Not just a job:
 Running for office
 is an adventure

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – Though most of the political news these days seems to come out of Washington, D.C., it's important to note that the 2020 election will include offices from local city posts and county posts all the way to the presidency.

If you've ever had a yen for politics or public service, 2020 may be your opportunity. Following is a brief summary of upcoming elected posts, their duties and compensation:

As custodian for county funds, the county treasurer receives money due the state and collects ad valorem property taxes for tax-levying jurisdictions in the county and distributes it according to the levies made by the local units of government; pays out county funds upon proper authorization of the county commissioners, collects automobile registration and sends the money to the state, and issues other licenses. Present Anderson County Treasurer: Dena McDaniel, Republican, salary $48,801.40 annually for treasurer $8,895.09 annually for commercial trucks and approx. $10,578.60 annually for motor vehicle.

Out on his own

Dr. Ross Kimball leaves St. Luke's for independent practice

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – Though most doctors prefer to practice with hospitals or medical groups these days, Dr. Ross Kimball has opted to go his own way with a start-up practice in Garnett.

Kimball

Pheasant Ridge Family Medicine will occupy the former offices of Dr. David Henderson at 312 S. Maple in Garnett. The practice will start taking appointments January 27 and will formally start seeing patients February 6.

Kimball, a 1998 Central Heights High School graduate who formerly practiced with Mercy Health System at a clinic in Pleasanton and spent the last five years with St. Luke's at Anderson County Hospital, said it's worth giving up the stability of hospital system to practice medicine his own way.

"It's about autonomy, really," Kimball told the Review. "I don't think corporate controlled medicine is the best thing for the consumer and the patient."

Kimball, the son of Jim and Nancy Kimball of rural Lane, traces his lineage in the local area back to 1870, when his ancestors originally settled the property the family still owns. He said that ancestral tie was one of the factors that made him want to stay in the area and establish his private practice here after deciding to make the break with Anderson County Hospital.

An avid pheasant hunter, Kimball said he named the practice in honor of a friend who taught him how to hunt the birds and with whom he enjoyed annual hunting trips to South Dakota. His friend passed away the day he gave notice to the local hospital that he planned to leave the system, he said.

Kimball said the practice will be credentialed with most of the same insurance plans he originally used at Family Care Center. The telephone number at the practice will be (785) 448-6988.

Crest board adopts tax levy authority, eyes school improvement projects

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

COLONY – The Crest School Board took a look at building improvements last week during the first meeting of the new year, and adopted a capital outlay resolution to allow the district to raise funds for such future projects.

Superintendent Shane Walter said while the resolution authorizes the district to levy taxes for use in capital outlay projects, it doesn't necessarily mean the board plans to implement an increased levy.

"The board listened to a presentation on flooring improvements then discussed gym bleachers, playground equipment, and shop improvements utilizing existing funds from capital outlay," Walter told the Review. "We are gathering bids to create a summer project scope. We will continue the discussion next month. Nothing has been finalized yet."

Other projects discussed included painting the school's exterior, asbestos removal and installation of air conditioning in the gymnasium.

Don't forget about the Farm Service Agency Livestock Programs

Area livestock producers need to remember the livestock programs that are administered by the Farm Service Agency (FSA). With spring calving season approaching and potential for extreme adverse weather conditions, don't forget about the Livestock Indemnity Program.

The Livestock Indemnity Program (LIP) provides benefits on a calendar year basis to livestock producers who suffered livestock deaths in excess of normal mortality caused by adverse weather. Adverse weather events include tornados, floods, lightning, wildfires, blizzards, winter storms, extreme heat, and extreme cold.

To be eligible for LIP, a livestock producer must have legally owned the livestock on the date of death and the livestock must be maintained for commercial use as part of a farming operation. Applicants must provide adequate documentation to prove the eligible deaths occurred as a direct result of the adverse weather event.

A notice of loss must be filed within 30 calendar days after the death is apparent. When the application for payment is filed, producers must provide an acceptable proof of death and beginning inventory at the time of the weather event. The death records must provide enough data to identify the quantity, kind, type, and weight range of the livestock. Proof of death records need to be verifiable. This may include veterinary certification record, private insurance documents, or rendering truck receipts.

If verifiable records cannot be obtained, then reliable records such as photos that contain an automated printed date on them or contemporaneous producer records need to be provided. If neither verifiable nor reliable records are available, then a disinterested third party who witnessed the death may complete an FSA form explaining specific details about how they had knowledge of the animal deaths. Proof of death documents can be maintained by the livestock producer for non-weather-related deaths so normal mortality is

God has a plan for his people

In Jeremiah 29 the LORD Almighty speaks to the prophet concerning captives that were carried into exile from Jerusalem to Babylon. Jeremiah sends a letter to the captives in Babylon with word from the LORD. The letter provides guidelines for how the exiles are to live while they are in captivity.

In Jeremiah 29:11, the LORD says concerning the captivity, "For I know the plans I have for you, declares the LORD, plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future." In Jeremiah 32 the LORD offers a sign to the people who still remain in Jerusalem as Nebuchadnezzar besieges the city and the end draws near. Jeremiah in spite of the fact that it is clear the city will be lost is instructed by the LORD to buy a field. Jeremiah buys the field, signed and sealed the deed, had it witnessed and paid the seventeen shekels. This was to be proof to those in Jerusalem that the LORD would not abandon his people. For this is what the LORD Almighty, the God of Israel says, "Houses, fields and vineyards will again be bought in this land."

The people had rebelled against God and were headed for seventy years of captivity. But God from Genesis to Malachi repeatedly tells the people if they will repent and turn back to him he will remember their sins no more. The same can be said for us today. As broken people we constantly fail God and ourselves. As Christians living in the era of grace, under the shadow of the cross, "if we confess our sins he is faithful and just and will forgive us our sins and purify us from all unrighteousness." (1 John 1:9)

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL

BY DAVID BILDEBACK

It is well for us to keep a short account with God. If we fail to confess our sins we tend to commit the same sins over and over. This can get to a point where we will no longer be convicted by this sin. This is the message of the Old Testament. The people would fall into and out of apostasy failing to repent of their sins. When we go to sleep at night it is entirely up to God if we wake the next morning. We are not to fear God in this sense for if we believe Jeremiah 29:11 God has promised us hope and a future. This requires some soul searching for all of us to find out where we stand with God.

Kansas welcomes California welfare state disaster with Medicaid expansion

The so-called “bipartisan” proposal to adopt Medicaid expansion in Kansas is certainly earning Gov. Laura Kelly major political points. The Democrat ran on the liberal policy, and within a year of Kelly assuming office, Kansas is on track to become the latest state to expand the welfare health insurance program.

But while it might make good headlines for Kelly, Medicaid expansion is bad for Kansans. No amount of “bipartisan” posturing will change that.

This deal masquerades as a bipartisan solution to the high cost of healthcare. But it’s basically the same policy that Democrats in states such as California, New York, and New Hampshire championed: bigger government, more dependency on welfare, and more state spending — all at the expense of the truly needy.

Instead of prioritizing Medicaid funds for the state’s most vulnerable, who in the past have had to sit on waiting lists for care, this expansion will allow able-bodied adults to receive healthcare benefits intended for the elderly, the disabled, and poor children. Medicaid expansion effectively creates a new class of able-bodied welfare recipients. It diverts resources away from the truly needy.

This expansion proposal would add at least another 262,000 able-bodied adults to Kansas’s Medicaid rolls. But in truth, no one really knows how many people will take advantage of this new government handout. Because in state after state that has expanded Medicaid, actual enrollment in Medicaid expansion has far exceeded projections, straining state budgets and threatening funding for other programs.

Nationwide, Medicaid spending has already grown to more than $603 billion, with nearly one out of every three dollars states spend going to prop up the program. In Kansas, the Medicaid budget has quintupled just since 2000 — and that’s without Medicaid expansion. If the state adopts Medicaid expansion, Kansans will be asked to further foot the bill when enrollment inevitably exceeds projections in Kansas — as it has everywhere else.

Additionally, research shows that a majority of the nation’s expansion enrollees are not working and report no earned income. Instead of promoting work for able-bodied adults, Medicaid expansion is just another government-sponsored trap that is encouraging able-bodied adults to sit back and become dependent on the government — an idea that’s foreign to hard-working Kansans.

GUEST EDITORIAL

Kansans should also be wary of arguments that the plan includes a “work referral” program as a way to combat this growth in dependency. In reality, that line item is just lip service with no actual teeth to get the job done. Arkansas tried the same thing when it expanded Medicaid, but the policy was wildly unsuccessful. Less than 5% of the referred expansion enrollees took any action at all on the work referrals they received. Arkansas has since pursued commonsense work requirements for its Medicaid expansion population to try to help more individuals move from welfare to work.

Kansas should learn from the missteps of states that have already passed Medicaid expansion and felt the ill effects. It would be a mistake to think that this Medicaid expansion is somehow more conservative or that it will produce different results in Kansas than it has anywhere else.

It’s time for policymakers from both sides of the aisle to put aside their political ambitions and find a workable solution to healthcare for all Kansans. It’s not too late for that conversation to begin, but it starts with abandoning this foolish Medicaid expansion plan. ###

Medicaid expansion plan has no provision to prevent taxpayer funded abortion

Dear Editor,

Some folks say that compromise is the best solution to problems. Perhaps if you are having a dispute with a neighbor over who gets the pecans off a tree on the property line, you can each take half. When it comes to government care of those who can not take care of themselves. God says that is the right thing to do. Unfortunately, today government too often wants to make a living by taking from those who work and giving to those who do not want to work.

Expanded Medicaid has come to mean, providing medical services, not only to those who can not work, but also to those who just don’t want to work.

In the past telling someone to work for benefits was requiring accountability. Today it is called being mean spirited.

This week we heard the trumpets blast from Topeka that there was a “new compromise” on Extended Medicaid for Kansas. Last session Governor Kelley wanted to give away the house to support Medicaid for everyone. This year she is willing to “compromise.” Medicaid Expansion is just another name for the federal camel getting it’s nose further under the medical care tent, with the goal of taking over the whole system. The philosophy is that medical care is a right.

Suppose someone decides to take illegal drugs, drink too much, live a very dangerous lifestyle, etc., then demands that medical care is a right. Who pays for this new right? Yes, it is the people who take care of themselves and live responsible lives. The people who work to support their family. Generally, they also require much less medical help.

The Governor and Senate Majority Leader Denning, a Republican, have made a bad deal. The deal is to, for the first time, give welfare benefits to able bodied people who are capable of, though not required to work. Have we been here before? If folks are capable and willing, why not make it a requirement to work? In addition, the Kansas Supreme Court declared a right to kill unborn children, and this legislation would allow killing children using taxpayer funded programs. It has no provision to prevent abortion under this “compromise.”

Government controlled medical plans are simply socialism. If they are to be forced down our throat, they should at least have work requirements and protect the unborn, but what do you expect from Governor Kelley. Some legislators believe Kansans want government controlled medicine like Medicaid. All they hear are the lobbyists that stand to make lots of money. Please contact your legislators, see the editorial page of your newspaper or at https://openstates.org/find_your_legislator/, and tell them that the government is to protect “We the people” not run our medical care. Ask them to vote NO, but at least have a work requirement and protect unborn children.

Entrepreneurship can win the war on poverty

More than 38 million Americans are living in poverty, according to the latest U.S. Census data. That’s just under 12 percent of the population.

Not exactly what President Lyndon Johnson had in mind when he declared war on poverty in 1964. Since then, the U.S. poverty rate has averaged about 13 percent. It’s declined slightly during economic booms and ticked up during recessions.

In other words, the War on Poverty has been fought to a draw, despite trillions of dollars in federal spending. Yet more spending is exactly what the leading contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination are calling for as part of their effort to alleviate poverty.

There’s a better way to help people climb the economic ladder. And that’s by making it easier to be an entrepreneur.

Entrepreneurship is one of the surest ways for those with low incomes to beat a path into the middle class. A study from the Small Business Administration found that “self-employed workers who own incorporated businesses have much higher earnings than all other worker groups in low-income areas.”

Entrepreneurship is also a pivotal way for immigrants to secure the better life they sought by coming here. Nearly 30 percent of all new entrepreneurs are immigrants.

But as a new report on the state of entrepreneurship from the Pacific Research Institute shows, government has erected barriers that make it difficult for low-income entrepreneurs to get their businesses off the ground, hire more workers, and work their way out of poverty.

BUSINESS COMMENTARY

WAYNE WINEGARDEN, PRI

These barriers include costly business taxes, fees, and permits; a complicated tax code that requires significant out-of-pocket expense for compliance; nonsensical occupational licensing laws that impede a person’s right to work; and exceedingly high minimum wage laws that make it difficult for entrepreneurs to create jobs.

All told, small businesses with fewer than 50 employees face nearly $12,000 in costs per worker just to comply with government regulations. Adhering to the tax code costs very small businesses — those with one to five employees — about $4,300 per employee.

There are several market reforms that policymakers can deploy to reverse this trend. In light of these unconscionable tax and regulatory costs, policymakers should cut bureaucratic red tape, simplify the tax code, and jettison ill-considered new regulations such as a $15 minimum wage.

Reforms should also focus on improving low-income entrepreneur’s access to capital, which is perhaps the biggest hurdle aspiring businesses must overcome.

Starting a business takes an estimated 4.4 times the median net worth of an African-American household. It takes four times the median net worth of the average Latino family.

The Federal Reserve’s annual Small Business Credit Survey notes that firms seeking between $100,000 and $250,000 have the most difficult time securing financing. These are the microbusinesses that low-income entrepreneurs are building from the ground up.

Community banks are the traditional providers of credit for these firms. But they’ve been stymied by overly burdensome federal regulations. Reforms enacted in 2018 exempted small banks from some of the Dodd-Frank Act’s most onerous regulations; that should help improve small businesses’ ability to access credit in the future.

Starting a new business has always been a piece of the American dream. Unfortunately, too many government-created obstacles stand in the way of entrepreneurs toiling to produce better lives for their families. Removing these obstacles is essential to ultimately winning the War on Poverty.

Trump’s Jacksonian streak shows with Iran

Donald Trump isn’t George W. Bush. That should be obvious to everyone by now, but his critics and even some of his supporters immediately acted as if it were 2003 on the cusp of the Iraq War when Trump took out Iranian commander Qassem Soleimani.

Suddenly, the neocons had cachet again (Vox warned that “the Iraq War hawks are back”), and we were about to launch yet another endless war. Trump’s decision to kill Soleimani, New York Times columnist Michelle Goldberg wrote, repeating a common refrain, “has brought the United States to the brink of a devastating new conflict in the Middle East.”

There’s no doubt that the operation against Soleimani carried risks, but it didn’t transform Trump into a conventional interventionist. In fact, taking out Soleimani was wholly consistent with the president’s approach to the world that can’t be plotted on a simple hawk/dove or neocon/isolationist axis. As a Jacksonian, Trump is none of the above, combining a willingness to whack our enemies with a distaste for ambitious foreign interventions.

The Jacksonian label is the famous construction of foreign-policy analyst Walter Russell Mead, who traces the tradition back to Andrew Jackson and the cultural influence of the American backwoods. Jacksonians are content to let the world sort itself out, except if they perceive a threat, in which case they react with great ferocity.

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

Trump’s victory overturned the reigning Republican foreign-policy consensus, but it didn’t herald a lurch to isolationism pure and simple.

Even when Trump sounded most hostile to U.S. commitments and alliances abroad in 2016, he promised, in one of his most Jacksonian sentiments, to “bomb the s---” out of ISIS. No matter how much Trump disdained being in the Middle East, it wouldn’t be possible to follow through on this threat without military assets, an intelligence network and allies on the ground. Once elected, Trump did, sure enough, bomb the s--- out of ISIS.

Killing Soleimani is keeping with this general orientation rather than a departure from it. In fact, the whole thing is shot through with Jacksonian attitudes.

Trump’s red line to Iran didn’t have to do with our values or shipping lanes. It reflected the most basic imperative of a nation protecting its own: Don’t harm Americans.

When a rocket attack by an Iranian-supported militia killed an American contractor and injured other Americans at a base in Iraq, Trump’s response was also characteristically Jacksonian: a stunning, bolt-out-of-the-blue droning of an enemy commander who was thought to be safely out of bounds, designed to create the maximum deterrent bang for the buck.

For his most loyal backers, the killing of Soleimani is likelier to add to the legend of Donald Trump instead of give them pause. In their view, here is President Trump once again doing what no other president would do, taking an inordinate amount of criticism for it, often from a perpetually hysterical press corps, and having it work out (so far).

The Jacksonian impulse is not enough to solve the complex foreign-policy problem presented by Iran. But it can be useful in a contest of intimidation and escalation. The killing of Soleimani isn’t a deep-state or neocon project, rather an unmistakable expression of Trump’s distinctive worldview.

January 2010 - Company proposes wind farm in area near Lone Elm

Are you contemplating the 2020 KATP?

January 2010
County officials are developing new rules which would give some regulatory authority over wind farms, working in tandem with a Lenexa-based company's proposal to bring a wind farm to the Lone Elm area. Tradewind Energy began studying a location southeast of Garnett, nearly straight north of Lone Elm, several years ago with the hopes of finding enough wind to locate windmills to generate electricity. The wind sources were quantified and the company has engaged the county in the next phase of the project.

January 2000
An illegal cash pyramid scheme that swept through Anderson and other counties three years ago has resulted in a civil lawsuit against 15 participants who state securities officials say ignored orders to return funds they received from other participants. The locally named individuals in the lawsuit as part of the "Friends Helping Friends" or "People Helping People" scheme had all refunded the money they received and conformed to the Kansas Security Commission's orders to cease and desist.

January 1990
William Clark II, Centerville, pled no contest to the charge of making a terrorist threat, a Class E felony. Clark's arraignment hearing stemmed from his involvement in an incident in October when he allegedly threatened Sister Loretta Rockers in front of members of the Holy Angels parish council.

January 1980
Kendall Zwiener was found guilty of turning on a fire hydrant on Halloween night. Witnesses who testified say they saw the fire hydrant being turned on included Chief Lawrence Kellerman, who was on top of the hotel building and Reserve Officer Dan Friesen who was on top of the Garnett State Savings Bank building.

January 1920
When a bear's after you, you don't stop to consider whether it is against the game laws or impolite to shoot him. The nation was wrought up over the impending "fuel famine" an while not fifty percent thought it was legal for the United States court to issue an injunction against labor, still ninety percent were for the court doing it. A strike as conducted is a club, and covering it with ribbons does not change its effectiveness if used. A lockout is a bludgeon and the fact that it is hidden behind specious phrases makes no difference. Miners and operators are out for the coin, and they have been taught that the way to get it is to fight. Whenever the public gives both sides a fair trouncing, they will come to their milk.

I'm sitting here wondering how many of you folks read my last week's column and perhaps some of you have marked the dates on your 2020 June calendars, concerning the 2020 KATP Field Training School.

Since this Training School is still almost six months away, news concerning it is slowly filtering in.

As promised, here is the very latest I have to share with you.

To attend this program, NO experience is necessary - just a desire to learn. Participants can attend for just one day or the entire 14 days of the field school. If you begin a day, that full day must be completed. Participants must be at least 12 years old and children aged 12-17 must be accompanied by a parent or responsible adult.

Classroom courses on Archaeology are also offered and can be taken for college credit through Emporia State University for a fee. The registration fee for the field school, for members of the KAA and the Kansas Historical Society is $35 for standard participants, $25 for participants 65 or older and $15 for students currently enrolled at a middle school, high school or college.

Non-members of the KAA or KSHS will pay $90. Participants enrolled for college credit will pay the college tuition fees directly to Emporia State University.

Registration will be available on line starting March 1 and be available until May 25, 2020. Registration is limited based on activity on a day-by-day basis.

I will continue to bring you up to date on this wonderful program as I acquire new information.

AAA: Travel advice for Chiefs fans heading to Miami

WICHITA - With the Kansas City Chiefs, for the first time in 50 years, clinching their spot to compete for the NFL championship on Sunday, February 2nd in Miami, there's a lot of pent-up demand across Chiefs Kingdom for fans wanting to be there in person for the game and festivities.

Flexibility will be key for those booking travel at the last minute, but as a AAA member, you could save big on game tickets, hotel costs and car rentals - a definite score for your wallet!

charges (typically one night's stay) for any cancellations.

"Being flexible with your flight, hotel and rental car options will be the best way to go about planning a trip to Miami for the Big Game, especially last-minute," says Matthew Bert, travel agent with AAA Kansas. "If your plans allow, consider extending your time in Florida to escape the winter weather much of the country is seeing. South Florida's average high temperature for February is about 75 degrees."

Travel like a Champion

Making your travel plans with a travel agent is a good idea, especially to try and avoid any potential scams.

Use your credit card when purchasing to give yourself a good way to have money returned if you need to cancel or dispute a charge.

Read hotel/airline policies carefully so you understand what cancellation policies entail.

Call the air/train/bus company you will use to get there personally. Leaving your reservations and hard earned dollars up to an emailed confirmation number can be risky. Do the same with hotel reservations. Try to talk to a live person who can confirm what you've just paid for.

Save on Travel with AAA

Driving to Miami

If you decide to embark on the long drive (22 hours/1,400+ miles from Kansas City; 24 hours/1,600 miles from Wichita) to Miami make sure your vehicle is ready. While some maintenance and repair tasks are best left to certified automotive technicians, there are several basic items motorists can easily check themselves between trips to their auto repair facility, including the following:

Windshield Wiper Blades

If wiper blades are worn, cracked or rigid with age, they will not adequately remove rain, grime and other debris that can obscure driver vision. If the wiper blades are sufficiently deteriorated, the metal wiper blade frame could contact and permanently damage the windshield.

Tires

Check and adjust tire pressure, including the spare. Inflate tires to the vehicle manufacturer's recommended settings—not the maximum pressure on the side of the tire. Check the tread depth by inserting a quarter upside down into a tire groove with Washington's head facing outward. The tread should cover part of Washington's head. If any of the area above Washington's head is visible, it's time to start shopping for new tires.

Battery

Have your battery checked, especially if it is over three years old. Winter cold breaks down the battery internally and accelerates the rate of corrosion on vehicle battery terminals.

ACHS boys homecoming comeback comes up short

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - The Bulldogs failed to rally from a 15-point first quarter deficit, but the comeback fell just one point shy in a 35-34 loss last Tuesday against Prairie View.

Anderson County struggled all night with Prairie View's zone defense as they packed it inside and dared the Bulldogs to beat them from outside.

Prairie View's plan worked perfectly in the first quarter as it slowed the Bulldogs down on offense and made them a step slow defensively as Prairie View raced to an early 17-2 lead after the first quarter.

The Bulldogs would make a run in the second quarter getting the lead down to single digits but a late surge by Prairie View still left them with a 24-10 lead heading into intermission.

Following the halftime crowning of the king and queen, it appeared the Bulldogs were more prepared in the second half as they began chipping away at the deficit.

After just 10 points in the first two quarters, the Bulldogs scored 15 points in the third quarter to close the deficit down to 32-25 heading into the final period.

The Bulldogs defense clamped down late holding PV to just 3 points in the fourth quarter but just couldn't muster that one final bucket to pull off the comeback.

Neither team shot well from the free throw line, but it was key to Prairie View pulling off the victory.

PV knocked down just 8-16 attempts while Anderson County didn't hit a free throw on the night, going just 0-2.

Reese Kellerman led all scorers with 18 points.

Girls roll past PV for homecoming win

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Last Tuesday, the Anderson County Bulldogs rolled past Prairie View 55-24.

The Lady Bulldogs controlled the game from the opening tip and jumped out to an early 23-7 lead after the first 8 minutes.

They didn't let up in the second and third quarters either outpacing Prairie View 26-12 over the two quarter span to head into the fourth with a commanding 49-19 lead.

With the game well in hand and a combination of reserves in the game and a running clock, the Bulldogs only scored 6 points in the fourth to close out the victory.

Cali Foltz led all the way with 21 points, 11 rebounds, 3 assists, 3 steals and 2 blocks.

Rayna Jasper chipped in with 15 points.

Friends of Library and a memorial donation help library purchase fun items for kids

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 1-21-2020 / SUBMITTED

Thanks to the generosity of the Friends of the Library and a generous memorial donation to the library, the library has some fun new things for our youngest patrons.

The Early Literacy Station™ (ELS) computer (pictured above) is designed specifically for our youngest patrons ages 2-8 and features over 4,000 localized learning activities. The fun, interactive and engaging content spans all seven curricular areas: math, science & nature, social studies & geography, reading, art & music, writing & computer skills, and reference. Studies show that the integration of blended learning into early childhood education can increase literacy, improve school readiness, and prepare young learners for curriculum that is based on STREAM and STEM. The Early Literacy Station™ creates an easy-to-use, single learning solution for young learners of all ages to build their literacy skills.

We have also purchased new educational toys (pictured below) for the little ones to enjoy while their parents are picking out books for them. As you can see in the picture the kids are enjoying the new items.

Our most sincere thanks...

The family of Gary W. Ecclefield wishes to acknowledge the many expressions of sympathy and gestures of kindness shown to us following our sad loss.

We offer our heartfelt thanks to the many friends, neighbors, family and well-wishers who visited our home, who brought food and paper goods and who provided emotional and practical support for us at this difficult time. For those who called, sent floral tributes, cards and messages of condolences, as well as those who made charitable donations, we are truly grateful.

A special thanks to the Coffey County Airport for keeping Gary's plane and the Coffey County Hospital for seeing to it Gary's family was taken care of.

To Reuben, Tracey and Stacey of Feuerborn Funeral for their sensitive and professional handling of the services.

To Pastor Bill Nelson, Welda Methodist Church for the wonderful service he gave in memory of Gary and to the Welda Methodist Women for providing food after the service.

To Daren Kellerman and the Masons of the Delphian Lodge No. 44 for their part in Gary's service.

USDA seeks input on new Ethanol sales infrastructure incentive program

WASHINGTON - The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) is seeking public input to help with the creation of the Higher Blends Infrastructure Incentive Program (HBIIIP), a new program that will expand the availability of domestic ethanol and biodiesel by incentivizing the expansion of sales of renewable fuels.

"Feedback from farmers, retailers and biofuels producers is critical to the success of this future program," Agriculture Secretary Perdue said. "Under the leadership of President Trump, USDA remains committed to fulfilling a key promise to American farmers to enhance the promotion of biofuels."

President Trump has made it abundantly clear he is unleashing the full potential of American energy production as we retake our rightful place as the world's leader and become energy independent. Expanding the sale of biofuels will provide consumers with more choices when they fill up at the pump, including environmentally friendly fuel with decreased emissions, driving demand for our farmers and improving the air we breathe.

Additional Information
This Request for Information (RFI) solicits information on options for fuel ethanol and biodiesel infrastructure, innovation, products, technology, and data derived from all HBIIIP processes and/or science that drive economic growth, promote health, and increase public benefit. Through this RFI, USDA seeks input from the public, including but not limited to: retail fueling stations, convenience stores, hypermarket fueling stations, fleet facilities, and similar entities with capital investments; equipment providers, equipment installers, certification entities and other stakeholder/manufacturers (both upstream and down); fuel distribution centers, including terminals and depots; and those performing innovative research, and/or developing enabling platforms and applications in manufacturing, energy production, and agriculture.

This RFI is intended to gather suggestions on areas of greatest priority within the HBIIIP, as well as past or future Federal government efforts to build, promote, and sustain the sale and use of renewable fuels. The public input provided in response to this RFI will inform USDA as well as private sector and other stakeholders with interest in and expertise relating to such a promotion.

A full description of the RFI is available on page 2699 of the Jan. 16, 2020, Federal Register (PDF, 249 KB).

In April 2017, President Donald J. Trump established the Interagency Task Force on Agriculture and Rural Prosperity to identify legislative, regulatory and policy changes that could promote agriculture and prosperity in rural communities. In January 2018, Secretary Perdue presented the Task Force's findings to President Trump. These findings included 31 recommendations to align the federal government with state, local and tribal governments to take advantage of opportunities that exist in rural America. Increasing investments in innovative tools including renewable fuels is a key recommendation of the task force. To view the report in its entirety, please view the Report to the President of the United States from the Task Force on Agriculture and Rural Prosperity (PDF, 5.4 MB). Colony Christian Church focuses on the manliness of Jesus

Darren McGhee gave the Communion Meditation over Hebrews. Hebrews points out that there are dire consequences for those who do not listen and respond with obedience to the Word. Jesus is worthy of our commitment, worship and endurance in our faith. He has made a new covenant, offering himself through his death to save us. He provides us with a superior basis for persevering in the Christian life, so we can live as faithful members of the Christian community. (Ref: Hebrews 1:1-4)

Pastor Chase Riebel's sermon was on focusing on the manliness and Godliness of Jesus. Jesus the Nazarene was crucified and raised from the dead. There are many instances where Jesus is proclaimed as being a man from Nazareth. He was FULLY man. He was nothing fancy... a carpenter and a shepherd. Hebrews 2:14-17 tells us that because God's children are human, made of flesh and blood, the Son also had to become flesh and blood. Only then could he break the power of the devil, who had the power of death. There are only two places to go, Heaven or Hell... and only ONE way to get there, thru Jesus. Jesus is also FULLY God. He denied himself from acting like God so he could be punished by death. He was not created, but the world was created by him and for him. He took all of Satan's "bullets" to save us. All Satan can do now is threaten us. When we stand with Jesus, Satan has no power over us. (Ref: Acts 4:10-12, Hebrews 2:14-17 & 3:1 & 4:14-15, Matthew 21:11, John 14:6 & 19:19, Romans, 12:18, Philippians 2, Matthew 4, Colossians 2:8-9) You can here this sermon in its entirety on our website at <http://www.colonychristianchurch.org>, or on your favorite podcast.

With the change in policy in 2019, livestock producers with verifiable proof of death find the inventory requirements much easier to meet. This is especially true if applying for deaths of newborn calves. If verifiable proof of death records is not used as noted above, the livestock owner must provide verifiable begin-

If you suffer livestock deaths due to adverse weather, please contact your local FSA office as soon as the loss is apparent to receive additional details on filing a notice of loss and providing an acceptable proof of death. A FLAKY PROBLEM! Unlike nature, two of the snowflakes hanging in this school window are exactly alike. Can you spot them in less than a minute? Don't melt under this time pressure.

BRAIN TEASER! One night, two fathers and two sons played poker. When the game was over, there were three dollars in chips to be split up. Each player received exactly one dollar. How was this possible?

IT'S MAGIC! Use the numbers three through 18 to fill in this Magic Number Square. The numbers in each horizontal row and vertical column should total 42. We've filled in the numbers 15 through 18. The rest is up to you. Use trial and error -- and a good eraser!

First row: 10, 13, 16, 3. Second row: 15, 4, 9, 14. Third row: 5, 18, 11, 8. Fourth row: 12, 7, 6, 17.
