Cities must approve off-road vehicles on roads, sheriff says

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – Locals anxious to use their ATVs, UTVs and side-by-sides for transportation or recreation locally this summer are getting a reminder about their legal jurisdictions from Anderson County Sheriff Vern Valentine.

In a statement last week Valentine reminded drivers of those vehicles that their legality within the city limits of the county's incorporated cities depends specifically on whether those cities have approved them, and under what conditions.

"If you live inside the corporate city limits, your city council must pass a city ordinance allowing the operation of ATV/four-wheelers and UTV/utility work/ side-by-sides to be driven on the city streets and or roads," Valentine said. "You also must have a valid driver's license and follow the rules of the road."

Privileges for off-road vehicles came up at a recent Garnett City Commission meeting, when it was discovered that some vehicles the city had authorized to be driven on city streets and city park properties were still technically required to have a permit to operate at the Cedar Valley Reservoir. Commissioners have yet to resolve those inconsistencies.

Valentine urged drivers with those type vehicles to check with their city hall to see if they have an ordinance allowing this, and if so to brush up on its details. He said some city ordinances may vary according to insurance requirements, speed limits and hours of operation.

Those vehicles are legal on rural roads in unincorporated areas, as long as the drivers have valid driver's licenses.

Summer brings child heat stroke concerns

EMPORIA – On average, every 10 days a child dies from heatstroke in a vehicle.

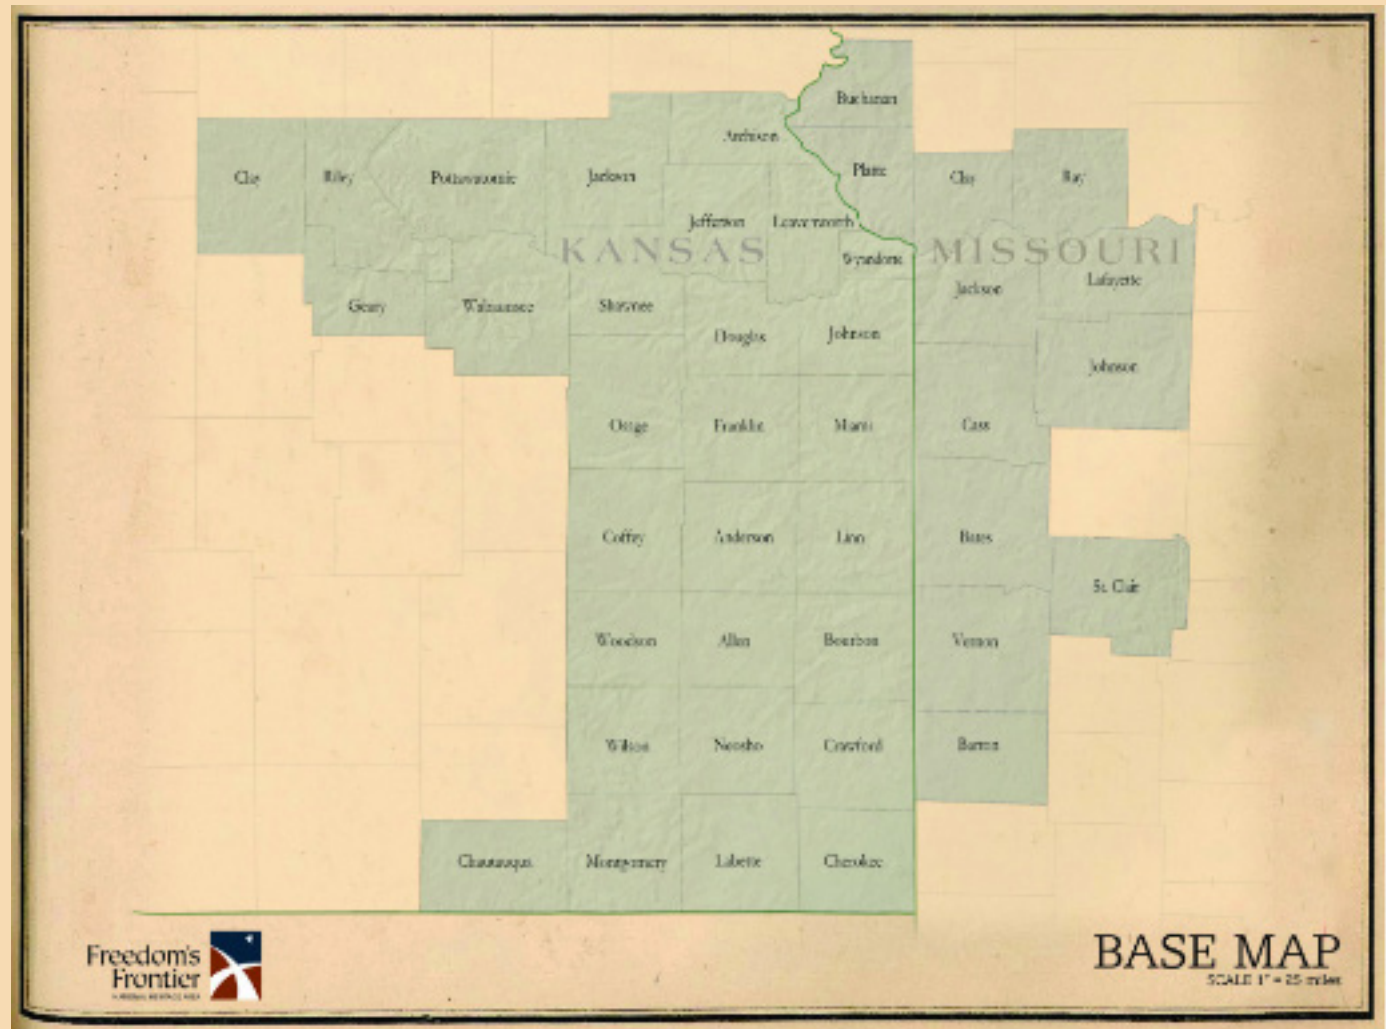

In more than half of these deaths, the caregiver forgot the child was in the car. TFI Family Services, Inc reminds caregivers to never leave children alone in a vehicle, and if you see a child alone in a car, call 911.

Heatstroke, also known as hyperthermia, is the leading cause of non-crash, vehicle-related deaths for children. It occurs when the body can't cool itself quickly enough and the body temperature rises to dangerous levels. Young children are particularly at risk as their bodies heat up three to five times faster than an adult's. Since 1998, more than 790 children across the United States have died from heatstroke when alone in a vehicle.

"A car can heat up 19 degrees in 10 minutes. And cracking a window doesn't help," said Rachelle Roosevelt, TFI Family Services, Inc.

Freedom's line only miles away

Heritage area offers site directions and online material to teach Bloody Kansas story

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

LAWRENCE – The National Heritage area of which Anderson County is a part stands ready this summer to provide hours of travel and activities for kids already bored with summer vacation, as well as their parents or other adults who think regional history is important.

The Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area comprises 29 Kansas counties and 12 in western Missouri, and wraps up the history of the earliest days of the conflict over slavery between Kansas and Missouri that led to the Civil War. In addition to the actual sites that can be visited in the area, the "Bleeding Kansas" period is outlined as well in extensive online materials that accompany visits to or studies of the local sites.

The conflict was rooted over Kansas' entry into the Union and whether it would be admitted as a slave state or free state. When Kansas was opened for settlement in 1854, a border war ensued, capturing the nation's attention. The Kansas-Nebraska Act nullified the uneasy balance established by the Missouri Compromise and left the territory's future slave status in the hands of settlers. The stakes were high for both sides. The violence of the Missouri Kansas Border War ushered in the Civil War, consumed the region in bloody conflict through war's end, and devastated communities on both sides of the border.

North-south connecting roads and routes between towns that crossed Anderson County and its proximity to the border made the local area a thoroughfare for the active participants on either side of the border conflict, includ-

Weather thumps April retail sales for some towns

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

TOPEKA – Sales tax distribution through May showed modest gains in retail activity in Anderson County and the region of East Central Kansas as a whole, though many individual cities show losses year-to-date, possibly affected by continuing wet weather.

Sales taxes are one of several data sets used to assess the financial health of a trade area, as long as their rates are the same over comparison periods. Cities and counties often charge their own variable add-on sales taxes that combine with 6.5 percent statewide tax to give additional dollars required on purchases that change somewhat from jurisdiction to jurisdiction.

State officials said rains that hampered customer traffic and activities likely contributed to significant drops in some taxing jurisdictions.

Anderson County saw a 6.4 percent gain from May 2018 to May 2019 to total collections of $128,275. Those gains contributed to a 3.3 percent overall gain since the beginning of the state's fiscal year in July 2018 when compared to the previous year, to a mark of $1,177,446.

Cities in Anderson County with their own sales taxes showed mixed results. Garnett's May sales tax was up 24.5 percent over a year ago to $32,525, but the year-ago figures lagged 4.1 percent at $251,214. Kincaid sagged 36.89 percent down to $474 in May, with a loss of 16.4 percent to $5,327 over the year to date. Colony collected its first $68 in city sales tax since voters approved a sales tax measure last fall, which became effective in April of this year.

Franklin County showed a 2.5 percent gain month over month and a 2.2 percent increase year-to-date to $4.3 million. Allen County was up 28.5 percent and 6.7 percent for the year at $2.07 million. Miami County was up 4.6 per-

County: Garnett on its own for chip/seal work

County manpower too stretched repairing rural road damage

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – Commissioners in Garnett won't be expecting any help from Anderson County with chip and seal projects on some city streets this summer, city manager Chris Weiner said last week.

Weiner said that was the message from county commissioners at the recent city/county meeting, due to what is likely hundreds of thousands of dollars and untold man hours that will be required by county road crews to fix rain damaged roads this summer.

"Their workload, the same as ours, is extremely backed up," Weiner said. "They are not going to have the time this year to assist the city with a chip and seal project as was previously planned."

Taking on those chip and seal projects on their own or waiting for possible county help next summer is expected to be on tonight's agenda for discussion with city commissioners. Other items of business on tonight's meeting agenda are:

- a presentation from Tracy Modlin on the Lake Garnett Grand Prix Revival Monument;
- a presentation of the official city flag to Emma Self, Eddie Gruver and Cindy Moyer;
- consideration of transient guest tax fund grants to the Greeley Smokeoff in the amount of $2,000 and to the Lake Garnett Grand Prix Revival for $6,625;
- presentation of an insurance dividend check from Kimberly Robrahn of TrustPoint Insurance;
- consideration of the charter ordinance and associated petition election procedure regarding the expansion of the city commission from three members to five;
- consideration of semi-month-

Bread bakers win honors

MANHATTAN, Kan. - Merry Graham of Newhall, California, and RaChelle Hubsmith of North Logan, Utah, are the grand prize winners in the 2019 National Festival of Breads baking competition, sponsored by Red Star Yeast, King Arthur Flour and the Kansas Wheat Commission.

Judges selected Graham's Blackberry Ginger Speculaas Danish Wreath from among four finalist recipes in the Food Blogger Division and Hubsmith's Chai Ube Rosette Rolls among the four finalists in the Home Baker Division. All eight finalists baked their recipes at the public competition on June 8 in Manhattan. The National Festival of Breads is the America's only amateur bread-baking competition.

This was Graham's third time competing in the National Festival of Breads as a finalist. Competitions like the National Festival of Breads are actually what sparked her interest in food blogging.

Our sins they are many; his mercy is more

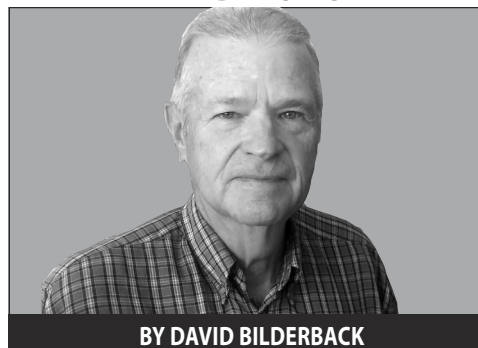

Philippians is one of Paul's prison epistles written in A.D. 60 or 61. In Philippians 3:13-14, the apostle speaks of the goal of reaching heaven and seeing Christ as follows. "But one thing I do: Forgetting what is behind and straining toward what is ahead I press on toward the goal to win the prize for which God has called me heavenward in Christ Jesus."

I believe what Paul is referring to is the life that he lived prior to his conversion experience on the Damascus road. Up to the time of the Damascus road experience Paul had been the chief persecutor of the new Christians. Acts 9:1 states, Saul of Tarsus (later renamed Paul) was breathing out murderous threats against the Lord's disciples." Saul had clung to the Pharisee beliefs and referred to himself as one who persecuted the followers of the way with zeal. Paul had a reputation to live down among the Christians in Philippi as well as other areas. He knew he had to get out from under the burden of the guilt his previous life had created for him for He had been instrumental in the death of Stephen as well. Paul realized he could not let the guilt he carried steal the joy he had in Christ.

The feeling of guilt felt by many people today can create a weakness in the church and in their testimony. Many people feel overwhelmed by guilt and do not feel worthy to ever follow the Christian way. Others testimony is weakened and they are ineffective for the kingdom. Our adversary, Satan, loves to use this tactic to weaken God's plan for the church and his people. Satan's plan is to plant a seed of doubt in our minds as to our worthiness to receive Christ. He tries to convince us that we are not worthy of the kingdom because we cannot even forgive our selves. This is not a Biblical requirement to receive salvation. God clearly states in Isa. 1:18, "Though your sins are like scarlet they shall be white as snow." In Psalm 103:12 Psalmist says, "As far as the east is from the west, so far has he (God) removed our sins from us." And in Heb. 8:12, "For I will forgive their wickedness and remember their sins no more."

If we analyze Paul's comment, "Forgetting what is behind." I believe it would be safe to say what he had mastered was not totally forgetting his previous sins but he would not allow them to weaken his witness for Christ. Paul was not going to hold himself to a higher standard than God required. God's forgiveness is all that is required for salvation not our own. I have found great comfort in the following statement. Our sins they are many his mercy is more.

Ministry on the Holiness of God.

'Why me?' Sermon topic at Colony Christian

Howard Reiter gave the Communion Meditation on "Why Me?" Usually when someone says "Why me?", they're saying poor me. Why do all these things happen to me? Instead, we should say "Why Me?" Why do all of these blessings come to me? I'm not any more worthy than anyone else. Why should I receive all of this? Luke 17:11-19 reminds all to thank Gof for all he has done. Pastor Chase Riebel gave the sermon on "Citizens of Heaven". Philippians 11:27-30 explains that we are citizens of Heaven. Everything that happened to Paul was so he could preach the Gospel of Christ. We need to see the need for Jesus in our lives, and in the lives of others. We need to conduct ourselves in a manner worthy of the Good News about Christ. We need to stand together as a team against the enemy, Satan. He'll seek out our weaknesses so we must band together. We are always stronger together. 1 Peter 5:8-9 reminds us to Stay Alert! Stand Firm! Be strong in your faith! (Ref: Ephesians 6:12, Luke 9:48, Philippians 1:29 & 3:20) Hear this sermon in it's entirety at <http://www.colony-christianchurch.org>.

Trump: Warriors of D-Day fought sinister enemy

Delivered June 6, 2019, at Normandy American Cemetery, Normandy, France, near Omaha Beach, on the commemoration of the 75th anniversary of the D-Day Invasion.

President Macron, Mrs. Macron, and the people of France; to the First Lady of the United States and members of the United States Congress; to distinguished guests, veterans, and my fellow Americans:

We are gathered here on Freedom's Altar. On these shores, on these bluffs, on this day 75 years ago, 10,000 men shed their blood, and thousands sacrificed their lives, for their brothers, for their countries, and for the survival of liberty.

Today, we remember those who fell, and we honor all who fought right here in Normandy. They won back this ground for civilization.

To more than 170 veterans of the Second World War who join us today: You are among the very greatest Americans who will ever live. You're the pride of our nation. You are the glory of our republic. And we thank you from the bottom of our hearts.

Here with you are over 60 veterans who landed on D-Day. Our debt to you is everlasting. Today, we express our undying gratitude.

The enemy who had occupied these heights saw the largest naval armada in the history of the world.

When you were young, these men enlisted their lives in a Great Crusade — one of the greatest of all times. Their mission is the story of an epic battle and the ferocious, eternal struggle between good and evil.

On the 6th of June, 1944, they joined a liberation force of awesome power and breathtaking scale. After months of planning, the Allies had chosen this ancient coastline to mount their campaign to vanquish the wicked tyranny of the Nazi empire from the face of the Earth.

The battle began in the skies above us. In those first tense midnight hours, 1,000 aircraft roared overhead with 17,000 Allied airborne troops preparing to leap into the darkness beyond these trees.

Then came dawn. The enemy who had occupied these heights saw the largest naval armada in the history of the world. Just a few miles offshore were 7,000 vessels bearing 130,000 warriors. They were the citizens of free and independent nations, united by their duty to their compatriots and to millions yet unborn.

There were the British, whose nobility and fortitude saw them through the worst of Dunkirk and the London Blitz. The full violence of Nazi fury was no match for the full grandeur of British pride. Thank you.

There were the Canadians, whose robust sense of honor and loyalty compelled them to take up arms alongside Britain from the very, very beginning.

There were the fighting Poles, the tough Norwegians, and the intrepid Aussies. There were the gallant French commandos, soon to be met by thousands of their brave countrymen ready to write a new chapter in the long history of French valor.

And, finally, there were the Americans. They came from the farms of a vast heartland, the streets of glowing cities, and the forges of mighty industrial towns. Before the war, many had never ventured beyond their own community. Now they had come to offer their lives half a world from home.

This beach, codenamed Omaha, was defended by the Nazis with monstrous firepower, thousands and thousands of mines and spikes driven into the sand, so deeply. It was here that tens of thousands of the Americans came.

The GIs who boarded the landing craft that morning knew that they carried on their shoulders not just the pack of a soldier, but the fate of the world. Colonel George Taylor, whose 16th

Infantry Regiment would join in the first wave, was asked: What would happen if the Germans stopped right then and there, cold on the beach — just stopped them? What would happen? This great American replied: "Why, the 18th Infantry is coming in right behind us. The 26th Infantry will come on too. Then there is the 2nd Infantry Division already afloat. And the 9th Division. And the 2nd Armored. And the 3rd Armored. And all the rest. Maybe the 16th won't make it, but someone will."

One of those men in Taylor's 16th Regiment was Army medic Ray Lambert. Ray was only 23, but he had already earned three Purple Hearts and two Silver Stars fighting in North Africa and Sicily, where he and his brother Bill, no longer with us, served side by side.

In the early morning hours, the two brothers stood together on the deck of the USS Henrico, before boarding two separate Higgins landing craft. "If I don't make it," Bill said, "please, please take care of my family." Ray asked his brother to do the same.

Of the 31 men on Ray's landing craft, only Ray and 6 others made it to the beach. There were only a few of them left. They came to the sector right here below us. "Easy Red" it was called. Again and again, Ray ran back into the water. He dragged out one man after another. He was shot through the arm. His leg was ripped open by shrapnel. His back was broken. He nearly drowned.

He had been on the beach for hours, bleeding and saving lives, when he finally lost consciousness. He woke up the next day on a cot beside another badly wounded soldier. He looked over and saw his brother Bill. They made it. They made it. They made it.

At 98 years old, Ray is here with us today, with his fourth Purple Heart and his third Silver Star from Omaha. Ray, the free world salutes you. Thank you, Ray.

Nearly two hours in, unrelenting fire from these bluffs kept the Americans pinned down on the sand now red with our heroes' blood. Then, just a few hundred yards from where I'm standing, a breakthrough came. The battle turned, and with it, history.

Down on the beach, Captain Joe Dawson, the son of a Texas preacher, led Company G through a minefield to a natural fold in the hillside, still here. Just beyond this path to my right, Captain Dawson snuck beneath an enemy machine gun perch and tossed his grenades. Soon, American troops were charging up "Dawson's Draw." What a job he did. What bravery he showed.

Lieutenant Spalding and the men from Company E moved on to crush the enemy strongpoint on the far side of this cemetery, and stop the slaughter on the beach below. Countless more Americans poured out across this ground all over the countryside. They joined fellow American warriors from Utah beach, and Allies from Juno, Sword, and Gold, along with the airborne and the French patriots.

Private First Class Russell Pickett, of the 29th Division's famed 116th Infantry Regiment, had been wounded in the first wave that landed on Omaha Beach. At a hospital in England, Private Pickett vowed to return to battle. "I'm going to return," he said. "I'm going to return."

Six days after D-Day, he rejoined his company. Two thirds had been killed already; many had been wounded, within 15 minutes of the invasion. They'd lost 19 just from small town of Bedford, Virginia, alone. Before long, a grenade left Private Pickett again gravely wounded. So badly wounded. Again, he chose to return. He didn't care; he had to be here.

He was then wounded a third time, and laid unconscious for 12 days. They thought he was gone. They thought he had no chance. Russell Pickett is the last known survivor of the legendary Company A. And, today, believe it or not, he has returned once more to these shores to be with his comrades. Private Pickett, you honor us all with your presence. Tough guy.

By the fourth week of August, Paris was liberated. Some who landed here pushed all the way to the center of Germany. Some threw open the gates of Nazi concentration camps to liberate Jews who had suffered the bottomless horrors of the Holocaust. And some warriors fell on other fields of battle, returning to rest on this soil for eternity.

Before this place was consecrated to history, the land was owned by a French farmer, a member of the French resistance. These were great people. These were strong and tough people. His terrified wife waited out D-Day in a nearby house, holding tight to their little baby girl. The next day, a soldier appeared. "I'm an American," he said. "I'm here to help." The French woman was overcome with emotion and cried. Days later, she laid flowers on fresh American graves.

Today, her granddaughter, Stefanie, serves as a guide at this cemetery. This week, Stefanie led 92-year-old Marian Wynn of California to see the grave of her brother Don for the very first time.

Marian and Stefanie are both with us today. And we thank you for keeping alive the memories of our precious heroes. Thank you.

9,388 young Americans rest beneath the white crosses and Stars of David arrayed on these beautiful grounds. Each one has been adopted by a French family that thinks of him as their own. They come from all over France to look after our boys. They kneel. They cry. They pray. They place flowers. And they never forget. Today, America embraces the French people and thanks you for honoring our beloved dead. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you.

To all of our friends and partners: Our cherished alliance was forged in the heat of battle, tested in the trials of war, and proven in the blessings of peace. Our bond is unbreakable.

From across the Earth, Americans are drawn to this place as though it were a part of our very soul. We come not only because of what they did here. We come because of who they were. They were young men with their entire lives before them. They were husbands who said goodbye to their young brides and took their duty as their fate. They were fathers who would never meet their infant sons and daughters because they had a job to do. And with God as their witness, they were going to get it done. They came wave after wave, without question, without hesitation, and without complaint.

More powerful than the strength of American arms was the strength of American hearts. These men ran through the fires of hell moved by a force no weapon could destroy: the fierce patriotism of a free, proud, and sovereign people. They battled not for control and domination, but for liberty, democracy, and self-rule.

They pressed on for love in home and country — the Main Streets, the schoolyards, the churches and neighbors, the families and communities that gave us men such as these.

They were sustained by the confidence that America can do anything because we are a noble nation, with a virtuous people, praying to a righteous God.

The exceptional might came from a truly exceptional spirit. The abundance of courage came from an abundance of faith. The great deeds of an Army came from the great depths of their love.

As they confronted their fate, the Americans and the Allies placed themselves into the palm of God's hand.

The men behind me will tell you that they are just the lucky ones. As one of them recently put it, "All the heroes are buried here." But we know what these men did. We knew how brave they were. They came here and saved freedom, and then, they went home and showed us all what freedom is all about.

The American sons and daughters who saw us to victory were no less extraordinary in peace. They built families. They built industries. They built a national culture that inspired the entire world. In the decades that followed, America defeated communism, secured civil rights, revolutionized science, launched a man to the moon, and then kept on pushing to new frontiers. And, today, America is stronger than ever before.

Seven decades ago, the warriors of D-Day fought a sinister enemy who spoke of a thousand-year empire. In defeating that evil, they left a legacy that will last not only for a thousand years, but for all time — for as long as the soul knows of duty and honor; for as long as freedom keeps its hold on the human heart.

To the men who sit behind me, and to the boys who rest in the field before me, your example will never, ever grow old. Your legend will never tire. Your spirit — brave, unyielding, and true — will never die.

The blood that they spilled, the tears that they shed, the lives that they gave, the sacrifice that they made, did not just win a battle. It did not just win a war. Those who fought here won a future for our nation. They won the survival of our civilization. And they showed us the way to love, cherish, and defend our way of life for many centuries to come.

Today, as we stand together upon this sacred Earth, we pledge that our nations will forever be strong and united. We will forever be together. Our people will forever be bold. Our hearts will forever be loyal. And our children, and their children, will forever and always be free.

May God bless our great veterans. May God bless our Allies. May God bless the heroes of D-Day. And may God bless America. Thank you. Thank you very much.

Is it journalism, or good ole' retaliation?

Breaking news: Some guy posted a doctored video of Nancy Pelosi.

But fear not. The website The Daily Beast sprang into action. It tracked down the random, Trump-supporting man who allegedly posted the offending clip, hounded him until he talked, then published his name and other details about his life in a shocking instance of harassment masquerading as journalism.

The man whose identity was revealed by The Daily Beast is, by the publication's account, an unemployed African American forklift operator who lives in New York City and runs a couple of very minor Facebook pages. He had done it anonymously, one assumes, to avoid any professional and personal fallout, which The Daily Beast has now exposed him to.

The video in question, doctored to make it sound like Pelosi was drunk when talking about Donald Trump at a progressive conference, dominated a news cycle a couple of weeks ago. In other words, it was a big deal for about six hours, and then disappeared like most everything else in our disposable news culture.

The video was certainly a testament to the debased quality of online discourse, but it was also quickly identified as a fake, because it was pretty obviously a fake.

None of this justifies outing the man supposedly responsible for it. In a better world, anonymous political commentators could be identified without fear of social media mobs attempting to ruin their lives. As has been demonstrated time and again, this is not the world we live in.

Widely criticized for its decision to name the man -- or in online parlance, "dox" him -- The Daily Beast defended its story as a way to show "that disinformation isn't the purview of Russia alone." But who ever believed this? Even if it's relevant that someone in the Bronx rather than St. Petersburg produced the video, that didn't require naming the man -- let alone detailing his employment history, talking to his ex-girlfriend or delving into his guilty plea to a domestic violence charge and an outstanding warrant for his arrest on a probation violation. (The man denies many of the details of the story.)

All of this was completely gratuitous. The balance, which any responsible publication should have considered, between the public benefit of naming the man (none) and the personal harm that might be done by naming him (considerable) isn't even close.

Of course, it matters that he is a Trump supporter. Outlets like The Daily Beast don't make a routine practice of hunting down trolls who are producing the vast sea of anti-Trump material online, because they don't consider spoofing or maligning Trump to be a threat to democracy, or at all undesirable.

Incredibly enough, according to The Daily Beast, someone at Facebook provided details about the man's posting history that were used to confirm the story. Users of Facebook should take note.

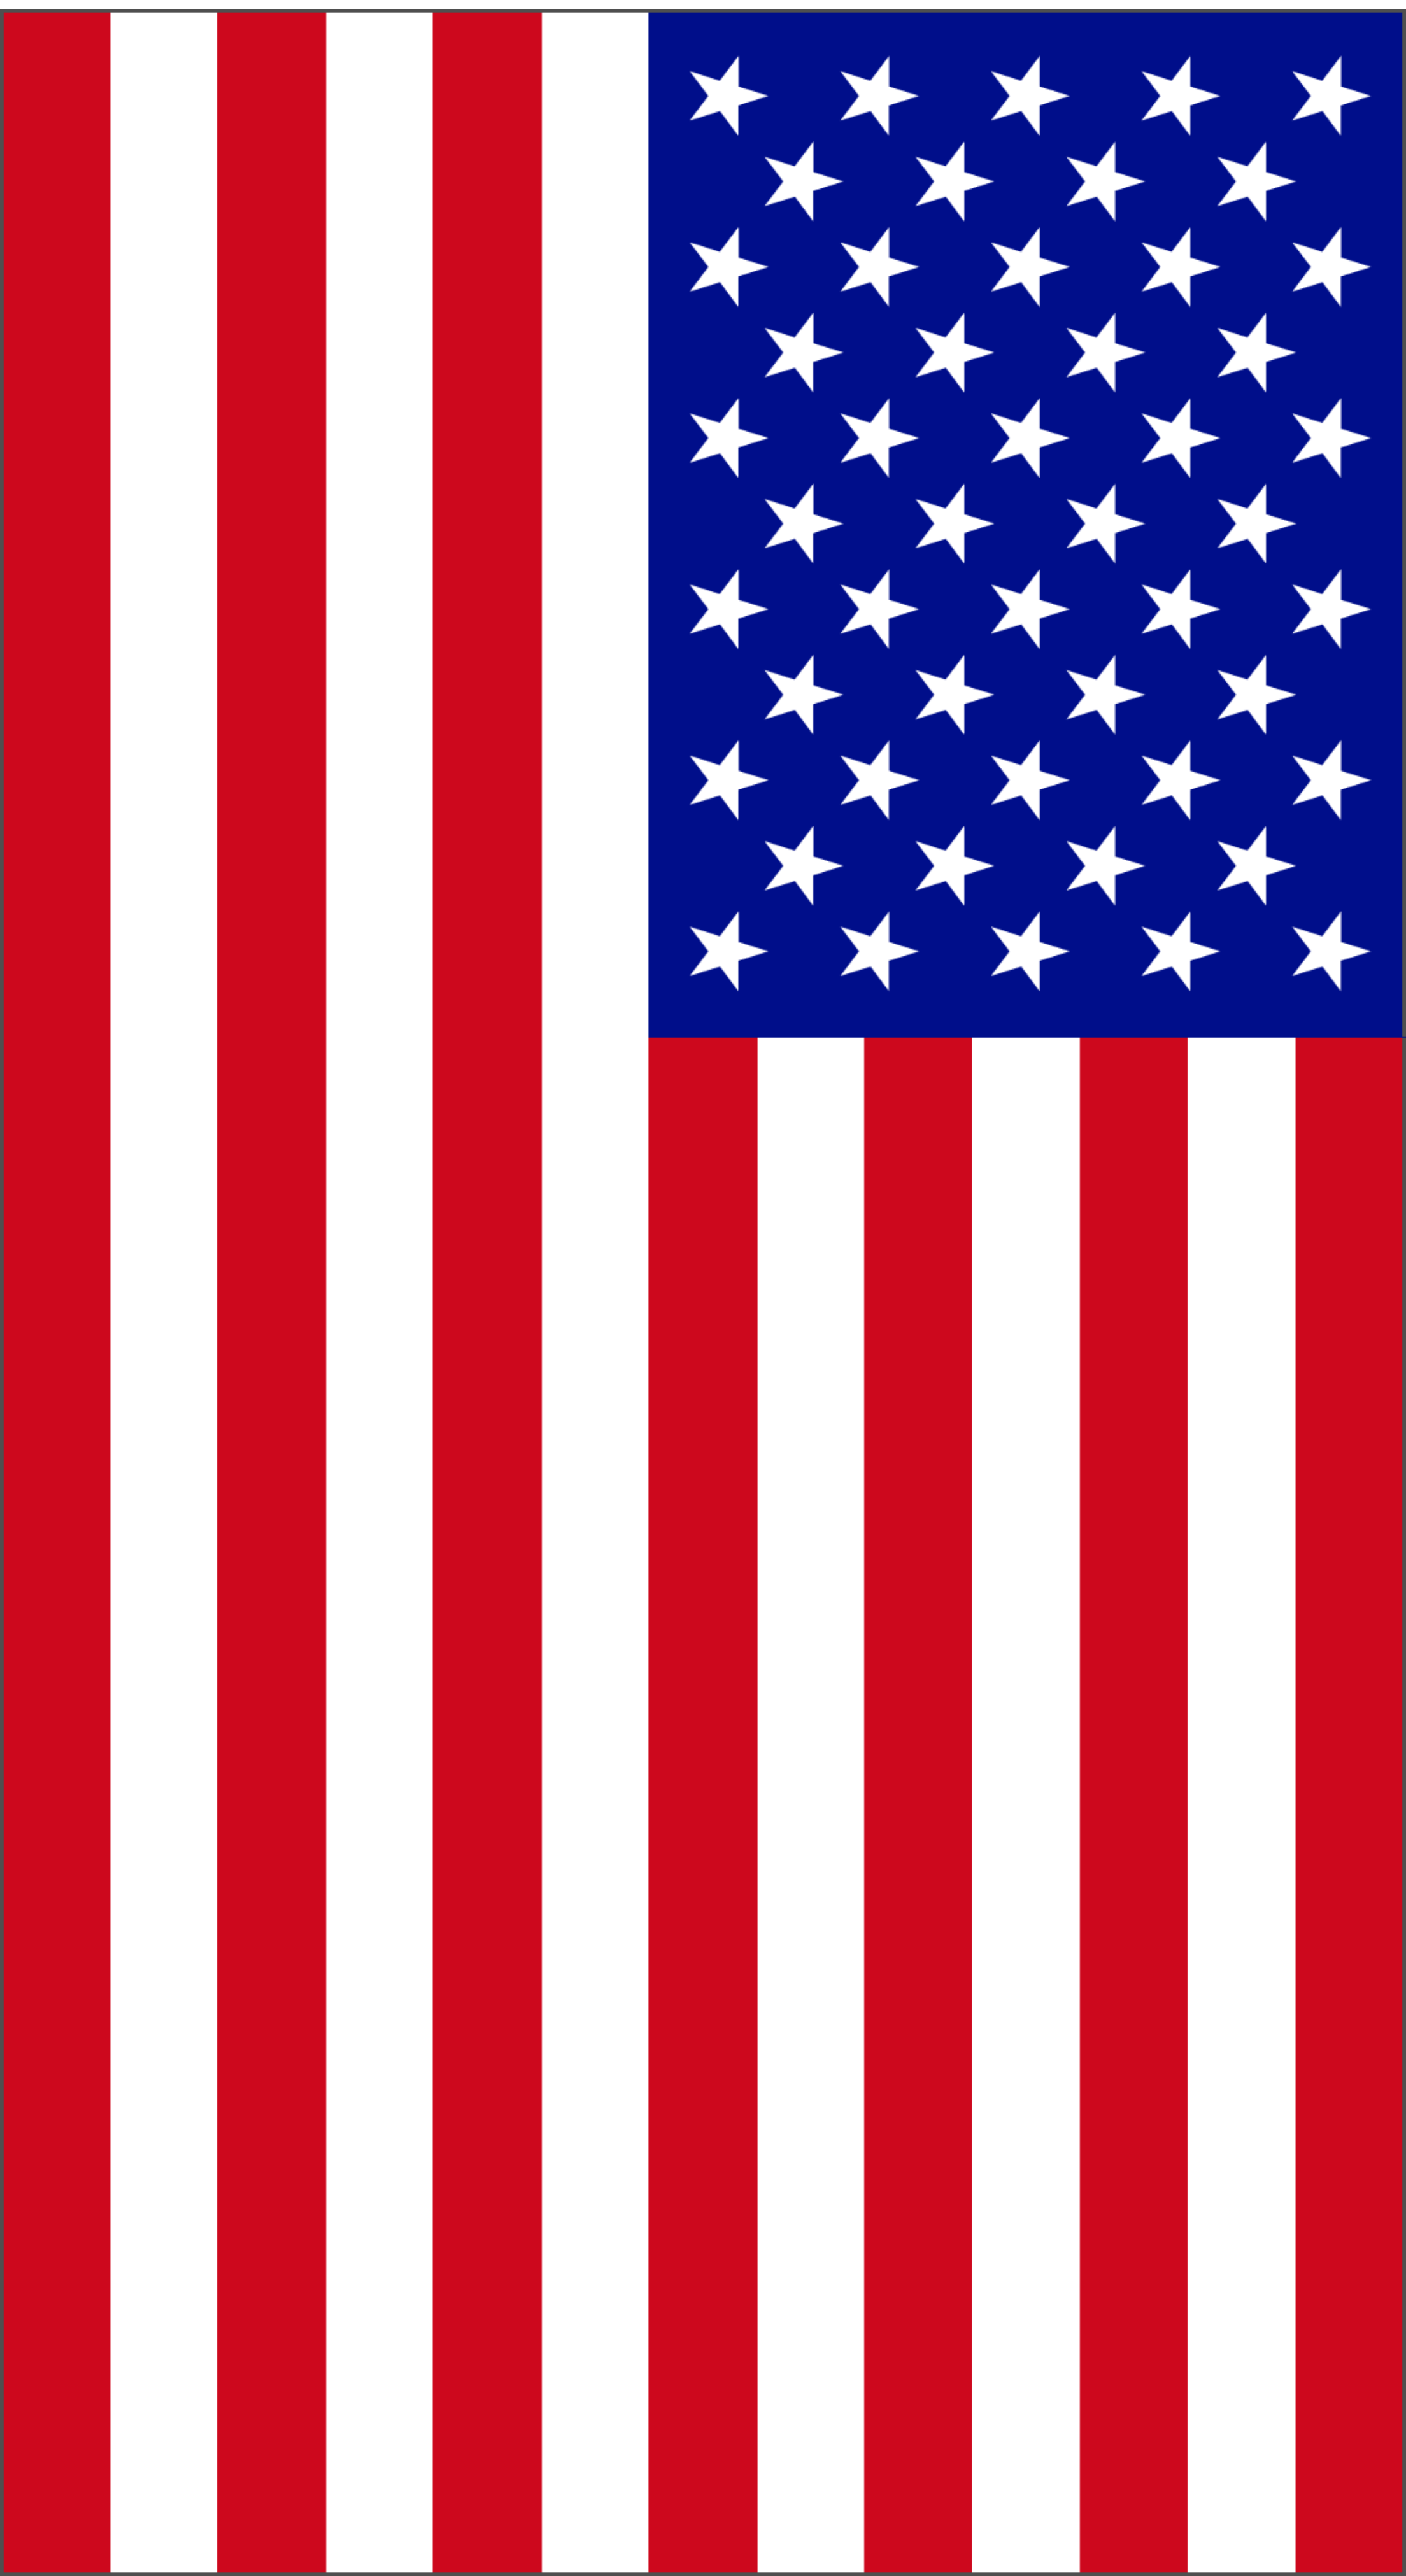

Although reporters might believe that rank abuse of America's high elected officials is something new, it's as old as the republic. And it's often been anonymous. By all means, call out online distortions and lies, but deliberately exposing low-level political advocates to personal destruction is shabby and irresponsible, and more an act of political retaliation than journalism.

Local Garnett team returns from "Destination Bootcamp" with new tools to change business, attract new customers

Julie Turnipseed, Director of Anderson County Development Agency, returned on April 11, 2019 from a Colorado-based business improvement "Destination Business BootCamp", with six Anderson County Business owners. These business owners along with Turnipseed were among a group of business owners from across North America who attended the two and one-half day, 20-hour workshop.

NetWork Kansas in partnership with the Anderson County Development Agency made this trip possible through an E-Community Grant.

Anderson County attendees included Val Katzer Foltz owner of Monroe 816, Jody Troyer owner of Troyer's Prairie Gold Event Center, Erin Miller owner of Garnett Flowers and Gifts, Mary Kunard owner of Country Fabrics, John Bauman owner of Bauman's Cedar Valley Farms and Bob Strange owner of Burnt Offerings BBQ.

The two and one-half day "Destination BootCamp", created by marketing consultant Jon Schallert teaches independent business owners on how to reposition their businesses as "consumer destinations". According to Schallert, a business using his "Destination Business" strategies can compete effectively with larger brick and mortar competitors, along with online giants like Amazon. According to Schallert, it is not uncommon for destination businesses to create change in an entire city, by drawing consumers from miles around, from outside the immediate marketplace of a community.

"With the principles we learned at the BootCamp, these businesses will be able to satisfy more of our customers' needs and make purchasing a much more enjoyable, fun experience. Additionally, we will be attracting more visitors and tourists from outside Garnett", said Julie Turnipseed. "With what they have learned there's no reason we can't attract customers and tourists from hundreds of miles away."

Schallert's Destination Business BootCamp is held in Colorado seven times annually. Schallert has worked with independent business owners since 1983, speaks to thousands every year, and is the President of The Schallert Group, Inc., Longmont, Colorado. One newspaper called Schallert "the marketing guru rooting for the retail underdogs". Area business owners interested in attending an upcoming Destination Business BootCamp may contact Julie Turnipseed at 785-448-5496 for more information, or visit Schallert's website at www.DestinationBootCamp.com.

Kelly's rural Listening Tour coming to Garnett

Governor Laura Kelly and Lieutenant Governor Lynn Rogers announced at a press conference last week details on the upcoming Office of Rural Prosperity Listening Tour.

The tour is intended to foster new ways to help rural Kansas communities by hearing from the residents themselves.

"Rural Kansas has been overlooked and unheard for far too long," Governor Kelly said. "Our small towns have been neglected. Today we're taking an important step toward changing this serious problem."

This upcoming series of events serves as the first phase of the new Office of Rural Prosperity, which has been approved for a $2 million allocation in the newly approved FY 2020 budget. Each location will partner with local hosts in order to set up locations and events.

The Office of Rural Prosperity is dedicated to improving life in rural Kansas. The office is guided by the blueprint created by Governor Kelly, Lt. Governor Rogers and Secretary of Commerce David Toland, which includes:

- Developing rural housing
- Revitalizing Main Street corridors
- Investing in rural infrastructure
- Supporting rural hospitals and medical professional recruitment
- Making state government work for rural Kansas
- Incentivizing active tourism

The tour is intended to travel to the following towns across the state beginning in Nickerson on June 17th and ending in Winfield on August 8th.

It is scheduled to make a stop in Garnett on July 22nd.

The tour will cover a wide area of the state in order to learn specific challenges and opportunities for the many different rural communities across Kansas.

"The governor and I recognize the needs of our rural communities are unique, and there is no one-size-fits-all approach," Lt. Governor Rogers said. "We must look at a variety of multifaceted policies and programs that will empower local leaders by helping them access the resources they need. In other words, we must help Kansas communities and local leaders carve out their own route to prosperity."

More information is available at <http://www.ruralkansasprosperity.com>.

You can follow along with the tour with the Lt. Governor on Twitter @LtGovRogers and use the hashtag #LynnListens.

"I'm excited to begin this tour and have meaningful conversations about rural Kansas," Lt. Governor Rogers said. "It's time for elected leaders to be sincere about listening to people in rural communities who've been overlooked and taken for granted far too long. We can and will do better."

Gene Raymond to be inducted into Limousin Foundation Hall of Fame

The North American Limousin Foundation is proud to induct its 7th member into the North American Limousin Foundation Hall of Fame. The Hall of Fame Committee has approved the induction of Gene Raymond, GV Limousin, into the Limousin Hall of Fame. We are planning on having induction ceremonies take place at the Limousin Junior Nationals this summer to be held in Springfield, Mo.

The Hall of Fame Committee is asking for donations to induct Mr. Raymond that will finance his portrait on display at the NALF headquarters in Denver, Colo. and for the family, in addition to funds that will go to NALJA youth scholarships in Gene's name for future generations.

Gene and his wife Virginia began GV Limousin in 1978. They had built their cow herd to over 400 registered females and currently operate GV Limousin with Arne and Stacy Hanson. Gene was a pioneer in the Limousin Breed and was quick to adapt to new technology and opportunities in the seedstock business and quickly applied those tools in mission to raise high quality seedstock supplying commercial cattlemen across the United States. Gene was also devoted to Graham School and had been an instructor since 1973.

Mr. Raymond was a Past President of NALF, 1986-1987. Gene was also serving on the NALF Board of Directors last year and had served on the NALF board during the 80's, devoting much of his life to the Limousin breed. Prior to his passing, Gene chaired the Breed Improvement Committee for NALF membership, a position he was wholly devoted to with the advent and release of BOLT EPDs and the application of new technologies in today's seedstock business. GV

Raymond

Limousin was an active member of NALF who also had their herd enrolled in NALF's whole herd reporting system, "LIMS," and was a strong believer in performance data reporting and genomic testing to enhance accuracy of their EPDs.

Gene had served twice as the president of the Kansas Beef Council and also served previously, as a member of the Kansas Livestock Association Executive Committee. Gene also served on the National Livestock and Meat Board for 16 years. Gene was actively engaged and gave back much of his life to friends in the U.S. cattle industry.

Donations and letters of support can be sent directly to the NALF office at 6205 South Main Street, Suite D-280, Aurora, CO 80016-5370. Checks can be made payable to NALF HOF account. Thank you for your support for the induction of Mr. Raymond into the North American Limousin Hall of Fame.

Perdue outlines assistance to farmers after tariffs, disaster impacts

WASHINGTON, D.C. - U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Sonny Perdue issued the following statement on disaster and trade-related assistance:

"Whether it's because of natural disasters or unfair retaliatory tariffs, farmers across the country are facing significant challenges and tough decisions on their farms and ranches. Last month, immediately upon China reneging on commitments made during the trade talks, President Trump committed USDA to provide up to $16 billion to support farmers as they absorb some of the negative impact of unjustified retaliation and trade disruption. In addition, President Trump immediately signed into law the long-awaited disaster legislation that provides a lifeline to farmers, ranchers, and producers dealing with extensive damage to their operations caused by natural disasters in 2018 and 2019.

"Given the size and scope of these many disasters, as well as the uncertainty of the final size and scope of this year's prevented planting acreage, we will use up to $16 billion in support for farmers and the $3 billion in disaster aid to provide as much help as possible to all our affected producers.

"I have been out in the country this spring and visited with many farmers. I know they're discouraged, and many are facing difficult decisions about what to do this planting season or if they've got the capital to stay in business, but they shouldn't wait for an announcement to make their decisions. I urge farmers to plant for the market and plant what works best on their farm, regardless of what type of assistance programs USDA is able to provide.

"In the coming weeks, USDA will provide information on the Market Facilitation Program payment rates and details of the various components of the disaster relief legislation. USDA is not legally authorized to make Market Facilitation Program payments to producers for acreage that is not planted. However, we are exploring legal flexibilities to provide a minimal per acre market facilitation payment to folks who filed prevent plant and chose to plant an MFP-eligible cover crop, with the potential to be harvested and for subsequent use of those cover crops for forage."

Garnett State Savings Bank will soon hold approximately $110 million in assets after a merger with Citizens Bank in Ottawa takes place later this summer. Garnett State Savings Bank, established in 1899, currently boasts $85 million in assets with two locations in Garnett and one in Colony. The merger, scheduled to be effective July 15 according to GSSB President Loran Wilson, will merge Citizens Bank in Ottawa and Pomona for combined assets of $100 million and a capital of approximately $111,500,000.

More turnover in the Anderson County Sheriff's Department has given rise to new concerns about staffing of personnel in the county's law enforcement arena. County sheriff Dave Vaughan told county commissioners the department was seeking to replace a 17-year law enforcement veteran who was leaving the department for better pay and better hours in another occupation. Turnover in the sheriff's department has been an ongoing problem for several years. Vaughan said in an interview earlier this year that a more robust regional economy had made it harder to find and retain deputies due to the fact that other jobs with better pay and more regular hours were increasingly available in the local area.

Continued movement toward a final proposal for facilities in the district occurred at the Board Meeting for USD 365 when the board approved hiring an architectural firm and a bond council firm. The board voted to have the firm do an in depth plan for a new elementary school. However, under their statements, this is in no way a signal of direction from the board concerning possible facility construction. To go along with this, the board approved having the firm design the remodeling plans for the high school.

The effect of the assured peace upon the world will be to hasten the return to normal conditions, says Henry Clews. Many restrictions upon foreign trade will soon disappear. Great international enterprises which have long been suspended will soon be put into operation, and as a result of the war, we may look for a wide-spread expansion of commerce and industry. The world's shipping will be more free for commercial purposes. Gradually, but surely, traffic will grow and industry revive. Peace will be the first step towards reducing the cost of living because millions of men will turn from idleness to productive industry.

Seekers Not Slackers 4-H club met in April and May

Seekers Not Slackers 4-H club had their April and May monthly meetings at the Lone Elm Community Building April 15th and May 21st.

During the April meeting, it was decided that the club would help with the Cart Caravan at the Prairie Spirit Trail. We will also be providing snacks for the riders. The club also heard about the uses of farm animals from Zane Hermreck and listened to Hank Newton play the saxophone for the program.

The May meeting included a Hawaiian themed night! The club members dressed up in Hawaiian themed clothing, sang a song about the sun and played a flamingo ring toss for recreation. The program consisted of Tyler Gillespie giving a talk about a show checklist. It was helpful for all of those who show livestock!

The club is busy getting ready for the fair and enjoying the summer working on their projects!

The Bud White Memorial Scholarship was established in honor of Bud White a long-standing member of the Garnett Optimist Club. Bud was instrumental in overseeing many of the projects conducted by the club for Anderson County youth programs. Bud helped organize and manage the Optimist Club's beef raffle in conjunction with the Anderson County Fair to help raise funds for the scholarship fund. After Bud's death the beef raffle was renamed, and the raffle proceeds will be used to help fund the $500 scholarship in addition to the other scholarships that the Optimist Club issues each year. Students awarded this scholarship are representative of the citizenship traits that Bud White exhibited throughout his years of work and dedication with the Garnett Optimist Club

KDADS asks Medicare, Medicaid to extend I/DD waiver

TOPEKA - The Kansas Department for Aging and Disability Services (KDADS) is submitting a request to the federal Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) to extend its current Intellectual/Developmental Disability (I/DD) waiver, set to renew July 1, 2019, in order to allow additional time for discussions with stakeholders.

It is anticipated the Frail Elderly (FE) and Physical Disability (PD) waivers, scheduled to renew January 1, 2020, will require further engagement with stakeholders to address concerns and a similar request to extend these programs will be submitted to CMS.

Requesting an extension from CMS will allow the waivers to stand as written and approved today while the agency works with stakeholders to ensure the waiver renewal submissions support choice and community inclusion.

"KDADS's decision will provide an opportunity to re-engage stakeholders, consumers and families as concerns continue to be raised," said Amy Penrod, Commissioner of the Aging & Disability Community Services & Programs. "We want to continue the initial conversations we've had and take the time to thoroughly evaluate every opportunity to incorporate changes that are best for Kansas."

Kansas has always been at the forefront of home and community-based services and supports. Since taking over leadership of the agency less than six months ago, Secretary Laura Howard has laid out a strategic vision that includes enhanced collaboration to ensure the state continues to be innovative in the way it addresses the health care needs of Kansans.

"Requesting additional time to collaborate with partners and incorporate the wisdom and contributions others bring to the table will ensure Kansas uses these waiver renewals to continue its long-standing leadership in home and community-based services," said Secretary Howard. "Taking a step back provides an opportunity to approach these waivers with a new perspective of putting people first, incorporating innovations and supporting self-determination and community inclusion."

Rocky Nichols, Executive Director of the Disability Rights Center of Kansas, and Mike Burgess, Director of Policy & Outreach, said in a joint statement, "We very much appreciate the decision by KDADS to delay implementation of these waivers and instead reengage with stakeholders to make positive changes. Kansas self-advocates with disabilities, families and service providers expressed concerns about the current versions of the waivers and KDADS listened. They are to be commended for their prudent action to slow this process down to get this right and we look forward to working to improve these waiver submissions."

These actions do not impact the Brain Injury (BI) waiver, which is set to include the expanded populations of adult and youth with acquired brain injuries.

In 2014, CMS published final regulations affecting 1915(c) waiver programs. The purpose of the regulations was to ensure individuals receive HCBS in settings that are integrated in and support full access to the greater community. The regulations also aimed to ensure that individuals have a free choice of where they live and who provides services to them, and that individual rights and freedoms are not restricted. CMS has moved away from defining HCBS settings based on specific locations, geography, or physical characteristics, to defining them by the nature and quality of the individual's experiences. Fundamentally, the regulations set higher standards for HCBS settings in which it is permissible for states to pay for services using federal financial participation under Medicaid, known in Kansas as KanCare.

HEAT...

"Heatstroke can happen anytime, anywhere. We don't want to see this happen to any family. That's why Safe Kids is asking everyone to help protect kids from this very preventable tragedy by never leaving a child alone in a car, not even for a minute."

Together, we can cut down the number of deaths and near misses by remembering to ACT.

A: Avoid heatstroke-related injury and death by never leaving a child alone in a car, not even for a minute. And make sure to keep your car locked when you're not inside so kids don't get in on their own.

C: Create reminders. Keep a stuffed animal or other memento in your child's car seat when it's empty, and move it to the front seat as a visual reminder when your child is in the back seat. Or place and secure your phone, briefcase, or purse in the back seat when traveling with your child.

T: Take action. If you see a child alone in a car, call 911. Emergency personnel want you to call. They are trained to respond to these situations. One call could save a life. For more information on preventing child heatstroke deaths, please visit www.safekids.org/heatstroke.

Kelly asks feds for disaster funds for Anderson, other counties

TOPEKA - Governor Laura Kelly sent a request today to President Donald Trump asking for a major presidential declaration for the public assistance program for 63 counties in Kansas as a result of widespread, record rainfall and severe weather causing flooding, flash flooding and tornadoes beginning April 28. The Public Assistance program helps pay for restoration of public infrastructure and associated costs caused by flooding and tornado damage.

"Due to the historic torrential rains, thunderstorms, tornadoes and damaging winds, Kansas has suffered extended damage," Kelly said. "We must continue to provide Kansans with the assistance, resources, and long-term fixes to infrastructure we need during this difficult time."

Counties listed in the request are: Allen, Anderson, Atchison, Barber, Barton, Bourbon, Butler, Chase, Chautauqua, Cherokee, Clark, Clay, Cloud, Coffey, Comanche, Cowley, Crawford, Dickinson, Doniphan, Douglas, Edwards, Elk, Ellsworth, Ford, Franklin, Geary, Gray, Greenwood, Harper, Harvey, Hodgeman, Jefferson, Kingman and others.
