City shuns legal counsel, sets mail ballot vote

Huss, Gwin press ahead with ordinances to expand commission

BY WILL MECHNIG THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — City commissioners Brigitte Brecheisen-Huss and Greg Gwin pushed ahead last week with a mail ballot vote on a charter ordinance to expand the commission from three to five members, over the protests of their colleague and warnings from legal counsel the election won't conform to the Kansas Constitution.

County clerk Julie Heck said last week the ballots will be mailed July 25 with a noon August 14 deadline.

The 2-1 vote once again placed commissioner Jody Cole opposed to her fellow commissioners. Cole, who opposed the 3-to-5 move from the beginning since an advisory vote approved it last fall and who organized a successful petition initiative that forced it to the city ballot, said the costs and risks were too high.

Cole told commissioners and staff she could not in good conscience vote for a change that would add $11,000 annually for new commissioner salaries, $7,600 dollars for a mail ballot election, and the possibility of incurring litigation costs if the city is sued for staging an improper election.

"There are so many other places our city could put that $20,000," Cole said.

The votes followed an extensive and tense debate between Huss and Solander over the pertinent wording of the Kansas Constitution with regard to the conduct of mail ballot elections — specifically whether the law called for a mail ballot or walk in election — and over questionable input and a voice mail message received by Huss from staff at the Kansas Secretary of State's office.

Last month, Solander sent a memorandum to Commissioners detailing the portion of the constitution dealing with charter ordinance petition elections.

"Article 5, Section 12 of the Kansas Constitution," Solander said, "provides in pertinent part '... and the election shall be conducted as elections for officers and by the officers handling such elections.'"

At the May 28th Commission meeting, Solander added that he "believe[d] the plain meaning of this require the referendum election to be held under Kansas Law for the election (of) a candidate; a person." Solander had also drafted a plan to place the question on the regular ballot in 2020, with new Commissioners taking their seats in January of 2021. Solander said he would draft the ordinances as the commission directed if they desired a mail ballot election, but that it would be contrary to his legal advice.

City commission meetings have been consumed with discussion over the issue of expanding the Commission since last year's non-binding, advisory election. Those in favor won the election by 57 votes, but the outcome prompted Huss and Gwin to move forward with that majority and pass a charter ordinance expanding the size of the commission at an estimated expense of $11,000 per year. Cole mounted a successful petition initiative to have the measure placed on the ballot as a binding vote, but due to election deadlines the vote could not be executed this coming November 2019. A new ordinance moving the change back to 2020 was drafted and voted through by Huss and Gwin, with the election vote proscribed as well.

At the heart of the debate between Solander and Huss was whether or not a mail-ballot election can legally be used for an election on a charter ordinance that was not prompted by a petition. Solander maintained only a traditional election is compatible with provisions in the Kansas Constitution; Huss sees nothing in the way of a mail ballot election.

Huss referenced the same language Solander cited in his memo but then went on to highlight additional language in the Kansas Constitution.

"If one continues to read," Huss said, "(Article 5, Section 12) c.3, it goes on to say 'the gov-

GAPP projects for need begin next week

Christian youth from around the country to arrive for workweek

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Some 200 Christian-affiliated teen youth group workers will descend on Anderson County next week to begin a week filled with painting, spruce-up and small project construction for the elderly and needy in the local area.

It's the third installment of the Garnett Area Paint Project, an effort undertaken by local community activist Scott Rogers and First Christian Church Pastor Chris Goetz and staffed by youth workers organized through Group Mission Trips in Fort Collins, Colo.

Rogers said the workers were expected to take on 35 area projects, with a group assigned to each project all week. Staff arrives in the local area this weekend, and campers will be housed at Anderson County Junior-Senior High School next week.

Each camper will contribute 30 hours of labor toward the projects, totalling about 6,000 man hours county wide. Rogers said since the first camp in 2013 and a followup in 2016, projects completed by GAPP have produced some $500,000 in economic impact. Campers come from all over the country to take part in Group Mission Trip projects.

Work projects will be undertaken in Garnett, Greeley, Colony, Kincaid and Westphalia.

Lions club motorcycle Safari set this Saturday

Riders from four states come for great cause, unique Eastern Kansas riding terrain

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — More than 50 dual sport motorcyclists are expected to converge on Garnett this weekend to take part in what's become one of the most popular back roads and trails rides in the state.

The Kansas Dual Sport Safari is sponsored by the Garnett Lions Club, and attracts riders from Oklahoma, Missouri, Nebraska, as well as Kansas riders from as far away as Great Bend. The term "Dual Sport" means the vehicles are street legal but also built for off road and trail conditions. The sport is sometimes called "Adventure Riding" for its theme of staying off paved roads and in rural areas.

"We keep hoping to bring in some guys from Colorado," said Lions President Dave Branton, "but I guess that's just a little too far to make the trip."

Branton said riders come from so far away for two reasons. First, most like to support a ride for a worthy civic organization. The local club uses proceeds from rider registrations and sponsor support for its local civic projects and Lions International sight-related service work.

The local club collects and recycles both aluminum and used eyeglasses at its recycle drop on the parking lot of the GSSB branch on Maple Street, and funds various civic projects and two scholarships per year.

Secondly, Branton said Garnett lies on an interesting intersection of both the Flint Hills to the west and more hilly terrain to the east that gives riders a great mix of both scenery and topography. Back roads riders will stick to gravel roads and minimum maintenance roads in the rural areas of the county, while trail riders at the Safari will ride primarily privately owned, timber covered areas rich in water crossings and steeper hills that challenge their talents.

"Your location and the help of some of the private parties that let us use their land gives the Safari a set of combinations that other rides don't have," said Mike Bright, a rider from Chanute who rode last year's inaugural event and is returning this year. "You have something in Garnett for just about any skill level."

Rides may entail journeys in a day of more than 100-150 miles over back roads. While dual sport riders celebrate staying off the pavement and away from high-speed traffic, they face other obstacles like live-stock, deer, muddy roads, farm equipment and loose gravel. As a result they typically put more emphasis on protective gear than some road bike riders, with helmets, gloves and tough-fabric jackets and pants to protect against road rash.

This year's Lions event includes a public reception for the returning riders beginning at 5 p.m. at the county fairgrounds, featuring a $15 steak dinner and all the trimmings and live music.

HIGHTOWER

MAY 26, 1943-JUNE 11, 2019

Ray Hightower, age 76, of Garnett, Kansas, passed away on June 11, 2019, at home surrounded by family. Preceded in death by his parents, Raymond M. Hightower, Sr. and Rose (Pipi) Hightower and his brothers, Albert and Chris Manuwaia. He is survived by his spouse, Janis (Main) Hightower; sons, Bill Hightower and wife Carrie; Rick Hightower and wife Suzanne; and Chris Hightower; Seventeen grandchildren; and three great granddaughters.

Hightower

friends swore he could sell ice cubes to an Eskimo. As many of you know Ray was a Hapa-Haole (50% Hawaiian on his mother's side and 50% Indian on his father's side). He was very proud of his Hawaiian heritage and in lieu of a funeral service, his ashes will be scattered in the waters of his homeland. All of Ray's Hawaiian friends and family called him "Billy" but no one ever knew why. Billy will get to ride the surf one more time.

Ray had a very special bond with his father, and that same bond he shared with his oldest son, Bill. Grandson Nicholas said "Regardless of what was going on in my troubled life, you could always make me laugh and relax about it." Barbara, his former assistant, reminded us that every Friday morning, Ray would blast the song "Bang on the drum all day" just to remind everyone that the work week was coming to the end. Well I played that song for Ray today to remind him that his work on earth is done.

"Aloha wau e aloha nei e ike hou wau ia oe."

English meaning: Goodbye my darling, I will see you again.

Will it be revival or revolution?

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL

BY DAVID BILDERBACK

Dr. David Jeremiah made the following quote. "When you teach people their rights you have a revolution. When you teach them their responsibilities you have a revival." If this statement is true I would say this country is closer to revolution than revival. Revolution or revival don't happen suddenly. The great Roman Empire was never conquered it collapsed from within. Gibbon relates five reasons for the collapse. 1) Undermining of the dignity of the home. 2) Higher and higher taxes. 3) Mad craze for pleasure. 4) Becoming more brutal and immoral, building of a great army. 5) The decay of religion.

A failure of this type is caused by the failure of government and individuals to take responsibility for their actions. This is made very clear in the Bible. When the kingdom split after the death of Solomon the Northern Kingdom went into idolatry and in 2nd Kings 17:5-8 we read "The King of Assyria invaded the entire land and introduced." The Southern Kingdom was also taken captive by Babylon even though they had five periods of revival under five different kings. I believe today if we want the best God has for us we may have to give up some of the things we call our rights. Somehow we have been conditioned to believe we have the right to do things in a manner that is most pleasing to ourselves. Somehow the idea we don't need to be obedient to God has become the norm. After all many would say "if God loves me he would want me to be happy and this is what makes me happy." This is an assumption on our part and is not found in scripture. What is found in scripture is the requirement that we will be held accountable by God for everything we do, good and bad. "For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ that each one may receive what is due him for the things done while in the body, whether good or bad." (2nd Cor. 5:10) Isaiah the prophet said, "We all, like sheep, have gone astray, each of us has turned to his own way; and the Lord has laid on him (Jesus) the iniquity of us all." Jesus said, "Moreover the Father judges no one, but has entrusted all judgment to the Son, that all may honor the Son just as they honor the Father. He who does not honor the Son does not honor the Father, who sent him." Jesus has the right to judge. It is our responsibility to be judged.

If you have received Jesus Christ as your personal Savior you will pass from death into eternal life. If you choose your rights over your responsibility you will be eternally separated from God.

Five-member foolishness puts city at risk

No matter how you compare the positives and negatives of Garnett one thing is certain: as of right now, the biggest dilemma our town faces is one that was fabricated by two of our city commissioners, and that dilemma aims to expand the size of the very government which conjured up the problem to begin with.

That's the only real measure by which to analyze the present 2-1 rift between commissioners Brigitte Brecheisen-Huss, Greg Gwin and Jody Cole. It's hard... really impossible... to imagine what problems were so big in our community that the only logical solution was to add two members to the city commission.

The truth is, there weren't any such challenges. The lesson here is a simple one but one that anybody who's an active voter should understand: all too often government creates problems instead of solving them.

The conflict falls squarely at Huss' feet. So impassioned was she that the interests of some in Garnett were woefully underrepresented by previous commissions that she formulated this plan and even waxed poetic about it in a 16-stanza ode in the city's newsletter. Gwin jumped on the bandwagon when the advisory vote agreed - by a slim margin - and has rested on that win as the only one that matters in his decision.

The problem with local government in small towns is one that we all know but we don't want to openly admit - that not many smart, capable people want to run for office because of all the crap they have to put up with.

No one wants people gossiping about his or her spouse at the grocery store, or to find out that other kids are mimicking behind your kid's back at school what they've heard their parents talking about at home. To put up with that it takes a special kind of civic toughness, and not many people have it.

Indeed, commissioners don't have to have technical knowledge and they don't need to micromanage - that's why they have a city manager, a city attorney and a crew compliment of city staff. Where their role is irreplaceable is in the big picture decisions - building the community's tax base by attracting industries and new residents; protecting townsfolk from threats like a decaying water treatment plant or the construction of a nearby wind farm. These decisions require vision and a breadth of understanding of what's really important to make a town flourish and the toughness to stand by those decisions.

REVIEW COMMENTARY

DANE HICKS, Publisher

Garnett's city commission is no place for purveyors of rumor, tunnel vision and barstool wisdom, but if we have to press too hard to fill extra seats on the commission, those are the candidates we're likely to find.

If city manager Chris Weiner came up with a plan to spend $11,000 per year on something that brought a net loss in value to the city and that plan had to continue ad infinitum, most of us would hope somebody curtailed him or fired him before he could set it in motion. Jody Cole has a good point when she talks about what our city might do with $20,000 (the cost of additional commissioner salaries and $7,500 for a mail ballot election) but she stops short of the long term impact - that $11,000 per year is $110,000 over 10 years. Think what our town could do with $110,000.

As of last week's meeting, Huss and Gwin have ridden their stubbornness right past the studied advice of their own legal counsel, who makes no bones about the fact that the Kansas Constitution stipulates a mail ballot election can't be used in an election regarding a charter ordinance. This very fact alone opens the city up for a lawsuit if voters should choose to expand the commission, and if a verdict follows against the city after those new commissioners are posted, every decision they made, contract they signed and vote they made in the meantime may be deemed invalid and bring additional litigation from affronted parties.

These are problems and risks that have taken two commissioners' eyes off the ball and focused it on foolishness. Hopefully the voting public will defeat it soundly, and send a message to them that our city has far bigger fish to fry. ###

It is amazing how any elected officials can make decisions on how to spend taxpayers money. On the issue of having 5 member commission there will be an election in August when it could be voted on in November at no cost to the city. Also on the ballot 1 city seat is up for election. Two candidates have filed for it this shows that people are not rushing to fill the three seats that we have. We have one commissioner who wants to spend $7500 for mail in ballots which would not get any quicker results. We also have a city attorney which we pay a very good salary to keep city officials out of lawsuits who recommended against it. I would say take his advice. If this commissioner knows more than the city attorney, fire him. If we go to a five member board what quality of advice will be get or just more turmoil? Small government is sometimes better than letting people who know more than the professionals

What is it with you Republicans? Your president is a (deleted) grabber and this child molester that used to be the head of the county Republican Party. That's Republicans for you. Just a bunch of filthy perverts.

Brigitte Ocasio-Cortez is not only smarter than everyone else on the city commission, now she's smarter than the city attorney too. My question is when her and Gwin get the city sued over not following the law on the election, do they have to pay the legal fees or is it our tax money that's going to go to pay for the lawsuit? Thank you.

I believe that two commissioners directly violating the Kansas Constitution's provisions for charter ordinance elections is a direct dereliction of duty, and as such is grounds for a recall election.

Rural areas to get more attention from Kansas

There's a change, or maybe just the appearance of a change, coming to the Kanas Legislature...maybe...

The change? Suddenly this year what appears to be interest in the future of rural Kansas, those small cities and towns that bigger-city folks might regard as living near the exit ramps of four-lane highways or maybe those towns where the paved streets are in their small downtowns, and most people live on gravel roads.

Those are the towns, in the majority of the land area of the state, where a school bus ride might take 40 minutes, and where even on a clear day, there isn't a Kwik Shop or a liquor store in sight.

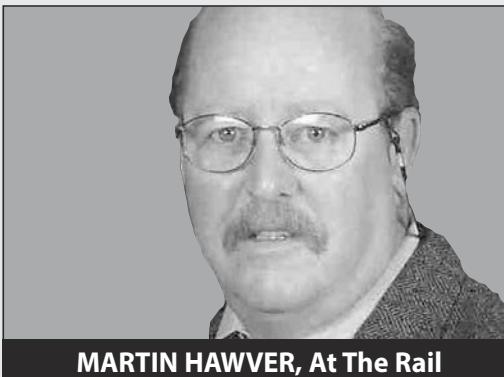

Those are the areas where there isn't much representation in the Statehouse because the populations are so small that a House district can span a half-dozen counties, and a Senate district even more.

In recent years when rural populations have shrunk and the county courthouse is the center of government for many, their issues often have been overlooked. Oh, the urban-dominated Legislature might OK an exit ramp now and again to show interest or may name a bridge after a local leader, but it was mostly pandering.

And at every reapportionment—and there's one coming up in 2022—the political power of those rural areas is diminished. More farm kids are growing up to go be computer experts, not farmers.

Well, there's an indication, and we won't know for sure for a session or two, that there is

STATE COMMENTARY

more interest in keeping rural areas economically strong, and that Kansans in those areas get the same level of service that the cities offer.

This interest started with the Kansas House, which created a Rural Revitalization Committee. Yes, a whole committee, chaired by Rep. Don Hineman, R-Dighton, out in Lane County, who lost his bid to be House Majority Leader, but showed enough strength that he could put forward a committee that will help people back home.

And Gov. Laura Kelly and her Lieutenant Governor Lynn Rogers, of Wichita, have created the Office of Rural Prosperity, and got $2 million to get it up and running and taking the pulse of rural areas of the state.

That initiative, run out of Rogers' Statehouse office, is taking a tour of a dozen small cities this summer to see what rural areas need. While city folks have a choice of Internet providers, there aren't many options in rural Kansas. That means that broadband internet service needs to be expanded in areas where it is going to take some state guidance and assistance and who knows what else to equalize access. It's not just so rural Kansans can watch Netflix. It's so they can watch what their government does, their kids can get access to programs that small rural school districts can't staff, they can get health-care services from experts in areas where doctors are few and miles apart.

The Rural Prosperity office will be on the ground to see just what is needed in rural areas to provide housing, economic development, tourism, and the infrastructure that city folks and their representatives have access to.

It's a change in atmosphere in the Statehouse, or at least the appearance of a chance in atmosphere, that holds promise. But just how that reach-out from the cities to rural Kansas works isn't going to be easy. The cultures are different, the access to nearly everything is different.

Convincing city folk the importance to the state of those rural areas is going to be complicated.

Let's hope that it works...

CEOs: Abortion is good for business

Clarity of thought and expression about moral issues is not a core competency of CEOs.

If anyone had any doubt, look no further than the "historic" pro-abortion statement by nearly 200 CEOs that ran in a full-page ad in The New York Times. It is a festival of absurdity and euphemism, an exercise in perverse virtue-signaling to a progressive audience that believes that maintaining one of the most permissive pro-abortion regimes in the developed world is a virtue.

The CEOs define abortion as "equality" ("Don't Ban Equality") and, of course, refer to it as "comprehensive reproductive care," the ubiquitous phrase that has the advantage of sounding like the opposite of what it's describing.

The CEOs contend that abortion is central to their businesses, which might be true if all of their companies had the same business model as Planned Parenthood. But Bloomberg L.P., Amalgamated Bank and H&M, to name three of the companies whose CEOs signed the ad, are hardly dependent on abortion to thrive.

The old saw was, "What's good for General Motors is good for America." Now, according to top CEOs, what's good for abortion is good for American business. They seem to consider abortion a crucial component of GDP just like personal consumption, business investment, government spending and net exports.

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

RICH LOWRY, King Features Syndicate

They argue that "equality in the workplace" is an important business issue, and it is impossible to achieve without unrestricted access to abortion. Any restriction "threatens the health, independence and economic stability of our employees and customers."

The idea that abortion is necessary for the health of women is one of the most misleading pro-abortion cliches. Comprehensive data from Florida last year shows that only a small percentage involve a threat to the mother's life or health, and pro-life laws account for such cases -- even the sweeping Alabama law has a health exception.

The contention that restrictions put "the economy at risk" is nonsensical. Are we supposed to believe that the reduction of the abortion rate in the U.S. from its high in 1980 of 29.3 abortions per 1,000 women of childbearing age to its post-Roe v. Wade low of 14.6 as of 2014 has been a calamity for corporate America?

By this standard, Utah must be a terrible place to do business since its abortion rate is so low, and the District of Columbia an enticing place to do business since its abortion rate is so high. (To the contrary, Forbes ranks Utah as the second-best state for business in the country.)

The implication is that these CEOs prefer that their employees and customers not become mothers, or if they are mothers, not have more children. It apparently hasn't occurred to them that unborn children will grow up to buy their products or perhaps work for their firms one day.

The CEO ad is another sign that the debate over abortion has entered a new phase. It isn't enough anymore to say that abortion should be safe, legal and rare, the old Bill Clinton formulation, because that implies a moral disapproval. Now, abortion is a positive good.

Pro-life laws will have to prevail against this inflamed pro-abortion sentiment -- and the swath of big business that shares it.

Rich Lowry is editor of the National Review.

Mason Ramsey, Lindsay Ell to headline Kansas State Fair's new free concert series

For the first time in its history, the Kansas State Fair will be offering a more intimate concert experience on Tuesday and Thursday night during the 10-day event — and it's free.

Two up-and-coming country acts will headline the new free series at Bretz and Young Injury Lawyers Arena. Mason Ramsey, the 12-year-old "Little Hank Williams," will perform Tuesday, Sept. 10. Lindsay Ell, this year's Country Music Association's Newcomer of the Year nominee, will take the stage Thursday, Sept. 12, with special guest Madison Kozak. Both concerts start at 7:30 p.m.

Ell's concert is sponsored by First Choice Communications, an authorized AT&T Retailer. "These two concerts are on us," said the Fair's General Manager Robin Jennison. "After decades of Tuesday and Thursday grandstand concerts, the Fair decided to move those shows to Bretz and Young Injury Lawyers Arena where fairgoers can get a more close-up intimate experience with entertainers."

This new venue will have the same beverage amenities available at the grandstand. Beer sales in the arena will start at 6 p.m. and end at the end of the show. Food vendors will also be available nearby.

Seating is first come, first serve. Fairgoers will be able to stand in front of the stage or take a seat in the stands.

"Our musical acts have long been an anticipated part of the Fair," Jennison said. "Our grandstand entertainment this year is exceptional. However, our lineup at Bretz and Young are newer performers that you are going to see a lot more of, and you will see them first at the Kansas State Fair."

Mason — who over the past year has become a social media sensation-turned emerging country music star after a video of him singing Hanks Williams' "Lovesick Blues" in an Illinois Walmart went viral.

Among Mason's highlights: · Named to the 2018 list of "21 under 21" by Forbes · Single "Famous" has surpassed 60 million streams and is on the way to becoming a gold record · Performed at Coachella and Stagecoach music festivals · Featured in Rolling Stone and Billboard · Performed with Florida Georgia Line during their Las Vegas residency Mason has also been on Ellen, performed during the 2018 CMAs and sold out several shows on his spring tour.

Meanwhile, Canadian guitarist Ell is one of Nashville's hottest prospects. She first picked up a guitar at age 8 and has shredded with the likes of Brad Paisley and Keith Urban. Forbes called Ell "one of the most exciting and talented young artists in country music."

Ell's highlights include: · 2019 ACM nominee for New Female Artist of the Year · Featured on CMT's Next Women of Country · Toured internationally with The Band Perry, Luke Bryan, Brad Paisley and blues legend Buddy Guy · Plays multiple instruments and writes most of her own songs · Currently featured on a Brantley Gilbert single "What Happens in a Small Town" · Single "Criminal" went No. 1 on Canadian Country charts · Named 2015 Female Artist of the Year by the Association of Country Music Artists Alberta.

Kozak, who will open for Ell, is fresh out of Nashville's Belmont University. There is already an industry buzz circling around her blossoming career.

Belmont University. There is already an industry buzz circling around her blossoming career.

Kozak's highlights include: · Opened for artists such as Willie Nelson and Morgan Wallen · Performed at the CMA Festival and Nashville's legendary Bluebird Cafe · Released a four-song EP "Heartbreak School" · Had her first performance at the Ryman in early June with Keith Urban.

Funds awarded to crime victims

TOPEKA - The Kansas Crime Victims Compensation Board last week awarded financial assistance to 337 victims of violent crime at its June meeting, Kansas Attorney General Derek Schmidt said.

Awards were made in 141 new cases. Additional expenses were paid in 196 previously submitted cases. The awards totaled $305,259.36.

The Division of Crime Victims Compensation in Schmidt's office administers the Crime Victims Compensation program, which was established in 1978 to help victims of violent crime pay for their unexpected expenses such as medical treatment, mental health counseling, lost wages, dependent support and funeral expenses.

The state's three-member Crime Victims Compensation Board determines claims that are eligible for payment and how much money will be awarded to each claimant. Awards are limited to a maximum total amount of $25,000 with limitations of $5,000 for funeral expense, $5,000 for outpatient mental health counseling, $10,000 for inpatient mental health treatment and $1,500 for grief counseling for family survivors of homicide victims.

A portion of assessed court costs and fines, inmate wages, parole fees and restitution paid by convicted offenders provides funding to the program. For more information about the Crime Victims Compensation program call (785) 296-2359 or visit the attorney general's website at www.ag.ks.gov.

State supreme court satisfied on school finance

TOPEKA - The Kansas Supreme Court has apparently finally become satisfied with the state of school finance in Kansas after its ruling on Friday, although it will continue to monitor Legislative action regarding "making good" on its new finance plan.

The Court, in the public school finance case of Gannon v. State, held the State has shown that the 2019 Legislature's scheduled base aid increases are in substantial compliance with the court's June 25, 2018, mandate. This is the court's seventh decision in the Gannon litigation.

In 2018 the court had held that despite legislation enacted in 2017 and 2018, the State still had not funded education adequately.

The secret selling power of balloons

You're a savvy business person. You know in order to continue to make an impression on old customers and attract new ones, you have to continually come up with new and novel ideas. Something different is always worth a shot.

You know that some customers are buying today because they have a direct want or need. You know that some buyers will move into that want or need phase at a later date, and that's when you need to have "top of mind" awareness in their heads so they buy from you and not someone else.

Which is why you need balloons. Or cheese. When I was a kid, my folks used to shop at the Farmers Exchange grocery store owned by what was then the Missouri Farmers Association (MFA) where we lived in southern Missouri. The butcher would always cut a piece of cheese off the block and give it to us little kids when mom passed the meat case. I've remembered it erning body may submit any charter ordinance to a referendum without petition by the same publication of the charter ordinance and the same publication of the ordinance calling the election as for ordinances upon petition and such charter ordinance shall then become effective when approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon."

Huss then asserted that the city would have "... a very defensible position in a court of law if challenged,..."

"This is significant," Huss said, "because any charter ordinance submitted to a referendum without petition... it does not specify that it must be conducted in the same fashion as an ordinance upon petition." Huss maintained since the new charter ordinance was not identical to the one subjected to the petition, the same rules did not apply. Huss provided further support for her argument.

"Section D of the same article states 'Powers and authority granted cities pursuant to this section shall be liberally construed for the purpose of giving to cities the largest measure of self-government' ... therefore given the intent of home rule authority allowing for a liberal interpretation of this section of the Kansas Constitution," she said.

Huss then referenced a voicemail she had received from a staffer at the Kansas Secretary of State's Office in which the staffer said there was no law requiring a specific method in the Charter Ordinance vote. Huss then asserted that the city would have "... a very defensible position in a court of law if challenged," alluding to concerns expressed by city manager Chris Weiner and commissioner Cole about the possibility of a lawsuit attacking the legality of the proposed election.

Huss is not an attorney and has never practiced law. When asked by a Review reporter about her legal credentials, Huss confirmed that she is not a member of the Kansas State Bar Association and later added that she thought there was no relevance to that topic.

Solander said he received a call from Deputy Assistant Secretary of State Bryan Caskey, who said while the office refrains from getting involved in local election issues and defers to local counsel, the office does not hold the position portrayed by the staffer that left Huss' a voicemail. Solander then said he did not believe that Huss had correctly interpreted provisions in the state constitution that "requires the calling of the election as for ordinances on petition; so it's saying the same thing, you're not reading it correctly." Huss disagreed, and said she did not believe that the Kansas Secretary of State's office would have left her a voicemail saying that a mail ballot election was not prohibited if that wasn't what they believed. Solander informed Huss that Caskey was the supervisor of the staffer who had called her, but Huss said that didn't change her interpretation or opinion.

The two then disagreed over the meaning of 'liberally construed' as used in the text. Huss ran with the concept whereas Solander believed that it was a provision of Home Rule authority designed to give local governments control over substance and not process, such as the way a given election is conducted. The exchange culminated in Solander calling Huss' interpretation of the Kansas Constitution "one of the most strained readings of simple English I've ever heard of."

The local area hasn't seen a mail ballot election since the late 1980s when USD 365 voted on an unsuccessful effort to build a combined junior high and elementary facility. More details on the rules of the election will be announced at a later date.

FTC: Businesses can't silence negative online customer reviews

OMAHA- The Better Business Bureau office serving the central plains is warning commercial businesses of an Federal Trade Commission ruling that companies can't silence negative reviews posted online by their customers.

The FTC has recently issued administrative complaints against several businesses they say threatened consumers with legal action if they posted negative customer reviews. It discovered illegal gag clauses in contracts at five businesses across the country, including rental companies and a Massachusetts-based flooring company.

The Consumer Review

Fairness Act of 2016 prohibits companies from including any language in a contract that would prevent consumers from posting negative reviews.

Unfortunately, it has come to BBB's attention that businesses in our region have clauses in customer contracts that attempt to prohibit customers from filing complaints or posting negative reviews as a result of a marketplace interaction. "Clearly, such practices are prohibited by the Consumer Review Fairness Act," stated BBB President Jim Hegarty. "We encourage consumers to notify us of any attempts by a business to contractually prohibit them from posting reviews about their experience. Additionally, consumers who have been unsuccessful in resolving a dispute with a business directly should feel free to utilize BBB's dispute resolution services at bbb.org to assist them in resolving the issue. These services are free of charge to the public."

Local businesses that are found to be in violation of the Consumer Review Fairness Act will be asked by BBB to voluntarily discontinue the illegal practice. Businesses failing to cooperate will be referred to the Federal Trade Commission for prosecution.

Hegarty stated, "I am not unsympathetic to the challenges businesses are facing in managing negative reviews, but I encourage them to implement a structured process for quick and calm responses. If you're a business owner, chances are you'll receive a negative review at some point. Although your first reaction may be to defend your business and prove the customer wrong, it's important to keep calm and respond in a rational and professional way."

Hegarty also emphasized that BBB is here to serve both businesses and consumers and has tools and tips to assist businesses with the management of customer reviews.

HOW TO SELL STUFF

Dane Hicks Review Publisher

for 50 years. Laugh if you want, but balloons rock; maybe even better than cheese. They're cheap, they're fun (even for adults) and they say something that a printed coaster or koozie or ink pen doesn't. They say "Look at me! I'm fun!"

A couple hundred balloons printed with your logo only costs a few bucks. A tank of helium is a little more expensive but lasts forever. Combine the two and your store becomes just like the Land of Oz without all the short people.

loons to every kid under 40 at the cash register. Have a little front end space to spare? Make a cool balloon archway just inside your front door. Blow up a bunch of them and just weight them down outside in your parking lot or near your sidewalk. A bunch of balloons gets attention - it says "There's a party here!"

If you're at an indoor event of some kind you can even make a game out of all the balloons kids let go and end up in the ceiling rafters. Roll over a couple of pieces of tape and stick them to the top and sides of a balloon, tie on a long, long piece of thin ribbon or string, and see who can capture the most balloons off the ceiling.

You'll come up with all kinds of neat ideas once you start blowing them up, because nobody's really too far from 8 years old when it comes to balloons. And, after all, they can help you sell stuff!

Olathe Health oncologist one of first to treat rare cancer with new therapy

OLATHE— The Olathe Health Cancer Center is the first community site in the country to successfully treat an aggressive cancer using a newly approved FDA drug, the first of its kind to treat this specific form of malignancy.

Blastic plasmacytoid dendritic cell neoplasm (BPDCN) is a rare hematologic malignancy that can affect multiple organs, including the lymph nodes and skin. The exact incidence of the disease is unknown, but is estimated to represent 0.5 percent of all hematologic malignancies. It acts similar to an acute leukemia, and before December 2018, there was no FDA approved therapy to treat BPDCN. According to the FDA, prior to this new therapy the treatment option available to BPDCN patients was intensive chemotherapy followed by bone marrow transplantation, which was too intensive for many of these patients to undergo.

Janet Leeker, 78, of Gardner, was diagnosed with BPDCN in December 2018. The disease started with a few deep red/purple lesions on her skin, which quickly progressed to about 30 lesions across her body. She sought treatment from Larry R. Corum, MD, a medical oncologist at Olathe Health Cancer Center who specializes in malignant blood disorders.

Because of Janet's age, she wasn't sure she wanted to undergo an aggressive, traditional chemotherapy regimen. Dr. Corum made her aware of the new, targeted therapy, Elzonris (tagraxofusp-ezrs), which was approved by the FDA just a few weeks prior. He worked with the manufacturer, the hospital pharmacists and the inpatient staff at Olathe Medical Center to get everything in place to administer her first cycle, which was a five-day infusion. Janet was the second patient in the nation to receive the drug after it was made commercially available in December.

"It's amazing to me that a molecularly targeted therapy for such an incredibly rare disease would be developed and brought through the entire process to FDA approval," Dr. Corum said. "The timing for Janet was perfect, since the drug had just become available weeks before her diagnosis. There are a number of cautions with this drug, but Janet had little to no side effects. After three days of treatment, her nodules appeared to be diminishing, and after a week they were almost complete gone. It was exciting to witness."

For her second cycle, Dr. Corum administered her treatment in the Olathe Health Cancer Center as an outpatient procedure, becoming the first in the country to do so. After a few additional cycles of treatment, Janet is now in complete remission. As part of the maintenance program, she continues to receive the therapy at Olathe Health Cancer Center every three weeks.

"This was an exciting challenge for the pharmacy department, as patients like this are usually seen at large academic hospitals," Divine Chi, Pharm.D, BCPS, Oncology Clinic Pharmacist at Olathe Health Cancer Center, said. "We always strive to make the latest pharmaceutical advances available to our patients. In cases like this, we also must work quickly to assure that a thorough review of the medication is completed to assure appropriate storage, preparation, administration, and monitoring in order to optimize patient efficacy and safety."

Janet is looking forward to attending a family wedding in June with her three children and grandchildren. Her treatments haven't slowed her down. She is retired and says she is busier than ever.

Governor requests disaster relief from SBA

TOPEKA — Governor Laura Kelly sent a disaster declaration request to the Small Business Administration for damage caused by an EF4 tornado that passed through the center of Douglas County, Kansas, on May 28.

"The damage caused by the tornadoes stretched far and wide," Kelly said. "It's important we get affected individuals and families back on the path to recovery. We must do everything we can to help rebuild our communities."

The tornado destroyed and severely damaged numerous homes and businesses along its nearly one-mile wide track. Twenty-eight tornadoes occurred across the state on May 28, with reports of damage in north central and northeast Kansas.

Joint preliminary damage assessments were conducted between the State and SBA last week. After joint preliminary damage assessment between county emergency management, the state of Kansas and the Small Business Administration, it has been determined that damages potentially meet the threshold for a declaration from the Small Business Administration.

If a declaration is granted for Douglas County the contiguous counties (Franklin, Jefferson, Johnson, Leavenworth, Miami, Osage, and Shawnee) will be eligible to apply if they experienced tornado damaged on May 28.

SBA provides low-interest disaster loans to businesses of all sizes, private non-profit organizations, homeowners, and renters. SBA disaster loans can be used to repair or replace damaged or destroyed property in a declared disaster, including real estate, personal property, machinery and equipment, and inventory and business assets.

A Garnett native who made a career in commercial art now has one more notch in his belt after designing the 50th Anniversary logo for the Kansas City Chiefs. Gerald Hirt, who grew up in Harris and graduated from Garnett High School in 1974, has been doing commercial artwork since getting his college art degree in 1977. Hirt said his experience with the Chiefs football team began after he started working for a commercial marketing company called Premier. Hirt's company is called Jerry Hirt Design and Illustration. Officials for the team saw some of Hirt's artwork at an NFL banquet and liked what they saw. They later hired him to design their ticket flat and media guide. He's been working with the Chiefs since 2002.

Greeley has weathered countless storms in the past 145 years, but the oldest structure in Anderson County faces its biggest challenge for survival in the next couple of months. Efforts to save the cabin began last week after Anderson County Historical Society President Dorothy Lickteig learned the home of the county's first white settler must be moved immediately. The present landowner of the site told Lickteig the cabin must be moved, preferably within the next 60 days, otherwise the structure would face demolition.

Good roads have long been in need. Today they are a necessity. Instead of putting off road improvements until the war is over, we need to make immediately road development imperative. The country can produce plenty of food and supplies if we can transport them where they are needed. The motor car and the motor truck can do the work if the roads are put in shape and kept in shape. It is not too much to say that bad roads in America threaten the lives of our men fighting on the front. They must have munitions, food, and equipment, and these must be taken to them over roads here as well as abroad. Do your part by boosting road improvement in your community. The time to start is now.

June, July tornadoes predicted below normal

NEW YORK - AccuWeather predicts that the number of tornadoes in June and July will be below normal and dramatically lower than the near-record-setting total that occurred in May.

AccuWeather's forecast of 175 tornadoes in June is 23.5% lower than normal for the month; the 25-year average for U.S. tornadoes in June is 229. For July, AccuWeather predicts 90 tornadoes will touch down, which is 26.8% fewer than the 25-year average for July tornadoes of 123.

AccuWeather now predicts the total number of tornadoes for 2019 will be between 1,275 and 1,300.

So far this year, 1,113 tornadoes have been reported in the U.S., though those are just preliminary numbers and not confirmed. There were 1,169 tornadoes in 2018 and the U.S. annual average is 1,141. Tornado season typically eases up later in the summer and into the fall.

"Because of the pace of tornadoes in April and May, we're in the higher percentile of tornadoes for the year, but now that percentile is going to go down a good bit faster," said AccuWeather Lead Long-Range Meteorologist Paul Pastelok. "On average, the frequency of tornadoes goes down in June and July, but we think it's going to be a big drop down."

In May, 555 tornadoes were reported in the U.S. - though those figures are preliminary and not confirmed reports. The previous recorded high confirmed for May was 542 in 2003, while the 25-year average for May is 269.

A CHARTER ORDINANCE INCREASING THE GOVERNING BODY FROM THREE COMMISSIONERS TO FIVE COMMISSIONERS AND PROVIDING FOR TERMS OF OFFICE, ELECTION CYCLING AND TRANSITIONING PROVISIONS; REPEALING CHARTER ORDINANCE #4 INCLUDING ITS CODIFIED VERSION AND ALSO AMENDING TITLE 1, CHAPTER 8, SECTION 1 AND SECTION 13 OF THE MUNICIPAL CODE; REPEALING EXISTING PROVISIONS OF SAID TITLE 1, CHAPTER 8, SECTION 1 AND SECTION 13; EXCEPTING THE CITY FROM THE PROVISIONS OF K.S.A. 25-2120 RELATING TO CERTIFICATION OF ELECTION RESULTS, COMMENCEMENT OF TERM, AND OATH OF OFFICE, AND PROVIDING SUBSTITUTE PROVISIONS RELATING THERETO.

WHEREAS, the City of Garnett, Kansas, has since 1964 been organized as a Commission-Manager government; and for an even longer time has been governed by a Commission consisting of three members, and has elected one commissioner for a three-year term in each year so as to provide continuity in the membership of the said Commission; and,

WHEREAS, the City of Garnett, Kansas, in 1969 memorialized such election procedure, as an exception from Kansas law, by way of Charter Ordinance No. 4; and,

WHEREAS, the City Commission of the City of Garnett, Kansas, has discussed expanding the membership of the Commission from three members to five members and on such issue through an advisory election found there was support among the electors voting in said election for such an expansion; and,

WHEREAS, the City Commission of the City of Garnett, Kansas, desires to maintain the three-year terms and annual election process in the expansion of the membership of the Commission to five members.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE GOVERNING BODY OF THE CITY OF GARNETT, KANSAS:

Hollon family scores big with Mahomes home run softball

KANSAS CITY – A trek to Kansas City to see the Big Slick Celebrity Softball Gamet at Kaufman Stadium turned out to be well worth the trip for the Derick Hollon family of Garnett, when they were tossed a home run ball hit by one of their idols, Patrick Mahomes.

The celebrity event was a fundraiser for Children's Mercy Hospital. Mahomes knocked the homer, and former American Idol star Dave Cook scooped up the ball and tossed it into the stands – right into the Hollon's hands.

Kemper Hollon told Fox 4 news, which filmed a human interest on the family's good fortune last week, that he never would have dreamed he'd end up with a Mahomes homer.

The Hollons collect autographs and memorabilia from their favorite stars. Derick said he hopes to get the ball autographed by Mahomes.

Kansas Legion members endorse Wiley for National Commander

TOPEKA – Delegates at the 101st Annual American Legion Department of Kansas Convention in Hutchinson on May 19, 2019 unanimously endorsed outgoing Department (State) Commander Dan K. Wiley for the high office of National Commander of The American Legion. Dan, a Kansas Life

Member of Leavenworth Post 23, served in the United States Air Force from 1986-90. He has been a member of The American Legion since 1993.

He served as Department Commander in 2018-19, and previously as Department Vice Commander, and Department Judge Advocate.

"I am honored and humbled to be endorsed by my fellow Kansas Legionnaires for this position," Wiley said. "This is a very long process that will take several years with no guarantee of success. However, even a marathon starts with a first step and this is that first step. I am confident in the teamwork of the Kansas American Legion Family and this will definitely be a team effort."

The American Legion has nearly two million members nationwide and the Kansas Legion has nearly 24,000 members. Kansas has had three National Commanders, Ralph T. O'Neil, 1930-31; Harry W. Colmery 1936-37; Harry G. Wiles, 1975-76. However, it has been over 40 years since Kansas last had a National Commander.

Dan has served in numerous leadership roles both in his local veteran community and as a civic leader in his local community. He is also a member of the Sons of the American Legion Oskaloosa Squadron 36. Dan lives in Leavenworth with his wife, Sonia.

NFIB criticizes Kansas Supreme Court ruling on lawsuit damages to businesses

TOPEKA (June 14, 2019) – NFIB State Director Dan Murray released the following statement today in response to today's decision by the Kansas Supreme Court that the state's statutory cap on non-economic damages is unconstitutional:

"We are very disappointed in today's decision by the state Supreme Court," Murray said. "Our members supported the legislature's efforts to the amount of non-economic damages a plaintiff can be awarded in a civil action. "Small businesses are especially vulnerable to bogus and abusive litigation," Murray said. "One overzealous jury award could be enough to put a small business out of business."

"We look forward to working with legislative leaders on commonsense legislation that serves the interests of Kansans and Kansas' small businesses."

Local boys attend Kansas Boys State

MANHATTAN – Zach Barnes and Erik Rytter of Garnett, Jacob Ellis of Westphalia, Porter Richards of Greeley and Johathan Fox of Richmond recently represented their USD 365 and USD 288 school districts at the 2019 American Legion Boys State of Kansas Leadership Academy.

Approximately 405 young men from across the State of Kansas, all of whom will enter their senior year of high school this fall, participated in the 2019 session of the American Legion Boys State of Kansas Leadership Academy. The event, which concluded its 82nd year, was held June 3-8 at Kansas State University in Manhattan for the 28th consecutive year.

The ALBSKLA provides a relevant, interactive, problem-solving experience in leadership and teamwork that develops self-identity, promotes mutual respect and instills civic responsibility. Boys State is a "learning by doing" political exercise that simulates elections, political parties and government at the state, county and local levels, providing opportunities to lead under pressure, showcasing character and working effectively within a team. It's also an opportunity to gain pride and respect for government and the price paid by members of the military to preserve democracy.
