrator Richard Fordyce. "Under certain coverage levels, the amount to be paid to dairy farmers for the months of January, February and March already exceed the cost of the premium."

The sign up period for DMC opens June 17, 2019. Dairy producers who elect a DMC coverage level between $9 and $9.50 would be eligible for a payment for January, February and March 2019.

For example, a dairy operation that chooses to enroll an established production history of 3 million pounds (30,000 cwt.) and elects the $9.50 coverage level on 95 percent of production would receive $1,543.75 for March.

Sample calculation:
• $9.50 - $8.85 margin = $0.65 difference

• $0.65 x 95 percent of production x 2,500 cwt. (30,000 cwt./12) = $1,543.75

DMC premiums are paid annually. The calculated annual premium for coverage at $9.50 on 95 percent of a 3-million-pound production history for this example would be $4,275.

Sample calculation:
• 3,000,000 x 95 percent = 2,850,000/100 = 28,500 cwt. x 0.150 premium fee = $4,275

The dairy operation in the example calculation will pay $4,275 in total premium payments for all of 2019 and receive $8,170 in DMC payments for January, February and March combined. Additional payments will be made if calculated margins remain below the $9.50/cwt level.

All participants are also required to pay an annual $100 administrative fee in addition to any premium, and payments will be subject to a 6.2 percent reduction to account for federal sequestration.

Operations making a one-time election to participate in DMC through 2023 are eligible to receive a 25 percent discount on their premium for the existing margin coverage rates. For the example above, this would reduce the annual premium by $1,068.75.

AFBFA's On the Farm teaches educators STEM skills for classroom

Educators from across the country recently came to Kansas for an intensive, three-day lesson on how Kansas beef cattle ranchers, researchers, nutritionists and veterinarians are using science, technology, engineering and math (STEM), and what educators can do to incorporate those methods into their classrooms.

American Farm Bureau Foundation for Agriculture's On the Farm STEM Experience brought 25 educators to the state, including six who teach in Kansas. On the Farm featured free lessons, activities, online learning tools and enriching professional development events.

"Our On the Farm events connect educators with farmers and ranchers to intimately learn how STEM principles are infused in agricultural processes. Many of the participants have never set foot on a farm or ranch and this opportunity gives them accurate knowledge to take back to their classrooms," said Christy Lilja, American Farm Bureau Foundation for Agriculture executive director.

Educators learned about agriculture and received tools to use in the classroom during stops at Downey Ranch in Wabaunsee County, Tiffany Cattle Company in Morris County, Bichelmeyer Meats in Johnson County and Kansas State University's Beef Stocker Unit in Manhattan.

"The On the Farm STEM event is a fantastic real-life learning experience," a participant said of the Kansas event. "I left the event with so many ideas and ways to teach life science concepts through STEM." Kansas Farm Bureau and Kansas Beef assisted AFBF with planning and logistics.

National Skilled Nursing Care Week

May 12–18, 2019

Live Soulfully

What are you doing for yourself and others every day? What makes you happy? How are you contributing to your happiness and the happiness of others?

Every day, skilled nursing centers assist our seniors and people with disabilities in living their happiest and best lives. Whether it's planting, cooking, reading or listening to music, these centers pay it forward by helping individuals find their own happiness to improve quality of life.

The NSNCW 2019 theme, "Live Soulfully", will celebrate skilled nursing centers, and their residents and staff, by showcasing how they achieve happy minds and healthy souls.

Established as an annual, week-long observance by the American Health Care Association (AHCA) in 1967, NSNCW, formerly known as National Nursing Home Week, provides an opportunity to recognize the role of skilled nursing care centers in caring for America's frail, elderly, and disabled.

Whatever it takes,
and then some.

Ethanol Fueling A New Generation

Ethanol has been used in vehicles in the United States for decades.
With its increased demand and our country's growing need for less dependence on foreign oil, Ethanol is the fuel of the future.

Friendly to the environment, friendly to the farmer, ethanol is great for your vehicle, clean to the environment, and puts money back in the pockets of our local farmers.

We're proud to be on the forefront of new fuel technologies while decreasing America's dependence on foreign oil.
